HETTY GREEN UNIQUE AS A BUSINESS WOMAN

Hetty Green, the world's most unique heiress, is undoubtedly the most shrewd business woman living to-day. Although she is not "self-made," as her mode of living has led many to believe, she has succeeded in increasing her original fortune of $10,000,000 to ten times its size in 80 years of her business career.

Despite her mammoth fortune Hetty Green lives almost as frugally as a shop girl. For more than a half century she has not been established in a real home, but has drifted about in cheap hotels or lodging houses, sometimes registering under the name of her pet dog and putting his name on the door plate. Occasionally she takes a flat in some obscure corner of New York.

In her garb she is as unpretentious as in her abode. She invariably wears black—a worn rusty black. Her costume consists of a black dress of an obsolete cut, a short black cape and a little bonnet of a design calculated to give the greatest amount of service. The face of the heiress of millions is so unfamiliar to the public that she is seldom recognized on the street.

Hetty a Walker.

Hetty Green infrequently rides anywhere. She never appears in a carriage or automobile and she will not ride in a street car when she can walk. Her whereabouts is a constant problem to the tax collector, whom she freely admits that she dodges whenever possible. Her assessed property, however, is generally limited. She maintains very little real estate. The property of stocks that she acquires she sells quickly. Her simple formula for business success is to buy when cheap and sell when high. She will sell at a small profit rather than run the slightest risk for a higher one.

Much of her fortune she has made by the lending of money and the sale of the properties secured through foreclosures. She has never lost money in lending. She invariably investigates mortgages in person and will accept only unquestionable security. One of the most successful foreclosures in which Hetty Green figured was that of Chicago property. She sold for millions of dollars hundreds of acres of land in the heart of the city that she had obtained as a mortgage for a few thousand of dollars.

She made a fabulous profit from the panic of 1907, when she lent money to wealthy New Yorkers, tiding them over the critics and later reaping a rich interest.

Hetty Green was born in 1834 in New Bedford, Mass., of Quaker parentage. At the age of 20 she became heiress of $10,000,000 by the death of her father. During her early girlhood she was a belle of New York. She would go to great social functions on foot with woolen hose drawn over her shoes to keep the snow out, rather than incur the expense of riding.

She was married in 1867 to Howard H. Green, a wealthy silk trader, with the understanding that Green should not share his wife's fortune. They both played Wall street heavily on separate accounts. The wife won and her husband lost, dying almost penniless. At one time Hetty Green rode into New York on a special engine to transact a deal of hundreds of thousands of dollars. She chose the engine rather than pay $5 more for a coach.

A HEAP TO UNLEARN.

After the war, Germany will be out after the world's trade again and will get it unless British and Americans, too) mend their methods in the meantime. The Germans were capturing the markets of the world because they adapted their goods, selling methods, and credits to the demands of the customer, instead of trying to make the customer buy what they had to sell, and on the seller's terms, as have the British and the Americans. There is no sentiment about trade. The world buys in the cheapest market and from the most accommodating salesman. The British and the Americans have a heap to unlearn before they can permanently supplant Germany in the world's markets.

TO CHANGE YOUR SKIN!

How to Develop the Highest Degree of Vital, Nervous and Muscular Vigor.

Snakes throw off their outer skin once a year. Human beings change their skin perhaps nine times in a year, that is, they have a new skin about once in six weeks.

The value of a clean skin in maintaining health is not properly understood by the majority of people. Cleanliness is a part of health. You cannot be healthy unless you are clean, not only externally, but also internally.

The blood should also be assisted occasionally, like the skin, in throwing off poisons so that the system may not get clogged and leave a weak spot for disease germs to enter the system. When the blood is clogged we suffer from what is commonly called a cold.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and entirely eradicates the poisons that breed and feed disease. It thus cures scrofula, eczema, boils, pimples and other eruptions that mar and scar the skin. Pure blood is essential to good health. The weak, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience is commonly the effect of impure blood. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery not only cleanses the blood of impurities, but it increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and it enriches the body with an abundant supply of pure, rich blood.

Take it as directed and it will search out impure and poisonous matter in the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys and drive it from the system through the natural channels.

It will penetrate into the joints and muscles, and dissolve the poisonous accumulations. Bad blood is driven out. It will furnish you with rich, pure blood full of vital force—the kind that increases energy and ambition, that rejuvenates the entire body.

Suffered Tortures Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

St. Jean de Matha, Jan. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been made well by "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered so much that at last I would not dare to eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives" and after taking them I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was well. I quickly regained my lost weight—and now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am fully recovered, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives.'

FELLS KING FERDINAND — TO TAKE JEWELS BACK

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The Duke of Orleans addressed a letter to King Ferdinand of Bulgaria several days ago requesting that monarch to take back jewels of Bulgarian orders which had been bestowed upon him, but the letter was to be published only on the day Bulgaria entered the war. In his communication the Duke said:

"The attitude your Majesty has thought right to take in the present war, contrary to your previous policy, forces me to the sad duty of praying your Majesty to take back the jewels of Bulgarian orders with which your Majesty invested me, first, upon the death of your venerable mother, and, second, when your Majesty was in Paris to point out how much Bulgaria owed to France.

"I tell your Majesty to take back the jewels, because, alas, I cannot send them back, but your Majesty has only to apply to his ally, who for more than a year has occupied my chateau in Belgium and for whom my safe can have no secrets. I authorize the giving up to your Majesty of orders I can no longer wear.

"Your Majesty will understand I am obliged to warn your Majesty that the date he takes up arms against my country, France, his name will be struck from the Chapter of Knights of the Holy Spirit. I do not ask your Majesty to send back the jewels of the Order of the Holy Spirit, but wish, on the contrary, that these souvenirs of the France he has betrayed shall keep alive perpetual remorse."

A letter that the Duke wrote to Emperor Francis Joseph at the outbreak of the war has also been published. In it he asks the ruler of Austria-Hungary to take back the jewels of the Order of the Golden Fleece and refers to his marriage to the Archduchess Maria Dorothea as "the misfortune of my life."

Prince Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans and the French Pretender, was married to the Archduchess Maria Dorothea of Austria at Vienna, in November, 1896. She obtained a separation from him in Paris in July, 1914, after a series of domestic difficulties which had lasted for years. Under the decree granted by the Court of Arbitration she was to receive $11,000 a year from the Duke, who also was ordered to restore to her money which he had used improperly.

While a separation was granted, the court refused to recommend a decree of divorce.

APPLE INVALUABLE IN NUMEROUS WAYS

The use of apple juice in the culinary department in place of vinegar would make for better health in the family, and for the preparation of fruit and vegetables salads it would make a good substitute. For the sick room it is a mild germicide. On the dressing table it is indispensable. In the laundry it lightens labor.

Use pieces of apple to garnish the dish and add flavor to meat, fish and game.

Add one teaspoonful of juice to tough boiling meats or a fowl of doubtful age, to make tender.

One slice of apple in a cupful of tea makes a delightful drink. One teaspoonful of apple juice added to boiling rice or sago, whitens the kernels and imparts a delicate flavor.

Equal parts of olive oil and apple juice makes a superior salad dressing. Make the dressing in the usual way, letting the apple juice replace the vinegar.

Improve the flavor of all dried fruits by adding a few slices of apple while stewing.

The juice of one apple and half a teaspoonful of baking soda will take the place of two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Sift the flour and soda together and add apple juice as the last ingredients to the mixture.

The cooling beneficial effects of drinks containing apple juice is well known. It is an important and pleasant drink for all fevers and colds.

Good for a Cold.

One tablespoonful of equal parts of strained honey and apple juice taken every hour will help a cold. Apple juice as a gargle for sore throat is good. Apple juice one part and boiling water two parts will cure sick headache. Sip a teaspoonful as hot as possible every two hours. Moisten the lips and tongue of a fever patient with a bit of absorbent cotton dipped in equal parts of glycerine and apple juice. Add apple juice to the bathing water of the patient to help reduce the fever.

A slice of apple dipped in salt and rubbed on chilblains gives almost instant relief from itching, and will heal them if the macerated pulp, with a little salt added, is bound on the affected parts for a few nights. Many school children will be glad to know this when they recall the chilblain torture they have endured, especially when the room was a little too warm in the middle of the afternoon.

Remove a wart or corn by binding apple on it a few times. Prevent and cure dandruff by using a tonic for the hair twice a week made of one part apple juice and three parts water. Rub into the scalp with the finger tips.

Put over the fire two ounces of pure toilet soap and one pint of rain water. Stir until the soap is melted. Beat the yoke of one egg and the juice of one apple together and pour soap and water over it. Stir with eggbeater until nearly cold, then bottle. This keeps indefinitely and is an excellent shampoo for the hair.

Removes Stains.

Ink, rust and fruit stains may be removed with apple juice. Moisten the stained goods with cold water. Lay in the sun and put a few drops of apple on the spot. Dry and repeat until the stain is removed. Do not rub. Add salt to the stain if it be iron rust.

Rub discoloration off unvarnished wood with a slice of apple dipped in salt. Grind apple peel dry and use to sprinkle over coals to kill disagreeable odors. Use apple peel to take the grease off pots, pans, dishes, sinks, and bath tub.

Clean brass or other metal with a slice of apple dipped in salt.

Rug silver first with apple, then clean in the usual way with alcohol and whiting. The high lustre of new silver is thus obtained.

Make glassware sparkle by washing in cold water with apple juice added.

For mildew make a paste of equal parts of soap and fine starch, using a knife blade as for putty. Moisten the goods where mildewed with apple juice, then spread the paste on both sides of the cloth and expose to the sun. When the paste dries, soften with more apple juice.

One part apple juice and four parts water will remove freckles, sunburn, and blackheads. Never use apple juice pure on the face or neck.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Fortune Telling System

By F. A. MITCHEL

A table was between them. They had been playing euchre. She suggested a game of hearts.

"No, thanks," he said, "I am not so stupid as to play a game of hearts with a coquette. Your victims are already sufficiently numerous without adding so unworthy a person as myself."

"You know very well what I mean. You simply wish to say something smart."

She was shuffling the cards, but her mind was not on them. What her mind was on, or, rather, what was on her mind, did not interest him. She was right in inferring that his remark was intended for something smart.

While she was listlessly shuffling the cards she leaned forward so that the perfume of a flower she wore in her corsage was perilously near his nose. Her red lips were still nearer his. She was looking down at the cards, but presently raised her eyes. They met his resting upon her admiringly, but she dropped them at once.

"Shall I tell your fortune?" she asked.

"Do."

She began to distribute the cards on the table in four piles. Whenever she put a card on the fourth pile she paused and studied it. He asked her what process she was using and she told him it was one she had learned from a fortune teller. A spider laying for a fly is not expected to speak the truth.

She put down four cards, then another four cards, the second fourth card being the knave of spades.

"That's you," she said.

"I'm no knave."

"But you're awfully smart. You scintillate with bright sayings."

He swallowed this little bit of preliminary bait, and it made him hungry for more.

Presently the ten of diamonds fell on the second pile of cards.

"That's a wealthy girl who is angling for you," said the fortune teller.

"What's her name?"

"I know her name, but I'm not going to tell you."

The two of spades fell in the first pile.

"A black deuce indicates that she is crafty. Better look out for her. She will make you a lot of trouble."

The ten of hearts fell on the first pile.

"That's the girl who really loves you She is true hearted, and if you return her love she will make you very happy."

"I don't quite understand this scheme under which you are working all this out," he said, with a puzzled expression. "I don't see why the ten spots are a couple of girls or why you infer those things, no matter what pile they fall on."

"Of course you don't. What kind of fortune would it be if you did?"

By this time she had dealt all the cards and, putting them together again, shuffled them and began anew this time laying them in six rows, placing one card beneath another, so that all were exposed. The third card in the first column was the ten of diamonds, and the fourth card in the sixth column was the jack of clubs.

"Too bad!" exclaimed the fortune teller. "The expected has happened The rich girl has thrown you over for a man who is brutal."

"That's the queerest fortune telling system to understand I ever came across," he said.

She continued to deal the cards very slowly. They were both watching them intently as they fell, gradually bending lower and lower over them. At last a rebellious strand of her hair grazed his forehead. A fine wire is sufficient to carry an electric current, and a few hairs may carry a love current. The ten of hearts fell at the bottom of the fifth column. She left her hand on it, and, putting his hand on it at the same time, he touched hers. She did not withdraw hers, and he maintained his position.

"Don't go any further till you have explained to me why this card falling at the bottom of the fifth column means that the girl who loves me is"—

"Is what?"

"What you're going to say about her."

"What am I going to say about her?"

This dialogue, spoken slowly and softly, is not especially brilliant, but it was quite sufficient to serve the purpose of these two—that is, keeping their hands in touch. She raised her lashes and looked into his eyes with something that might have been reproachful; it might have been inviting; it might have been anything he chose to infer it to be. Meanwhile the fragrance of the flower mingled with her breath, circled about his nose and permeated through it up into his brain.

It would be sacrilegious to follow further the blending of these two young hearts. Besides, it would be a repetition of what has occurred since Cupid first began his pranks. And yet the little rascal has an infinite variety of ways of practicing his profession, and nothing is achieved in life in so many different ways as the drawing together of a pair of lovers.

"I say, mummy," he said when their daughter was receiving attention from a desirable parti, "you'd better teach her that fortune telling game you taught me."

"It is not necessary," replied the wife and mother, with dignity.

"Humph! That's about as intelligible as your fortune system."

Doctor Said Sciatica--- Rheumatism--Lumbago

But He Could Not Help Me, and Endorsed the Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Mr. Wm. Parker, 105 Cayuga street, Brantford, Ont., tells in the following letter of his remarkable experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills: "My doctor treated me for some time for Sciatica, Rheumatism, Lumbago, but to no purpose, for I had to lay off work. The visiting officer of Sick Benefit called to se me and advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, stating that he had been cured of the same trouble by their use. I asked the druggist about them and he recommended them highly. Not being satisfied with this, I went back to my doctor, and when he said they were good I began their use. The promptness with which they enlivened the action of the kidneys and bowels was wonderful, and it was not long before I was rid of all my trouble.

"I was so bad that I could only walk by hanging on to a chair or the wall. My wife had to lace my shoes. Only those who have had this ailment can realize the way I suffered. I am writing this letter to let people who have my trouble know of these pills. You are at liberty to use this letter, and if anyone interested will call or write to me I will give every detail."

Write to Mr. Parker, enclosing stamp for reply, and he will verify this statement. He will do this out of the gratitude he feels for his cure and because he realizes how difficult it is to obtain the cure of these dreadfully painful ailments.

There are so many treatments recommended for rheumatism that you naturally doubt them all. Here is an opportunity for you to verify the cure and put this great medicine to the test. It will only cost you a quarter to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They get at the very foundation of rheumatism, and by removing the poisons from the system take away the cause of pains and aches.

Public Charges Are Not Beneficiaries of Life Assurance

A census was taken about a year ago of the inmates of alms houses, of prisons, of asylums for the care of the helpless, in an eastern state. It was found but three of the occupants of these institutions, who numbered altogether over fifteen hundred, had been beneficiaries of life insurance.

It was somebody's neglect that forced the public to pay higher taxes in order to take care of nearly all these people.

Life insurance limits the needs of poorhouses, prisons, old folks' homes. Life insurance, therefore, reduces the needs of the State in maintaining institutions for the care of the needy.

The man who has sufficient insurance to take care of his own future if he reaches old age, and of his dependents, should anything happen to him, is doing his duty, not only to his family, but to his State.

WOULD YOU CONSIDER

a proposition making provision for your family in the event of death, or, if living, provision for old age?

A Collector's Bargain.

Lord Spencer of Althorp, one of the greatest of book collectors, was at home only in his own field. One day in browsing about Bond street, London, he went into the shop of a dealer in bric-a-brac. The dealer, who knew him by sight, said persuasively:

"Here is a fine bit of pottery which your lordship really ought to have, and you shall have it very cheap—only two guineas."

So Lord Spencer bought it and took it home and set it in a high place. One day a connoisseur of china paid him a visit, and Lord Spencer showed his bargain.

"What did you give for it?" asked the connoisseur.

"Two guineas," answered Spencer rather proudly.

"H'm!" said the connoisseur. "At that price the marmalade should have been included."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, that precious piece of yours is nothing more or less than a shilling marmalade pot with a green thistle painted on it."

No Scandalmonger.

A party of young ladies from a certain southern town was touring Europe last summer, under the guidance of a superannuated clergyman, when hostilities broke out and left them, for the time being, marooned in northern Italy.

One of the party, who is locally famous in her own community for her aversion to circulating anything in the nature of idle gossip, wrote a letter back home to a friend. After describing some of the sights she had seen and mentioning the prevalent weather at some length, she added this sentence:

"It is rumored in Milan that war has been declared, but don't say I told you!"

Good, but Small.

Franz Abt, the song writer, long since passed to the beyond, was a surprising gourmand. "A goose," he used to say, "is a very pretty bird, but it has one great fault—it is a little too much for one and much too little for two."

Coming out of a restaurant one day looking supremely happy, Herr Kapellmeister, a friend, said to him, "you seem to have dined well." "Yes, I had a fair dinner; it was turkey." "And was there a good company around the board?" "Yes, good, but small; just two, indeed, the turkey and myself."

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY, the Motherland has asked her Daughter Colonies for aid for her Red Cross work. Wounded men in the hundreds of thousands, from every part of the Empire, including Canadians, are being cared for by the British Red Cross Society. Hendrie, Thursday, October 21, has been set aside—as it will be in every city, town and hamlet in the British Empire—and men, women and children will be asked to give liberally to the funds of the British Red Cross and Order of St. John on that day.

EMNINGITIS SERUM IS VERY DANGEROUS

[illegible] many deaths have followed [illegible] administration of the serum for [illegible] has caused some alarm [illegible] among the general public, [illegible] in the medical profession.

Dr. Worth Hale of the hygenic laboratory of the United States Public Health [illegible] has just completed a series of [illegible] upon animals, to determine what was the cause of these untoward effects of a serum that ordinarily is given with little danger. The results of these he publishes in detail in the Lancet-Clinic. The conclusion he comes to is that the trouble is due, not to any defect in the serum itself, but on the use of tricresol as a preservative, and sometimes to the sudden increase in intercranial pressure.

It was Dr. Kramer, of Cincinnati who first denounced the tricresol preservative. Dr. Abram Flexner held that the trouble was due to increased intercranial pressure and gave minute directions for introducing the serum slowly and carefully.

Dr. Hale's experiments prove that both hypotheses are correct. "The danger from tricresol, however, seems much greater and more certain than that which may possibly arise from increased pressure," he says.

But, as he remarks, and as The Journal of the American Medical Association says, the occasional undesirable effect of the serum treatment should not be considered as militating against its regular and invariable use in all cases of the disease. "So the dangers which arise from the treatment are not to be feared in any such way as is the disease itself. The risk, as compared with that from the disease is very small."

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray, also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

WOMAN EXPLORER TRAVELLED 3,000 MILES BY SLED

LONDON, Oct. 19.—After travelling in Siberia for over a year, Miss M. A. Czaplicka, a young Polish lady, has arrived back in England with some valuable specimens relating to the social and religious life of the natives for the Pitt-Rivers Museum at Oxford.

Miss Czaplicka, who is slim of figure, with fair hair and blue eyes, scarcely suggests the explorer. She undertook the expedition at the suggestion of the university authorities, and when she left this country in the spring of last year she was accompanied by two London ladies, Miss Curtis and Miss Haviland—an artist and an ornithologist respectively—and Mr. Hall of the Philadelphia University.

They travelled by the Trans-Siberian Railway to Krasnozarsk, on the Yenisei River, and proceeded by fishing vessel to the mouth, established a camp upon the eastern bank, well within the Arctic circle. They relied upon their own efforts to provide themselves with "fish, flesh, and fowl," Miss Haviland proving an excellent gun-shot.

Before the winter set in the two London ladies returned, and Miss Czaplicka, and Mr. Hall continued their studies, and with a transport of fifteen sledges drawn by reindeer, and driven by natives, they covered more than 3,000 versts, in a tour, during which they were able to study intimately the ways and habits of the nomads who inhabit that black and inhospitable region.

"I was the first white woman whom the natives up there had ever seen," said Miss Czaplicka, "and whereas, they always refer to their own womenfolk in terms which reveal relationship—the mother of so-and-so, or the daughter of so-and-so—of me they spoke as other woman," and frequently added their opinion that I was a fool when they understood from my Tungus woman companion what was my object in travelling there.

"I was, of course, wrapped up closely in furs, and they would take off my hood to look at my hair. They are uniformly dark turning to gray in old age—and it was a source of wonder to them that my face should be so young while my hair was to them so 'old.' They mistook the fairness for a form of greyness.

"Wherever possible we made it a practice to sleep in the tents of the natives in our sleeping bags. The natives are very scattered, and you may travel for days without encountering a habitation, but it is a rule that travellers are permitted to enter and sleep for the night because of the terrible cold.

"There were times when we slept out in the open within the circle of the sledges, the reindeer and an outer embankment of snow, and even could hear the howling of the wolves. But they never attacked us, as there was plenty of food for them in the huge herds of reindeer to be found in this region."

Miss Czaplicka deprecates the idea that travelling by sledge is conducive to comfort. "Not a day," she said, with a smile at the recollection of the expedition's jolting progress "but had its adventure. The reindeer team is first gathered from the herd with a lasso, and while the animals are very restive in this process, they became quiet when harnessed up. They are driven by means of a single thong in the hands of the driver, and this needs an expert, as the directions is given to the team by jerks. Travelling over the snowdrifts is uneventful, but passing over the spaces—tops of mountains, for instance—when the sun has thinned through, the bumping is almost intolerable, and I was bruised all over. Spills occurred, too, in which you and the driver, the deer and the sledge rolled for yards down a slope in a mass and only the thickness of your furs saved you from serious accident."

Miss Czaplicka intends returning to Siberia three years hence.

Monaghan's Gift to British Red Cross

poverty, no Canadian farmer has even lost a meal as a result of this war.

REV. MR. ROLLINS.

Our type of manhood and citizenship is being tested to the ground, or will be before many months have gone, said Rev. Mr. Rollins. Among the Canadians who cannot go to the front, the number is increasing who are asking themselves what they can do in order that they can preserve the same pride as the man who enlists. Everybody cannot enlist, but at home we can live for the Empire this year. "Every man should say to himself, this is the year I must live up to my best. In business I must make all the money I can, handle it carefully, and see that it goes to the Empire. I don't believe that the man who is trying to make money during this war and who is putting it away, can carry his self-respect to his grave."

If a man in a munitions factory gives his best labour, supports the Red Cross and other societies working for the soldiers, and encourages and stands by the representatives of the people in what they do for the Empire's cause, that man is nearly in the same class with the man at the front. He will never regret it.

Example of Women.

Nine hundred dollars from Monaghan would not be a large donation. In four months, a group of women of St. Andrew's Church raised $600 for the Canadian Red Cross.

MR. BRUCE JOHNSTON.

In commenting upon the remarks of the two speakers, Mr. Bruce Johnston said that the farmers might have put forth greater efforts to attend the meeting. It was evident that the people as a whole must awaken more to their duties. The people in this country were sitting down to full tables now as before the war. They were even too busy to think of it seriously. But this must be changed. They have not made sacrifices, except the soldiers who had gone to the front.

Mr. Webber was so pleased with the two main addresses that he suggested meetings at which special patriotic addresses should be given for the purpose of stirring up the enthusiasm upon which success depended.

Mr. Webber said he could vouch for the farmers of Monaghan doing their duty.

Mr. Johnston remarked that many of the farmers had not made nor had they been called upon for a patriotic contribution.

Mr. O'Connell remarked that other appeals would probably be necessary and for that reason it developed upon the people to bestir each other, in order that success could be assured.

Mr. Herb. Forster, deputy reeve, stated that he was prepared to do his duty even to enlisting, although he had been practically "turned down." Mr. H. B. Rye and others also spoke.

Mr. Webber said that he was sure the sentiment of the meeting represented the feeling of the Township. The Council could decide whether to raise the money from next year's taxes or by debentures.

A Fine Meeting.

Although the attendance was about twenty-five and the meeting did not promise a great deal, a fine spirit was shown by the ratepayers present. They especially bespoke their appreciation of the character of the two addresses, and hoped that the speakers would return to speak to larger audiences of Monaghan people.

REPORTER WAS KILLED IN ELECTION QUARREL

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 19.—Sidney I. Cohen, a newspaper reporter, was killed and four men shot in a melee that occurred here just outside the room where Democratic city executive committee was to meet to canvas the returns of the municipal primary last Tuesday.

The Democratic municipal primary developed into such a bitter factional fight between the adherents of Mayor John P. Grace and Tristam T. Hyde, running at the head of the tickets, that serious trouble was feared.

When Gov. Manning, at Columbia, received notice of the shooting, he called the entire 2nd Regiment of the National Guard under arms to await eventualities at Charleston.

FRANCE WILL CONDUCT LOTTERY

It is through the united influence of the newspapers all over France that the minister of the interior has been persuaded to put aside the law for once, and allow a national tombola (lottery), to be held, the proceeds of which are to go to war charities.

Pretty ladies are to be selected to sell closed envelopes at whatever price they can get by wiles and smiles. Millions of these (envelopes, not ladies, will be on sale in city and villages), and in each will be an artistic design specially drawn for the occasion by a prominent artist.

But where the gamble comes in is that in 100,000 of them here will be found a ticket which gives the holder right to share in a lottery with prizes ranging from 25,000 francs to five francs. So, for the humble sou, as for the bourgeois franc, one has a chance to gain $5000.

The lucky winners may take their bons to any shop anywhere in France, and buy goods to the full value. The great French bank, the Credit Foncier, stands at the back of the affair, and will buy back the bons from the shopkeepers afterwards, as if they were bank notes.

The French are a practical race. They will thus not only get a huge sum to help war charities, but also give a lift to business all over the country.

For Acid Stomachs Use Magnesia

Quickly Stops Sour, Burning Feeling and Makes Digestion Painless.

The almost universal use of magnesia by physicians and specialists in the treatment of stomach troubles, is due to the facts that it stops food fermentation and neutralizes the acid—the direct cause of nearly all stomach troubles. Of the many forms of magnesia such as oxides, citrates, carbonates, etc., the sulphates, etc., the most suitable and efficient, and the one prescribed by leading specialists, is bisurated magnesia, a teaspoonful of which in a little warm water immediately after eating will instantly neutralize the acid, stop fermentation and thus ensure painless normal digestion. Care should be taken to get bisurated magnesia, as its action is infinitely more effective. It is also by the way usually stocked by druggists in convenient compressed tablets as well as in the ordinary powder form. Stomach sufferers and dyspeptics who follow this plan and avoid the use of pepsin, charcoal, soda mints, drugs and medicines are invariably astonished to find that the stomach, relieved of the irritating acid and gas, soon regains its normal tone, and can do its work alone without the doubtful aid of artificial digestants.

Big Shipment of Canadian Wheat

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—What is said by grain men to be the largest movement of Canadian wheat through the United States that has ever been recorded is now going on through this port. Records of the produce exchange compiled to and including Friday, Oct. 15, show that 4,265,791 bushels have been brought here from Canada since the early part of August and reloaded on steamships for shipment mainly to England, France and Italy. This wheat in order to avoid the payment of a duty of 10 cents per bushel, comes through in bond.

Sending it to England.

The Canadian wheat crop, estimated by grain men for this season at approximately 332,000,000 bushels, is one of the largest in the history of the Dominion, and compares with 256,000,000 raised last year. The increased acreage is not only due to a favorable season but also to a general spurring up of Canadian officials to provide the mother country and allied nations with a wheat crop to take the place of that normally imported from Russia and the Balkan States.

Total Exports.

The total export wheat movement through New York from August 1 to October 15 is placed at 12,111,525 bushels, of which 7,845,784 bushels was grown in the United States. In August there was exported 2,761,604 bushels of domestic wheat and 145,973 bushels of bond; in September 3,654,814 bushels domestic and 1,199,433 bushels in bond; from October 1 to Oct. 15, 1,429,226 bushels domestic and 2,920,365 bushels in bond.

Grain men also say they expect the heavy export movement will continue through the entire season or until about January 1, when the Argentine crop is available.

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff. For it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Defining Parents.

Little Alfred was asked to write a composition on parents, and wrote this:

Parents are things which boys have to look after them. Most girls have parents. Parents consists of pas and mas. Pas talk a good deal about what they are going to do, but it's mostly the mas that make you mind.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

The waist is more in tune with the ideas of the hour than the one shown in this illustration. It has full fronts gathered at the shoulder seam and with a facing along the line of closing, stitched through to give a trimming effect. The open neck has a large collar and small revers, and it is so constructed that it may be worn either open or closed. The high military collar is so much in favor that the advantage of choice at this point will be appreciated. The sleeves of the blouse are quite regulation, plain and wide, with a cuff to restrain the gathers at the wrist. While it is always possible to shorten the sleeve, one sees absolutely nothing but long sleeves except in the dressiest of garments, and here only occasionally.

The material used for making a waist of this kind must be chosen according to the uses to which it is to be put. A waist for continual wear should be of a durable material, and this would indicate the use of crêpe de Chine, taffetas, satin, poplin, linen and similar materials, while for more dressy occasions we have the sheer, delicate Georgette crêpe, plain and embroidered chiffon, satin striped voile and a number of other novelties of the expensive and fragile order.

The waist pattern, No. 7,328, is cut in sizes 34 to 46 inches, bust measure. Medium size requires 2⅛ yards of 36 inch material.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these windows may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Bon-Opto tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told, that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it, you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind or nearly so, or who wear glasses, might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late. Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches, and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmar Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

German Attacks In West Cost Foe Heavily

RUSSIANS HAVE CROSSED THE STYR RIVER ADMITS ENEMY

Berlin Official Statement Admits Russians Are Making Gains---Athens Report Says the Allies Have Driven the Bulgars Out of Vrania and That the Nish-Saloniki Railway is Still in Operation.

STRONG REPRESENTATIONS TO GREECE

PARIS, Oct. 20.—"German attacks have been repulsed everywhere," said an official summary of the past week's developments on the Franco-German front, issued here to-day.

"They cost the Germans," continued the statement, "eight thousand losses in the Loos and Souchez districts.

"German attempts in the Champagne have resulted only in consolidating the French positions on the Hill and in the village of Tahure. Their evident purpose was to diminish the impression of the German weakness in the Champagne and to draw attention from the Kaiser's Serbian offensive."

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Sir Edward Carson, who resigned as Attorney-General because he disapproved the administration's war policy, saw the King at Buckingham Palace to-day, giving fresh impetus to the talk of a probable complete Cabinet reconstruction.

Before his reception by the King, Carson had a conference with Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—A proclamation by the Kaiser, declaring Bulgaria is to be mistress of the Balkans, reigning southward to the Aegean and from the Black Sea to the Adriatic, have been received by the Bulgar troops, according to press despatches to-day.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—(French Official Communique).—The French artillery has silenced the German machine guns and trench engines about Lihons, said an official statement issued here to-day. Light artillery duels are progressing at Tahure Hill and north of Flirey, it was added.

ROME, Oct. 20.—The Bulgarians have been thrown out of Vrania and the Salonika-Nish railroad is working uninterruptedly, according to a despatch to-day from Athens.

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 20.—After an analysis of all the reports of the Serbian operations from both sides, J. W. T. Mason, the war expert of the United Press, says to-day that it is not yet apparent that the Serbs are being beaten by the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians. Only part of the fringe of Serbia has passed into the enemy's hands. Mason says that from the standpoint of the main interests at stake, namely, the reinforcement of the Turks, the Balkan situation for the moment is more encouraging to the Quadruple Entente than to the Teutons.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Bulgarians have captured Istip and Cotfana, about fifty miles on the Serbian side of the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier, according to an Athens message to the Exchange Telegraph to-day.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Daily News says this morning: "It is understood that the Government has made strong representations to Greece that her treaty obligations must be upheld and is now awaiting her reply."

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Many were killed and wounded in a factory explosion here to-day.

Fifty bodies had been taken from the debris.

The explosion occurred in one of the most populous quarters of Paris.

President Poincare visited it shortly after the explosion.

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—Sir Sam. Hughes to-day reported a wonderful response to the Militia announcement that towns and villages recruiting a minimum of twenty-five men for overseas service, would have the privilege of garrisoning these men during the winter. General Hughes said towns and villages in all parts of the Dominion were undertaking the proposal. He said that none would be billeted nor fed in buildings where liquor is sold, and he was confident that soldiers' competitors in Canada would conduct themselves as gentlemen, as their comrades in earlier contingents have done.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—"The Germans have advanced against the Russians north-east of Mitau," announced an official report this afternoon.

Further south General Von Linsingen is still fighting along the Styr River.

In the West we shot down an English aeroplane near Middelkerke and captured the aviators.

The Russians in the Baranovitchi district have gained the west bank of the Styr, where the engagement continues.

The Teutonic Allies are still advancing in Serbia.

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—At noon today Toronto City had raised two hundred thousand dollars of the two hundred and fifty thousand dollar objective for the British Red Cross Fund. The campaign ends to-morrow night.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Premier Asquith is making excellent progress, and is expected to re-appear in the House of Commons on Tuesday. Minister of Munitions Lloyd-George announced in the House this afternoon.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Carson resigned, he told the Commons, because he thought the situation on the Gallipoli Peninsula and in the Balkans necessitated a well thought out, decisive policy, and finding himself unable to agree in any respect with what he believed to be the Government's policy, he considered himself of no further use in the Cabinet.

THE PEOPLE OF CAVANVILLE RAISE $1050 AT MEETING

Campaign to Secure $8000 for Patriotic Purposes is Inaugurated at a Most Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night

ROUSING ADDRESSES

A highly enthusiastic and successful meeting was held in the Methodist church, Cavanville, last evening in the interests of the Canadian Patriotic and Red Cross funds. The commodious church was filled to its capacity. The Rev. Mr. Butler occupied the chair. There were present on the platform the Rev. Mr. Webb, the Rev. Mr. McConachie, Rev. Mr. Wickette, Mr. R. R. Hall, Reeve Thorn, Private Cockburn of Toronto and the Secretary of the League.

The ratepayers of Cavan are becoming intensely interested in the great European war in which they realize that Great Britain and Canada are really engaged in a life and death struggle. So pronounced were they in their opinion and so determined were they that the Township of Cavan should raise at least $8,000 for the Canadian Patriotic and Red Cross funds that before the meeting was brought to a close they raised $1,050 in less than twenty minutes, and at the conclusion of the meeting the entire audience rose to its feet for the purpose of each individual in it pledging himself and herself to make the canvas a success.

Rev. Mr. McConachie.

Rev. Mr. McConachie spoke and emphasized the danger of the German menace. He said that there were whole sections in Scotland in which every available man had gone to the front. This in itself showed that the people of the Old Land realized and appreciated the danger in which the British Isles were placed in the event of German victory. Some of us in Canada think that we are far removed from the scene of conflict, but if we only realized it we are in fact as near to the danger zone as is Great Britain herself. He therefore urged that every available young man should go to the front and those who remained behind should do their share in contributing to the success of British arms.

Rev. Mr. Webb.

The Rev. Mr. Webb in a very impressive address, pointed out the duty that is imposed on every one on account of this dreadful war. If the British Empire is in the danger, said he, it is the duty of every available man to enlist and do his share. He emphasized the fact that those who remained at home had a great duty to do. They should freely give of their means to support the wives and children of those who do go to the front and to furnish ample means to provide for the sick and wounded upon the battlefield.

The Rev. Mr. Webb emphasized the spirit of unity that was sweeping over Canada and that the clergy of all denominations were joining and uniting together to assist in this great

THE FIRST CASUALTY

Bugler W. Oxley of Peterborough Battalion in Hospital With a Broken Leg—Military Police on Duty For First Time

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The detailing of a military police force is not to be considered as a reflection on the general behaviour of the men of the Peterborough battalion, whose conduct has been remarkably good throughout. With the two exceptions mentioned, every man in the battalion has taken pride in the good name the local company has enjoyed and they are apparently determined to keep the standard at its present high level. However with 970 men enrolled and the number increasing daily the police have been put on as a precautionary measure.

Bugler Breaks His Leg.

The first casualty recorded in the Peterborough battalion occurred yesterday afternoon when Bugler Will Oxley, son of Sergt. Oxley of No. 2 platoon, fractured his right leg in a friendly wrestling match with another bugler who is the smallest and youngest member of the battalion, fell with his leg doubled under him and one of the bones in his leg a few inches above the ankle, was broken. He was carried into the armouries, where Major Cameron, A.M.C., rendered first aid. The youngster was taken to Nicholls Hospital in Comstock's motor ambulance and the fracture reduced. He is resting easily to-day.

Among the recruits going to Kingston last night was a former Peterborough boy, Mr. Walter Scott, son of Mr. Wm. Scott, baggageman on the Belleville train. Mr. Scott is taking in the lieutenant's course with the object of taking out a commission.

Among the Italian reservists called to join the colours are three employees of the Standard Paving Co., who leave for Italy on the 28th of this month.

Lieut. J. A. Harstone, formerly of the 57th Regiment, and now with the 77th Battalion, C.E.F., is home from Ottawa on a few days' leave.

Lieuts. J. H. Eastwood and W. W. Stratton of the 57th Regiment, the latter now with the 80th Battalion, C.E.F., have been granted certificates as subalterns in the mechanical transport section.

The promotion of Lieut. Hagerman of the 57th Regiment to the rank of captain has been gazetted.

Romlyne Stevenson, son of Lt.-Col. Stevenson, formerly O. C. 57th Regiment, has been gazetted as a provisional lieutenant in the 57th. He has since qualified by taking a course at Barriefield.

For the first time since the organization of the Peterborough battalion commenced, military police were on duty yesterday. Ptes. L. Millership, E. Baumer and J. Lemay have been detailed for this work and began yesterday. The police who are designated by a white badge on the arm inscribed "M. P." are on duty from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. and their duties are to regulate the conduct of the men while off parade. Any irregularities in dress are checked by the police and any disorderly conduct on the part of the soldiers is stopped by them. They have the power to arrest any soldier in the battalion, and last night they exercised that power by arresting the two black sheep of the company and placing them in the guard room. The two prisoners, both of whom come from outside points, are the only two who have caused any trouble, and as this was their third offence they have been disposed of for good.

WRITES FROM FRONT.

Mrs. Connelly, 207 Rogers Street, East City, has received the following letter from her son, Pte. Dan. Connelly, of the 2nd Battalion. Pte. Connelly is one of the few left of Major Bennett's boys. He has come through so far without a scratch.

France, Sept. 28th, 1915.

My Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I am well. Also received your parcels, for which I am very thankful. Brother James is out here. He is about three miles from us. Have not seen him yet. Hope to soon. Mother, kindly send me a pipe, a B.D.O. brand. They are good smokers. Mick McFarlane is well. He sends you his love, and told you to pray for him. ONE DOLLAR PER CAPITA

$7,500,000 Will be Needed to Maintain the Patriotic Fund in Good Condition For Another Year

TREASURER'S STATEMENT

TORONTO, Oct. 20. That one dollar per head from all the population of Canada would be required to maintain the patriotic fund in good condition for another year was the statement of Sir Herbert Ames, treasurer to delegates from various cities in Ontario at the meeting of Ontario branches here this afternoon. Some delegates thought the fund was administered altogether too generously and that some families of soldiers were drawing too much from one source or another.

Meeting of the Relief Association

Was Held Last Evening---Will Inaugurate a Campaign

A meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Patriotic and Relief Association was held last evening in the City Council Chamber. His Worship Mayor Bullas presided. A number of the members including Mr. D. O'Connell, Mr. F. D. Kerr and others were away conducting recruiting meetings at various points throughout the county. Mr. F. H. Dobbin, executive officer of the Relief Association, was delegated to attend the meeting of the Canadian Patriotic Fund Committee which is being held in Toronto to-day.

Mr. H. Rush tendered his resignation as a member of the Relief Committee which was reluctantly accepted. Mr. H. C. Stabler was appointed to succeed Mr. Rush, while the latter was appointed honorary member of the Committee.

A resolution authorizing the continuance of the work pending a campaign that is to be inaugurated with a view of raising additional funds, was read. Owing to the unavoidable absence of a number of the members the resolution was not discussed.

To-day's Police Court Blotter

A trio of drunks occupied the prisoners' sanctum in this morning's police court. The first one was James Wilson, who asked Magistrate Dumble for ten days' grace in which to pay a fine of two dollars. "I'll give you ten days in default of payment" remarked His Worship. Thomas McKinley and Wm. Faulkner each paid a two dollars' fine for a similar offence.

Breach of By-law.

Mr. R. B. Rogers is charged with a breach of the traffic by-law, it being alleged that he kept too far out from the curb contrary to the by-law. He was driving automobile No. 19588.

Good Work of Local Branch

Immense Amount of Supplies Has Been Sent Through Peterboro' Red Cross, Annual Meeting of Which Was Held Yesterday Afternoon.

HAS BALANCE OF $640.36 ON HAND

About fifty members of the Peterborough Branch of the Red Cross gathered yesterday afternoon in the Public Library, the occasion being the annual meeting of the society for election of officers and reception of reports showing the results of the past year's operations. Gratifying indeed were the exceedingly able reports presented and nothing but satisfaction was expressed. The fact that the society has in the past year forwarded a tremendous amount of hospital supplies as shown by the report of Mrs. A. W. Turner, secretary of supplies, and the report of Miss Marion Rush, convenor of the room committee, was particularly pleasing to all. The treasurer's report showed that with a balance on hand of $640.36, the finances were in excellent shape.

Election of officers resulted in Mrs. J. C. Davidson being re-elected president, the society feeling that her faithfulness and zeal well merited the honour.

The officers for this year will be as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. W. Rodger.
President—Mrs. J. C. Davidson.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. John Allan.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. T. F. Matthews.
Secretary—Miss Laura Davidson.
Treasurer—Miss Morrow (pro tem)
Supervisor of Supplies—Miss Marion Rush.
Assistant Supervisor — Miss Ellie Munro.
Executive Committee — Mrs. Aylmer, Miss Morrow, Miss Peacock, Mrs. Fred Roy, and Mrs. R. M. Waddell.
Advisory Board—Messrs. H. Rush, R. W. Travers, J. A. Aylmer, W. C. Ackerman, A. R. Breytogle, R. Denne, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, S. Keyes, F. D. Kerr, George W. Morrow, T. F. Matthews, C. H. Pennefather, and A. W. Turner.

The following reports were presented:

Room Committee Report.

The Red Cross Society of Peterborough opened rooms in Simcoe street the last week of June of this year in order to meet the growing demands made on the society for information regarding Red Cross work. At first the room was used for demonstration and packing purposes only. Later, the society deemed it advisable to undertake the making of surgical supplies, so that a regular supply, properly made and packed could be sent forward weekly. Through the kindness of the Library Board and Mr. Dela Fosse, the society obtained permission to use the Assembly Hall of the Library, and here a well-appointed workroom has been opened. Under the careful supervision of Mesdames Aylmer, L. H. G. Denne, Roland Denne, Campbell, Reg. Turner, A. W. Turner, Travers, John, H. Thompson, Denham, Matthews, Stratton, and the Misses Edwards, Morrow, Ferguson, Munro, Myres, the regulation hospital supplies are made and packed with an average attendance of only 20 workers. Since the first of September the following articles have been made in this room: Compresses 6,516, sponges 17,500, large pads 1,161, medium pads 2,845, small pads 3,000, at an approximate cost of $185.

MARION RUSH,
Con. Room Committee.

Secretary's Address.

The Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society organized August the twenty-fourth, 1914, reports as follows:

The work of the society has progressed satisfactorily throughout the year.

The monthly meetings were well attended, the members considering it a privilege to have a part in the work of such a splendid organization.

Twenty-five meetings for the transaction of business have been held. Our total membership is 146, 3 life, 100 active, 43 associate.

The number of members compels our earnest consideration if we consider the magnitude of the work we are engaged in. Five organized auxiliaries are actively engaged, each doing excellent work.

The Kitchener, the South End, St. Paul's Church, Lakehurst, and George Street Church Auxiliaries.

During the first six months of the year the work of the society was carried on without a work room, owing

A RECEPTION TO RETURNED HEROES WILL BE FEATURE

Peterboro' Soldiers Invalided Home Will Be Guests of Honour at People's Popular Concert in the Grand

IN AID OF BAND FUND

A reception to Peterborough soldiers who have returned from overseas will be a feature of to-morrow night's people's popular concert in the Grand Opera House. Ptes. E. Mesley, J. Langley, M. Mowry, and C. Stenson will be the guests of honour. They will be taken to the Opera House in motor cars by members of the Patriotic League, and addresses will be presented on behalf of the civic and military authorities.

As will be seen from the programme printed below, the concert will be one of the finest ever given in Peterborough. Local artists have gladly contributed their services. There will be a chorus of seventy-five under the direction of Mr. J. H. Renwick. The of honour. They will be taken be a bayonet contest by some of the Peterborough soldiers, and altogether the entertainment will be far above the ordinary in every respect. The audience will be invited to sing the choruses of several of the numbers, and to facilitate this the words will be printed on the programmes.

On account of the length of the programme, the concert will commence sharp at 8 o'clock. The orchestra will play from 7.30 until 8 p.m. The admission is 25c to all parts of the house, and by present indications the Grand will be packed from pit to the back of the upper gallery. The entire proceeds go to the Overseas Band Fund, and the concert affords a fine opportunity for the citizens to make a 25c investment in that fund.

The following is the programme:

(1) Chorus—"O Canada" (Lavallee).
(2) Overture—"Lustpiel" (Kelar-Bela), Overseas Band.
(3) Duet—"After the Fray" (Bonheur), Miss Charlotte Hanson and Mr. Fred Miles.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 20, 1915

LIBERALS KEEP THE TRUCE.

A queer situation has developed in Hochelaga, Quebec, where, according to the terms of the political truce the Liberals permitted the election to go to Hon. Mr. Patenaude, the new member of the Borden Government, by acclamation. There was, of course, no Liberal candidate. But a Mr. Tancred Marsil, with personal ambition, did not wish to be left out in the cold; he had personal ambitions and wished to run as an independent candidate, which he must be—the Liberals did not put up a candidate. The Conservatives would not oppose their own man. The minister was declared elected by acclamation, Mr. Marsil's papers being declared inadequate, and the latter applied for an injunction to restrain the returning officer from declaring the minister elected and demanding a poll. The matter is not yet settled, and if the independent candidate succeeds in having a poll held he will have his ambition for a try satisfied; but it is hoped he will be beaten; if for no other reason than he has injected the element of political strife at a time when political partizanship is treason. After the Liberals had refrained from raising a partizan issue in Hochelaga, it would be a pity to have the people divided on partizan lines, though the partizanship be of a purely personal character.

RED CROSS FUNDS.

The demands for Red Cross funds is now more insistent than ever. The great parent Red Cross Society has spent millions in doing Red Cross work, and now finds the need for more funds; and the need will grow with the fierce aggressive fighting on the western front. The casualty lists grow rapidly. The wounded soldiers increase in number, and the need for funds to meet their needs increases. The parent fund is spent alike upon British soldiers and Canadians and Australians. There is no discrimination. The present appeal for Trafalgar day is additional to the splendid work being done for and by the Canadian Red Cross—it is a new drive, in patriotic warfare, such as the Allies are making in real stern warfare—on the western front. We don't know what Peterborough is doing in the matter, apart from the civic contribution of $5,000. That is enough for those not in a position to do more; but there must be many in Peterborough who will not allow their contributions to a noble work like that of the Red Cross to be limited to the practically enforced form of payment through the collection of taxes. Some of our citizens cannot do more than that, and some will find it sacrifice to do even that. It therefore remains for those who can do more to do more; and if these latter are not called upon for further contributions to the British Red Cross fund, they should consider themselves under increased obligation to help the Canadian Red Cross fund, whose demands montinue and will grow with the increasing casualties of this increasingly strenuous and destructive war.

WHAT WE ARE FIGHTING FOR AND AGAINST.

Our young men are asked—by their country and their own manhood—to enlist to fight, for many reasons. Because it is a fight for home and personal liberty; for the welfare of the nation and the Empire, and humanity. This fight involves all this. For if we let the Huns win we shall come under their domination, and if we don't know now, we shall know then, that the tender mercy of the Germans is cruel. We stand aghast at the atrocities committed by Germans in this war—such as dropping bombs over sleeping cities to murder peaceful non-combatants — and women and children: They have murdered men and women and children upon the high seas. They have bombarded undefended cities. They have wrecked cathedrals, priceless libraries and churches, and defiled them; they have violated women and girls, and mutilated helpless babies. All this has been established by irrefutable evidence gathered by a competent commission.

The German spirit is destruction of life and property—destruction not for military advantage, but for mere destruction's sake. The spirit of German militarism, the doctrine of the supremacy of force, has become ingrained in the German character by generations of direct teaching in the schools as well as by example. The evidence is found in German official records, issued by the German Statistics Office at Berlin. These German statistics show that the spirit of outrage in war is only a reflection of the same spirit in times of peace. German statistics show that for the past ten years there has been an average of 9,384 convictions for outraging women. The average in Britain was 246; (the population of Britain to that of Germany is as 4 to 6.) There was an average of 178,115 illegitimate births in Germany as against an average of 37,041 in Britain. The savagery of the force-corrupted German population is shown by the fact that the same official statistics show that there was an average of 172,153 convictions for felonious wounding in Germany, as against 1,262 in Great Britain. The wrecking of cathedrals and the wanton destruction of property comes natural to the Germans. According to the same official German statistics, there was in ten years an average of 25,757 convictions for malicious injury to property in Germany, as against an average of 358 in Britain, though this period included the time when the suffragette outrages were at their worst.

With such a record furnished by Germany itself we get a more intense idea of what our case would be if we came under German domination, which we shall do if we allow the Germans to win in this war. Is there not a call to every fit Canadian, to enter the ranks and fight against this possibility? Is there not a call to every other man and every woman to second the efforts of those who enlist for the fight — by keeping the Red Cross funds to the highest point of efficiency, and by keeping the Patriotic Fund up to the highest working capacity. We canot fail to see what we are fighting for and what we are fighting against.

MUNITION WORK IN CANADA.

The Canadian manufacturers are no less patriotic than the owners of British factories. They will not stand in the way of the highest efficiency if that is to be secured only by the nationalization of munition factories in Canada during the war. The negotiations looking to that end, however, ought not to be preceded by a public controversy, with Sir Sam Hughes and Mr. Thomas as principals. The Minister of Militia is confident that he is a great soldier, but even he will hardly claim to be a great diplomat. If the output of shells in Canada is to be increased and the price is to be lessened, the making of arrangements must be in the hands of someone less skilled than Sir Sam Hughes in the gentle art of making enemies.—Toronto Globe.

THE PEOPLE ARE PAYING.

Considerable satisfaction seems to be taken by Ministerial organs in the fact that, according to the Dominion financial statement for the first six months of the current fiscal year up to October 1st, "the revenues are increasing and the expenditures are going down"—that is to say, of course, for domestic purposes apart altogether from war expenditure, which approximately has reached already at least $18 per head of our population.

The Dominion revenue from all sources for the half year was $78,243,514, or a monthly average of $13,207,252. In the previous year the revenue was $133,073,481. This year, if the closing six months are as good, the revenue will be $156,987,028. It may reach $150,000,000, or $30,000,000 more than would have been realized on the ante-bellum basis of taxation In a word, for domestic purposes the people will pay this year $30,000,000 more than they did before the war.

On the whole, the financial statement may be satisfactory to the Government, but it will not be to the country, which, in spite of increased tariffs and increased taxation, realizes that until the war is ended and British and foreign capital come into the land, little relief may be expected to the present situation. Of course, the sale of this year's crops will give the farmer and the country some returns. That is the one bright spot in the horizon at present.—Montreal Herald Telegraph.

GERMANY'S DRIVE IN CONGRESS.

Contrary to the expectations of some of our fellow citizens not yet fully Americanized, the legislative body that is to meet in Washington on the first Monday of December is the Congress of the United States and not the German Reichstag. Referring to the probability that the European war will be a subject of debate in both Houses, Mr. Choate in his Pilgrim Society speech, gave a fairly accurate forecast of the results when he said: "By and bye they will meet and you will hear every phase of this great question discussed with violence and energy, but take my word for it when they have got through discussing it, by a majority of nine out of ten they will vote to stand by the President." With a total membership of 531, this estimate provides for a hostile but not wholly alien group of about fifty-three Senators and Representatives. There will be a valiant contingent entertaining exaggerated ideas to the strength of the German vote. Agreeing in little else, they will be a unit in an attempt to put an embargo upon munitions of war. Mr. Choate's prediction that the discussion will be violent and protracted is fully justified It will be a terrific drive. It will be felt for months afterward when, under the franks of members, tons of Prussian literature will be circulated in this country without costing the Kaiser a cent.—New York World.

GERMAN, NOT BULGARIAN

The so-called Bulgarian manifesto is not Bulgarian, but German. One paragraph clearly shows who wrote or dictated it:

"We do not believe in the promises of the quadruple entente. Italy, one of the allies, treacherously broke her treaty of 33 years. We believe in Germany, which is fighting the whole world to fulfil her treaty with Austria."

It is highly improbable that it would occur to a Bulgarian to denounce Italy for deserting Germany and Austria. But it is just the sort of thing that some friend of the Kaiser or the Emperor of Austria would say. It written in a spirit of revenge against Italy, and it is a lie. Italy left the alliance with Germany and Austria because it was a defensive alliance, and because Italy did not believe that the central powers were fighting a defensive war.

Italian statesmen knew that the Austrian attack on Serbia was not the result of sudden indignation over the murder of the Archduke. It was planned a year before. In August, 1913, Austria informed Italy that she intended to attack Seabia, and she intended to attack Serbia, and triple alliance. The Prime Minister of Italy and the Italian Foreign Minister denied the obligation of Italy to aid in such an attack, and told Austria that Italy would not assist her, and urged Germany to dissuade her from a most dangerous adventure.

Therefore, Italy, instead of acting treacherously, was true to her obligation and gave Austria good and friendly advice. On the other hand, Germany kept egging Austria on to the "dangerous adventure," and seeking to embroil her with one of the Balkan nations. Now a German slander against Italy is put in the mouth of the Bulgarian Government.

A WAR-TIME ELECTION TO BE HELD IN SOUTH AFRICA

A general election of historic significance is that to be held for the Parliament of South Africa to-morrow. Does South Africa unequivocally support the Imperial policy of General Botha, one of the most picturesque figures in the public eye since the present war broke out? There are only 130 members to be elected. The number to be returned by each province is: The Cape, 51; Natal, 17; Orange Free State, 17, Transvaal, 45. Each constituency returns one member, and each has approximately the same number of European male adults, not necessarily the same number of voters, especially as in Cape Province duly qualified natives, of whom there are more than 20,000, possess the franchise. Though the Cape Kaffir may be an elector, no native is eligible to stand for the Union Parliament.

The number of seats is nine greater than in the first Union Parliament, which is now ending. These nine consist of the additional seats accorded the Transvaal on a readjustment based upon population. At the last election General Botha had a clear majority of 13 over all parties, and also drew to his support 13 Natal members who had been elected as Independents. His party, then called themselves the Nationalists. The chief element of the Opposition was the Unionist party, led by Sir Starr Jameson, and embracing the old Unionist party of the Cape. The Labour party returned four.

In December, 1912, General J. B. M. Hertog, Minister of Native Affairs, was retired from the Cabinet because of his opposition to General Botha's policy of building up a new country on non-racial lines. Hertog formed a party of non-compromising opponents of Britain and all her works, and the breach between this new leader and Premier Botha became more marked every day, while the differences between the South African party, as that led by Botha was now called, became constantly less irreconcilable. Indeed, when Sir Starr Jameson retired from the leadership of the Unionists in April, 1912, Botha, in a speech to the House, paid the highest tribute to the services which the retiring leader had rendered to the Union.

Then the war came on, and Botha's support of the Imperial Government, his acceptance of the task of conquering German South West Africa, and his firm suppression of the rebellion of Maritz, Beyers and De Wet added fuel to the fire of the Hertzog party's hostility. They have now taken to themselves the title of the Nationalist party. There is a fourth party, the Laborites. They are somewhat divided. Its most prominent leader, Creswell, is a firm supporter of Botha's Imperial policy, and holds a commission as Major in the forces which carried on the gallant and successful campaign which won German South Africa for the British Empire. Next in prominence, however, is Mr. Andrews, a "stop-the-war" advocate.

Premier Botha requires to carry 66 seats to secure an absolute majority, but it is practically conceded that he will carry 50 while in places where there is a three-cornered fight his followers and the Unionists will not oppose each other.

Hertzog's following is largely in the Orange Free State, and the only province in which they do not expect to win a seat is Natal. His strength lies in the Cape only in those constituencies which produced the bulk of the Cape rebels in the war of 1899, 1902. It is believed that General Botha's following in the new House will be between 70 and 80.—Montreal-Herald Telegraph.

HOW THE CUBS OF THE LION CAPTURE THE VICTORIA CROSS

The daring act by which Lance-Corporal Albert Jacka, the young Australian, won the Victoria Cross is thus described:

On May 10 ten men and a sergeant of the 14th Australian Battalion, who were holding a short section of trench at Courtney's Post, found that the Turks outside the parapet were throwing bombs down into the trench. Two Australians fell killed and four were wounded. Seven or eight Turks then jumped in, and this section of the trench was for the moment left only to a wounded officer who went to see the situation. This officer, coming back through the communication trench, said, "They have got me; the Turks are in the trench."

Lance-Corporal Jacka immediately jumped from the communication trench up to the step, or bench, behind the last traverse of the section of the fire trench, which had not yet been reached by the Turks. He was exposed for a moment to the Turks, rifles at a distance of three yards. The Turks were afraid to come around the traverse, and he held them there for a considerable time alone. Meanwhile the word had gone back, "Officer wanted." Lieut. Hamilton saw the Turks jumping into the trench, and began firing with his revolver, but the Turks shot him through the head. A second officer was sent up. Then Jacka shouted, "Look out, sir, the Turks are in here." The officer asked Jacka if he would charge if he (the officer) got some men to back him up and Jacka said 'Yes." The officer's platoon was following him, and he called for volunteers. "It's a tough job. Will you back Jacka up?" One of the leading men answered, "It's sink or swim; we will come, sir," and the leading three went forward. The moment the leading man put his head round the corner he was hit in three places and fell back, blocking the trench.

The exit from the trench at this end now being well held, Jacka jumped back from the fire trench into the communication trench. The officer told Jacka that he would hold the exit and give the Turks the impression that he was going to charge again. Jacka said that he would make his way round through a communication trench to the other end of the fire trench at the rear of the Turks. This plan worked excellently. The officer's party threw two bombs and fired several shots into the wall of the trench opposite them.

Jacka made his way round, and a moment after the bombs were thrown he reached a portion of the trench just behind the Turks. The party in front heard shots and charged, but when they reached the trench only four Turks came crawling over the parapet. These Turks were shot and Jacka was found in the trench with an unlighted cigarette in his mouth and with a ushed face. "I managed to get the beggars, sir," he said. In front of him was a trench literally blocked with Turks. He had shot five, and had just finished bayoneting the remaining two. One of these was only wounded, and was taken prisoner.

THIS WIDOW'S MITE.

In the little town of Loughrea, in Galway, Ireland, there is a widow, Mrs. Fury, five of whose sons, members of the Connaught Rangers, have been killed in action. Of three other sons in the Rangers one is wounded and another a prisoner. And yet silly people talk slightingly of Irish loyalty.—The Globe.

FOUR UNSHAKEN FORTRESSES

A striking comment on the latest theory that established fortifications are of no use in modern warfare, is furnished by many which shows the ebb and flow of German invasion along the French frontier. If we take the forward line of invasion during the August-September raid of last year, we will find that it dropped down into mid-France from the Belgian and Luxemburg bonderies like a dangling noose. It was hung rigidly up, however, at one point just at the and that point is marked—Verdun.

Just on the other side of Verdun another noose drops menacingly down. In fact, the two nooses—that of last year and that of St. Mihiel—pretty nearly enclose Verdun. But there Verdun sticks, like a nail driven in a wall, holding back the looping line of German advance. And what is Verdun? One of the four fortresses upon which France staked her life.

Follow the line of last year's invasion farther east, and you will find yet another noose dangling down into French territory. But it is hung back upon two "nails" driven in the French soil. These two nails are Toul and Epinal—two more of the established French ring-fortresses which both the Germans and the French believed before the war made that frontier impregnable. And they seem to have been right. The Germans have not yet been able to penetrate beyond that embattled row of fixed stars. Verdun, Toul, Epinal and Belfort have pinned their lines back against their own frontiers—or very nearly so — with a steady success which would seem to indicate that the day of fortresses is not yet quite done.—Montreal Star.

Eloquent Patriotic Sermon By Rev. Dr. Langfeldt in His New Church in the West

(From North Battleford Optimist.)

The congregation of St. Paul's Church celebrated their annual festival of thanksgiving last Sunday, and large congregations attended both services. The church was tastefully decorated with the products of harvest, and with flowers.

The singing was excellent, special music being rendered by a full choir. The pulpit was draped with the Union Jack, the flags of the Allies also being displayed.

At the evening service Dr. Langfeldt preached a patriotic sermon. He took for his text the first verse of the 99th Psalm, "The Lord reigneth, let the people tremble; He sitteth betwen the Cherubims, let the earth be moved."

The Psalms, he said, was the Hebrew hymn book. There was no information as to who wrote this or that hymn, but the one chosen as the text, was doubtless written at a period of national tribulation and despondency. The cry of "The Lord is King," was a note of exultation raised amidst adversity, and expreased faith in the love and power of the Lord of Lords even though affliction and trials had beset them.

If ever the Christain church was in need of this same faith, it was today, for we are in a time of affliction and adversity, and perhaps days are yet before us which would test our faith as never before.

Fifteen months ago we were living in the security of normal conditions, in an age of general prosperity, but to-day the world resounds with the clash of arms. History is being made which will live throughout the ages. War is being waged which eclipses in magnitude and destruction anything on record. Twenty millions of men are met in mortal combat, bringing into use and prostituting all the wonders of science.

Man's conquest of the air is being turned into channels which aid death and destruction, his mastery of the sea is being used for purposes of frightfulness. Every scientific invention, every research, is being marshalled in the desire to kill and destroy. Well may the people of the Christain churches stand dismayed, and falter in their faith, when, after nineteen centuries of the teaching of the brotherhood of man, we find this huge cataclysm spreading over the face of Europe, and stretching its tentacles out of the distant corners of the earth.

We need to take a new grip on faith. Men are asking "Where is now thy God?" "What use is Christianity, when so-called Christain nations thus sin?" But we must remember that the sins whih led to this war were not committeed in the name of Christianity, nor were they the result of Christianity, hut rather in direct opposition and defiance of Christianity. All life, individual or national, constitutes a struggle between good and evil, but who will not confess that while sin exists of which the war is proof, good also exists. Our many societies who are working for the benefit of mankind, our patriotic societies, our red cross, and a great many other social movements are promoted by the good in life.

Who knows but that out of all this evil good will come? It is seen in a rapidly growing destestation of war There are moral questions being considered by nations which were never considered before. War is horrible and were it not for the fact that the people of Great Britain and of her colonies were convinced that their participation was right and honorable we would not rejoice in this war, nor could we sincerely pray that God will give uz victory. There are worse conditions than war—peace without honor is worse than war. We are witnessing nations who withhold themselves from this war because of mercenary conditions. They count dollars of more importance than principles.

We want peace, we have no glory in war, but we do not want peace at the price of national honor. Great Britain risked her all before in the time of the great Napoleonic struggles in Europe, and she is prepared again to spend her manhood, and her wealth to defend the weak, and uphold the right. And we Canadians are proud of the stand taken by the old Mother, and our young men are flocking to the banner which shall ride triumphant over Prussian tyranny.

We believe we are fighting for the right, and the people of the Empire are behind the struggle, in mind and heart, ready to make what sacrifices are necessary, until peace such as we would have it has come. If this war had been an act of selfishness or aggressiveness, as a Christain church we could not have prayed for its success, unless indeed, our prayers had been hypocritical, but in this fight we can pray with sincerity, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," and we are prepared to back up that prayer with our resources and with our lives if necessary.

to the many offers which came to the executive from different societies, willing to lay aside all other work in order to assit in providing comforts and supplies for the sick and wounded soldiers.

The executive also found that local influences and views prevailed, which led to a divergence of action on the part of many, which in time would adjust itself, and lead all interested to conform to the rules and regulations of the Red Cross, where the fullest efficiency and economy would be realized.

The societies assisting the branch were: The Nurses' Association, the Staff and Nurses of the Nicholls and St. Joseph Hospitals, the George St. Sewing Circle, Ladies' Aid of the Murray St. Church, West End Club, Leborah Bible Class of St. Paul's, the Bureau Bible Class, Knox Church, the Good Comrades' Club, Y.W.C.A., as well as many individual workers.

During the early months of our organization the society was indebted to the Board of the Y.W.C.A. for placing their rooms at our disposal for the receiving, packing, and forwarding of supplies. A change of headquarters from the Y.W.C.A. to rooms on Simcoe street was made in June.

Valued Services of Miss Rush.

The executive is under a deep sense of gratitude to Miss Marion Rush for accepting the convenorship of the room committee. It would be difficult to over-estimate the value of her devoted services, or the ability and tact which has enabled her to deal with many and difficult problems successfully.

To the committee of ladies associated with Miss Rush in carrying out the work of making surgical supplies, sorting and packing, the sincere thanks of the branch is due, and is hereby tendered in acknowledgment of their valuable services.

The deep interest in the work, manifested by the large quantities of supplies which came to the Simcoe street rooms, necessitated the opening of a larger room at the Public Library, with a special staff of supervisors to deal with the work satisfactorily.

The efforts of the society on Tag Day resulted in $1,225.23 being added to the funds.

A week of afternoon teas at the Oriental Tea Room realized $185.75.

Through the generosity of the Peterborough Floral Co. we were able to have a very successful sale of flowers, Saturday, August the 28th, which realized $168.15.

The funds of the society have been augmented from time to time by generous contributions and members' fees. The society has during the year received very material and substantial assistance from the Women's Patriotic Society of St. Andrew's Church. Supplies valued at $315.00 being forwarded for them to Red Cross headquarters.

The Progressive Club discontinued their work for Shorncliffe during the summer months, and made surgical supplies according to Red Cross instructions, valued at $226.00.

The Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., St. John's Girls' and Women's Auxiliaries spent their summer meetings doing Red Cross work.

Other organizations contributing to the society were the 57th Regt. Chap. I. O. D. E., the ePterborough Cheese Board, the Women's Art Association, Nurses' Association, the Bowling Club, officers and girls of the Margaret Cox Home, the Polly Anna Club, and the Ladies' Aid of Fairview Methodist Church.

Tobacco valued at $100.00, and collected at the store of Mr. A. W. Clysdale, supplemented by contributions from friends, has been sent to headquarters.

A bale of hospital supplies contributed by the Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church, valued at $40.85, was forwarded to Dr. Kelly, Shorncliffe.

A bale of supplies was also forwarded from the Young Peoples' Society of Charlotte St. Church.

Several bales were forwarded to Queen's Canadian Military Hospital, Shorncliffe for the Progressive Club.

A pleasant feature of the work has been the donations, which from time to time have been sent in by children.

Contributions of money were forwarded to the Central Council monthly, as they required funds at their disposal to provide motor ambulances, travelling field kitchens, hospital trains, surgical instruments, drugs and medical appliances.

Four cots have been endowed in the Duchess of Connaught's Hospital at Cliveden.

Money for Prisoners.

The branch has forwarded $800.00 for the Canadian Prisoners' Food Fund, accompanied by a list of all Peterborough men, now prisoners of war, so that if possible they might be provided for.

The response to the appeal for jam, honey, syrup and marmalade, through the commitee composed of members representing the different churches and Salvation Army, was most generous, over six thousand jars valued at $2,000.00 was collected, packed, and shipped direct to Col. Hodgetts, Commissioner, London, England, through the Red Cross Shipping Department, Wellington Street, Montreal.

Two barrels were received, one from Warsaw, and the other from the Lakehurst Auxiliary.

Many societies have been greatly helped and interested by visits and addresses from the members of our organizing committee.

Surgeon-General G. Stirling Ryerson's lecture on "What War Means," given in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute, Friday evening, October 15th, was largely attended.

General Ryerson's descriptions of the battlefields of Europe will live for a long time in the minds of those who had the privilage of hearing him.

The musical selections of Miss Logan and Mr. Carlyle were very much appreciated.

Mrs. Allan's earnest appeal on behalf of the society must lead to increased interest in the work which this branch is endeavouring to carry on. The collection amounted to $122.06.

As we enter a new year in Red Cross work, we face serious conditions caused by the terrible struggle in which the nations of the world are now engaged.

The call of duty to which the whole Empire has responded means the co-operation of the many, not the planning of a few.

The Red Cross offers splendid opportunities to every woman willing to give her noblest and best service for her King and country. The relief of distress and suffering caused by this vast and inhuman war, should appeal to all.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

LAURA J. DAVIDSON,
Secretary.

Publicity Committee Report.

The Publicity Department have visited several centres both in the city and in the surrounding districts in response to requests sent in to the Society for information or for help in organizing. There was an organization already formed; and the work being satisfactorily done, according to the requirements of our Toronto headquarters, existing arrangements were left undisturbed unless a strong desire otherwise was expressed.

Where new societies just starting to do Red Cross work were being formed, they were earnestly advised to become an affiliated auxiliary of the Peterborough branch of the Red Cross Society for many reasons. The greatest, being, that they derive inspiration in their work from the fact that they are a part of the grandest organization for the relief of human suffering known to the civilized world; also they are in close touch with the latest methods or changes in the making of Red Cross supplies as issued from the Toronto headquarters. Transportation of goods is absolutely free, and owing to the Society being recognized by the British government as the official source and organization for the forwarding of supplies, and they have notified all the various countries to that effect, it can be readily understood that every facility and advantage can be obtained in the getting of goods to their destination safely and expeditiously.

The committee desire to tender to the Press of our city their most hearty and sincere thanks for their great kindness in inserting any notices dealing with the work of the Society entirely free of charge. Newspapers have to "make ends meet" just as any other business concern, consequently the committee appreciates the great generosity of the Press in "doing their bit" to help on our work so willingly.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Annie Forbes Allan,
Convenor.

President's Report.

Review of work of the Peterborough Branch of the Red Cross Society:

As a small number of our members will remember, our first annual meeting was held in the hall of the Armouries, outside the Recreation Room amongst the bales which were waiting shipment to the Belgians. We were originally a committee of eight members, formed at the suggestion of Mrs. Roger, from the now non-existing Woman's War Fund Committee. During the year the need for, and work of, the Society have more than trebled. The original committee has formed the executive of the now much larger branch, of 150 odd members 31 of whom are men. We have three life-members on our roll—a very small number compared with other branches of the society.

For the first four or five months of our existence our meetings were held and work and packing done in the Y. W. C. A. building, by kind permission of the Board, and the thanks of the Executive are due to Miss Peacock, one of our original committee, for her untiring labours on our behalf and interest in the work.

You will hear in another report of the splendid contributions sent in and packed and shipped from there. At that time material was given out to several bodies of women workers, and all the "cutting out" of garments, etc., was done by Mrs. Scott, a member of the original committee who has done quiet and faithful work.

The Peterborough Nurses' Association were pioneers at hospital supplies and bandages, their work being supplemented by that of the nurses at St. Joseph's and Nicholls Hospitals.

The Publicity Committee, with Mrs. Allan as convener, have gone about, interesting those in the sourrounding country in the Red Cross Society.

The only appeal made by the Society to the citizens was made on Red Cross Tag Day, when the members and others all worked faithfully and well, and a fairly large sum was collected.

In May we affiliated with the local Council of Women, and gained thereby the privilege of hearing Mrs. Plumptre, the Honorable Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross Society on Red Cross work.

In July, having found it necessary to secure a room for demonstration purposes, the Toronto Loan and Savings Co. very kindly placed two rooms on Simcoe Street at our disposal. For the supervision of these rooms the Executive were fortunate indeed in securing the services of Miss Marion Rush, who has proved herself a most efficient, inspiring and zealous worker, for the work room in particular, and for the Red Cross cause in general, and the growth of the whole movement in Peterborough and district is largely due to her untiring zeal and devotion.

In August it was found that the work was so increasing and the needs becoming so much greater, owing to the terrible battles in which our Canadian soldiers had a part, that your Executive decided to look for a larger room.

The Public Library Board, when appealed to, most generously placed the Assembly Hall, Teachers' room, and part of the basement at our disposal, and our warm thanks are due to Mr. DelaFosse for his untiring courtesy and help at all times, as well as to the Library Board, for the use of the rooms. Miss Rush has been assisted by many willing and efficient workers, both as supervisors and assistants on three days in the week for hospital supplies, and Miss F. Davidson has taken charge of the miscellaneous packing, which has been no light task, as you will see from the reports.

The hearty thanks of the committee is due to Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. R. Turner, who organized and advertised the jam shower, held in September, which brought in over 6,000 bottles of jam, syrup, jelly and honey, for our sick and wounded soldiers. The packing of this large amount was a tremendous undertaking, and was splendidly carried out by Mrs. Matthews, who was most ably assisted by a number of expert packers who gave most generously of their time and ability for this very important work—115 barrels of fruit, etc., was thus packed, in barrels, which were most generously contributed, as well as the straw for packing. Mrs. Matthews and those who so ably and willingly assisted her, deserve our heartiest thanks.

I cannot close this report without offering my sincere thanks to the Executive, who have done such willing and splendid work, but especially do I thank our splendid Secretary for the able, willing, and painstaking way in which she has helped me personally, as well as for her work for the Red Cross Society. We both took office under protest, and I think had we had any conception of the way the work would grow in a year, our protests would have been much stronger. However, I know we are all glad and thankful to be able to give all the time and energy possible to have a little share in the grand enterprise being carried on by the Canadian Red Cross Society. We are all sorry that Mrs. Roy, who has been Treasurer from the beginning—a post which has entailed much unseen work—has felt obliged to withdraw her name from those who stand for nomination for another year, but feel sure we will still have her sympathetic interest and assure her of our thanks for help in the past.

Though the work of this branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has grown very fast of late, still Peterborough has given very little in comparison with other places of the same population, and we must bestir ourselves to get larger contributions, as well as more members from our citizens, generally, for the most noble and most necessary cause.

May it not be necessary much longer to continue active work, but may the terrible reason for it soon end in an honourable peace for us and for our Allies. Until then may we all go forward with renewed energies and hope to another year of work for the great cause of relieving suffering, for which we are organized.

F. M. Davidson,
President P. R. C. S.

BIG SUM FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—E. T. Statesbury, the banker, got $61,910 in subscriptions within 10 minutes Monday night at a dinner given to aid the Children's Hospital. There was 360 guests. When he announced the total subscribed he brought his gavel down and declared that he would add $38,090 as his own contribution. This brought the 10 minutes' grand total up to $111,910, of $187 per second, or $11,197 per minute.

Armenians Slain By Thousands As Town Is Ravaged

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Patrick W. J. Stevens, the British consul at Batum, Russian transcaucasia, reports the arrival at Urumiah, Persia, and in the Caucasus, of a large number of Armenian refugees from Asia Minor. They are in a pitiable condition.

They declare that Turkish troops have ravaged Shaoun, thirty-five miles northwest of Bitlis, killing a majority of the inhabitants and the defenders of the town. Only a handful of the people were able to flee to the mountains, where the refugees say that they are doomed to perish.

The Bishop of Bagra, writing from Bohmindin, the Consul says, reports that a large number of refugees have arrived there and at other points in the government of Diryan. They come chiefly from the Melasghert and Ardesh districts and Van. In all some 160,000 refugees have passed through Ighir and Bohmindin.

The condition of these people, Mr. Stevens adds, is indescribable. The daily mortality among them is about 100, chiefly due to dysentery and typhus. Medical men from Russia are attending them, but unless immediate relief comes half the refugees will die.

A Slightly Reduced Apple Crop this Year

The latest fruit bulletin of the Ontario Fruit Branch reports indications of a fair to good apple crop, which will be less than last year, and there fore will give less excuse for a selling panic. Given by sections, the report is as follows:

East of Toronto, including the counties of Ontario, Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, and Prince Edward, apples generally promise a fair to good crop, probably 60 to 70 per cent. of that of last year. Duchess and other summer apples are reported a nearly full crop, all apples medium. Spies only fair, Greenings fair to good, Baldwins and Russets good. Ben Davis very good. Pears and sour cherries very good.

Halton and Wentworth Counties.—All varieties of apples generally reported a fair to light crop only, with spies and Kings better than other varieties. Early and late pears are variously reported a failure to a good crop, averaging pobably fair, with Keiffers good. Plums and cherries a full crop.

Niagara District.—Elberta peaches are a fair to good crop with other varieties very good. Early and late pears generally light, with the exception of Keiffers, which promise a good crop. Plums probably will be a medium crop only, reports varying greatly from very light to good. Cherries generally do not promise as big a crop as last year. Frost also is reported to have caused considerable damage to cherries and plums, many growers reporting a heavy drop of fruit. Currants, gooseberries, raspberries and blackberries, all give promise of a good crop, though considerable winter killing of raspberry canes is reported. Grapes, especially back from the lake and in low places suffered very considerably from the frost of May 27th. Probably the total crop will be affected 25 per cent. or more.

Fruit generally through the Niagara district is reported looking well, but not growing much at the time the reports were sent in, owing to the continued cold weather, many growers looking for a heavy drop of fruit.

Welland County.—All apples average a light crop. Pears and plums good. Cherries good but not so heavy as 1914. Elberta peaches fair to good, other varieties heavy. Considerable damage to grapes from frost.

Norfolk.—All varieties of apples give promise of a light to fair crop only. Pears are a fair crop.

Middlesex reports heavy damage from frost of all varieties of fruit, most correspondents stating that the fruit crop is practically ruined, with the possible exception of Spies, which were hardly in bloom at the time of the frost. Fruit prospects were fair up until the time of frost.

Lambton County also suffered severely in many parts from the frost, especially orchards on low-lying lands. Generally speaking, the Lambton apple crop will be light, though Kings and Russets are fair to good. Peaches on low land are also severely frosted. Plums are a medium crop. Pears light.

Huron, Grey, Bruce and Simcoe report a fair to light crop of apples, the frost doing very severe damage in many sections some reports stating that the crop was practically ruined.

A very considerable increase in the acreage of strawberries planted out this year is reported from Halton, Wentworth, Lincoln, and Norfolk Counties.

A GLANCE INTO HISTORY

Here are some of the features of sports news ten years ago.

The lightweight situation at present seems to be as follows:

Joe Gans is champion of the world.

Jimmy Britt is white lightweight champion.

battling Nelson claims to be champion of the United States.

Kid Herman challenges the world.

If Ed Walsh, the big husky recruit pitcher of the White Sox, can ever learn the pit ball delivery and how to control it, he should be of some use to Comiskey this season.

A War Bride

My sister was at a boarding school in Ireland. One day while playing hockey against the "University Girls," she noticed one of the spectators—a young undergraduate—watching her every movement. After the game one of her opponents brought the boy up and a friendship which soon ripened into something deeper sprang up. Then schooldays being over, Dorothy returned to her home in England and only heard by letter from her young sweetheart.

One day came a telegram: "Sailing for Canada, m going to see you two days." Those two days were eventful ones for the young lovers. Both promised to be true and with hopeful heart the boy sailed for Canada. Two years of close correspondence passed, but Dorothy read "disappointed hopes" through all the letters and knew her sweetheart was not finding the fortune he had hoped for.

Then suddenly the letters stopped and one was returned through the dead letter office.

For a year Dorothy remained faithful to her word and listened to no man's words of love. Then, convinced her boy had found another sweetheart, she consented to marry a man much older than herself whom she knew would guard her and love her and be a perfect father. After three years of married life war borke out and her husband, who was a captain in the territorials, joined his regiment for active service.

Dorothy went to the station in London to see the last of him, and as the train left noticed the platform was quickly filling with another regiment, wearing the "Patricia Canadian" badge.

It was a Canadian contingent, and although distressed and alarmed Dorothy would rather have rushed away, as the memory of her young sweetheart came back to her. All was confusion and scenes of parting. Conspicious among them—from the fact that no one stood by to bid him a last farewell—stood a tall soldier. Dorothy felt a burst of pity for his loneliness and took a step in his direction, meaning to speak a word of cheer to him.

The soldier turned and saw her. "Dorothy!" he cried. He knew her at once, though she had barely time to stop his rush to take her in his arms by the fateful words, "I'm married!" Then he told her how success had never come his way and, obliged to take the meanest of work, he felt ashamed to write to her more or to keep her tied and hoped by drifting away she would soon get over things.

But the sight of her former sweetheart brought all back to her. Then the train carried him off and Dorothy returned to her lonely house.

Letters from both her soldier men began to come. Then one morning a telegram saying her husband had fallen a victim to poisonous gases. A few weeks afterwards came another telegram: "Private—seriously wounded in an engagement and is now in hospital in Rouen. He wishes this communication to be forwarded."

Dorothy knew what it would mean if she lost her real sweetheart, so she rushed across the channel to her wounded hero.

His sight had been taken by the shrapnel that knocked him out, but he is now recovering, and in a few months these two mean to find the happiness they missed in their youth, though the short glimpse her lover had of his long lost sweetheart at Waterloo station will be the only memory he has of what his wife looks like, and sightless he must go through the world in future.

Hope To Double The Production

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—Further progress was made by Mr. D. A. Thomas, Mr Lloyd George's representative in Canada, and the two British experts, Sir E. Donaldson and Mr. Lionel Hichens, towards securing an effective reorganization of the work of manufacturing war munitions in Canada. While the proposed new commission will be practically under the control of the War Office, there is no desire to overrule in any way the wishes or the plans of the Government here in regard to personnel or work. Sir Robert Borden has been consulted, as has also the Minister of Militia, with regard to what can be done in Canada toward speeding up the manufacture of munitions, and insuring prompt delivery and equal opportunity to every firm in Canada.

There are more than 300 firms in Canada, employing some 175,000 men, now engaged on war orders of one kind or another. It is believed that under proper organization the present output can be more than doubled, and the number of firms capable of making shells or other munitions can be increased probably 100 per cent.

The plan in view contemplates a fixed schedule of prices with every firm which can give adequate assurance of being able to fill orders offered the opportunity of securing them. It is probable that steps will at once be taken to organize under the direction of the British experts a large ordnance manufacturing plant in Canada, which should be in position towards the end of next summer to begin turning out the finished product.

Clothing made of pressed leaders as a substitute for wool has been invented by an Italian priest.

A CHARMING ENTERTAINMENT

Given By the Church Women's Association of St. John's ---A Good Attendance

Under the auspices of the Church Women's Association of St. John's Anglican Church, another of those pleasant social evenings, for which the C.W.A. are so justly famed, came off last night, at the St. John's school house.

The object of the entertainment was to provide funds with the object of sending some Christmas present to the Peterborough boys, either at the front or encamped in the Old Country; to remind them that although absent in body, they are present in spirit.

Considering that there were strong counter-attractions on last night the room was very satisfactorily filled. The School had been very prettily decorated with flags and streamers, and from the manner in which the chairs were disposed there was evidence of an intention to abandon all formalities, and to make the affair a real "social." And as it was the first function of the C.W.A. for this season, it may be pronounced as a great success, and may these indefatigable and pleasant ladies give us plenty more of them!

Mr. W. F. Johnstone, erstwhile people's warden of St. John's, who was the chairman, opened the proceedings by calling on the audience to sing "God Save the King," which, it is needless to remark, was heartily responded to. Then, in a few of those happy remarks for which he is so justly famed, he observed that somehow he was always selected as chairman for the functions of the C.W.A. (applause). He had invariably found that their meetings were very successful and he anticipated, as usual, a very pleasant evening. He went on to state that the object of tonight's gathering was to send Christmas cheer to the boys overseas, and that Mrs. C. Turner would be glad to receive, in particular, the names of those gone from St. John's. He was proud that the men and women of St. John's were taking on their share; the men were working hard, but they were beaten altogether to pieces by the women.

The chairman also pointed out that while it was proper to strain every nerve, etc., it was not fitting to neglect the spiritual. There is a great power in collective prayer, and those at the front have felt and known that all over the world collective prayer has been offered up for them. He reminded the audience that there is daily intercessory prayer for our Empire and soldiers and success of our arms in St. John's Church at 5.15 p.m. a short little service lasting but ten minutes. Such prayer is a most powerful stimulant to the men; and these daily services were open to all denominations.

The first item on the programme was a tableau entitled "England and her Allies." This was very effectively got up and represented the allies of Great Britain. Mr. F. Roy, as electrician, turned on the rays of an electric lamp, using various coloured screens with great effect. During this tableau Mr. Dearle sang nicely the "Land of Hope and Glory." At its conclusion, just before the curtain was dropped Mr. Johnston aptly remarked, "The Germans may try till Doomsday, but they will never beat that combination."

Item No. 2 was a song, "There is a Land," well sung by Mr. Weller. He was followed by a clever little musician, Mr. Otto Gliddon, who, as a clarionette soloist, gave with great effect "The Carnival of Venice." Then came Mrs. Brewer, who, in admirable form, recited Longfellow's "King Robert of Sicily." During this number there was a musical refrain running through which was skilfully executed by Miss M. English. This number evoked considerable applause.

Canon Davidson then congratulated the C.W.A. on adding another success to their undertakings, and welcomed, as guests of honour, a large number of Normal School students, whose presence, he said, was much appreciated as they were a valuable contribution to St. John's. The reverend gentleman then made some loyal and patriotic remarks, finishing up by welcoming those who were present belonging to other denominations, and assuring them of his pleasure to see them on all and every occasion.

A violin solo, "Rode Concerto," by Miss Palmer, accompanied on the piano by Miss Gwendoline Smith, brought the performance near the end. Miss Palmer plays with a fine knowledge of technique, and of the capabilities of her instrument, and last night's performance was no exception to her usual good form.

The Finale was a tableau: "Rule Britannia." The title role was finely executed by Mrs. Scadding. While this was shown Mr. R. J. Devey played and sang "Rule Britannia," the audience joining in the chorus.

All the numbers were well rendered and equally well received, the matter being very appropriate. Mr. Scadding acted as stage manager; Mr. Fred Roy as electrician. The accompanists throughout the evening were Miss Hazel Dean and Miss M. English.

The ladies representing England and her "Allies" were as under:

England—Mrs. Scadding.
Scotland—Miss Margaret Turner.
Ireland—Miss S. Davidson.
Wales—Miss Cuffe.
France—Miss Howden.
Belgium—Miss Isabel Morphet.
Russia—Mrs. Dearle.
Italy—Miss Schlow.
Canada—Miss Ola Cavanah.

After the performance elegant refreshments were dispensed by the ladies and a pleasant hour was spent in social intercourse. New acquaintances were made and old ones, in many cases, renewed, and presently, in all too short a time, the singing of the National Anthem reminded us it was time to say "Good-night".

Peterboro' Lady In Film Picture

Mrs. Wadeley (Barbara Tennant) in "The Dollar Mark" at the Empire Theatre

Among the most fascinating moments ever spent before a picture are those in which one sees the bursting of the dam, the flooding of the mine, and the final plunge of Jim Gresham and Alice Chandler over the edge of the dam into the swollen river, on the side of the cabin which acts as the raft, in the Robert Warwick picture of "The Dollar Mark," which is one of the William A. Brady releases made exclusively through the World Film Corporation.

Barbara Tennant and Robert Warwick are seen in the major roles. Miss Tennant's experience in the motion picture world is as varied as Mr. Warwick's has been on the stage. Miss Tennant is one of the players in the future Peerless releases, while Mr. Warwick is to be starred in another, made from Mr. Broadhurst's other success "The Man of the Hour". Mr. Warwick is also to be seen as Francis Starr's leading man in Bernstein's "The Secret." It is modern and brimful of the spirit of 1914, because it reflects the business world and wherever Robert Warwick in "The Dollar Mark" has been shown it has been greeted with the applause of the most discriminating sort, firstly on account of the clever direction of the picture, secondly, because of the pantomimic excellence of Robert Warwick and his company, and lastly because of the virility of the story that George Broadhurst has provided for this picture, which has the distinction of being the first in the William A. Brady series to be released through the World Film Corporation. This picture was made at the Cobalt, and Mrs Wadley's appearance makes it doubly attractive to Peterborough people. Empire Theatre, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, October 21, 22 and 23.

CUT OFF SUPPLIES OF MUNITIONS

NAPLES, (via Rome and Paris, Oct. 20—Travellers from the Near East just arrived here on the steamship Roumanie and interviewed by the Rome, assert that the real purpose of the present struggle in the Balkans is not to prevent the sending of munitions and food to Constantinople, but to keep the Central powers from cutting off the supply of munitions sent to Russia by her Allies over the Saloniki-Nish railroad.

They point out that the Bulgarians were in the best position to carry out the plan of cutting off these Russian supplies, and at the same time deprive Serbia of munitions from the same source.

CANDLES ARE IN DEMAND BY THE BOYS AT THE FRONT

Soap Always Needed and Lime and Acid Drops Are Appreciated—Mouth Organs Have Made Many a Wearisome March More Pleasant

Letters received from the front by Mr. J. J. Colmer, the London Commissioner of the Canadian War Contingent Association, which distributes field comforts sent from Canada, contain some very interesting information about the tastes and manner of life of our soldier representatives at the front.

The article perhaps most in demand and hailed with the heartiest thanks by the recipients is a common domestic commodity which in times of peace no one but a connoisseur would think of as a welcome present. It is soap.

When a soldier returns from the trenches plastered from head to foot with tenacious Belgian mud which hardens into a glaze when it dries, his one object in life is to get clean. This operation requires plenty of soap and towels, and the government issue of both of these articles is very niggardly. Consequently he greatly appreciates the soap sent to him amongst field comforts. Carbolic soap is especially welcome, as it makes a splendid lather with the hard Belgian water.

Another field comfort which is particularly serviceable is a small tin of lime and acid drops which relieve thirst when the soldier's water bottle is empty. One officer expresses the opinion that such a box should be included in the emergency rations.

Curry powder is found to be a very welcome addition to the regimental cuisine, and as a desert and extra relish, cake meets with universal appreciation. The supply of this latter article is very limited, and if a box is suspected to contain it, it is very probable that, as it passes along the line it will be commandeered long before it reaches its proper destination.

During the summer presents of footballs and other accessories for games proved decidedly welcome gifts. When the soldier is on the march mouth organs sent amongst field comforts from Canada have whiled away many otherwise tedious hours. A gift of a gramophone with a good selection of records was much appreciated. So much so that the commanding officer wrote a special letter of thanks to Mr. Colmer.

In the hot weather there was a great demand for muslin netting as fly screens. The provision of this seemingly negligible article shows the pains which are taken by the C.W.C.A. to have constant and up-to-date information of the needs of the troops.

These needs change somewhat according to the season. Now that the long winter nights are coming, candles are put on the list of immediate necessities. The government issue is only 24 candles to 1,000 men, which of course mean that many would be forced to spend their nights in darkness were it not for Field Comforts from Canada.

The great demand for writing paper and envelopes shows the soldier's desire to send news home so far as the censor will permit. At one of the Y.M.C.A. depots in France it is stated that 85,000 of writing material was issued in one week. This is a field comfort which a public hungry for war news should provide in generous quantities.

The soldier on the other hand is eager for news from home, and Mr. Colmer's correspondence shows that newspapers and magazines and little budgets of specially prepared local news are very welcome.

The demand for cigarettes is unlimited. One shipment of cigarettes was distributed, as the quartermaster reports, "to everybody from the Colonel down." In tobacco the soldier has decided preferences. Some are homesick for a particular brand and consider every other variety as worse than useless. In reply to a gift of T & B tobacco one private writes: "This is tobacco at last. It has been impossible to get T & B here."

The soldier is very grateful for the efforts of the people in Canada to supply him with these little comforts. Soldiers of all ranks have sent the Canadian War Contingent Association assurances of their warm appreciation of the gifts which have been sent them. "When consignments arrive," states one officer, "every effort is made to explain to the men the source from which these comforts are derived." Consequently the soldier is well aware of the sympathy of the civilian population in Canada.

Field Comforts fill a very real need and the public should continue to give a generous support to the National Service Committee and the C.W.C.A.

Medical Authorities Say Hair Growth Can Be Stimulated

The highest European and American authorities on hair and scalp diseases seem to agree that, under proper treatment, it is possible to make new hair grow on partially bald heads, in a large percentage of cases. In a general way, this is the simple method: First, cleanse the scalp, getting rid of the dirt, dandruff, excess oily secretions, and the accompanying germs or bacteria. Second, apply a solution containing ingredients to stimulate the dormant or impaired papilla upon which each hair root grows. The healthy follicle sheds the hair and the hair root and then a new root grows on the papilla. Remember, that the papilla is below the root and is the organ that takes the nourishment from the blood and supplies it to the hair through the hair root. The hair root (through the papilla) gets nourishment from the blood and converts it into a hair, just as the root of a plant takes nourishment from the soil and converts it into a stalk and leaves, and fruit. You may retard or entirely prevent the action of plant roots by permitting the accumulation on the surface of the soil of substances that simply smother the plants. In practically the same way the action of the papilla and hair root may be retarded or entirely stopped by the accumulation of dirt, dandruff and grease that work down into the hair follicle. The following formula is widely recommended to kill scalp germs, destroy dandruff, cleanse the scalp and hair, and to stimulate the growth of hair—6 ounces bay rum, 2 ounces lavona de compose, and ½ drachm menthol crystals. You can buy these ingredients from any druggist and mix them yourself, or the druggist will mix them for you. Apply to the scalp night and morning and rub in with the finger tips. The above formula makes a delightful hair dressing—makes it fluffy, soft and lustrous.

Threaten to Close Clubs

If They Do Not Close at Eight O'clock, Restrictive Legislation May Be Sought

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—The announcement by Chairman Flavelle of the Ontario License Board, that although the new regulations closing bars at 6 o'clock did not apply to private clubs, he intended to do everything in his power to induce the clubs to voluntarily observe the new rule, has caused consternation in local club circles. It is hinted that if the clubs do not stop the sale of liquor to the members at 8 o'clock there will be an appeal to the government to bring the clubs under control.

ON MONDAY OCTOBER 25

Prof. Dorenwend will pay a return visit to the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, and will display and demonstrate a large sample stock of ladies' quality hair goods and gentlemen's toupees and wigs, which will be offered at special low prices. CANADIAN STEAMER MAKES RECORD

Carried 176,315 Bushels of Wheat—Largest Cargo On Record

With just 176,315 1-3 bushels of wheat in her holds, the W. Grant Morden, queen of the great merchant fleet of the Canada Steamship Lines, and the largest bulk freighter in existence, cleared yesterday afternoon from Port William for Tiffin, establishing a new world's record for a single cargo of grain. This huge cargo, at the present spot price of grain, has an approximate value of fully $500,000.

The Grant Morden's cargo is nearly a hundred thousand bushels in excess of any previous Canadian record than her own, and beats by 6,250 bushels the record made two weeks ago by the American steamer W. P. Snyder.

ASTIGMATISM

Was first discovered by Thomas Young over one hundred years ago, but the cure for it was not found till a few years later, when a Mr. Airy, suffering acutely from the same defect of sight, cured himself by means of cylindrical lenses. Since then, Astigmatism in all forms has been closely studied by the leading eye specialists of the world, till a method has been perfected by which this defect, and if allowed to develop becomes a disease, can be cured permanently. The usual symptoms of Astigmatism are Headache, pain in the eyes and head.

Dr. Lacey, successor to Tait Optical Co., 410 George street, opposite Examiner Office, is a specialist for all eye troubles, and has had some wonderful results in the curing of this disease, as his patients testify. Consult him about the eye troubles you have 'Phone 1180 or 1184. wfm

A Message to Thin Weak Scrawny Folks

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 Pounds of Solid, Healthy Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body waste.

What is needed is a means of invigorating the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. A splendid way of working to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats, is to try Sargol, the famous flesh building agent that has been so widely sold in America in recent years. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and see if your cheeks don't quickly fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh form over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point.

All good druggists have Sargol or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each large package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

NOTE: Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

CITY'S 30 INCH TRUNK SEWER IS NOW MAKING SPEED OF 105 FT. WEEKLY

Work and Methods Noted Yesterday by Representative of Provincial Sanitary Engineers—Mr. Parsons Employing Labour-Saving Devices.

NOW NEAR LANSDOWNE ST.

Progress on the City's trunk sewer has accelerated appreciably during the past two weeks, due to the fact that the workmen have struck a firmer bottom of sand. Last week 105 feet of pipe were laid in six days on Park street just opposite the Exhibition grounds, and City Engineer Parsons expects to maintain that speed during the present week. By December the pipes should be crossing Lansdowne street, and after that the work will be pushed steadily until it reaches Rink street, the present end of the sewer on Park street which turns along Rink over to the George street trunk line.

It was stated that seven pipes are being laid daily now in comparison with three pipes which was the best work accomplished in sections of King George street where particularly difficult quicksand was encountered. Not only the City Engineer but also the workmen were more than pleased with recent results and especially the more satisfactory conditions under which they are now working.

An Important Undertaking.

The majority of citizens scarcely realize the importance of this undertaking upon which the city has been engaged for nearly a year. The first excavations were made at the corner of King George and Lock streets. King George street is the first above the Street Railway loop. The sewer was dug along King George from Lock to Park streets through ground composed for the most part of sand. Turning into Park street the labourers have dug themselves in as far north as the Exhibition Park and Lansdowne street is now within easy reach. The magnitude of the task is best appreciated by the men who have been engaged on it.

Wide Trenching.

They have first excavated a trench nine feet six inches wide up the middle of the road. On each side it has been sheeted with planks and the sides properly supported. At a certain depth around ten feet a trench five feet s x inches has been dug and this has been sheeted on either side with an interlocking steel sheeting which not only supports the sides but also keeps a great deal of the water out of the lower trench. A double spile driving apparatus has been used to facilitate and speed up the driving of the steel sheeting. This apparatus travels on its own rails with the iron drivers adjustible over each side of the trench. In the wake of this machinery is an electric pump which drains the pipes and enables the pipe-layers to carry out their work under the best possible conditions. This pump shoots the water in a steady stream out into the old drain on the west side of the road.

Foundation For Pipes.

Particular care has been taken to provide a firm foundation for the heavy, thirty-inch concrete pipes. Where the quicksand was freast heavy square timbers were driven to depths of from twelve to fifteen feet. Thick planking was laid crosswise above the timbers and a concrete base added. In some places it was found necessary to drive the timbers only three feet. The jointing of the pipes and the other details in the connections are performed with great care in order to prevent the sinking of any section of the piping. It has been a big task, and citizens will find considerable interest in a visit to the plant where it is now operating on Park street.

Mr. John Thirnbeck is in charge of the work under the supervision of the City Engineer, and the pay sheet accounts for some thirty or forty men.

Labour Saving Devices.

Mr. Parsons has utilized a number of saving devices of which the double pile driving system has been of marked advantage. With the use of the steel sheeting, rapid method of separating the steel sheets and their removal from sections of the trench where work has been completed were proved specially interesting to Mr Nesbitt who visited the work yesterday in the interests of the Provincial Sanitary Engineers. He took notes and photographs of what was being done for the purpose of reporting to other engineers in the country.

Over three thousand feet of concrete pipe has been laid and jointed and if progress seemed slow in some stages it was due to the difficult problem presented in the formation of the underdrain at present. It would make your heart ache to see some of the places blown to pieces by shells. Old men and women with no homes left. This war is a wicked one all right, but never mind, it will not always be this way. The Lord will punish the guilty party. The people in this country are good-living souls all right. One place where there was a beautiful church was blown to pieces by German shells. They made a church out of an old barn. Early in the morning you can see the people going to Mass. It would surprise you to see how close the people live to the firing line, working away at the land. When they hear a shell coming they duck in a dug-out till it bursts, and then work away. Well, don't forget my pipe. I guess this is all for this time, so bye-bye, from your loving son,

Dan.

Among the subscriptions received by the Examiner to-day for the Overseas Band Fund were donations of $5 each from the three soldier sons of Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, of Peterborough. The three boys make a notable addition to the list of Peterborough family groups in the Canadian forces. Pte. Norman Hatton is with the 59th Battalion at Barriefield, Pte. David G. Hatton is with the Mounted Rifles at Winnipeg, and Pte. Edwin R. Hatton is at Sewell Camp, Manitoba, with a Western regiment.

Dr. Robinson, proprietor of the Empire Theatre, has most kindly turned his theatre over to the local battalion for Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 27th, when a concert will be given in aid of a fund for the Peterborough soldiers at the front. An orchestra from the battalion will play and the following programme will be given:

March—"Brotherhood." Orchestra.
Waltz—"Under the Spell."
Song—"The Deathless Army," Sergt. Hartshorn.
Selection—"The Royal Chef." Orchestra.
Song—"Tip Top Tipperary Mary," Pte. Traynor.
Characteristic—"Spring Thoughs," Orchestra.
Characteristic march—"Trombonium." Band.
"God Save the King."

Mr. C. E. Stanton, 96 McDonnel street, has received the following Overseas Tobacco Fund post-card from the front:

Dear Sir,—Thank you very much for cigarettes received yesterday, Sept 22nd. They came in very useful, and we enjoy them in the trenches. I am glad to say we are all well, and not down-hearted yet, and are having some fine weather now. With again many thanks from, yours respectfully,

W. Saunders,
No. 1 Co., 2nd Batt., 1st Can. Contingent, France.

Lieut. Hamilton, of the 33rd Battery, has already signed seven recruits in Peterborough for the artillery, and there is a large number of applicants who have not yet been examined. The draft will be sent to Kingston on Monday morning next. Lieut. Hamilton will be at the Armouries daily at 11 a.m., 4 p.m., and 8 p.m. for the purpose of receiving recruits.

THE PEOPLE OF CAVANVILLE

conflict and that even the Orange Order on the 12th of July had wisely dropped their party tunes and played Tipperary and Rule Britannia instead.

Mr. R. R. Hall.

Mr. R. R. Hall gave an instructive address upon the preparation that Germany had made to dominate over the rest of the world. He emphasized the lawlessness and brutality of the invasion of Belgium and that Great Britain and Canada would have met the same fate if Germany had had her way. The people of Great Britain are stirred up to-day as they have never been before and she realizes that she is in greater danger of invasion than at any time in her history. The truth of this statement is found in the fact that no less than 3,500,000 of her noblest sons have enlisted and gone to the front. If Canada were stirred up to the same extent she would have under arms to-day no less than 500,000 soldiers. Canada has done much but she has a great deal more to do, and it is for the Canadians to realize before it is too late that they must do their full share.

Mr. Hall said he was pleased to see that the township of Cavan was taking such a deep interest in the campaign to raise over $8,000 for the Canadian Patriotic and Red Cross funds, and he was sure that in neither men nor money would the township of Cavan be found wanting.

Pte. Cockburn.

Private Cockburn, who was present at the Battle of St. Julien, made a splendid appeal and gave an interesting account of the life, and dangers and triumphs and pleasures of a soldier at the front. He appealed to the men of Cavan that if they could not spare a life to go to the front they should at least give their money to save a life at the front. He said he heard Sergeant O'Leary speak in London, England, and his message to the City of London saw that he was prepared to lay down his life to save the old men and children and women of London, but so far as the shirkers that remained at home were concerned, they could fight for themselves.

MEETING ON BEHALF OF THE RED CROSS

Was Held at Omemee Last Evening —Splendid Addresses Given

A rousing meeting was held last evening in the interests of the Red Cross in the Omemee Village Hall. Omemee and the Township of Emily were well represented, the hall being filled and much enthusiasm was displayed. The chair was taken by Reeve Mulligan and the speakers for the occasion were His Honour Judge Hoyeke and Mr F. D. Kerr of this city, as well as Rev. Father McGuire, Downeyville, Rev. E. R. James, Rev. Mr. McInnes, and Rev. Mr. Downs, Omemee, and Reeve Fee of Emily. It is expected a large amount of money will be raised on behalf of this work.

The Case Was Dismissed

Magistrate Dumble Held There Was No Case Against J. E. Wood

The case of Rex vs. Wood was heard this morning in the police court before Magistrate Dumble. Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the defendant and Mr. Hatton for the Crown. The charge was laid by William Theobald of the Peterborough Show Case Company, who related that in November, 1913, Mr. J. E. Wood of the Automat Advertising Company ordered two boxes from him and represented that the money to pay for them was in the hands of Mr. R. E. Wilson of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricating Company.

The evidence of Mr Theobald showed that previous to this time he had made 15 boxes to enclose machines being manufactured by the Peterborough Machine Company for the Automat Advertising Company which Mr. Wood represented.

To Mr Wearing, Mr. Theobald said that he was married to Mr. Wood's niece and that Mr. Wood had talked with him with regard to the business being conducted by the Automat Advertising Company.

In the middle of Mr. Theobald's evidence, His Worship informed Mr. Hatton, Crown Attorney, that he did not think that any court in the land would convict Mr. Wood on the evidence given. Mr. Hatton, however, urged that further evidence would be given by the next witness, which he called. His Worship then allowed the case to go on, pointing out, however, that he did not think that there was anything in it whatsoever.

Mr. Wilson of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricating Company was then called by the prosecution and while stating there was no money in his hands to pay for the boxes at the time, admitted that he told Mr. Theobald that the Peterborough Machine Company would pay him for the boxes when matters were settled with the Automat Advertising Company. To Mr Wearing Mr. Wilson stated that he had no doubt that Mr. Wood acted in perfect good faith and that the boxes were charged on the books of the Peterborough Machine Company to the Automat Advertising Company which Mr. Wood represented.

His Worship again pointed out to Mr Hatton that there was no case at all and asked Mr. Hatton if he wished to examine further. Mr. Hatton said that he was willing to abide by His Worship's decision and Mr. Wood was then honourably acquitted. Mr. Dumble remarking that not only was Mr. Wood not criminally liable in any way, but that he believed the Peterborough Machine Company civilly liable for the price of the boxes.

John F. Scholes Is in the City

John F. Scholes, proprietor of the Scholes House, Toronto, and father of the well known Canadian oarsman, is in the city to-day. He will accompany Mr Isaac Eastwood of this city to Gull Lake on a hunting expedition.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

GAVE LECTURE ON THE GREAT WAR

Given by Rev. Mr. Ketterson at Empire Theatre Under the Auspices of the Progressive Club

The Empire Theatre was last night crowded to the doors when the Rev. Mr. Ketterson gave his lecture on the Great War. The audience was most enthusiastic and paid strict attention to the speaker who, in an eloquent way, contrasted the present conflict with the wars of Bible days; describing the leaders and soldiers as Crusaders fighting in a holy war, and ending with an appeal for recruits.

The lecture was profusely illustrated with appropriate limelight views and was given under the auspices of the Peterborough Progressive Club. Dr Robinson, in his usual generous manner, gave the theatre and entire proceeds for the evening to the club, putting on two splendid films as well.

Mr. McElderry introduced the lecturer in a very happy manner, and at the conclusion thanked him and the large audience.

Mr. Chandler then sang a couple of patriotic songs in his usual splendid way. Miss Sanderson accompanied him.

The following ladies acted as ushers: Misses G. Stevenson, Clementi, Robertson, Sanderson, Hatton, Cumberland and Greve.

MESSIAH TO BE SUNG ON DEC. 14

Peterboro' Choral Society Will Present Oratorio in St. Paul's Church

At a meeting of the Executive Committee held on Tuesday evening, after one of the best rehearsals ever held in the history of the society, plans were made to give the Messiah on the above date in St Paul's Presbyterian Church. A great sacred classic, such as the Messiah should be given in a building where the right atmosphere can be obtained, and where a large pipe organ is available to give the best results. A well-known Toronto organist has been invited to preside at the organ for this occasion, Mr. T. J. Palmer, A.R.C.O., from the Metropolitan Methodist Church, with Miss M. Flowers (the Society's own pianiste) at the piano, and Mr. John Allen conducting.

The coming performance promises to be the best choral concert given in Peterborough for a long time, and all singers who intend taking part must join not later than Tuesday, November 2nd, and must be familiar with the work, or good readers, as the committee have decided to close the membership for the Messiah concert on that date.

It was also decided to form a committee to arrange for a Christmas parcel to be sent to all members who have enlisted and left Peterborough since the commencement of the war.

Friends or relatives of our soldier members are asked to give the regimental numbers and present address to the Secretary.

Another Sing Sing Sensation

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Silk shirts, patent leather shoes and jewellery on convict members of Sing Sing's reception committee aroused, first envy, then suspicion. This suspicion deepened when wearers of gaudy raiment proved able to order and pay for rich food outside of the regular prison fare.

Investigation disclosed that certain favoured members of the Mutual Welfare League had stubled on a gold mine. Eight members of the league's reception committee were suspended. It was found they had been "misapplying" funds received from visitors for guidance over the institution.

The amount taken by the discredited prisoners is estimated at several hundred dollars. It may be several thousand, it is said. There was no system of bookkeeping.

He was born in Lindsay, being the son of the late Owen Daly of that place. Twenty-three years ago, after having conducted the Grand Central Hotel here for some years, the late Mr. Daly left Peterborough and went to Lindsay, where he ran the Benson House for a time. He afterwards went to Buffalo for a short period. He returned to Ontario and assumed the proprietorship of the Daly House at Orillia, remaining there eleven years. He then moved to North Bay, where he lived for three years, coming to Peterborough from there five years ago. Mr. Daly was known throughout the province as a genial, courteous hotelman, and his passing will be generally regretted. He was also one of the foremost horsemen in Ontario, and owned at different times horses that distinguished themselves on the track.

His wife, who with two sons and one daughter survive him, was Miss Margaret Croft of this city. The sons are Messrs. Herbert of Toronto and George of this city. The daughter is Mrs. Walter Gibbons of Elmira, N.Y.

The remains will be brought to Peterborough for burial. Announcement of the funeral will be given later.

OPPORTUNITY

Did You Ever Think How Closely OPPORTUNITY and EXPERIMENT are to one another ?

Many an eyesight sufferer believed he had the Opportunity of getting relief from his suffering, only to realize it was another Experiment.

Had he gotten the relief he desired, it would have meant an Opportunity taken advantage of. Therefore—what is the difference between Experiment and Opportunity ?

The sudden realization of Experiment is when you fail to get the relief you anticipated from Eye Suffering and Headaches, while the reward and fruits of Opportunity taken advantage of, are those

MET AFTER TWO YEARS

LONDON, Oct. 20.—An interesting reunion of a brother and sister occurred at the London offices of the Ontario Government recently. Sergt McSwain, a son of Judge McSwain, of Lindsay, Ont., home on a visit from the front, was conversing with Mr. Reid, the Agent-General, when his sister, a nurse from one of the Canadian hospitals, also called. The two had not met during the past two years, and each was totally unaware of the other's presence in England.

Funds For The Red Cross

His Worship Mayor Buller has received a number of enquiries concerning contributions to the British Red Cross Society. In each case the Mayor has referred the parties, making the enquiries, to the Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, who has been appointed treasurer of the British Red Cross Fund for Ontario. One enquiry was from Mrs. Jobe, of Bridgenorth, who stated that a number of people in the village had contributed a sum of money for the British Red Cross Society. There is no local organization to receive such funds. So persons having money to forward are advised to forward it direct to Hon. T. W. McGarry. The city's cheque for five thousand dollars has been forwarded to Toronto. 'Tis enough if we forgive them—

Two Arrests Follow Probe of Explosion

KANE, Pa., Oct. 20.—Louis Subisko, chief electrician, and A. Erombotz, assistant chief, at the plant of the Aetna Explosive company, at Eupotum, were arrested here by Sheriff J. S. Judd of Cameron county, and two members of the Pennsylvania state police.

The arrests were the result of an investigation which followed a recent explosion at the plant in which five men were killed and one was injured.

The explosion of 2-5,000 pounds of smokeless powder which was ready for shipment is now thought to have been caused by electricity. The two men arrested are of German extraction. They were taken to the Elk county jail at Ridgway in an automobile. It was feared that it would not be safe to keep them in the Cameron county jail.

Both refused to talk.

Mellen Is a Star Witness

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Charles S. Mellen, former President of the New Haven railway, whose testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington and the Federal Grand Jury in New York was largely responsible for the indictment of Wm. Rockefeller and the other millionaire directors of the railroad, was in the United States District Court, ready to be one of the first and the government's star witness in the conspiracy trial.

When the trial was resumed today E. L. Barr, Attorney-General, continued his speech, showing to the jury [illegible] maps, the alleged swallowing-up by the New Haven of the transportation facilities of New England, steam electric and water, from 1892 to 1914.

Thayer, upon return of his wallet, offered Canright $25, but the boy declined any reward.

"Wild West" In N. Y. State

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.— Six armed men held up and robbed two freight trains and attempted to rob an American express train on the West Shore Railroad at the entrance to a tunnel between Coners and Haverstraw, N. Y. yesterday. After loading an automobile with packages taken from the two freight trains the bandits escaped.

Arriving at the mouth of the tunnel in an automobile the robbers tampered with the wires controlling a signal and caused the light to show red, thus stopping the trains. When the express train stopped, the robbers neglected to station a man at the locomotive, and all of them went back apparently with the intention of breaking into one of the cars. The engineer then went ahead.

An electrician who was sent from Conyers to repair the damages to the wires discovered the bandits opening the packages. He was awed by a display of revolvers.

Goodwin Bars His Fifth Wife

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Indications that a rift has appeared in the fifth matrimonial lute of Nat C. Goodwin, who in May, 1913, married Marjorie Moreland, to-day became apparent with the publication of the terms of transfer involving the Nat C. Goodwin cafe at Ocean park.

This was the cafe to which the actor took his fifth bride after the ceremony, pledged her a toast as the only woman he had ever loved of all the five he had married, and which was the scene of many a gay party after the couple returned from their honeymoon. And he has sold it after inserting a strange clause in the transfer bill.

The clause which acquaintances say indicates that all is not well with Nat and Mrs. Nat No. 5 is to the effect that Mrs. Goodwin shall under no circumstances be allowed to enter the cafe again.

Lost in Absence.

The actor, miner, author, who with De Wolf Hopper shares the distinction of being the "most married man of the profession," has been called away from home at frequent intervals and says that while he was absent the affairs of the cafe were not conducted properly. He asserted to-day that he had lost $35,000 in his venture.

Pressed for an explanation of the strange clause relative to Mrs. Goodwin, he declined to give any information.

Cafe attaches and friends, however, asserts the belief that the cafe was cause of trouble between him and Mrs. Goodwin.

THE NURSE SPEAKS.

I've seen some brave men die, but none like him.
I don't know why I went to him so much:
He didn't call or groan.
Perhaps it was his youth. His hands were young,
And fluttered all night long like pale, white moths,
Like pale, white moths that have been burned in flame.
Poor lad, his head was torn.
I bathed his hair, and even in the night I saw its gold.
Never a letter did he have on him.
He never spoke a name that I could hear.
But just those hands would flutter all night long.
• • • Oh, I'm dog tired to-night, Jess, pour some tea.
And then, a nap
Before my Turco wakes • • •
Then last night when I went, his hands were still.
He raised his eyes and said right clear to me,
"I hear the sea."
Imagine hearing that in this red place.
And then he stared
And stared at my white cap. His eyes were bright,
"Dear lord," he said, "the hawthorn's budded white."
Yes, Jess, that was the end of him, poor lad,
And never a name or letter to be had.

Men Jump in Cage During a Wreck

To save the lives of locomotive engineers and firemen in railway accidents is the object of an invention on which patent papers have just been issued to William A. Utz of Fort Worth, Texas. It is a cylindrical tank or cargo, from 30 inches to 36 inches in diameter, to be carried on the cab of the locomotive, directly under the engineer's and fireman's seat and attached to the frame of the engine, extending 12 feet below the cab. It is to be set far enough to one side so that it will fall clear of the wheels and roll out of the way.

The engineer and fireman jump into the cage; it does the rest. It is supposed to carry them to safety, at the same time automatically closing the throttle, causing the sanding of the rails, reversing the engine, throwing the air brakes into the emergency position and extinguishing the fire on the grates so as to forestall its setting the wrecked train on fire.

Lands Them Safely

If Mr. Utz's device will do all he claims for it, the engineer and fireman will emerge from their cage as soon as this has fallen, practically save for a shaking up, ready to assist in the work of helping the passengers out of the wreck, and also to study as to how it happened.

The cage is of boiler plate steel reinforced with channel irons. It is estimated that it will stand a blow of 500 tons. It is heavily lined with asbestos and is upholstered with air cushions and heavy spiral springs. The device will float. It is equipped with shock absorbers to prevent any possibility of detachment from the engine at other than the proper time. It operates by gravity and is not dependent on any of the mechanism of the engine. Ventilation valves are operated from within, but to provide against various emergencies the cage carries an oxygen tank, a life preserver, a medical chest and a flash light.

It has been tried successfully on a motor truck at a speed of 20 miles an hour, and is now to be tested in actual service on a locomotive.

PROVED HIS CAPACITY TO BE A SOLDIER

Little Hanover Man Thrashed Big German and Sir Sam Enrolls Him

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Oct. 21.—Major-General Sir Sam Hughes is exceedingly popular with a soldier in training here. Pte. William Coffle, of Hanover. Coffle is but a shade over five feet in height, and when he went to the recruiting station was turned down for his lack of stature, being nearly two inches short. Some time afterward Coffle overheard a man of Teutonic origin make some disparaging remarks about the Canadian soldiers, and though his opponent overtopped him by nearly a foot, Coffle gave him a sound pummeling. All of which R. J. Ball, M.P., a resident of Hanover, learned in due time, and sent a personal letter with the facts of the case to General Hughes. The result was that in a few days an order came from the head of the Militia Department authorizing Coffle to be taken on the overseas forces. And now it is a Private Coffle, short but stocky, delighted, and diligent, doing the right, left, right with the latest Grey County quota.

MAMMA! DON'T YOU SEE YOUR CHILD IS SICK, CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Move poisons from liver and bowels at Once.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Co."

Austro-Italian Battle on Isonzo Front Still Raging Austrians Had to Retreat

Quantities of Japanese Arms and Ammunition Have Been Captured by the Austrians From the Russians in the Course of Fighting.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Oct. 21.—An Austro-Italian battle on the Isonzo front still raged to-day, according to a Vienna official received here.

Italian attacks at Tolmino bridgehead, Monte Sobatino, and Monte San Michele were said to have been heavily repulsed, but in Judicicaria region it was admitted Austrian advanced detachments had "retreated on their main positions."

CAPTURED BY AUSTRIANS.

VIENNA, via Berlin, Oct. 21.—Quantities of Japanese arms and ammunition have been captured by the Austrians from the Russians in the course of the fighting on Putilovka Ricer, in the Galician war zone, according to an official announcement issued here to-day.

GENERAL BOTHA RETURNED.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Oct. 21.—Although full returns are not yet in it appears that General Botha has been returned with good working majority, after bitterest fighting in history of any of the South African States.

General Smuts, Botha's chief political lieutenant, was elected in Pretoria, where the Nationalists waged a terrific campaign against him. The Nationalists, led by General Hertzog, have failed where it was thought they were sure to win.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Premier Asquith spent a good night, his physicians announced to-day, adding that he is on the road to a speedy recovery.

Great Britain Is Supporting 3,000,000 Foreign Soldiers

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—In a cable from London to the Tribune, Francis W. Hirst, editor of "The Economist," says:

The deficit for the current financial year is more than £1,200,000,000 ($6,000,000,000), and it is estimated that the deficit for the next financial year, starting next April, will be more than £1,400,000,000 ($7,000,000,000), supposing the war to continue on its present increasing scale.

To say that these sums will have to be borrowed mainly at home does not make the problem any easier to solve, but rather makes it more difficult. In his sensational speech last week, the Hon. E. S. Montague, representing the official treasury view, declared all people of the United Kingdom must surrender half their income to the state, either in loans or in taxes. Very rich men are already surrendering one-third of their income in taxes, but it is clear that the small wage earners cannot spare much without a loss of efficiency in production.

Scientific Recruiting.

Lord Kitchener realizes the importance of maintaining the industrial output; hence the new recruiting activities of the government are more scientific than the last, and proceeds on the theory that the single man can be spared from hop-keeping and the luxury trades. The best economists hold that we must rely mainly upon economy, and that if the army is enlarged the support of our allies financially and industrially must be correspondingly diminished.

The treasury has estimated that Great Britain is supporting 3,000,000 foreign soldiers as well as our own 3,000,000. These financial considerations constitute undoubtedly, from the cabinet's point of view, the chief obstacle to conscription.

Cost is a Deterrent.

The military argument against the new expedition is the cost of transport. Undoubtedly opinion is much divided as to the advisability of the step, but I see a growing perception of the fact that henceforth the government's main consideration in policy will be finance, because we are the bankers and the providers to the allied combination, and must therefore avoid commitments that could imperil our gold standard or the stability of our commercial position.

Another Becker Case May Develop

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Two men and a woman were given a preliminary hearing on charges of murder and accessory to murder in connection with the shooting of Harry Phillips in his bachelor apartments Friday.

The defendants are Roy Atkinson, elevator boy in the Bulkley Apartments, where Phillips lived, and Patrick Moriarity, chauffeur, who lived at the Bulkley, both charged with murder, and Elsie Burke, who lived with Morisrity, charged with being an accessory to the killing.

The state's attorney's office to-day refused to accept the police theory that Phillips was the victim of one of his many love affairs.

Sullivan announced that he will insist that the police explain why Phillips was never prosecuted on a charge of receiving stolen property. This charge was made following the murder in Cleveland of a lake boat captain, which resulted in the death on the gallows of one man and the sentence of another to prison, chiefly on Phillips' admission to having bought some of the murdered man's jewelry.

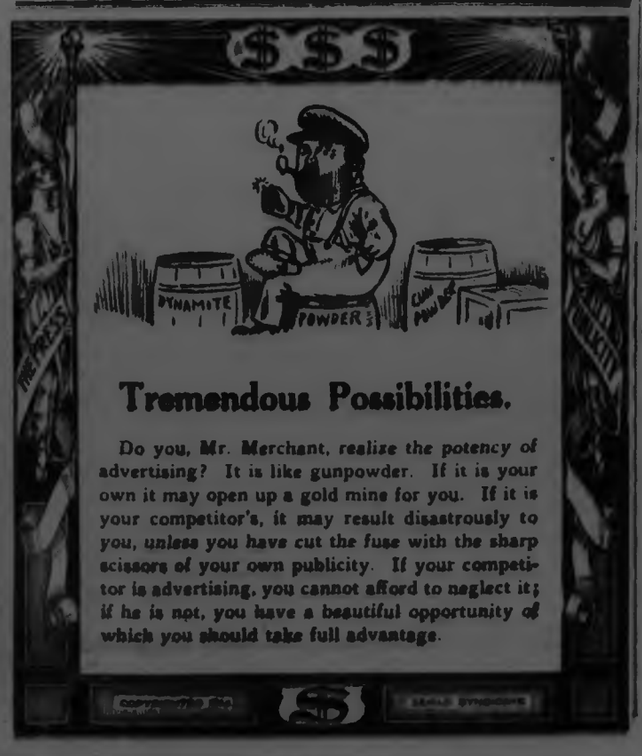
He demanded also an explanation from the police, of the charges contained in the "bribery affidavit," which Phillips gave the states attorney's office the day he was shot to death. In his sworn statement the murdered man said he had paid protection money to several policemen.

Lives to Be 100 Largely by Power of His Iron Will

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct 20.—William Wallace Spence, for many years a leading financier of this city, is celebrating to-day the one hundredth anniversary of his birth.

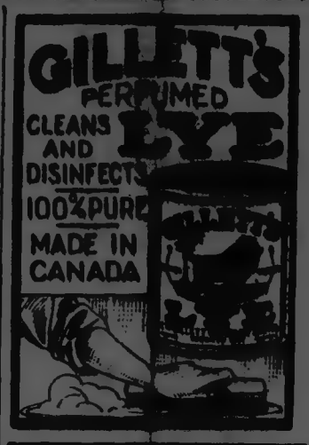
Mr. Spence was born in Edinburgh, Scotland. It took him 70 days to cross from Scotland to the United States in 1868. Last Saturday he returned to Baltimore from Hot Springs, Va., where he spent the summer months.

For years Mr Spence has expressed the determination to live to be 100 years old, and the fact that he has done so is attributed largely to his iron will.



Tremendous Possibilities.

Do you, Mr. Merchant, realize the potency of advertising? It is like gunpowder. If it is your own it may open up a gold mine for you. If it is your competitor's, it may result disastrously to you, unless you have cut the fuse with the sharp scissors of your own publicity. If your competitor is advertising, you cannot afford to neglect it; if he is not, you have a beautiful opportunity of which you should take full advantage.



AN ATTACK ON MONTENEGRO

20,000 Teuton Troops Concentrated For An Invasion

LONDON, Oct. 21.—It is reported from Frankfort that the central powers have decided to undertake still another campaign, this time against Montenegro.

According to this report, forwarded from Amsterdam by a correspondent of the Central News, 20,000 Austrian and German infantrymen, with artillery, have arrived from Galicia at Sarajevo, in Bosnia, about 40 miles north of the Montenegrins border. These troops will soon be despatched against the Montenegrins, with whom there has been only desultory fighting for months.

Steady Stream of Men is Needed

Lord Derby's Plan is That Every Fit Man Should Present Himself Now

LONDON, Oct. 21. — Lord Derby, whom the Government has entrusted with the task of solving the recruiting problem, in addressing a mass meeting at the Mansion House recently gave the gist of the plan with which he hopes to meet the situation.

"I suggest," he said, "that every man who recognises that the State has a right to call on his services for her protection should enlist at once. All those found physically fit and wishing to join the colours at once could do so, and the remainder continue at their usual vocations, subject to call when needed."

Unmarried and married men, Lord Derby explained, would be put into respective groups and the bachelors called first. Married men would be called later, according to age. By such a system, he pointed out, there would be no sudden, unmanageable number of recruits, but a steady supply as needed by Earle Kitchener.

Someone had asked the speaker, he said, why recruiting was an urgent necessity, to which he replied: "Look at the map."

Lord Derby said that a fortnight would be allowed men who were called to adjust their private affairs. He hoped that with a proper response it would be unnecessary to call the older married men; in any event, these older men would so far as practicable be placed in the medical and transport units.

"This is an honest attempt," declared Lord Derby, "to give every man a chance to do his duty—a last effort in behalf of voluntary service. I believe yet that the voluntary system can be made an unqualified success, but there is no time to lose."

BAR FIXTURES TURNED INTO SCHOOL SUPPLIES

PITTSBURG, Kan., Oct. 20.—Beer kegs and bar fixtures, seized in raids, which have been stored here for years now are finding their way to county offices and schools in the shape of furniture turned out by the students in the Cherokee county high school. There isn't a large supply of bar fixtures, but there is always a supply of beer kegs, as bootleggers constantly attempt to evade the prohibitory law.

The bars, usually of cherry or rosewood, are made into tables, while chairs are made of the staves of the beer kegs. The staves are first boiled in a vat until "green" and then are straightened out and worked up into backs, rungs, arm rests and other parts for chairs. A large beer keg will supply enough material for two chairs.

BRAVE LOVE.

(James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, was recently asked to name his favourite poem, and responded by giving the following bit of fugitive verse, written many years ago and the author of which is unknown):

He'd nothing but his violin,
I'd nothing but my sonz,
But we were wed when skies were blue
And summer days were long.
And when we rested by the hedge
The robins came and told
How they had dared to woo and win
When early spring was cold.
We sometimes supped on dewberries,
Or slept among the hay,
But oft the farmer's wives at eve
Came out to hear us play,
The rare old tunes—the dear old tunes—
We could not starve for long
While my man had his violin
And I my sweet love song.

The world has aye gone well with us,
Old man, since we were one—
Our homeless wandering down the lanes—
It long ago was done.
But those who wait for gold or gear,
For houses and for kine,
Till youth's sweet spring grows brown and sere
And love and beauty time,
Will never know the joy of hearts
That met without a fear
When you had but your violin
And I a song my dear.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough
Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of the most pleasant and effective remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 50 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

"Look pleasant," said the photographer. The sitter raised his eyes and gave a sickening smirk. "Your head just a little more to the left, please," suggested the voice from the black shroud. "No, don't move the eyes."

Like a man suffering from a stiff neck or an Eiffel Tower collar, the sitter tilted his head gingerly till it reached the desired angle, and he resembled a dying fish trying not to mind.

"That's very nice; very nice, indeed," said the photographer. "Stay just there while I make my exposure." He removed the cap as he spoke and counted out a minute and three-quarters. "Thank you," he observed. "You can get up. Oh, and you have been sitting on your hat."

"My hat," roared the sitter, angrily regarding the flattened felt. "Why the dickens didn't you tell me I was sitting on my hat?"

"My dear sir," protested the photographer, blandly, "that would have spoiled your expression."—Exchange.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Mistaken Identity

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Friends were arriving for the funeral and on entering the house turned into the room where the coffin rested on supports. It had been left open, and any one who wished to have a look at the deceased was permitted to do so. Mrs. MacElroy looked down upon the corpse with melancholy visage, then went to her seat and whispered to Mrs. Martin beside her:

"He looks very natural."

"Do you think so? I wouldn't know him."

Mrs. Gouigle leaned forward and remarked in a subdued voice that she had been asked to go to the hospital where he had died and identify him. She was in doubt at first, but as she looked the features seemed to throw off the death look and take on a lifelike appearance. She would stake her life on his being Parker.

Nathan Parker had left home several days before to go to work at his trade—he was a plasterer—and had not returned. He had complained of dizziness and was seen to stagger as he walked down the street. Night came and he did not return. His wife was worried about him and fearful that he had collapsed. She would have gone to inquire of his employer, but her husband had told her that he was going to do a job on his own account that day and unfortunately did not inform her where it was.

That night was one of great anxiety to Mrs. Parker. She went to the grocery and called up every hospital in town, asking if a man of the name of Parker was there. They all replied that they had no such person among their patients. The next day passed without bringing the missing man's return. Mrs. Parker sent out a police alarm, but nothing came of it.

Then one day the missing man's son concluded to go the rounds of the hospitals in search of his father. At one of them he found that a man had died who had been taken in unconscious and no name obtained. He had fallen on a sidewalk [illegible] Merman and [illegible] to the hospital in an ambulance. He had died the day before.

John Parker went in to see the corpse, dreading to find his father. He no sooner looked upon it than he covered his eyes with his hands. There lay the man he had feared to see. Then he went home and informed his mother of what he had found. After she had given way to the first outbursts of grief she asked John if he was sure that the body he had seen was that of his father. John said he was, but there would be no harm in sending some one else to identify it. Stephen Parker, the deceased's brother, went to the hospital and expressed a doubt that the corpse was that of Nathan. Then Mrs. Gouigle, an intimate friend of the family, went to the hospital and confirmed John's report.

At the hour appointed for the funeral the family and relatives came into the room where the burial rites were to take place and took seats beside the coffin. A minister appeared, who conducted the services and dwelt at length on the virtues of the deceased. When all was over the undertaker put the lid on the coffin and screwed it down. While he was doing so a man, very pale, staggered in at the door.

"What's all this?" he exclaimed.

"Good gracious!" cried Mrs. Parker.

"Who are you?" asked the minister, starting forward to head off the interloper.

"Who am I? I'm Nathan Parker. Who's that in the coffin?"

"Oh, Nathan," cried the wife, "is it really you?"

"Really me? Who else should I be?"

"Have you come back from the dead?"

"I haven't been with the dead."

"It looks like you, but I can't be sure."

Johnny went up to the intruder, looked him close in the face, then threw his arms around him, crying: "I made a mistake! I made a mistake!" Then Mrs. Parker took her husband away from Johnny and hugged him.

Meanwhile Parker, who had just got out of bed after several days, being either unconscious or delirious, succumbed to the shock of arriving just in time for his own funeral and would have fallen to the floor had his wife and son not supported him to a sofa. Johnny ran for a stimulant, and Mrs. Parker chafed his hands.

"Take that thing away!" he cried faintly.

Parker was put to bed and the corpse removed. As soon as he became sufficiently composed to give an account of his absence he said that while going to work the sidewalk and his head seemed to come together—he knew not how—and he was unconscious till he found himself in bed in a strange house. He called; a woman came into the room and told him that she had seen him fall, had gone out and had instructed several persons who gathered about him to carry him into her house. She had not the heart to send him to a hospital, but had sent for a doctor to attend him.

Parker asked how long he had been there, and when she told him it was a week he jumped out of bed, declaring that he must go to his family, who would be worried about him. On approaching his home and seeing a hearse at the door he feared his wife had died of fright on his account.

Freed From That Weak, Languid, Always Tired Feeling, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Thessalon, Ont.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a blessing to women, and I cannot speak highly enough of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANDUS CAMERON, Thessalon, Ont.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

He Knew No Fear.

Prince Metternich was driving in Vienna one day during the congress of 1815 when the horses bolted, the carriage was overturned and Metternich was thrown into the roadway. Finding he had no bones broken he picked himself up and walked quietly away. The same evening he met the King of Naples, who had seen the accident.

"How horribly frightened you must have been," said the King.

"Not at all," answered Metternich. "It is no merit of mine, but I am constitutionally inaccessible to fear."

"It is as I thought," replied the King. "You are a supernatural being."

Tommies Exchange Oral Shots In French Warfare

LONDON, Oct. 13.—An account of the repartee that passes between the British soldiers and the enemy in the nearest trenches is given in an article in the October Cornhill. The writer, Mr. Boyd Cable, first tells the story of "The Tower Bridge Rifles" exchanging oral shots with the enemy:—

A voice from the German parapet: "Hullo, Tower Bridge Rifles! Pleased to meet you again."

"Hullo, Boshy," retorted one of the Towers. "You're makin' a mistake this time. We ain't the Towers Bridges. We're the Kamchatka 'Ighlanders."

"An' you're a liar if you says you're pleased to meet us again," put in another. "If you've met us afore I lay you was too dash sorry for it to want to meet us again."

"You can't take any more trenches," said the voice. "You haven't shells enough."

"Anyhow," replid an English corporal, 'we ain't short of bombs. 'Ave a few to be goin' on with," and he and his party let fly.

Then a bit later.

"Hi, there! Where's that Soho barber's assistant that thinks 'e can talk Henglish?" demanded the Towers' spokesman cheerfully.

That annoyed the English speaking German, as, of course, incidentally it was meant to do.

"I'm here, Private Petticoat Lane," retorted the voice, "and if I couldn't speak better English than you I'd be shaming Soho."

"You're doing that, anyway, you bloomin' renegade dog stealer!" called back the private. "W'y didn't you pay your landlady in Lunnon for the lodging you owed when you ran away?"

"Schweinhund!" said the voice angrily, and a bullet slapped into the parapet in front of the taunting private.

After a while in good English, "We'll make you learn German when we've taken England.

"Oh, it's England you're takin' now!" said Private Robinson. "But all you'll ever take of England will be same as you took before—a tuppenny tip if you serves the soup up nice."

"I got 'im," said the Corporal three minutes later. "One bloke was looking with a periscope, and I saw a little cap an' one eye come over the parapet. 'E copped it right enough."

After a while:—"Now, then, where's the orchestra?" demanded some one, and the orchestra, one mouth organ strong, promptly struck up a little music hall ditty, followed by "My Little Grey Home." Then the Germans sang "Deutschland uber Alles" in full strength and harmony, and then "The Watch on the Rhine." Private Robinson and the rest of the Towers recognized the song, and capped it in great glee with "When we've wound up the watch on the Rhine," a parody which does not go out of its way to spare German feelings.

"'An 'ow d'you like that, ol' sossidge scoffers?" demanded Private Robinson loudly.

"You wait," bellowed a guttural voice. "Us vind you op quick!"

"'Ark!" said Private Robinson, in eager anticipation. "I do believe it's—s-sh! There," triumphantly, as given the word rang out—the one word at the end of the verse . . . . England.'"

"It's it. It's the 'ymn of 'ate"

Every man sat drinking the air in eagerly. Hadn't every regiment heard about the famous hymn and longed to hear the tune? And here it was being sung to them in full chorus by the Germans themselves.

The mouth organist was listening as if afraid to miss a single note.

"'Ave you got it, Snapper?" whispered Private Robinson. Snapper with his eyes fixed on vacancy, began to play the air over shakily and doubtfully.

"Let's kid 'em to sing it again," said Robinson. A loud "Encore" rang from the trench.

"Was you know vat we haf sing?" asked a German voice.

"It's great, Dutchie. Sing it again."

"You haf not understand," said the German angrily. Then a clear tenor in the German trench gave it in English. The Towers hugged themselves over their stupendous luck.

Before the air sound of it had passed the singer had plunged into the next verse, his voice soaring and sinking with an intensity of feeling. The whole effect was inspiring, wonderful, dramatic. One felt that it was emblematic, the heart and soul of the German people poured out in music and words. His Majesty's Regiment of Tower Bridge Rifles was most obviously not impressed with fear and trembling. Private 'Enery Irving, clapping his hands and stamping his feet in the trench bottom, voiced the impression exactly. "It beats Saturday night in the gallery o' the old Brit," he said, enthusiastically. "That bloke—blimy—'e ought to be doin' the star part at Drury Lane."

Each evening after that and later on when marching to the reserve billets the Tower made a particular point of singing the "Hymn of Hate."

'Ite of the 'eart an 'ite of the 'and, 'ite by water, an' 'ite by land.

'Oo do we 'ite to beat the band?

The answering roar of "England!" startled the horse of a brigade. "What on earth are those fellows singing?" he asked one of his officers. He was told and rocked with laughter

SMALLEST BABY IS SAVED BY INCUBATOR

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Master "peanut" Hirsh, said to be the smallest baby in existence, astounded physicians and nurses when he kicked his little pink feet and gurgled as he was taken from an incubator which has been his home since his birth, three months ago.

The infant was the only one of triplets who lived. He weighed one pound and six ounces at birth. Physicians told his mother that so small a baby couldn't live.

When a physician lifted him from the incubator he weighed three pounds and four ounces.

"He'll live," said the physician.

Pure, clean, flavory and strong, in sealed packets.

German Socialist Women Petition For Increase In Allowances

According to the socialist newspaper, Vorwaerts, a petition has been addressed to the German Reichstag by Frau Louise Zietz, in the name of the socialist women of the country, asking for an increase in the government war allowances.

"Numerous soldiers' families," the document reads, "in less fortunate circumstances have been reduced to a pitiable plight. The State allowances are miserably small, 12 marks (about $3) a month for women and 6 marks (about $1.50) for children. Thousands of communities do not supplement this meagre grant with a local allowance, and in a few cases where this is done the assistance rendered is of little account. Only in some very rare instances the communal authorities contribute an amount equal to, or greater than, the national government allowance. Bitter complaints are continually being raised by wives of soldiers, whose situation has become precarious, especially in communities where no local help is afforded."

Further on the petitioner explains that the increased prices of provisions make it impossible for the common people to procure sufficient nourishment for themselves. Ultimately administration measures have also lately aggravated the already critical situation. In Saxony and several parts of Prussia, wives of soldiers have seen their scant allowances taken away from them, if they had obtained employment of some kind, no matter whether the latter gained them a living or not. The petition concludes with this appeal:

"This general misery among the families of the soldiers has brought with it a want of necessary commodities, which has been decidedly injurious to their health, and has filled their minds with bitterness. Surely the soldiers at the front will feel depressed too, when they learn that their dear ones are suffering, while they are themselves sacrificing their lives for the Fatherland.

"Therefore, the socialist women pray the Reichstag to make arrangements for an increase in the war allowances to soldiers' families and to oblige the local communities to grant supplementary amounts, which may be later reimbursed by the nation government in cases where the local finances are not in a condition to sustain a burden of this kind. We socialist women hope confidently that the Reichstag will heed our appeal in the interest of these poor ones, who will otherwise be subjected to severe hardships while the war lasts."

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Wm. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

DEFEATS SAID TO HAVE RESULTED IN A QUARREL

PETROGRAD, Oct. 20.—German losses in the attempts to capture Dvinsk are officially estimated at 80,000 killed and wounded.

The War Office say it has learned through German prisoners that the defeats inflicted by the Russians on the Dvinsk front have provoked a serious quarrel between Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and the Kaiser

Comfort and Cure For Baby's Skin Troubles

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured When Baby's Body Was Covered With Distressing Eczema

If every mother could try Dr Chase's Ointment for the chafing, skin irritation and resulting eczema which tortures so many babies, what a blessing it would be for the little ones.

This letter will give you an idea of what a wonderful work this Ointment is doing in the way of bringing comfort to children who are so unfortunate as to contract eczema. It is easy for this trouble to develop from chafing or irritation caused by the clothing, and so difficult to get it cured; that Dr Chase's Ointment is appreciated when once its healing qualities are known.

Mr M L Dusclos, Postmaster, Dugnayville, N B, writes "I believe it my duty to recommend Dr Chase Ointment as a cure for eczema My baby was seized with eczema and her face and arms were covered with this terrible disease. After trying all sorts of ointments the disease continued to spread until it covered the entire body. When the itching became bad he would scratch himself and was sometimes found in his cradle covered with blood Hearing about Dr Chase's Ointment I bought two boxes and before this was all used the child was cured That was a year ago and there has been no trace of eczema since I recommend Dr Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from eczema as being the best treatment in the world for itching skin diseases."

Dr Chase's Ointment is for sale by all dealers at 60 cents a box. It is a good idea to keep it at hand along with the bath soap to be used for roughness of the skin, chafing or irritation. Prevention is so much better than cure. Powders clog the pores, but Dr Chase's Ointment cleanses the pores and thereby keeps the skin soft and smooth Sample box free if you mention this paper Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

SHOT SWOONING WOMAN

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 18.—The Daily Mail's Amsterdam correspondent sends the following details of the execution of Miss Edith Cavell, an English woman, who was charged with aiding Belgian men to escape to England by hiding them in her house and helping to smuggle them over the frontier after she had given them money and addresses in England.

The execution occurred in a walled garden in Brussels. The firing party of six men and an officer was drawn up to await Miss Cavell, whom other soldiers led from an adjoining house.

She was blindfolded with a black scarf and was deadly pallid, but stepped bravely forward until passing the firing party. Then her strength failed and she dropped in a swoon 30 yards from the wall where she was to have been shot.

The officer commanding the soldiers advanced, took a large revolver from his belt, aimed straight and then shot the woman through the head as she lay quietly on the ground.

The officer then replaced his revolver and ordered the soldiers to carry the body into the house, where it was taken in charge by Belgian women, who were acting on instructions from the Spanish Minister, who undertook to care for the body pending burial.

The execution was a shock to the Belgian people, who describe it as the bloodiest act of the war.

To Keep Your Skin Free From Hairs

(Beauty Topics)

If you are willing to spend a few minutes' time in your room using a delatone paste, you can easily banish any ugly, hairy growth without discomfort or injury. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is then spread over the hairy surface and, after about 2 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed. You will not be disappointed with this treatment, providing you get real delatone.

BLACKNESS OF LONDON STREETS DRIVES TAXICAB DRIVERS HOME

With the disappearance of the moon for another period and the natural expectation that those night birds, the "Zeps," will attempt other raids, the dangers of the streets at night have been greatly increased by the rigid enforcements of the lighting order. London may now fairly say it is a Black City. It is as if some magician from the underworld had decreed that London should be as silent and as dark as a tomb and that the elish sprites who carried out his commands had with an excess of zeal transformed the worthy citizen into shadow shapes—with Indian rubber heals.

And with the new regulations for the closing of public houses and restaurants at nine o'clock, and the voluntary closing of shops at three, and the screening of windows with heavy curtains, the darkness of the streets is unrelieved by the dim, blue capped lamps on the tops of the tall standards.

The city is black and almost silent. Omnibuses roll slowly along, their side lights mere specks of soft light, and their interiors scarcely visible from the pavements owing to the heavy blue shades over the incandescents.

"Hi! Are you the Putney bus?" an anxious suburbanite will call from the pavement, unable to make out either ticket or number on an approaching bus. Even Piccadilly Circus, that busiest of busy thoroughfares, in the night is almost as dark as a country lane. It is a matter of taking one's life in one's hands crossing a London street these nights, though taxicab and bus drivers are certainly learning to show a care they never were guilty of before. Many taxicab drivers carry their discretion so far that they take their machines to the garage after sundown and leave them there. There is reason for it, too.

Develop "Traffic Sense."

The foot passenger is, generally speaking, invisible to the driver of an approaching vehicle, and unless that foot passenger constantly keeps that fact in his mind he has only good fortune to thank for escaping an accident. Result:—The Londoner is developing a "traffic sense" like the blind in the navigating of the streets at night. Accidents are few. The fact that accidents increased when the street were first darkened a year ago was not so much due to the carelessness of either the London resident or the bus and taxicab, but to the great influx of provincials and Continental travellers unaccustomed to the crowded streets, or to the difference in the rules of the road prevailing on the Continent. And, after all, there is little to make a fuss about, when it is remembered that, dark as London may be, Paris is even darker.

Though London may seem to be going to bed earlier, it is little more than seeming. You have only to go to a theatre to see that London is not taking its pleasure any more sadly, or worrying about "Zep" raids. It is indisputable that only a few weeks ago playgoers received a shock to their nerves from which many may not yet have entirely recovered. It was not pleasant to hear the bang of aircraft shells over their heads while sitting in the theatres, not knowing where the "Zeps" were dropping their "pills." But business has steadily improved since that night of September 8. Only two West End theatres are closed—Drury Lane and the Little Theatre — and even they are preparing for an early reopening.

What managers have to say on the situation is illuminating.

Daylight Saving Bill.

"What a splendid opportunity," exclaimed Sir Herbert Tree, "for the reintroduction and passing of the Daylight Saving bill. Here we have an unequalled chance of effecting a much needed alteration in the nation's life. Let us be up by six in the morning, breakfast at seven, lunch at eleven or twelve, dine at five or six and be in our places in the theatre not later than seven. Don't laugh, I am perfectly serious. The chance would be better for the health of the people, and incidentally bring about an immense saving in the electric light. I mean it should be a permanent, not a temporary, expedient.

"Meanwhile, until the Utopian event arrives, I do not propose to make any change in the raising of the curtain at His Majesty's. It is for the public to ask, for me to give."

"No!" said Sir George Alexander. "I do not mean to make any change. Business at nights, and at matinees as well, is greater than it has been at the St. James' for a very long time. You cannot easily persuade the public to break from its old habits, and my belief is that it will quickly get used to the darkness of the streets and to the difficulties occasioned by fewer taxis and other little inconveniences occasioned by getting to and from the theatre."

The fact is, London would seem only now to be discovering how much it owes to American initiation and enterprise. Had not a Yerkes come over and shown them the way through the underworld had not London its catacombs of tubes north, south, east and west, away into the most outlying suburbs, amply making up for the lack of night buses and taxicabs, how London would have lived in this wartime is no guessing at.

German Surgeons Remove Shrapnel Bullet From a Soldier's Heart

According to the Munchener Medezinischen Wochenschrift, a medical science in this century has more than once demonstrated its wonderful progress in its treatment of the wounded in the European war. This periodical cites a case that is unusual, the details of which are given by Professor Freund and his assistant, Dr. Casperson, of Hamburg.

In February last Richard G——, a twenty-year old volunteer, while under a heavy shrapnel fire in Poland received a serious wound in the region of the liver. He lay unconscious on the battlefield for some hours and when found was moved to the nearest field hospital and from there to the hospital in Hamburg. He was treated and the wounds soon healed. Subsequently, however, an X-ray photograph disclosed a shrapnel ball that moved back and forth in his heart with each pulsation of that organ. While the patient suffered no pain or inconvenience it was thought best in order to avoid any future complications to operate at once. A cut was made in his chest and the heart removed. On the right side of the heart there was a small hard substance and on cutting through the heart muscles in this region a small shrapnel bullet was found and quickly removed. The surgeons sewed up the cut made in the heart and replaced the organ in the body. The heart was securely placed and the wound in the chest closed.

The patient recovered from his operation remarkably well and after four weeks was enabled to leave his bed. The bullet weighed twelve grams. It had entered through the left shoulder, passed down through the ribs and near the liver, then was taken up by the blood and carried to the heart, where it became clogged in the heart muscles and partook of the heart's action.

The case is regarded with considerable interest in German medical circles as demonstrating the fact that modern surgery has reached a remarkable stage of efficiency and no longer is baffled even by the most difficult cases.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Weekly Review of the Local Market Situation

There is a Good Demand for Supplies of All Kinds—Butter and Eggs Are High in Price—Potatoes Are Scarce

Few changes are to be noted from last week. There continues to be a good demand for the usual line of household commodities such as butter, eggs and poultry. Butter is selling at from thirty to thirty-two cents a pound. The closing of the cheese factories at the end of the present month may have the effect of lowering the price of the table product of strictly fresh stock are decreasing, and prices are advancing, being quoted at 45 cents a dozen. The local demand for cheese is fairly good. Higher prices at the country board sales during the week produced a much firmer tone in the cheese market. Chickens are selling at from 80 cents to $1.75. Geese are offered at $1.40 to $1.50 each.

Eggs, per dozen	35c to 35c
Butter, per pound	32 to 32
Geese, each	$1.40 to $1.50
Chickens, pair	80c to $1.75

Potatoes Scarce.

The demand for potatoes continues good, and in consequence an active trade is doing at prices ranging from $1.25 to $1.40 per bag.

According to latest advices from Southern Michigan thousands of bushels of potatoes are rotting throughout the country owing to the fact that the crop has been attacked by the blight in the worst form known in thirty years, and many growers may lose their entire output. The epidemic is general, but the potatoes in heavy soil are suffering most, and the crop is likely to be the smallest in years.

St. John.—J. Bennett, secretary of agriculture, in his report to the Board of Trade, here, says: "The potato crop is about fifty per cent short of last year. This is accounted for by the fact that the fertilizer used this year was not up to the standard in potash and the potatoes are not as large as usual. There was a considerable decrease in the acreage planted. The very showery weather in the month of August, followd by extreme heat, caused the plants to blight with the result that the prices will be good for clean stock and the sum total of receipts from the potato crop will be much in excess of last year and much more profitable even with the small harvest."

Fruit and Vegetables.

Potatoes, per bag	$1.25	$1.40
Onions, per bunch	.05	.10
Carrots, per bunch	.3	.5
Parsley, per bunch	.5	.5
Apples, per bag	1.00	1.10
Tomatoes, per basket	.25	.25
Cabbage	.5	.5
Celery, per bunch	.10	.10

Apples are now in good supply and are holding very firm. Canadian basket fruits are also about unchanged. California fruits are improving in quality and wholesalers report a correspondingly better demand. Vegetables are in good supply.

Grain and Hay.

There continues to be a good local and country demand for spring wheat flour, dealers evidently filling up their depleted stores in anticipation of higher prices which are indicated by the strength in the wheat markets of late. Foreign inquiry was fair during the week but bids were mostly out of line with millers' views here and only a limited amount of business was worked. A feature of the week was an advance in prices of winter wheat grades of 20c per bbl., due to the smaller offerings by Ontario millers and the strength of the wheat situation.

Hay, ton	$ 20.00	$30.00
New oats	.35	.35
Corn, bushel	.85	.90
Barley, bushel	.50	.60
Fall wheat, bushel	.90	.90

German Papers Pinched By War

The war begins to have disastrous consequences for German newspapers without a sound financial foundation. Raw material, in the shape of papare and ink, has risen, we are informed, to incredible heights, labor grows more scarce and must be higher paid, and the public grow less inclined to advertise. In all parts of Germany, the "Kase—Zeitungen"—those newspapers which are mainly employed for wrapping up cheese—are rapidly disappearing, with a valedictory promise to appear after the war.

In Bavaria 21 newspapers and in Wurtemberg 36, have announced that their selling price is to be doubled, as it is impossible to carry on business on the old conditions. Most of the newspapers of the south and west, among them The Frankfutter Zeitung and The Kolnische Zeitung, are endeavoring to make both ends meet by raising the price of their advertisements.

The Prussian minister for railways thinks that in the midst of so terrible a war it is his duty to discourage lighter and more frivolous literature at the railway bookstalls, which in Germany are controlled by the various railway ministers. Complaints have reached him that far too much prominence is given by the lessees of the bookstalls to books of a doubtful character, and that the traveling public only too readily buy the sensational and morbid and amusing when they might be more profitably employed in perusing good wholesome German books of an improving tendency.

Instructions have therefore been given to the bookstall men to discourage as much as in their power, the sale of vicious literature, and to encourage the sale of other books, lists of which have been supplied to them.

Subtle.

"It's curious," said the landlord, "how our ideas change. When I was a boy I wanted to be a pirate, and now I run a Summer hotel."

"That isn't change," said Little Binks. "That's evolution—mere natural development along consistent lines from germ to full fruition."

Three Hidden Women Hear Charlton Trial

COMO, Italy, Oct. 20. The trial of Porter Charlton on the charge of having murdered his wife was continued here to-day. A large part of the session was given over to expert testimony in regard to the mental condition of the prisoner. Depositions were read from the testimony taken in the United States in course of the extradition proceedings against Charlton.

The attitude of President Sciacca of the court has been one of kindness and sympathy for the prisoner. He has rendered all the help possible to Charlton in his linguistic difficulties and general belief to-day was that his charge to the jury would be a favorable one.

The trial's close was looked for at the end of the week. Most of the testimony has been taken behind closed doors. It has been listened to, however, besides the regular court officials and attendants, by three elegantly dressed women concealed behind a partition which cuts off a corner of the courtroom.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRLS' AND MISSES' TAMS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The Tam o' Shanter is one of the most popular hats of the present time. We find the idea of it used in very elaborate millinery, such as the Tam crowns with white band and perhaps an aigrette or quill across the front, and again we find the real article as in this illustration.

Young girls always like this style cap, for it stays on the head regardless of wind, and can be made of all colors and materials. Velvet is perhaps the favorite with a good English tweed or Scotch cheviot or Irish frieze for rainy days.

Three styles are here shown. No. 1 is the simplest of all, consisting of a round crown gathered to a band and held at the centre by a rosette or a silken tuft.

No. 2 is quite elaborate and has many shaped quarters seamed together and brought without gathers into the head band.

No. 3 has a seam where the flat crown joins the curved portion above the headband. This may be trimmed with a pompon or with a tassel as shown.

All three of these hats can be made of the materials already mentioned and also of plain and plaid silk with felt for the headbands.

The Tam pattern, No. 7325, is cut in one size only. To make will require: No. 1, ⅝ yard of 27 inch material. No. 2, 1¾ yards of 27 inch material. No. 3, ⅞ yard of 27 inch material, and for each ⅛ yard of 27 inch lining.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 3 for 25c.

PITIFUL FAILURE OF GERMAN ATTACKS

The Bulgarians Now Occupy Serbian Town

GERMAN ATTEMPT TO BREAK THE FRENCH LINES A PITIFUL FAILURE

Tremendous Attack on Allies' Position at Rheims Broke Down Before the French Artillery and Machine Guns --Enemy Forces Decimated Before They Reach the French Barbed Wire Entanglements.

RADUJEVATZ OCCUPIED BY BULGARIANS

PARIS, Oct. 21.—In a tremendous effort to break the French lines east of Rheims, the Germans have failed pitifully, the War Office announced to-day.

The attack followed a heavy bombardment, said the statement, and was regarded as having been made with the greatest "violence and density."

There were said to have been three attempts along a five-mile front.

The French artillery and machine guns, however, were reported to have decimated the German forces before they reached the French barbed wire entanglements.

The Germans scored no gains.

A German night attack in Bois, Givenchy, also was reported repulsed.

A Teutonic attempt against the French posts east of Monoel likewise failed.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The Bulgarians to-day occupied Radujevatz, Serbia, the inhabitants seeking refuge in Roumania.

Radujevatz is in northern Serbia, on the Danube, at a point near the Serbo-Bulgar-Roumanian frontier.

The capture indicates the progress of the Bulgar move toward a junction with the Teutonic forces in northern Serbia.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—At least 400,000 British and French troops will be sent to the Balkans to help the Serbians and to invade Turkey and Bulgaria, it was learned on reliable authority to-day.

The decision was said to have been reached at a conference this week between French War Minister Millerand and the British Cabinet's Military Committee.

In addition to this, the hope was expressed that the offer of Cyprus to Greece for her help, backed by an Allied ultimatum requiring an explicit statement of the Athens Government's attitude, would win Greeks to the Entente Powers' side, with about 400,000 more men.

That Roumania also would join the Allies was deemed an increasing possibility.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Having gained fresh advantages in Galicia, the Russians are driving the Austrians in disorder through the forests along the River Styr, according to a Petrograd message this afternoon.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The Salonika-Nish railway has been cut by the Bulgarians in two places, and the Serbian army is precariously situated, according to a News Agency despatch received here to-day from Nish, under Wednesday's date.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The Germans have suffered a severe reverse and lost several positions, 3,500 prisoners and considerable equipment to the Russians in Baronovichi region, midway between Vilna and Pinsk, according to a Petrograd despatch this afternoon.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The Athens correspondent of the Havas Agency sends the following despatch, under date of Wednesday:

"A great battle is going on on the heights of Vlasina and Kotchana. The Bulgar object seems to be a march on Monastir, so as to cut communications with Salonika. In the Negotin region, north-east of Serbia, two Bulgarian attacks have been repulsed.

"The newspapers state that after the occupation of Istip and Kotchana, by the Bulgarians, the Serbians fell back on Uskub. The population of Uskub has left. Communications between Nish and Uskub are cut.

"The Bulgarian army is advancing rapidly on Kumanovo and Uskub, according to information from a Bulgarian source."

BERLIN, Via Amsterdam, Oct. 21.—Following persistent Socialist representations, the Berlin authorities to-day announced the issuance of milk cards to nursing mothers who need an extra supply of milk. The suggestion was also made to-day that the 55 cent price fixed by the authorities on butter may have to be raised.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—With the publication of the report by Brand Whitlock, the American Minister to Belgium, of the efforts he made to save Miss Edith Cavell, the English nurse who was shot at Brussels as a spy, the full details of the affair will be given to the world, it was announced by the London newspapers to-day.

The report will appear in the English press on Friday.

According to the Mail, it "will strike a note of horror throughout the world."

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The whole British Empire was celebrating to-day, except in a few places where it had been postponed, what has been named "Our Day," in the hope of raising a record fund for the Red Cross.

INFANT CHILD WAS THE VICTIM OF AN ACCIDENT

Son of Mr. Alfred Switzer Was Struck Down by a Horse Driven Truck—Died Five Hours Later

FUNERAL TO-MORROW

Stanley Switzer, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Switzer, 147 Stewart street, died in St. Joseph's Hospital last evening as a result of being run over by a horse-driven truck belonging to Fontain's livery, 193 Hunter street. The accident occurred about six-twenty in the evening outside of the residence of the child's parents. The child had just completed his supper and a few minutes afterward found his way to the road, where he was struck down by the vehicle, which contained five men, employees of the Bell Telephone Company, who were returning home from work. Dr. Eastwood was summoned, and subsequently the unfortunate child was removed to the hospital. He passed away shortly after eleven o'clock or about five hours after the accident. Dr. McGrath attended the child at the hospital.

Was Accidental.

The deceased was two years of age. The funeral will take place to-morrow from the family residence, Stewart street, to Lakeview cemetery. Service will be held at the house at one-thirty o'clock.

Mr. Switzer, father of the child, when seen to-day attached no blame to the driver of the vehicle, the speed of which he placed at seven or eight miles an hour. "They were just jogging along on their way home, when in some manner or other the child was struck down," said Mr. Switzer. The child suffered severe bodily wounds, in addition to a number of severe bruises.

Royal Theatre's Big Programme

"The Banker's Daughter" in Five Reels a Splendid Picture

"The Banker's Daughter," a five-part feature film is the big offering at the Royal Theatre to-day (Thursday). It was secured at great expense, but is worth the money. Four reels of fine comedy complete the programme of nine reels, making a big show at the usual price. All the new pictures of Charlie Chaplin, who is now engaged by the Essanay Company, will be shown only at the Royal Theatre. On Friday and Saturday, don't miss Charlie Chaplin in "A Woman"—two reels.

Rev. Dr. Shearer At St. Paul's

Instructive Address on "The War and Social Service"

Rev. Dr. Shearer, of Toronto, leader of the committee of Social Service and Evangelism in the Presbyterian church, gave a most interesting address in St. Paul's lecture room last evening on "The War and Social Service." Rev. Dr. Shearer, who is one of the best known members of the Presbyterian ministry, drew a number of lessons in regard to social service as brought out in the great war. One lesson was that of chivalry, which the speaker illustrated by showing that Great Britain had gone to war in a spirit of chivalry to help the Belgians. That spirit had been strengthened throughout the world until it was realized that we must be more chivalrous to all who are oppressed.

The doctrine of collective necessity was another point that had been brought prominently before the people, by the taking over in Great Britain by the government of factories and railways. The interest of the individual was being made subservient to the interest of the state and in this way a greater measure of socialism was being attained.

NORTH MONAGHAN IS INVADED BY THE PETERBORO' SOLDIERS

Peterborough Battalion Had a Ten Mile Tramp This Morning---Doing Thoroughly Enjoyed by the Men--Recruits Coming in Well for the 33rd Battery---To-day's Military News.

The Peterborough Battalion had a ten-mile route march this morning into North Monaghan, leaving the Armouries at 9 o'clock and returning shortly after 12. Every one from Lt.-Col. Johnston down enjoyed the long tramp. The band accompanied the company and provided plenty of music en route. "In the Trench," "The Little House Upon the Hill," and other favourite marching songs were played. The men came back in good shape after their tramp, swinging along up George street with nothing but the dust on their boots to indicate that they had been out almost to Springville and back. Lt.-Col. Johnston accompanied the company, and on returning to the Armouries congratulated the men on the way they stood the test. There was no parade this afternoon.

Among the latest recruits is Col.-Sergt. Jack Miller, of No. 2 Company, of the 57th Regiment.

The Battalion Minstrels had a good rehearsal last night in the recreation room. There will be another practice to-morrow night, and every man who wishes to take part in the minstrel show is requested to be on hand for this rehearsal.

Some good bayonet contests are promised for the audience at tonight's concert in the Grand Opera House. Sergt. Oxley, Corp. jay, and Ptes. Baumer and P. Tobin, who are to be contestants had a lively practice yesterday.

The Peterborough Battalion is going to lose its little recruiting Sergeant, Master Percy Luther, whose parents are returning to their former home in Montreal.

Lieut. Hamilton is meeting with good success in securing recruits for the 38rd Battery. Up to last night thirteen artillerymen had been accepted. Nearly all the new recruits were born in Peterborough.

There are thirteen pairs of brothers in the Peterborough company. This must come pretty close to a record. There are the Bridgenaw brothers, the Brown brothers, the Tanner brothers, the Lemay brothers, the Martin brothers, the Laing brothers, the Simmons brothers, the Montgomery brothers, the Ecobichon brothers, the Wood brothers, the Herron brothers, the Tobin brothers, and the Dyer brothers. Seven pair of brothers were born in Canada and six in the United Kingdom. To show how some families are doing more than their share it might be mentioned that the Martin brothers have four other brothers in the Imperial Army, the Dyers have their father with them in the Peterborough Battalion and a brother in the Imperial Army, the Tobins have two other brothers in the 59th Battalion, the Woods have a brother at the front with the First Canadian Contingent, as have the Simmons brothers, while the Montgomery brothers have a brother in the Imperial Army. So that in six out of the thirteen cases the family contribution is more than two brothers in each instance. Can any company in the Canadian expeditionary force equal this record.

Sometimes there is comment on the number of Canadian-born soldiers in the Canadian contingents. Well, here is a little on the reverse side. In the following article some idea is given of how a brigade of artillery in the Imperial Army sometimes lines up. It will be noticed that among the thirty subalterns are men from the ends of the earth:

Mr. J. D. McEwen, of Toronto, who some time ago was connected with the 9th Battery, 3rd Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, and who was wounded at St. Julien, has now received a commission as lieutenant in the 3rd "A" Reserve Brigade, Royal Field Artillery.

In a letter to Mr. W. F. Kerr of Cobourg, he cites a fact that illustrates how the ends of the earth have rallied to the flag. He says:

"All the men here, barring one or two, are colonials or men who have been abroad. There are 30 subalterns in the mess. You will be interested to hear the pieces represented here. I have taken care to enquire personally from my pals where they come from—Chicago, Vancouver, Mexico (Brit. Consul now second lieutenant), Borneo, Calcutta, Buluwayo, Toronto (2) (a man named Davis and self), Buenos Ayres, Penang (3) (Straits Settlements), Cairo, New Zealand, Australia (4), Hong Kong (2), South Africa (2). The remainder have been through Woolwich in the ordinary way.

"Of the two South African men, one fought against us in the Boer War. He has since that time been wounded, convalescent (in fighting under Botha in South-West Africa), and has paid his fare back to this country and received his commission in the R. F. A.

"Isn't it just great! Hhis fine old Empire of ours is jolly well worth fighting for!"

The soccer team of the Peterborough Battalion is playing a friendly game at Nicholls Oval this afternoon with an eleven representing the Normal School. The soldier laddies have some fine football material amongst them, and should give the students a battle royal. The men in khaki were represented by the following team:

Goal—Sergt. Calladine

Backs—Lance-Corp. Coleman, Pte. Norman.

Half backs—Pte. McMillan, Sergt. King, Pte. Kitchen.

Forwards—Pte. A. Edwards, Pte. Clappinson, Sergt. Hartshorn, Pte. T. Hardman, Pte. Willshaw

Scarcity of Wool Is Explained By Elliot's Store

Very few people realize the present abnormal consumption of wool. There are, perhaps, at a very conservative estimate, about twelve millions of allied soldiers who have joined the colours. When all these men get into active service, it is said that they will likely wear out a suit of clothes in about a month, not to mention wool underwear, etc.

The enormous quantity of wool needed to supply this demand surpasses imagination.

One of our representative woollen manufacturers told us recently, that there would be a shortage of about three and a half million pounds of wool to supply the demands of the vast armies now under orders.

Of a necessity much of the goods that will in future be supplied to our men at the front will have to be largely of cotton.

Wool prices are steadily advancing, very soon it will not be a question of price at all. It will be, simply, can you get the material at any price?

The question will be also: How will the ordinary public fare in the wool supply?

Wool yarn that recently sold for 50c per lb. now sells for 90c and $1 per lb. and is scarce at that, and will soon have to go higher.

Those who have not covered themselves for future needs will almost be out of the running soon.

Take serge dress goods that sold last season for 50c per yard, you have now to pay $1 and $1 50 per yard for the same material, and with very little more in sight even at that price.

This will cause dresses that last season cost about $7.50 to cost this season at least about $15.00.

Wherever wool material enters into the make-up of garments, the same ratio will be seen everywhere.

In view of these facts which anybody can verify for themselves, we have wonderfully good news for the ladies of Peterborough and around it.

Elliot's store has purchased from one of Canada's most stylish makers of ladies' garments this season's newest samples of pretty serge dresses.

Among them are the new combinations of serge and silk dresses which are going to be so popular this winter.

There are no two dresses alike, all beautiful in their variance.

Their prices in the regular way would run from $8.50, $10.00, $12.50, $15.00. But they cleaned them out at a price and if you look for their advertisement you will see that you will be able to procure them at much less than the material would cost per yard.

See their advertisement, you will find it to-day on page Five.

Townships Awaken To Needs of the Hour

Three Meetings Held in Different Parts of the County Last Evening in Connection With the British Red Cross and Other Patriotic Objects.

ENTHUSIASM SHOWN

Last evening was another busy one for the Speakers' Patriotic League, speakers being supplied for no less than three patriotic meetings, giving the league a record of six meetings in two nights.

A large and representative audience of the residents of the Township of Asphodel gathered at the town hall last evening at the call of Reeve Maxwell Brown to consider methods for assisting the British Red Cross Fund.

Reeve Brown, who presided, called upon the audience at the opening of the meting to sing the National Anthem, which was sung with great enthusiasm. Stirring patriotic addresses were delivered by Rev Mr Peever, John V. Sexsmith, M.P., F. D. Kerr, and D. O'Connell, the audience throughout giving the greatest attention to the remarks of the speakers. Mr. O'Connell's address was remarkable for its great eloquence and effectiveness.

A resolution was unanimously carried requesting the Council of the Township for the purpose of assisting tax of one mill on the dollar on the Township fr the purpose of assisting the Fund. Col. Birdsall and Mr. Knox, in speaking to the motion, stated that they would subscribe $100.00 and $25.00, respectively, in addition to the Township grant, and it is expected that a number of the other residents of the Township will do likewise, and that Asphodel Township will keep well to the front in this work.

Reeve Brown, in a short address, intimated that the Township of Asphodel would be behind no other community in upholding the country's cause at the present time. A most successful evening was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

The movement for Red Cross work and patriotic work is progressing in all directions throughout the Province, and it is understood that steps are being taken by the Township of Smith to render substantial aid to the funds.

At Indian River.

An enthusiastic meeting in the interests of recruiting and of the Red Cross was held last evening at Indian River, at which addresses were given by Rev. Canon Davidson, Mr G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., and Col. Miller of this city. The chair was taken by Mr Borland, one of the school trustees, who in his opening remarks, referred to the fact that the Township of Otonabee was raising $15,000 for patriotic purposes. Mr Armstrong of Indian River also made a short speech along the same lines.

Rev. Canon Davidson, on being called upon, made a splendid address on behalf of the Canadian Red Cross fund and the British Red Cross. The needs of the Canadian Red Cross were continuous, and were deserving of hearty support at all times. The British organization was making an appeal at the present time. The war, Rev. Canon Davidson said, was

Records Made On Stock Market

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK CITY, Oct 21. Records were made by 'war baby' stocks during the recent bull market were smashed on the stock exchange today.

The "street" was full of bull reports. It was said that bets were being made that the U. S. Steel would declare a dividend at next Tuesday's meeting. Another report was that a $600 share had been offered and $1.0 0 asked for a block of one thousand shares of Bethlehem Steel.

U. S. Steel sold at 87 1-2, the highest since 1910, and Bethlehem Steel jumped 70 points to 500, a record price.

THURSDAYF, OCT. 21, 1915

AN EMPIRE WORTH FIGHTING FOR.

Not only is this a fight for Canada, and the interests involved in the fact of British liberty, but is a fight for an empire, made possible only by the genius of British liberty. Infinitely varied as it is in ethnical racial and national elements, it is all one by virtue of the universal solvent individual liberty, and the individual rights that are true expressions of the real democratic spirit. An example of its wonderful oneness in diversity is furnished by a Toronto man, an officer in the 9th Battery, 3rd Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, who writes a letter to a friend in Cobourg. He tells us that the thirty subalterns in his mess, represent drafts from every part of the Empire, and from "foreign" countries whence they have rallied to the flag. By personal inquiry he has learned that they come from Chicago, Vancouver, Mexico Borneo, Calcutta, Bullywayo, Toronto, Buenos Ayres, Penang (Straits Settlements), Cairo, New Zealand, Australia, Hong Kong, South Africa. Of the two South African men, one fought against the British in the Boer war, and fought for the British under Botha, was wounded, convalescent, and paid his fare to this country and received his commission in the R.F.A. This is wonderful even at first thought, but when one comes to think deeply of its significance it shows what a wonderful thing is the British Empire, not only in itself, but in the welding and drawing influence, that binds men together and draws them to the service of the Empire for its protection, and the maintenance of its marvellous unity. We are fighting for such an empire, and it is well worth fighting for.

HAVE DONE OUR PART?

We have for the past fourteen months been talking rather glibly and a little unthinkingly, of the sacrifices we were prepared to make in men and money in the interests of the preservation of the privileges guaranteed by British citizenship, and the integrity of British institutions. But we have not yet felt the pinch, nor begun to realise what our promises mean. We have, so far as contribution is concerned, not yet felt the pinch. Our "loose change" has only been affected. In the Mother Country the money sacrifice is being felt. The deficit of the British budget this year is 6,000 million dollars, and it is expected to be greater next year. In addition to her immense expenditure on her own account Great Britain is practically supplying —financing—4 million of her allied soldiers in the field. An official treasury authority declares that the people of the United Kingdom must surrender half their income to the state, either in loans or taxes. Very rich men are already surrendering one-third of their income in taxes, We don't know anything like that in Canada. Yet we are as vitally interested as the Mother Country in staving off the menace of German domination. Not only are we interested as to the preservation of what we value, but we are interested as human beings; should be interested in the sufferings of our fellowmen, whether they be Belgians, or Armenians, or Serbs. We are in comparative ease and comfort, with the business, trade and commerce almost at normal. A leading business man said yesterday that commercially the city was in a better position than it was a year ago. While with an equal interest in making sacrifices with the central part of the Empire, and the Empire generally, we are enjoying comparative immunity from the consequences of war, we have still to do much more in the way of contribution for Red Cross and Patriotic Fund purposes, before we can claim to have made sacrifices for these causes. While Toronto is striving to reach the $250,000 mark, for the Red Cross, and will probably collect $400,000, by voluntary offering, Peterborough has satisfied her duty with a vote of $5,000 to be raised by taxation. This will be sacrifice for many, but not for the great mass of citizens. We, by some official mismanagement, are not permitted to contribute to the Red Cross campaign by individual offerings. We thus escape the risk of making sacrifice such as our brethren in the old land are making. But our time may come; and with all our early boasts of what we were prepared to do, we are bound to do more to meet the demands upon our generosity.

CAN "DELIVER THE GOODS."

Germany as one of her lying excuses, declares that "British greed and cupidity" justify her in declaring war. Germany wanted "a place in the sun," from which the British bogie of universal trade excluded her. She declared that Britain monopolised the seas, and she built a mighty navy to break the monopily. She had the same chance of access to the sea as Britain. But Britain outsailed her. British supremacy of the sea was won by centuries of maritime enterprise, and by free trade and fair trade. Britain was on good trading terms with all the world, and the flag that protected her commerce was the flag under which the blessings of British liberty were extended to all the world. Germany sought "a place in the sun," at the expense of others. She sought not victories of peaceful trade, but behind all her preparation for expansion of trade and territory were the devilish doctrine of universal domination, the brutal cult of force. Germany's motive was selfishness; Britain's was the motive of legitimate self-interest, magnificently modified by universal altruism. While she benefitted herself with her trade, she benefitted the world which was her market. She sought no conquest, no advantage at the expense of any neighbour or other nation. She was right, and right prevailed. Germany was wrong, and wrong has failed. Britannia rules the waves, while Germany's commerce is swept from the seas by her own policy; and her mighty fleet is as useless as a fleet of cockle shells. Britain has dealt fairly with the world, and the world now places its resources of food and other supplies at the disposal of the Mother Country. Britain's mighty fleet carries them all safely to her shores. The wide outfield of the Empire, bound together with no more tangible bond than affection and interest, pours its gifts into the lap of the Motherland. Britain is now fighting militantly for the same thing she has been fighting for peaceably—the good of the world—and thus doubly armed there is no doubt of ultimate triumph. The weapons of peace will work a victory that will be denied selfishness and brutal force.

MORE BARS TO GO.

On the first of the year local option by-laws will be voted on in Belleville, Stratford, Sarnia, Niagara Falls, Port Arthur and Fort William and possibly in Peterborough, while similar votes will be taken in thirty or forty rural municipalities.

In all these places, or in nearly all of them, if the vote is taken, it is a foregone conclusion that a majority of the people will vote for the abolition of the bars and in condemnation of the trade in liquor. The necessity for a three-fifths majority may affect the result in some places, but on the whole there will again be demonstrated the curious fact that liquor makes many acquaintances but few friends.

Except for the irreconcilables, who never could and never would see benefit in the "dry" policy, there is no doubt that most of the people in the towns where the bars have been closed are aware of the benefits that the change has brought about. Men who were useless before have become useful men, and little homes that were once shabby begin to take on evidences of the comfort to be found within.

There is not much to be said for the trade in liquor where its effects are traced out in particular cases—as can be done so easily in small towns, and as can be done in large cities by those who care to look about them.—Toronto Star.

THE GAINS "CONSOLIDATED"

Any doubt as to the progress being made in France must surely be allayed by the summary which the War Office gives of the operations last week, supplemented by the despatch of Sir John French describing another severe reverse inflicted on the enemy. The War Office makes it quite clear that the great gains made at the beginning of the drive have now been "consolidated."

Few people understand the meaning of the word "consolidated" as applied to a military position. The capture of trenches and territory cannot be considered as "consolidated" as applied to a military position until these new positions have been made accessible from the rear by trenches along which ammunition and reserves can be brought to the fighting line in safety. There is an enormous amount of digging and fortifying to be done, and while this work is on the enemy's artillery and infantry attacks have to be beaten off.

During the past week all this work of consolidation has been completed. The Germans have been launching terrific assaults on the positions where the consolidation has been going on, only to be beaten off again and again with heavy losses. The French and British are now in a position to say: "What we have we'll hold," and another huge bite will doubtless now be in order.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

GERMAN ONSLAUGHT IS SPENT.

For months, as one Russian line of defence after another gave way, the world was asking where the Czar's armies would make their stand. The expectation was of a sudden turning by the pursued armies and a great battle in which the Germans, if not defeated, would yet be brought to a halt. But the end has come in less abrupt and dramatic fashion. Gradually the onset of the Germans has been spending itself. Gradually the Russian armies gathered breath and strength, until to-day a balance of forces has been struck, and we seem on the eve of the long awaited development. German entrenchment and deadlock.—New York Evening Post.

MR. CHOATE'S REASONS.

No man can impeach the Americanism of Joseph H. Choate. When he publicly casts neutrality to the winds and proclaims his sympathy with one group of belligerents and his hostility to another group, he is not moved by the memories of social courtesies or friendly personal relations in the countries whose cause he espouses. His inspiration is the underlying American sense of fair play, which inspires in him the conviction that Germany's methods in forcing war, and her methods in waging war are an outraze upon humanity, an insult to the democracy of the future as they are a peril to the democracy of today.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE LAND OF BOBBY BURNS.

The antipathy which Dr. Johnson bore to Scotland was not singular or unprecedented. Lord Stanley came plainly dressed to request a private audience of King James I. A gayly dressed Scotchman refused him admittance into the king's closet. The king, hearing an altercation between the two, came out and inquired the cause.

"My liege," said Lord Stanley, "this gay countryman of yours has refused me admittance to your presence."

"Cousin," said the king, "how shall I punish him? Shall I sent him to the tower?"

"Oh, no, my liege," replied Lord Stanley, "inflict a severer punishment; send him back to Scotland."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

EARLY SUGAR REFINERS.

The first sugar known was a concentrated cane juice called 'gud" in India, "gud" in Sanskirt, which seems to have been known as a food from pre-historic times. An old Chinese encyclopedia, the Pen-tsao-kang-mu, states that Emperor T'ai-stung, who reigned from 627 to 649 A.D., sent some of his people to Behar in India to learn the art of sugar-making.

The manufacture of sugar even in the early centuries of the Christian era was not restricted to the mere evaporation of the juice of the cane to dryness. The Arabs and the Egyptians soon learned to purify raw sugar by re-crystallization and incidentally how to make a great variety of sweetmeats out of the product.

THE FACTS REFUTE THE GERMAN CHARGE OF "BRITISH CUPIDITY"

Our friends of the enemy are never tired of talking about "the cupidity of the English," by which they mean the people of the whole British Empire. According to the professors of Kultur the war was caused chiefly by British cupidity, and the main object of the gentle German now is to cure us of this degrading vice. There is a disposition also in Berlin to suggest that the Americans are open to the same reproach, and that their policy throughout the war has been inspired by a desire to make as much money as possible out of war contracts. This comes with a particularly bad grace from the nation which has robbed Belgium of everything portable, and brought her people to starvation; has left the whole responsibility of providing for them to American and British charity.

One of the most magnificent things in the history of the United States is the splendid generosity shown by its people in voluntary contributions for the benefit of the unfortunate Belgians. What has Germany done to lessen the sufferings of the victims of Kultur and Frightfulness? The German Government doesn't even take reasonable care of its own poor, or of its troops at the front. That is the reason so many brave soldiers are so ready to surrender and become the guests of British cupidity, rather than remain the victims of German generosity. If any people on earth should be tired of Kultur they are the unfortunate Germans who cannot write "von" before their names.

The total expenditure of Great Britain from August 1st, 1914, to December 31st, 1915, is estimated at $6,845,000,000, and the United Kingdom is now paying at the rate of $9,125,000,000 a year for the privilege of teaching Germany manners. In addition to this, Britain has had to give enormous financial assistance to all her Allies. Over and above all these unavoidable expenditures, the British people, in spite of their cupidity, have been pouring out money like water in voluntary contributions for the relief of the distress caused by the war at home and abroad. To pay for war at home and abroad. To pay for all the war expenditures out of revenue would be manifestly impossible, huge loans have been issued, and the taxation has gone up by leaps and bounds. The income taxe alone has had to be increased from $187,000,000 to $800,000,000 a year, and there has been scarcely a murmur from the cupid Britons who have to bear this great burden of taxation. In the first year, besides paying their taxes like men, they gave $125,000,000 in cash to the various war funds. The typical Briton, born grumbler, as he is said to be (and he has been known to kick at an extra penny in the pound on the income tax submitted to an increase of 40 per cent without a whine, and then proceeded to give away a large proportion of what the Chancellor of the Exchequer had left him. From all parts of the Empire gifts of money, foodstuffs, clothing, and arms have been pouring in; and that from British nations which have heavy war burdens of their own to bear and are bearing them with the utmost cheerfulness. Mr. W. E. Dowding, in an article in Pearson's on "The Outpouring of the Empire," says: "Canada's gift of flour heads a record that encircles the globe. There have been given to the Old Country to help her in the struggle, cheese from Quebec (four million pounds of it), potatoes from New Brunswick, salmon from British Columbia, coal from Nova Scotia, oats and hay from Prince Edward Island, horses from Saskatchewan, apples from Ontario, sheepskins, butter, rabbits, beef, condensed milk, arrowroot, port wine, treacle, preserved fruits, sugar, jam, biscuits, and many other things from Australia; eggs from New Zealand, tea from Ceylon, bullocks from East Africa, fruit from the Straits Settlements, apples from Tasmania, sugar from Barbados and Mauritius, rice grown by East Indian colonists in British Guiana, and sent to the Indian troops in France, cocoa from the Windward Islands, limes and oranges and cocoa again from Trinidad, arrowroot from St. Vincent, guava jelly from Montserrat, citrons and jams from the West Indies generally." All the characteristic products of the Empire given without stint. And what a list it is! Enough to make a poor hungry Hun's mouth water. —Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

"PUNCH'S" APPEAL FOR THE RED CROSS

Let us once more read Punch's appeal for the Red Cross:

"Ye that have gentle hearts and fain
To succour men in need,
There is no voice could ask in vain,
With such a cause to plead—
The cause of those that in your care,
Who know the debt to honour due,
Confide the wounds they proudly wear,
The wounds they took for you.

"Out of the shock of shattering spears,
Of screaming shell and shard,
Snatched from the smoke that blinds and sears,
They come with bodies scarred,
And count the hours that idly toll,
Restless until their hurts be healed,
And they may fare, made strong and whole,
To face another field.

"And yonder, where the battle's waves
Broke yesterday o'erhead,
Where now the swift and shallow graves
Cover our Empire dead;
Think how your sisters play their part,
Who serve as in a holy shrine,
Tender of hand and brave of heart,
Under the Red Cross sign.

"Ah! by that symbol, worshipped still,
Of life-blood sacrificed,
That lonely Cross on Calvary's hill
Red with the wounds of Christ;
By that free gift to none denied,
Let Pity pierce you like a sword,
And Love go out to open wide
The gate of life restored."

Honour Bright.

A NEW DEPARTURE

(From the C.P.R. Press Bureau, Montreal.)

The tendency now, is on the great railway systems, to make the time tables as simple and as clear as possible, so that the public will see at a glance just what is desired in the way of information. The C.P.R., for instance, in addition to the changes noted in this column, have adopted a new departure on the front page of the time table—a departure which is the outcome of one of the many suggestions received by the company in response to the invitation issued some time ago from headquarters to the employees for fruitful suggestions as to improvements and betterments along the system. This is in the form of a notice in large black type, pointing out when the general change in the time table takes place, so that the public will know to a minute just how the schedule stands.

For instance, the notice reads "General change in time table takes effect 12.01 24.01; midnight on October 31st."

This notice, meeting the eye on the present folders now in use, warns the public not to put faith in the latter beyond the date mentioned. This notice will appear on the front page of the folder which precedes that which is to take its place, and will prevent any confusion by announcing how long the present folder is valid and when it ceases to be operative Thus, those who do much travelling will know precisely when the time table changes, and when such changes will be general. The idea should prove helpful.

Every Quarter Is Spent in Buying "Smokes"

No other nation of people is able to or does give so freely to a good cause, and no other Fund ever inaugurated by this paper has been so worthy of the whole hearted support of its readers—young and old. Every dime, every quarter, every dollar you send will help the Fund in its task of sending a little much wanted comfort to the long firing line in France in return for all these heroes are doing, and be the means of letting these soldiers know that we are glad to lighten their lot as much as we can.

The necessity for more and more "smokes" remains as reinforcements continue to go out. So please help to keep things going, as in this way only can the Fund continue to contribute steadily week by week such a welcome and badly needed comfort to the thousands of Canadian soldiers now in the trenches. They will appreciate to the full every gift of smokes you send.

A postcard addressed to you is enclosed in every twenty five cent parcel you subscribe for, and this enables the happy soldier who receives your gift to write and thank you personally when he can do so.

Some soldier who gets your gift will write and thank you if he can. Send in your subscription to the Examiner.

IN LILLE BY NIGHT

At 6 o'clock in the afternoon the inhabitants of Lille disappear from the streets. At 9 o'clock it is night and Lille is a dead city.

A lighted window with voices behind it is rare. My footsteps echo. A policeman soldier in field gray, with the black, white, and red arm band (Prussian colors), creeps past the shut, dark houses. A few belated officers pass. We could wander for hours through the street and boulevard; not a soul moves. Lille sleeps.

Out of the night comes the noise of guns. It can be heard quite plainly, every single shot. The trenches are so near. There is a hit, falling banging like a drum. A series of shots and then a rolling thunder. Now the clangor of metal. The machine guns hammer. It is a night fight; a few of the trenches have come to life. The fire becomes more lively; the clanking goes on for minutes without a pause.

But Lille is dead. No window is opened, no head shows itself in the night. They keep their ears closed. They wait. Do they hope? In the morning at 5 o'clock: the aviator, a small speck in the distance, will appear above the town and the defending guns will crack.

The most terrible thing for human beings is suspense.

Exactly at 8 a.m. comes the car to take me to the trenches, and we start. The firing has stopped; the city has become if possible quieter. It is not asleep; it lies in a sort of death agony. The car slips between the dark houses. No snores are heard, no child is crying—dumb, all dumb.

The great city is dead. We roll over deserted squares and empty boulevards. A red lamp swings to and fro at the end of the street. A massive fortress door rises out of the darkness. The sentinels flash their light over the car and occupants. "Proceed."

Now it has become suddenly dark. One lamp illuminates the road like a searchlight. We race our dun colored trees, through grottoes of pale green foliage. The car takes the holes and bumps like a sailing boat on the billows. It dances. Going round corners it razes the trees and the twigs sweep over our faces. It is cold and the fragrant air meets us. The trees rustle in the wind. Frightened animals, white as chalk, flit over the road and fly from the sparks. Moths are caught in the lantern and flung aside.

Dead sleeping villages, no sound, no living creature. The motor thunders. Red brick houses glimmer in the light and sink back into darkness again. The frightened eyes of a snow white cat gleams out. We are stopped by a sentinel. Shouts break the silence. Onward! Above us the stars in the summer sky shine clear. We are silent. Each is sunk in his own thoughts.

Here, over this road they went, columns, companies, regiments, last autumn, on their way to the battle of La Bassee, volunteers, students. They went storming, singing, their eyes shining. Onwards! Many were never to return. At the roadside stand queerly shaped bushes—like the figures of women, their faces hid in their hands, they seem in the night. Here, there, everywhere, on the roadside stones stand, like ghosts. Small white crosses are to be seen on the street. We fly past them and they turn on us again.

Autumn is coming and the columns are still marching by. They come only at night time. They do not sing now. When they sang the shells came.

Shots come from a trench. They sound nearer and nearer. Now and then a shot falls with a hollow sound, somewhere. Even in the night there can be no peace here. A few forage carts creak along the road. The horses are moving in there sleep and shy at the light. The craters made by shells at the side of the road are more frequent. Many are quite fresh.

The car hobbles over earth and stone; shells have burst in the middle of the road, but a few hours ago it could not have been comfortable here. The trunks of the trees are split. Suddenly the driver grasps the brake and halts. A tree has fallen right across the road. It fell like a soldier; the shells had cut away from the roots and thrown it on its face. The twigs are still green and rustle in the breeze.

A village; the sentinel beckons. We must put out our lights. We feel our way through the darkness. The guns sound. A heavy gun, close by, is fired off, and the shells go into the darkness. There is no doubt the night is nearly at an end. Outside, near the trenches, balls of light rise. Pale and scintillating, like a vengeful moon, they float over the earth.

The guns sound again and it is still once more. The balls of light sink, paling slowly to the darkened earth. Another light is seen among the poplars, bright and threatening. A heavy gun fires and the shells pass over our heads.

The stars fade and the landscape is bare. Mist rises from the fields. The car flies. We must hasten, for the road lies within sight of the enemy. Before daybreak we must reach the trenches.

The car turns into a narrow street. One house is burning, set on fire by a shell during the night. Let it burn. The flames lick out the windows; they accomplish their work quietly and slowly. The blackened beam quivers. Within the house the fire climbs over the purple red carpet woven with the empire garlands. The splinters of the broken mirror glitter. People once lived here.

Edinburgh In War Time

Men of Military Age Not Numerous Excepting Those in Uniform—Capital Not Unduly Excited, But Restful Under Feeling of Assurance

LONDON, Oct 15.—Giving his impressions of Scotland in war time and comparing London with the Scottish capital, Edinburg which he found a "home of cheerfulness," "A Southron," starting off on the night Northern mail, writes:—

"What a strange, dark place is the midnight Euston of to-day! As usual, a long train is assembled for the journey through the night to the heatherland, but somehow all is different. One looks in vain for the roar and bustle of the platform, the mountains of luggage, guncases and fishing rods—jealously shepherded by their owners—and other impedimenta of the busy Southron rushing north for a few days' sport before the golden days are gone.

"The high lights are absent from the picture now; all is drab and subdued. Such lights as there are seem mostly to be turned down. There are but one first class carriage and one sleeper on the train. Those who are travelling are clearly doing so because they must, and that youngish looking man in knickerbockers, with a rod case under his arm, looks somewhat guilty about it and conscious that he ought to be carrying something else.

"The men passengers in large part are in khaki, and it is surprising how many shades and tints pass under that general term. They are not of the army we used to know before the war. For one thing, they mostly do not carry their own luggage, nor do they confine themselves to the regulation service canvas kit bag. Strange figures there are among them, flitting about the gloomy platform, luring pillows for a journey, purchasing food of various kinds, superintending the transfer of their suitcases from barrow to rack. They were men in 'shorts' that were really too short for a chilly night run to the north. Their bare, sunbaked knees and their broad brimmed helmets struck a strange note to those who have not seen our fighting men clothed for service in hot climates.

Edinburg Streets Gay.

"'Dardanelles or Persian Gulf,' said an officer fellow traveller as we stood watching the crowd of arrivals from our corridor window. Wherever they came from or were bound for they were a clean looking, hardy lot of men.

"Before the train drew out an unkempt khaki figure approached with unsteady gait and saulted my companion. The officer returned the compliment coolly, but we saw the man had lost a hand. Also he insisted on showing us a healed gash across his chest. He had fought well and suffered in his country's cause and was waiting for his discharge. Strictly, an officer should not allow a man to speak to him under the influence of liquor, but it is not always possible to abide by the letter of the rules. The incident may seem commonplace, but in fact, it is a sign. There is careful, tactful work to be done to help the maimed and wounded men to reform their lives and face with hope and courage the future on the sad new lines.

"In Edinburg one begins to realize that Britain has a navy. Prince's street has never looked gayer than now. The tints of autumn have begun to show and the place is full of khaki—and navy blue. The generous pavements of the noble thoroughfare are crowded with cheerful, well dressed people; and after London one cannot help being struck with the numbers of sailormen to be seen about. Recruiting posters are little used compared with London. Perhaps there has been no need of them up north.

"Nor are there any signs of street picketing on the part of those ushers of men to whom London has grown accustomed in the last few months. There are not many men in the streets of whom it can be said that they are obviously of service age and capacity. As in other parts of the kingdom the women are doing much of the work ordinarily done by men. But, so that the chance sluggard may not forget, a military band is sometimes to be met gathering in recruits. When the Scots Guards Band goes down Prince's street, playing alternately brass and pipes, all Edinburg in the neighborhood turns and marches beside it, keeping step.

"There is in the athmosphere of this beautiful northern capital something which dches the depression to be met with now and then in London when things are not going our way. A city which disdains to build in brick can refuse to be swayed by the ebb and flow of passing events. In these trying days Scotland is eminently sure of herself, and her qualities of simplicity and literalness are no mean asserts at any time. It is not easy to disturb the equanimity of a people who still indicate an apothecary's shop by a guilded pestle and mortar hanging out as a sign; a merchant in woodens by a gilded wool pack, a bootmaker by a boot, a fishmonger by a fish.

"In the modern race for success and variety it would seem as if the Scots had departed less than the Southerners from first principles. That, perhaps, is a reason why their capital, always admitted to be one of the most beautiful in Europe, presents a restful appearance to the more mercurial Southerner and renews his faith in himself.

"In these autumn days this athmospheric trick is especially to be played on the unsuspecting stranger. There is more than a nip in the air when the sun goes down and the delicate evening mists bring the Mound, with castle and barrack perched on its perilous cliffs, nearer than is really the case. Still, such is the charm of Edinburg that its admirers are content to overlook all so long as it remains itself."

BLACK MEN IMMUNE FROM DREAD DISEASE

Dr. W. K. Kenrich of the British army, and long stationed in India, asserts that the dark-skinned tribes there enjoy a practical immunity from malaria, while those of lighter hue suffer much from the disease. He does not go so far as to say that color is really a determining factor in man's susceptibility to malaria, but his observations lead him to place the question squarely before the scientific world as one which merits careful investigation.

That malaria rarely attacks the native African has long been a subject of comment. The accepted explanation is that his continued residence in malarial districts has developed in his system a resistance to the disease which delivers him.

Dr. Kenrich notices, however, that in sections of India where dark and light tribes have lived together for unknown generations, malaria, invades the light people, but fails to attack the dark.

He finds that a dark-skinned native removing into a malaria district is very likely to escape, while one who is light-skinned is affected shortly after such a migration. His studies lead to the conviction, too, that light-skinned children invariably have larger spleens than children with dark skins, and are, therefore, much more susceptible to the disease. He thoroughly believes that, as far as India is concerned, there is some sort of a relation between the color on one's skin and his susceptibility to malaria.

A mechanical blotter has been invented that dries the ink on a large surface instantly.

Bringing Out the Real Taste in Food

There is a flavor, a delicacy, a tastiness about foods made with Crisco that seldom is found in those made with lard.

CRISCO
For Frying-For Shortening-For Cake Making

More than one housewife has admitted that she did not dream of the fine flavor of certain cakes until she tried making them with Crisco.

And others have discovered a new palatability in fried things which they never thought could be brought about.

This is because Crisco itself has no taste to smother the real taste of the food which is cooked with it.

ADELE BLOOD SENDS BILLINGS HIS FURNITURE

NEW YORK, Oct 20.—Eighteen-year-old Andrew H. Billings will be unpleasantly surprised in Lafayette college when he reads that Adele Blood, the actress who recently divorced the Rev. Edward Davis, has returned to Billings a costly collection of furniture, says the New York World. A long time ago he let slip from his mind the fact that he owned furniture and had "almost sold" it to Miss Blood to decorate her home on Gateway Drive, Great Neck, L.I.

Andrew really would not know the furniture is his again if Supreme Court Justice Pendleton had not appointed Charles M. Wood of No. 66 West Ninety-sixth street guardian ad litem yesterday to enable "the dear boy" (that's what Miss Blood call him) to sue her for the recovery of the furniture. Following the giving out of that news and discovery that Andrew is the son of William P. Billings, a wealthy retired stock broker living in Boston Hall hotel, it became known that Mr. Blood was returning the furniture. She said she had started to do so without knowing of the suit.

But how did Miss Blood come into possession of the youth's furniture? Theatrical Broadway asked Mr. Billings, Sr., has gone to Chicago and his lawyers, Price & Price, refused to explain the riddle. But here is the inside story, gathered from a most reliable source by a reporter for The World.

Children Owned Furnishings.

William P. Billings retired a year ago from the firm of C. L. Hudson & Co., 36 Wall street. He was living in a costly apartment on Riverside Drive and owned a place in Scranton, Pa., where his wife, from whom he had separated, was making her home. The furnishings of the Riverside Drive apartment belong to Mr. Billings' son Andrew and daughter, Frances, jointly, the father having presented everything to them several years before.

After a few months of idleness Mr. Billings, to whom life was irksome without work, put all the furniture in storage, gave up his apartment and started across the country in his auto. He went as far as the Panama-Pacific exposition, then motored back across the continent to New York. His daughter came to visit him, and his son dropped around during the college holidays. The daughter became acquainted with Miss Blood, who mentioned one day when calling on the Billingses that she was looking for furniture.

Wished to Avoid Attachment.

"Fine!" exclaimed Mr. Billings. "I've got a lot of old stuff in storage and you can have that, if the children are willing."

The children had no objection, so Miss Blood picked out most of young Andrew's furniture and carted it away. Apparently, however, she decided not to buy it after all, as the next chapter in the story deals with efforts by "someone" to get the furniture back.

Then there came a report that an uncle of Mrs. Billings in Pennsylvania, who holds a small judgment against Mr. Billings, wanted to attach that furniture. What more natural, then, that a guardian should be appointed for Andrew so that the Pennsylvania uncle would now positively that the furniture does not belong to Mr. Billings senior?

There are other stories about the furniture, but this is the "official" one, sanctioned for publication by several interested persons.

Engagement? Goodness, No.

Miss Blood, asked over the 'phone yesterday how she happened to have the young student's furniture, laughed and answered:

"Why, that's rather a long tale. But I am having it loaded into a couple of vans and sent back to the dear boy."

This isn't a new way of breaking an engagement, it is?"

"Oh, goodness! No, indeed. He is a mere boy. I was thinking of buying the furniture, but I'm glad I didn't. Maybe the young man wants to start housekeeping. I really don't know. Anyway, I'd rather send the furniture back than be bothered with a lawsuit."

While playing at the Teck theatre here in the summer, Miss Blood called the police one evening to her apartment in Delaware avenue, and said she had been attacked by a strange man who overpowered her and snatched her diamonds and $900 in coin she had in a bag tied around her neck. The mystery of the robbery was never cleared up.

NEW DEATH HOUSE AT SING SING COMPLETED.

OSSINING, Oct. 20.—The new death house at Sing Sing prison has been completed and is now occupied by the condemned murderer. It was announced today. The new building contains 24 large and spacious cells in two tiers and the structure is fireproof. Hans Schmidt, convicted of killing Anna Aumuller, was the first of 19 men to be removed to the new building. All the occupants were allowed to carry their trunks from the Tried It On The Dog!

In experiments with caffeine, the poisonous drug in tea and coffee, the U.S. Government brought out some striking facts regarding the cumulative effects of this drug.

Ten full-grown dogs were given along with their food—an average daily dose of caffeine equal to the quantity of that drug in from four to six cups of tea or coffee.

The Dogs took the Drug Fifteen Days and—Died!

A single cup of coffee a day, or even six cups, isn't enough to kill a man—he's bigger and has more resistance. But, little by little, the cumulative effect of the poison works havoc, and sooner or later there'll come a day of reckoning.

Some of the signs that foretell the reckoning are headache, biliousness, neurasthenia, sleeplessness, heart flutter, and so on. Everybody can recognize the signs.

There's a way out! Quit both tea and coffee and use—

Instant Postum

—the Pure Food Drink.

Made of prime wheat roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses, this delicious beverage contains no caffeine or any other harmful substance—just the goodness of the grain.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal, the original form, must be boiled, 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum, soluble form, made in the cup instantly, 30c and 50c tins. Both kinds are equally delightful, and cost per cup about the same.

Postum has won its way into thousands of homes where tea and coffee once held sway.

MONTHLY REPORT ON THE FIELD CROPS OF CANADA

Estimates Show Yields Higher Even Than Reported a Month Ago —Quality of Grain Crops at Harvest—Condition of Root Crops

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—The Census and Statistics Office issued its monthly report on the field crops of Canada, based upon returns made by crop-reporting correspondents at the end of September. The report gives the second or provisional annual estimate of the yield of the principal grain crops, a statement of the quality of these crops at the time of harvesting and the condition of root crops on September 30.

Yield of Principal Grain Crops.

For wheat, oats, rye and flax the provisional estimate now issued shows yields higher even than those reported a month ago, but in the case of barley and oats the present estimate is less than that of August 31. The total wheat crop of Canada is now placed at 336,289,000 bushels from 12,-286,400 acres, representing an average yield per acre of 25.88 bushels. This total is 174,847,000 bushels more than last year's inferior yield of 161,380,000 bushels, the crop this year being therefore more than double, or 108 p.c. more than that of last year. It is 104,541,000 bushels, or 45 p.c. in excess of the previous highest yield of 231,717,000 bushels in 1914 and 140,282,-000 bushels or 72 p.c. in excess of the annual average yield of 196,095,000 bushels for the five years 1910 to 1914. Of oats the revised total yield is 481,-695,500 bushels from 11,365,000 acres, an average per acre of 42.33 bushels. Barley comes out at 50,468,000 bushels from 1,509,350 acres, an average per acre of 33.70 bushels. Rye is now 2,-487,500 bushels from 112,300 acres, or 22.07 bushels per acre and flaxseed 12,604,700 bushels from 1,009,600 acres, or 12.48 bushels per acre. In the three Northwest provinces the estimated yield of wheat is 304,300,000 bushels and of oats 395,620,00 bushels. The remaining grain crops of Canada, whose yields are now reported on for the first time this year, are as follows: Peas 3,240,400 bushels from 196,210 acres, an average of 16.52 bushels per acre; beans 594,000 bushels, 43,310 acres, 13.71 bushels per acre; buckwheat 8,101,000 bushels, 343,800 acres, 23.56 bushels per acre; mixed grains 17,128,500 bushels, 498,800 acres, 36.60 bushels per acre; corn for husking, 14,594,000 bushels, 253,300 acres, 57.62 bushels per acre. In arriving at these estimates certain deductions have been made for quantities reported as destroyed by the weather in the province of Ontario, chiefly sprouting in stook through the excessive rains during August. These deductions do not represent a total loss, as the sprouted grain will be used for feeding. They amount on the average to 11 p.c. of the total crops for wheat, 9 p.c. for oats, 5.5 p.c. for peas, and 6 p.c. for beans.

Quality of Grain Crops at Harvest.

Correspondents were asked to report on the quality of the grain crops at the time of harvest, as measured against a standard of 100 representing grain well headed, well filled, well saved and unaffected to any appreciable extent by frost, rust, smut, etc. The average results for the whole of Canada are as follows: Wheat, oats, barley, rye, and mixed grains from 90 to 93; peas, beans, buckwheat, flax and corn for husking from 79 to 84. The quality of spring wheat is exceptionally high in the Northwestern provinces, being 93 in Manitoba, 96 in Saskatchewan and 97 in Alberta. Last year the corresponding figures for Canada were below 80 in nearly all cases and even in the good season of 1913 they were not so high as they are this year.

Condition of Root Crops.

The condition of root crops at September 30, measured against a standard of 100 as representing a full crop, is for all Canada 73 for potatoes, 72 for turnips, 87 for mangolds, carrots and sugar beets, 83 for fodder corn and 88 for alfalfa. These figures are below those of September 30 last year for potatoes, but are about equal in the case of other crops. Owing to the heavy rains, the potato crop this year will apparently turn out to be poor, especially as compared with last year's splendid showing. In New Brunswick and Nova Scotia the condition of potatoes is only 68 and 69 and in Ontario it is as low as 54.

SIR SAM HUGHES, K.C.B.

The following verses were penned by Mr. A. M. Paton, of Lindsay, a former well-known cricketer of the district, and well-known here. The verses were read on the occasion of Sir Sam's last visit to Lindsay.

Just a few short verses about a man we know,
A man whose earnest efforts have set the world aglow.
Cherished and distinguished for military skill,
A K.C.B., our own M.P.,
A man of iron will.

Well do we remember when he was yet a boy,
The part he played as Athlete, to win, 'twas do or die.
The bumps and counter-bumps exchanged, while thus engaged in play.
Stand him in hand on sea or land,
To help us gain the day.

Regardless of his critics, when war had been declared
He buckled on his armour, immediately prepared
His well conceived impressions, caused world-wide amaze,
That's why to-day we're here to say
A little word of praise.

Battalions, Ships and Troopers, he mobilized in haste.
A burden fraught with worry, few men would dare to face
Tactical knowledge gained by him in wars now passed and gone,
He'll get his due, if history's true,
God grant 'twill not be long.

A German menace threatened to tread upon our flag,
To pull it down and treat it as some old worthless rag;
The news was flashed to Canada, our Sam threw off his coat,
Contingents three, since crossed the sea,
And got the Kaiser's Goat.

Good men from far off Yukon, where gleams the Polar star;
Brave men from Haliburton, who heard the call of war;
Kinmount and Nova Scotia their quota freely give,
That you and I in peace may die,
And British freedom live.

The knights of old, with courage bold champions in their day,
All honour to their prowess, but we have this to say.
When good King George, with sword in hand, bid our own Sam arise.
He made a Knight who's in the fight
To black the Kaiser's eyes.

'Twas push not pull gave him his rank, no bogus knight is he;
No stain on his escutcheon, and stain there'll never be.
His willingness to sacrifice—His military skill—
His mental power—His moral power—
His principle—His will.

The Sovereign of our Empire, who keeps in touch with all,
'Twas he who decorated Sam and issued him the call
It comes for service rendered, brings honour to our town,
And goes to show, what we all know,
You can't keep good men down.

A cheerful, modest helpmeet, who never gets the blues
Our hearts with admiration o'erflow for them to-day,
In accents loud, we aske the crowd
To cheer them on their way.

"Sacrifices We Have Made Are Too Great To Hesitate At Anything Short of Victory"

At Headquarters of the Russian General staff, Oct. 20.—When Russian capitalizes her climate, her geography and the temperament of her people she commands a military asset which promises to prove a barrier against which the human mechanism of the Germans, with all its protection of machinery and efficiency, will wreck itself.

In travelling here from Moscow by motor car I purposely covered many back roads in order to question the peasants so that I might from some conclusions as to whether the war was really backed by the people themselves. On the high roads I passed, without exaggeration, about 100,000 refugees and have questioned great numbers of these poor people as to their opinion of the war and its outcome.

Refugees Uncomplaining

In one town there were camped 80,000 refugees. Practically all of them had abandoned their homes before the German invasion. The majority accepted their lot absolutely without complaint, recognizing that it was necessary, incident to a military move designed to impede the enemy and delay his advance.

The entire highways to-day is stepped in the traditions of 1812. Everyone talks of events to-day as they were wont to do of the campaign of Napoleon. They feel that they are playing their part to defeat the enemy, just as their fathers did before them. They are hoping for an early and cold Winter in order that the enemy may perish from cold and starvation, this regardless of the sufferings Winter may bring for themselves.

I found not one who expressed a wish for the war to terminate before the Germans are defeated utterly. I heard this same comment again and again:

"We must win now, regardless of the cost or the time it takes. The sacrifices we have made are too great to hesitate at anything short of victory."

The Russian Government is straining every nerve to relieve the condition of these refugees, preparing shelters all along the highways. It is estimated that the refugees number approximately 2,000,000. The task of the Government has been greatly lightened by the docility and patience of the peasants, whose behavior has been absolutely perfect in their hour of misery and hardship.

Already the nip of coming winter is in the air and the spectre of 1812 leers behind every German soldier to-day. When a group of German prisoners was met on the road marching eastward, the first question asked as they gazed apprehensively at the landscape, gray and desolate beneath the leaden sky, were of the Russian Winter when it would fall and how long it would endure.

The swarms of refugees pouring eastward are veritable missionaries preaching hatred of the enemy and the necessity for fighting to a finish. With each successive wave which sweeps eastward the determination of the peasantry increases.

The German soldiers realize that the hatred against them is growing daily in every peasant hut from the front to Moscow, and in the face of the willingness of the simple people to continue the war to the point of extermination, their dreams of ultimate success is still cherished as theirs must have been widely scattered.

Further War Tax Is Now Rumoured

Federal Levy of Two Mills and Another Mill From Province Said to Be Proposed Tax

PETERBORO'S SHARE

It is rumoured that a Federal war tax of two mills on the dollar and a further Provincial war tax of one mill will be imposed as a further levy to provide funds for Governmental purposes. If this proves true, the Dominion of Canada will pay $12,000,000, the province of Ontario $2,000,000, and Peterborough's share of it will be approximately $48,000.

Peterborough's share under the rumoured new tax for 1916, to be collected on this year's assessment would be three mills; one mill for the province and two for the Dominion, and adding last year's mill, it would make it four mills, or a total of $48,000. The approximate total value of assessable property in Ontario upon which a war tax could be collected, according to the Provincial legislation of last year and which would probably be followed by the Dominion, is $2,000,000,000.

Petrograd Says Foe is Exhausted

Trying to Continue War in Russia by Causing Strikes

LONDON, October 21.—A despatch to the Telegraph from Petrograd quotes Alexei Khvostoff, the Minister of the Interior, as saying in reply to a question concerning the proclamation of martial law in Moscow:

"The Germans have got into a condition of utter exhaustion. They have really lost the war, and will strive to put a drag on our activity and our production of munitions by stirring up disorganization in our means of transport."

Fourteen Point Rise in C.G.E.

Keen Demand for Common Stock of the Big Peterborough Electric Concern

Local people are interested in the bull movement that has carried the stock of the Canadian General Electric Company from 112 to over 120. The stock started in the market yesterday, advancing seven points from 114 to 121, on urgent buying, much of which, brokers said, came from Montreal, which place seems to be fathering most of the bull movements in Canadian stocks these days. Local brokers say this is largely due to the banking attitude in Montreal being much less hostile to speculation than it is here.

General Electric touched 121 1-4 in Toronto and went a shade higher in Montreal, these being its highest prices in three years. The company is working on war orders and has others in prospect, which seems to be the basis of this, as of most market movements these days.

Peterborough Contributed $1.58 Per Capita For The Patriotic Fund

A statement prepared by the officials of the Canadian Patriotic Fund Association, showing what some of the cities and towns have contributed to the national fund during the first year of the war, gives the decidedly interesting information that some of the Ontario towns where the citizens of German descent predominate have contributed relatively the largest amount per capita. Berlin, for instance has contributed during the past twelve months $50,000, or $2.50 per capital. Baden, with a population of 1,000, has contributed $2,577, or $2.57 per capita; Hespeler has given $9,350 or $3.95 per capita; Wallaceburg has contributed $18,375, or $5.34 per capita; Walkerville, $38,791, or $11.18 per capita; Almonte, $14,488, or $4.80 per capita. As compared with these Toronto has given $639,304, or $1.28 per capita; Hamilton, $120,620, or $1.15 per capita; Ottawa, $273,561, or $2.58 per capita; Keewatin, $6,657, or $5.50 per capita; Brantford, $25,607, or $1.02 per capita; Peterborough, $31,-650, or $1.58 per capita; Kingston, $35,058, or $1.75 per capita; St. Catharines, $21,434, or $1.10 per capita, and Oshawa, $19,464, or $2.63 per capita.

Renewed Effort Needed.

The association, which is now starting on a campaign to raise $7,-500,000 for the second year of the war, is finding that an extra effort will have to be made to stimulate contributions, or otherwise the demand upon the fund will deplete it. For September the total amount received was $385,361, while the total expenditure aggregated $420,307. The total amount to the credit of the fund in the bank at the end of September was $2,078,131.

SCHOOL DISPENSES WITH GERMAN

BRANDON, Oct. 20.—That the teaching of the German language in the Brandon Collegiate Institute will be discontinued was the decision arrived at by the educational authorities at the last meeting of the Board. Those pupils who are finishing a course in German will be permitted to do so, but the teaching of this branch of the curriculum will be discontinued.

KILLED NUMBER 52

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Fifty two persons are reported to have been killed in an explosion in a factory in the Rue de Tolbiac, while one hundred or more were injured.

Many of the victims were women workers in the factory, which was wrecked as were the buildings in the vicinity.

President Poincare and Minister of the Interior Malvy, who were immediately informed of the disaster, visited the scene and gave directions to the rescuing forces.

Arrest is Still In Prospect

Detective Boyd Visits the Scene of the Dummer Tragedy

Detective Boyd of the Provincial Police Department, spent a few days in Havelock and district. In company with County Constable Elias Williams, Detective Boyd journeyed to Dummer Township, where he made an effort to secure additional evidence concerning the death of May Lindsay, which, according to the finding of the Coroner's Jury, resulted from foul play. Upon his return he intimated that an arrest might be expected in a few days, which is a formula that has been handed out with uncanny regularity, since the circumstances of the case became known.

Bandits Kill Agent At Railroad Station

PITTSBURG, Oct. 20. Bandits killed John Frank, Pennsylvania railroad agent at Bridgeville, when he caught them robbing the cash drawer. Frank stepped out on the platform preparatory to closing the passenger station for the night.

When he entered the waiting room, it is believed, he saw one of the bandits robbing the cash drawer in the ticket office. When he attempted to capture the man the latter's companion, who had followed Frank into the waiting room, shot and instantly killed the agent. Both men then fled.

Two men who witnessed a part of the tragedy from a distance gave pursuit, but were outfooted.

Fights Off Young Son Then Slays Wife

OCEAN SPRING, Miss., Oct. 20. After shooting at his son-in-law who attempted to interfere, Louis I. Wade, shot and killed his wife here and then committed suicide.

Wade, who, with his family, came here from Michigan three years ago was on a business visit to his former home when he learned that Mrs. Wade had filed suit for divorce, the authorities said. He returned here immediately and late Saturday night tried to enter his home, but found all doors and windows barred. His son-in-law, who tried to overpower him when he effected an entrance, was forced to flee when fired upon.

In another part of the house the man found his wife and 14-year-old son. Despite the efforts of the boy to take the revolver from him, Wade shot and killed his wife and then killed himself.

BOTTLES OF BEER EMPTIED INTO CREEK

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Oct. 20. The fish in Passumpt Run Creek, which flows placidly through this city, had a spree when a quantity of beer, seized by the police in a recent raid on the speakeasies, was emptied into the creek.

Four hundred and fifty-two pint bottles were opened and emptied into the creek, and, following this deluge of beer, two eight-gallon kegs were opened and the beer from them poured into the creek.

Police Sergeant Motley, with two assistants, spent three hours pulling the tops off the 452 pint bottles.

Handsomely Remembered on Eve of His Departure For Active Service

Mr. Robt. Hendry Recipient of Two Presentations From Firm and Employees of J. J. Turner & Sons.

JOINS 48th HIGHLANDERS

Mr. Robt. Hendry left this afternoon for Toronto, where he will enlist for active service with the 48th Highlanders. Mr. Hendry for the past three years has been employed with J. J. Turner & Sons, and before severing his connection with that firm, was remembered with two handsome presentations, one from the management and the other from the employees of the factory.

The presentations took place yesterday afternoon in the presence of the business staff and employees. On behalf of the firm, Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., read the following address, while Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., presented Mr. Hendry with a purse of gold:

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 20, '15.

Robt Hendry, Esq., City:

Dear Sir,— During the past three years you have been in our employ supervising the stock and shipping departments, rendering prompt and efficient service in everything which came under your supervision.

From this important work you are stepping to a more important service, having heard the call of King and country in the defence of the Empire.

With all our hearts we send you forth to fight shoulder to shoulder with your brother man to uphold the arms of Britain and her allies in the defence of the weak, being ground under the 'iron heal' and 'mailed fist' of the bully of the twentieth century.

This war must be fought with all our might, using our last man and last dollar, if necessary, until the oppressor learns to respect sacred lines and treaties of the people of the world.

We believe the efficiency and concentration to duty while in our employ will well fit you for the greater work you are now entering upon, and guarantee the faithful performance of any duty assigned to you.

We rejoice to know you heard the call and nothing remains but to send you off as bright and happy as our hearts will let us, assuring you that we will ever remember you and pray you may be spared to return to us again.

As a testimonial of your good wishes and esteem for you, please accept these gold pieces as a small mark of our esteem and appreciation for duty faithfully performed during your employment with us.

Yours sincerely,

J. J. Turner & Sons.

From the Employees.

On behalf of the employees of the factory, Mr. Geo. Chandler read an eulogistic address while Miss Gosel'n made the presentation. The address is appended as follows:

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 20, '15

Robt Hendry, Esq.,
Foreman Shipping Dept.,
J. J. Turner & Sons.
City.

Dear Fellow Employee,—A week ago you gave notice of your intention of joining the King's colours in an effort to get closer to the front and do your bit in the cause of liberty and justice. We commend your action in deciding to shoulder a rifle and go forth to take a man's part in the most righteous war ever fought in the world's history.

While commending your decision to enlist we regret it is necessary for you to go, as your associations with us during the past three years have been most pleasant and cordial. In leaving you take with you our best wishes for good health and trust we may have the pleasure and privileges of being here when you return, to extend a hearty welcome back.

We desire to make you a presentation to show our love and esteem, but find the field limited to certain articles of use to soldiers. These do not give us the scope we want, but as we must confine our gift to what can be taken and used, we ask you to accept this engraved wrist watch and pipe.

We trust the watch will give as faithful service as you have given and hope in the pipe you will find solemn solace and comfort when called from labour to refreshment. Signed on behalf of your fellow employees:

Blacksmith Dept.—J. M. Campbell.
Flag Dept.—L. Nelson.
Tent Dept.—R. G. Gavine.
Finishing Dept.—F. S. Edwards.
Sign Dept.—Geo. E. Chandler.
Horse Blanket Dept.—Jas. G. Ball.
Upholstering Dept.—Edgar Thomas.
Erecting Dept.—Geo. Gillespie.
Shipping Dept.—Albert Nicholls.

The recipient, in a neat speech, expressed his sincere thanks for the splendid testimonies of appreciation and regard shown. He assured them he would ever remember his happy associations with J. J. Turner and Sons. He would do his duty to the best of his ability and hoped, if spared, to return to them again.

TWO NEW TRAINS

(From the C.P.R. Press Bureau, Montreal).

The Canadian Pacific Railway, with the introduction of the new time table next month, will inaugurate a new Ottawa-Toronto service by the addition of two new trains to run from the Sparks Street station, to be called in the future the Union Station, by arrangement with the Grand Trunk Railway Company. The new service will consist of a train starting from Ottawa at 1.15 p.m., to be called 'The York,' arriving at Toronto at 9.30 p. m., while the train from Toronto will leave the Union Depot at 1.45 p.m., arriving Ottawa at 10 p.m. These trains will run via Kempton and the Lake Shore line, and the equipment will consist of baggage, smoker, first-class coach and a library observation car with a broiler service, which is also something new on short distances. The ordinary morning train for Toronto will, in future, with the introduction of the new time table, leave Ottawa Union station at 9.35, and pass Hull, leaving Broad Street station at 10 a.m., and will run via Carleton Place. The return from Toronto in the afternoon will run the same way, arriving Broad Street at 5.15 p.m. and Union Station at 5.40. The night train from Ottawa to Toronto will also leave the Union station at 11.10, arriving Toronto 7.20. A similar train will also leave Toronto at the same time, arriving at the Union Station, Ottawa, at 7.20 in the morning, instead of the Broad Street station as in the past. The new service will run daily except Sunday. It has also been arranged to provide Kingston with a good service with the introduction of the extra trains.

MRS. TOMMY BURNS IN HOSPITAL.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—A fashionably dressed young woman, whose identity had puzzled the police and the authorities here, to which she was admitted in a delirious condition, was identified by Tommy Burns (Noah Brusso) formerly heavy weight champion of the world, as his wife. Burns said that she had not fully recovered from the shock of a recent illness. Mrs. Burns disappeared from her home here last night.

Envy Soldiers In the Trenches

"Blessedly Ignorant of Quakings and Squealings at Home"

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The feelings and temper of the British public are thus portrayed in this week's issue of Truth:

"The last week in London has been one of the most harrowing we have gone through since the war began. Not only has the military situation on the continent developed new cause for alarm, not only have Zeppelins dropped their bombs close to our doors, not only have the croakers croaked more vociferously and confidently than ever before but we have been threatened with an acute Cabinet crisis, and we have seen the ugly portent of the resignation of the French Foreign Minister.

"At times like these one envies the soldiers in the trenches, held together and braced to heroic sacrifices by the presence of the enemy, blessedly ignorant of the quakings and squealings at home, and the wrangling over the best method of making war. The longer the war lasts the more contemptible creature the non-combatant seems to grow."

Voice of The People

Editor of the Examiner,—Will you kindly settle an argument for us. A says that if conscription is introduced that a man cannot be compelled to leave his own country to fight. B says that he must go if he is called upon to do so. Which is right?

Citizen.

Answer: B of course is right. Under a conscription law men would be compelled to go wherever needed or else pay the penalty prescribed by the law.

TRAFALGAR DAY

"ENGLAND EXPECTS THAT EVERY MAN THIS DAY WILL DO HIS DUTY"

"I Have Done My Duty, Thank God For That"

Written for the Examiner by Frank Russell

The above are memorable words which will never be forgotten by the Britons. Neither will the occasion on which they were signalled ever fade away from human memory. For they are as momentous now as on the day on which they were uttered.

These words were signalled on the flagship "Victory," on October the twenty-first, 1805, on the occasion of the memorable Battle of Cape Trafalgar, on the coast of Spain.

Retrospect.

The circumstances which rendered the period that occurred between the years of 1790 and 1815, the most eventful of modern times—prior to the present great war—are familiar to all; though the incidents which checkered that memorable quarter of a century have already passed into history. All the elements of strife that then agitated the world had subsided as completely as if they owed their existence to a remote age. Then, each month brought its defeat or its victory; its account of a government overturned, or of a province conquered. The world was agitated like men in a tumult. On that epoch the timid looked back with wonder, the young with doubt, and the restless with envy.

The British Victory

Over the French off the Cape Trafalgar was the signal of the breakdown of Napoleon's great scheme for the invasion of the British Isles. For over a generation Napoleon's ambition, like that of a lesser luminary of the present day, had been the scourge of Europe. The British fleet had met with successes and reverses, when the British naval hero, Horatio Nelson—who, by the way, was born in 1758, a son of a Norfolk Anglican parson—became on January 1st, 1801, vice-admiral by seniority. But differences arising between him and the authorities, he retired into private life.

War on Sea and on Land

Had been going on for many long years. But in 1803 when Napoleon's ambition had made it utterly impossible to keep up the fiction of a peace, which had been temporarily made, Nelson was at once called from retirement and there was no question but that he must be appointed to the Mediterranean command and, in May 1803, he hoisted his flag as commander of the Mediterranean fleet. Between this date and the hour of his triumphant death on Oct. 21st, 1805, he was the one great controlling spirit in the vast naval drama which found its closing scene in Trafalgar Bay.

"England Expects Every Man."

The orginal flag signal as ordered by Admiral Nelson read 'confides' in place of 'expects.' But as the signal to denote the verb 'confides' (relies on), would have required a long string of flags to spell out confides, letter by letter, the code signal 'expects' was used in its place.

The Death of Nelson

And the Battle of Trafalgar are such matters of history that every one is conversant with them t; therefore it would be a work of super-erogation to either give here a history of Nelson's life or of the great battle in which our mighty hero received his death wound. Suffice it to say that he entered into the Navy in 1770 and finished up his career this memorable day, 1805.

The Last Hours at Trafalgar

Will never be forgotten by Britons. No figure in English history has been at once so magnificent in battle, or so penetrating in its appeal to the emotions, as was Admiral Horatio Nelson on that last day, when, under his leadership, the British fleet annihilated the last lingering fear that Napoleon would ever carry his desolating arms unto the British Islands. Who can read, unmoved, of Nelson's kneeling in prayer by his cabin table—as the 'Victory' rolled slowly down on the enemy that memorable 21st of October—appealing to God for help. Then went up

The Famous Signal.

Now the 'Victory' passed astern of the French 'Bucentaure' and was engaged with her and the 'Redoubtable.' Nelson walked up and down his quarter deck accompanied by his flag-captain, Hardy. Suddenly a slanting musket shot from the 'Redoubtable' struck him in the breast and broke his spine.

"They Have Done For Me at Last"

Were the words he uttered when he received the fatal shot.

It was then suggested to him that Admiral Collingwood should decide on the course to be adopted, but the eager reply was,

"Not While I Live."

But his last recorded words, as he embraced his friend Hardy, were those embodied in the proud yet humble claim,

"I HAVE DONE MY DUTY; THANK GOD FOR THAT."

The Nelson Column

In Trafalgar Square, London, which was erected to his memory, has for years past been decorated with flags and flowers on this day. And as a token of their respect for so brave a man, for many years past our ancient enemies—and now close allies — the French—represented by their compatriots in London—have largely assisted in these decorations. For the French know, as well as ourselves, how to pay honour to the memory of the brave—although on this particular day the hopes and expectations of their demi-god were largely crushed, the final culmination of his downfall to take place ten years later at Waterloo.

TO WELCOME EDISON WITH "SPEECHLESS" BANQUET IN FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20. — A "speechless" banquet with the customary addresses, arranged by San Francisco telegraphers, in honour of Thomas A. Edison, telegraph operator, is to be held at the San Francisco club to-night. At each speaker's place a telegraph key with minature poles to carry the wires around the table has been arranged. These addresses of welcome are to be ticked off to Mr. Edison, who is expected to respond in dots and dashes.

The menu was written in the Morse code of telegraphy.

A brilliant electrical illumination of the city to-night was a part of the programme adopted by city officials in honour of Mr. Edison's visit. A feature of the illumination will be the flashing into the sky of electrical messages of welcome in the Morse code.

Operations on the Russian Front Are Growing More Serious

Talk of Evacuating Baltic Port is Again Current in Petrograd---Conditions of Country Are Favourable for the Russian Defence.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 22.—Operations on the Riga front are growing more serious. The Germans have brought up reinforcements, partly from the Dvina front and partly from the reserves in the rear. They apparently intend once more to undertake the exceedingly difficult task of forcing the Dvina near Riga. The country along the left bank of the Dvina towards its mouth is thickly wooded, and it is impossible to operate here on a front that is at once broad and compact. The Germans are advancing in separate columns from the Mitau-Windau and the Mitau-Nougut sections of the railway. They have advanced about two miles, but are being actively engaged by the Russian troops.

Near Friedrichstadt their artillery has opened fire from the left bank of the Elisen-Oftemmul section of the Riga-Dvinsk railway, which here runs close to the northern bank of the river. The Russians are pressing on both flanks, dropping bombs on stations between Mitau and Neugut from their Sikorsky biplanes, and at the same time offering a strong resistance to the unceasing fire of the enemy on the Dvina.

Near Riga the operations by the Germans seem for the present to be in a stage of reconnaisance. Developments will depend on the turn of fortune rather than on any definite plan.

Talk of Evacuating City.

The Germans have concentrated very large forces with a great amount of artillery, south of Riga, and, as a result, a stubborn battle has been in progress for several days. Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who is in command in this region, reported two days ago that his forces had reached the Dvina, but, as on previous occasions, this broad and fast-running waterway appears to have held him up for the time being.

The situation, however, is considered by the Russians to be more serious than it has been for a long time, and there is again talk of the evacuation of Riga by the military, who have been in sole occupation of the city since the civilian population left a month ago.

At the other end of the eastern front the position is just the reverse. General Ivanoff, who has proved himself to be the most aggressive of the Russian commanders, has been striking hard at the Austro-German forces on the middle Styr and all along the fringe of Galicia that is still in Russian hands. At several places he has driven his opponents back, and there is a report to-night that the Austrians have evacuated Czernowitz—a report which finds some confirmation in an Odessa despatch.

CITY TEACHERS DISAPPROVE 40 YEARS' SERVICE CLAUSE IN THE NEW PENSION BILL

Seems Too Long a Period Before Their Superannuation Commences—Annual Convention of City Teachers' Institute Being Held To-day.

A discussion of the Provincial Legislature's superannuation bill was the feature of this morning's opening session of the annual convention of the Peterborough City Teachers' Institute. The meetings are being held in the principal's room at the Central School with Miss M. A. O'Connell, president for the past year presiding. Mr. H. A. Yenney, treasurer, presented the financial statement showing a credit balance of $60, and reflecting a satisfactory condition.

Mr. A. Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools in this city, dealt with the Superannuation Bill which the local teachers approved in its principle. To some extent, however, they disagreed with the clause covering the length of service required before superannuation becomes effective. Forty years are regarded as too long a period of teaching upon which the pension scheme should be based.

A complete discussion of the bill was referred to a later session, most of the morning being devoted to routine business, and to Inspector Mowat's review of the provisions of the Bill.

Where Money Is to Come From.

To finance this superannuation scheme all teachers and inspectors (they, too, are included) are to contribute 2 per cent of their salary; the Provincial Government is to contribute a similar sum; all school and public corporations employing teachers and inspectors are to contribute a sum equal to 1 per cent. of their salaries. This provides a total of 5 per cent. of the salaries.

The minimum salary is regarded as $550; in the case of a teacher receiving less, the amount of the contribution to be paid by both teacher and board will be as if the salary were $550—the teacher to pay $11 a year and the board $5.50.

Pensions After 40 Years.

A pension is to be granted to all teachers and inspectors who have given 40 years of service and who retire from the profession.

The annual allowance to be paid as a pension is calculated by multiplying 1/60 of the average salary for the last ten years of service by the number of years of service.

For example, if this average salary is $800 and the number of years' service is 40, the pension will be 40/60 of $800, which is $600 per annum.

A limit has been set to the amount of a pension; no pension granted for full service shall be less than $365 a year, nor greater than $1,000 a year.

Teachers who have not had the opportunity of contributing to such a fund in the past will be allowed half the number of their years of experience prior to the passing of the Bill in calculating the annuity.

If, for example, a teacher has taught 30 years before the Bill comes into operation, and ten years after, the 40 years will be counted as 15 years of service, and with the ten years after the Bill came into operation added, there will be a total of 25 full years of service. The pension will thus be 25/60 of the average salary for the last ten years.

Disability Benefits.

If a teacher or an inspector has given fifteen years of service or more, and becomes incapacitated, a pension will be granted, and its amount will be calculated in the same manner as if he retired by reason of 40 years of service. For example, if he has served 20 years he will receive 20/60 of his average salary for the last ten years of service. Should this pension, so calculated, fall below $365, the pension will be determined by another method, which is: Multiply $30 by the number of years of service. For example, if a teacher has served only 15 years, and his average salary for the last ten years of service is $800, the annual pension, calculated in the usual way will be 15/60 of $800, which is $200. As this falls below $365, the other method will apply and the annual pension will be $30 multiplied by 15 which is $450 instead of $200. In no case to which this method applies will the pension granted exceed $666.

40 Years' Service.

A comparison of the contributions which are to be paid by teachers under the proposed scheme, with those of purchasers of Canadian Government Annuities, for annuities of equal value, is instructive. Take for example the case of a woman aged 20 entering the profession after the scheme becomes operative. Assume that she begins on a salary of $500 a year and ultimately reaches $1,000 a year. Assume, too, that her average salary is $750 so that her annual contributions would average $15. The annuity to which she would be entitled after 40 years of service would be at least $600 a year. (If, however, the average salary for the last ten years were $1,000, she would be entitled to an annuity of $666 a year.)

Now, to buy an annuity of $600 a year at the age of 60, the Canadian Government would charge a person, aged 20, an annual contribution of $41.70. But were the retiring age 55, the annual charge in the same case would be $65.75.

The conclusions to be drawn from such a comparison are:

(a) It is imposible to provide the annuities proposed in the Bill, unless other contributions are forthcoming in addition to the 2 per cent. paid by the teachers.

(b) It is impossible to fix the retiring age earlier than after forty years of service without materially increasing the contributions from all sources.

This Bill which it is fully expected to be passed aims not only to encourage teachers to remain in the profession but also to attract larger numbers by the assurance of a competency in their advanced years.

Harvey Township Makes $200 Grant

Mr. Robert Shaw, Reeve of Harvey, told the Examiner to-day that the Council of his township had, on their own initiative, voted $200 towards the British Red Cross Society. A majority of the townships in the county have made contributions and among them Harvey ranks comparatively among the poorest, but their heart's right there. Within the past two months they have given $600 for patriotic purposes, $400 being a grant to the 39th Battalion. On account of the fact the ratepayers are widely scattered it was felt that there wasn't time to call a meeting. However the Council considered that their township desire to be represented in this response to the British Red Cross and the Council took it upon themselves to pass this grant.

The ladies in the Lakehurst community have a very active Canadian Red Cross Society with Mrs. Jackson, of the school nearby, its president.

Following the War With Maps Has Developed Into Large Undertaking

Tracing their maps with the keenness of war lords, those citizens beyond the military age, who were lured into the "game," when they commenced searching for Liege and Namur, have continued to experience as the war progressed the limitations of their geographical knowledge. There is one man with a son in khaki who has followed the big moves from the Luxemburg frontier, through Belgium, down to the Marne, west to the Yser, then over into the Vosges and so on. In the east he struggled through East Prussia and back again, through Poland, and likewise back again, through Przemysl and Lemburg, and down almost to Fartfeld in Hungary; then turned and retraced his pinholes through the Dukla Pass.

Next he followed the Italians around Trieste and Trent and familiarized himself with the topography of the Carnic Alps. Next he discovered the peninsula of Gallipoli, the forts at the entrance to the straits, and at the narrows of the Dardanelles. Every new phase of the war increased his knowledge and now he is learning a few of the details about Serbia and the adjacent states in the Balkans.

Of course to every citizen of this type who interests himself deeply in current events, there are large numbers who have scarcely an intelligent idea of what is occurring. This particular man not only obtained a fine set of maps but also kept a pronouncing gazeteer at his elbow.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The City Trust Commission has extended its activities to the City Treasurer's office which is being renovated and rested to a new floor covering composed of cork matting.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

Ingersoll's response to the appeal from the motherland for assistance for the British Red Cross Society on Trafalgar Day will take the form of "a day's pay." This is the slogan which it was decided at a meeting to adopt. The matter will be brought to the attention of all citizens in a systematic manner.

Debenture By-law Passed.

A by-law authorizing debentures to the extent of $50,000 for the Patriotic Fund was finally passed Monday night by the Stratford Council, and application will be made at the next session of the Legislature for permission to levy a tax on the entire city assessment, and in addition to tax the earnings of all males over eighteen years of age.

Orillia to Rebuild.

The Town Council of Orillia decided to submit a by-law to the people on November 17 to raise by debenture $50,000 for the purpose of reconstructing the municipal building recently destroyed by fire. The new building will cost approximately $70,000, of which $20,000 is on hand from insurance.

Just One Assessor Now.

The St. Catharines City Council has adopted the principle of one assessment commissioner, abolishing the old system of having two. Details of the new plan will be worked out later. H. O'Loughlin, one of the two assessors, has been installed as Sheriff of Lincoln county.

20,000,000 BANANAS IN SEA.

$75,000 Cargo of Condemned Fruit Dumped Outside of Harbour.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—A cargo of 20,000,000 bananas was dumped yesterday from the United Fruit Company's steamer Baronica just beyond the three-mile limit in response to an order from the Health Department, which had condemned the entire lot.

The Baronica reached this port last Friday and docked at Pier 15, East River. When her cargo of bananas brought from Porto Rico was examined by Inspector Quinn of the Bureau of Foods and Drugs, it was found that the bananas were spoiled. Dr Betts of the Health Department ordered the cargo destroyed. The bananas were valued at $75,000 when in wholesome condition.

ANNUAL MEETING OF KITCHENER RED CROSS

The first annual meeting of the Kitchener Red Cross Club was held on Tuesday. The Kitchener Red Cross Club was organized in September, 1914 and is affiliated with the local branch of the Red Cross Society.

Weekly meetings have been held in the Y.W.C.A. rooms, all the meetings being well atteded, showing the deep interest taken in the work of the Club. The Club have held sales of home made cooking on the market from time to time and a considerable amount of money was raised in this way. Mr. R. Turner very kindly presented the Club with a hand engine to be used on the different occasions and for which the members were very thankful.

Early in February a tea was held in the Y.W.C.A. parlours, which realized a handsome sum.

Lieut. Rogers gave the Club half of the proceeds of the concert given by the 39th Battalion, amounting to $53. The Club is also indebted to Mrs. Mulloy, wife of Trooper Mulloy of Kingston, for one hundred copies of her popular song, Johnny Canuck's the Boy.

The local branch of the Red Cross Society have been very generous in giving the Club materials to be made into hospital supplies, and in April when an appeal came to the Club for a donation, they were only too glad to be able to give the local society $25.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the board of the Y.W.C.A., Miss Peacock and Mrs. Barnes for making it possible and pleasant to hold meetings at the Y.W.C.A., and after next week the Club will meet to do Red Cross work every Tuesday evening in the Public Library.

The election of officers resulted in the following

President—Miss Jessie Garrow
Vice-President—Miss Kirkwood.
Treasurer—Miss Jessie Waddell
Sec. Treas.—Mrs. J. Sharpe

On Saturday of this week the Club intend holding a sale of home-made cake and candy on the market.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

On Sunday morning and evening a box will be found in a conspicuous place in Murray street church to receive the offerings of the people to provide Christmas presents for the men of the church who are at the front or on their way there.

These gifts will not in any way interfere with the usual weekly offering but it is expected that every member of the church and congregation will be glad of the opportunity of doing something for "the boys."

No large amounts are asked for. The desire of the ladies of Murray street is that they may be able to say that the remembrance comes not from the few, but from the many. The plan is an excellent one and will certainly have the support of the people.

Three U. S. Soldiers Killed in Attack

Mr. G. A. Gillespie spoke for the Patriotic Fund and urged his hearers to support in a generous manner.

Col. Miller gave a rousing address on recruiting, and urged all able bodied men to rally to the colours.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers of the evening, it being moved by Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Roberts.

Apsley.

His Honour Judge Hoyeke, accompanied by the Rev. A. W. McKay of the Grove School, Lakefield conducted a meeting in Apsley. Rev. Mr. Gardner of the Anglican Church and Rev. Mr. Kerr of the Methodist Church, were among the local workers. The choir, led by Mrs. Gardner, subscribed to the musical part of the programme.

The meeting was fairly well attended. Apsley has taken up a public subscription for the British Red Cross fund. This will be supplemented by a subscription from the municipality. Two members of the local association remained in Apsley to look after any prospective recruits.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

JESS WILLARD'S NEXT OPPONENT

Frank Moran, who, by virtue of last night's victory over Jim Coffey, is regarded as Jess Willard's next opponent for the heavy-weight championship, is 28 years of age and a good, seasoned fighter.

Moran has fought all the top-notchers in the heavyweight division, including Jack Johnson when he was the champion. Although Moran has not defeated all his opponents, he has nevertheless been a consistent winner in the last two or three years.

Besides being a clever boxer, and an excellent ring strategist, Moran can hit hard and accurately with either hand. Also, he can take a punch, and is as game as they make them.

Two years ago he knocked out Al Palzer in seven rounds in New York. Since then he has fought in England a number of times, and won all his bouts in a clean-cut and decisive manner. The fact is, the only battle Moran has lost in the last two years was the one with Jack Johnson a year ago last July at Paris, which was given against him on points at the end of a wenty-round contest.

SAYS LONG WALKS ARE GOOD FOR EVERYBODY

According to James H. Hocking the world's champion long distance walker, there would be no such things as doctors if all the people would follow his advice and put in as much time as possible walking.

"There is nothing that walking won't cure," said Hocking. "It is a sure cure for rheumatism, constipation, liver and kidney troubles—and even baldness. Everybody ought to join a walking club. The club need not consist of more than two persons and they should plan weekly walks into the country, which is the only way to appreciate Nature."

Hocking will be 60 years old next month. He is as tall and straight as a young Indian. He hasn't an ounce of superfluous flesh. His eye is as clear as a crystal. He doesn't know what it is to have a headache and he has unlimited endurance.

"I'll tell you what walking has done for my family," said Hocking the other day. "My father is 83 years old and it was only the other day he told me he felt better than when he was 28 years old. Walking has kept his youth for him. I have a son 28 years old. He knows, from experience, that all that I say about the benefits of walking are true. And that is why he is following in my footsteps as I followed in the footsteps of my father.

"There isn't one man in a hundred who knows how to walk. In walking properly all toes must touch the ground. When stepping you first place the ball squarely on the ground and then let all the toes touch. This exercises the muscles under the arch. If people only walked right there'd be no such thing as fallen arches.

"Another thing that causes foot trouble is people don't wear the right kind of socks. They ought to buy right and left socks. Nobody would ever think of wearing a right shoe on a left foot.

"My advice to anybody that is run down in any way, or has troubles from any sort of ailment is to join a walker's club. The directors will point out to him how much walking is good for him at the start and will also advise him what kind of shoes to buy.

"When walking, a person should breathe deep and swing the arms, which will exercise muscles the average person doesn't dream he possesses.

"When walking a distance I find it advisable not to eat, but to drink plenty of water. Exercise will cause you to sweat out all this water. A flow of perspiration is started, which is much better for one's health than a Turkish bath.

"The sun is the best friend a man ever had. It puts hair on the head of a bald friend of mine and it made my hair thicker than it was when I was a youth.

"Walking has proved so beneficial to members of my club that even letter-carriers now belong.

In his recent walk to Boston, Hocking was checked at various points, and affidavits filed, certifying the correctness of the time and distance. Hocking carried a message on his hike from his employers to the head of a Boston firm. All told, he has walked 250 miles in 60 hours. The last day was the hottest Boston has experienced in years, but Hocking finished strong and fresh. In addition to this record, Hocking has walked to New Haven, 75 miles, in 17 hours, or two hours better than Edward Payson Weston.

It took him a year to train for the recent walk to the Hub. He plans to walk to Buffalo next year, and he has already started training for the long jaunt. He says that if he is alive in 1917 he'll walk to Chicago.—Evening World.

MATTY'S RECORD BEST

Pitched Twenty-Seven Scoreless Innings Against Athletics in 1905.

Ten years have passed since the record for few runs scored in a world's series was established, and it still holds good. In the season of 1905 the New York Giants and the Athletics of Philadelphia created a new record for tight-score games played in a world's series. A total of 13 runs was scored by both teams, the Giants getting 15, and the Mack men had to be satisfied with 3 runs in five games, all of which were made in one contest. The series just played was a tight-score series and is next to the one of 1905, but for real close decisions the scores of the contest recently fought by the Boston Sox and the Philadelphia Nationals were the greatest ever. Twenty-two runs were scored, but they were divided up in a more even manner than those in the Giants-Athletics series. Boston made 12 and the Phillies 10.

Christy Matthewson still retains the honour of pitching the most wonderful and effective ball of all hurlers in any world's series. Many followers of the game fully expected that the great Alexander would shatter pitching records in the series just played, and many were disappointed when the big fellow failed to work up to expectations. It is an old story, and it will be told until some other hurler arises who will shade the phenomenal pitching of the great Matty in that never-to-be-forgotten series of 1905. For all-around excellence and effectiveness the pitching by Mathewson against the Athletics that season has never been equaled, and remains as the best performance of all hurlers who strained nerve, brawn, and brain to win fame in these contests for the highest honours in baseball.

Mathewson blanked the Athletics for 27 innings—three full games—and the most wonderful thing about this achievement is the fact the hard hitters of C. Mack never had the remotest chance of getting a score. Several pitchers have accomplished the feat of winning all their games in a world's series, but none has approached Mathewson in point of skill and class. Radbourne, Keefe, Miner Brown, "Big Orvie" Overall, together with James and Rudolph of last season's fame, have performed wonders in these blue-ribbon contests.

FRENCH SECRET ORDER MADE PUBLIC

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—The war office made public a copy of a secret order found some days ago on a French staff officer which shows that three-quarters of the French army participated in the great offensive begun in Champagne and Artois on Sept. 25. The order specifies 3 divisions to join in the movement of making a total of about 1,860,000 men, not including the Belgian army. The British forces supplied 18 divisions to the attack about 360,000. The grand total of nearly 2,000,000 men includes both French and British.

The war office admits the evacuation of the western slope of Hartmansweilerkopf in accordance with previous plans.

Says Germany is Inhuman In Treatment of Prisoners

Charges frequently have been made that the Germans have not taken the best possible care of the prisoners they hold. Interesting light is shed on this subject by a Red Cross surgeon who, on his way from Serbia to England by way of Russia, had a chance to see an exchange of German and Russian prisoners in Sweden. The physician talked with both groups of prisoners and makes the assertion that while the Germans were in the best of condition the Russians were broken, unkempt and illfed.

"The exchange," says the writer to the London Times, "took place at the Russo-Swedish frontier between Tornea and Haparanda at the head of the the Gulf of Bothnia. The Russian prisoners returned from Germany are sent by water to Stockholm. There they are loaded on barges, about 900 to a barge, and, under care of the Swedish Red Cross are transported to Tornea. The Germans being returned from Russia are brought by train to Tornea and handed over to the Swedish authorities at Haparanda.

"I watched the disembarcation of four barge loads of returning Russians, between 700 and 900 prisoners in all, and spoke to many of the men. In both cases every possible facility was given to me to assure myself of the condition of the prisoners. It is difficult to find words to describe the dreadfulness of the scene at Tornea.

Air of Festivity.

"Everything possible has been done to invest the homecoming of the Russians with an air of festivity. The pier at which the barges discharge was lined with Russian troops. A distinguished committee was there to receive the prisoners. Flags fluttered. A military band played the Russian national anthem. Crowds had assembled to cheer their compatriots as they landed. And then they came; and I shall never forget the sight.

"I may claim from my hospital experience to know something of the symptoms of health and illness. These people who crept off the barges hardly had a semblance to human beings. Anything more pathetic it is impossible to believe. They came bent, dazed and limping. Every man was in rags; there was nothing approaching a complete uniform on any one. Few had coats, some had no shirts, many had no socks; there was not, I believe, one sound pair of boots among them; their hair was untrimmed.

"Some of the crippled supported themselves on crutches carved from the lids of packing cases and the like. The less feeble helped the others to walk. Every man was emaciated to the last degree. Some had lost their wits and memory. They advanced slowly, weakly, with their eyes upon the ground, without a smile, without a hand waved or a voice raised in respond to the cheers with which they were greeted. As the waiting people saw what they were like the cheers died away and the awful procession went on in silence.

"I say unhesitatingly, knowing whereof I speak, that nothing but continued and long neglect and malnutrition could possibly have reduced these men to the condition in which I saw them. Out of the party of 280 more than sixty had developed tuberculosis."

Condition of Germans.

In contrast the writer then describes the condition of the Germans who were being sent home in exchange for these Russians.

"The Swedish authorities," he says, "then invited my two companions and myself to see the other side of the picture, and we mingled and chatted with the Germans on their train. The contrast with the condition of the Russians was almost indescribable. There was not one German prisoner who was not in his full uniform, which had been taken from him on his arrival in hospital and carefully kept and returned to him clean on his discharge. All had good boots. The lame were, without exception, furnished with proper crutches.

"But most striking of all were the physical well being and good spirits of the whole party. They were all well nourished. They laughed and joked with us and among themselves. It was evident they had been treated with care and, as convalescent, were being sent home as physically fit as they could be made. I say with certainty that it would take weeks of good nourishment and proper care to bring the Russians whom I had seen to the same condition of well being as the Germans were in.

"I do not know what, if anything, can be done about it, or how the facts can be spread abroad so that the peoples of the world can understand. For my part I know that if the Germans had hitherto throughout this conflict borne themselves, so far as the world knew, with moderation and decency the sights which I saw at Tornea alone would convince me that they were waging war as only brutal and half-civilized people can wage it. Only the German authorities will probably ever know how many thousands of the enemy wounded in their hands died from the treatment which produced the human wreckage which I saw."

Finds Vienna Gay After Depression

LONDON, October 20.—The Times publishes a letter signed "Anglo-Neutral," written by a Dutchman educated in England, relating his experiences in Germany and Austria last week. He says:

"Vienna is very gay at this moment and many of my Viennese friends almost apologised for it. 'We have been through such agonies of depression,' one of them observed, 'that now that we are victorious we are letting ourselves go a little.'

"The Austrians now have absolute confidence in their ability to win the war by the aid of their big brother, Germany, but they like the Germans less now than before. They say they do more than half of the work and Germany gets all of the praise. They are very proud of the success of the Austrian troops in Russia.

"Bread appeared to be quite plentiful in Vienna, though there is a shortage of many commodities.

"Berlin, like Vienna, has passed through many changes of feeling. To-day every German with whom I came in contact was openly exultant While one part of the nation is concentrated on finishing the war many of the higher authorities are organising for after the victory. There have been conferences of bankers, manufacturers, agriculturists, and others, so that whether the war ends in one, two, or even ten years, Germany will instantly proceed to recover her industrial position.

"Except for the bread cards it is difficult to realise that Berlin is at war.

"Knowing that a short time back I had been in England and was there on September 8th during a Zeppelin raid, I was asked by everyone I met as to whether England was not terrified, and as to the destruction of Liverpool Street Station. I assured them I had been in London on the night of the raid, but had hardly seen anything of it, and had never heard Liverpool Street Station had been destroyed, and that the whole affair was regarded rather like a fireworks display at the Crystal Palace.

"In addition to the delusion that the English are in terror of Zeppelins and that the English fleet is afraid to come out, there is the constantly repeated statement, made too by men in high places in Berlin, that members of the British Government had had conversations in regard to peace with certain persons in London. I was continually informed that members of the British Government had made 'approaches' on the subject.

"I replied on this point in every case that I did not believe any such statement had a vestige of truth in it. It is believed as a fact in high quarters in Germany, none the less, and anyone understanding the Prussian character will realise the avidity with which a chance remark of any prominent Englishman to any neutral or other in London would be seized upon and accepted as a sign of fear.

"I have seen it stated that anti-English feeling in Germany is diminished. That is untrue. I see it stated in your newspapers that Germany is short of many things. The only shortages of which I could hear were of India rubber, woollen garments and Havanna cigars. Germany is obviously importing certain supplies through neutral countries. They are not strict enough."

HOW FRANCE MAKES SHELLS

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The unremitting French artillery attack proceeding along the whole front is made possible by equally unremitting and intensive effort in the production of projectiles in works which are working regularly 24 hours a day.

One of these great establishments, near Paris, visited to-day by an Associated Press representative by official permission, makes more than 5,000 shells and a number of aeroplane motors a day. The works visited produced six hundred automobiles annually before the war. It was, like other modern industries, arranged so that material taken in at one end followed a regular progression until it came out at the other a finished car. The order of operations was different in shell making so it was necessary to displace and re-arrange five thousand machines, instal many new ones and, at the same time, find hands to replace a thousand mobilised mechanics.

Doubled in Few Days.

So formidable a task would have seemed before the war to be the work of a year, but it was accomplished in a few weeks, and the works were made ready to turn out daily thousands of parts of rifles and bayonets in addition to high power flying machine motors and shells. In a few days the shell production will have been doubled while the flying corps will continue to receive a goodly number of new machines monthly from this factory.

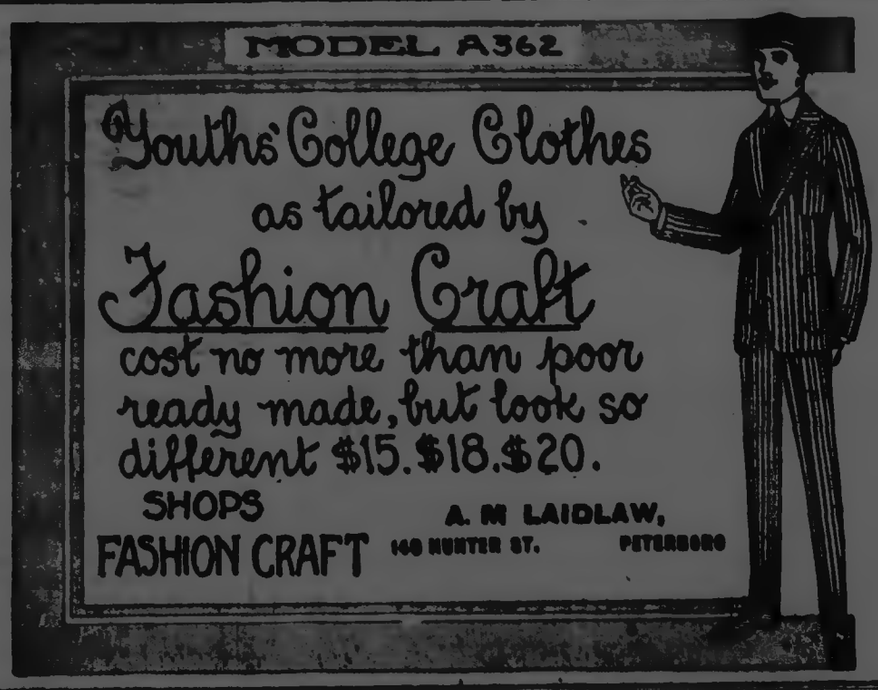
Women—old, young, and middle-aged—are working there in the places of husbands, fathers, sons and brothers at the front. Projectiles and rifle parts are given the precision of a chronometer and every operation is supervised and the result verified before it goes on to the next hand.

Final Test.

The finished shell must not only stand a high hydraulic pressure, but it must give the proper ring. An expert in steel, isolated from the clang and hum of the factory in an almost hermetically sealed hut, taps each shell as it is sent in to him on a little trolley. Those which give out the proper ring are sent on while the others go to the scrap heap. This is the final trial before loading Shrapnel bullets are placed in the core of the shell by young girls, whose work is fully up to that of trained arsenal workers.

L. C. I. RUGBYISTS.

LINDSAY, October 21.—For a few weeks past the Rugby enthusiasts at the Collegiate Institute, have been practising on the gridiron and getting themselves in shape for a game with Peterboro on Saturday afternoon next. The boys have organized a good team and expect to give the Peterboro Collegiate Institute team a lively game.



WANDERED FOR THREE DAYS ON CHAMPAGNE BATTLEFIELD

Wm. Philip Simms.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—In the middle of the Champagne battlefield, my first impression was that Judgment Day had come; that I had been left behind to roam the disrupted earth alone.

As far as the eye could see undulated one vast, pitted waste of chalk, with snags of annihilated forests sticking up, gaunt and white and covered with dust, against the skyline, and with arms and legs and other fragments of dead men lying like common garbage on a titanic dump.

This was the work of the French artillery. Here the Germans had been. Here many were still—rotting. Furies seemed to have been forestalled and outdone.

For three days I was permitted to wander over the ground recently won by the French. I had talked previously with many officers and men concerning the efficacy of the French shell fire, but even thus prepared, and despite what I had hitherto observed personally, I was totally surprised by what I saw.

Over tens of square miles practically no vegetation was left. Even the rabbits and rats had not escaped.

Almost 3,000,000 shells were hurled into this area in three days, digging pits from five to seventy-five feet deep, the latter 135 to 150 feet across. As a result of this concentrated fire, the whole country was covered with a white powder.

A general told me the German troops were so demoralized that droves of prisoners the French took were sent to the rear without other escort than a single guide; that many were almost insane for days.

Numerous entire French regiments have been trying to clean up the battlefield ever since the struggle, but without seeming to make headway, so vast is the undertaking.

Excavations bring to light daily fresh war stores, or duddles of putrifying Germans, as if this were some new Pompeii.

What I took at first to be the stump of a shell-torn bush turned out to be a crisped red hand on a human arm, protruding from a caved-in trench.

What seemed to be an old sack had a human foot inside.

A discoloured blue sweater had a man's trunk within it.

Under the French fire the trenches became graves for the living, while the graves of earlier victims were exposed to the air.

This man-made earthquake shows what is now necessary if an advance is to be made. Without the earthquake the advancing infantry would be paralyzed by the German guns, formerly used against the Gallic forts, as these French soldier-clerks and farmer boys struggled with the enemy's barbed wire defences.

The Germans had woven entire forests with this barbed wire, under cover of which they had dug trenches which zig-zagged eight feet deep along their entire line.

The front was supported by a multitude of machine guns and many 4-inch steel turrets with revolving tops, all save the tops embedded in the ground. These held each a 50-milimetre rapid-fire cannon, and to serve it thre men, who the French say were locked in.

Locked in a Turret.

I personally inspected a captured turret, the doors of which were fastened with chains outside. The captors declared that three unwounded, but unconscious, Germans were found inside.

This was what the French had to go up against.

The general commanding the French fourth army told me that it took two months to prepare his part of the attack. He constructed about five hundred kilometres of new trenches, some wide enough for two horses to pass, and many new railways and dirt roads.

I personally rode along a new dirt road 13 kilometres long, laid so that troops and convoys could pass, day and night, without being seen, owing to cuts and improvised hedges.

When all was ready the artillery cut loose.

The battle, which took two months to prepare, was practically over in one day, as subsequent fighting was really a settling down process. Local attacks and counter-attacks are still occurring, but the original result has not been materially changed.

The cannon seem to touch wheels. There are batteries everywhere, their crews active in correcting ranges on new enemy positions, in response to telephone calls from hidden observers near the German lines, or wireless commands from specks hovering in the sky.

Aeroplanes on both sides are exceedingly busy photographing the to scale.

Air duels are almost of hourly occurrence, but usually result in the invader's return to his own lines, as he has more important work to do than to bring down any enemy aviator.

The rat-a-tat-tat of machine guns, exchanging courtesies in the clouds, wins only a passing glance, but every little white one is deafened by the pandemonium of anti-aircraft batteries driving off inquisitive aerial enemies.

Cyclone Shocks and Smoke.

The combined scream of the shells is absolutely cyclonic, the countless flecks of smoke giving the impression that the sky has broken out with a white rash.

The French claim their advance was gained with small losses, but considering conditions, even had the Gallic losses been enormous, the Champagne victory would have been cheap. The country was not only electrified, but the French troops are surer than ever that they are fully equal to the mightiest blow Germany has to offer.

My personal impression is that the line will stick about where it is all winter, as indicated by the statement of the general I talked with, to the effect that much preparation is necessary to score an advance under present conditions.

One, therefore, is inevitably led to ask the question: "When will the war end?"

MOSCOW OVERRUN BY HOMELESS REFUGEES.

BERLIN (via Tuckerton), Oct. 20.—The Russian Daily Rossyl states that on all roads and streets near the theatre of war millions of poor beggars on the move eastward have lost their homes, cattle and all belongings.

Moscow is crowed by farmers ignorant of city life and all the streets are indescribably filthy. Thousands sleep on the benches and on the flower beds of the [illegible]

Several thousand students returning to the university found their dwellings occupied and male and female students have been obliged to sleep in the railway stations.

The paper points out the danger of epidemics in the refugees' quarters because of the unspeakable dirt.

Not His Fault.

Charles had been instructed to clean the back yard, and when his father inspected it that night it was in perfect condition. The following evening, however, it looked worse than ever.

"How is this, son?" asked his parent. "Yesterday you cleaned the yard finely, but to-day it is awful."

"Gee whiz! It ain't my fault," explained Charles indignantly. "I fired everything over the fence next door, but to-day that fresh kid that lives there fired 'em back again and a lot more besides."—Ladies Home Journal.

THE DOMESTIC SUGAR PRODUCT

Consumption Amounts to 86 Pounds Per Capita—Beet Sugar Now Leads Cane Sugar

More than one-fifth of the 40,000,000,000 pounds of sugar that represent the world's production last year was consumed in the United States. Consumption of sugar in the United States exclusive of its sugar-producing islands during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, has been calculated by the Department of Commerce as 9,030,000,000 pounds, or 86 pounds per capita.

Of sugar consumed in that country in 1914-15, 1,941,000,000 pounds were produced on the mainland, 1,281,000,000 pounds in Hawaii, 589,000,000 pounds in Porto Rico, 327,000,000 pounds in the Philippines, and the remainder in foreign countries. Cuba, the leading sources of imported sugar, sent 4,788,000,000 pounds in the last fiscal year, that quantity being nearly four times as much as that from Hawaii and eight times as much as that from Porto Rico.

Beet sugar now leads cane sugar by nearly 1,000,000,000 pounds in the yearly domestic produce, having reversed the conditions which obtained 20 years ago. In 1895, for example, the domestic sugar product totalled approximately 775,000,000 pounds, the share of beet sugar being only 45,000,000 pounds.

WEDDING BELLS

HUMPHRIES—WOODWARD.

All Saints' Church, Cannington was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Nora Marion, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Woodward, became the bride of Israel Arthur Humphries, Campbellford, Ont. The rector, Rev. A. C. Cummer, officiated, the church being beautifully decorated by the girl friends of the bride. The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white crepe de Caine, trimmed with shadow lace, her veil caught up with a wreath of orange blossoms and her bouquet was white roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaids, Miss Gladys Woodward, sister of the bride, were dressed alike in pale yellow ninon, picture hats of black velvet and carrying huge bouquets of dark pink roses. The best man was Mr. Grant Paulin, Toronto. During the signing of the register Mr. Arthur Lynd sang "All Mine Alone." After the ceremony the bride's mother held a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Humphries left on a short journey, the bride wearing a hunter's green cloth suit, a small black hat with green feather, and mink furs.—Mail and Empire

The deceased, who was forty-two years of age, was born in Hope Township, but came to Peterborough twenty years ago, residing here until his death. He was well known and highly esteemed. His death will be deeply mourned by a host of friends. The late Mr. Smith was twice married. A sorrowing wife and five sons and one daughter are left to mourn his loss. They are Mrs. W. Bearss, Toronto, and Mr. Robert Smith by the first wife, and Carl, John, Gordon and Earl by the second wife.

The funeral, which will be under Orange auspices, will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be held at the house at 2.30.

A BUSINESS WOMAN'S IMPRESSIONS

As Presented for the Consideration of the Ladies of Peterborough

Passing the Customs House, corner of Charlotte and George streets, one is struck with the completeness, solidity and symmetry of the new Barrie building. On entering the store occupied by Barries, Limited, the same beauty and thoroughness in all its appointments—in fact it was quite a surprise as it had not been imagined that such a store interior was to be seen outside the larger cities. The staff was quite busy. A special shipment of ladies' ready-to-wear garments in new model suits and coats, that were being priced specially for Saturday selling, attracted attention. Some notes were taken of the prices, and thought the ladies of Peterboro would be interested in them, as they were certainly appealing as to style and quality. Also we were told they would only be for sale for the one day's business, Saturday, Oct. 23rd, any left unsold would be at regular prices—just a Saturday special:

Green Broadcloth Suit,, the regular price of which was $42.50, for $34.00; Black Gaberdine Suit, Trimmed Beaver, regular $35.00, for $26.00; Brown Corduroy Suit, regular $35.00, for $20.00; Grey and Green Mixture Tweed Suit, regular $32.50, for $26.00; Grey Tweed Suits, regular $17.50, for $13.00; Green and Blue Plaid Suits, regular $27.50, for $23.00 Brown and Black Navy Serge, regular $15.00 and $16.50 for $12.50.

Winter Cloth Coats and Fur Coats were also strongly in evidence, and every article had a look of newness that is not always as apperent in most stores.

A very choice exhibit of Fur Muffs and Scarfs for early winter wear, caught the eye, that were in a distinct class as to style and general appearance. On enquiry it was learned that these sets were priced from $15.00 to $40.00.

The Barrie store might be said to be just now the Mecca for ladies of discriminating taste, and to those who know "what's what" it might be said that the exodus of shoppers to the larger centres is now quite unnecessary. 1d

Barns and Season's Crop Destroyed

Mr. John Murphy, Former on the Lakefield Road Suffers Heavy Loss

Fire destroyed the barns and outbuildings of Mr. John Murphy who resides on the Lakefield road between the sixth and seventh concession of Smith township. Included in the loss is the entire season's crop and twelve hogs that were ready for market. The blaze was first noticed yesterday at noon, and despite the efforts of a number of men the fire spread rapidly, with the above result. Some difficulty was experienced in saving the house.

AEROPLANES NO DEFENCE

Balfour Says They Are Not Alone Sufficient Against Zepps

LONDON, Oct. 22—The fact that aeroplanes alone cannot be relied upon as an adequate defence against Zeppelins and that expert naval gunners had been attached to anti-air craft batteries and searchlight stations in London were the most interesting statements made by A. J. Balfour, 1rst Lord of the Admiralty, in the course of answering a running fire of questions in the House of Commons to-day relative to preparations that had been taken to check air raids.

Bad weather, he said, had hampered the British aeroplanes during the recent Zeppelin attack, and he characterized as a legend the report that six Zeppelins appeared off Harwich on the afternoon of the same day.

ANAEMIC PEOPLE

Need More Iron in the Blood

If you are anaemic, you need more iron in your blood, and the tell-tale symptoms are a pale face, — colourless lips, ashen finger nails, poor circulation, and short breath, and more serious diseases are easily contracted when in this condition.

Mr. W. H. Hodges, of Kansas City, Mo., says:—"I suffered from the effects of bad blood, was run-down, dizzy, had headaches and did not feel like working. I had tried Beef Iron and Wine without any help. After taking Vinol four days I noticed an improvement and its continued use built up my blood and my bad feelings disappeared like magic."

The bad effects of poor, devitalized blood cannot be overestimated, and it is the peptonate of iron and the true cod liver extracts contained in Vinol, together with beef peptone, that enriches the blood, improves the circulation and in this natural manner builds up health and strength. Try it on our guarantee.

Dry Canteen Will Remain

Sir Sam Hughes' Non-Drinker Makes Best Soldier

OTTAWA, October 22.—Major-General Sir Sam Hughes was the feature of the Ontario Women's Temperance Union convention.

"I have absolutely no use for the man either in uniform or out of uniform who is a drinker," stated the Minister of Militia in the course of a brief address. He commended the work the W.C.T.U. was doing towards providing comforts for the soldiers at the front.

Sir Sam declared that over 150,000 soldiers had been trained or are in training for the war in Canada, and in no camp had the sale of liquor been allowed. "We will never allow liquor in any of our camps," he asserted. "One of the reasons why I am determined to maintain the 'dry' canteen in our military camps is because it has been demonstrated to my satisfaction that the man who does not drink is, as far as endurance is concerned, by far better than the man who indulges in intoxicants. It is because I have the welfare of the men at heart that I have determined to remove the evil from them as far as it lies in my power."

"No legislature can now have the credit of giving Ontario freedom from the liquor traffic," declared Mrs. E. A. Stevens of Toronto, in her presidential address during the afternoon. "Both sides of politics have signally failed."

British Rage and Horror Aroused at the Execution of Miss Cavell, the English Nurse

Has Done More Than Any Other Event to Strengthen Determination to Wage War Against the Kaiser to the Bitter End---Indignation in Washington.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—British rage and horror at the execution by the Germans at Brussels of the English nurse, Miss Edith Cavell, fully registered in the London press to-day, promises appreciably to affect war sentiment in Britain.

What little talk there has been lately of the possibility of restored peace is also effectually silenced.

The Cavell incident appeared to have done more than any previous event, to crystalize sentiment in favour of waging war against the Kaiser to the bitter end.

WASHINGTON SHOCKED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Officialdom to-day was shocked over the details of the execution of Miss Edith Cavell, a British nurse, by the Germans in Belgium.

Public comment is withheld of course, because of diplomatic necessity, but officials privately deeply deplored the incident.

That the United States cannot properly, on its own behalf, protest to Germany regarding Miss Cavell's death, was explained by State Department officials.

Officials clearly established that the efforts of Minister Brand Whitlock and Secretary Hugh Gibson of the American Legation in Belgium, were approved by the Administration.

That Minister Whitlock did everything possible to prevent the nurse's execution was considered beyond question.

The reported pardon by the Kaiser of Countess Jeanne de Belleville and Mme. Thuiller, two other women charged with harbouring Belgian soldiers, in whose behalf Secretary of State Lansing recently made representations, was received with satisfaction by officials here.

Indeed it was the widespread belief here that in the cases where pardons were granted, mercy was shown because condemned were French and Belgians, while that mercy was refused to Miss Cavell on account of Germany's hatred of her as an English woman.

However, there was no indication that the public's horror had been in the least modified by the pardon granted by the Kaiser, who, according to the Exchange Telegraph, has notified the King of Spain of his action, to the Countess de Belleville and Mme. Thuiller.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Serbs have fallen back on defensive positions under pressure of the enemy's heavy artillery, admitted the Serbian statement last night. Bulgars are trying to prevent a junction between the Allies and Serbs.

Provision Made For Their Food and Lodging in London

LONDON, Oct. 22.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Cathcart put a question to the Under-Secretary for War concerning the provision made for colonial soldiers in London in the way of food and lodging. The question suggested that they had no consideration paid them, except by the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Tennant, replying, detailed the number of institutions providing such wants, instancing the Victoria League Club, the Maple Leaf Club and the Majestic. He placed the Buckingham Palace Riding School at the disposal of those arriving in the early hours of the morning from the front. "My friend will see that this matter has not been neglected. To say that no consideration is paid to our fellow-countrymen from the Dominions is to create a most misleading impression."

THE KELLY'S OFFER.

Willing to Repay and Take Over the Material.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21.—In response to Attorney-General Hudson's request that the Kelly arbitration offer of repayment to the Government of moneys alleged to have been illegally received be made more specific, Edward Anderson, Kelly's counsel, has forwarded a letter, which says:

"My offer is intended to mean that Thomas Kelly and Sons are willing to repay to the Government the difference, if any, between the amount paid to them on various contracts and the fair value of work done and material in course of preparation, which, if paid for by the Government, they will be entitled to take over."

Government engineers estimate the amount at $1,250,000.

Greeks Reject Allies' Offer of the Island of Cyprus, Say Reports

Greek Attitude Will Remain Unchanged---Germans Said to Have Lost 18,000 Men and Miles of Trenches in the Eckau Region.

ATHENS, via London, Oct. 22.—A Greek rejection of the Allies' offer of the Island of Cyprus was indicated by all signs here to-day.

Premier Zaimis was quoted by the Government Journal Empos as saying the Greek attitude will remain unchanged, and all other newspapers editorially express the opinion that there has been no alteration in the situation.

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES.

GENEVA, via London, Oct. 22.—Heavy additional German losses in Russia were reported to-day in a Radom despatch to the Tribune.

They were said to have lost 18,000 men and miles of trenches in the Eckau region, along the banks of the River Aa. Southwest of the Dvina River the Russians reported continuing progress, and southwest of Dvinsk also the Germans were reported in retreat, though in good order.

For an Eckau attack, it was said, the Russians prepared by forty hours' preliminary bombardment. They had succeeded in holding all their gains, it was stated, having repulsed repeated counter attacks.

In Eastern Galicia the Czar's troops were declared to be advancing rapidly against the Austrians.

"Woman of Mystery" Placed on Trial in General Sessions

NEW YORK, Oct 21.—Mrs. Zora Emma Howe, known as "The Woman of Mystery," was placed on trial in General Sessions, on several indictments charging her with grand larcency in having obtained money by posing as the widow of Henry M. Flagler, of Florida, of the Standard Oil Company.

Mrs. Howe is alleged to have obtained $4,625 from Frank J. Mahoney, by claiming that she would receive $15,000,000 when the Flagler estate was settled.

Mrs. Howe appeared calm and confident as she took her seat in court. Her grey hair was brushed back from her forehead and her black dress was cut in a fashion of fifty years ago.

Subsequently to her arrest three months ago the district-attorney's office received communications from police at Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia and Pittsburg, stating that a woman had swindled persons by posing in those cities as the widow of Henry M. Flagler.

Lost a Load of Furniture

Defective Bridge Was the Cause —Was Moving to Peterboro'

BOBCAYGEON, Oct. 22.—Mr Chas. Nicholson, while moving to Peterborough, had the misfortune to lose a load of furniture in Pigeon Creek, the organ being all he recovered. This bridge, lying, as it does, between the Counties of Victoria and Peterborough, is on the main road from here to Peterborough. Of late years it has fallen into very bad repair as neither county seem very anxious to invest any money in its upkeep. As a consequence it is condemned and parties crossing do so at their own risk. This leaves Mr Dunn and Mr Nicholson in doubt as to whether a claim can be entered for their loss.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Mrs Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

"When water becomes ice," asked the Ladies' Home Journal teacher, "what is the great change that takes place?"

"The greatest change, ma'am," said the little boy, "is the change in price."

TRICKY FILMS CHECK CANADA'S RECRUITING

Lying Pictures Supplied Free by German Agents to All America—Going Bismarck One Better

Bismarck, "blut und eisen" Bismarck, was the man who added to German plug-ugliness the fine art of coddling, tickling, and bamboozling, and who laid down the subtle laws by which Germans could win confidence and friendship and influence. Bismarck is dead, but in the last few months Canada, simple, confiding Canada, has been the victim of the Bismarck policy. One fine day a good citizen of Toronto, enjoying a quiet hour in a movie theatre, found himself strangely moved by a film that showed the pathetic life of a young man who had joined the army. The young man found the army "cruel, hard," its discipline vicious, its officers heartless—and the young man deserting. It showed his brother helping him to desert. It showed him fleeing to his mother, a fugitive, and him holding his weeping mother in his arms. Oh, it was sad! And it showed the brother who helped the boy escape a prisoner in a cell, to be dishonorably discharged from the army.

Police Found Plot

The good citizen was deeply affected. But when he got outside, and the cars went banging by, and the crowd went busily plugging along, and amid the crowd any number of happy soldiers, the good citizen reflected and remembered that the uniforms in the film were British uniforms. The more he reflected the less he liked the film. And when he passed recruiting sergeants standing dejected on the street corners he grew hot under the collar. No wonder there were no recruits with such a film as that to scare a man or a man's wife or mother! The good citizen discussed it with others and then took it to the authorities. The police did some investigating. They found, for example, films that showed in striking dramatic form the cruelty of the Russians, the wickedness and treachery of the French.

And then, to top it all, they discovered the Bismarckian plot! German agents and forces were (and are) at work in the United States deliberately manufacturing films that set Russia, France, and Britain in the worst possible light. There was art in it—Bismarckian art. They were not out-and-out pro-German dramas. In fact, no Germans appeared in them. They were entirely set in Russia or in France or Britain, but so designed to show those countries as mean, cruel, cowardly, ignoble. Some designed for Canadian consumption showed the terror of war, the evil of the army—deliberately aimed to discourage recruiting. The police have stated these things. They have the proof of them.

Power of the Movie

Bismarck corrupted the newspapers until his "reptile press," of papers bought and controlled by him in every country of Europe, became a byword. But what more subtle course could have been followed than this latest one? Newspapers, tracts, speeches could never reach the masses of people the way a movie film can. And a movie film is gripping, dramatic, a condensed argument, straight to the heart. The German agents did not get very far with this work in Canada. It was a little too thick. But they must be having great success in the States, not hindered by any law. They can go ahead and drive the notion of Britain's perfidy, France's treachery, Russia's debauchery, into millions of heads, and so, almost unconsciously, create an anti-ally sentiment as no other means could do. It is its very silence, its dramatic simplicity that is so deadly.

The police information is that these German agents give these films free to the exchanges, making the system the more perfect. The Board of Censors in the various provinces are now barring all motion pictures dealing with war's brutal side. And they are having to be very careful, as the Germans would be quite content, if only the merest little hint or suggestion detrimental to Britain and the allies gets past. Every little counts. That's the Bismarckian way.

Holy Names in Navy

The custom of giving Bible names to men-of-war at one time prevailed extensively in the British Navy. The Goliath, however, which was sunk in the Dardanelles recently, was the only battleship which had a Biblical appellation. In the seventeenth century, however, the British naval fleet included vessels named Abraham, Benjamin, Ephraim, John the Baptist, Jonathan, King David, Ruth, and Solomon. In Nelson's time there was both an Adam and Eve and an Eden, but by then the use of Biblical names for engines of destruction began to be out of favor. One warship, commissioned in the time of Henry VIII., bore the name of Christ, and among the fighting fleet of Henry V.'s time were ships named Jesus, Holy Ghost, Peter, Paul, and Paternoster.

WHAT ONTARIO FOLKS SAY.

Hamilton, Ont.—"This is to state that I have received great benefit from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Some time ago I was run down and weak, suffered loss of appetite and was miserable. Four bottles of the 'Prescription' cured me up in fine shape; it did wonders for me and I can recommend it very highly to women who are ailing."—Miss MARIE MILLER, 127 Hess St., Hamilton, Ont.

Brantford, Ont.—"Some few years ago I got in a very much run-down condition. Was very weak; could not do anything; had no strength at all. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; I only took five bottles and it put me in splendid condition. I felt better than I had for years. Other members of my family have used this medicine and found it equally as beneficial. I can highly recommend it to weak women."—Mrs. A. GILMOUR, 71 Brighton Row, Brantford, Ont.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes women happy by making them healthy. There are no more crying spells. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well.

Like an open book, our faces tell the tale of health or disease. Hollow cheeks and sunken eyes, listless steps, sleepless nights—tell of wasting debilitating disease some place in the body. It may be one place or another, the cause is generally traceable to a common source.

Get the "Prescription" to-day—either in liquid or tablet form—if you want to better your physical condition speedily.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Keep the body clean inside as well as outside.

BATTLING AMONG CLOUDS

Alps Always Scene of Thrilling Heroism—Italy's Tasks

If the rugged peaks of the Alps could tell their story, there would be many a thrilling and warlike incident to relate; but none so strange as the scenes which are being enacted between the Austrians and the Italians in these mountainous regions. All the parapets on the steep roads, where summer tourists were wont to motor, have been demolished, and beautiful pine forests have been swept away so that nothing shall obstruct the artillery. Large areas have been mined, and, by pressing a button, the Austrians can hurl an avalanche of rocks and boulders on to the heads of the advancing Italians or blow up the roads beneath their feet.

From the Cottian chain, marking the boundary of France in the west, to the Carnic and Julian Alps, north and east of the Adriatic in Austria, there are literally a thousand passes and routes of more or less note, nearly all traversed by practicable roads, and some shortened by railway tunnels. Over these roads armies marched to battle over 2,000 years ago. Mont Cenis Pass may have been Hannibal's route when, in the year 218 B.C., the Carthaginian conqueror invaded Italy with a large army, half of which he lost amidst the Alpine snows.

The conquest of some Alpine tribes by Augustus; the desultory warfare of Teutonic and Frankish hordes, sanguinary strife of Swiss "confederates" and Austrian oppressors, which lasted from the breaking up of the Carolingian empire in the tenth and eleventh centuries until the crystillization of the Helvetic republic by Napoleon Bonaparte's Act of Mediation in 1803—all these make the Alps historic ground. When Napoleon entered Italy he crossed the Alps with an army of 30,000 by the great St. Bernard Pass, May 15-21, 1800. Later, he constructed the great military road over the Simplon Pass, from Brieg, in Switzerland, to Domodossola, in Italy, and thence to Milan.

GERMANY'S WORRIES

Excesses Among Youth and Wild Stock Speculation Are Ominous

German papers say that the behavior of the youths of Germany who are not yet old enough to serve with the colors has been most extraordinary since the beginning of the war. "While we want to render every honor to the young men of Germany who have not hesitated voluntarily to offer their lives to their country," the "Badische Schulzeitung," a prominent educational periodical, writes, "we regret to say that there are others whom we cannot condemn severely enough. On all sides we hear complaints of our young people of both sexes. Their fathers are in the trenches and their departure evidently gave the signal to a revolt in the homes. All discipline has disappeared. During recent years it has often been maintained that the authority in in the homes should rest with the mothers and that these were the only real educators of the young. This theory has now been completely upset.

"It is greatly to be feared that the future German race will not be worthy of its fathers. The police have very promptly put certain restrictions into effect in cafes and beer-gardens but might they not be equally justified in occupying themselves with the night life of our young people?" In this connection it is interesting to note that in many German towns where war prisoners' camps are located many girls in the age from 14 to 17 have been punished for writing love letters to French prisoners of war, whose acquaintance they have made when visiting the camps.

"The reckless speculation on the Berlin Exchange is a source of anxiety to the German press. The "Frankfurter Zeitung" says: "The number of the speculators increases and their operations are gambling pure and simple. The authorities certainly ought to put an end to this. It is disgusting to think that there are people who do not think of anything during these days, when we are fighting for our very existence, but to make quick and easy profits at the expense of others."

The question of the future of Poland continues to occupy the German press. With remarkable frankness "Der Tag" points out that it is a great mistake to suppose that the population of Russian Poland look upon the Germans as liberators, as some papers have tried to make it appear. "It is too early to discuss Poland's ultimate fate, but we should realize that if the Russian wave flows back into those parts the entire population will declare themselves Russians."

No beer is allowed to be sold in Munich before 5 p.m., when there are always long queues waiting outside the cafes.

There is a speed limit of twenty-five miles an hour for motor cars at the front in France.

Tremendous Possibilities.

Do you, Mr. Merchant, realize the potency of advertising? It is like gunpowder. If it is your own it may open up a gold mine for you. If it is your competitor's, it may result disastrously to you, unless you have cut the fuse with the sharp scissors of your own publicity. If your competitor is advertising, you cannot afford to neglect it; if he is not, you have a beautiful opportunity of which you should take full advantage.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SALON DIALOGUE

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

"What a pity it is," said Betty Chamberlin to me, "that Harry Ashurst is going to throw himself away on that Perkins girl!"

"What's the matter with Ida Perkins?" I asked.

"Oh, nothing," replied Betty, "only she's not half good enough for Harry."

"Why don't you interrupt the proceedings?"

"How could I do that?"

"Step in between them."

"You flatterer! One would think to hear you talk that I could have any man I want for the asking."

"So you could and not half try."

Betty tried hard to conceal the pleasure my appreciation of her powers gave her, but failed.

"There's one man I couldn't"—

"Who?"

"The first letter of his first name is J."

"That's because you never tried." My first name is James.

"Perhaps I will."

"What would poor Harry do in the meanwhile? He would be swallowed up by Ida Perkins."

"Oh, that affair could wait."

"When are you going to begin on me?"

"You? Oh, you can wait too. Good morning. Come and see me soon. I have things to tell you."

"Very soon. Goodby!"

This scrap of conversation, which I am free to admit was not concentrated wisdom, occurred at the glove counter of Jones', where I met Miss Chamberlin. The next time I saw her was at Mrs. Winters' salon, so called from the brilliant dialogues that take place there. Betty was tied to Ashurst. He was a graduate of a scientific school and could drown her in a pool of ideas seven feet deep. I was sandwiched between two girls directly behind them. We conversed with one another, but had our ears open for what Ashurst and Betty were saying. One of the girls beside me was Ida Perkins. The only remark that could be considered to refer to the couple in front of us was made by Ida. It was this:

"Why do you bright men get stuck in the honey of stupid girls?"

"Leave out the 'you,' and I will answer the question," I replied.

But she wouldn't, and I confess I would not have been pleased if she had.

Betty made a lodgment with Ashurst at that salon, and this is the way she did it.

"I have heard, Mr. Ashurst," she was saying, "that you are not one of the kind to feel certain of anything and that you never force your opinions on any one."

"Confound those persons who know everything!" grunted Ashurst.

"So say I—that is, I mean persons who don't know as much as other persons who know a great deal, but are not constantly trying to show it off."

This was a trifle mixed, but Ashurst didn't seem to mind it.

"Some of the women here make me laugh," Betty went on. "They think they're quite wise. Don't they tire you, Mr. Ashurst?"

"I don't know; some of them do."

"I heard one of them just now talking about the big European war. She said the allies had the best generals, only they had been short of ammunition."

"Which allies?"

"Why, I suppose she meant—is there more than one ally?"

I saw Ida Perkins and Belle Townsend—Belle was the other side of the sandwich that had me for a middle—look at each other. Fortunately for Betty a lady passed her, bidding her good evening and making a remark about the weather. So Bet was not obliged to go any further into the military problems of the great war. Indeed, it had not been her intention to do so. She had become inadvertently drawn into it by attempting to hold up one of her rivals in an unfavorable light.

"Are you fond of motoring, Mr. Ashurst?" was her next remark. "I don't suppose you are. At least no busy a man as you is not likely to have time to enjoy himself."

Ashurst was the scientific adviser of a gigantic manufacturing corporation. He looked relieved that Betty should have spared him the trouble of answering the question she had asked him. Bet has beautiful eyes and knows that they serve her a better purpose than her tongue, for unfortunately the latter member cannot wag without drawing on her brain.

"The reason why I asked you if you were fond of motoring is that I have a car, and if you could spare me some afternoon about 4 o'clock"—

"I should be very happy," was the reply.

"Don't you think an ice would cool us? These rooms are very warm."

They arose and went elsewhere. Bet had caught sight of Ida in rather too close proximity to suit her.

The next time I saw Betty I congratulated her on her engagement to Ashurst. "Didn't I tell you," I said, "that you could if you tried?"

"What's this I hear about you and Ida Perkins?" she asked, looking at me anxiously.

"Oh, we're engaged too."

I have never since regained the place I occupied in Betty's good graces. I don't see why. Surely she could not have Ashurst and me too. Perhaps if I had married any but the girl she robbed of another man she might have remained my friend.

Well, up to now people with these chest and throat troubles have swallowed cough mixtures, sickly syrups and the like, into their stomachs. Sore lungs and throat get no good by dosing the stomach. Peps work differently.

Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. THE CZARINA

The Czarina's popularity in Russia has been enormously increased since the war on account of the work that she has been doing for the Russian Red Cross.

It is interesting to recall that Her Majesty once had an extraordinary experience for a Royal personage while on a visit to Germany. She was out shopping one day, attended only by one lady companion, and she had hoped to remain unrecognized by the people. While she was making some purchases in a jeweller's shop, however, the news of her identity got abroad, and in a very few moments there was a large crowd outside the premises.

Exit through the front door was out of the question, so the Czarina asked the jeweller to let herself and her companion out at the back of the shop.

The jeweller replied that that was impossible, as the back yard was enclosed by a very high boarding which would effectually cut off their retreat.

"That does not matter," said the Empress. "Get us a ladder, and we will climb over it."

A ladder was brought, and the Czarina and her companion rushed up it, climbed over the boarding, jumped into a quiet street, and made their escape as quickly as they could.

SMOKE SCREENS

A Naval Scheme Adopted During Naval Warfare

The accuracy of modern naval gunnery is so marvellous that the only hope for a ship to escape being sunk when within range of the guns is to hide itself. That is easier said than done, however, and there is only one way in which it can be done, and that is by means of a "smoke screen." It is hard for one ship to hide herself behind her own smoke, unless the wind is favorable, but for a number of ships to put a huge fog of black smoke between them and their pursuers is comparatively easy.

The smoke is caused by oil fuel, and it can be turned off or on at will by supplying more or less air to the furnaces. It is so dense and black that it is quite impossible to see more than a few yards through it. It will be remembered that Admiral Sir David Beatty mentioned the German smoke screen in his despatch of the battle of the North Sea. To use his own words, "The enemy's destroyers emitted vast columns of smoke to screen their battle cruisers, and under cover of this the latter altered their course."

German military aviators, too, explode smoke balls in the rear of their machines, so that, when hotly pursued, they can hide their movements and escape.

Huge Swiss Trade Gone

The committee of proprietors of some of the 3,500 hotels devoted to the tourist trade in Switzerland have asked the government to create a system of mortgages on their furniture and buildings, interest to start two years after the war. Their condition is desperate, as business has dropped to nothing. Every year tourists paid a hundred billion dollars to Switzerland. The hotels had a capital of a quarter of a million dollars and a pay-roll of 42,000 persons.

FLUORINE A RABID GAS.

Nothing Can Resist the Power of This Chemical Fury.

The fury of the chemical world is the element fluorine, although, strangely enough, it exists peacefully in company with calcium in fluorspar and tiny in a few other compounds.

Although this element was known and named a good while ago, it long resisted the efforts of chemists to isolate it, for the instant the compound containing it was torn apart the free fluorine attacked and combined with whatever substance composed the vessel containing it. It was finally isolated by the great French chemist Moissan.

Fluorine is a rabid gas that nothing can resist. It combines with all metals, explosively with some, or if they are already combined with some other noumetallic element it mercilessly tears them away from it and takes them to itself.

Iron filings slightly warm burst into brilliant scintillations when exposed to it. Manganese does the same. Even the noble metals, which at melting heat proudly resist the fascinations of oxygen, succumb to this chemical siren at moderate temperatures.

Glass is devoured at once and water ceases to be water by contact with this gas, which, combined with its hydrogen, at the same moment forms the rapid, glass dissolving hydrofluoric acid and liberates ozone.

Even hydrofluoric acid eats into and destroys every known substance except platinum and lead.

RESEARCH DISCLOSES NO REAL CRIMINAL TYPE

The nation-wide interest now being taken in the crime problem is due largely to one fact. It is due to increasing public appreciation that there is no such thing as a criminal type, and that criminals are the product of a great variety of influences, nearly all of which can be controlled.

In the light of recent scientific research we are hearing less and less of the old idea that criminals are a class apart, that they are the hopeless victims of a degenerate heredity, and that society's sole concern is to catch them and confine them where they can do no harm.

To-day it is known that criminals differ from one another as markedly as do the ordinary, non-criminal members of any community.

Also it is known that, like the latter, their evolution is, as a rule, governed by conditions in which heredity plays only a secondary part, or does not enter in at all.

And it is further known that the ascertaining of these conditions, as they apply in any particular case, may mean the redemption of the particular criminal.

Consequently the modern criminologist is not content with touring jails and penitentiaries, photographing their inmates, studying the skull formations of these unfortunates, and on the basis of other anthropometric observations classifying them into this or that degree of degeneracy.

The modern criminologist studies criminals in detention cell and court-room. He seeks especially an opportunity to study them when they are still young, and just launching on a career of crime. Moreover, he is far less interested in the shape of their heads than in the working of their minds, the condition of their physical health, and the kind of home training they have received.

The question of whether they are well or badly nourished is of profound importance to him. Even such a seemingly trifling matter as the state of their eyes, ears, nose, mouth and teeth, excites his anger attention.

Whenever he is in doubt he calls some specialist to his aid—physician, physiologist, psychologist or psychiatrist, as the case may be.

All this the modern criminologist does because he recognizes that the important thing is, not to classify the criminal, but to learn, if possible, why he acts criminally, and if possible correct the conditions responsible for his criminality.

For the criminologist knows that criminality is far more than a matter of inheritance—that, likely every other kind of conduct, it is also determined by training, environment and health, sometimes, indeed, by exceedingly slight conditions of physical disease.

It is this shifting of emphasis from the study of criminals as a class to the study of the individual criminal in all his psychic and physical complexities, that accounts chiefly for the present public interest in the crime problem.

This interest is certain to grow steadily, for the reason that the new individualistic criminology has already proved its worth by restoring to useful membership in society many a criminal whom the old criminology would have considered beyond hope.—H. Addington Bruce.

THIS SCHOOL GIRL HAD BAD FAINTING SPELLS

Was Weak and Run Down. But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made Complete Cure

The most critical time in a girl's life comes during the school age, when she is impelled by rivalry to put forth her best efforts in studying for examinations. At the time she should have healthful outdoor exercise and abundance of fresh air, to keep the blood pure and rich, she is confined to her studies. Is it any wonder that she becomes run down in health and suffers from headaches, indigestion, loss of appetite and spells of weakness or fainting?

The case described in this letter is a good illustration and you can read here the splendid results of using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to help through this critical period.

"While attending school my daughter became weak and very much run down. She was frequently troubled with bad fainting spells, and nothing we tried seemed to do her any good. We were advised to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and did so with most satisfactory results. I am pleased to tell you that after using five boxes of the Nerve Food she was completely cured, and has no return of the fainting spells."

This statement is certified to by Mr. Hamilton Houston, Justice of the Peace.

The reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so effective in cases of this kind is because of its extraordinary blood-forming influence. By creating an abundance of rich, red blood it strengthens the action of the heart, revitalizes the exhausted nerves and builds up the system in every way.

The appetite is restored, digestion improves, you rest and sleep well, and the new vigour and energy is felt in every organ of the human body. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing wonders for men, women and children whose systems have become weak and run down. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its colour and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays, we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Czar Works Hard In Simple Life At Battle Front

Headquarters Are in Small Two-Storey House in a White City

PETROGRAD, Oct. 20.—The following authorized description of the Emperor's life at the front has reached Petrograd.

"Headquarters have been established in a small two-storey house in a white Russian city, the name of which is necessarily omitted. Emperor Nicholas occupies two rooms on the second floor—one as a bedroom and the other as an office. On the same floor are Minister of the Court Gen. Baron Fredericks and Palace Commandant Gen Voekoff, each of whom occupies a single room. On the first floor are the Emperor's physicians and various persons of his suite. The number of servants has been cut to the minimum.

"Near the house, in Government buildings and hotels, live Grand Dukes Cyril and Boris and Dimitri Palovitch and others of the temporary court.

Discusses Events.

"At nine o'clock in the morning the Emperor, attired in a field uniform, walks to the offices of the General Staff, accompanied by one of his officers. With Gen Alexieff, chief of staff, the Emperor reads the reports and issues orders until 1 p.m. He informs himself concerning the conditions on all parts of the immense front. Examines maps and discusses events. To the luncheon in the Emperor's quarters are invited the high military officers and the foreign military observers, altogether a dozen persons. The luncheon is brief and simple. No wine is served.

"After luncheon the Emperor chats with his guests. Two o'clock finds the Emperor and Gen. Alexieff again occupied with reports in the Emperor's private office. In mid-afternoon the Emperor motors for an hour or two and then returns to work until dinner is served at 7.30 o'clock. The dinner is of three courses and is less formal than the luncheon.

"At nine o'clock in the evening after brief conversations with the guests, the Emperor returns to his office and works far into the night. Gen. Alexieff frequently going there for a conference. The general staff works night and day."

TRIBUTES TO BRITISH FLEET

LONDON, Oct 23.—"For six months no hostile flag has flown outside the Baltic. We are stronger than ever, and comparably better adapted for war conditions," in these words Winston Spencer Churchill, ex-First Lord of the Admiralty, on this, the anniversary of Trafalgar Day, declared his unswerving faith in the final victory to be won for allied arms through the instrumentality of the incomparable British fleet. "From its shrouded throne amid northern storms," he continues, "the grand fleet dominates, and will finally decide the fate of the warring nations, and by that formidable combination, strength and patience, will secure the victory of our just cause. On land good days have not yet come. The valiant Russian front wears thin, the French and British offensive has pierced, but has not ruptured the German fortified lines."

A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, has made the following Trafalgar Day Statement: "Germany aims at world domination, and against world domination the British fleet from the time of Queen Elizabeth to the present day has always been found the surest and most effectual protection."

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

The plain skirt is always in demand. It serves for a walking skirt, for part of a coat costume and for a guide in making many variations when using new material and when altering old garments.

The design herewith shown has four gores. These are so adjusted that they form a wide, plain panel in the front and also in the back. The wide side gores are fitted at the top with a long dart, but if preferred this need not be taken up, and the very trifling fulness thus left can be held in with a few gathers. At the lower edge of each seam is a small pleat, and this gives sufficient play to the skirt for convenience when walking.

The matter of the waistline is left to the choice of the individual, but the normal line is perhaps newest, and the length is also to be adjusted to the taste of the wearer. Most of the new walking skirts are five inches from the ground for every one, and the slender woman with a well shaped foot can wear it even shorter, while heavier women whom this length would cause to appear chunky can add an inch or two to this length.

The materials which are used for separate skirts are the same as those which are embodied in suits. They include serge and gabardine, poplin, velveteen and the like.

The skirt pattern, No. 7,514, is cut in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 2⅝ yards of 54 inch material.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

POSITIONS FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—The interprovincial conference dealing with the returned soldiers problem continued its work here and discussed the various suggestions set forth in the concrete plan of the enlarged Hospitals Commission. While the provincial ministers are disposed to discuss at length the different proposals there is substantial concurrence with them.

The conference will conclude this evening. Considerable time has been devoted to the classification of various occupations open for the men frm the front and the methods to be employed in securing these positions.

All Government positions, where there are men with the necessary qualifications among the returned soldiers, will be given them.

This applies to both Federal and provincial governments and municipal authorities are to be requested to adopt a similar policy.

All corporations, financial, transportation and industrial, will be asked to place at the disposal of the commission a list of positions vacant and those that will be vacant or created. In filling these the corporations are asked to place the right of selection in the hand of the commission.

Ready-Made arms.

Nothing definite has been arrived at regarding a land settlement scheme for returned soldiers. One of the propositions is to adopt in the west and Ontario and Quebec, the ready-made farm scheme put into effect by the New Brunswick Government. On the prairie this would be financed by the Federal Government and in other provinces by provincial authorities. Soldiers' homes for the totally incapacitated will be established in the west and east. In all probability there will be one placed in Alberta for the west, another in Ontario and another in Quebec for that and the Maritime provinces.

A proposal before the conference is to form a commission for each province to care for the returned soldiers who have enlisted from that province when the land will be taken care of by the Federal Commission until the wish of the men and their qualifications are known. If positions are available in the province from which the men come, they will be sent on to the provincial commissions, but if not the central body will provide. These provincial commissions will be named by the provincial government.

CALLS TONSILS THE BELGIUM OF BODY

NEW YORK, Oct 20.—That the tonsils, as an outpost of the body against invasion by bacteria of disease occupy much the same position as Belgium in the present European war, is asserted by Dr. R. G. Eccles, of Brooklyn, in the current issue of the Medical Record. Dr. Eccles disputes the theory that the tonsils are functionless organs—unless relics of an earlier state of being. He condemns their indiscriminate removal as surgical insanity."

Dr. Eccles declares that the mere fact that the tonsils are liable to infection is no reason for their removal. The leucocytes, the "soldiers of the blood," are found in them in large numbers, ready to resist the attacks of the micro-organisms of disease.

"The tonsils are the first open doors for the leucocytes through which to perform their most efficient work of salvation," he says. They lie near the entrance of the digestive tract and their structure is such that it could not well be improved upon for the most facile way of conducting such a campaign. It shows the utmost preparedness for facilitating the transportation of leucocytic troops and for their return with prisoners to the detention camps, where they can be utilized to the best advantage of the body.

"Poor Belgium is at present performing the tonsil function in war-cursed Europe. We can see with what tragic results to her people she is compelled to take this part. If, because of the state of inflammation in Belgium and because over her soil invading armies passed to produce a similar febrile condition in France, the French people should blame the Belgians for their troubles and earnestly advocate the destruction of the whole people of Belgium, what would we think of their intelligence?

"With all the muddled logic the war has produced, nothing quite so muddled has been proposed as the massacre of the entire Belgian people to avoid future repetitions of diseased conditions.

"Yet this is the kind of logic by which tonsils have been sacrificed, making it impossible for them ever to regenerate or to take part in the future weal of the body.

"When the armies have been removed and industry has been re-established, there will be regeneration to heal the injuries and to restore the usefulness to mankind of these poor people. It is exactly thus with tonsils, unless new diseases appear."

Shakespeare Not Able to Pass An English Exam!

Shakespeare scarcely knew enough of what is called English by education departments to get beyond a kindergarten, according to Prof. Stephen Leacock, of McGill University, speaking on "The Teaching of English," before the annual convention of the Protestant Teachers of Quebec.

"It is an amazing fact but it is nevertheless true," said Professor Leacock "that Mr Rudyard Kipling and Sir James Barrie would fail hopelessly in English if they tried to have the entrance examination of any Canadian university. King George, from whom presumably the King's English flows as from its fountain source, might get perhaps half way through a Canadian high school in the subject.

"As for Shakespeare, I doubt if he knew enough of what is called English by our education departments to get beyond a kindergarten. As to passing an examination on one of his own plays, such as is set for a Canadian matriculation, he couldn't have done it: he hadn't the brains,—at least not the kind of brains that are needed for it.

Not Exaggerations.

"These are not exaggerations, they are facts. I admit that when the facts are not good enough, I always exaggerate them. This time they don't need it.

"Our study of English—not merely in this province but all over North America except in happy Mexico,—begins with years and years of the silly stuff called grammer and rhetoric. All the grammer that any human being ever needs or that is of any use as an intellectual training, can be learned in a few weeks from a little book as thin as a Ritz-Carlton sandwich. All the rest of the solid manuals on the subject is mere stodge. It serves no other purpose than to put royalties into the pockets of the dull pedants who elaborate it.

"Rhetoric is worse. It lays down laws for the writing of sentences and paragraphs about as reasonable and as useful as a set of directions telling how to be a gentleman, or how to have a taste for tomatoes.

The Last Stage.

"Then comes English Literature. This is the last stage, open only to minds that have already been debilitated by grammar and rhetoric.

"We actually proceed on the silly supposition that you can 'examine' a person in English literature, to get it out of him so to speak in the course a two hours' inquisition. We ask him to distinguish the 'styles' of different authors as he would the color of their whiskers. We expect him to divide up authors into 'schools' and to sort them out as easily as a produce-merchant classifies fish.

"The truth is that you cannot examine in English in this way, or only at the cost of killing the very thing that you wish to create. The only kind of examination in the subject I can think of would be to say to the pupil, for example, 'Have you like it?' and when he answered that like it?'; and when he answered that he didn't care for it but that his uncle read it all the time, to send a B.A. degree to his uncle.

"We make our pupils spend about two hours a day for ten years in the silly pursuit of what we call English, and yet at the end of it we wonder that our students have less real appreciation of literature in them than when they read a half dime novel for sheer artistic joy of it."

Mrs. White's Accused Murderer At Brockville Makes That Defence.

Brockville, Oct 21.—The trial on a murder charge of James Grant Kilborn is being held before Justice Sutherland in the Assizes here.

The crime of which Kilborn is accused occurred on March 24 last, when Mrs. Annie White, an aged woman who, with her husband, James White, had been occupying part of Kilborn's house, was shot in the abdomen with a shot gun carried by Kilborn, dying from her injury two hours later. Witnesses state that there was bad blood between the two families, and the Whites were just moving out when the killing occurred. Kilborn has pleaded not guilty, the defence being accidental shooting. Mrs. Male, daughter of the deceased, testifying to that effect.

HARD HIT AT HYPHENS.

American Banker Reminds Ridder of Mourning Over Lusitania.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Publication by the Staats-Zeitung of the names of four banking firms within a mourning border, as German-American houses which had helped the enemies of the Fatherland to obtain a loan of $500,000,000 in this country, brought a caustic answer from J. & W. Seligman & Co., one of the four named. After calling Herman Ridder's attention to the fact that the members of the firm "are not German- nor yet German-Americans, but unqualified, unadjectived Americans," the firm says in a letter sent to the Staats-Zeitung:

"While not readers of the Staats-Zeitung, we are under the impression that there was no mourning border in the middle of your front page, when American children and American women entitled to the sympathy and protection of every true American, were, together with their fathers, husbands, and brothers, deliberately and heartlessly murdered by the sinking of the Lusitania.

"That black mourning border you seem to have reserved for American bankers seeking to render a disinterested service to their country by helping to keep its industries going through credits to its foreign customers."

German Officers Got Away From U.S. Port

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—A clue was received by the Navy Department today in the search for Koch and Kronck, of the interned German raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich. They were seen here last Sunday taking a train for New York in the Pennsylvania station. By a peculiar coincidence a naval officer saw and talked with the fleeing men. Authorities of the New York Navy Yard and also Department of Justice agents were today asked to search there for the fugitives, who are believed to have planned to sail for some neutral European port.

SERBIANS REPULSE AUSTRO-GERMANS

The Eneny Suffers Heavy Losses In Balkans

AUSTRO-GERMANS LOSE 60,000 MEN IN THEIR ATTACK UPON SERBIANS

Serbian Legation Receives Message That Invaders Have Been Repulsed---Occupation of Vranja by the Bulgarians is Denied---The Cavell Case Has Shocked the World--One of the Most Shocking and Atrocious Incidents of the War.

FOE REPULSED ON THE WESTERN FRONT

ATHENS, via London, Oct. 22.—"The Serbians have repulsed the Austro-Germans on the north Serbian frontier with enemy casualties of sixty thousand," announced a message from Nish to the Serbian Legation here to-day.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Serbian Government will remain at Nish, the Legation here announced to-day.

PARIS, (Official) Oct. 22.—"A German attack on our salients southwest of Fort Givenchy has been repulsed," said the official report issued here to-day.

"We also easily repulsed the enemy in the Souches district.

"Replying to violent German bombardment west of Tahure, east of Massil Till, and at Ville Sur Tourbe, we partly silenced German batteries.

"Our artillery and mines have entirely destroyed a German post in the Argonne."

French aeroplanes have bombarded the German aviation port at Gunel, between Argonne and Meuse.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Serbians were resisting the Teutonic invasion from the north more energetically than ever to-day. They reported throwing the invaders back at various points.

That the Austro-Germans were at least in trouble was believed. It was pointed out that they themselves told of no appreciable advance.

News that the Serbians were not now going to remove their capital from Nish was thought to corroborate their stories of a better situation.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Swedish submarine Havelon was fired upon yesterday morning off Vetad by a German submarine, which mistook her for a British vessel.

The mate was seriously, and a sailor slightly wounded.

The submarine was slightly damaged.

The Swedish Minister at Berlin has been instructed to make vigorous protest.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Kumanoyo's occupation by the Bulgarians was officially announced from Berlin this afternoon. The town is about midway between Serbia's eastern and western frontiers, on the railway which connects with the Nish-Salonika line.

The Allan liner Pomeranian which went ashore yesterday near Havre, was refloated to-day without assistance, and has reached port safely. The Pomeranian was bound from Montreal to London.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—"The Cavell case," says the Birmingham Post, "shows that the high German military and judicial administrative authorities are all tarred with the same brush as the common soldiers who murdered, raped and looted their way through Belgium."

Among the characteristic expressions used by London evening newspapers in commenting on the Cavell case are:

"Secret savagery." "Insatiable bestiality." "Unspeakable ruthlessness." "Frightfulness without mercy." "Foul minded brutality." "Arrogant barbarism." "The name of Cavell will become the British battle cry."

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—These casualties were announced at noon to-day: Second Battalion—Killed in action October 16, Rorace George Pigot, England; died of wounds October 12, Henry Sorrette, St. Malo, France; wounded, Corp. Harold Cunningham, St. John N.B.; John Legg and Wm. Reynold, England.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—For the first time for several months the Militia Department to-day issued an official non-day casualty list, and it is thought here that the Canadians of the first division have recently been in more active fighting than the usual trench defence provides. There are several casualties from the First and Second Battalions, which form part of the Ontario Infantry Brigade in the First Contingent. No further details have been received by the Department here than contained in the official casualty list.

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—By the close vote of 13 to 12 the Toronto Recruiting League to-day decided to ask Premier Borden to make a public appeal to Canadians to increase Canada's overseas army to 300,000 men.

The opposition to the motion, declared that it was telling Lord Kitchener and Sir Sam Hughes how to run the Empire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—"It is one of the most shocking and atrocious incidents, that any war of modern times has disclosed," was the comment of Oscar Straus, the noted peace advocate, here to-day, upon the execution of Edith Cavell, a British nurse in Belgium. "It is another evidence in line with the destruction of the Lusitania that, Germany has no appreciation of the public conscience of the world."

ATHENS, Oct. 22.—A message denies the Bulgarian occupation of Vranja Velasa and Jnapavatof, but confirmed the fall of Istip and Kotzana. The despatch was accompanied by a personal message from Premier Pasitch saying that if sufficient help from the Allies arrives soon ultimate victory may be expected.

INSURANCE ACT FAILS.

Partial Breakdown of Machinery Owing to War.

LONDON, Oct. 22. — The partial breakdown of the machinery of Lloyd George's famous Insurance Act for protecting the working classes against illness and unemployment is one of the incidents of the upheaval of financial conditions caused by the war.

The simple reason for the failure is that expenses have far exceeded the original estimates. The building of sanitaria for consumptives at a cost of $7,500,000 was an important feature which has not been realized because of lack of funds to build. The doctors of the United Kingdom have profited greatly through the Insurance Act, according to popular belief. Before the Act came into force newly fledged doctors thought themselves fortunate if they could earn from $750 to $1,000 by assisting older practitioners. Under the Act many young men are credited with earning from $5,000 to $7,000, the fortunate ones being those whose surgeries are situated in the poorer class and working class districts. The doctors have a strong counter-balancing grievance in the slowness of the Government to pay them. Most of the accounts of the year 1914 have not been settled yet.

Inquisitive Ichabod—"Father, what is the difference between a fort and a fortress?"

Professor Diggendelve—"Fortress, my son, is feminine. So called because nobody ever knows just how to take it."

1200 PACKAGES OF TOBACCO FOR PETERBORO' BOYS

Local Branch of the Overseas Club Tobacco Fund is Shipping 300 Lbs. of Tobacco and 60,000 Cigarettes to Local Soldiers

A MEETING TO-NIGHT

The Examiner is pleased to state that the Peterborough branch of the Overseas Club Tobacco Fund are sending this week, to the Peterborough boys at the front, 300 lbs. of tobacco and 60,000 cigarettes. The tobacco and cigarettes will be put up in twelve hundred packages, each containing 1-4 lb. tobacco, 50 cigarettes (supplied by Tuckett's Co., Hamilton), 1 box matches, supplied by Martins Co., London, Eng., and a post card with the name and address of a Peterborough donor. These cards are all addressed in Peterborough by the Overseas Club, and we would be pleased if all those who have not turned in their books would do so. All money should be turned in to Mr. R. W. Travers, Bank of Montreal, Treas. of Fund, who will receipt the books. This book should then be turned in to the secretary.

A general meeting of all those who are interested in sending tobacco to the Peterborough boys, will be held to-night, Friday, Oct. 22nd, at 8 p.m. in the Bank of Montreal chambers.

Earl Grey Interested.

Earl Grey has taken an active interest in the work of the Overseas Club ever since its formation, and as one of the Vice-Presidents, has recently written to the Hon. Secretary and organizer, expressing his delight at the work accomplished in connection with the tobacco fund. He makes special reference to the sums contributed from Canada.

Mr. Francis R. Jones, Windsor Hotel, Montreal, who is organizing the work in the Dominion has furnished us with a copy of the letter, which we have the pleasure in reproducing:

Oct. 1st, 1915.

"Dear Mr. Wrench,—I am much interested to learn of the splendid response which the Overseas Club has received from the Dominion of Canada to its appeal to provide tobacco and cigarettes for our brave men at the front. A total of £61,000 collected from all parts of the Empire in twelve months is a result of which I think we can all be proud.

I was particularly interested to hear that such a large sum ($50,000) has come from Canada. I feel sure that it was a very wise move on your part, making arrangements to supply Canadian manufactured tobacco for Canadian troops.

The fact that the central organization of the Overseas Club has administered this large sum of money without deducting anything whatever or expenses from the generous subscriptions of residents overseas, is, I am sure, one of the contributory causes to the great success of the Overseas Tobacco Fund.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.) GREY.

Only One Day More

Eye Specialist at Warne's Jewelry Store, Closes His Visit Saturday Night

Eyesight sufferers are reminded that Saturday will be the last day for consulting Mr. Frederick W. Mayor, the eye specialist, at S. C. Warne's jewellery store, 340 George Street. The opportunity should not be lost because of the value it may be to those who desire a demonstration of Mr. Mayor's "Shadow Test" for looking into the eye. Go early Saturday and have a satisfactory examination.

$700 More Needed To Complete Band Fund

Last night's concert netted about $300 for the Overseas' Band Fund. The exact figure will not be known untill all the tickets have been returned. During the concert Mr. W. F. Johnston, Secretary of the Peoples' Patriotic League in acknowledging the obligations of the League to Mr. Renwick and those who took part in the programme, and to Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons for giving the Opera House free of charge, stated that it was desired to raise $1,000 for the Band Fund. It was the wish of the league to see that the Peterborough Overseas' Band was equipped in the best possible manner, worthy of the splendid band that had volunteered for active service. A band was absolutely necessary for recruiting purposes, he remarked, and was one of the best gifts that could be made to the boys going to the front. He appealed for further support from the citizens of Peterborough, and remarked that donations could be left at the Bank of Toronto or at The Examiner Office.

A WRIST WATCH IS PRESENTED TO LITTLE RECRUITING SERGEANT

Master Percy Luther Acknowledges Gift by Addressing the Peterborough Battalion---Soldiers' Soccer Team Defeated Normalites Yesterday by One Goal to Nil--To-day's Military News.

Master Percy Luther, the little recruiting sergeant of the Peterborough Battalion, who is leaving early next month for Montreal, was yesterday presented with a very handsome wrist watch by the band and physical drill squad of the battalion, as a mark of appreciation of his services as an entertainer and as a recruiting medium. The youngster has accompanied the band and squad on most of their out-of-town trips, and his recitations have been of great assistance in stimulating recruiting.

This morning Master Luther expressed his appreciation of the gift. By permission of Lt.-Col. Johnston, he addressed the whole company on parade thanking the men for their gift and expressing his gratitude towards them for their many kindnesses. Although he wasn't big enough to fight, he said he wanted to do all he could for his country. He would be sorry to depart from the Peterborough soldiers and would watch the papers eagerly for news of them.

In conclusion the little recruiting sergeant recited the following verses written for him by a member of The Examiner staff:

Somewhere in Belgium or in France,
Playing the game and taking a chance,
A lad from Canada paid the price
That even the bravest can't pay twice.
Gave up his life for liberty,
Fighting hard for you and me.
And o'er his grave a cross of wood,
His comrades raised as best they could,
On which they carved in letter tall
This appeal that should come home to all:
"Poor old Bill, he left his place
With smoking gun and smiling face.
But Bill won't mind if some good chap
Will follow up and fill the gap.

Peterborough's sons who heard the call
Of King and country and left all.
To fight for Sacred Honour's sake
Have shown the way for all to take.
Brave Bennett and those who followed him
Unto St. Julien's battle grim,
Offering their lives without a thought
Of screaming shell or numbing shot,
Charging the foe with spirits high
Ready to fight and ready to die,
Have left a job we must see through.
So men of Peterborough its up to you.
Come on, come on, we want you chaps
To follow up and fill the gaps.

Master Luther's mother has asked The Examiner to express on her behalf her sincere thanks to the officers and men of the Peterborough Battalion for the many kindnesses they have shown her son.

The officers of the company, however, feel that no thanks are due, and that the little fellow has done a great work in Peterborough and district in arousing a patriotic sentiment. "One of his recitations has as good an effect as any speech I have heard," remarked Lt.-Col. Johnston this morning.

In spite of their long route march yesterday morning the Peterborough Battalion soccer team had enough steam left to beat the eleven representing the Normal School in a hard fought game at Nicholls Oval yesterday afternoon. The soldiers won by one goal to nil after a battle royal, full of exciting features. Neither side lacked for supporters as the students turned out in force to cheer for their team, while the men in khaki were on hand to encourage their soldier comrades. The soldiers had the better of the cheering as well as of the playing, contributing several of their marching songs including "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," "In the Trench," and "When the Roll Is Called in Berlin," while "I didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier," was a number that the male members of the student body failed to appreciate.

There was little to choose between the two teams. The Normal team were faster and had the better of the play in midfield, where they showed some clever combination, but they fell down when close in, and Sergt. Calladine, who played his usual brilliant game between the posts for the soldiers, had little trouble in saving. The soldiers' defence was strong, and although they were outplayed on the forward line, the men in khaki had a shade on the play as a whole. The only goal was scored half way through the second half, Sergt. King beating the students' goalie on a penalty kick.

The soldiers' team lined us as follows:

Goal—Sergt. Calladine.
Backs—Lance-Corp. Coleman, Pte. Norman.
Half backs—Pte. Kitchen, Sergt. King, Pte. McMillan.
Forwards — Pte. Wilshaw, Pte. Shaw, Sergt. Hartshorn, Pte. Hardman, Pte. Clappinson.

Alex. McKinlay was a satisfactory referee.

The return game will be played at Nicholls Oval a week from to-morrow.

The soldiers would like to arrange soccer games with other local teams. Arrangements can be made by calling Sergt. King over the telephone at the Armouries.

Local teams who have disbanded, but who have some uniforms left on their hands would make a hit with the soldiers by presenting them with some knickers and jerseys.

Sergt. Major Miller, Pte. H. Hatcher, and Master Percy Luther, the little recruiting sergeant, were in attendance at the patriotic concert in Millbrook last night. Pte. Hatcher and Master Luther contributed to the programme, and the former's songs and the latter's recitations made a big hit.

Among the latest recruits to join the Peterborough Battalion are the following:

Chas. J. Taylor, Havelock.
Robert J. Morris, Indian River.
Walter Peace, Brownton P.O.
Rupert S. Donnell, Aylmer street.

Mr. and Mrs Isadore Darrah, 540 Chamberlen Street, have received word that their son, Pte. D. H. Darrah, who left Canada with the 1st draft of the 8th C.M.R., to reinforce the Strathcona Horse, has been transferred to the 1st C. M. R., Machine Gun Section, and is now at the front in France. He would be pleased to hear from his many friends. His address is—

Pte. D. H. Darrah (No. 112011)
1st C. M. R.,
Machine Gun Section,
2nd Canadian Division,

PEOPLE'S CONCERT A GRAND SUCCESS

Grand Opera House Packed to the Doors For Entertainment in Aid of the Overseas Band Fund—A Magnificent Programme.

RECEPTION TO SOLDIERS

The concert arranged by Mr. J. H. Renwick and presented in the Grand Opera House last night under the auspices of the Speakers Patriotic League in aid of the overseas band fund was most happily named the Peoples Popular Concert"—in fact so popular was the entertainment that every seat in the big theatre was occupied. The concert was, therefore, a huge financial, as well as an artistic success, and the band fund will be considerably augmented as a result. The audience began to gather early, and at 7:30 o'clock there was not a vacant seat downstairs. Before 8 o'clock the upper gallery was opened and the seating accommodation there was quickly taken up.

Seldom has such a varied and altogether delightful programme been presented to a Peterborough audience as had been arranged by Mr. Renwick for last evening's function.

A feature was the presence of three of Peterborough's returned soldiers, Ptes. Ernest Mesley and Chas. Stenson of the 2nd Canadian Battalion, and Pte. M. Mowry of the 21st Canadian Battalion, who were given a most enthusiastic reception by the huge audience. Pte. J. Langley of the 21st Battalion was unable to be present to share with his comrades in the honour of the occasion.

The three heroes, wearing mufti, occupied one of the gayly decorated boxes. When they were called upon the stage the audience gave them an ovation.

Mayor Buller on behalf of the city, extended a formal welcome home to the three soldiers. The citizens of Peterborough, His Worship remarked, were proud of all three, and hoped that they would soon be returned to health and strength.

Hon. Major Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, expressed the feelings of the militia of Peterborough in regard to the boys who were back from the front. Of Pte Mowry he said that while circumstances had kept him from reaching the firing line, he had done everything in his power to get there and the welcome that was being extended applied to him equally as much as to his two comrades—a sentiment that was loudly applauded by the audience. Major Davidson asked the co-operation of the three soldiers in assisting in the work of getting more recruits. The presence of Pte. Mesley and Stenson recalled the memorable service in Central Park on the morning of the departure of the first contingent and Major Davidson referred feelingly to the men who had taken part in that service who would not return.

Pte. Stenson made a neat reply on behalf of his comrades and himself. They deeply appreciated the splendid reception that was being tendered them. "We have only two regrets," remarked Pte. Stenson, "that we could not remain at the front until the whole thing was over and that more of the boys will not come back. Pte Stenson informed the audience that all was not sadness with the boys on the firing line, they had their happy moments as well as their sad ones. "We bring you a message of confidence from them," said the gallant soldier; "it may be a long, hard fight, but we are going to win."

Pte Stenson remarked laughingly that he had not been lucky enough to get hit with a bullet or a shell, but had got a little of that new device, poisonous gas. He hoped the bracing climate of Canada would soon restore him to health. He and his comrades would have liked to have done more for Canada, the country they were proud to fight for. In conclusion he said they looked forward to spending many happy hours in Peterborough.

The audience then rose to its feet and gave three cheers and a tiger for the soldier heroes.

Splendid Chorus.

In regard to the musical programme a feature was the splendid singing of

SMITH FARMER HAS SUFFERED A HEAVY LOSS

Barns and Outbuildings on the Farm of Mr. John Murphy Totally Destroyed by Fire Yesterday

CROP WAS BURNED

The barns and outbuildings of Mr. John Murphy, who resides on the Lakefield road, between the sixth and seventh concession of Smith, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The entire season's crop and twelve hogs were consumed in the fire which for a time, threatened to envelop the house. Neighbours lent valuable assistance in the way of salvaging the contents of the buildings and also in keeping the roof of the house wet. There was a strong wind at the time. Had it veered a little, the house would never have been saved.

Cause Unknown.

The fire was first noticed shortly after noon and several hours later the buildings were reduced to a smoking heap of ruins. How the fire will probably never be known. The men had been cutting corn during the day.

The loss will be a heavy one as the entire crop was destroyed. One day's threshing had been done. The grain was destroyed together with that which remained to be threshed. The farm on which the fire took place was formerly occupied by Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, street inspector of this city. Thirty years ago a similar fate befell the barns and outbuildings.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, OCT. 22, 1915

DERBY TAKES THE "TIP."

We owe the Old Country many things, and we do a good deal to pay the debt. We do not speak of the soldiers we send as all. We have given the home authorities some-thing that amounts to [illegible] recruiting "tip." The Canadian Speakers' Patriotic League has been doing so well, that the British military recruiting authorities have adopted the idea or principle by making civilian organizations responsible for recruiting while the authorities do the equipping and training. This new departure is only an enlarged replica, authoritatively adopted, of the Speakers' Patriotic League of Canada. There is wisdom, and it is hoped, prospect of larger results in the change. In Peterborough we know of what splendid work the Speakers' Patriotic League has done. Since August 1st, when its activities began, there have been excellent recruiting results, entirely due as far as organization is concerned to the local league. It is a splendidly effective go-between. It breaks the restraint and fills the gap between the stiffly organized, necessarily mechanical, and red-tape tied military authorities and the civilian element of influence. The league adopts what may be called popular appeal as against military methods which savour more of orders, and perhaps unintentionally tend to provoke resentment rather than response in the matter of recruiting. Great credit, as well as praise, is due the Speakers' Patriotic League for the splendid work it has done and is doing in effectively stimulating recruiting. The voluntary work of the members, the sacrifices they make in doing their work, appeal more directly than we may think, to the voluntary spirit and waken the spirit of sacrifice among our young men. Great Britain stands to benefit as much in recruiting interests from the adoption of the principle and spirit of the Speakers' Patriotic League as Canada has done in the same regard. Lord Derby, "boss" British recruiting sergeant, has done well to take the "tip."

WAR THE WAY TO PEACE.

At this time, there is no more license to live for the word "pacifist" than for the sentimental nuisance it is used to describe. If the word pacificist were used it would have some etymological raison d'etre. Pacificist would mean some one inclined to make peace, willy nilly. Pacifist can only mean a peacer, whatever that may mean. Loose-thinking writers can very fittingly coin words as loose as their thoughts, and as little entitled to respect as the propaganda their mongrel etymology represents. The man who talks of peace now, talks treason. Peace now, would mean absolute waste of all the expenditure of blood and money; of all the struggle and sacrifice that a year and more of war have brought about. We can only think of peace, not to speak of peace, while the cause of all this war desolation and continental ruin is still able to assert itself. Till the mad ambition of mad militarism is disappointed to the ground; while the spirit of force and calculating cruelty behind it are unbroken, while the will and power to plunge the world into war, remain, there can be no talk of peace. Till the ability of Germany to enforce the cult of militarism and apply the doctrine of force is destroyed utterly, there can be, there will be, no talk of peace, by the powers that are fighting for humanity and its highest interest, for Christianity and its fruits. One could as consistently call upon the Church to make peace with the powers of evil, while these powers remain, as to require the Entente Powers to think of making peace while the powers of darkness are still fighting against the good of the world. War, and war to the hilt, is the only way to peace. Peace now would be compounding the most gigantic felony of the world's history.

RED CROSS HOME THRUST.

One of the most striking and direct appeals on behalf of Red Cross work is the cartoon of Pongo Ribe appearing on the first page of yesterday's Globe. In a word and at a glance, it tells the whole story of Red Cross needs; and suggests the suffering that must come to sick and wounded soldiers from inadequate supply of surgical dressings and appliances. The cartoon which is titled "Make It Enough for Two," represents a ward of a hospital tent with two wounded soldiers lying on their cots side by side. In the foreground a Red Cross nurse, pointing to a table sparsely supplied with hospital dressings, is saying to an officer — "There is only enough for one, sir; what shall I do about the other?" There is the whole story; the pathetic "other" is a direct home thrust appeal to you and to me. Multiply the two wounded soldiers by a hundred as shot and shell are surely doing every day; give hospital dressings, surgical dressings, etc., only enough for one hundred, and we have the whole two hundred imperfectly tended and treated, or one hundred well cared for, and the other hundred neglected and doomed to unmitigated suffering; and perhaps among the hundred are men from our own home city; from perhaps our own home circle, or circle of relatives. Could any appeal be more pathetically and powerfully direct? Our section should be as direct. We appeal to our people on patriotic grounds to enter the fight; they enter to fight and suffer wounds and sickness. Could we do less than do our best and utmost to help them in their time of suffering, great as it is under the best conditions, but inexpressibly great under enforced neglect from lack of what you and I may help supply? Joining the ranks is nobly patriotic; fighting the fight is nobler still; glorious are the wounds got in the country's cause, but best and noblest of all is binding up the wounds of those who fall sore stricken; alleviating suffering; mitigating pain; helping restore the less seriously wounded to a place in the ranks or bringing to convalescence those more seriously wounded. We must do our bit, and our best for the Red Cross. We must be the reserves besind the noble army of women toiling day and night in the uniform of the Red Cross; of the overwrought doctors and surgeons; of the noble army of women at home who are spending long hours and giving of their leisure, of their strength, to gather dressings and comforts for our wounded soldiers in the hospitals. What do we feel; what are we going to "do about the other?"

Are we in Peterborough going to sit down with folded arms and feel that we have done our share because we have shifted our responsibility upon the collector of taxes? Are we to do no more because "somebody has blundered" in failing to organise a popular appeal which many were ready to meet? Let us not forget the Red Cross, its work and needs.

HERE'S A POSER.

We have no wish to destroy indiscriminately or to injure and kill women, children or other non-combatants.—Lieut. Commander Mathy, of the Zeppelin Service, to The World.

If they have no wish to "destroy indiscriminately" and "kill women, children or other non-combatants," why do they keep on doing it? — New York World.

THE FIGHT OF CONSECRATED MEN.

In all this there is profound consolation and high hope. The map of the world may be changed, frontiers may be forced to new positions, and national identities may become destroyed, but the range of the kingdom for which consecrated men and women are battling, knows no boundaries. It is worth, moreover, whatever of toil and sacrifice it entails, and its rewards are as sure as they are everlasting.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

THE MEN BEHIND CONSCRIPTION?

While one or two Liberals, notably Sir Leo Chiozza Money and Sir Alfred Mond, are pressing for conscription, the bulk of the agitators are precisely the individuals who have been pressing for conscription all along. That an invéterate militarist like Lord Curzon, or an opportunist jingo like Lord Northcliffe, should be demanding it need surprise no one. The people of the Mother Country evidently believe that behind the demand for conscription Old Privilege is chiefly pushing, and that the push is an effort, unconscious probably in many cases, to buttress up patriarchal and feudal conditions.—Winnipeg Free Press.

TIME THE FOE'S ENEMY.

The enemy is in a terrible hurry. Time is his great enemy. All the courage of his soldiers, all his store of munitions, all the reckless expenditure of life have not yet given him any decisive advantage. For two months he has concentrated his forces to conquer Russia. The task is still uncompleted, and there are only a few weeks left before winter comes. Berlin realises that Germany is already past her zenith Unless she can bring some great coup now the game is up.—Lodon Express.

EQUALIZE THE BURDEN OF PATRIOTIC CONTRIBUTION

Ontario is busy, to-day raising half a million for the Red Cross, and will soon have to provide two or three million dollars for the Patriotic Fund. The time is opportune therefore for a brief discussion of ways and means. And first, we desire to say that we do not like to see the central governing body of the Patriotic Fund of Ottawa chopping down the original scale of allowances to the dependents of soldiers at the front in the drastic fashion indicated by recent despatches. It may be that some of the wives of soldiers have been wasteful and foolish, and have spent the money provided in ways that injure rather than advantage them. It may be that some of the more prudent have actually committed the high crime and misdemeanor of putting money in the bank.

Why not? Thousands of the husbands of these careful women will return to Canada at the close of the war—or before that time, sick or wounded—and will find the road back to profitable employment a difficult and trying one. When that day comes a small deposit in the bank will be a far better sheet-anchor than dependence upon gratitude or voluntary help. The cutting down of the allowance from the Patriotic Fund in the case of wives of soldiers who have no children to $6 a month in addition to any sum derivable from assigned pay and separation allowance will lessen recruiting among men without children who have homes of their own and do not want to break them up. The separation allowance of $20 a month, half the man's pay, say $6 a month, and $6 a month from the Patriotic Fund total $40 a month. The rent in Toronto of a house such as hundreds of mechanics who have enlisted live in would average $20 a month. The other necessary expenses of keeping house could not be met on the remaining $20, so that the new scale of allowances to wives without children will in many cases involve the breaking up of the home. That will inevitably cause disappointment to the husbands in the trenches, who, when they enlisted, expected that the then existing scale of allowance from the Patriotic Fund would be maintained. It is to be regretted that the reduction was considered necessary. Perhaps the Council of the Patriotic Fund will make special provisions for expectant mothers, living either in their own or rented houses, so that they shall not be under the necessity of breaking up the home when a home is most needed.

If further reductions are not to be made in the allowance a large sum of money will have to be raised. How can that be done most equitably? The other day a prominent Toronto citizen, Mr. N. F. Davidson, K.C., suggested the giving of one day's wages by everyone to the British Red Cross. That seems fair on the surface, but a correspondent writing from Aurora points out that the proposed method bears with undue severity on those will small wages. To a man earning $12 a week and trying to keep a family on it $2 is a large sum of money. The giving of such a sum is a real sacrifice and is possible only by doing without some necessity of life. To the man earning $10 a day, or $3,000 a year, the giving of $10 to the Red Cross or the Patriotic Fund does not involve any sacrifice. He will have to do without $10 worth of luxuries, but there will be for him no pinching in things that are necessary to decent living.

The day's pay all round, like the taxation of food and clothing, bears most heavily on the very poor, and in the case of lots of shop girls and others whose wages are all spent on absolute necessaries of life, might mean going without lunch for two or three days or walking long distances for a week instead of using street car. We do not wish to oppose any honorable method of raising war funds, and assuredly not a method of self-sacrifice as the giving up by wage-earners of a part of their wages, but the big load must fall on the strong backs. Britain is taxing all, rich and poor, for war purposes, but from the abundance of the rich vastly more is demanded than from the poverty of the poor. If it is found to be difficult by voluntary means to raise the very considerable sum—$7,500,000 or more—which will be required by the Patriotic Fund during the coming year, a tax upon incomes of $2,000 or over would speedily provide Ontario's share. That would place the burden where it would not hurt. The further requirement of a sworn statement of incomes from the men and women of the Province would result in some amazing revelations. Their is vast wealth in this Province that is never located by the tax collector.—The Globe.

A JOB OR ALL.

No fit young man need be out of a job while the recruiting sergeant is around.—Hamilton Times.

GRAND MATERIAL.

There was a lot of grand material for conscription at the football match on Saturday. No other method would bring that class of young Canadians to a sense of their duty.—Hamilton Spectator.

NO PARTY PULL IN BUDGET.

The great merit of the Budget is that it recognizes the facts and new conditions of the financial situation. We have got away from party controversies over fiscal theories, whether laid down by "strict Free-traders" or "scientific Tariff-reformers." There is no particular "science" about the modest instalment of "tariff reform" involved in the new import duties on certain manufactured articles. They are selected apparently because they happen to be temporarily some of the chief offenders in the excessive importations of the current year. In financial as in other matters, the Government's policy in war-time should be based on hard facts.—London Times.

Wife Saved Actor.

It was Marjorie Moreland who saved the actor from drowning in view of the very cafe which he has just sold. It was Marjorie Moreland whose blue eyes and corn colored hair so hypnotized a local jury that they returned only a slight judgment against the actor after he had smashed up an automobile near Ocean park two years ago. And it was Marjorie Moreland who was/"Mother" Eliza Weathersby, "Obligation" Nella Baker Pease "Roman Senator" Maxine Elliot, and "Edna Goodrich the Error," all wives of the actor, rolled into one.

"At last I have found the one woman'" he was quoted saying shortly after the wedding. And now—

"Mrs. Goodwin shall under no circumstances be admitted to the cafe," reads the bill of transfer.

HOW FAR IS CANADA GOING IN THIS WAR?

Every week sees the world war assume more gigantic proportions, and every day the discussion proceeds as to whether other nations will join in it.

The best way is to fight the war overseas and win it there. How far shall Canada participate in it? Shall we go into it only so far as will illustrate the "unity" of the Empire, or shall we go into it that deeper length that will do anything in our power to ensure the security of the Empire when its full strength is demanded in a struggle that means its life or death?

In this country we talk a great deal about Bulgaria, Greece, Roumania, Serbia, as if they were important powers. We talk as if the coming with us or the going against us of any one of these powers were a matter of the utmost consequence. Yet not one of these nations equals Canada in population. Neither Bulgaria, Greece, Rumania, nor Serbia, has as many men capable of bearing arms as has Canada. The difference is that their men will, if necessary, bear arms. With us it is a question. Ours will, too, if called upon by the Government. But will they be called upon?

Bulgaria sides with the enemy. That country has a population of only 5,000,000, as against Canada's 8,000,000.

Greece may come in on our side, and people speak of that as if it would be a decisive factor. Greece has a population three million less than that of Canada.

Serbia is doing wonders in holding off the enemy. Her population is half that of Canada.

Rumania stands back, uncertain what to do, with a population less than that of Canada.

So far Canada has sent 80,000 men overseas. Serbia, with half our population, has raised five times as many. So will Bulgaria; so will Greece. If she goes into the war. If they go in at all they must go in for all they are worth, or suffer disaster.

To what extent is Canada going to participate in the war? We are in it, but only with a fraction of the strength that similar populations in enemy countries are pitting against us. Why not go in as others do, especially our enemies, for all we are worth and determined to win? Just now recruiting offices are open in Toronto and many other centres, but there has been no general call. Men are enlisting as fast as they are called for, but there has been no such general recruiting movement as has been made in the motherland.—Star.

Wall Street Banks Gorged With Money

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Wall street is threatened with an embarrassment of riches, if it has not reached that point already. Deposits in local banking institutions now exceed the $8,000,000,000 mark. Gold is pouring in from abroad in unprecedented quantities, the natural flow of funds to this center from other parts of the country is proceeding in normal fashion, and, on top of all this, it was reported, that bank in the interior, members of the syndicate handling the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan are forwarding subscription funds to New York.

It is stated that these syndicate banks in outside cities and towns are not particularly desirous of retaining the proceeds of their subscriptions on deposit with themselves, according to the original arrangement.

They are said to object to paying two per cent. interest on such deposits and are remitting the funds, either in whole or in part, to the agents of the syndicate managers here, J. P. Morgan & Co.

This is causing increased concentration of funds at this centre, which it was sought to avoid when the plan was arranged. The stand taken by the interior banks is that the present money market does not warrant them paying interest on deposits of this description.

MAKING SHELLS IN INDIA.

Shipment From Private Factories to Britain Has Begun.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—It is announced that shipments of shells manufactured in private factories and workshops in British India have begun. This is regarded here as a decided advance in the industrial capabilities of India, the work having been carried out successfully through all processes from the iron ore to the finished product.

The work called for co-operation of railway shops, numerous private factories and workshops belonging to chiefs of native states. The quality of the shells is said to be excellent.

ROLL OF HONOUR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire.

As particulars of Army Reservists are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country, or been wounded in action, are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.

Airmen Big Factor In Submarine War

Patrolling British Coast, They Spy Out German Raiders and Call for Destroyers

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Details of the active and efficient work of the aeroplanes of the Royal Naval Aviation Corps in ridding England waters of the German submarine peril were received yesterday by Henry Woodhouse, a Governor of the Aero Club of America. The information came from an authoritative source, and disclosed the latest methods adopted by the British Government in "spotting submarines" and destroying them.

Mr. Woodhouse also received an explanation of the reason why the 400 aeroplanes defending London have been unable to prevent the Zeppelin raids.

"Probably the most interesting thing about the conflict between the dreaded German U-boats and the aeroplanes," he said last night to reporter, "is that the American, which was built here before the war, and in which Flight Commander Porte intended to fly across the ocean, has destroyed no fewer than three submarines single-handed. One of these was blown up with bombs, and the other two were forced to come up, the American having broken off their periscope. Then the destroyers got them.

"The method of anti-submarine warfare is as simple as it is efficient. The aeroplanes go out, usually in pairs, followed by forty-knot destroyers, which follow after them and watch for their signals. The observer accompanying the aviator can see from fifteen to twenty miles in every direction, according to the height at which they fly. The destroyers can see the aeroplane at about the same distance, and its officers, with their powerful glasses, can tell every movement made by their scouts.

"If a submarine is sighted travelling on the surface, or if even its periscope is seen, the aeroplane drops a smoke bomb to call its destroyers. If the submarine submerges or remains submerged, the aero man keeps flying around and around, noting its direction. At forty knots an hour, the destroyers are soon on the spot, and they will follow the submarine and wait for it to come up and then blow it to pieces, or they may run ahead of it and lower their steel nets and catch it. If it is feared that the quarry is going to submerge to a great depth the nets are dropped as the destroyers come to the spot, and they often pick it up before it can get too deep for the nets.

"Aeroplanes of the America and Canada, class, carrying heavy armament and a large number of bombs, are much feared by the U-boats. In the early days of the war they were not afraid to come to the surface and fight the aeroplanes, but they don't dare do this any longer. The submarine is so fragile that a bomb or shell exploding near it will smash its sides in and sink it. Of course, all the aeroplanes are flying boats or hydroaeroplanes, and have no fear of the water. They have been a number of cases where the aviator has swooped down on the submarine and smashed its periscope. Then it is blind and must come to the surface, where it is easy prey for either the aeroplane or any destroyer or trawler, all of which have guns.

"Of course, if the aeroplane destroys the submarine single-handed, none of its crew can be saved.

"One of the most recent developments of this warfare has been the destruction of submarines on the bottom. It is their custom to lie on the shallow bottoms when they want to wait for their victims or to avoid destroyers. They will sink until they are down below the nets and then wait until the danger passes. Early in the war, and even before the war, it was found that an aeroplane could detect a submarine even when submerged nearly one hundred feet.

"Acting on this knowledge, the Royal Naval Aviation Corps has a plan that is sure death to the enemy. The observer 'spots' the submarine lying in wait, and then signals for its destroyers. Of course, the men of the submarine have no idea of what is going on above them and can only wait to meet their death.

"The aeroplane will circle about the spot until the destroyers arrive and then will indicate as nearly as possible exactly where the enemy lies. Then the destroyers place a number of floating bombs on the water, each of which consist of what looks more like half a torpedo than anything else, and is kept at the surface by the broad, flat float.

"After the bombs are placed, and they are powerful enough to blow up a dreadnought, the destroyers steam off out of harm's way. The bombs are heavy and drop straight to the bottom when the destroyers pull the string that detaches them from their floats. On striking the bottom, the explode by contact, and as soon as oil comes to the surface, an infallable sign that the submarine is destroyed, they go on, looking for another victim.

"It is not necessary for a bomb to strike the submarine, although this has happened several times when the vessel was submerged at a shallow depth. The impact of the explosion of the several thousand pounds of 'T.N.T.' contained in the bombs is communicated to the submarine by the water, which is denser than at the surface, and caves its sides in.

"Probably the pursuit of these submarines is most exciting sport that has yet been experienced by an aviator, and the efficiency of the Royal Naval Aviation Corps has played a great part in eliminating the submarine peril."

Why Zeppelins Succeed.

In regard to the case in which the Zeppelins raid London, in spit of the 400 aeroplanes of the Royal Naval Aviation Corps, Mr. Woodhouse has learned that it is a practical impossibility for the British fliers to destroy the giant craft, except with the greates luck.

"The first sign that London has of a Zeppelin raid is when a bomb drops," he said. "Now that warnings are not sent from Holland any longer, the Zeppelins, flying at more than 10,000 feet on the darkest nights they can pick, are above London before any one is aware of their proximity.

"From the time that the first bomb droops until the Naval Corps aeroplanes take the air in pursuit is usually not less than fifteen minutes. It takes them from half to three-quarters of an hour to climb to an altitude where they are above the Zeppelins, and by that time the dirigibles have left London fifty to sixty miles in the rear.

"Of course, there are squadrons of aeroplanes patrolling the air above the city night after night, but the upper darkness is so vast, and usually so dark on the night of a raid, that it is impossible to find the Zeppelins. Then, again, the aviators run great risks when they take up the pursuit. The guns begin to roar the minute a searchlight picks up a Zeppelin, and they fire from all angles. There is a perfect hail of death arising from all over the great city, and the aviator stands a good chance of being brought down by the guns of the city he is trying to protect.

"It has been suggested that great balloons be stationed over London at 10,000 or more feet, and that these be armed with heavy guns, Models of these were made and then it was found that the upper air current would swing the balloon about so much that it would be impossible for their gunners to hit a Zeppelin. However, it is safe to say that the time is near when the Zeppelins will be unable to raid London with impunity, and it will be due to the work of the Royal Naval Aviation Corps that their murderous raids are ended.

"A newer and greater war plane than any yet built is now being made in Toronto for the British Government. The success of the Canada type has shown the way, and from them has evolved the 'super-Canada' type of tract or sand hydro-aeroplanes. These are a full third larger than the Canadas, and can carry nearly 3,000 pounds or armament or bombs. The hydroaeroplanes can stand a heavy sea, and can rise from almost the roughest waves with ease. Their wings are more than 100 feet across, and they can make sixty miles an hour with only one motor. With both going, they can make close to ninety miles.

"Twenty of the Canada type have been sent abroad from Toronto, and they are building the larger type as fast as the facilities can turn them out."

the chorus under the direction of Mr. J. H. Renwick. The chorus, which consisted of the George street Methodist choir, augmented with other singers, was heard to great advantage in four numbers, all of which were sung in splendid style. Probably the most effective was the rendition of the soldiers chorus from Faust, although the singing of "Rule Britannia" and Fanning's "Song of the Viking" was not far behind in point of excellence.

The overseas band, under the direction of Bandmaster Hughes, justified the support they have been receiving and will receive from the public, by contributing a fine programme. A selection of Scotch airs, arranged for the band by Mr. Renwick, was splendidly played, and the two overtures, "Lutspiel" and "Northern Lights" were admirably handled by the band. Bandmaster Hughes contributed an enjoyable cornet solo, "The Little Gray Home in the West."

Miss Mignon Telgmann's violin solo, "Gypsy Dance," by Sarasate was brilliantly played by the talented musician and the audience demanded an encore.

An entertaining number on the programme was the singing of Tipperary by little Davie Clayton, the three year old son of Sergt. Herb Clayton of the 59th Battalion.

Sergt. Oxley won the bayonet contest. The men worked under manifest difficulties owing to lack of stage room, but they did their best under the circumstances, and the audience enojyed the exhibition. In the preliminaries Sergt. Oxley won from Pte. Baumer and Corp. Jay defeated Pte. P. Tobin. The final went to Sergt. Oxley. Lt.-Col. Miller acted as judge.

The vocal numbers were all splendidly given and thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Hanson and Mr. Fred Miles rendered the duet, "After the Fray" in artistic fashion. Miss Helen MacLaren sang, "Keep the Home Fires Burning" in fine voice and Mrs. Renwick delighted the audience with her rendition of "Heroes and Gentlemen." "Land of Hope and Glory" was admirably sung by Mr. Edward Jones. Mr. Chas. Thorpe scored heavily in a new patriotic song, "Somewhere in France" and Mr. Asa Huycke effectively sang the favourite, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," the audience joining in the choruses of the two last numbers.

Mayor Buller was chairman. Miss Pearl McKee added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion by her sympathetic accompaniments.

Following was the programme:

Plenty of Munitions Now

Prodigious Amount of High Explosives Were Quickly Sent to Loos

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The success attending the appointment of David Lloyd George as Minister of Munitions is testified to by the Times' correspondent, who says that the production of munitions has increased fourfold and, in one highly important branch, over thirty-fold.

"The Ministry of Munitions," the correspondent adds, "justified itself in the recent heavy fighting on the western front. There were no complaints this time of advances having to be stopped for lack of munitions. A prodigious amount of high explosives were shot away in the advance to Loos, but still the supply was not exhausted. The authorities at home received no complaints whatever from the generals in the field.

Excellent Transport.

"When the fighting ceased they had a great deal more ammunition left than they expected and in certain departments there was actually a greater quantity ready for the gunners at the end of the struggle than at the beginning which proves excellent transport arrangements.

"It is a feather in the cap of Mr. Lloyd George, who set himself up in an old-fashioned house in Whitehall with two chairs, a table and a secretary and in a short interval has created a wonderful organization at the Ministry of Munitions. Gathered around him is perhaps the strongest company of business and scientific brains that has ever been applied to any government department in this country.

Thousand Factories.

"At present a thousand industrial works and factories have been scheduled as controlled establishments, and the number of men employed in them is little short of a million. In addition 5,000 skilled soldiers have been released from munition work.

"The unlimited supply of munitions which the army requires, however, has been by no means reached yet. The labour problem still presents difficulties which the ministry is now devoting special attention to. The personnel of the department also is being constantly strengthened. Col. Arthur H. Lee, former Civil Lord of the Admiralty, becomes a secretary of the Munitions Minister, charged with the duty of co-ordinating the work of the ministry with that of the army in the field. Sir Leo C. Chiozza Money has been appointed parliamentary private secretary to Mr. Lloyd George.

REWARD OF JAPAN.

Gets an Island in Return for Supplying Munitions to Russia.

LONDON, Oct. 21. The Cologne Gazette, a copy of which has been received here, publishes a report, which it says passed the Russian censor, that Japan has undertaken to supply Russia with munitions in return for a complete cession of the island of Sakhalin.

The Island of Sakhalin, 570 miles long and from seventeen to ninety miles wide, lies between the east coast of Asia and the northern islands of the Japanese archipelago. Russia owns the northern and Japan the southern end of the island.

GERMAN OFFICER BRUTALLY TREATS FRENCH-CANADIAN

Dominion Soldier Retaliates and Gets Gift From His Officer

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—The Mail and Empire to-day publishes the following:

"A French-Canadian, G. A. Morin of the 22nd Battalion, who has just arrived at a London hospital, was the victim of brutal and bullying treatment by a German officer. Morin was with a patrol at the front when they lost their way.

"While still undecided in which direction to turn, a German officer leading a number of soldiers, sprang up and covered them with a rifle. His interpreter asked Morin, who was the only one able to speak English, how many the patrol party numbered. Morin gave the number as six, instead of a dozen, the actual number.

"At that moment more of the party appeared, and as the officer realized that Morin had been misleading him fired a bullet through the soldier's hand. His next question was: 'How many are in your reserve trench?' 'I don't know,' was Morin's reply, whereupon another bullet was fired into his arm, a little above the wounded hand, the officer at the same time threateningly advising him to speak the truth. With his uninjured arm Morin pulled out a pocket bomb and hurled it at the officer. The latter and his men jumped back behind a parapet, while Morin and one companion fled, took cover, and ultimately got back to their trenches.

"Later, Morin returned to the same spot and succeeded in picking up another companion who had been wounded in the leg, but the others of the party had been taken prisoners including Morin's brother.

"Morin received a gift of seventy-five francs from his commanding officer, with a promise that his conduct would be brought before the authorities. Another brother in the 22nd died after a route march at Shorncliffe, while Morin's father is also at the front.

"E. Labelle, of St. Henry, Montreal, is in the same hospital. He is the first man of the Canadian Pacific Construction Corps to be wounded, he having been hit by shrapnel while on duty. He says the corps is doing useful and often dangerous work. Labelle joined the artillery at Winnipeg, but was transferred to the C. P. R. Corps.

Hit by Shrapnel.

"Sergt. Morris, of the 18th Battalion, in the same hospital, is the first sergeant of that battalion to be wounded. While going forward in advance of a platoon, he was hit by shrapnel in the left arm. Leaving Indiana to enlist at Galt, Morris underwent an operation for varicose veins at his own expense in order to qualify. Morris saw the body of Capt. Hallam, of London, Ont., brought in. The later was superintending a working party and exposed his head above the parapet, falling a victim to a sniper."

SHOT A BEAR IN DUMMER

Mr. William Jerow shot a bear cub on Saturday evening last about half past five, near Mr. James Ferguson's barn, on the 10th line of Dummer. The cub weighed about 75 pounds. Others have been seen in the same neighbourhood of late, and the boys of that locality are keeping a sharp lookout for further opportunity to test their rifles.

Nellie L. McClung A Gifted Speaker

Will Give a Lecture on Friday, Oct 27th in the Collegiate Institute Hall

In these times of wonderful transition, when the petty things of life seem to be shrivelling away from us, and hearts and minds the world over, are drawn out as never before, after the great and real issues of the day, there has risen up from the ranks of womanhood one who seems destined to be a teacher of the people—Nellie L. McClung.

A daughter of our own province of Ontario, Mrs. McClung migrated to the west when but a little girl, and the great sweep of earth and sky in that wonderful prairie land, seems to have influenced in as great a way, the development of her mind and soul.

As if often the case, force of circumstances first led Mrs. McClung out into literary endeavour, and her books, 'Sowing Seeds in Danny,' 'The Second Chance and "The Black Creek Stopping House," have been interesting and inspirational reading to thousands in the Dominion and to many in other lands. Her latest book, "In Times Like These," has just left the publisher's hands and will prove no less worthy of her.

Two years ago, in the interests of Manitoba's political welfare, Mrs. McClung was prevailed upon to give public expression to her own high ideals, regarding the questions then pending in that province, and with such unprecedented success did she cope with these matters, that her reputation as a speaker and reformer was established beyond all shadow of doubt. Since then she has been credited with having done more in securing the great prohibition measures in the west than any other single individual. Occasion presented the opportunity and under the guidance of lofty aspirations, and in the light of pure ideals, Nellie McClung has, at much personal sacrifice (for she is devoted to her family and home), concentrated her best effort to the interests of a bigger and better humanity.

To the people of Peterborough will be given the rare opportunity of hearing this noted Canadian authoress, reformer and orator on Wednesday evening, October 27th, in the Collegiate auditorium, when she comes to the city under the auspices of the Women Teachers' Guild. In addition to her brilliant lecture, "Should Women Think?" Mrs. McClung will give two charming selections from her works. The tickets for this delightful entertainment are 25c., and are fast being secured from the women teachers. All proceeds are for patriotic purposes.

COUNTY TEACHERS GIVE ONE PER CENT. OF THEIR SALARIES

Also Approved the Superannuation Scheme After a Discussion of It

The teachers of Peterborough County decided at their convention yesterday to give one per cent. of their salaries to the Red Cross, thereby contributing about $400.

After a discussion of the Superannuation Bill it was approved by a majority of the teachers.

At the afternoon session one of the most interesting features was an illustrated lecture by Mr. [illegible] M.A. on Consolidated Schools.

Suffocating Gases Used But Enemy Was Defeated With Heavy Losses

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The German infantry attack on the French lines between the Butte-de-Tir and Prunay, east of Rheims, for which preparation was made yesterday with a very violent bombardment, was made today. Suffocating gases were used in great quantities, so that they fairly blanketed the French lines. Three attacks of remarkable violence were made by the enemy, but all were completely stopped in front of the barbed wire entanglements protecting the French trenches by the French artillery and machine guns.

The front attacked to-day has a length of roughly five miles and was the scene of a previous failure of the Germans in their attempt to cut through the new French lines in Champagne. The artillery preparations made last night for to-day's attack were unusually thorough, and the gas blanket was exceptionally dense, but the French guns and machine guns concentrated their fire on the advancing Germans so effectively that one after another each of the attacks spent itself before wire cutting could be carried out, and the Germans, with frightful losses, fell back to their trenches completely unsuccessful.

After the repulse of the third and last German attack quiet prevailed in the section of the line and the communique issued to-night says briefly that there was no action of importance to report from the entire front.

No Last Rose of Summer This Year

Tom Moore tells us in tuneful numbers about "The Last Rose of Summer." That is a beautiful poetical conceit, but a prose reality is a rose, shown the Examiner yesterday, which is a tribute to the phenomenal growing period of this advanced stage of autumn. Though grown in the open air this last rose of autumn is a conservatory product, grown by Mrs. Gliddon in the gardens of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music—a musical rose of a standard variety, fragrant as courtship memories. It suggests a little travestying of a line of Byron—"music rose with its opinous smell." This is a year of late blooming and late fruiting freaks. We hear of other rose bushes breaking into belated bloom or, rather the second period of bloom. This is Canada's growing time in other things besides the war debt, and debts for permanent pavements, or permanent debts for pavements. It kills sentiment, too. We can't talk or sing of "The last rose of summer," when the vegetative vagaries of the season threaten to keep up the procession till snow flies.

Dog Poisoners Do Effective Work

Messrs M P Grover, Thos. Watson, A J. McKenty and one or two other residents of Norwood, have suffered the loss of their dogs through poisoning. This is the second time this summer that there has been a wholesale poisoning of the canines in the village. The method taken this time was first observed by Mr. Grover who noticed his dog pick up something near a telephone pole in the business section. Fearing it was a bait he forced the dog to drop it at once, which it did. On reaching home, however, the dog died. Mr. Grover returned in search of the means of destruction and found a piece of cooked meat with a sprinkle of a white powder on it. Examination by one acquainted with drugs showed the powder to be deadly strychnine. Further search revealed pieces of the poisoned meat at the foot of nearly every post along the street for some distance.

YOUNG BRITISH HERO IN RUSSIAN RANKS

Writing from Petrograd, the special correspondent of the London Times says: While the British public is applauding the deeds of daring and fortitude that its sons have been performing in all quarters of the globe during the war, it should be of interest to them to know that one modest boy of English blood has been upholding in the Russian army the tradition of the service which are daily being vindicated in Flanders and in the Dardanelles.

When the outbreak of war let loose the tide of carnage in Europe young John Wilton, then a frail boy of seventeen, secured, by special permission of the Tsar, the right to serve in the ranks of one of the famous regiments of the Petrograd Guards, early in October he joined his regiment at the front and became one of the mounted scouts. For six months he took part in practically every big battle in which the famous corps were engaged and these battles have been practically continuous. He was with the party of scouts which penetrated to the nearest point to Cracow and was at one time within eight miles of the city.

Young Wilton's record was such that after six months of service he was promoted and became an ensign strictly on the basis of merit of such a nature that his activities came repeatedly to the attention of the commanding officer of his regiment. At the end of five months he was in command of the mounted scouts of the regiment and since becoming an officer he has twice been recommended for decorations for services in the field.

His latest feat was the withdrawing, from under a heavy fire, of his command of scouts, which had been ambushed by a squadron of German cavalry. The young officer conducted this operation so skillfully that he extricated his command with the loss of only one man. He has become well known to his regiment, and the example of a young Englishman rising from the ranks in six months has caused much favorable comment among Russians officers.

Maori War Charge Thrills Home Land

Natives in New Zealand Aroused by News of Brothers' Valour at Gallipoli

Second Contingent Going to War and Then a Third, Including Men of Far-Away Niue

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 20—"The Maoris entered into the charge with great dash, making the darkness hideous with wild cries which struck terror into the hearts of the Turks. With the awful vigor of their bayonets and rifle butts the Maoris forged another link in the chain of the empire."

So cabled the English war correspondent, Ashmead Bartlett, the last of August in a graphic description of the night attack by the Australasian troops which marked the operations centreing about Suvla Bay, Gallipoli, native districts in New Zealand. The savage courage of the aboriginal race which fought the British so valorously about forty years ago was again exemplified—but this time in the British cause.

It is well enough for the German press to cartoon the mixed character of Kitchener's army, but the impartial observer is led to wonder from what he knows of the drill Sergeant government which marked German rule in New Guinea, German Southwest Africa, and other places "in the sun," whether it could have ever inspired the degree of loyalty, bravery, and sacrifice which Great Britain's policy toward non-Caucasian peoples, as for instance the Maoris, has evoked.

The Maoris have been treated considerately by the British for nearly half a century, as befitted an intelligent and gallant race, and now that England wants "men and yet more men," even from the remotest parts of King George's realms, they are responding to the call to arms quite as patriotically as their pakeka (white) neighbors. The animosities which were engendered by the Maori war (though these were disappearing, thanks partly to intermarriage between Maoris and whites and partly to the paternal attitude of successive Cabinets toward the Maori tribes,) are now in a fair way to being wiped out by the opportunity which is being given a handful of the brown men to ply bayonets and rifle butts in far-off Turkey.

Fighters to the Backbone.

Like all other South Sea races, the Maoris have their strong susceptibilities, one of which is toward firewater, but again, like other Antipodean races, they are fighters to the backbone. It was, therefore, a question with the Massey Government when the demands of the war became pressing whether or not to recruit Maoris. That the decision in the affirmative, which resulted in the first contingent of 500 men, was wise is proved by the conduct of the Maoris in the action described by Mr. Bartlett. The contingent "made good," so much so that a second Maori contingent is about to be despatched to the front; and, what is quite as interesting, with these Maoris are to go natives from the Cook Archipelago and Niue, or Savage Island.

A rather odd blending of ferocity and Christianity appears in a letter received in New Zealand from Lieutenant Paumea Ferris, an officer in the first Maori contingent which has given such a good account of itself. Writing from Malta, where, it seems, it was first intended to place the Maoris on garrison duty, he said:

"These 500 Maoris are getting a great hearing for so insignificant a body of men. On arrival we were received by Lord Methuen. Each day the hatred for the enemy grows more and more within us, and each report of our killed and wounded is like a red rag to an infuriated bull.

"We have just had good news. Lord Methuen is going to write to Kitchener that we are ready for the front, and from now on we have our instructions to be in readiness to move at eight hour's notice. When the men realized that they at last had real hopes of going, 'Ka mate! Ka mate!' (the same hallowing yell which so scared the Turks,) rent the air. They cheered and shouted for joy, and a holiday was granted to celebrate the occasion.

Anxious to Avenge White Friends.

"Tell everybody that we are going to the front, and that every soul to a man is happy to do so. They must see what a great event it is for the Maori race. No one must worry a bit. We are going and we are coming back, but we are not going to retire until we have slaughtered enough of the enemy to make amends for the friends (white friends) we've lost.

"Do not fear for us. God, I know, will help us and bring us safely to you, and we are full of confidence that we will succeed in our task. God bless you all."

The solidarity with which brown men and white men from New Zealand are storming Turco-German trenches is illustrated by the fact that among the wounded in the Maori contingent, as a result of the Suvla Bay operations, were two descendants of Chief Wahanui. This Chief was "the power behind the throne" in the disaffected districts of the Upper Waikato forty years ago, and he opposed white Government up to as late as 1860. He was wounded by a British bullet, but now these young King Country (as the district from which they enlisted is called) warriors who bear his name will carry back to their homes scars of wounds received in Great Britain's cause.

It took a long time for the news of the outbreak of the war to reach the native of Niue, one of the most remote of New Zealand's island dependencies, but when they did hear of it the tribes gathered and subscribed all the surplus money they possessed to the British war funds and offered to send to the front 200 warriors.

King of Niue Offers Aid to Britain.

A letter was addressed to King George, which accompanied the money in which the King of Niue and the tribal Chiefs explained that it came from "the smallest child of the great Motherland."

The Niuean contingent has since that time been receiving military instructions from Sergeant Holmes, an officer sent to the little speck in the South Pacific by the New Zealand Government, and this week a transport left Auckland to take on the island soldiery. The Niueans, together with fifty natives from Rarotonga in the Cook group will form the bulk of the third Maori contingent of 340 men.

The people of Niue come of great fighting stock. Captain Cook, the bold navigator, had experience of that, and his opinion may still be found upon those maps of the antipodes which call Niue Island "Savage Island." The Captain was glad to get away from the Niueans, who, he said, possessed "the ferocity of wild boars."

A long period of peace and the efforts of Christain missionaries have had a softening effect upon the once bellicose islanders, but, like the Maori, the Niuean is a terror when his fighting blood is up. How this passion for battle will display itself under continuous of modern warfare will be interesting.

The matter of language may present some difficulty. The language of Rarotonga is practically that of the Maori, but the language of Niue is peculiar to that islet in the tropic seas. Most Maoris and many Rarotongans understand English, but very few Niueans do.

Entertaining the Minister—The Minister—"I suppose you know, Robert, that man does not live by bread alone?" Robert—"Oh, yes, sir; but, then, we don't get any such blow-outs as this except when you come."—Puck.

SPELLING TAKES VASTLY MORE TIME THAN SEEMS JUSTIFIABLE

Mr. F. E. Kerr, B.A., Points Out the Difficulties of Teaching This Intricate Subject to Children.

TEACH MEANINGS TOO

The following are synopses of two papers presented at the City Teachers' Institute:

In an exhaustive and carefully studied paper on "Spelling," Mr. F. E. Kerr said that spelling is used only in expressing our ideas in writing more or less in speaking. It is a subject not studied for any value in itself but only as a means to an end. Although its function is subsidiary to the great aim—the written expression of our ideas, it takes up vastly more time during the first six or seven years of a childs life than seems justifiable. The subject is one mass of anomalies and the national waste in acquiring such a system is beyond computation. It is practically useless as a mind trainer as its tendency seems rather to dissipate than systematize the intellectual functions and energies. It handicaps our youth in the educational race and prevents very valuable time being spent in a more productive manner. Rules for spelling are of little value due to the enormous multitude of exceptions. One writer found that ten letters selected had thirty-eight sounds and that seventeen sounds were represented in ninety-eight different ways. The variations of the letters to the sounds and of the sounds to the letters are manifest very soon to the young child, thus "no" and "do" are pronounced differently, and similarly "so" and "to," with the result that the pupils very soon make the discovery in English that "things are not what they seem." It is said that all language has apparently developed from the natural cries, shouts, groans, hisses and grunts. If these were not the origin of English spelling they at least have a very prominent place in the by-products of it. And after all our efforts and the vast expenditure of time upon it, what are the results? Absolutely correct spelling is anything but a general accomplishment even among educated people. Then why do we not change our spelling and make it more systematic? The reasons are obvious—those who have already learned to spell do not wish to go through further drudgery; it would mean a loss of capital to and would meet with great opposition from the printing trade; there would be a partial destruction at least of historic evidences contained in the words themselves; and lastly, there is the inborn conservatism of the English nation. It seems to me that we are taking a step in the wrong direction in including the "u" in words as honour, vigour, etc., after it has been left out in our readers for so many years. To include it simply means more time and energy lost in learning to spell and in writing all that class of words. Changes must come gradually, but let us welcome them when they come.

Words They Do Not Use.

Dealing minutely with sub-topics of interest mostly to the profession, Mr. Kerr passed on. It is often surprising, he said, the mistakes that are made in ordinary letter writing. In this connection the question naturally arises, "Shall we teach pupils to spell words, the meaning of which they do not know? You can easily do this, but what good does it do? The pupils cannot use the words and these become simply a useless burden to the mind and will be rapidly forgotten. If the pupils should come across any of these words again, they will be very dubious as to whether these are the ones they really learned to spell. Suppose for example that you are pupils and have just learned to spell such words as troglodyte (a cave dweller of prehistoric Europe), undine (a female water spirit without a soul), a valkyr (a maiden serving the banquets of Valhalla), do you think you have actually acquired anything? How different would it be if you knew their meanings and could use them? You would feel you had added power, your interest in the words would be greatly increased, and much of the drudgery of learning them would disappear. If the meanings of the words are not known the spellings would correspond closely to Tom Tulliver's description of Euclid in "The Mill on the Floss." "It's a book I've got to learn in; there's no sense in it."

What Test Showed.

One American investigator tested 33,000 children in different grades by giving separate words, by putting the words in sentences, and by putting them in compositions. The results were rather startling. 1. Age seemed to have little to do in the same grades with the ability to spell. 2. The best spellers are found amongst the brightest pupils. 3. The foreign element seemed to be slightly better able to spell than the native born. 4. The influence of methods of teaching amounted to nothing. 5. Little difference in spelling ability was exhibited as a result of much or little home reading by pupils. 6. All the time devoted to the teaching of spelling beyond a certain maximum of not more than fifteen minutes a day is wasted. This experimenter stated that results are not determined by methods employed, but by the ability of those who use them. The chief factor in spelling is the teacher, while methods and devices play a subordinate part.

The body of the address took up the methods of teaching, correcting and other details of the work.

TEACHING OF WRITING

Mr. J. A. McKone of the Peterborough Business College discussed at length the most popular and practical methods of the teaching of writing in primary schools. In lower grades two methods are usually adopted, the whole arm and the arm rest, or muscular movement, as it is generally termed. In the London schools the pupil does much practice at the blackboard in his introduction to the whole arm movement; this is, of course, followed by practice on paper. The whole arm movement is here used again, the fingers but no other part of the arm resting on the desk. Much of the first year's work is thus done at the blackboard.

Mr. Warner of Toronto Normal School advocates much the same plan with the use of pupils in lower grades. Large free writing should be taught, as it admits of greater freedom of motion. Forearm movement is not introduced until the second grade.

Mr. Forest of Canton Public School advocates the arm rest movement from the beginning. After the second grade it is wise to have the letters written more of the ordinary size.

In teaching writing in any grade have the pupils practice on foolscap, or at the blackboard before they write in copybooks.

The teacher is largely a model to the pupil in the matter of writing. He should be a good writer in order to advance the interest of the pupil in good writing.

Pupils should be taught to criticise their own work. If the teacher demands that certain letters be made exactly of the same height he promotes a finger movement and not a forearm movement.

In High Schools.

In High Schools not enough writing is taught in the higher forms. Many of the students finish the course, not writers, but scribblers. They often cannot write as well at the end of the course as at the beginning. Many of the teachers-in-training are not good writers when they enter Normal School, largely as a result of this.

Capital and small letters should be taught more or less together.

In regard to speed, the movements should be done quickly; slow writing is apt to be shaky and not smooth. To regulate the speed of the writing metronomes are often used; these are of value although pupils will not all write together even then. A good movement is the first thing and form afterwards. The teacher of course must use a good form on the blackboard.

In New York schools they advocate ease first, speed second, and legibility third. To reverse the order is a great disadvantage.

Shall we insist on individuality in writing or make the pupils write according to certain set copy? To get speed, and ease, will develop individuality. There will be a certain degree of uniformity in all good writers, and pupils in a certain grade will be apt to write similarly.

Regarding the length of time of a writing lesson, Mr. McKone thought this would differ according to the grade. A fifteen to twenty minutes' period seemed about the right length of time. Four periods of fifteen minutes are better than two half-hour periods.

Copybooks are not always an advantage. Pupils will watch the copy and write much like it for the first copy or so, but after that they forget the copy at the top and really copy their own writing.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. McKone for his kindness in addressing the Teachers' Institute, and for his help in the discussion.

THEY SAID CHILD COULD NOT LIVE

Mother Tells How Zam-Buk Worked Almost a Miracle

"I wish to let you know of a wonderful instance of the healing power of Zam-Buk," writes Mrs. A. Bruhm, of West Northfield, N.S. "While my little daughter was playing around a bonfire, her clothes caught fire, and she was so badly burned that those who saw her said she could not live. We knew how fine Zam-Buk is, and at once secured a big supply and swathed the child in bandages covered with Zam-Buk. The soothing effect of the balm was soon apparent, and the awful pain was greatly reduced. This treatment was continued, and in a few days the child was on the way to recovery. Naturally, we kept on using Zam-Buk until the pain was finally banished. Healing went on rapidly, and at last my child was quite restored to health.

"After this experience you may rest assured that our home will never be without Zam-Buk, and I would most heartily recommend other mothers to keep it handy at all times."

Is there no child, no adult, in your circle who would benefit from Zam-Buk? Remember the balm is a sure cure for eczema, ulcers, abscesses, ringworm, babies' rashes, inflamed sores, old wounds, etc., as well as for cuts, burns, and scalds. Zam-Buk may be had from all druggists and stores for only 50c. box, or direct from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Zam-Buk is so good that it has been imitated, and more or less harmful imitations are on the market; so be sure to see the name "Zam-Buk" (protected by law) on the box before parting with your money.

Turkeys Disappear In Smith Township

Smith township farmers are complaining of the loss of turkeys and other feathered vipeds common to the barnyard. Ernest Rosborough of the thirteenth concession of Smith, is said to have lost between twenty-five and thirty turkeys a few nights ago. On the nights the birds disappeared the tracks of an automobile were found in a lane leading up to the barn, and it is surmised that the owners of the car had something to do with the theft of the turkeys. When Mr. Rosborough came out next morning one of the turkeys was on top of the barn, while others were scattered around in different strategic points. The bulk of the flock was missing. It happened that the dog was shut up that night and therefore was not in a position to give the alarm. This is only one of many known cases where turkeys has disappeared under similar circumstances.

ROUMANIA MAY BE ARRANGING FOR PASSAGE OF RUSSIANS

LONDON, October 22—The probable position to be assumed by Roumania in dividing the attention with the question of the nature of the reply Greece will make to the offer of the Allies. The Bucharest correspondent of the Daily Mail says that Roumania will be guided in her decision by the question of intervention by the strength of the allied expedition for the aid of Serbia, and the time of the arrival of the expedition at the Serbian front.

The Roumania military commission is on its way to Odessa. It is considered more probable that the commission is to consult with the Russian military authorities regarding the desire of the passage of Russian troops through Roumania on their way to help Serbia. Russia is now massing troops along the Black sea and the Roumania frontier preparatory to sending an expedition to the Balkans.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

JOHNNY EVERS IS MISUNDERSTOOD BY THE PUBLIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Johnny Evers is the most misunderstood player in baseball. Instead of being a venomous tongued, unreasonable fellow, he is a true friend, loyal enemy, quick to forgive when anyone has done him injury, and the first to offer amends when he finds he is wrong, in the game or out of it.

"I can't play ball unless I crab," Evers said. He fights everybody in a game, even Umpire Frank Chance, who played at first base alongside of Evers for years, used to say: "I wish to heaven my deaf ear was toward the crab." Evers even "rode" Chance when Chance was manager. Chance understood him.

Evers does not hate umpires. Off the field he is eager to defend umpires with whom he has had trouble on the field. One season Evers kept after Bill Klem for three months. At the same time he declared Klem to be one of the greatest of umpires.

Evers gets in bad with umpires, not because he says a lot, but because of the way he says it. His remarks cut.

Evers, too, like some other players is paying for a past bad reputation. There are some players who have "ridden" umpires so hard the umpires are "laying" for them. Evers as he did when he was with the Cubs, but he is thrown out of games in a hurry, sometimes.

A New National League

NEW SOUTH WALES HAS ONE, AND IT HAS PLAYED WITH FAIR SUCCESS.

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 20.—The National Leage of Baseball Clubs is not the only National League in existence. There is now one below the equator. The latter is of course but an infant body compared with the big organisation in the United States, whose title it has presumed to copy, but in some future day—after the war—when baseball has gained the measure of popularity which its followers in Australia hope to see it attain "down under," there may be considerable significance in the words "The National Baseball Leage of New South Wales, Limited."

At the annual meeting a few days ago of the Summer Baseball Association, Limited, which was projected soon after the McGraw-Comiskey pilgrimage with the idea of making baseball a summer as well as a winter sport in Sydney and its environs, it was voted to change the name to the more high-sounding one just referred to. The first annual report of the association, which was read, said:

"It was unfortunate that the European crisis came just at the time we had launched our association, and considering all things we have done very well to maintain our position under most adverse circumstances. Unfortunately many obstacles were put in the way of the advancement of this association by other sporting bodies, for the purpose of strangling summer baseball in its infancy, but thanks to the loyal support of the players we have come through with flying colors, and we have every reason to be proud of our position.

"From a financial point of view we cannot claim a big success but under conditions which have prevailed since the opening of the season in September last we are indeed fortunate in being in such a healthy condition as we find ourselves to-day, and now that most of the big expenses have been cleared off we should do even better this season. The directors after due consideration, have decided to go on with the season's competitions, and trust now that the decision is made, to have the loyal support of players and public alike."

JAWN IS BUSY NOW KICKING THE OLD GIANT BOYS OUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—John McGraw is spending his days—and nights—trying to "dope" out the assembling of his 1916 team. Jawn's going to pick the old machine to pieces before the next season rolls around, and there'll be many new faces in the line-up. But just now Jawn isn't quite decided as to which of the old sogs to throw away — and which to keep.

However, it seems certain that Mathewson and Tesreau will be on the 1916 pitching roster. Ditto for Merkle, Fletcher, Doyle, Burns, and Robertson. Stroud, a pitching person, also seems fairly sure of lingering, but there's a lot of doubt as to the others.

First Rugby of the Season

The first rugby game of the season will be played at Riverside park tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock between the Lindsay and Peterborough Collegiate Institute. It should be a battle royal as the two teams are old rivals. In the line-up of the Collegiate team given yesterday, the name of Quarterback Stevenson of the Peterborough Collegiate, was omitted.

Teaching of Literature Can Not Be Done By Formula

Dr. Coleman Indicates the Essentials Required for the Teaching of This Subject in Public Schools

MUST CREATE LOVE FOR IT

The County and City Teachers joined forces to-day, holding a general convention in the Collegiate Institute Hall. Miss O'Connell, the retiring president of the City Teachers' Institute, presented her address. Dr. Coleman of Kingston, who lectured last night, gave an address on "Literary Backgrounds of the Public School Readers," and Miss M. Armstrong read a paper on "The Teaching of English Composition." Mr. C. C. Brown, B.A., Mr. W. J. Chisholm, B.A., and Mr. F. E. Kerr, B.A., are the contributors to this afternoon's session.

As Mr. Stubbs could not accept the position of Vice-President of the Teachers' Institute, since he is on the Library Board, Mr. Hone was elected to the position. The other nominatees recommended were elected.

Literary Backgrounds.

The readers are taken as a standard of a child's attainment, said Dr. Coleman. The old readers used to contain such general knowledge as botany, zoology, astronomy, and often they had too much literary value, but gave some scientific instruction that was thought to be good. Frequently the Scriptures were used as a reading book, certainly an advance on the preceding matter. Many other books have followed with the idea of making the texts suitable for the pupils using them, and these extracts were more valuable from a literary standpoint.

The old idea was mostly to teach meanings; it did not emphasize the thought and literary value of the selections. This was unpalatable to the pupils. The present tendency is to encourage the literary value of these textbooks. The Education Department emphasizes in selecting the readers their cheapness and other features that are not really of literary moment.

A genuine attempt has been made to grade the readers. Greater attention is directed to "folk" literature, that is the literature of the primitive people. Fairy tales and such are generally used. They appeal to the child as the child corresponds, in many respects, to the primitive people. These tales have much repetition, are highly imaginative and contain much that the objects said and did. Besides, inanimate objects are given life.

The mixture of prose and poetry, drama, etc., and the lack of continuity were also mentioned by Dr. Coleman, who said that the continuity that may be afforded is not fully utilized by the teachers. There is a lack of quantity or volume in the readers. The quality may be good, but there is too much condensation. The pupils should read much more than is in the readers. Many of them have never read a book through; this true of adults as well as children. The readers expose children to literature without developing a depth of literary culture.

How shall we overcome these difficulties? The teaching of literature should be a vital process, not accomplished by some formula. The idea is to get at the life of the extract. You cannot teach an extract without studying the context from which it is taken. You must get its setting, which helps explain the selection.

More Than Skill Needed.

Teachers should make intelligent use of the school library and encourage pupils to do the same. There is a time in the life of a pupil when you may make him love literature. The skill with which you teach a certain passage will not make him do this. We must surround the child with a proper atmosphere and high ideals. These have the greatest influence in creating a love for literature in the child.

Must Not Be Formal.

A dicussion took place as to whether it would not be better to study whole books rather than extracts as given in the reader. Intensive study is good to a limited extent. There is a great danger of adding too many facts to this literature and really spoiling the spirit of it. There is apt to be much pedantry about it. It is appreciation of literature we want and not a mass of facts about it.

It was suggested that a certain time each day might well be set aside for the pupils to read books for themselves. Reading to the pupils from good books is greatly appreciated by them and proves of great value in giving them a love for good literature. To give a particular formula for teaching literature is as bad as giving a formula for enjoying a sunset or the aroma of flowers. Teaching must not be formal in this subject.

Removal of National Animosities Is Work Teachers Can Effect

Dr. Coleman, Dean of the Faculty of Education, Queen's University, addressed a large assembly of city and county teachers, Normal School students and citizens in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall last night, at an open meeting under the auspices of the City Teachers' Institute. His subject was "The One Hundred Years of Peace between Canada and the United States," and proved an informative and interesting treatment of the international relations between the United States on the one hand, and Great Britain and Canada, on the other.

The boundary line from the St. Lawrence to the Pacific Ocean is remarkable for what it lacks rather than for what it possesses. Along that whole extensive front there is not a single gun, garrison or fortress. Nowhere else in the world does there exist an international boundary of which the same can be said.

On December 24th, 1814, the treaty signed in Ghent, Belgium, which concluded the war of 1812-15, between Canada and the United States, provided only one agreement, that war should cease and peace should begin. All the contentious problems which had lead to the war remained unsettled.

Afterwards, however, they were settled, some by additional treaties and others just settled themselves. One of the speakers at a banquet in Ghent, in connection with the signing of the treaty, said "May the gates of Janus now closed, remain closed for a century." This wish was fulfilled, but not without certain alarms and anxieties, but Canadians of later years have known nothing of these near approach to difficulties. We have come to regard the people of the United States as cousins and war now seems an impossibility.

Dr. Coleman enumerated the events and conditions which tended to strain the relations between these two countries, and similarly dealt with the influences which counterbalanced them, and were effective in cementing the friendship which has been steadily increasing. A few years after the war an Englishman writing to the Acting Secretary of State in Washington proposed that the two nations agree to a mutual disarmament. The United States official replied that he quite agreed with the suggestion and the passing years have provided no cause to repudiate it. Circumstances which threatened the one hundred years of peace were boundary questions, the Alabama case arising out of the civil war, the Venizuela question, fisheries disputes a suspicion of England and an intolerance of what was regarded as a patronizing attitude, and the animosity of the Irish arising out of the wrongs which they had suffered, these and other influences were dealt with in detail by Dr. Coleman.

On the other hand, the welding and ameliorating influences were the common political, social and literary heritage of both countries. In the past fifteen years England has been growing more federal, while the United States has been tending toward Empire. She could not talk of highhandedness on the part of Great Britain in the South African affair, for while the British were chasing DeWet, the Americans were chasing Aguinaldo, in the Phillipines. The incident of Manilla Bay, where the British naval commander refused the German proposal to act against the United States, Admiral Dewey, and placed his warship between the German and those of the United States. British ambassadors to Washington have been most happy choices, Dr. Coleman emphasising the splendid influence of such men as Bryce and the contrast of their conduct of affairs with that of ambassadors of other countries whom the speaker believed unnecessary to specify.

Change in History.

Of special interest was Dr. Coleman's reference to the changes in the common history of the two countries especially the war of 1812 and the U. E. Loyalists. He had taught this history in both Canadian and United States schools and found a difference so wide that the events in their several treatments could scarcely be recognised. There has been a change of late on the part of United States writers with admissions running almost to extremes as for example the unfavourable references in character studies of Washington and other public idols.

Dr. Coleman appealed to the teachers to endeavour to develop the international mind in themselves, and their pupils, so that an understanding of, and sympathy for, other people, may be inculcated. The work of the school teachers can help remove national animosities. We need a national sentiment that refuses to despise other people. To-day, Europe needs to be not Germanized nor Anglicanized but to be humanized.

Musical Programme.

Miss M. A. O'Connell presided at the meeting. A piano solo by Miss Sophie Elliott, a vocal duet by Miss M. Armstrong and Mr. O. M. Steer, and a chorus by the pupils of the Junior IV room at the Central School were greatly appreciated.

The children's chorus, taught by Miss M. Armstrong, reflected a comprehension of the basis of choral work, and a nice appreciation of the parts. There was no accompaniment and the pupils sang without any assistance other than Miss Armstrong's baton. They deserve every congratulation and encouragement upon their vocal progress. Future years will particularly profit by the present teaching of the pupils and their own endeavours. The class was warmly encored.

MILITARY NEWS

Mr. Asa Hucke, who sang at the patriotic concert in the Opera House last night was a candidate for overseas service, but failed to pass the medical examination. The explanation is necessary because some local people who have an uncanny facility for neglecting their own business to try to look after somebody else's, have criticised Mr. Hucke because, being of military age, he has taken part in patriotic concerts. He feels that if the medical requirements do not permit him going to the front, it is his duty to do what he can here, and therefore has been giving his services to help in patriotic concerts. It is a poor reward to be criticized by those who do not know the circumstances. A certificate from the medical examiner was read by Mayor Buller at last night's concert.

CARUSO'S GIFT BURDENS HIM

Often Prays That He Will Lose Voice Forever But Morning Shows It Stronger Than Ever

WANTS FREEDOM

Rather be a "Nobody" and Have Peace and Rest Than Famous as a Tenor.

On the ninth floor of the big hotel at Broadway and Forty-second street late yesterday afternoon sat a deep-chested, olive-tinted man of middle age. He seemed a focal point for all the gloom in the world, this big man with the mop of curly black hair, as he stroked the folds of his lilac-and-pink lounging robe.

"Do you know," he remarked, finally with sober emphasis, "a really serious interview with me has never, so far as I can recall, appeared in the American press?"

This, then, will be a serious interview with Enrico Caruso, world's greatest tenor.

In straight-from-the-shoulder English that was not at all "comic opera" in accent or tone Caruso said:

Calls His Gift a Burden.

"The burdens of my gift are greater than the rewards. Often before I go to sleep at night I pray I will awaken with my voice lost forever. But in the morning, when I arise full of hope that I may cast away the burden, the voice—my master—is stronger and apparently better than ever.

"I have thought of many ways of relieving myself of this intolerable burden. I have even thought of invoking the aid of a surgeon, who perhaps could perform a minor operation that would rob me of my voice. But where could I find a physician who would help me? Why, they would all say 'You are crazy.' Can you help me?"

"You might drink cocktails consisting of ipecac and ground-up nails or barb wire," it was suggested.

"Perhaps," commented Caruso, and he did not smile. "But I mean what I say. I am forty-two years old. I have all the money I need, all I can use. Why then can I not lead my own life in the future?"

Finds Life Monotonous.

"Always life to me is the same," he continued. "I go from bed to work, and from work to bed. It is always so. It was so on my recent trip to South America. I went to give less than a dozen performances. They insisted I sing again and again, and I gave twenty-seven performances.

"Some day, though, I will escape it all. Caruso without his voice will be Caruso, a nobody, and it is Caruso, nobody, that I want to be."

Owing to other engagements the tenor said he was able to spend only three or four days at his home in Florence last year. He sang in Milan and before the South American trip in Monte Carlo.

OBITUARY

WM. LEAHY.

The death occurred last night at St. Joseph's Hospital of Wm. Leahy, late of Otonabee. The deceased had been ill for some months and his death was not unexpected. He was 83 years of age and for many years followed the vocation of farming in the Township of Otonabee. His wife, one son and three daughters are left to mourn his loss. The son is Mr. Robert Leahy of Lindsay, while the daughters are Mrs. McMartin, Parnell Street, Mrs. A. J. Rishea, Kingston, and Miss Gertrude Leahy of this city. One brother, Mr. James Leahy of Douro, and three sisters, Mrs. John O'Leary, Indian River, Mrs. J. R. Allen, Douro, and Miss Julia Leahy, Douro, also survive him. The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock from the residence of Mr. McMartin, 503 Parnell Street, to the Sacred Heart Church, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

MRS. T. W. MORRISON.

The citizens of the community learned with deep regret of the death on Monday of Catherine Sophia McNeely, beloved wife of Councillor Thomas W. Morrison, of Norwood.

The late Mrs. Morrison, who was in her 46th year, was most widely esteemed and loved by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who will ever bear memories of her kind Christian character and friendliness. In the home where she manifested the qualities of a true wife and mother her loss is indeed a great one, and to her sorrowing husband and daughter and motherless babe the sincere sympathy of all is extended.

The late Mrs. Morrison was born in Asphodel, being a daughter of James and Margaret McNeely. Her marriage took place in 1895. She was a faithful member of the Methodist church.

Besides the family above mentioned she is survived by two sisters and four brothers: Mrs. James Paget of Trent River, Mrs. George S. Walker of Lindsay; John, of Norwood; Thomas of Dummer; Benjamin of Peterborough; Joseph, of Belmont.

The funeral took place yesterday after noon from the family residence, Belmont street. The service was held by the pastor, the Rev. A. M. Irwin, assisted by the Rev. J. G. Lewis of Peterboro.

KING STOPPED AT PADDY'S BED BUT PADDY WAS ASLEEP

LONDON, Oct. 23.—King George paid another visit to Leeds recently, and spent a considerable time at the military hospital. He had a word of cheer at every bedside, and the wounded were greatly encouraged by the visit. To Sergt. Swithells, of the King's Liverpools, who was wounded on his way to the firing line, His Majesty remarked: "It is hard lines to be wounded so soon, and I hope you will soon be better." Some amusement was caused in one of the wards by an Irishman known as "Paddy," who had been talking all the morning about what he would say to the King if he got a chance, and then lost his chance by falling asleep.

On his tour the King stopped at Paddy's bed, and was about to speak to him when he saw that he was asleep, and passed on with the remark: "Oh, poor fellow, he's asleep."

When Paddy woke and found that the King had been and gone, he said: "Oh, well, never mind, I have talked to the King before, and Kitchener as well."

Private McFarland, of the Royal Scots, told the King that the wounds he received in the Dardanelles were a trifling matter to his other experience, "for" said he, "I was in the Gretna railway disaster and afterwards on the way to the front on a troopship which sunk a German submarine."

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses!

A Free Prescription

You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing, say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read anything without glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy withor without glasses but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto. Pill a two ounce bottle with warm water, drop in one Bon-Opto tablet and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. The Veimas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail if your druggist cannot.

MEXICO'S TURBULENT LIFE NOW ENTERING NEW PHASE

Here is an outline of Mexico's turbulent history, which has entered a new phase:

2—General Victoriano Huerta takes title of "Provisional President" and calls a session of Congress for April, 1913.

4—President Wilson raises embargo on arms shipments to rebels February 3, 1914, forecasting end of Huerta regime.

5—American bluejackets arrested at Tampico by Huerta's soldiers on April 9, 1914, and the following day Rear-Admiral Henry T. Mayo demands salute of the American flag.

6—American troops land in Vera Cruz April 21, 1914, to force Huerta salute the flag.

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Baby's Own Tablets will promptly cure constipation of childhood. They act as a gentle laxative, regulate the bowels and stomach and are absolutely safe. Concerning them Mrs. A. The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

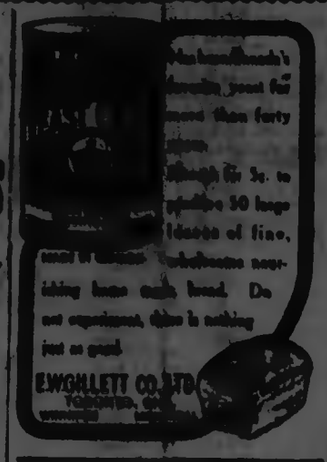
SCRIPTURAL MIX-UP.

The college boys played a mean trick on "Prexy" by pasting some of the leaves of his Bible together. He rose to read the morning lesson, which might have been as follows:

"Now Jobial took unto himself a wife of the daughters of Belial." (He turned a leaf.) "She was 10 cubits in height and 10 cubits in breadth." (A pause and careful scrutiny of the former page.)

He resumed: "Now Jobial took unto himself a wife," etc. (Leaf turned.) "She was 14 cubits in height and 10 cubits in breadth, and was pitched within and without—" (Painful pause and sounds of subdued mirth.) "Prexy" turns back again in perplexity.

"Young gentlemen, I can only add that 'Man is fearfuly and wonderfully made'—and woman also."



Fired 10,000 Shells at One Russian Regt.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 23.—There is an interesting detail in the official bulletin.

In one day the Germans fired at one Russian regiment 10,000 large-calibre shells—that is, at the rate of two and a half shells per man, with a big margin in the way of splinters and shrapnel bullets. This happened, apparently, south-east of Oshmiany, among the right-bank tributaries of the Upper Niemen.

This sudden revival of hurricane fire seems to indicate that the Germans are in great haste to reach a line on which they hope to establish themselves for the winter, and it is probably legitimate not only by the rapid closing in of the autumn, with its road-destroying rains and its sudden attack by the Allies in the West. The same nervous haste is observable in the renewal of the Austrian attacks in force on the front south of the Pripet.

New Area of Struggle.

The main German force is struggling on within a new railway area marked by the junctions of Molodetchno, Lida, Baranovitch, and Minsk. The heaviest attacks are being levied south-east of Oshmiany and near Baranovitch. The goal of the German effort is apparently the Beresina east of Minsk.

At Dvinsk heavy artillery fire is being maintained, but the position there is unchanged, possibly because the Germans cannot spare troops from the centre to reinforce the Dvinsk group.

Directors of stock companies must pay an income tax, on a graduated scale, of 5 per cent. on incomes of $2,500 and 20 per cent. on incomes of 40,000 lire ($8,000).

Special stamp dues are provided for as well as increased taxes on Government concessions and land. Certain telegraphic and postal rates have been raised.

Miss Cavell's Execution Causes a Great Rush to the Colours—Russians Will Land Troops on Bulgarian Coast in Two Weeks

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Taking instant advantage of the impetus given to army enlistments by Miss Edith Cavell's execution in Brussels, recruiting officers were pushing their campaign vigorously throughout the British Isles to-day. Army officers declared no incident of war, not the Lusitania incident nor Zeppelin raids, nor any appeal by the King or his advisors had been of so much help to them in bringing material they wanted, with a rush to the colours. By her death they said, Miss Cavell has served her country as effectively as she did during her life.

WILL LAND TROOPS.

BUCHAREST, via London, Oct. 23.—Russian troops will land on the Bulgarian coast within two weeks, it was asserted here to-day by one of the Czar's adjutants, on his way through Rumania to Serbia.

CABINET RESIGNS.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 23.—Luxemburg Cabinet has resigned owing to a disagreement with the Grand Duchess, the Cologne Gazette said to-day.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PARADE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Upwards of 30,000 men and women will march up Fifth Avenue this afternoon in the greatest demonstration for woman suffrage ever held in America. Twenty thousand women ranging from society leaders to factory girls, with 10,000 men of all classes, will make up the huge procession. Thirty bands will be scattered throughout the long line. Mayor and city dignitaries will review the procession. The majority of the women will be dressed in white, all wearing white hats. Orders were to that effect. There will be no laughing or talking in the line. Everything will be done to preserve solemnity, and impress on voters the magnitude of the issue on which they will vote on November 2.

Concentration of Greek Troops Being Carried Out Busily at Salonika

SALONIKA, Greece, Oct. 23.—The Serbian army at Velandovo (near the Greek border), has been ordered to leave for the north to reinforce the troops there, according to a despatch received by the Paris Journal from Athens. It is stated that Velandovo will be guarded by forces of the Entente Allies.

GREEKS ARE CONCENTRATING.

A despatch from Naples says: Passengers arriving on the steamer Montenegro from Salonika state that the departure of troops of the Entente Allies for Strumitsa has been suspended. The landing of Anglo-French forces is said to continue.

According to the passengers the concentration of Greek troops is being carried out busily at Salonika, where fifty thousand Greek soldiers already have been landed.

INDUCING THE GREEKS.

The Athens correspondent of the Paris Matin sends the following under date of Wednesday:

"The only way of inducing Greece to take military action is to send troops to Salonika in sufficient numbers. Ministers Elliot and Demidoff (Sir F. R. H. Elliot and Prince Elim Demidoff, respectively British and Russian Ministers to Greece) have called on Premier Zaimis, but no collective action by the Allied Ministers is probable at present, for it would have little chance of success. The Rumanian military Attache here is daily in close relation with his German colleagues, and the German Minister."

What Kaiser Desired.

The Paris Journal publishes an interview with Dr. M. R. Vesnitch, Serbian Minister to France, in which the Minister is quoted as saying that Emperor William desired to effect three things by an attack on Serbia. These things are:

First, a junction with Turkey in order to recruit soldiers from Asia Minor; next, to impress strongly the imagination of the Mussulmans; and lastly, to restore the German army's prestige lowered by the failure on the eastern and western war fronts.

The expedition of the Entente Allies, the Minister says, not only will succor Serbia, but will settle the five hundred-year-old eastern question.

"Pure Inventions."

The Saloniki correspondent of The Daily Mail asserts that many of the reports current concerning Bulgarian successes are pure fabrications.

Bulgarian irregulars who attacked Vranya, says the correspondent, succeeded in damaging the railway so that it cannot be used for the present, but these irregulars were defeated and the entire force exterminated. The Irene force, he continues, is executing a brilliantly planned movement in the rear of a large Bulgarian force for the purpose of cutting off a Bulgarian retreat on Istip. The Bulgarians are said to have suffered a notable reverse at the hands of the Serbians near Koprulu.

"Brito" Made on Sunday.

The offer of Cyprus to Greece was made last Sunday, according to The Times, and is a partial revelation of the proposals which had been under consideration for some time.

Greece, says the Times, was clearly informed by the British note that fulfillment of her treaty obligations to Serbia would entail the cession of Cyprus without prejudice to any other eventual advantage which the Allies might share with Greece. It is understood that the Greek Government had already been promised of large military and adequate financial support from the Allies, and had been given to understand that the condition of the guarantee of Greek possessions for a term of years, recently mentioned by Eleutherios Venizelos, the former Premier, in the Greek Chamber, would be fulfilled.

French and Bulgarian.

The Athens newspaper Embros says it learns from Mytilene Island that the Allies yesterday repulsed Turkish attacks in the regions of Suvla Bay and Krithia, and that the Turkish losses were severe. Two torpedo boat destroyers entered the Straits and bombarded Tsaculepi.

It is reported from Saloniki that the Bulgarians after occupying Pirot advanced toward Nish. It is also stated that the Bulgarians have been repulsed between Evripalaka and Stratzin, as well as in the region of Volosso.

EAGER TO FIGHT TURKS.

Albanians and Armenians in Italy Want to Go to Balkans.

ROME, Oct. 23.—All Albanians living in Italy, numbering about 200,000 descendants of those Albanians who left their country at the time of Scanderbeg declare themselves ready to contribute a contingent to fight on the side of the Allies in the Balkan expedition.

Not because they have any special sympathy for Serbia, but they wish to again face the eternal enemy of their race, Turkey, and frustrate the Bulgarian plan to stretch across the Balkans from the Black Sea to the Adriatic.

All Armenians residing in Italy also support enthusiastically any undertaking against Turkey.

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

A SIMPLE, SAFE, RELIABLE WAY

People who are overburdened with superfluous fat, know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that over-stout people have to bear.

If you are carrying around five or ten pounds of unhealthy fat you are unnecessarily weakening your vital organs and are carrying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you want to reduce your weight in a simple, safe and reliable way, without starvation diet or tiresome exercise, spend as much time as you can in the open air, breathe deeply, and get from any good druggist a box of oil of orilene capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and don't leave off the treatment or even skip a single dose, until you are down to normal.

Oil of orilene is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps digestion, and is designed to consume the excessive fatty tissue by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Even a few days treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight, footsteps become lighter and more buoyant feeling take possession of your whole being.

Every person who suffers from superfluous fat should give this treatment a trial, there is nothing better.

Any druggist can supply you or a large box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Can.

"Naw; she wasn't there. She don't know about it yet."

MODERN MAN WANTS IMPOSSIBLE IN WIFE

Grandmother had a cinch. All she had to do was to be domestic. That kept her tolerably busy, but not as busy and not as worriedly strenuous as her grandmother of the present day.

When grandmother married, she had her "place." Her job was ready for her. It was well defined both in her own mind and that of her husband. Both had been brought up to understand it.

But the young woman who marries to-day hardly knows where she is "at." He may preach domesticity to her and yet expect her to achieve fame on a separate income in exploits outside of the home. He may admire women, who "get their names in the papers" through their activity in society, clubs, civic movements, philanthropies, etcetra, and when his wife goes in for that sort of thing she may find that he develops a grouch because she necessarily neglects home and husband.

To tell the truth, the modern man is learning to want the impossible, a mother, a housekeeper unexcelled. He also wants a good-looking wife, an entertaining companion, and a well-dressed, well mannered woman he will be proud to take around with him. More than that, he wants a wife he can brag about in an off-hand way, to other men. He wants to see her picture in the club news, or the society columns. He may kick around home like the dickens, but he wants to be able to complain publicly that his wife is so everlastingly busy with her charity work that he hardly gets a chance to talk to her any more.

And when a wife finds that all her energy, time and thought are required for this work that brings her notoriety, and neglects her home for it, then do we hear injured howls from the husband, and masculine declamations that the modern woman is no longer a woman, that her craze for interests outside the home is breaking up the home and that man is a poor abused animal left to get his own breakfasts and his dinners at a restaurant, while the hired girl puts the baby to bed.

Yes—grandmother had a cinch.

Maybe she had to raise a large family, but she raised them to help around the house, and she knew there wasn't much chance for them to get into mischief outside of the house, because there was plenty of room for them to run around and she knew the characters of all the residents thereabouts.

If she did the cooking, there was usually some other member of the family to help her, and the whole family turned in to assist on washday. Grandmother wasn't expected to be up to the date in her clothes. She had a best bonnet and a best dress and these did from year to year, with a slight make-over now and then. The rest of the time she wore serviceable cotton dresses and aprons around the house. Nor was she expected to buy a lot of hair to look like a girl on the magazine front cover. She did with what she had, and father made no invidious comparison when she twisted it in a serviceable knot at the back of her head.

Grandmother was satisfied with a neighborhood reputation as a good cook, a careful mother, a conscientious housekeeper. Grandfather also was satisfied with that kind of a reputation for her. He was also decidedly comfortable in the exercise of grandmother's virtues. And when she grew wrinkled and gray-haired and stout, grandfather didn't stir up her feelings by hinting that she should cultivate a svelte form and a peach-blow complexion and bring herself up to him mentally. At the same time, grandfather "set consid'able store" by what grandmother had to say about things in general.

Sure! Grandmother had a cinch.

"GIVE US BREAD" CRY IN TURKEY

A. Robert Moentsier, literary editor of "Judge" New York, who has just returned from Constantinople, writes as follows in the London Daily News and Leader: In more ways than one Constantinople snowed itself during the last two months the capital of a country that is fighting without any heart for mercenary officials and for an alien people with whom the Turks have nothing in common. Business is bad, food is dearer, and bread is scarce.

"Give us bread!" was a cry not infrequently heard, and on one occasion in Stambul it reached such proportions that a riot resulted. At the time every shop throughout the city was flying one or more red flags bearing the crescent and star. No shopkeeper dared violate the police order that all flags should be hung out in celebration of a great victory. What was the victory? Ten thousand English soldiers have been killed—so the official report said. The bakery where the trouble started had no loaves to distribute. However, its flags were flying.

"We want bread, not flags," shouted one woman, and the crowd took up the cry. Then a riot broke out, and the flags on the bakery and on the neighboring buildings were torn down. When help came to the lone policeman about a dozen women were arrested and thrown into jail. If they were fortunate enough to receive bread and water while there bread riots might have become exceedingly popular in Constantinople.

The poorer classes of people hearing of victory after victory argue simply, but effectively. "If our brothers are victorious, why don't our husbands, our sons come back to us? Why are there so many wounded? Why don't we have all the bread we want?"

Young Turk leaders who are responsible for the present state of affairs can talk for hours about the benefits that their country has derived and the glorious future that will be hers through their sacrifices. Sacrifices! I have yet to hear of any influential member of the present regime who has not be lining his pockets with gold for fair days in Constantinople or for rainy days to come in Asia Minor. Whatever happens they do not intend to lose materially by the officer they have held.

The disappearance of public moneys is so well known that rarely is a Turk to be seen putting anything into the "For the National Defence" cans, which are shoved under one's nose in the street, on tramcars, in restaurants, in public gardens, everywhere but in the home. Nor is the Turkish public any longer contributing freely to the funds of the Red Crescent.

Three or four times a week hospital ships return from Gallipoli with wounded soldiers, and Constantinople is aware of the fact, although often the men are kept at the Customs house to be transported through the streets under cover of darkness.

The recruit in the raw comes from the interior of Asia Minor or from far-off Arabia in his picturesque garments, puts on a uniform and the peculiar helmet that has replaced the fez, receives an uncertain amount of military training, and goes when needed to the front, usually by a transport ship carrying also ammunition and rifles that have been made by German workmen in the Turkish capital, or shipped, as a certain amount was until recently, across Roumania and Bulgaria as "pianos," "agricultural machinery," and the like.

Using box kites to lift an aerial, experts of the United States army have increased the efficiency of field wireless equipment from six to sixteen times.

ENGLAND'S PREMIERSHIP.

A Coveted Office That Brings Misery to Its Incumbents.

The lot of the British premier is like that of the policeman in the Gilbertian ballad—not a happy one. After Lord Derby had been prime minister he said that he had had only two happy days in office, one being the day he entered it and the other the day he retired from it.

Peel wrote: "It is impossible for me not to feel that the duties are above all human strength; at least, above mine." Peel also once made the curious statement that if his nose had not bled every night during his premiership he could not have borne the load of his position.

Lord Palmerston was so much affected by his work that he had a special high desk built, which necessitated a standing position. He explained that if he fell asleep while trying to keep up with his work the fall would awaken him.

Disraeli frequently stated that no man could have any notion of the arduous life, and when Gladstone was released from the duties of prime minister he leaped head over heels down a grass bank at Lord Evans' through sheer delight.

Lord Rosebery once wrote the following concerning the duties of prime minister: "He has to deal with the sovereign, with the cabinet, with parliament and with public opinion in its various kinds and degrees. Some of his colleagues he must convince, some he may have to humor, some even to cajole. It is a harassing, laborious and ungracious task."—New York Times.

Human Strides.

Many correspondents have been testing the length of their stride, even those small boys who pace out the length of a cricket pitch in assurance that twenty-two long steps make twenty-two yards. But a walker from the city avers he comes as near as most men to the yard to the step on a long walk. He stands five feet eight and one-half inches, has a swing from the hips and has always between milestones stepped from 1,690 to 1,710 paces to the mile. That, of course, is a solitary walk. In a regiment the pace must be set by the average of the longest and shortest stepper.—London Opinion.

Empty Bags.

Andrew Carnegie once gave a clergyman a donation for his church and at the same time another gift for a brother clergyman who had fallen into destitution.

"But I doubt if he will take this money, Mr. Carnegie," the clergyman said doubtfully. "He is very proud."

"Oh, he'll take it," said the ironmaster. "Poverty destroys pride. How can an empty bag stand upright?"

Captive Balloons And How They Are Employed in Warfare

With military telephones, wireless stations, and long range guns, chance still played a considerable roll in the battle fields of recent wars, though a far less important roll than in the earlier past. To-day with the addition of the air craft chance is all but eliminated. Every move of the troops on either side is known at once to the enemy. Batteries may be concealed beneath brush, and trenches be partially covered, but no massing of forces can take place along the battle-front without knowledge of such action being gleaned by the bird men. This knowledge is immediately communicated to headquarters, and the move at once checkmated.

The success of the weapons of the Germans cannot be denied. They have guns in use which the rest of the world had scarcely accepted in theory. In the air, however, with the costly and reputedly invincible Zeppelin, they are an utter failure.

France had easily demonstrated her superiority over the common enemy in air warfare. Almost weekly we get news of the destruction of a German taube or Zeppelin. Her success in aerial scout duty has been more pronounced than that of the enemy, with the result that offensive movements have been anticipated and met so successfully that the French line is slowly but surely advancing.

The work of signalling the position of the enemy, their approach, their retreat, their every movement from aeroplanes is very interesting. Yet, the height the aviators must attain to be out of range of hostile guns, and the speed at which they must fly, make the handling of telescopes very difficult, and the necessity of a more effective method of observation imperative.

This need brought about the development of the captive balloon, which was made portable and easy to operate by means of specially constructed automobiles. The automobile required for this purpose is a three or five ton truck, equipped with every necessary device for the operation and transportation of the balloon. This car carries a reel holding about 5,000 feet of cable and is connected by gears and friction clutch to the main shaft of the motor, which gives perfect control of the balloon in any position. It can be manoeuvred with great facility—either following along the front retreating or advancing at the will of the operators. The gas generating device is most compact and effective, filling the balloon in a very short time. The car is also equipped with search light, electric generator, telephone and wireless instruments.

War balloons are small and of two types, round and cigar shaped. The round balloon is most in use, but the cigar shaped bag is said to have great stability. The baskets or cars of these balloons are usually occupied by two men, one to make observations, while the other communicates with the staff below. The telescope covers a range of fifteen to twenty miles, and shows very clearly the movements of the enemy and the effect of the artillery fire of both sides within that radius. All information is at once communicated to the commander, who issues his orders accordingly and by means of messengers on horses or motorcycles. In many instances, the general himself goes up in the basket to make observations or to direct the artillery fire from that point. Movements in the enemy trenches can be watched, and the artillery fire directed either from the ground or from the air. Information may be signalled from the balloon either night or day. Thus special information and instructions may be sent immediately to the officers of any command within a radius of six or even eight miles. Needless to say these balloons are hunted by the German air-craft and this necessitates French air patrol-men keeping a close look out for hostile Taubes while balloons are in the air. These combination balloon and automobile observatories have proved so successful that a great number are under construction at the present time. The perfection of these air sentinels is only another phase of the rapid strides being made in the science of war.

THE GIFT.

"Back with your shields—or on them!"
The words froze on our lips.
And straight our hearts outran our fears
And passed the silent ships.
We gave you, God our witness,
Eager and strong and brave.
Pride had no need to urge you.
Love had no power to save.

Back with your shields, and always,
Through every empty street,
We hear once more the manly sound
Of those triumphant feet!
By ways that led to glory,
From sodden trench and plain,
You come, oh great, and dear, and brave,
Back to our arms again!

Did you feel around you
On many a splendid field,
A woman's hope your refuge,
A woman's love your shield?
Our hearts went out to meet you,
So strong they were and swift,
And God records the anguish,
That consecrates the gift.

"Back with your shields—or on them!"
And some shall sleeping lie,
Until the great reveille sounds
And rends the quivering sky.
When Peace shall fold her shielding wings,
Above that glorious bed,
Count as the women's priceless gift,
The roll call of the dead!

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Autumn. This is the season when many people wonder how they ever happend to take such a heavy cold. In many cases they at once declare that as usual, it will probably last all winter unless they go south. As a matter of fact, the cause is quite evident if you will only stop to analyze your own actions when the first cold days are at hand.

Usually the first thing done by you is to shut all the doors and windows, even the bedroom windows remained tightly closed all night. The mid-day is warmer and the doors and windows are again opened, but as evening comes on they are closed and a fire is started in the long unused furnace or stoves. The dust that has accumulated in the furnace pipes or radiators, stove pipes and flues, is quickly dried and carried by the heat into the air of the closed rooms. The family breathe this dust laden air and some of the more susceptible members cough and sneeze, then they remark that they must have taken cold when the windows were opened at noon.

Now suppose that instead of the usual plan you just start the furnace or stoves going at noon and leave the doors and windows open, let the dust and dirt go out doors and the clean fresh air come into the rooms. Don't try to get the dust out of the air flues or radiators by wiping with wet cloths, that is, unless you wash them clean. It's better to use dry dusters or better still a bellows or a vacuum cleaner. Get the house thoroughly warm and dry for the chilly evening and then you can continue the open windows with comfort. Overheat is the proper name for colds. There is, of course, a predisposing cause in your own body and when you shut off the fresh pure air and turn on the heat you breathe in the germs which find suitable soil in your nose and throat for breeding places, whereas if you had put on plenty of warm clothing and remained in the fresh, pure air, especially at night, there would be no trouble. Night air is just as good as day air. The cattle and other animals that remain in the open seldom have colds, though their coat is wet to the skin, while those that are carefully housed in basement barns with all the doors and windows closed to prevent drafts, suffer continuously.

The body should be cleaned, purified and prepared by the Home Health Club methods of living and then there would be no suitable soil for disease germs to work and breed in.

Barrichfield, Pte. David G. Hatton has this selection "Probably nineteen-twentieths of the happiness you will ever have you will get at home. The independence that comes to a man when his work is over, and he feels that he has run out of the storm into the quiet harbour of home, where he can rest in peace with his family, is something real. It does not make much difference whether you own your own home, or have one little room in a house, you can make that room a true home to you. You can people it with such moods, you can turn to it with such sweet fancies that it will be fairly luminous with their presence, and will be to you the very perfection of a home. Against this home none of you should ever transgress. You should always treat each other with courtesy. It is of greater value and a more royal grace than some people seem to think. If you will but be courteous to each other you will soon learn to love each other more wisely and profoundly, not to say lastingly, than you ever did before.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

EQUAL RIGHTS.

A man should not see his wife work harder than himself (of course according to strength, neither should a woman be idle a great share of the time if her husband works all the time. Two hearts must beat together—one must work as hard as the other. In summer a woman ought to have two hours to read every afternoon, for she must work all evening doing up her work, washing the children and putting them to bed, while her husband is reading—equal rights, you know. Then another instance I witnessed. A man buys several articles of machinery which could have been dispensed with, while in the house they do not have a piece of furniture for the sitting room. Now, my husband don't do that (for of course he is the model husband. I get luxuries for the house according to the machinery purchased. I work hard, so does he; some days neither of us have time to read. I know no other way than to meet him with a smile. I live for him and our children, and I am happy. We live within our means but vary our table fare so there is no sameness. I think we ought to study our methods so as to economize time; that is one great help the Home Circle Column is. Let each one give useful recipes, patterns, etc., then we will be a great help to each other as well as a pleasure; for who does not enjoy reading the Home Circle Department of this paper?

There are few young men nowadays who show habits of thrift and economy. There is a disposition to spend rather than save, and through love of personal adornment, expensive habits, and a lack of that desire to lay aside funds for a rainy day, our young men are not acquiring a reputation for forehandness, which might prove of inestimable value to them in the future. We would not desire them to be mean or selfish, but there is a happy medium between a spendthrift and a miser. Gay companions, pool playing and fine livery turnouts will never enrich any young man.

We all know the man, the mere grip of whose hand puts new life and strength into us, and the woman whose brave, cheery smile — amidst disappointment and trouble — makes us ashamed to despair and give up. And why should we not resemble them? It is surely better to be like a bright, cheerful fire, at which our friends can warm and revive their drooping hearts, than like the proverbial wet blanket, which can effectually put out the flame of love and hope.

A magazine devoted to young men

Young man, you have a purpose in life? What do you intend to be or to do? The question strikes you with something of novelty. Yet it is the great one on which your future place in the world depends. If no life-purpose is yet formed in your mind, it is full time that you sat down and spent season in grave reflection. Without an earnest purpose nothing worth accomplishing can be done in this world. Thought, will, energy, work—these are the elements of all success. These are the materials out of which men construct their fortunes; and if you are dreaming of wealth, honour or position in the future, and have not these to build on, and with advancing years, will see the beautiful structure that now rises pleasantly in your fancy, fading away like the baseless frabric of a vision. Gird up your loins, and in good earnest, seek to acquire the highest ability in your art, calling or profession. Let each day see you advancing in skill and knowledge; and as certain as the sun shines, or the water runs, you will rise above the common mass. And just in the degree that your motives are honourable and unselfish, will you add happiness to success in life.

A child should be made to feel that his home is indeed a home, the happiest place in the world to him, not merely an outward shelter and resting place, but a centre of enjoyment, sanctified and purified by love, the thought and remembrance of which shall be the safeguard of his life as he goes forth into the world, giving strength and proportion to his character, and turning his thoughts to all that may prepare him for the heavenly home when the scenes of earth shall have passed away

ALL MOTHERS NEED CONSTANT STRENGTH

Their Strength is Taxed and They Are Victims of Weakness and Suffering

When there is a growing family to care for and the mother falls ill it is a serious matter. Many mothers who are on the go from morning to night, whose work, apparently, is never done, try to disguise their suffering and keep up an appearance of cheerfulness before their family. Only themselves know how they are distressed by backaches and headaches, dragging down pains and nervous weakness; how their nights are often sleepless, and they arise to a new day's work tired, depressed and quite unrefreshed. Such women should know that their sufferings are usually due to lack of good nourishing blood. They should know that the one thing they need above all others to give them new health and strength is rich, red blood, and that among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their blood-making, health-restoring qualities. Every suffering woman, every woman with a home and family to care for should give these pills a fair trial, for they will keep her in health and strength and make her work easy. Mrs. G. Strasser, Acton West, Ont., says: "I am the mother of three children, and after each birth I became terribly run down; I had weak, thin blood, always felt tired, and unable to do my household work. After the birth of my third child I seemed to be worse, and was very badly run down. I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I found the greatest benefit from the pills and soon gained my old-time strength. Indeed, after taking them I felt as well as in my girlhood, and could take pleasure in my work. I also used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones and have found them a splendid medicine for childhood ailments."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DINNER, DANCE, AND BALL GOWNS

With Timely Suggestions For All Saints' Eve

PANNIERS FAVOURED DETAILS

NEW YORK, October 23.

Afternoon frocks for more dressy occasions are quaint and becoming to a degree; many of them look as if they might have been worn by grande dames of the period just following the French Revolution, with perhaps a little added dignity.

The taffetas, failles, and velvets favoured for these gowns lend themselves particularly well to the draperies now in vogue, panniers, pouffs, and the loose panels of Watteau's figures.

The tang of winter in the air recalls us all to the dignity of formal dinners, dances, teas, and like occasions, with their respective demands for more formal frocks than those we have enjoyed all summer, our simple wash and taffeta models, so becoming and youthful-looking. This winter, however, the added formality consists merely of the addition of a few quaint ruffles, and draperies that will appeal to most of us very pleasingly.

Dinner, Dance, and Ball Gowns.

Dinner and ball frocks are extremely dainty and quaint this winter. The pannier, with its graceful draperies over the hips, is often accompanied by a loose hanging panel, and hung over contrasting underskirts of figured or flowered taffeta, or one of the charming embroidered brocades of the moment, in silver or gold. Now and then one sees a ball or dinner gown of black satin, heavily trimmed with sparkling jet; there are many veiled models, too; taffetas, failles, and satins, veiled with beaded nets or chiffons. Gray is nearly as popular a shade for this type of frock as for daytime wear; often it is combined with black lace over white most effectively. Much velvet is used, combined with satin, taffeta, or faille, or as bandings for the cloth frocks which are quite popular.

The Day of the Dance Not Passed.

Dancing is still much in favour. Some charmingly capricious frocks have been designed this winter especially for the maid or matron who dances. Many of these are delightfully youthful and frivolous; one especially dainty creation has a skirt made entirely of ribbon, with net bodice, veiling a band of the ribbon at the bustline. Net, and the daintily coloured bordered chiffons, are much used for these gowns; also the quaintly patterned taffetas and brocades, so reminiscent of days gone by. The nets and chiffons are usually hung over slips of satin or taffeta, or looped up, pannier fashion, over a silver or gold brocaded satin underskirt.

The Fancy Dress Costume.

There are times when it is pleasant to dispense with the frock especially designed for certain purposes, and to let Fancy take her own way, and garb us as she will, in some particularly fantastic creation all her own. All Saints' Eve, or Hallowe'en, is one of these times. The maid who looks for her fate in the candle's flame, and the man who trivels in fantastic garb, are at perfect liberty to enjoy this weird evening in whatever costume pleases them most. There is no more demure, pleasing costume for the maid than this quaint Empire frock with its frilled pantalettes, its crescent and star-decked bonnet, and its fuzzy-tailed black cats, world-wide omens of good luck and witches' magic, bordering its short, full skirt. The man may wear a Pierrot costume; it has always been a favourite and loses none of its charm this winter.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandetine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

PRETTY MODEL FOR FALL HAS HIP YOKE

Until next spring comes along with its new styles, a model will be one of the prettiest and most practical of the new models for dresses has the hip yoke, which so many women like, with a plain, unbroken line down the front. This length of line gives grace and height to a figure and reduces the apparent breadth of a stout form. The pattern calls for six yards of 36-inch taffeta, or fewer yards of wider goods. The bands require one yard of 44-inch goods, or two of narrow material and a quarter of a yard is sufficient for the collar.

Skirts like the one in the model referred to are often made of taffeta silk with serge bands. Broadcloth, braid, or fur bands are also used, and the same things employed as trimming on the bodice. Where thin fabrics are used, such as chiffon, georgette, grenadine, indestructible voile (a lovely diaphonous textile), or net which is very popular—the bands are made of ribbon, either velvet or silk; or of shirred or ruched trimming, or little ruffles.

There is nothing prettier for a young girl than dainty frills of some diaphanous goods on her skirt. And it is well to remember that when net is to form the frock you must be careful to turn in the hem well, because net has a way of fraying out on the edges of a hem in the wash.

If care is taken to turn in the raw edge thoroughly net will wear forever and always look fresh and beautiful.

Silk, combined with braid or velvet, would make up beautifully for afternoon wear, or broadcloth with velvet or braid. For the morning, woods with braid, or contrasting wool trimmings, will look charming, while for evening wear bands and festoons of the popular flower trimmings will add fascination and loveliness to any sort of thin dress of the textures mentioned.

OLD TIME RECRUITING

Methods of Enlisting in the Good Old Days

In view of the taking of a National Register in the United Kingdom, it is interesting to recall how armies were raised in the old days. In 1757, for instance, new rules were drawn up for the "better ordering of the militia forces in the several counties of that part of Great Britain called England."

To begin with, the chief constable or other officer of each respective hundred, or other division within their respective counties, had to make a return of "all persons between the age of eighteen and fifty years." The authorities at that time did not ignore questions of health as they are ignored in our national register, for the officers making the return were directed to state "which of the persons so returned labor under any infirmities."

Then when the lists were complete the men who had to serve were chosen by lot out of the whole number of men liable to serve. The men so chosen were then enrolled to serve as private men for three years or to provide fit substitutes. But of course all sorts of people were exempted, and here is a list of them:

"All peers of this realm, members of the universities, clergymen, teachers and preachers of separate congregations, constables and other peace and parish officers, articled clerks, apprentices, seamen and seafaring men."

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

TO LIEUT. WARNEFORD

A falcon poising long and lost in space—
A cloud his only shield.
He marks the monster from the murderous field
Its homeward way retrace.
Sudden below him shows afar
Glistening in the summer's breeding noon—
The silken gray expanse of the balloon;
Then on that nightmare swoops his car,
All Perseus—like against Medusa's might,
And cleaves it with his dart;
Then watches he its fall,
Head downward, flashing light,
With thunderous call,
To plow the plains apart!

Against a hundred was that single foe—
A hornet striving 'gainst a giant's blow;
Swept in the whirlwin path its falling cleaved
He with unerring hand control retrieved—
Then lightly off again
Gives Pegasus free rein—
He soared away, undaunted, 'mid the flow
And space amain!

And we, what visions, what high psans throng
At such a deed for song?
What master hand, what lyric voice, is here
Whose masterpiece hath such perfection sheer?
For nobler cause what heart hath ever striven
Or nobler deed been wrought?
What immortality like this been riven
And from Davil's very maw caught?

THE BERLIN TREATY

Signed in 1878 by Representatives of the Great Powers

The Berlin Treaty, the famous "Peace with Honor," was signed at Berlin, July 13th, 1878. The representatives of the Great Powers at the Berlin Congress here very well known names, for Germany was represented by Prince Bismarck, Russia by Prince Gortschakoff, Austria by Count Andrassy, France by M. Waddington, and Great Britain, of course, by Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury. The results achieved by the British plenipotentiaries were received at the outset with the greatest enthusiasm in Great Britain. Even Mr. Gladstone said that, taking the whole of the provisions of the treaty together, he was thankful to acknowledge that great results had been achieved "towards the establishment of human happiness and prosperity in the East."

Why Lord Beaconsfield allowed the golden moment for a dissolution and for an appeal for a fresh lease of power to go by, critics seem unable to agree. It would certainly appear now that had he gone to the country at once he would have remained Prime Minister until his death, and the great Liberal victory of 1880 would have been a thing unknown. But the most likely explanation of Beaconsfield's failure to back his luck was loss of nerve through increasing years, and so the opportune moment passed, never to recur.

Our Naval Warfare

The fire of a naval gun is directed from the fire-control station, a small box on the masts. Here is the range-finder—a large telescope pointed at right angles to its object. This telescope consists of a series of mirrors of various sizes and curves, which catch the ships all round and fix them before the eyes of the officer, who can set his lenses so that he can gauge the correct angle by a small calculation and can reckon almost the exact space separating him from his opponent. The information is telephoned to the gunner, who directs the telescopic sight attached to his gun on the desired object. This sight magnifies the size of the opponent and brings its characteristics close to the eye.

Clothing Kitchener's Army

The manufacture of clothing for Kitchener's armies proceeds in the West Riding of Yorkshire on a colossal scale. It is estimated that between 250 and 300 miles of khaki cloth are being woven every week. Over 12,000 looms are busy, working on an average nearly "time and a half." One mill alone produces forty miles of cloth weekly. Some 50,000 tailors and tailoresses are making up the material into garments, the work as a whole being supervised by a committee of experts appointed by the War Office. In regard to army boots about twenty factories in Leeds alone produce some 40,000 pairs a week.

Sees Woman Voter As An Insult to God

Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady Denounces Feminine Ambition to Evade Nature's Laws

Points to Clothing and Adornment as Proof of Mental Inferiority.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth—Gen. xxvii., 46.

From the text the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, the novelist, preached an anti-suffrage sermon Sunday afternoon at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. He said that woman suffrage was an insult to man and an insult to God—an insult to man, because it was an effort of woman to usurp duties imposed upon man in the scheme of creation, and an insult to God because it was an effort of woman to enter a sphere for which the Creator did not intend her.

"That vertebrate animal popularly called man," said Mr. Brady, "exists in two forms, male and female, man and woman, differentiated in sex by variant reproductive functions."

Mr. Brady then traced the development of the family, and said it represented the work of woman, a work which was not completed and would not be completed until man was monogamous to perfection.

"I spoke of marriage as a simple institution," he said. "So it is, but this simplicity is the result of the age-long and most painful struggle on the part of what is popularly referred to as the weaker sex. The passions of man, in spite of their overwhelming physical ability to gratify them, have been slowly brought into subjection by the influence, subtly exerted through countless generations, by his complement and opposite, woman. Her struggle has been for a monogamous marriage, one man and one woman, faith, fidelity, honor, and respect equally given; and her triumph, while not yet complete, is in a fair way of achievement, if she will continue her struggle on the legitimate lines marked out for her by her successes of the past.

Growth of Wife's Rights.

"The dominant tendency of the evolution of marriage is the extension of the wife's rights. A wife is no longer the property of her husband, and marriage should be and is a contract on a footing of perfect equality, but the equality is in function and position only. The power of decision is properly vested in the man and husband.

"Now the perfection of the family is woman's task. But this triumph of the effort for the recognition of inherent equality in marriage has not been won by the Xantippes of society.

"No one can say that the functions of the man in the family are entitled to more respect than those of the woman. In fact, it can be urged that in the perpetuation of the human race the woman has incomparably the harder part to sustain, therefore who shall say it is not the more honorable?

"So I say deliberately that the so-called woman movement is an attempt to escape the function of woman, a revolt against the fact that woman is not a man, an attmept to enter the field of effort in which man's powers are properly exercised. It is a rising against nature. It is a revolt against God.

"It is degenerate in that it tends to reverse the existing order. It is atavistic in its attmept to revert to a past condition. It is essentially immoral in that it will undignify marriage. It is ruinous to the progress of civilization in that it conduces to undermine religion.

A Rap at Women's Dress.

"Woman is a creature of impulse, man of judgment. That's the mental basis of the sexes. History illustrates it. The ablest exponents in art, letters, science, war, trade and politices have been men. Yes, even in departments of effort regarded as peculiarly feminine, such as dressmaking, cooking, millinery, the rule obtains.

"Show me any considerable group of women strong enough to say what they will wear and wherewithal they will be clothed, booted, or hatted. The spineness with which you accept the dictum of fashion and clothe yourself in the ephemeral sartorial idiocies current is indicative. We laugh at the nose ring, the flattened forehead, the blackened teeth, the tatooed cheeks, the feathered head of the savage. No savage woman ever wore a corset or a high-heeled shoe, or stuck on her head the atrocities for the concoction of which you pay great prices to men.

"Why should a woman wear feathers on her head? Does anyone think they are pretty? Imagine the Venus of Milo so adorned. I wish you could see yourself from the pulpit. Begin your reforms on your heads and then go to your backs and to your feet. You are slaves, but not to man—to each other. Women do not dress for men, but for women. Break these shackles if you can, before you ask to be trusted with the vote.

"History shows us a shadowy and somewhat immoral Sappho, a ferocious Jezebel, a mythic Semiramis, a voluptuous Cleopatra, a vile Messalina, a lonely Elizabeth, an infamous Catherine, a frivolous Pompadour—and these are the women who have usurped the functions of men. Of course, there are exceptions. We all personally know some strong, manly women, and our acquaintance does not lack some sweet, womanly man. On the other hand, what a splendid roll of mothers does history present, from Rizpah, Hannah, Mary, Cornelia, Monica, down to Mary, mother of Washington, and your own mothers.

Physically Unfit for Man's Place.

"Again from another point, the physical labour of men. Her terms certain strains, make certain efforts, resist certain forces, all of which are severe enough to tax the body and the mind to the highest degree. But in fitting woman for these things she has been unfitted entirely for the physical labor of man. Her terms of service on the bench, at the bar, in the army or navy or militia, in Sheriff's posse, as doctor, clerk, or laborer would be so uncertain as to render her unavailable unless she totally abrogated the functions of woman.

"What will be the untimate result of this woman movement? We will have no more families, no more mothers, no more society, marriage will be a failure, for if it exists at all it will be a condition in which the husband will be one man and the wife another. The field for the practice of the highest virtues, the home, will be eliminated. The social purity of mankind will be undermined, prostitution will flourish, as it always does when marriage is neglected, and the result will be ruin.

"This is carrying the argument to the extreme, I admit, but it is legitimate deduction from the attempt of woman to occupy the field of man.

"Now I will admit that the economic position of woman is not yet ideal—neither is that of man. Many women work. Many do not marry, it seems; some because they will not, more because they cannot. I wish I could procure a home and a husband for every woman. But how would the ballot in woman's hands better these sad conditions? The ballot in the hands of women has not made Colorado a better State."

Facial Control Helps Hold Temper Down

Strange it may seem, an extremely helpful means to overcome a tendency to outbreaks of bad temper is to develop control of the muscles of the face.

Scientists have lately been studying the physiology of the emotions. They have found that when a man gets angry, frightened, or otherwise emotionally upset, certain bodily changes take place.

Some of these are internal, others external. The internal changes are of a reflex character, hence not amendable to control by the will. But it is different with the external changes.

These consist chiefly of changes in the expression of the face. The angry man closes his jaws tightly, clenching his teeth. Usually his forehead is furrowed with an ugly frown. Sometimes his lips are drawn back, exposing his teeth.

Now, experiment and observation have shown that there is so intimate a relation between his anger and its facial expression that if thes particular changes in expression did not occur his anger would soon fade.

Some scientists, in fact, adopting the slightly James-Lange theory of the emotions, go so far as to declare that the feeling of anger is wholly dependent on its expression. In other words, that one does not look angry because one feels angry, but one feels angry because one looks angry.

Most authorities believe that this is decidedly putting the cart before the horse. But they agree that even if the looking angry is the result of feeling angry there is a sort of back action by which the looking angry makes a person feel angrier than he otherwise would.

They also believe that, as was just said, the more the facial expression is controlled, the greater the likelihood that the anger will be of short duration, perhaps even passing away almost as soon as felt.

On this point interesting testimony was offered more than a century ago by the statesman Burke.

Talking with Dugald Steward, Burke confessed that the more he indulged in the external expression of anger the angrier he became, and that his temper sank in proportion as he controlled his features.

Control of facial expression is possible to everybody, because facial expression is chiefly a product of muscular movements that are always controllable by the will.

The next time, therefore, that you find yourself angered by anybody or anything, take note at once of the state of the muscles of your forehead, your jaw, and your mouth.

Refuse to allow them to tighten up. Keep them relaxed.

Do this habitually, and do it the instant you feel the first faint spark of indignation.

It will not do to delay until your anger has become a real flame. For by this time you will have neither thought nor desire to control the appearance of your face.

And is this matter, as in all things, desire must be present to insure effective action by the will.

BANISH BILE!

A bilious condition of the system is the result of inaction of the liver, often causing severe headache through the eyes and temples, culminating sometimes in nausea and vomiting, which is frequently followed by a bilious diarrhoea.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, when taken as directed, stimulates the peptic glands of the stomach and increases the contraction of its muscles from above downward. This action is communicated to the intestines and increases the flow of the intestinal juice, thus stimulating the ducts of the liver to pour out the bile, when it can be carried downward by the laxative action of the Salt, instead of remaining to clog up the liver and flow back into the stomach.

Thus, if a person who is subject to Biliousness and Bilious Headache will use Abbey's Effervescent Salt, the natural action of the stomach, liver and intestines will be kept up and so the sun commodates in the system.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Farewell to the Mountains

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Jerry Whitcomb, a young American, had a hobby—mountain climbing. On several successive summers he went to some one of the principal mountain regions of the world and scaled a peak. But his favorite location was Switzerland. Indeed, that is the favorite mountain country of most persons. Whether or not it is finer than the others is a question, but there is one thing about it that gives it superior attraction. It is in the heart of Europe and in the line of tourists.

Whitcomb had a favorite guide who lived at Scheidegg, a point from which climbers have been long used to start to ascend the Jungfrau. This was before a railroad was projected to carry tourists to the top of the mountain, and Schmitt, the guide referred to, had a chalet not far above Scheidegg.

One day when Whitcomb had passed the crest of middle age he appeared at Scheidegg and found his old guide smoking his pipe in front of his chalet.

"My old friend," said the American, "I have come for a last climb. I will soon be old and not able to make these ascents. I wish you to pilot me once more."

"Ah, herr," replied the guide, "don't talk that way. I am several years older than you, and yet I must go on climbing, else I and my family will starve."

There was a sadness in this reply that made Whitcomb sorry for what he had said. "Ah, well, Schmitt, you have been used to climbing all your life. You will always be at home in the mountains."

Schmitt's little daughter was playing near and at the moment she called out:

"Papa, who is that woman over there?"

"What woman, my child?"

"The woman on the glacier."

Schmitt turned to Whitcomb and asked him if he could see a woman on the glacier, his own eyes being not so good as they had been. Whitcomb peered in the direction of the glacier, but said he could see no woman.

Schmitt turned pale.

"Something troubles you," said Whitcomb.

"It is the spirit of the mountains. She appears only to children and never even to a child except she is going to claim a victim."

The fact that the two men were to climb the Jungfrau made this statement a matter of concern to them. Whitcomb could not bring himself to believe that the child saw what she claimed to have seen. Some one of the cracks in the ice or a rock must have appeared like a woman's figure. He said as much to Schmitt, but the latter shook his head.

"Many children," said the guide, "have seen the Jungfrau and never except that one or more persons have been killed on the mountain within a short time after the appearance of the specter."

They set out about 3 o'clock in the morning intending to make the climb during a single day. Whitcomb had forgotten the vision of Schmitt's little daughter and was very cheery. His guide was quite the reverse, seemingly being much cast down. On the way they picked up another guide, making a party of three, and when they came to the dangerous part of their climb they joined their bodies by a rope, Schmitt in the lead, Whitcomb in the center, the other guide, whom Schmitt addressed as Hans, in the rear.

They climbed till noon before reaching the summit; then, looking out on the expansive field of snow peaks, Whitcomb gave way to rhapsody.

"Goodby, old friends," he said. "It's many a day's companionship we've had, but now we must part. You who have existed for ages in your present form doubtless will exist for ages to come. Your snow covered rocks will endure for millions of years after my puny body has mingled with the dust. My friends, farewell."

"Ach! Herr, do not talk that way. There is something prophetic in what you say."

"I don't mean," replied Whitcomb, "that I am going to leave this world immediately. I expect to live to be an old man. But I'll do no more climbing."

"No, herr, you'll do no more climbing," replied Schmitt, with a solemnity that passed through the other like a chill mountain breeze.

They spent an hour on the summit, then turned to descend. They had not gone far before one of those sudden snow squalls that come on so frequently out of a fine day enveloped them. Schmitt was in the advance and halted, as though he had lost his bearings. Then he moved on, but staggered. Presently the snow gave way beneath him, and he went down, dragging Whitcomb with him. Hans threw himself in the opposite direction. The rope snapped. Schmitt and Whitcomb slid out of sight with the snow. Hans fell into a snowbank not a dozen feet below.

The storm soon passed, and Hans, making his way back to Scheidegg, reported the accident and the disappearance of his companions. A searching party went out to look for the bodies and found that the two men had gone over a precipice a thousand feet deep. Descending, the searchers saw that they had doubtless fallen into a crevasse. The American sleeps among the mountains he loved and to which he had bidden farewell.

Balzac's Poverty.

An anecdote of Balzac shows the strange condition of poverty in which he lived even after he had won fame.

He made a visit one evening to the house of one of his pet admirations, Rossini, where he found a party assembled and among them a great singer, then the rage, who had declined to favor the company. Ignorant of this, Balzac begged her to sing a song. "For you? Why, of course, at once!" And she did. "Who on earth can that be?" asked an astonished guest of Rossini. "Don't you know? It's M. de Balzac." "Oh, really! Then no wonder!"

And all the morning Balzac had been trying to borrow a few francs.

Her Objection.

A little maid had a visitor, a girl of her own age, and after the two were put to bed at the usual hour it occurred to the small hostess that something to eat would be an agreeable novelty.

The mother demurred and the father emphatically objected. The discussion ended when a modest supply of food was carried to the bedroom.

The next night the little maid called her mother to the bedside.

"Stoop down, mamma," she said. Then she added, in a loud whisper, "I'm hungry, and I want something to eat, but I don't want it in the same spirit you showed last night."

She got it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OUR SIR SAM

An Overseas Article on Canada's War Minister

The most popular man in the whole of Canada is Sam Hughes.

His proper title is Major-General Sir Sam Hughes, K.C.B., but Canadians to a man speak of him as "Sam," just as Britishers used to speak of Lord Kitchener as "Bobs."

Picture a man of sixty-two, of average height, with a well-knit figure, a clean-shaven face, a thew of iron-like firmness, alert eyes with bushy eyebrows and silvered hair, and you get a pretty good idea of what Canada's Minister of Militia is like.

Sam Hughes comes of a North of Ireland stock. He was born in Ontario. Although for a time he was lecturer in English Language, Literature, and History in the Toronto Collegiate Institute, he has always been a soldier at heart.

He has been President of the Canada Rifle Association, which includes some of the best shots in the world, and President of the Small Arms Committee. He served in the Fenian Raids of 1870, and has always been strongly in favor of the colonies offering the Empire every assistance in Imperial wars.

Indeed, his name will go down to history as a man who telegraphed to Lord Kitchener that within a fortnight he would undertake to land 10,000 Canadians at the seat of war.

He has more than fulfilled this pledge. For to-day there are many more than 10,000 Canadians either at the front or in England ready to fight when required, and thousands more in Canada ready to come over when the Mother Country calls.

During the South African War, in which he fought, Hughes was several times mentioned in despatches for his valiant services. But it was only by a near shave that he went to South Africa at all. It happened like this: When Hughes was a member of the Canadian Parliament he undertook to criticise General Hutton, the Canadian commander-in-chief. As his military superior General Hutton told him to shut up. He didn't.

Consequently when the South African War broke out he couldn't get a commission from General Hutton, although Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier, personally applied for it. And when the boat carrying the Canadian contingent steamed out Colonel Hughes, as he was then, was a despondent, disconsolate figure in mufti, seated on a pile of baggage on the quay.

But later he went to South Africa, got his commission direct, and remained there three years.

General Hughes has been a journalist, and recently he received a big party of pressmen at his London hotel. All sorts of tricky questions were fired at him. To each he gave some pat answer.

There was, however, one exception. "When will the war be over?" asked an indiscreet scribe. "When we beat the Germans," snapped the General. "I can't be expected to answer questions of that sort!" The journalist who had asked the question discreetly retired from view.

And if from all his virtues two stand out they are that he loves a good fight and never forgets a friend. —Pearson's Weekly.

Neutrals May Sell Arms

It is an established principle of international law that the trade in arms and munitions is free. The Hague Convention of 1907 recognized the right of private individuals to trade in this way. Instances of request by one belligerent to a neutral power to stop this trade are found in history but the remonstrances have never met with favorable results.

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh makers, food fads, physical culture stunts and rub on creams, resign themselves to life-long thinness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A trial of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Treatment per month is obtained from the local dealer and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. The leading druggists supply Sargol, and say there is a large demand for it.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve tonic and vitalizer it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.

What Did Little Mary Buy?

JOHN BROWN owns a prosperous grocery store in a thriving Canadian town. He is a live merchant and attributes much of his success to his novel methods of creating interest in his store.

Recently, he took personal items of his regular goods, put them under cover in boxes and barrels, and wrote the name of each article on the outside. Only he mixed up the letters in each name so that instead of spelling the right name of the article, it spelled something different altogether. For instance box 9 contains Raisins, but Mr. Brown jumbled the letters in the words Raisins until they read "Rai-sins." Then he rubbed the word raisins off the cover, board, and inscribed the boxes to that name until they read "Rai-Fo," as you can see in picture 11.

Fourteen items of goods in Mr. Brown's store were displayed this way; and a prize was given to any customer who could guess an order for all fourteen and tell the number of the box each was in. Little Mary went to Brown's store to make her purchases, guessed all the names correctly, and won the prize. Can you do as well?

Two of the names are already given to you to start you right. What are the other twelve? Study this picture and send your answers to-day.

A few hints to help you.—The goods mentioned under each of the fourteen numbers are staple lines such as are to be found in every grocery store and in regular use in every home. No trade mark names or products of any particular firm or manufacturer are given,—just the regular name of each product or article. A good plan is to write down the names of all the things usually found in a grocery store and use the list as your guide. Be careful, because Mr. Brown was clever, and sometimes he made two or three words, and even more out of a name.

Man's Skull Crushed With An Iron Bar

BATAVIA, Oct. 23. — Jacob Schoenberg, aged 45 years, was murdered by a man who entered the bedroom of Schoenberg home at 238 South Liberty street and struck the owner over the head with a heavy iron bar. Schoenberg, who was a Batavia junk dealer, died at the result of a crushed skull at the Batavia hospital at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

The police arrested Frank Filita, 26 years old, as he was about to board a Lehigh Valley railroad train for Stafford two hours after the assault and are holding him on the assertion of Schoenberg's son, Max Schoenberg, that Filita looks and talks like the man who committed the murder. The police, however, are doubtful about Filita's connection with the deed.

Attempts at burglary at houses in South Jackson street, in the vicinity of the home of Schoenberg occurred within an hour of the time Schoenberg's house was entered. In each of these cases the telephone wires were cut, but the burglars, two in number, were frightened away before they succeeded in getting into the houses. The places visited in South Jackson street were the homes of Edmund S. Holton, 156; Mrs. Jennie Cone, 227; C. E. Knapp, 314, and William Wilson, 322.

Entrance to the Schoenberg home was gained through a window of a bedroom on the lower floor, where Schoenberg slept with his 16-year old son, Max Schoenberg. The elder man was awakened and as he raised up in bed he received the blow of the iron and did not regain consciousness. There was only one intruder. He went into another part of the house but quickly returned to the bedroom and placing a revolver at the son's head charged him to keep still.

Members of the family slept on the second floor of the house and when they became aroused the man left hastily by the same bedroom window that he had entered. On a chair and beside the bed, where Schoenberg and his son slept, the trousers of Schoenberg, containing $16.26, were untouched.

District Attorney William H. Coon is investigating. The iron bar, weighing twenty-five pounds and three feet long, is in the possession of the police.

Besides his son, Max, Schoenberg leaves his wife and five daughters, Mrs. Harry Kriger and Misses Marian, Eva, Anna and Sarah Schoenberg.

MAN WHO PLAYED THE GREATEST ROLE IN PASSION PLAY FALLS IN BATTLE

NEW YORK, October 21.—Anton Lang is dead. The famous Christus of the Oberammergau passion play, according to a despatch received to-day by his relatives in Manitowac, Wisconsin, was killed about a month ago. He fell in battle among the corps of troops equipped with skis which the German army formed to combat the French chasseurs in the Vosges mountains. The message was sent to Alois Lang, a relative, by the German government, and is considered authentic, in spite of the reports of several months ago that the Christus has never joined the Kaiser's troops.

Anton Lang played the greatest role of the passion play twice, the first time in 1900, and again at the last presentation in 1910. He was the natural choice for the next five years hence. In private life, which means during the ten years that elapse between each of the plays that the Oberammergau peasants give, he was a potter. His shop and his bench were perhaps the most widely photographed and postal carded of all the German tourist spots.

The Christus of Oberammergau is selected for his resemblance to the Christ he represents as painted by the old masters. Anton Lang's face and physique were such that he might have seemed to have stepped out of Leonardo da Vinci's canvas of "The Last Supper." Another requirement is that the Christus must lead a blameless life, and Anton Lang fulfilled this obligation as well as any of the unworldly peasants could have desired.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, and flush off the body's urinous waste, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S THREE GORE SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

The model illustrated herewith is one of those which are meeting with favor in this line. It has the upper part of front and back so cut that they include the parts which cover the hips as well. Just about at the lower edge of the hip curve the material is cut away a trifle and here is inserted a section of material which is pleated.

This gives plenty of play to the garment for walking and also carries out the present idea, which is to have any bulge or flare at the sides while front and back remain plain. At the top of the pleating is a patch pocket, but this may be made merely a trimming and stitched along all edges.

The skirt closes in front and has either the raised or the normal waistline, the latter being more in favor just now. The length is a matter of taste, and as a rule the entire foot is allowed to show below the hem of the skirt. This design measures 2⅝ yards at the lower edge in the medium size, this including the pleats.

The skirt pattern, No. 7,319, is cut in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 3 yards of 44-inch material without a nap.

Many of the new models show sections of pleating, of gathering and of plain pieings, introduced to remove the plain appearance from a skirt that because of its desired use cannot have any elaborate arrangements of material.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Tobacco Day In the Trenches

What Are You Doing to Help in This Work?

It is a red letter day for a unit in the trenches when one of the parcels arrive which the Overseas Club is sending out through the generosity of the citizens of Canada. Boxes are eagerly opened and the parcels pass round to men who perhaps have not smoked for a week. Some are addressed to individuals; they read on them the name of a friend—even a casual acquaintance—an employer or a fellow worker, obliged to stay at home; and not less than the comfort of the tobacco and cigarettes found within is the glow of pleasure in having been remembered. Other parcels are addressed to regiments, and some of the men recall the names of the senders at home. Their unforgotten service to the Empire is sweetened by this silent message—like a hand pressure stretched across the sea; perhaps the thought comes to them that they are not in so very distant an exile after all.

Our readers are asked to co-operate in this good work, and the Tobacco Fund of the Overseas Club is so well-organized that it lays their money out to the best conceivable advantage. It would cost the soldier one dollar to buy at home the parcels of tobacco, cigarettes and matches which a quarter hands to him carriage paid and free of duty—not a penny of the money being consumed for organization and collecting expenses.

But they need more! Readers can subscribe; they can send their contribution to the Examiner.

LOOK AT A CHILD'S TONGUE WHEN CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Take No Chance! Move Poisons From Liver and Bowels at Once

Mothers can rest easily after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you can have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

SWEDES DRINK LESS LIQUOR

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—Although nothing so drastic as the prohibition measures of Russia has been attempted in Sweden, there has been, since the beginning of the war, a steady and systematic curtailment in the sale of liquor which is approvingly regarded by temperance advocates as a decided step toward absolute prohibition. The "Stockholm system," of allowing each citizen only a fixed quantity of spirituous drink, which was put in practice just after the war started, has now been extended to thirty one of the hundred districts in Sweden, and according to a government order recently issued, will after January 1, 1916, apply to the whole of Sweden.

The system which is now in operation, was devised by Dr. Ivan Bratt at the beginning of the war. It allowed every citizen in good standing to buy one litre and no more of spirituous liquor every five days. To make this plan feasible every person was provided with a small book resembling a commutation railroad ticket, from which a coupon was torn every time the consumer bought his litre of whisky, brandy, cognac, punch, schnapps, or whatever kind of alcoholic beverages he preferred. At the same time his book was stamped with the date of the purchase. Without showing his book no citizen of Stockholm has the remotest chance of obtaining a bottle of liquor anywhere in the city. The regulation is strictly enforced.

It is true that in some cases however exceptions are made. If one can persuade the authorities that on account of his social position and the demands of constant entertainment one litre every five days is totally inadequate, and if the authorities are convinced that such a person can be trusted with more liquor without abusing the privilege conferred upon him, he may then obtain a special license to purchase two, three or more litres, according to the circumstances. On the other hand if the person is a notorious drunkard, has a police record, or has in any other way incurred the displeasure of the authorities, he is allowed to buy no liquor at all.

The results of this system are already remarkable. In 1914, the total consumption of spirituous liquors was only 2,979,692 litres, compared with 5,004,642 litres for the year before. The decrease in 1915 has been even more marked.

BABY SEIZED SNAKE AS WHIP

MONROE, Ga., Oct. 20.—Dan, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coker, playing around his uncle's buggy, saw what he thought was a whip. He picked up a large moccasin. The snake bit the child on one thumb. The thumb was held in turpentine and the arm securely bandaged, and the child suffered no ill effects. The reptile was killed.

Vicar's Daughter — "I'm sorry to hear you were at the Methodist tea meeting, Miss Jones. I cannot think what arguments have caused you to change your creed." Miss Jones — "Well, miss, first it was their buttony crabcakes, but it was their jam sandwidges as converted me, miss."—Tit-Bits.

BELGIANS' LAST CORNER BUSY FIELD OF WAR

DUNKIRK, Oct. 21.—On the map of Europe the portion of Belgium that remains to the Allies is not large, but now it is such a busy part of the world that one who whirls through it for several days in a military motor car, as an Associated Press correspondent is now doing, is likely to think that it is a very large part of Europe. The villages are so full of French, Belgian and British soldiers, there are so many camps, hospitals, and bases of one sort and another—here an aviation camp, there an ambulance station, and so on that to visit the country is to realize the many-sided activities of warfare as one perhaps could not realize them in any other way. For one man in the trenches there seem to be fifty carrying supplies and ammunition, building roads, repairing bridges, stringing telephone wires, and constructing barbed wired entanglements.

This trip comprised almost 200 miles of travel in what may be roughly described as a triangle, with Nieuport, Dunkirk and Ypres at the three corners.

"I don't suppose we can go into Ypres?" asked the correspondent.

"You would be a fool to try, and you would be a dead man if you got there," was the chauffeur's answer.

The French are holding the dunes along the coast, then come the Belgians, then more French, then the English, then still more French, then the English again, and finally the long line of French reaching to Switzerland. It is not often pointed out that the French are sandwiched in between their allies in this fashion.

Stopping before a 105-millimeter gun cleverly concealed in a grove, a gun which had been silent but a few moments, and was "doing its bit," in an artillery action spreading over 100 miles, the correspondent asked the Lieutenant in charge when he intended to fire again.

"Whenever they telephone us," was the reply. "We have fired only twice this morning." When the line of action is as long as the route from New York to Philadelphia, each gun has an easy time of it, and there is plenty of opportunity for conversation.

"I have been at the front eleven months," said the Lieutenant. "I have seen many dead Germans and many German prisoners, but I have never seen a German in action, except the can in the Taube."

A half dozen privates gathered round, and the conversation became general, being interrupted occasionally by visits to the observatories in the trees, from which the correspondent saw the German lines and could watch the shrapnel bursting over both sides. It all seemed too remote. The correspondent observed: "It does not seem very close to us."

"Perhaps not just this minute, but in the road there, not over fifty feet away, they blew up one of our caissons a few days ago, and you can go out and pick up some souvenirs if you wish to."

These observatories would be fascinating additions to Adirondack camps being successive flights of stairs with strong landings, winding round the highest trees, painted the colour of trees and covered overhead with foliage. There is no military secret about this, for it is well known that both sides have the same kind of lookouts.

"You men all seem very happy," said the correspondent.

"We certainly are; we know what we are fighting for; we are well treated, and we know that we shall win. It is men that will win this war pour la patrie." When a French soldier says "pour la patrie" he says it with a thoughtful earnestness that gives one a firm faith in democracy.

The firing was evidently within short motoring distance to the southeast, and the correspondent got up to leave. "Sorry we could not entertain you with our 105 millimeter," said the Lieutenant, "but we never know when we shall get the telephone call."

In an artillery action of such magnitude, gunners wait for orders like policemen or firemen, by telephone; and, like policemen and firemen, they are very glad to see callers in the intervals of their activity.

ACIDS IN STOMACH SOUR THE FOOD AND CAUSE INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" Fixes Sour, Gassy, Upset Stomachs in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healty appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gasses, heartburn dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

SHARP ADVANCE IN C.G.E. STOCK

The advance in Canadian General Electric, which lifted the price some thirty points in a few weeks, has been one of the quietest and least talked about of the bull movements.

People who know what the company is doing evidently started in to buy the stock with as little demonstration as possible.

In due course the speculators joined in, and the advance became more rapid.

Counter attractions, however, had a tendency to make the rise of second rate importance here.

THE RUSSIANS ARE ON THE OFFENSIVE

ALLIES MOVE NORTH TO HELP GALLANT SERBS

ALLIES ADVANCING NORTHWARD TO ASSISTANCE OF SERBIANS

Heavy Movements of the French and British Troops From Salonika Are Reported--Serbs Are Holding Firm in the North While the Russians are Maintaining a Successful Offensive in Galicia

ITALIANS HAVE TAKEN MANY POSITIONS

LONDON, Oct. 23.—From reports that the Allies are now advancing northward from Salonika, it was believed here to-day that an important battle was near with the Bulgarian forces a-straddle the Salonika-Nish railway south of Uskub. To break this Bulgarian line or throw the invaders back to the eastward will be necessary before the Franco-British troops can get to the Serbians' aid against the Austro-Germans in the north.

The Teutonic front, from all accounts, is progressing southward so slowly that confidence was increasing in the Allies' ability to reinforce the Serbians adequately in time to save Nish.

The Russians were maintaining a successful offensive to-day in Galicia and northward in Russia to the Dvinsk section, and latest despatches indicated that the German drive even there had been checked. No important developments were reported on the Western front. The Italians reported many Austrian positions taken.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—(Official).—Supported by suffocating bombs, strong German reconnaissance attacks were made on Friday evening on Tahure Hill, but the enemy forces were almost destroyed by the French infantry and machine guns, announced an official report issued here to-day.

"Groups attempted sorties from the German trenches at Boissen-Hache and Fort Givenchy, but were dispersed immediately.

"Fighting inch by inch, the French defeated the enemy at the trench crossing the Leintrey, Goxndrexon, Armencourt and Reillon roads."

ROME, Via Havre, Oct. 23.—As a condition to the Roumanian entrance into the war on the Allies' side, the Roumanians want the Allies to send four hundred thousand troops to the Balkans, that Roumania may concentrate all her efforts against Austria, without fear of an attack by Bulgaria, according to a message received here to-day by the Agenzia Nazionale, from Bucharest.

The French and British were said to be inclined to accept.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Heavy movements of Allied troops from Salonika toward Serbia are in progress, according to Athens advices to-day.

ROME, Via London, Oct. 23.—An Italian squadron is aiding in the Franco-British naval attack on the Bulgarian Aegean Sea coast, according to a Brindisi despatch to-day.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—First Lord of Admiralty Balfour, Lord Derby, author of the Government's latest plan for stimulating enlistments, with a few other men prominent in military and naval circles, conferred with War Minister Lord Kitchener to-day concerning the Dardanelles campaign.

ATHENS, Via London, Oct. 23.—The Zibecovo-Destovo bridge, on the Salonika-Nish railway line, has been destroyed, according to a Salonika message to-day, interrupting communication between Greece and the Serbian interior.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The Serbians are now on the offensive along their northern frontier, and the Austro-Germans have stopped their advance for the time, according to Athens advices to-day.

In places it was asserted that the Serbians were operating on the Bulgarian side of the frontier.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The bombardment of the Bulgarian coast by the Allied English, French and Russian fleets was reported by the Admiralty to-day.

The bombardment took place on Thursday. Military positions and harbour works, as well as the railway station at Dedeagatch, were destroyed, it was stated.

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 23.—The execution of Edith Cavell by the Germans is denounced this morning by every English language paper in New York, save the American, the Hearst organ, which caters to the German vote, but that paper is editorially silent on the case. So also is the Staats Zeitung, the German organ here.

"Worse than a crime," is the heading under which the World says in part: "It is worse than a crime. It is a blunder, said Fouche of Napoleon's summary execution of young Duc D'Enghien. The action of the German military authorities in Belgian who executed Edith Cavell, an English nurse, belongs likewise to the class of blunders that are worse than crimes.

"Her blood will blot the honour of the German army and the German Government for generations to come. It is one of those stains that cannot be erased, and centuries hence German historians will be apologizing for the ruthlessness of the military commander who was unable to see that common-sense is mightier than the letter of military law."

CAMPAIGN FOR RECRUITS IS TO BE CONTINUED

Speaker's Patriotic League Appoint a Recruiting Committee Who Will Introduce New Methods in the Work

THE RETURNED SOLDIERS

At a meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Speakers' Patriotic League last night, it was decided to push the recruiting campaign even more vigorously than it has been conducted in the past. Although nearly 500 men have been recruited in Peterborough since the League began its operations on Aug. 1st, the League is not resting on its oars, but will keep putting the call of King and country before the young men of Peterborough and the district. To assist in the work a recruiting committee, composed of Mr. J. A. Aylmer, Adjt. McElhiney, Mr. F. D. Kerr and Rev. Jas. Rollins was appointed and they will introduce new methods.

The League last night also took up the question of the returned soldiers, and it was decided to ask the Patriotic Fund Society to look after this work. Recruiting headquarters have been moved from the corner of George and Brock streets, to the store on Simcoe street, next to the Bank of Montreal.

PTE. N. H. CLARKE IS WOUNDED AGAIN SAYS OFFICIAL REPORT

One of the Peterboro Members of the 2nd Battalion Who Was Hit at St. Julien Has Again Been Injured This Time More Seriously---New Subalterns Attached to the Peterboro Company---Sixteen Recruits For the 33rd Battery---To-Day's Military News

To-days' casualty list contains an announcement to the effect that Private N. H. Clarke of the Peterborough detachment, Second Battalion, First Canadian Contingent, has again been wounded, and is now in a base hospital at Boulogne, France. Private Clarke was wounded at St. Julien in April last. He spent some weeks in the hospital and subsequently returned to the front. His mother resides in Omemee, but for two or three years prior to enlisting, he resided in Peterborough and for some time was employed at the Auburn Woollen Mills. His name was among the first of the casualties that was reported following the initial engagement of the Canadians. At that time Pte. Clarke was wounded in the arm. This time his wounds are said to be more severe.

Lieut. Hamilton, who has been recruiting here for the 33rd Battery at Kingston, has already secured sixteen splendid recruits, bringing the total of Peterborough recruits for that particular unit up to the 100 mark. The draft will leave for Barriefield on Tuesday morning, by which time Lieut. Hamilton expects to have 25 men to take back with him to Kingston. Of the sixteen men it is interesting to note that fifteen are Canadian born and only one of the sixteen is married. The list is as follows:

Jas. O'Shea, Empress Hotel, born in Canada.
C. W. Manley, post office, born in Canada.
H. W. Coon, Peterborough, born in Canada.
C. Sharpe, 450 Sherbrooke street, born in Canada.
Wm. Cumming, 215 Rink street, born in Canada.
Harold Elcombe, 227 McDonell street, born in Canada.
F. A. Isbister, Lakefield, born in Canada.
Vic Thorndyke, 447 Stewart street, born in Canada.
Geo. Perry, Peterborough, born in Canada.
Stan. Smith, 189 Hunter street, born in Canada.
John Miller, 244 Carlisle Ave., born in Canada.
Roland Gorton, Peterborough, born England.
Clifford Wilson, Clarady P.O., born in Canada.
Walker Jones, Peterborough, born in Canada.
Bert. Hamilton, 215 Rubidge street, born in Canada.
Howard Copp, 210 Antrim street, born in Canada.

The local company of the 57th Battalion will attend divine service at St. John's church to-morrow morning, parading at the armouries at 10:30 o'clock.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—Fully 15,000 recruits have in the three days since the adoption by the Minister of Militia of recruiting by localities, already been raised. The new system, by which every place under 1,000 population which raises 25 men is allowed to have them billeted therein for training, was briefly outlined only some weeks ago, and was apparently the forerunner of the lately-proposed British plan. It was to come into force on or before November, but already it is having an effect, as the returns show. The 15,000 new recruits estimated to have been raised are new recruits, not attached previously to any overseas regularly organized corps.

A Foreign Legion.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—Canada is to have a foreign legion, or at least an American one. Permission has been given by General Sir Sam Hughes for the raising in Canada of a crack battalion composed of soldiers who were formerly United States citizens. Citizens of the United States, Russia, France, and Italy have from the beginning been freely accepted in this country for military service, and they have already in many instances distinguished themselves on the field of battle. For the first time now, however, a regular battalion of former United States subjects is being raised, and promises to be a first-class regiment in every respect.

A Special Battalion.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—Recruiting for the Canadian Grenadier Guards, a special battalion of picked men, under Gen Meighen, of Montreal, will begin to-morrow, and similar to the Princess Pats, the Guards will be made up of good men, who offer from any part of Canada. No man is wanted in the regiment who is not at least five feet five inches in height, and thirty-three inches around the chest. Royal blue shoulder straps on the khaki uniforms will be one of the distinguishing marks of the Grenadiers.

OTTAWA, Oct 23.—Col. H. H. McLean, M.P., now in charge of an infantry brigade at Valcartier, was in Ottawa to-day, and called on the Minister of Militia. It is understood he will be given an overseas appointment shortly. In regard to the enlistment of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for overseas service, it was learned to-day that he is now training as a junior lieutenant in the 57th of Peterborough.

Word has been received from Sergt. Eric Hale, one of the Peterborough men in the 2nd Battalion, that he has entirely recovered and is feeling fine after leaving hospital. Sergt. Hale has been attached to No. 5 company of the 12th Reserve battalion at Shorncliffe.

Lieuts. E. G. Hudgin, L. M. Bertram and Lieut. H. Raynes have been attached to the local company of the 57th Battalion for instruction purposes. All three arrived in the city last night and are on duty at the armouries this morning. Lieut. Hudgin is the well known Picton hockey player.

The Whole Prospect is Now Changed Says "Tay Pay" in Discussing the Rapid Transformations of the Past Week

ENDS IN UNION AND HOPE

(Copyright, 1915—By T. P. O'Connor)

LONDON, Oct. 23.—This week began more unpleasantly than any during the war, but ends with difficulties overcome and problems clearing. At the outset the breakdown of the Allies' diplomacy in the Balkans, the prospect of entering a new and very difficult theatre of war in Serbia, and anxiety regarding the troops at Gallipoli, all gave great opportunity to the pessimistic press to make a more infuriated and damaging attack. For days the fate of the ministry trembled in the balances. The prospect of the downfall of the present administration was increased by rumours of internal dissensions, chiefly over conscription, but also over the policy in the near East.

On top of all this came the announcement of Sir Edward Carson's continued absence from cabinet councils, followed by the definite announcement of his resignation. People rushed to the conclusion that this was the first blow at the Ministry, which must tumble.

Prospects are Changed.

But with the rapid transformation that accompanies this war of daily gigantic events, the whole prospect is now changed. Sir Edward Carson's resignation has not brought down the ministry; some think it has even strengthened it, for his appointment was much resented by British Liberals, and prejudiced the Irish party in Ireland.

Curiously, the illness of the Premier helped to relieve the tension. Strong conscriptionists were insisting on making preparations for a conscription bill immediately, while anti conscriptionists insisted such steps were premature until Lord Derby's new scheme is given.

Things were getting hot enough to make a ministerial break-up possible, with a new cabinet, consisting either of whole-hearted conscriptionists or whole-hearted antis. The illness of the Premier gives time for cooling. Nothing will be attempted in either section until his return to work. Everybody is relieved at this.

There is a similar change for the better in the view of the expedition to Serbia. Perilous though the enterprise was, everybody felt that the abandonment of Serbia would bring dishonour to us, while curiously France, who was expected to object to the withdrawal of any troops from the defence of her own soil, pressed even more urgently than ourselves that Serbia must be protected.

The view at the moment is that Germany, in adding this new front to four fronts on which she is already facing, is entering on incalculable morass of Balkan passions, with the possibilities of the revolt of Bulgaria and Greece against the policy of their kings. All this is showing the miscalculation of the nation at bay, and nobody now accepts the ridiculous theory, that of the pessimist alarmists, that Germany's position threatens our position in Asia.

Ends in Union and Hope.

Thus the week beginning in division and gloom ended in union and hope. John Redmond was able, for the first time, to announce on the authority of Lord Kitchener of an enthusiastic meeting in Dublin, that apart from reservists, apart from the hundred thousand sent from Great Britain, apart from Irishmen in Colonial forces, Ireland, herself, had sent 81,000 recruits since the beginning of the war—a statement that ought to close the mouths of pseudo-

50,000 MORE MEN FROM CANADA IN ANSWER TO KING

The 164,000 Already Enlisted Will be Added to and Still Further Added to Says Minister of Militia

OFFICIAL CALL SOON

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 23—"Whenever a call for men has come, Canada has risen to that call. Whatever the number may be which the Prime Minister lays down upon the advice he receives, Canada will continue to rise to the call. The purpose is still to increase, and rest assured Canada would be found ready, willing and anxious to do her duty in the premises."

This is the opinion of Gen. Sir Sam Hughes in connection with the King's appeal for men and still more men. There have already been 164,000 men enlisted in Canada and the Minister of Militia states that these will be added to and still further added to.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 23.—The Premier is still in Halifax, so that no statement could be secured from him.

It is expected that upon his return official authorization will be issued for the raising of at least 50,00 more men.

Arthur is Captain in Vancouver Scottish Regiment and Dr. Edward Wood is at the Front

Mr. Herbert Wood of the law firm of McPhillips & Wood, Vancouver, B.C., was in town for a few hours this morning on his way home from Ottawa Supreme Court sittings.

He reports business conditions in Vancouver as not the best, but he felt that there was reason to believe that conditions were improving, and he did not think the situation as bad as reported of Vancouver in the East.

Dr. Edward Wood, his brother, had gone to the front, and Mr. Arthur Wood, another brother, is captain in the Highlanders, Vancouver, and expects to be sent overseas with his company at any time.

These young men will be remembered by Peterborough residents very well as the sons of the late Mr. R. E. Wood.

We challenge you to get better results than we can give you with a little want ad. Try one to-morrow.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, OCT. 23, 1915

"HOGTOWN" NEVERMORE.

Toronto has splendidly lived down the name "Howtown," affectionately bestowed upon her by her rural urban rivals. Toronto's magnificent donation of more than half a million dollers to the British Red Cross Fund, covers a multitude of sins, and constitutes a feather in her cap. The records show that Toronto has done more than her share of giving, proportionate to population. That city, with a population of fewer than half a million has given, more than half a million—more han a dollar for every mothers' son and daughter of her population. With less than a quarter of the population of the province, she has give more than half of the million dollars Ontario contributed on Trafalgar Day to the Red Cross Fund. At Toronto's rate of giving Ontario's contribution would be two and a half millions, instead of one million, and at the same rate Peterborough, instead of giving five thousand, virtually enforced by the tax colector, would have had to her credit about $25,000. Those who have called Toronto, "Howtown," should apologize and promise not to do it again. Toronto may have shown in the past a tendency to grab, but she grandly knows how to give. If Toronto weren't so big—in more ways than one—we should like to give her a little patronizing pat on the back. Well done Toronto, anyway.

ALL 'ROUND.

Yesterday The Examiner referred in terms of commendation meant to be emphatic, to the excellent record in the way of aiding recruiting, to the credit of the Speakers' Patriotic League in this city. But as in the case of the Queen of Sheba's experience of the glories of Solomon, the half has not been told. The League has no hard and fast line of duty laid down. When recruiting interests are put into good train, the League hoses itself in practice by doing the naturally next best thing, booming the Red Cross, and other forms of patriotic help. Under their auspices speakers and music have been sent out into the surrounding country and towns and villages, to talk up, not only recruiting, but every form of patriotic contribution to the cause. Recruiting is only one phase of the activities of the League. One cannot give too high praise to the local branch of the Speakers' Patriotic League. It is composed chiefly of members too old to fight with military weapons; but full of the spirit of fight in the only way open to them, and a very effective way it has proved. Though at first the military element seemed rather inclined to resent the interposition of the mufti-militariets, they have had good reason to recognize that in a popular war like this, a war for the people, there is a place in the fighting schedule for both the civilian and the soldier. We see recruiting and the soldiers it creates, as a solid, substantial thing, a concrete thing, where the results are evident to the eye in straight, stalwart ranks of soldiers. The fighting the rest of us do, and are doing, may not have such tangible and showy results, but it has its effect all the same. The Speakers' Patriotic League, the women banded together and working, or working without special organization, are all part of the great army fighting for the cause of national honour, justice and humanity.

BE REASONABLE.

It is not good form to "call names," but the temptation is irresistible to dub as busybodies certain members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union who, estimable and well intentioned as they may be, are in some things as intemperate as any of the people addicted to the forms of intemperance their organization combats. Unbalanced zeal in a good cause becomes zeal in a bad cause when it advocates as some of these women did, that the W.C.T.U. should refuse to aid the Red Cross, if it sent cigarettes to the soldiers. Women like these extremists, don't know what they are talking about in forbidding tobacco and cigarettes to soldiers in the trenches. "What do they know, a contemporary inquires, "about the 'evil' of cigarette smoking in the trenches. What do they know about trench life at all," or about the absolute necessity for some solace amidst the torture of inactivity and helplessness when shells are raining death, and ripping open the flesh of themselves or comrades in ghastly wounds, and their comrades are falling and groaning their lives away all around them? We have the testimony of those who have been there that a cigarette or a pipe, is an indescribable comfort and godsend at such a time, and at other times, in the strenuous life the soldier has to lead.

Tobacco and cigarettes if, abused, are evils; but in this awful war they are a necessity if we wish to hearten or comfort soldiers. If some of these straight-laced members of the W.C.T.U., were forced to be in trenches soaked with water and stand in water up to their corsets for hours without food, with a rain of hell fire falling about them, and a hellish din roaring continually about them — wouldn't they give their false fronts for a cup of tea, no more harmful under the circumstances, no more demoralizing than cigarettes or pipe? Tea, like tobacco, is harmless or mildly injurious when temperately used; but tea used to excess is as harmful as tobacco similarly used. And tea can be made the instrument or medium of untold evil. If sipped, or swilled at five o'clock teas to the usual accompaniment of gossip, which repeated can create more, family jars, more enmities, more domestic discord and infinitely more harm than carloads of cigarettes it becomes a greater evil. But the chief point is not the evils of cigarette smoking or tea drinking in the abstract but a consideration of the relations of cigarettes and tobacco to the soldiers in the trenches, where it has been shown not to be demoralizing, but strengthening to the morale of the soldier, by steadying his nerves and soothing his feelings amidst horrors that it has not entered into the heart of man—or woman either—to conceive. For Heaven's sake let us be reasonable, and temperate, and forbear, in the name of exaggerated sentiment and unwise zeal, to do certain evil that problematical good may come. Let us fight real avils to the hilt, not tilt at windmills.

BULGARIA'S NAVAL WEAKNESS MAKES HER PREY OF FOES

SHORE FORTIFICATIONS NOT FORMIDABLE.

Open to Attack from Aegean and Black Seas, Her Power on Land is Questionable Quantity.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Of particular interest at present is the following article by the naval correspondent of the London Times:

The news from Paris of preparations for an immediate landing of Franco-British troops in Macedonia; and from Salonika that Russian naval forces have already appeared off Varna, should be a convincing indication to Bulgaria that the Allied powers are preparing to follow up the warning from Petrograd by prompt naval and military action if required. The first phase of any such action is bound to be naval in its character, and will afford a further demonstration of the value of sea power. The geographical position of Bulgaria makes her particularly vulnerable to attack from oversea.

Moreover, the water communications to her coasts, both in the Aegean and the Black Sea, are at the present time, and will be, whatever happens, controlled by the fleets of the Allies. However formidable she may prove from a military point of view, her naval force is practically negligible, and would be quite unable to prevent a landing on her shores if such should be considered necessary. It seems probable, however, that for the purpose of sending assistance to Serbia, the railway to Belgrade from Salonika would be more convenient, provided the Greeks were agreeable to such a step.

The only harbour of importance which Bulgaria possesses in Macedonia is Dedeagatch, which has been several times visited by our ships since the operations began in the Dardanelles. This place, where the Bulgarians landed in the opening stages of the first Balkan War, is connected by rail both with Salonika and Constantinople through Adrianople. It might, therefore, in certain eventualities, become necessary to occupy it, and it is unlikely that there would be any great difficulty in doing so.

Attack from Black Sea.

It is, however, in the Black Sea that the Bugarian coast presents many points on which a descent might be made with advantage. Neither Varna nor Burgas has fortifications of a modern, formidable character, so far as is known, and little trouble should be found in disposing of the few torpedo craft. Our Russian Allies have asserted their mastery in the Black Sea in such a way that this should present no difficulty, and they have also organized sufficient tonnage for the transport of an expeditionary force.

To place such a force on shore, or perhaps even to make a feint of doing so, should have the effect of detaining a large portion of the Bulgarian army which might otherwise be paced on the frontier of Serbia. The potential threat of such an operation seems already to have been made. In both seas the work of the Allied fleets will, it is likely, afford adequate protection against submarine attack.

The Greek navy is one of the very few which before the present struggle had had experience of a modern war. In the conflict with Turkey in 1912-13 it showed its efficiency by the alacrity with which it seized the initiative when it was necessary to prevent the enemy from bringing reinforcements into Macedonia from Asia Minor, across the Aegean. The conditions gave no opportunity for brilliant victories, but the fleet played its part effectively and well.

During the last four and one-half years the Greek navy has had the advantage of British training and instruction by staffs of officers under Rear-Admirals L. G. Tufnell and Mark Kerr. The former served at Athens from May, 1911, to May, 1913, and the appreciation felt for the work accomplished under his direction was indicated by the decoration conferred upon him by the King of the Hellenes and by the fact that the contract with the British Government was renewed on better terms.

Strength of Greek Navy.

Since the conclusion of the war with Turkey, the fleet has been improved by the purchase in July, 1914, of two fairly good ironclads from the United States navy, the Mississippi and the Idaho, which were renamed the Kilkis and the Lemnos respectively, and by the addition of new torpedo craft.

The light cruiser Helli, formerly the Chinese Fei-Hung, also was purchased from the New York Shipbuilding Company on completion in the summer of 1914, and is now serving with the sea-going fleet. At the outbreak of the European War, Greece had several ships and vessels under construction in British, German, and French yards, but how many of them have been taken over by the respective governments is uncertain. At least the battle-cruiser Salamis, building at the Vulcan Yard, Stettin, has been seized by the Germans.

CONSIDERATION OF WHAT A GERMAN VICTORY WOULD MEAN

As Britons of the overseas dominions we in Canada are all in sympathy with the motherland. We rejoice in her successes, and would regret very much to see her defeated in the present war. But do we all realize that we have a personal interest in the result of the war? What would a German victory over Britain and her allies mean for us Canadians?

It would mean in the first place a heavy war indemnity. That has always been Germany's policy. The defeated nation must pay the bill. A heavy indemnity would have to be paid, not simply by Great Britain, but by every part of the Empire. Our municipal taxes and our war taxes would be trifles compared with the burden Germany would lay on every one of our eight million people.

And the Empire would have to pay not only in money, but in territory. Germany's great demand of late years has been for more colonies. That is really one of the principal causes of the war. And the fertile fields of Canada, and her great natural resources, her growing commerce, would be too valuable to be overlooked. Canada would be a German colony.

But German colonies are not autonomous, like those of Great Britain. They are governed in fact as well as in name of Germany. The defeat of Britain in this war would mean the Germanization of Canada. It would mean that our parliaments and municipal councils would be subordinate to the German Government. How much local power we might have would depend on the convenience and interest of the authorities in Berlin. We might or might not be able to spend our won money to construct our own streets and pavements. But if we did have that much power we could expect nothing more. We would cease to be a self-governing people.

German laws and German customs would be enforced at the point of the bayonet. German would be the official language of the country. We would have no bilingual problem to perplex politicians, for German would be the official language of parliaments, courts and schools. We would have a military country on the German system. Enforced service in the army would be the rule here, as in Germany. We would have a military autocracy here, as in Germany. If we met an officer on the street we would, have to salute humbly. And if we met three of them walking abreast we would have to get off into the ditch as they passed by. And if our women met them they would have to do the same, and be thankful if they did not meet the fate of Belgian women.

Nor let it be supposed for one moment that the Monroe doctrine or the protests of the United States would be any protection. If Germany can conquer Europe the kaiser will not worry much about the opinion of the President of the United States or his people.

Germany's victory would mean for Canadians the loss of money, property, self-respect, self-government, our institutions, our laws, our customs. Are these things worth preserving? Then we must be prepared to fight for them and work for them and pray for them.—London Advertiser.

DISTRIBUTION SEED GRAINS FOR EXPERIMENTAL PURPOSES

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a free distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples will consist of spring wheat(about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.) These will be sent out from Ottawa.

A distribution of potatoes (in 8 lbs. samples) will be carried on from several of the Experimental Farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

The destruction by fire of the cereal building at Ottawa, which contained grain-cleaning machinery and a large stock of seed grain for distribution, may make it necessary to curtail the distribution to a certain extent. We shall fill as many as possible of the applications which conform to the rules; but requests received after the end of December will probably be too late. Samples cannot be sent in response to applications (no matter when received) which fail to state clearly the needs of the applicant, his experience in crop-raising, and the character of the soil on which he intends to sow the seed.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed, delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest branch Experimental Farm in the province.

Legal opinion of Alexander Bruce, K.C. and Malone, Malone & Long

Saskatoon is practically the geographical centre of the Province of Saskatchewan, and primarily the distributing point for a territory of over 48,000 square miles, containing about 2,500 miles of railways. The City has an assessed value for taxation of $48,000,000, and a population of 25,000, and the municipal management is conservative and efficient.

THE GERMANS SHOT NURSE AFTER DENYING SENTENCE HAD BEEN PRONOUNCED

All Appeals for Mercy Ignored--Full Statement of the United States Ambassador—Lawyer Barred From Client —Was Slain During the Night

Miss Edith Cavell was an English nurse whom the Germans arrested in Belgium and sentenced at Brussels to death on the charge that she, while nursing the wounded, aided Belgian soldiers to cross the border to safety in France.

She was given only a farce of a trial, and was shot during the night by a squad of German soldiers.

Appeals by the Pope, the United States Ambassador, and the Spanish Government were ignored by the German officials, though at the same time the Kaiser pardoned Spanish nurses who had also aided Belgians to leave. President Wilson interceded for the latter. The efforts of the United States Ambassador, Mr. Whitlock, on behalf of the British nurse were unavailing.

Joining with Mr. Whitlock in the request that Miss Cavell's life might be spared was the Spanish Minister at Brussels. While they were unsuccessful, the lives of two French women, also sentenced to death, were saved from the firing squad through the intercession of Pope Benedict.

Lord Lansdowne said: "Miss Cavell might have by her conduct rendered herself liable to severe punishment, but I have no hesitation in saying she might, at any rate, have expected the measure of mercy which in no civilised country would be refused to one who not only was a woman, but a very brave and devoted woman, and one who had given all her efforts and energies to the mitigation of the sufferings of others."

London, Oct. 23.—The full report of the circumstances of the condemnation and execution of Miss Edith Cavell, a British woman and head of a training school in Brussels, for helping British, French, and Belgian soldiers to escape from Belgium, made by Brand Whitlock, the American Minister at Brussels, to Walter H. Page, the American Ambassador at London, was issued by the British Government last evening.

How the secretary of the American Legation, Hugh S. Gibson, sought out the German Governor, von der Lancken, late at night before the execution, and, with the Spanish Minister, pleaded with the Governor and the German officers for the British woman's life, is graphically related in a memorandum from Mr. Gibson. This document makes reference to an apparent lack of good faith on the part of the German authorities in failing to keep their promises to inform the American Minister fully of the trial and sentence.

Minister Whitlock telegraphed to Ambassador Page on the 12th: "Miss Cavell sentenced yesterday and executed at 2 o'clock this morning, despite our best efforts, continued until the last moment."

The Final Appeal.

Mr. Whitlock's final appeal was in the form of a note written in French and sent by a messenger late on the night of the 11th to Governor von der Lancken, a translation of which reads as follows:

"My Dear Baron—I am too sick to present my request myself, but I appeal to your generosity of heart to approve it and save from death this unhappy woman. Have pity on her. Yours truly, Brand Whitlock."

Mr. Whitlock also stated that Miss Cavell had nursed German soldiers.

Mr. Delaval, Councillor of the American Legation, reported to Minister Whitlock:

"This morning Mr. Gahan, a British clergyman, told me that he had seen Miss Cavell in her cell yesterday at 10 o'clock, and that he had given her Holy Communion and had found her admirably strong and calm.

Admitted Her Guilt.

"I asked Mr. Gahan whether she had made any remarks about anything concerning the legal side of her case, and whether the confession which she made before trial and in court was in his opinion perfectly free and sincere. Mr. Gahan said she told him she was perfectly well and knew what she had done; that, according to the law, of course, she was guilty, and admitted her guilt, but that she was happy to die for her country."

Secretary Gibson's report says that Conrad, an official of the German civil branch, gave positive assurance on the 11th that the American Legation would be fully informed of the developments in the case, and continues:

"Despite these assurances we made repeated inquiries in the course of the day, the last one being at 6.20 p.m. Conrad then stated that sentence had not been pronounced, and specifically renewed his previous assurances that he would not fail to inform us as soon as there was any news.

Slain in The Night.

"At 8.30 it was learned from an outside source that sentence had been passed in the course of the afternoon, before the last conversation with Mr. Conrad, and that execution would take place during the night."

Secretary Gibson thereupon sought the Spanish Minister, with the American Minister's note for clemency, and with Mr. Delaval they went to Von der Lancken's quarters. Finding the Governor and his staff absent, they telephoned to them, asking them to return on a matter of the utmost urgency. The Governor with his staff returned shortly after 10 o'clock.

Secretary Gibsons report to Minister Whitlock continues:

"The circumstances of the case were explained to him and your note was presented. He read it aloud in our presence. He expressed disbelief in the report that sentence had actually been passed, and manifested some surprise that we should give credence to any report not emanating from official sources. He was quite insistent on knowing the exact source of our information, but as I did not feel at liberty to communicate to him.

Baron von der Lancken stated that it was quite improbable that sentence had been pronounced, and even if so it would not be executed in so short a time, and that in any event it would be quite impossible to take any action before morning.

Another Broken Promise.

"It was, of course, pointed out to him that even if the facts were as we believed them to be, action would be useless unless taken at once. We urged him to ascertain the facts immediately. This, after some hesitancy, he agreed to do. He telephoned to the presiding Judge of the court-martial, and returned to say that the facts were as we had presented them, and that it was intended to carry out the sentence before morning.

"We then presented as earnestly as possible your idea for delay. So far as I am able to judge, we neglected to present no phase of the matter which might have had any effect emphasizing the horror of executing a woman, no matter what her offence, and pointing out that the death sentence had heretofore been imposed only for actual cases of espionage and that Miss Cavell was not even accused by the German authorities of anything of the sort.

Appeals and Threats Ignored.

"I called attention to the failure to comply with Mr. Conrad's promise to inform the Legation of the sentence. I urged that, inasmuch as the offences charged against Miss Cavell were long since accomplished, and as she had been for some weeks in a prison, delay in carrying out the sentence could entail no danger to the German cause. I even went so far as to point out the fearful effect of a summary execution of this sort upon public opinion both here and abroad, and, although I had no authority for doing so, called attention to the possibility that you might bring about reprisals."

The Councillor of Legation, Mr Delaval, reported to Mr Whitlock that on the failure of the German authorities to reply to Mr. Whitlock's request of August 31, that Mr. Delaval be permitted to see Miss Cavell in order to have all necessary steps taken for her defence, another letter was despatched September 10, to which a German reply on September 12 refused the bequest, but referred him to Attorney Kirschen, who had been assigned for the defence.

Lawyer Barred From Client.

Attorney Kirschen, Mr. Delaval reported, stated that Miss Cavell was being prosecuted for helping soldiers across the frontier, and that lawyers defending the prisoner before a German military court was not allowed to see their clients before the trial, and were not shown any document of the prosecution.

Mr. Delaval's report says that Attorney Kirschen assured him repeatedly that the military court of Brussels always was perfectly fair, and that Herr Kirschen would keep him informed of all developments in the case, but that Herr Kirschen failed to give him any information, and that after the trial Mr. Delaval earned from other sources the following.

"Miss Cavell was prosecuted for having helped British and French soldiers as well as Belgian young men to cross the frontier and go to England. She admitted by signing a statement before the day of the trial and by public acknowledgment in court, that she was guilty of the charges."

The report of Mr Delaval says that Miss Cavell in her oral statement before the court disclosed almost all the facts of the prosecution. She spoke without trembling, and showed a clear mind, and often added some greater precision to her previous depositions.

"When she was asked why she helped these soldiers to go to England," the report of Mr. Delaval continues, "she replied that she thought

THE command to HALT has back of it the power of the army. In hundreds of communities in this country today a HALT has been called on the Community Robber, on the man or woman who, unthinkingly, robs the community by refusing to patronize HOME interests. What's needed to-day are MORE sentries, more men and women to call a halt on such thoughtlessness. Our community is asked to take a definite stand on this question. Let each man appoint himself a sentry to see that the community life is preserved. Other communities have fallen in line. They have hoisted the Home Trade flag. WE must fall in LINE or fall BEHIND. Saskatoon Bond Issue

A new debenture issue of the city of Saskatoon is being brought prominently before investors to-day by Wood, Gundy & Company, the well-known Toronto financial house. The purposes of the present issue are Water and Sewer Extensions, Fire Equipment, Paving and other municipal works.

The bonds now offered are due at the end of ten, twenty and thirty years, and all maturities are being offered to yield an income of 6 1-4 per cent. per annum to the investor. This is a considerably more attractive rate than has previously been obtainable on Saskatoon bonds. The last sale by the City was in April, 1914, and the present issue covers the cost of all works undertaken and in prospect at this date. No further issue is likely for a considerable time.

Saskatoon is not only practically the geographical centre of Saskatchewan, and served by all three transcontinental railways, but owing to distinctly advantageous freight rates, is the distributing centre for a territory of 65,000 square miles containing about 2,500 miles of railways.

The Bond circular issued in this [illegible] a useful map and Therefore, she thought she only did her duty to her country in saving their lives."

The British Foreign Office in a note to Ambassador Page, asking him to express to Mr. Whitlock and his staff the British Government's grateful thanks for their efforts in behalf of Miss Cavell, says:

German Duplicity.

"Sir Edward Grey (the British Foreign Minister) is confident that the news of the execution of this noble woman will be received with horror and disgust, not only in the allied States, but throughout the civilized world.

"Miss Cavell was not even charged with espionage, and the fact that she had nursed numbers of wounded German soldiers might have been regarded as a complete reason in itself for treating her with leniency.

"The attitude of the German authorities is, if possible, rendered worse by the discreditable efforts successfully made by officials of the German civil administration at Brussels to conceal the fact that the sentence had been passed and would be carried out immediately.

"These efforts were, no doubt, prompted by a determination to carry out the sentence before an appeal from the finding of the court-martial could be made to a higher authority, and show in the clearest manner that the German authorities were well aware that the carrying out of the sentence was not warranted by any consideration. Further comment on these proceedings would be superfluous."

The Smoke-Hungry Boys At the Front

What the Overseas Club is Doing for Them

Private effort and even the various organized movements to send out smokes to soldiers and sailors, praiseworthy as they are, can only serve a little part of the need. A big organization is not only able to operate on a more adequate scale, but also to lay out the money to the best advantage. The Overseas Club for all men and women who desire comradeship and mutual help among British subjects throughout the world—has undertaken a large-scale effort to keep our soldiers supplied with tobacco and cigarettes; the Club bearing all the organizing expenses, and managing the job so well that not only are freight and duty saved, but purchases made to such advantage that every quarter collected puts $1.00 worth of tobacco and cigarettes straight into the hands of a soldier or sailor on active service—with the name of the giver.

More help is needed. Our readers are asked to contribute, to collect, and to enlist the help of friends in collecting for this kind object. Individual soldiers and sailors can be specified, or the names of regiments, ships and other units, and each such parcel will be written the name of the giver by whose generosity it is sent.

Trades and Labour Notes

(By the Official Scribe.)

The usual bi-monthly meeting of Peterborough's Trades and Labour Council was held this week. There were in attendance a goodly number of delegates with lots of eloquence and lots of smoke. Had a fire chief and his merry men been round on Wednesday night they probably would have jumped to the conclusion, "where there's smoke there's fire," and turned the hose on unhesitatingly.

President J. J. Hartley was asked about the decision he had promised the Council last meeting. He replied saying that the matter had received his most careful consideration and before fully unburdening himself he wished the delegates to express themselves freely. The result was that from all quarters of the city comments in favour of a Labour candidate for Mayoralty honours were heard.

Delegates from all the wards had put out "feelers" with favourable results, so Mr. Hartley, feeling greatly encouraged with this and promises of support he had received from some leading professional and commercial men, gave out that he was in the field for the occupancy of the Chief Magistrates' chair in January next. This decision was greeted with applause and plans for a campaign immediately discussed. Some valuable suggestions were made, the results of previous experiences, but the President's announcement of his belief in a personal canvass seemed to convey the best impression of means to bring the campaign to a successful issue. Also future meetings will be open to all union men, so that they may know what is likely to be done on their behalf if a Labour mayor is returned. It must be understood, however, that only delegates will be entitled to vote at these open meetings.

Private Phipps, who is arriving in the city next week, was a member of the Council when he donned the khaki with the first contingent. The Council asked the President to represent it if a public reception was being given the returned hero. Labour unions have supplied much in the way of brawn and muscle to the Empire's cause and it is deemed fitting that the Trades Council be represented when the gallant defender comes home to recuperate.

Barber delegates drew attention to the conduct of the non-union Simcoe street barber, who is cutting the prices around this town. When remonstrated with about this suicide policy this disturber of tonsorial serenity had declared that he had plenty of patronage and also from union men. This last, to quote Mark Antony, "was the unkindest cut of all."

The strike at the Auburn Woollen Mills it was declared would have been greatly helped had the striking weavers held cards with the local Textile Workers. The officers are quite willing to give all the assistance possible, but primarily the Auburn operatives should remember that "Heaven helps those that help themselves," and come into line with their fellow craftsmen of the South End.

Next meeting November third.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont, writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up but by using 10 boxes of Dr Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 35 pounds in weight."

Public Charges Are Not Beneficiaries of Life Assurance

A census was taken about a year ago of the inmates of alms houses, of prisons, of asylums for the care of the helpless, in an eastern state. It was found but three of the occupants of these institutions, who numbered altogether over fifteen hundred, had been beneficiaries of life insurance.

It was somebody's neglect that forced the public to pay higher taxes in order to take care of nearly all these people.

Life insurance limits the needs of poorhouses, prisons, old folks' homes. Life insurance, therefore, reduces the needs of the State in maintaining institutions for the care of the needy.

The man who has sufficient insurance to take care of his own future if he reaches old age, and of his dependents, should anything happen to him, is doing his duty, not only to his family, but to his State.

WOULD YOU CONSIDER

a proposition making provision for your family in the event of death, or, if living, provision for old age?

Bulbs Are Cheap, Why Not Grow Them Indoors or Out

Tulips, Hyacinths, Narcissus and Other Varieties Invite Every Home to Plant and Cultivate Them for Winter and Spring Bloom

Winter and spring blooms that will beautify the home and enhance its cheerfulness may be grown in the average household with but trifling though regular attention. Hyacinths, daffodils and narcissus, for example, should be found among the flowers of every family that pretends to have any love for them. The bulbs are cheaper than ever this year on account of the heavy export from Holland whose foreign trade has been considerably limited by the war. Not only should they be more generally planted for winter bloom, but also grown outside for early spring flowering. Probably the latter phase should be considered first for the bulbs should be in the ground as soon as possible now that the colder season is close at hand.

It is scarcely necessary to refer to the advantages and adornment features of a bed of tulips. The principal fact is that a larger number of citizens should realize that they, too, can grow them just as well as the park caretakers. These bulbs should be planted four or five inches deep and from five or six to eight inches apart, according to the display desired, and to the kind of flowers used. Crocus bulbs planted 3 or 3 inches deep and about 4 inches apart provide a nice border to a tulip bed. After the first frost cover with leaves and rotten manure thus providing a protection for the late frosts in spring. Don't make the layer of leaves too heavy. This is intended more as a direction to the beginner. If he wishes a more ambitious experiment he may add daffodils, narcissus and other bulbous plants in the selection of which any florist will gladly direct him.

For indoor planting, hyacinths are especially desirable. One Dutch bulb is usually planted in a four-inch pot, but three bulbs in a five-inch pot provide profuse bloom and a brilliant display. Rich sand loam affords suitable material. Avoid packing the earth, especially in the bottom of the pots. Daffodils may be similarly planted, placing three or four bulbs in a four-inch pot, and of narcissus five or six. Plant the bulbs just below the surface of the soil. Fresias and crocus may be handled in the same way, selecting a sufficient number to loosely fill the pot.

Your first investigations in this field will reveal many varieties of bulbs and methods of growing them.

Planted for indoor growth they should be kept moderately moist. To accelerate the initial growth especially of the roots, keep the plants in a dark place for several weeks, then bring out to a north window to advance the stems. Keep in a fairly warm, rather a cool room. Later they may be exposed to the south light.

Make a beginning now with some of these varieties, either indoor or out, and you will be well repaid during the winter and spring.

Funeral Of The Late F. J. Daly

Was Held This Morning and Was Largely Attended—Rev. Father Phelan Officiated

The funeral of the late Francis J. Daly took place this morning from his late residence, 420 Rubidge street, to St. Peter's Cathedral. The funeral was largely attended, many citizens turning out to pay their last mark of respect to the memory of the deceased. A requiem mass was sung at the Cathedral by Rev. Father Phelan, while Rev. Father Leonard officiated at the grave. The pallbearers were Messrs. D. O'Connell, J. C. Sullivan, R. Sheehy, Jas. Lynch, Harry Phelan and Dr. McNulty. Out of town relatives present at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Daly, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons, Elmira, N.Y.; Mrs. Brady, Miss Dorgan and Mr. Welsh, Buffalo; Mrs. Middleton and son Arthur of Toronto.

The floral tributes were very numerous and beautiful, and testified to the high esteem in which the late Mr. Daly was held.

Freight Bills Were Forged

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 23.—The Davidson war contracts commission probed the purchase of feed for remounts at its session here Thursday. It was learned that C.P.R. freight bills had been forged, and that at least eight cars of feed charged up to the Government never existed.

This information was supplied by Colin P. Mackintosh, chartered accountant from a Winnipeg firm, who was commissioned to enquire into certain dealings of the remount department. Mr. Mackintosh traced the purchase of feed by Mr. Mitchell, who sold to the remount department, through the varying steps, and produced a number of alleged C.P.R. freight bills given to him by Mitchell. These freight bills referred to shipments of hay — generally in ten-ton lots — from the towns of Kisby and Maclean, both on the C.P.R. line exclusively and both near Regina. When, however, the C.P.R. freight agent at Regina, George Chalmers, was called, he produced the original bills bearing the same progressive numbers as those produced by Mr. Mackintosh, with the result that it was found in each of the eight cases that the freight bills were absolute forgeries.

Mr. Mackintosh characterized the weekly feed reports for horses mobilized in Regina as "absurd and impossible."

Will Grant, in charge of the remount department here, stated under oath that he had signed reports and documents without reading them. Mitchell, whom he did not know, visited him and arranged to sell as much feed to the department as was needed. He became suspicious, and Mitchell was removed.

UNDER ORDERS

The new war play of the above title by Albert Cowles will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, October 28th, one night only. It is quite different in many respects from any war play that has heretofore been produced in this country, inasmuch as the incidents in it are based on actual facts with merely the change in the names of the different localities, upon which the Canadian censor has very properly insisted, one of the principal scenes is the saving of a Canadian Troop ship with two thousand Canadian troops aboard bound for overseas, from the torpedoing of a German submarine; another strong situation is presented in the recruiting of an Irish regiment, showing the enthusiasm which swung even the hesitating ones into line after hearing the forceful oration of Patricia O'Grady, the heroine. Other novelties are a demonstration of the use of the gas bomb, an attempted effort to wreck a submarine and the destruction of a signal tower by the Zeppelins. The play is not a gruesome one as are many of the so-called war plays, it has its serious side entwined with the romance, comedy and love story that make it a most welcome addition to the season's dramatic offerings. "Under Orders" will tour Canada from east to west and if the success of the three companies that are now playing it in England is any criterion, no small modicum of success is assured it. A most capable cast has been selected for the handling of the many characters and no expense has been spared in staging the production. It might be well to advise the casual reader that this is not a moving picture, it

School Is The Cradle Of Patriotism---To Teachers Is The Great Opportunity

Miss M. A. O'Connell's Impressive Paper Before the Convention of Teachers on Subject of "The Teaching of Patriotism"—Practical Suggestions

IMPORTANCE OF CHARACTER

The teacher's opportunity of developing a true and abiding spirit of patriotism was impressively presented before the convened teachers of the city and county, and the students of the Normal School yesterday, by Miss M. A. O'Connell, Principal of St. Peter's School, in her address as the retiring president of the City Teachers' Institute. She chose the timely and, at this time, particularly interesting subject, "The Teaching of Patriotism," developing the general idea, and reducing it to practical suggestions. At the request of the convention Miss O'Connell's paper is given, as follows:

The Idea of Patriotism.

Love of one's country is patriotism, the passion which leads a person to serve his country with zeal. The definition of patriotism, which has been handed down to us through the ages is "to die for one's country." And nearly everybody associates patriotism with death. But true patriotism means life—to live for one's country. Any person who has made his country better for his having lived in it is a patriot. A patriot lives for his country because he loves his country. It is his birthplace. It contains the old homestead where he learned to lisp his mother tongue at his mother's knee. The old school house where he acquired a still further knowledge of his national language has ties that can never be effaced. The old country seat where he acquired his growing muscle and his young strength fills his mind with grateful remembrance of his father's example. The scenes and haunts of his sportful boyhood days are ever fresh. Thoughts like these made Goldsmith, when tramping over continental Europe, away from his own country, write to his brother, and say:

"Where'er I roam, whatever realms to see,
My heart untravelled fondly turns to thee."

Two Chief Agencies.

Since true patriotism means to live for one's country, teaching patriotism resolves itself into making the best citizens. There are the two chief agencies. The mother is the first teacher. It is she who first instils into her child the germs of true patriotism. Napoleon gave all the credit of a country possessing superior soldiers to the superior mothers. Then the teacher continues the education of the child. President Lincoln gave the teachers the credit for the overthrow of slavery in the Southern States. It was they who inspired the idea into the future soldiers of the north that it is unpatriotic to make a bondsman of a brother human being. These two, the mother and the teacher, have in their hands the moulding of the nation's destiny. As are the mother and the teacher, so is the nation. But I think the major portion of the nation's development is the province of the teacher. It is the latter, chiefly, who holds the hands and hearts of to-morrow's nation. It is the great and serious duty of the teacher, therefore, sustained by the devotion of the parents of the taught at all times to keep in view the perpetuity of national life. To fit his pupils for life should be his aim, to give them the training in mind and heart that will enable them to keep up life's work with the assurance that they can be useful to society, to inspire them with lofty notions of existence and hope for prudent service, to make a citizen whose intelligence, moral rectitude, and steadfast virtues will counteract all kinds of disintegrating forces and social disorder.

Two Kinds of Patriotism.

The patriotism which can thus be developed in schools is of two kinds: First, that which comes through exercise of the emotions; secondly, that which comes through a knowledge of the rights and duties of the citizen.

As a basis for teaching emotional patriotism we have the universal instinctive love of home which draws its earliest breath from the caressing touch of a mother's hand, which is hallowed and strengthened by the sacred relations of the family which, throughout life, is the anchor to upright conduct, nobility of character, and good citizenship. The question of the teacher is, how upon this basis can be best build up loyalty and love of country in the hearts and intellects of our children.

The Love of Country.

The word patriotism implies fatherland, and it implies something more, the love of fatherland. What is the fatherland? To the young child it implies the small piece of soil on which he was born. As he grows up it implies his school section, the township, county, the province, Dominion, the British Empire. Should fatherland end here, or loyalty end with loving the free people of our own blood who worship British institutions? Should we not go a step farther and say the whole world is our fatherland, and our sentiment be the love of humanity all the world over? Let us pray for the time when the whole world will be organized into a symmetrical whole, when the armies of the world will be turned into paths of productive industry, and international law will control and settle all the affairs of the world.

Should Have Flag or Emblem.

As a perpetual inspiration to patriotism every school should have its national flag or emblem. The significance or symbolism of the flag should be explained because when uplifted it concentrates in itself the annals of a nation, and all the traditions of an empire. It is the symbol of law, justice, protection, liberty and government, and therefore it becomes of additional value in proportion as its symbolism is better understood and its story more fully known. Why should we respect and reverence the flag? The poem on the Union Jack:

"It's only an old piece of bunting.
It's only an old coloured rag", contains the answer. Have them memorise that poem. It's full meaning will dawn upon them when the men of tomorrow will be rhyming over the boy's lesson of to-day. The different colours should be explained. The traditional colour, red, indicates courage; white is the emblem of purity, and blue is the emblem of truth.

A Mother's Explanation.

A little boy once asked his mother "What is showing colours, mother?" She began to knit him a pair of mittens, and upon the back of each she fashioned the flag of her country, knitting it in as she went along, so that it was part of the woof of the mittens. Standing by her side, the boy watched the shining needles. She gave him the history of the flag as she threaded the red, white, and blue into her work. She told him how many and how great had been the sacrifices for its defence on land and on sea. As her needles knit the flag into his mittens, enthusiasm for freedom and country, fidelity to truth, and duty, love of honour and right, had all been knit into his young life by this good mother's teaching. Thus

CONGREGATIONAL TEA AT MURRAY ST. CHURCH

A congregational reunion and tea at Murray Street Baptist Church last night provided a very enjoyable evening for the large number of members who attended. It was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and replaced the usual bazaar. The George Street Methodist Church Orchestra played during the serving of supper, which was all that could be desired. Afterwards, Rev. J. R. Webb presided over a programme of addresses and music, the speakers being Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Knox Church, Rev. Dougal Brown of Park Street Baptist Church, Rev. Mr. Galt of Gilmour Memorial Church, Rev. Mr. Slimon of Lakefield Baptist Church, and Mr. Jos. Wearing. The musical numbers were provided by Mr. Asa Huycke, Miss Clara Kidd, and Miss Singleton of the Normal School, vocalists, Miss Ida Sanderson, pianiste, and an enjoyable instrumental trio by Miss Logan, Miss Dean and Mr. W. W. Dean. Attention was called to the offering to be taken up to-morrow to provide Christmas cheer for the young men of the church now at the front.

Peterboro Boy In The Trenches

Driver A. Davidson of the 2nd Contingent Has Some Interesting Experiences to Relate

Mrs. Adam Davidson, 169 Charlotte street, has received a letter from her son, Driver A. Davidson, of the Peterborough Detachment, Second Canadian Contingent. The communication which is written from "somewhere in France," contains the following:

"I received your ever welcome letter, and was glad to hear from you. I am in the best of health. It is getting closer to Christmas and it does not seem long since the last one. We are having a very good time over here. The people seem very funny. You can hardly make out what they say. Some of the French are very nice people, and some are just the opposite. We go to Belgium nearly every day. I have been up to the trenches twice, and believe me, it is not very quiet where the bullets are flying around. Our duty is to take ammunition up to the trenches, that is how we get up to see what is going on.

"You can see aeroplane battles very often, and I would sooner be on the ground than up in the air where it is going on. I have met quite a lot of fellows I knew including Cyril Giroux. One of our boys shouted over to the Germans and asked them when they were going to Paris. They replied—"When you Canadians go back home."

Dr. Sutton Gave Interesting Address on "The Value of Human Life"

The Young Men's Club of All Saints' Church met Friday night in the Parish Hall, at which, after the regular session was over, Mr. Barrie pleased the audience with an instrumental solo which was well rendered.

Dr. N. H. Sutton then delivered a most interesting address on "The Value of Human Life". This was full of thought and inspiration. A chorus "We'll never let the Old Flag fall" was sung by all present.

cious factionists at home and abroad, who have joined hands in the despicable work of underrating Ireland's splendid contribution to the armies of freedom.

The City Temple, from which the Rev. R. J. Campbell is retiring, is one of the new buildings which mark the advance of Non-conformity in London. It is, as everybody knows, on the Holborn Viaduct—a fine new road which was erected in a district of slums. It is plain and substantial; it stands midway between the West End of London and the City; inside it is finely proportioned, but again very plain. There is nothing that can be described as a pulpit, rather a platform such as one might find in any public hall for secular purposes.

Henry Ward Beecher.

The first time I ever visited the City Temple was when Henry Ward Beecher was announced to be the preacher. Though I had met him only a few times I had already come to regard the famous American preacher as a friend. He was, of course, so vehemently with Ireland in her demands for self-government, and was ready to show his sympathies in any way that was required. He was in the North Western Hotel in Liverpool just after his landing from America when it was announced that Mr. Gladstone was to give an address during the general election then going on in Liverpool; and Henry Ward Beecher was invited to a place on the platform. It was in July and the weather was very hot, and, of course, the hall was crowded to suffocation. We were all perspiring, but the man who perspired the most was Mr. Gladstone, for he gave a long and vehement address and anybody accustomed to public speaking will know that it always makes a speaker very hot. It was on this occasion that I saw one of the most curious things happen to Mr. Gladstone. The perspiration rolled down from his neck in such torrents that the big upstanding collar which he nearly always wore, was crumpled up and had become a turned-down collar before he ended his speech. There was no further speaking and Liverpool missed the opportunity of hearing, perhaps, the most eloquent of American voices.

But I made up my mind to hear Beecher, so on the Sunday following I found myself at the City Temple. I was not then as accustomed to Non-conformist services as I have since become, and some of the incidents struck me as a little strange. Joseph Parker, the then pastor, was a curious looking man. He had been a stonemason. The features, large, even massive, were somewhat coarse, but the eyes were very fine, and he had a beautiful voice. There was also a great suggestion of power in the outstanding features; he looked something of a lion, and a large head of hair suggested the name. He used always to object being called histronic in the pulpit, but he did not object to be called dramatic, and dramatic he certainly was. Like so many masters of pathos he did not object to humour, and my first surprise was to hear the congregation laughing heartily at some of the things he said as he introduced Beecher to the audience. A congregation laughing in a church was certainly something of a shock to one brought up in the Catholic Church. But as proof that Parker could command the pathetic as well as the humorous, I must tell the story of how he wound up a little sermon on the deaths of some members of his congregation: "The world," he said, "is getting very lonely and very cold," and as he said this, he gathered up his black soutane and hurried from the platform; the gesture suggested a man shivering from the icy atmosphere of a lonely graveyard.

A Master of Humour and Pathos.

Beecher, as all of you in America and Canada know, was also a master of both humour and pathos. I have heard many orators, and with perhaps the exception of Gladstone, I never heard one whose elocution was so perfect as that of Beecher. Like Gladstone, Beecher could put a whole argument in emphasis and in the tone he gave to a single word. I remember his ending a sentence about corruption in public life with the word bought, and in that word "bought" there was a summing up as well as an indictment of an entire side of human life. The passage I best remember was one in which he was protesting as he did throughout his life—against religious narrowness.

With humour he described the young theological student going into the examination halls of one theological system after another, and being asked whether he was ready to subscribe to the thirty-nine articles, and then whether he accepted the Westminster confession and whether he thought infant or adult baptism the most in accord with scripture. Then he indulged in one of those strange flashes of humour which made his pathos more effective. "By this time," he said, "the poor candidate is beginning to sweat." And turning immediately afterwards to seriousness, he said, "The one question he is not asked is, "Do you believe the greatest of these is love?"

Beauty and The Beast.

Dr Parker had a wife who was as beautiful as refined, as gentle as he seemed to be leonine and strong and aggressive. They were sometimes called Beauty and the Beast, though that was unjust, for Parker had a masculine beauty of his own. Mrs. Parker was always delicate, and in the end she died. Parker was never quite the same again; he said himself that his wife's death killed him. "It took two years to do it," he said, as he lay dying just that interval after her death, "but it killed me all the same."

The City Temple has a rich congregation and its pastorate is one of the big prizes of the Nonconformist army. There was of course great perturbation as to who could fill the big space left by so prominent a man as Parker, and there was some surprise when the choice fell on the Rev. R. J. Campbell. There could not have been a more vivid, indeed impossible contrast than between the old pastor and the new. The old pastor was robust, almost to commonness; the new pastor was refined, almost to preciousness. He looked almost a boy. The short clean-shaven face surmounted with an aureole of evidently premature white hair, the small mouth, the short, rather turned-up nose, the boyish expression, the strangely brilliant eyes, made more brilliant by the background of the white complexion, and the white hair—it was all very novel and even startling, and it suggested the mystic, the ascetic, in short, the Catholic, rather than the Nonconformist temperament and mind.

But though Mr. Campbell thus started with disadvantages, he soon asserted his power; and his church was crowded with a devoted congregation. He tried the congregation rather severely, for he announced a brand new Modernism that was startling to the rather old-fashioned congregation he addressed. Parker was bold in character, but not in mind, and never ventured one little inch beyond the accepted faith of his congregation. There was a good deal of turmoil; but the Congregationalists are very tolerant; shrank with horror from the heresy hunt that used to be so popular in the Presbyterian congregations up in Scotland at an earlier epoch; and Mr. Campbell was able to keep his congregation and his pastorate.

A Typical Welshman.

I am not familiar with his preaching, but Mr. Lloyd George is. That curious and typical Welshman, although he no longer holds a creed quite as narrow as the stern and rigid Puritanism in which he was brought up, has still the Welshman's love of the chapel, and has often said to me quite seriously that he would sooner go to a good sermon than to a good play. I have often listened to him as he quoted passages of startling eloquence from the sermons of Welsh preachers. He tells me that though Mr Campbell has few oratorical advantages—the voice is low and the frame is too delicate for robust gesture or expression—he is one of the most captivating preachers he has ever heard. Above all, said Mr Lloyd George, you find him very searching.

The impression Mr. Campbell made on me the first time I saw him in private—we lunched together at his request—was of a man whose life in some way or other was disintegrated and whose future was uncertain. He almost said as much to me, himself, and even then—it is ten years ago—he suggested a doubt of finding himself in the right place in the City Temple. He is a mystic, and I understand has changed much from the heterodoxy of his earlier years, so much so that many people expected that if he did change his communion, it would be to Rome rather than to Canterbury. But aparently it is Canterbury that has won him. It is possible that he will end as a Bishop of that establishment, which is still anathema to so many stout British Nonconformists. He is an Ulster man by birth and by descent.

"The Teaching of Composition"

Subject of Interesting Paper by Miss M. Armstrong — Should Awaken Pupils' Desire to Express Their Thoughts —Some Methods to Be Employed

In her paper on "The Teaching of Composition," Miss M. Armstrong, of the Central School, at the Teachers' Convention yesterday, dealt particularly with the handling of this subject in the higher grades especially.

A course in composition should accomplish three things. It should enable a pupil to make his thoughts clear to others. It should awaken in a pupil a desire to express his thoughts to others and to improve his manner of expression in so doing. Thirdly, it should develop his appreciation of good literature.

Teachers were apt to be disappointed when the young minds do not grasp the same points in, or get as much out of, a given subject as they themselves do. Often this was attributed to the indifference of the pupil, but in the majority of cases it was due to the lack of development of the child's mind to the point where he could thoroughly appreciate the subject in hand. It was in composition particularly that the minds of the children were being dealt with, constituting a privilege and obligation sometimes overlooked.

Stories being told by the teacher (who should pay every attention to voice and gestulation and then reproduced by the pupils, were splendid means of treating certain branches of the subject. Some might characterize this as parrot like tuition, but this was far from the case. The children were merely being taught by example of expressing himself. Having the pupils tell their experiences before the class was another beneficial method. This tended to do away with self-consciousness in the youngsters, which fault was sometimes rather noticeable in the students of the higher grades. At first the child should be taught to tell his story as a whole, but as soon as he can grasp the significance of the word paragraph he should be taught to group his thoughts correctly.

By the time the child is ready for the Junior Third he should have been taught the various rules needed in the writing of a composition, for example: the use of capital letters, punctuation marks, and paragraph structure. These rules were best taught by the inductive method, through having examples on the blackboard and working out the governing rules from there. These rules should be re-taught in the higher grades, and the pupil should never be allowed to lost sight of them.

Kuttaidge gives the following classification of composition: narrative, descriptive, explanative and argumentative.

It was not always easy to get an interesting topic for composition work. Oft times splendid subjects were to be discovered by the questioning of the pupils to see what was uppermost in their minds. Gradually the system of planning a composition should be introduced. As soon as the pupils can plan their own compositions scope is given for originality and a great deal of variety comes into the work. In composition—particularly narrative composition—the imagination of the child was given an opportunity to show and develop.

Descriptive compositions were the most difficult to write, and the consequence was that often the results in this department were more than in most others. The descriptive side should be developed until the pupils could combine it easily and naturally with the narrative style. Character study was another phase of the work under the general designation of descriptive compositions. It was a very profitable and interesting branch of the work, and worthy of being given considerable time.

Oral compositions in the 3rd and 4th books were advocated in this paper, and in this connection tact must be employed in the criticism or else the youthful speaker would become discomfited and discouraged. The concluding paragraphs of the paper dealt with various means through which the desired results in composition should be attained.

Township of Ennismore Makes a Substantial Contribution to the Red Cross Fund

Ennismore's contribution to the British Red Cross fund will reach at least four hundred dollars. On Sunday last Rev. Father Fitzpatrick spent a half hour explaining the aims and purposes of the fund. As a result eight of the leading men of the Township undertook to inaugurate a house-to-house canvas. While the complete returns are not all in, it is expected that the amount will total at least four hundred dollars. The Township Council, which also took a very active part in the canvas, has intimated its intention of seeing that the amount does not fall below the four hundred mark.

Potatoes $1.35 A Bag On Market To-Day

Farmers boosted potatoes this morning, the price opening at $1.50 a bag and settling down to actual sales at $1.35. This meant a real advance of ten cents over last week. The supply appeared more than sufficient. In this connection the general opinion is that the potato supply is not heavy this year. Those who are selling them are strong in this assertion and other farmers support it. Some who usually grow potatoes for their own table only, state that they are purchasers this year. This condition is reported general and while there is no desire to encourage the upward price movement, it does seem that prices will be generally higher than last year.

Eggs appeared slightly more plentiful, the price ranging from 32 to 35 cents, and butter at 35 cents. Chickens sold all the way from 65 cents to $1.25 a pair, ducks at 65 and 75 cents each, geese at $1.25 to $1.45 each. Lamb was quoted at 14 and 16 cents a pound. Apples were fairly plentiful.

THE WEATHER

Somewhat colder conditions now prevail, the thermometer this morning registering 28 degrees. Hard frosts are late in arriving this fall compared with some years. On Oct. 25th last fall the temperature was down to 19 degrees, and the following day the ground was white with snow, about half an [illegible] on the surface.

THE MEDICAL PROBE CONTINUES

Dr. Stewart Cameron of Peterborough is Attending the Session

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—The Ontario Medical Association had its innings before the Hodgins Medical Commission yesterday at a session held in the Parliament Buildings. While ostensibly the doctors were giving information to the judge, there was enough argument attached to it to make it quite plain that the medical men intended to give no quarter to the osteopaths and chiropractors. They argued that if any person wanted to practice the drugless treatments they should first be compelled to take the medical course in the colleges.

Doctors Were Strong.

The Medical Council is yet to be heard from, but Dr. H. B. Anderson, Dr. A. A. Reeve, Dr. Henry Howitt, Dr. Stewart Cameron, Peterborough; Dr. D. L. Heggie, Brampton; Dr. John Ferguson, Toronto; Dr. Angus Mackinnon, Toronto, and Dr. Chas. Sheard, appeared for the Medical Association and oposed "any change in the present system of admission to practice as a qualified doctor which would degrade the medical profession."

Dr. H. B. Anderson thought there should be only one portal of admission to all doctors, no matter what treatment they were practising. The doors of the profession were open to all who complied with the regulations, said he. After the student had graduated from a proper university he could practice what he liked so long as it complied with professional ethics.

Want College Course.

Dr. Chas. Sheard told the commission that the medical profession thought that the public should be considered first and measures taken to protect them from unskilled practitioners who had no proper qualifications to give treatments. He advocated a special board and special curriculum for all students who should be examined and then turned over to a property body.

"If osteopathy can be shown to be a potent and superior treatment we shall not oppose it, but let the men who apply it be qualified by proper training," said Dr. Sheard.

COMING

D. W. Griffith's mighty spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" will be seen at the Grand Opera House exactly as it is being given in New York, Toronto and Montreal, also several other cities where it has made record breaking runs.

This new force in the art of stage entertainment is perhaps the most widely discussed production ever made in America. It is above all else the greatest thing that has been achieved by one producer. Imagine condensing the living details of the most strenuous periods of American history into an evening's entertainment of less than three hours. You are not told about it nor is your imagination tested by rhetorical descriptions of what took place. Instead, you see it by lighting flashes. It is history revived and shown in its making. Some of the greatest names that are written large upon the scroll of our country's fame appear upon the program. The players who enact the roles have studied the minute description of these men both from photographs and intimate life studies and with this framework they make these wonderful characters live again. They pass before your vision in a panorama of achievement. The accomplishment is startling. The entire action ranges over three centuries.

It begins with the importation of the first African slave and ends with the settlement of that question in the freedom of the enslaved. But before this end is reached the mightiest nation in the world passes throes the throes of internecine strife and the high lights of those strugglers are vividly brought out. Great battles are fought before your eyes. Cities are destroyed by fire. Thousands of horsemen dash in wild rides across bloodstained plains. The human note weaves in and through the entire thread and lends itself to the mightiest story ever unfolded.

Ex-Ald Johnston Might Enter

May be an Aspirant For Mayoralty Honours at the Next Election

"I might be," was the somewhat laconic reply that ex-Alderman W. F. Johnston made when asked by the Examiner if he would be a mayoralty candidate at the forthcoming municipal election. While the remark in itself might not imply very much yet the facial expression that accompanied it, contained a depth of meaning. When ex-Alderman Johnston crossed the threshold of nineteen hundred and fifteen, it was in the capacity of aldermanic representative for the north ward. He was also chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, but when the Committees for the year were struck this responsibility fell on other shoulders. Ex-Alderman Johnston remained in the Cuncil for a few months and then re-Council for a few months and then re ing that things were hardly running as harmoniously as he would like. Ex-alderman Johnston has a strong following and should he enter the contest there is reason to believe he will give a good account of himself.

It should awaken in a pupil a desire to express his thoughts to others and to improve his manner of expression in so doing. Thirdly, it should develop his appreciation of good literature.

Teachers were apt to be disappointed when the young minds do not grasp the same points in, or get as much out of, a given subject as they themselves do. Often this was attributed to the indifference of the pupil, but in the majority of cases it was due to the lack of development of the child's mind to the point where he could thoroughly appreciate the subject in hand. It was in composition particularly that the minds of the children were being dealt with, constituting a privilege and obligation sometimes overlooked.

Stories being told by the teacher (who should pay every attention to voice and gestulation and then reproduced by the pupils, were splendid means of treating certain branches of the subject. Some might characterize this as parrot like tuition, but this was far from the case. The children were merely being taught by example of expressing himself. Having the pupils tell their experiences before the class was another beneficial method. This tended to do away with self-consciousness in the youngsters, which fault was sometimes rather noticeable in the students of the higher grades. At first the child should be taught to tell his story as a whole, but as soon as he can grasp the significance of the word paragraph he should be taught to group his thoughts correctly.

By the time the child is ready for the Junior Third he should have been taught the various rules needed in the writing of a composition, for example: the use of capital letters, punctuation marks, and paragraph structure. These rules were best taught by the inductive method, through having examples on the blackboard and working out the governing rules from there. These rules should be re-taught in the higher grades, and the pupil should never be allowed to lost sight of them.

Kuttaidge gives the following classification of composition: narrative, descriptive, explanative and argumentative.

It was not always easy to get an interesting topic for composition work. Oft times splendid subjects were to be discovered by the questioning of the pupils to see what was uppermost in their minds. Gradually the system of planning a composition should be introduced. As soon as the pupils can plan their own compositions scope is given for originality and a great deal of variety comes into the work. In composition—particularly narrative composition—the imagination of the child was given an opportunity to show and develop.

Descriptive compositions were the most difficult to write, and the consequence was that often the results in this department were more than in most others. The descriptive side should be developed until the pupils could combine it easily and naturally with the narrative style. Character study was another phase of the work under the general designation of descriptive compositions. It was a very profitable and interesting branch of the work, and worthy of being given considerable time.

Oral compositions in the 3rd and 4th books were advocated in this paper, and in this connection tact must be employed in the criticism or else the youthful speaker would become discomfited and discouraged. The concluding paragraphs of the paper dealt with various means through which the desired results in composition should be attained.

Township of Ennismore Makes a Substantial Contribution to the Red Cross Fund

Ennismore's contribution to the British Red Cross fund will reach at least four hundred dollars. On Sunday last Rev. Father Fitzpatrick spent a half hour explaining the aims and purposes of the fund. As a result eight of the leading men of the Township undertook to inaugurate a house-to-house canvas. While the complete returns are not all in, it is expected that the amount will total at least four hundred dollars. The Township Council, which also took a very active part in the canvas, has intimated its intention of seeing that the amount does not fall below the four hundred mark.

Potatoes $1.35 A Bag On Market To-Day

Farmers boosted potatoes this morning, the price opening at $1.50 a bag and settling down to actual sales at $1.35. This meant a real advance of ten cents over last week. The supply appeared more than sufficient. In this connection the general opinion is that the potato supply is not heavy this year. Those who are selling them are strong in this assertion and other farmers support it. Some who usually grow potatoes for their own table only, state that they are purchasers this year. This condition is reported general and while there is no desire to encourage the upward price movement, it does seem that prices will be generally higher than last year.

Eggs appeared slightly more plentiful, the price ranging from 32 to 36 cents, and butter at 35 cents. Chickens sold all the way from 65 cents to $1.25 a pair; ducks at 65 and 75 cents each, geese at $1.25 to $1.45 each. Lamb was quoted at 14 and 16 cents a pound. Apples were fairly plentiful.

THE WEATHER

Somewhat colder conditions now prevail, the thermometer this morning registering 28 degrees. Hard frosts are late in arriving this fall compared with some years. On Oct. 25th last fall the temperature was down to 19 degrees, and the following day the ground was white with snow, almost half an inch of it on the surface.

THE MEDICAL PROBE CONTINUES

Dr. Stewart Cameron of Peterborough is Attending the Session

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—The Ontario Medical Association had its innings before the Hodgins Medical Commission yesterday at a session held in the Parliament Buildings. While ostensibly the doctors were giving information to the judge, there was enough argument attached to it to make it quite plain that the medical men intended to give no quarter to the osteopaths and chiropractors. They argued that if any person wanted to practice the drugless treatments they should first be compelled to take the medical course in the colleges.

Doctors Were Strong.

The Medical Council is yet to be heard from, but Dr. H. B. Anderson, Dr. A. A. Reeve, Dr. Henry Howitt, Dr. Stewart Cameron, Peterborough; Dr. D. L. Heggie, Brampton; Dr. John Ferguson, Toronto; Dr. Angus Mackinnon, Toronto, and Dr. Chas. Sheard, appeared for the Medical Association and opposed "any change in the present system of admission to practice as a qualified doctor which would degrade the medical profession."

Dr. H. B Anderson thought there should be only one portal of admission to all doctors, no matter what treatment they were practising. The doors of the profession were open to all who complied with the regulations, said he. After the student had graduated from a proper university he could practice what he liked so long as it complied with professional ethics.

Want College Course.

Dr. Chas. Sheard told the commission that the medical profession thought that the public should be considered first and measures taken to protect them from unskilled practitioners who had no proper qualifications to give treatments. He advocated a special board and special curriculum for all students who should be examined and then turned over to a property body.

"If osteopathy can be shown to be a potent and superior treatment we shall not oppose it, but let the men who apply it be qualified by proper training," said Dr. Sheard.

COMING

D. W. Griffith's mighty spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" will be seen at the Grand Opera House exactly as it is being given in New York, Toronto and Montreal, also several other cities where it has made record breaking runs.

This new force in the art of stage entertainment is perhaps the most widely discussed production ever made in America. It is above all else the greatest thing that has been achieved by one producer. Imagine condensing the living details of the most strenuous periods of American history into an evening's entertainment of less than three hours. You are not told about it nor is your imagination tested by rhetorical descriptions of what took place. Instead, you see it by lighting flashes. It is history revived and shown in its making. Some of the greatest names that are written large upon the scroll of our country's fame appear upon the program. The players who enact the roles have studied the minute description of these men both from photographs and intimate life studies and with this framework they make these wonderful characters live again. They pass before your vision in a panorama of achievement. The accomplishment is startling. The entire action ranges over three centuries.

It begins with the importation of the first African slave and ends with the settlement of that question in the freedom of the enslaved. But before this end is reached the mightiest nation in the world passes throes the throes of internecine strife and the high lights of those strugglers are vividly brought out. Great battles are fought before your eyes. Cities are destroyed by fire. Thousands of horsemen dash in wild rides across bloodstained plains. The human note weaves in and through the entire thread and lends itself to the mightiest story ever unfolded.

Ex-Ald Johnston Might Enter

May be an Aspirant For Mayoralty Honours at the Next Election

"I might be," was the somewhat laconic reply that ex-Alderman W. F. Johnston made when asked by the Examiner if he would be a mayoralty candidate at the forthcoming municipal election. While the remark in itself might not imply very much yet the facial expression that accompanied it, contained a depth of meaning. When ex-Alderman Johnston crossed the threshold of nineteen hundred and fifteen, it was in the capacity of aldermanic representative for the north ward. He was also chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, but when the Committees for the year were struck this responsibility fell on other shoulders. Ex-Alderman Johnston remained in the Council for a few months and then re-Council for a few months and then re ing that things were hardly running as harmoniously as he would like. Ex-alderman Johnston has a strong following and should he enter the contest there is reason to believe he will give a good account of himself.

INSPECTION

INSPECTION of the Gillette Safety Razor by mechanical experts and men of judgment shows clearly WHY seven million shavers prefer it.

The thin, flat blade is tempered to a uniform hardness impossible in an ordinary thick-backed razor. As a natural result, it takes an edge unequalled for even keenness.

The curved holder supports the blade close to the shaving edges, preventing all that vibration which makes hollow-ground open blades and other safeties pull and irritate when they strike a stiff beard.

Then there's the adjustable feature, exclusive to the Gillette.

By a simple turn of the wrist you can regulate a Gillette shave to a nicety—light, medium or as close as you like.

The toothed guard ensures safety, and permits such free and rapid strokes that a smooth, clean Gillette shave need take no more than three minutes.

Inspect the Gillette and you'll buy it—and shave in comfort thereafter. Go to it! Your Druggist, Jeweler or Hardware Dealer will gladly parade the Gillette Line before you.

Farmer Had to Pay Recruit's Back Wages

When John James, a recent recruit from the country, enlisted, he was a trifle previous in his departure, according to the North Monaghan farmer, who claimed that James had two more weeks to serve on the farm. Accordingly, he was holding back $21, and bluffing that he would keep it unless the soldier returned for those two weeks. County Constable A. Moore took a trip to Monaghan and enlightened the farmer that he could not retain the wages of a recruit. The money was accordingly handed over to James to-day, and the incident cost the employer a few dollars.

Eggs Will Demand Higher Prices

Scarcity of the New-Laid Product Responsible For Tightening of the Market

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs, appears in Canadian Grocer this week:

Eggs are going up. The situation is getting tighter and tighter every day, as it usually does towards this time of the year, and the market on new-laids is up from last week. Not only is this so, but the quality of new-laids which are now coming is not at all good. The tendency on the part of some producers about this time is to hold back new-laids for higher prices and ship in a lot of eggs that will not grade. These are no doubt good eggs, but they would not grade as strictly fresh and the scarcity of strictly new-laid eggs is responsible for the tightening of the market price. In addition to this the storage situation is extraordinarily sound, and there is a big export going on to Great Britain at present. Moreover, the surplus in the States was diminished by 50 p.c. last month and some people who ought to know, figure that by the end of October there will not be any eggs left. The exact number of cases consumed last month was 300,000. If by the end of this month what is forecast actually happens, then the situation will be considerably firmer. It has to be remembered that storage eggs began to sell rather later this year than before, but already the situation is distinctly strong. So now it looks as if we are going to have higher levels for eggs and those in the very near future.

Once more we have to record an advance in the price of cheese on some markets, and this again is due to the large amount which is being exported to England. A gentleman who is well posted on these matters and who has now just returned from England, says that stocks in Liverpool have never been as light and that the demand coming over to Canada is enormous. We are none too well supplied and the big export of cheese is making prices for domestic buyers distinctly higher than they would be ordinarily. Butter is firm, too, though dairy is plentiful now that people prefer to keep stocks at home rather than send to the creamery or cheese factory. There is not as much creamery coming, but more dairy. Nevertheless, this will not make the situation any more easy, as there is a big demand, and what is coming is not an too much at that.

The Potato Market.

Once again the potato market is higher, and apparently we are going to see stiff prices on potatoes this year. It will be remembered that we were let down lightly last year, following a year of high levels in 1913. The changeable weather,—rather than the bad weather—of this year, has affected the potato crop and has inflicted a sort of rot which seems to have gone right through. This applies not only to Ontario, but also to Delaware, and in addition to the actual scarcity of crops, there is so much damaged that prices are going to be distinctly high.

The vagaries of the wheat market it not been that suddenly the wheat dropped again by 3 or 4c. Just as we go to press, however, it has stiffened again by about that amount and it would not be surprising if, before our next issue is out, Manitoba and Ontario Winter wheat flour are both higher. There is a big demand from England for Ontario Winter wheat flour at his writing. The flour situation has become much firmer because many people have held off in their demand, thinking they would see lower prices. This demand has now come, and in the aggregate it must be a big one. The result is that flour may advance very shortly, that is if the wheat market continues to be as strong as it is to-day.

Sugar has advanced 20 cents in British Columbia and Alberta, but up to present, Eastern refiners are holding off in face of a firmer raw situation.

MILLBROOK NOTES

Miss Etta Kemp, of Peterborough, was a guest of the Misses Lila and Stella Pethick, Millbrook, last Sunday.

The anniversary services held in the Millbrook Methodist Church last Sunday were largely attended. Rev. Professor Greaves, of Victoria University, Toronto, preached eloquent sermons. Miss Etta Kemp, of Peterborough, sang solos in her usual excellent voice, both morning and evening. Miss H. Loch sang the solo part in the anthem. Everyone present was delighted with the services.

Botha Has A Safe Majority

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Oct. 23.—The followers of the Premier, General Louis Botha, and the Unionists who are supporting the Premier, are assured of a safe majority in the House of Assembly of the Union of South Africa.

The Nationalists, who opposed the military operations against German South-west Africa, and are attempting to defeat the plan to despatch a contingent of the Union forces to Europe, thus far have obtained only 21 seats, mostly in the Free State. Their victories there were expected, as sentiment in that State is largely in favour of General Hertzog, one of the Premier's most bitter opponents. He is regarded as the most influential Boer general, although in the uprising of last year he placed his services at the disposal of General Botha.

Contests for 42 seats are still undecided. Returns from the Rural districts, however, are overwhelmingly in favour of the Premier. At Citenhage Prof. Hes Fremantle, a lieutenant of General Hertzog, was defeated by 1,646 to 1,081. At Paarl, a Dutch centre, former Premier Morriam, of Cape Colony, a supporter of General Botha, was elected by a majority of two to one. At Los-Berg the Premier got 1,451 votes against 709.

Returns from the Free State indicate that the Nationalists have won all but one of the 17 seats.

she told him when she handed him his patriotic mittens: He must always show his colours. In the man's heart, the boy's reverence for all propriate and suggestive pictures hu most in his mind when he recalled his early lesson. He was ashamed to do a questionable thing.

Again, patriotism may be silently and powerfully taught by having appropriate and suggestive pictures hung on the walls. National holidays, too, memorial days and decoration days may be freely used to implant ideas of genuine patriotism into the natures of our children.

Have the parents and friends of the children come to the school occasionally and in recitations and patriotic speeches, and in song, deepen their spirit of fervency and zeal and loyalty.

I doubt, after all, if there is anything better from an emotional standpoint in teaching patriotism than in singing it. The human voice is wonderful in its influence. The sound of the human voice, especially in uttering musical sounds, has a most peculiar and mysterious influence, not only over the human, but the brute creation. It softens human nature, helps to quicken the intellect, elevates human life, and brings mankind into closer relationship and harmony with the laws of the great universe of which he is a part.

Let us now consider shortly the teaching of the knowledge side of patriotism. Education should by all means, include character formation. On the first day and on the last day, and on every day between some principle of practical ethics should be inculcated, obedience and courage, honour and courtesy, honesty and charity, truthfulness and justice, self control and self-denial, attention, industry, self-respect, patient labour. These are the prime elements of a fine manhood and womanhood, and it takes every one of them to make a patriotic citizen.

Local Patriotism.

Here some community civics should be inculcated. The beauty of a community as a whole depends in a large measure upon the care which every individual, young or old, takes not to litter the streets and parks with paper and other refuse, to deface walls and fences, to injure plants and trees, to trample newly-seeded lawns. Children have been and can be a large factor in the work of neighbourhood beautification. Teach them to co-operate in everything that is beneficial to their home, to their school, to their community at large and of which they are the future citizens.

Reference to Example.

In the history of our country we meet with the very finest topics for the inculcation of lofty patriotism. Nowhere is found such loyalty as was shown by the United Empire Loyalists who gave up their homes, farms, companionship and wealth, and took their wives and little ones into an undeveloped and almost unknown land, because in Canada they would have their own loved British institutions and live under their old Union Jack. And in the history yet unwritten will be immortally penned the patriotic heroism of the brave Belgians, who staunchly sacrificed their all to duty's call in the noble defence of their country and the sacred ties of Christian citizenship.

We see the aged with their snow-white hair,
And their life course nearly run,
And the tender, laughing little ones
Whose race had just begun,
Taking a farewell look at their Own home sweet home.

Memorize Patriotic Verse.

The patriotic gems of literature should be studied and the best of them memorized. These will broaden the pupils' view of patriotism and show them that in all lands and times love of country has been regarded among the worthiest emotions of the human heart.

Above all, and through all, let us exalt and inculcate a sacred devotion to the fundamental principle of local self government, so that the youth, knowing its value, shall have the courage to preserve this priceless bequest of centuries of struggle, the inheritance we hold in common with all English speaking people, the keystone in the arch of freedom.

Teaching patriotism, in whatever way, means training and inspiring youth to live most worthily to shape their lives after the models of humanity's noblest and truest, to develop their highest individual powers, and lock in their hearts the sublime word—Duty.

King Calls Upon His People To Come Foward For Britain

LONDON, Oct. 23.—King George has issued an appeal to his subjects to come forward voluntarily and aid Great Britain in her fight against the Germanic allies. The message follows:

"To my people: At this grave moment in the struggle between my people and a highly organized enemy, who has transgressed the laws of nations and changed the ordnance that binds civilized Europe together, I appeal to you.

"I rejoice in my Empire's effort, and I feel pride in the voluntary response from my subjects all over the world, who have sacrificed home and fortune and life itself in order that another may not inherit the free Empire which their ancestors and mine have built. I ask you to make good these sacrifices.

"The end is not in sight. More men and yet more, are wanted to keep my armies in the field, and through them to secure victory and an enduring peace. In ancient days the darkest moment has ever produced in men of our race the sternest resolve. I ask you, men of all classes, to come forward voluntarily and take your share in these fights.

"In freely responding to my appeal you will be giving your support to our brothers who for long months have nobly upheld Great Britain's past traditions and the glory of her arms."

CENSORS WHO DELETED BRITISH POETS MUST CULTIVATE MUSE.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The British censor's antipathy to poetry, as evidenced recently by deletions of lines of Kipling and Browning when quoted in despatches from the front, was gravely considered in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, when Ronald McNeill, author and Unionist Member of Parliament for St. Augustine's Division of Kent, asked Sir John A. Simon, Secretary for Home Affairs, what poets could be quoted with impunity.

Sir John explained that the difficulty lay not in a military objection to poetry, but to the censor's failure to recognize the same. The

THE WORLD OF SPORT

SPORT NEWS IN BRIEF

Pat Moran thinks a lot of his big chief, Alexander. "There never was a better loser than Alexander," says Moran. "Most pitchers sulk when they lose, and if it happens to be the fault of their team mates they howl like a wounded sea lion. But Alexander is different. After a defeat he's just as good-natured as after a victory. If the boys bobble away a game behind him Alex never says a word. If the boys come up and start to tell him how sorry they are he just laughs and tells them to forget it and that such things are part of the game."

"You may talk about your greatest pitchers," said Gavvy Cravath in a discussion of slabmen, "but I will tell you of one who never was classed as a great pitcher, but he was the greatest and the worst that ever pitched to me. He was Charley Smith, a big, lanky chap with the Cubs two years ago. I could hit most any of them once in a while, but off that big fellow I could hardly average two foul tips a game."

George Lowe, the professional golfer of the Baltusrol links, was approached by the wife of a man who was about to purchase about fifteen golf clubs from Lowe. "Mr. Lowe," she said. "I don't mind if my husband gives all his spare time to golf. I have no objections if he spends a certain portion of the family funds in the purchase of golf balls, but please, Mr. Lowe, don't sell him any more golf clubs. If you do you are only inviting trouble for yourself. He has 187 clubs cluttering up the house now, and if he buys any more I won't have place to put my hats."

Mike Kehoe of Cincinnati the Boston Braves' scout, says that promising ball players are harder to find this year than ever before. Most of the players who eventually prove best after getting to the big league clubs come from the little minor league teams, and there are a lot of minor leagues—twenty-three or twenty-four of them—that are out of business this year. This makes the supply of material for the inspection of the scouts limited, and there are really very few players in sight worth considering for the big league.

Pauline Siebenthal, a student in the junior class of Indiana University, broke the world's record for woman's pole vaulting recently. At a meet of Bloomington she broke the record for girls for vaulting 6 feet 1 inch, excelling the best record by 5 inches. When Miss Siebenthal first vaulted for height she cleared the bar at 5 feet 6 inches.

Coach "Speedy" Rush, the new tutor of the Princeton football eleven this year, is nothing of not original. One of the many new methods introduced in Princeton football training by Rush has been discovered by a visitor to the new field house at the Palmer Memorial Stadium. In the dressing room of the football players hangs a big placard, headed "Things to remember." It includes bits of advice on how to tackle and how to carry the ball. At the top of this sign are two significant lines: "Harvard, 20; Princeton, 0. Yale, 19; Princeton, 14."

Norman Tabor, who ran a mile in 4.12 3-5, breaking the professional and amateur records, gives this advice upon training: "If you would make a success of anything, concentration and stick-to-itiveness are necessary. I doubt if I could have gained my ambition of breaking the world's record for the mile had I not devoted much time to training. To be a mile runner one must realize that he can not go out on a track and run the distance without some preparation."

Poor old Hans Wagner may be entering his forty-second year, but for faithfulness and a consideration for his employers and the public he shows up the modern stars. Believing that the club's full strength and representation should be shown all the time, Honus never misses an exhibition game away from home. He cares not whether he is playing in a handbox park before 300 fans or whether he is snaring them on or slamming 'em out in the Polo Grounds before multitudes. He gives them all his best though he is reaching 42.

Fred Clarke's mother still chides him about the evils of baseball, and prefers to link it with gambling and horse racing. As a boy Fred found the job of painting a monotony, particularly when the people of Carroll, Iowa, wanted to pay him $40 a month to play ball. At the age of 19 he ran away from home and took the job. With $40 a month for playing Saturdays and Sundays, and $3 a day for painting on other days, the youngster amassed a little bank roll by the close of the season. Fred protested that baseball was a legitimate profession, with great earning powers. Even now "Ma" Clarke shakes her head and will not admit that baseball is a good thing for the boys.

THREE-CORNERED DEAL IN PROSPECT

Frank Baker to Yanks, Fritz Maisel to Red Sox, and Larry Gardner to Athletics

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Close on the heels of a dying season, the hot stove leaguers have begun their annual bombardment. Hints and rumours of big deals in baseball live stock, impossible of confirmation, but of sufficient size to merit attention, were flying thick and fast in baseball circles here.

One which gained more credence than others was that of a three-cornered deal in which the Red Sox, Athletics, and Yankees will figure. It involves Frank Baker going to the Yanks, Fritz Maisel to the Red Sox, and Larry Gardner to the Macmen. Cash, of course, figures in the switch.

Several things gave an air of authenticity to the rumblings, one of which is the fairly well-known fact that Bill Carrigan would like to have a new man on third next year in place of Gardner, who is a veteran and is slowing up, as shown by his work in the big series. Another is the relentless manner in which the Yankee owners have been endeavouring to get Baker's name to a New York contract. The Yank owners already are known to have offered $25,000 for the "home run" king during the playing season. The deal, it appears, would be beneficial all around. Connie Mack is in sore need of a third baseman, and Gardner's acquisition would steady Mack's youngsters. The addition of Baker would certainly make the Yanks more popular with Gotham fans, and Maisel would plug, temporarily at least, one gaping hole in the Boston infield.

Fred Snodgrass, former Giant outfielder, and now member of the Boston Braves, will manage the Vernon club in the Coast League next season, according to a well founded report.

Al Shrubb, coach of the Harvard cross-country team, expects the Crimson to have one of her strongest squads this year. No less than seventy-five candidates are reporting daily for the team. While there are no stars in the bunch, Shrubb will follow the Mackley plan of trying to develop a team of consistent performers, instead of relying upon individual performers.

Foster Delighted The "Home Folks"

When the news of the victory of the Red Sox in the second game of the world's series was telegraphed to Bananza and Bokoshe, Okla., both towns declared a holiday. George Foster, Boston's pitcher had fulfilled the predictions of the "home town boys" that he would be a great pitcher some day. When when Foster's admirers learned that he was going to do the twirling, business in both places ended abruptly so that the baseball enthusiasts could discuss the probable outcome of the contest. No one in either town could see how the Red Sox had a chance of losing with Foster in the box. At Bonanza the returns of the game were received at the company store. A drug store proprietor "bulletined" the game for the crowd at Bokoshe. When news of the Boston victory was flashed over the wires a telegram of congratulation bearing the name of more than a hundred enthusiastic admirers, was sent to Foster.

Foster and Tom Wilson, now playing for Galveston in the Texas State League broke into the game together as a reversible battery. Foster pitching one day and Wilson catching, and vice versa. In 1911 they joined an independent team at Stigler, Okla, exchanging positions every day. The Muskogee (Okla.) team of the Western Association stopped off at Stigler for an exhibition game, and Manager Lon Ury decided to hire the "reversible battery." The association failed before the schedule had been completed and Foster and Wilson, with Pitcher Jim Sewell were sold to the St. Louis Browns. They remained with St. Louis until the season closed. In 1912 Foster and Wilson went to Houston on the Texas League, and helped that team to win the league pennant.

Foster was then sold to Boston for $5000

Another Yankee Pitcher Signs

The Yankees yesterday received the signed contract of Bert Shocker, a right hand pitcher, who was drafted by the New York Club from Ottawa, of the Canadian League. He has made a great record during the past season in the Dominion League. His most recent feat was to strike out nineteen men in a game against the All-Leaguers at Milford, Penn., on September 29th. Pitching for the Redford team he allowed only four hits, and the contest was won by a score of 4 to 1, due to his excellent work. During the past season Shocker pitched a total of 303 innings. His opponents scored 96 runs and made 186 hits. He gave 48 bases on balls and struck out 186 men. He won 19 games and lost 10. Shocker also proved himself a success as an outfielder, taking part in 24 games. He had a fielding average of .924, and his batting average in the 54 games in which he participated as a pitcher was .277. Shocker is 24 years old. During 1914 he was with the Windsor Club, and with Fort Wayne and Ottawa during the season of 1914.

AUSTRALIAN ATHLETES KILLED IN BATTLE

Most of Australia's crack swimmers have enlisted in Britain's army. Beaurepaire, Healey, Longworth, Boardman, Adrian and Fox are all soldiers. Some of these men were competitors in the Olympic games at Stockholm, and were pitted against Kahanamoku in Sydney less than eight months ago. McEvilley, not long ago, a winner of the Diamond Sculls at Henley, has also enlisted.

In Rugby football ranks the loss in battle of international and Australian players has been heavy. D. R. Bedell-Sivright, one of the greatest of forwards, has been killed in action. "Darkie" Bedell-Sivright captained a British team that toured Australia and New Zealand in 1904. He played for the Scottish international team against England, Ireland, Wales, New Zealand and South Africa, wearing the thistle of Scotland for nine consecutive years. Before that he had played for both Cambridge and Edinburgh Universities.

Blair I. Swannell, Major in the Australian force, which first reached the Gallipoli peninsula, and Harold George, another member of the same unit, were killed in battle recently. Swannell was a player of wonderful dash and skill and had been a member of Sivright's team. George was well known among Rugby players in California. A few days later Fred Thompson, another internationalist, was also killed on the Gallipoli. Dr. Bryan A. C. Pockley of Sydney, the first Australasian to die on the expedition against the Germans in German New Guinea, was a Rugby player. Other players killed in action were: A. Downing of the famous "All Blacks" of New Zealand, T. M. Grace, a New Zealand forward of the Maori; H. L. Rodgers, who was a member of Bedell-Sivright's team that visited Australia in 1904, Ronald Poulton of England, one of the best three-quarters; Basil MacGear, an Irish player, and Kenneth McLeod of Scotland, who almost gave his team victory over the "All-Blacks" in 1905.

More equipment for the local recruits is expected in a day or two. At present a large number are in civilian garb, while only a little over a third of the men have great coats. The parade state of the local company this morning was 272.

Since August 1st nearly 500 men have enlisted in Peterborough, a total of over 1300 since war broke out.

The Examiner is frequently asked to supply the addresses of all the Peterborough soldiers at the front. This is a rather large order, in fact an impossible one, especially as so many of Peterborough's soldiers have been drafted from their original regiments into other units. For instance several drafts were taken from the 8th C.M.R. and are now in different regiments of the first and second mounted brigades. Other Peterborough men who left with the 39th Battalion are being drafted into different first contingent regiments. Only the relatives of these men know their addresses. In the interests of the various patriotic societies who wish to send gifts to the Peterborough men, a list would be of great use. The Red Cross headquarters are at the Public Library, and if the relatives would leave the names and addresses of their soldier friends a complete list could easily be obtained.

The Peterborough battalion band will give a concert in Lakefield on Friday night next in aid of the band fund. Master Percy Luther will accompany the band and take part in the programme.

The sporting editor of the Examiner has received a letter from Driver Morris Montgomery of the Divisional Ammunition Column, Second Canadian Contingent, at the front in France. Driver Montgomery will be remembered as a contestant in the Examiner Lakefield to Peterborough road race for several years. In his letter he mentions meeting Hankin Howard the Hiawatha Indian, who ran against him here in the Examiner race. Howard is at the front with the 21st Battalion. Driver Montgomery has three brothers in the Canadian contingents, two of them enlisting in Peterborough.

FRENCH WINE TRAPS GERMANS

Three Thousand Who Became Hopelessly Intoxicated After Pillaging Cellar Slain by Artillery Fire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—"Even the wines of France are fighting against the invaders," said Mr. Aston Knight, painter, yesterday, in telling of some experiences in the zone of operations of the Marne battles. He related the experience of a friend, a wine grower at La Fere Champenoise, with the Germans.

Mr. Knight's friend, who is an officer of reserve in the French army, told his steward that when the Germans came he should open all the doors of his establishment to them. In one corner of his cellar he carefully had walled up the best vintage wines. Then in another corner he placed a great number of bottles of very inferior wine, and walled that up carelessly. He hoped the Germans would think there was valuable wine there, and, breaking down the wall, look no further. The main part of his cellars he kept as usual.

"Only tell me," he said, "where the Germans go when they have got through with the cellars."

The Germans came, entered the cellars, and began pillaging them. They took what they saw, hundreds of bottles, with out looking further, and left. The steward managed to get word to the owner, who, knowing the country, informed the nearest artillery commander that he could probably get results by shelling a certain patch of woods near by.

The woods were bombarded for an hour with shrapnel. Two days later, when the French retook La Fere Champenoise, they found in the woods the bodies of more than three thousand Germans, surrounded with the debris of the wine bottles. The vinter had been correct in his guess; the Germans had retired to the woods for a drinking bout and the French guns had caught them when they were helplessly intoxicated.

Archangel Fights Ice

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Russia is making a desperate effort to prolong her connection with the outside world through the port of Archangel, as it is probable that munitions can be taken into the empire only by way of Vladivostok, when the port of Archangel is closed by ice. The British have sent to Archangel, according to a report from Consul General Baker, at Petrograd, two large ice breakers, the Canada and the Lintrose, and several more are being built in England with the hope of keeping the port free from ice until the latter part of January.

Ice is forming there now and usually by December the port is closed against all ocean steamships. It is expected that during the latter part of the year steamships will be allowed to freeze in. They will unload their cargoes on the ice and then be broken out and have a chance to get away. From January to March it is conceded it will be impossible to keep Archangel open.

Work on the railway across the Murman peninsula is being pushed to take care of cargoes that will be piled up at Archangel during the next three months. Great quantities of goods are now lying there, outdoors, and likely to suffer waste and injury during the winter.

"Archangel," says Consul General Baker, "has become one of the most important wheat exporting ports of the world, and apparently much of the wheat formerly exported from Black Sea or Baltic ports is now shipped from there. Comparatively small and unimportant cargoes have arrived from England, but extremely important and full cargoes, including especially eggs, butter and flax, go to England, while ships from the United States arrive with full cargoes, but return practically in ballast, because most articles that Russia ordinarily exports to the United States, are now embargoed from exportation, except to the allied nations."

Uneasiness and Anxiety Among The German Troops Behind The Belgian Lines, Says Report

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 22.—There is ferment, uneasiness and anxiety among the German troops behind the lines in Belgium. This atmosphere has spread to the frontier, where the guards on duty are in a mood of depression, which they make no effort to hide. Reports of huge captures of French and British prisoners, purposely disseminated from the German Headquarters with a view to stopping the rot that has set in, are no longer believed. Appearances and recent events believe them in an unmistakable manner.

The soldiers have been told, for instance, that the bombardments of the Belgian coast by British warships resulted only in a small number of civilians being killed. And when they see hundreds of wounded marines arriving in Bruges, evidence that gives the lie direct to the "official" news which reaches them. All is going well, they are assured. How is it, then, they ask, that Belgium has been in the firing-line, scraped of every spare man for duty, that the garrisons in the towns and villages are denuded, that frontier work is being forced on soldiers who, though only lightly wounded, ought still to be in hospital?

"Where are the Reliefs?"

Yesterday there were men who had been on duty continuously for three days and three nights. This was the case at several points on the border. "Where are the reliefs?" ask these soldiers, who no longer attempt to hide their dissatisfaction. They know well the reason. They are perfectly aware that the comrades assigned to take their places were rushed to the front to try to stem the Allies' advance. Practically all the frontier posts are now composed of men belonging to detachments who a few days ago had just been relieved from the trenches, but were robbed on Sunday of their expected rest, and instead made to do what some of them have openly described as forced service.

This is only one minor bit of evidence of a fact well known all over Belgium, that a state of something approaching demoralization has set in among the German troops. Be it understood that the Allies' victories, not only in Flanders, but also in Champagne, are a matter of full knowledge among the Belgian population. The Germans may try their hardest to cut off the unhappy country from the outside world, but they have never been able to prevent good news from reaching Brussels and every other large centre, from whence it penetrates even to the remote villages.

The Belgian people to-day were never so hopeful and optimistic. A thrill of joy has passed through the country, and they are already looking forward to an early day of release from their bondage.

SEES SOCIALIST DIVISION.

German Deputy Says International Organization Will Change.

BERLIN, Oct. 22—"Dr. Karl Wilhelm Folfgang Heine, Social-Democratic member of the Reichstag, has an article in a current Social monthly magazine," says the Overseas News Agency, "in which he declares that an international Socialist organization after the war is a possibility, but under different conditions.

"Since certain German Socialists in the international body do not want Germany any longer to defend her national existence," says Dr. Heine, "new men must be elected who are convinced that the tasks of the international body can only be performed by men who are as strong and self-confident as the nations they represent."

ALLIES' BIG CEREAL CROPS

Unprecedented Yield of Wheat Reported in Canada and Italy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The food supply for the Allies, so far as cereals are concerned, is fully assured for this year. Official reports received here show that with the exception o France, all the allied countries have produced very large quantities of wheat, rye, oats, and barley. The British colonies have increased their output of wheat and other cereals by a very large percentage. Canada's crop of wheat is unprecedented. The total for the Dominion is 168,624,000 bushels, which is a third larger than the best crop hitherto known.

So large is this yield that the congestion of lake grain traffic is already giving shippers concern, and only the most cautious management of elevators and shipping facilities can be expected to move the crop by water before the close of navigation. New South Wales, after a very light crop last year, owing to drouth, is fortunate this year with a much larger acreage and a good season. This year's crop, it is estimated, will amount to anywhere from 52,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels. The largest crop there heretofore was 38,020,581 bushels, in 1913. There was a large increase of acreage this year in response to the offer by the Australian Government of a guaranteed price of 4 shillings, or 97 cents a bushel for all wheat grown on new land. Many thousands of acres of pasture land were ploughed and put into wheat.

Italy has this year produced the largest crops of wheat, barley, and rye ever known in that country, the wheat crop running up to 88,740,000 bushels. India and Persia have this year increased their yields of wheat, and Persia will export a greater amount than ever before. It is doubtful, however, if this wheat will go to the market of any of the Allies, owing to the turn the war has taken in the Balkans. No interruption of the movement of the crop of India, by way of Suez, has been reported, but concern is felt for the effect of military operations in Serbia on the possible shipment of grain from the Orient.

Cases For The County Court

Couple of Non-Jury Cases Will be Heard Next Week—Story of a Promissory Note

On Monday an action brought by James Haggis and Bill Coros, trading under the name of Haggis & Coros, against Gus Boukydis, confectioner, Toronto, will be heard before His Honour Judge Huycke. The plaintiffs are suing to obtain $256.15, the amount of a promissory note, with interest and protest charges added. The note was made out in favour of plaintiff on March 8th, 1915, for $250, payable in two months. It was defaulted, so it is stated, and now plaintiffs will endeavour to obtain payment for the amount owing.

Claim For $215.

Another case is an action entered by Alderman G. Walter Green against Messrs. A. Mathison, Chas. Dewey and Wm. Mathison of the township of Belmont, the claim being for $215 and $30 extra for costs.

Plaintiffs in their claim allege that machinery and service were sold to defendants to the amount of $320, of which amount $215 is still unpaid.

A counter claim entered by Mr. Wm. Mathison states that the action is unfounded, that in the transaction he became responsible for only one-third of the purchase price, and in the matter of repair service rendered by plaintiff, he (defendant) acted only as a communicating agent with the plaintiff, stating willingness of the co-defendants to purchase the goods and services.

This case will be heard on Wednesday.

Growing Shortage Of Foood Causes Much Suffering

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—In spite of the official assurance of the German Government that it is able to cope with all problems growing out of a shortage of food supplies, neutral travellers returning from Germany declare that the food crisis in Germany is most serious, and that while the Kaiser's armies are fighting the leading powers of Europe, the Germans at home are experiencing very bitter suffering as a result of the ever-increasing price of food products. The shortage in necessary articles of diet is acutely felt, according to these travellers, throughout the empire, and riots of grave proportions are occurring in the leading cities.

These statements are borne out by the German newspapers, which have been permitted to publish accounts of the scenes in the markets. Some of these newspaper accounts are forwarded by the newspaper's correspondent in the following despatch:

Wait for Hours for a Scrap of Meat.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The Berlin Vorwaerts, the leading organ of the Socialist party, says:

"It is no exaggeration to say that in Berlin thousands of persons are battling daily for a small quantity of meat and lard. The battle is none the less intense because it is not fought with weapons or even hard words. It is a battle when persons are compelled to expend time and strength all through the damp, cold autumn night waiting for a scrap of meat. Let what happens to the thousands who day by day wait outside the shops in the municipal centre for the sale of meat and fat? Masses of people crush together long before the opening hours of these places in their eagerness. As soon as the markets are opened they nearly tear the clothes off one another's backs in order to get the coveted treasure. The rush at the corner of Eldena and Thaer Streets is tremendous. Here the municipality sells lard, frozen meats and fresh mutton. Numerous women, though repeatedly knocked down and injured, wait for hours. Thousands of would-be purchasers, mostly women, remain, some fainting with fatigue, during the whole night, braving the cold and drenching showers. On the afternoon of Wednesday numerous women assembled in front of the places in order to be in good time when they opened Thursday morning, but they were driven away by the police, and were not allowed to assemble again until evening. There were hundreds supplied with stools and hassocks, which they placed along the walls. Here they waited the livelong night in the open, in the autumn showers.

"The booths were opened and the sale went on until ten o'clock. The police let the people through the barriers in batches. At 9:30 there are about a hundred persons in the booths.

"No one is allowed in after these have been served. About a thousand still remained outside. These unfortunates had waited in vain all night in the street.

"As we entered the crowd was hearing the complaints of these. Numerous women surrounded us and told us that for three or four nights they had been waiting patiently for the doors to open, but could never get forward in time. They had to go home each time with empty baskets. They complained of the unfairness of the methods employed in distributing supplies to favourites.

Women Fall in Fainting Fits.

"In another district in the northern part of Berlin, called the 'Wedding City,' there also have been established selling places for bacon, ham, fat and lard. At one of these the crowds gather early, though they are refused entrance until 8 o'clock. As the hour approaches the crowd swells to great dimensions. Owing to the length of time they are obliged to wait women collapse on the pavement and fall in fainting fits. It really is dangerous to life. When the doors are opened the multitude simply stampede to the stalls where the fats and lard are stored, like a wild mountain torrent. The scenes are most unedifying. Women are crushed against the stands and counters, and others are knocked into the big baskets. The other day it was announced that the sale would take place only at 7 o'clock in the morning. Most of the women in the district did not know of the change, and assembled at the usual afternoon hour. There were hundreds of them. They would not go away, although they were told of the change in the hour, and thought there might be an odd chance of getting something even out of hours. Thus many waited all through the evening and all through the night until the magic hour struck. In half an hour every scrap of bacon and lard had disappeared from the market."

Brought Joy To Belgians

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—The Strassburg Post describes the manner in which the Belgians received the news of the successes won by the Allies on the Western front last month.

"When the first news of the Allies' victory became known a feverish emotion took hold of Brussels," says the Post. "Boys in the streets shouted out the news. The number of German prisoners taken by the French and British was greatly exaggerated.

"With great effrontery the French and Belgian National Anthems were whistled all day in the streets, but on the approach of German patrols there was silence.

"There was general joy at the victory over the 'enemy' among the Belgians. Many rich Belgians from the outskirts of the city went into the capital and ordered champagne. Many of them were accompanied by their women folk, in splendid evening costumes.

"At the corners of the streets, where the German official reports were placarded, there were laughing, unbelieving crowds. Then an enemy aviator appeared above the city. The citizens rushed to the roofs of their houses, thinking it was the hour of their deliverance."

"A Very Gallant Gentleman."

(London Daily Mirror.)

A pretty story of gallantry reached me yesterday. A wounded soldier in a crowded omnibus rose to give up his seat to a lady. "No, thank you," she replied. "I should not like to take your seat if you have been wounded." "Madam," he answered, "I have been wounded three times, and would be wounded a fourth if you didn't take it."

Police Frustrate Big German Plot in States

Horrible Cruelties By Bulgarians Are Reported In Southern Serbia

Bulgars and Serbs Fight to the Death—Serb Defence Against Austro-Germans in North is Disintegrating—Teuton Gains in Serbia Offset by Their Heavy Losses on Russian and Italian Fronts.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Horrible cruelties by Bulgarians in Southern Serbia are described in despatches to-day from Saloniki. Quarter is seldom granted on either, it was stated. Neither Bulgarians nor Serbians expect it, and fight to the death almost invariably. The men seem actuated by personal hatred of one anotehr according to accounts from the fighting zone. Not only, it was asserted, have the Bulgars shown no mercy to their armed enemies, but they were declared to have slaughtered non-combatants wholesale, including old men, women and children: Invaders were reported to be rushing their defences across the Salonika-Nish railway, in expectation of the early northerly advance by the French and British from the former city. It was predicted the Allies would have a hard fight to get through to the Serbians' aid. The Serb defence againsth the Austro-Germans, in the north, latest despatches said, is disintegrating gradually. What the Teuton Allies are gaining in Serbia, however, experts said, is more than offset by their losses on their Russian and Italian fronts. Reports were received of continued Russian advances all along their line, especially against the Austrians in Galicia. The Italian general attacks were said, also to be resulting in brilliant successes not yet very fully described. As the battle is still raging on the western front there have been no important changes in the past few hours.

FRENCH DEFEAT BULGARIANS.

ATHENS, via London, Oct. 25.—The French defeated the Bulgarians Sunday along the front from Ondova to Krivotak, after a 24-hours' battle, according to news from Salonika to-day. The Bulgarians fell back on Rabrovo with heavy losses, the French pursuing. They later occupied Rabrovo with heavy losses. They were still chasing the Bulgarians to-day, it was stated.

Have Killed 1,359 Civilians in Liege and 5,000 in Belgium

LONDON, Oct. 28.— The Germans have killed 1,359 civilians in Liege province and 5,000 throughout Belgium since the war began, the Echo De Belge estimated to-day.

BULGAR LEADER GOES TO PRISON

M. Stambuliwsky Condemned to Life Imprisonment by Military Court.

HE WARNED THE KING.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 23, via Amsterdam and London.—A Bulgarian military court has convicted M. Stambuliwsky, leader of the agrarians, of anti-militaristic propaganda and has sentenced him to imprisonment for life. Two other agrarian deputies, M. Charenkoff and M. Loriskoff, were tried on the same charge. M. Charenkoff was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and M. Loriskoff was acquitted.

"M. Stambuliwsky was one of a number of Bulgarian statesmen who went to King Ferdinand shortly before Bulgaria entered the war and sought to persuade him not to permit the nation to take up arms with Germany and her allies. According to press despatches at the time they used strong words, even suggesting that King Ferdinand's throne would be endangered by such conduct. He is reported to have warned the king that a military alliance with Germany might cost him his head, whereupon the king replied, "Do not trouble about my head. My head is an old one; rather think of your own." M. Stambuliwsky is said to have responded, "My head matters little, sir. I am thinking only of the country."

MISSING SOLDIER IS NOW REPORTED DEAD

HAMILTON, Oct. 25. After waiting for many long weary months for news regarding her husband who was reported missing almost one year ago Mrs. Douglas, of Hillard Street, received word that he was dead. This was learned through a Canadian Associated Press cable. The International Harvester Co. with which concern the soldier was employed, undertook to assist his wife in the search for him. The head office of the firm placed him on the list to be searched for and Mrs. Douglas received word to-day that search yesterday.

Japan Will Assist the Allies on European Continent

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 23.—"Japan will assist on the European continent as soon as necessity exists," said Kakuchi Abe, Japanese consul at Vancouver, who is visiting in Calgary. "Japan can send several hundred thousand of the very best equipped soldiers to Europe when the time arrives that seems needful. The transportation problem is a great one, but it can be solved. When the time comes Japan will be on the job. What Japan will do to help her allies, when the time comes will astound the world," he added.

Russians Deliver Fierce Strokes On German Centre And In Galicia

LONDON, Oct 23.—The Russians, taking advantage of the removal of German troops from other points on the front to reinforce Field Marshal von Hindenburg for his drive at Riga, which seems to have been checked, have been delivering some fierce strokes at the German centre on the Styr and in Galicia. "In all these they have had at least initial successes.

"The latest offensive by the Russians was assumed north of Tarnopol, where the carrying of Austro-German positions gave the Russian soldiers nearly 8,000 prisoners, two howitzers and a number of machine guns. These prisoners, added to those taken near Baranovichi the day before, make a total of over 14,000 Austrians and Germans captured in two days.

"The Germans, on the other hand, claim that their counter-attacks both on the Styr and at Baranovichi were successful, and, according to the Berlin official communication, the Russians made prisoner totalled upwards of 8,000. The Germans admit, however, the loss of six guns on the Styr.

Riga Drive Disappointing.

Frederick Rennet telegraphs from Petrograd to the Daily News as follows: "The Riga region where the Germans have based their latest hope of success, is proving a new source of disappointment to them. The sudden intensity of their operations on the northern end of the line has not taken the Russians unawares. On German prisoners there have been found copies of orders urging them onwards and saying: "If you wish to pass the Winter comfortably and not in trenches filled with snow, but in warm huts, it will be necessary for you to hold the banks of the Dvina. Behind a cover impregnable to the Russians we should be absolutely safe."

"Despite the use of smoke screens, under cover of which the Germans conducted their four attacks on the village of Plakanen, east of Olai and eight miles from the Dvina, they were unable to silence the Russian batteries, which showered shells on the enemy's assaulting columns, compelling them each time to retreat.

"Regarding the success gained in the region of Baranovichi, experts on the staff say that the enemy probably will be compelled to evacuate the whole region, which is very important to them, as it serves as a link between the southern and northern fronts. Further south, by means of counter-attacks near Kolki, the Austro-Germans are endeavouring, at all costs to retain the left bank of the Styr. It is probable, however, that they will be bound to retreat to Kovel in the face of the continuous stubborn pressure of the Russians."

HOW A BRITISH SOLDIER MET DEATH

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The calm heroism with which Englishmen face death at the front is described by Corporal W. Buckland, of the Meerut Division, Indian Expeditionary Force, in a letter to a friend in the South Notts Hussars. He tells how his comrade, by falling over a German trip wire near one of the enemy's listening posts in Flanders, brought a fusilade upon both of them, the comrade being mortally wounded.

"I'm handing in my checks, old man," said the wounded man, as they regained the British lines, "and all the doctors in the world can't save me."

"After I had made him as comfortable as I could, on an old overcoat, and lit a cigarette for him," says Corporal Buckland's letter in the Nottingham Guardian, "he started to talk over the times we had had together in different parts of the world. He did it last long, though.

"Just as the grey dawn was breaking he asked me to lay his rifle by him, and, after I had done so, he pulled me down by his side, and I just managed to hear him say: 'Bill, I'm on the road now. I can hear someone sounding the great challenge. "Halt, who comes there?" With a tremendous effort, he staggered up, and, in a terrible voice, shouted, with almost superhuman strength, 'An Englishman, who did his duty.' Shall I ever forget that scene! The great dawn breaking in the east, and over all an ineffable peace seemed to reign. The only sound to be heard was an aeroplane that was just going over our lines and the drone of its propeller.

"That is how an English soldier meets his death. Similar scenes take place day after day, all along the line, but it is only with this particular incident that I am concerned. I say to Nottingham men who are loath to join, Have you not a single friend who has fallen in this Armageddon? A brother, cousin, or a very dear friend, whose blood calls on you to avenge him? Isn't your conscience shattered with visions of two hundreds of small wooden crosses that be scattered all over France? Are you not afraid that the spirit of your dead brother will rise up and call you 'Coward'?"

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

My boy, Frank, seemed weak chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. So treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

MANY CITIZENS OF U. S. ENLISTED AT HAMILTON.

Military Authorities Have Not Been Instructed Regarding New Battalion.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 25.—Local military officers have not yet received instructions as to the organization of a battalion of former residents of the United States who have made their homes here. Major General Hughes has ordered the organization and instructions should arrive in a few days. It is proposed that this battalion be made up of some but former residents of the United States. At the local recruiting office a large number of United States men have enlisted, though of course they become naturalized British subjects first. This condition will also prevail with the men of the new battalion.

MADE FORTUNE ON WAR STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—Financial circles today were telling of the fortune won by Mark Workman, a local manufacturer, out of Bethlehem Steel, whose meteoric rise on the New York Stock Exchange has been the sensation of the war stock speculation. Mr. Workman bought 500 shares around $50, and to-day the stock is quoted at $600 a share. Mr. Workman has thus so far netted a profit of $275,000.

HEROIC WOMEN TO BE HONOURED

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The military cross with commendation in army orders has been conferred on a long list of heroic women who, as nurses, stayed at their posts, at Compeigne, Senlis and Villers-Cotterets, some during the German occupation and all under fire. Among them are two women belonging to the French aristocracy, Baroness Fain and Countess Pillet-Will.

The Baroness was at Chateau Compeigne when it was occupied by the Germans, and, in the words of an army order, "faced difficulties of every kind with calmness, dignity and firmness, ready for all eventualities and constantly encouraging the staff." The Countess Pillet-Will returned to Compeigne after accompanying British wounded soldiers to Rouen, to find the Germans in occupation, but resumed her duties the moment they left, in spite of the continuous heavy bombardment.

Madame Carrel-Billiard devoted herself unsparingly to the care of the wounded in an annex outside the Rockefeller Institute. Madame De St. Martin "ran about the streets at Senlis in peril of her life, looking for a German doctor to attend the wounded."

The superiors of the convents of St. Joseph and St. Vincent, at Senlis and Compeigne at Compeigne, have been decorated for their courage and their help as nurses.

BIG MEAT SALE TO WAR OFFICE

Canadian Packers Will Supply Huge Amount to Britain.

OPENS NEW MARKET.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—The War Office has accepted tenders from the Canadian packers for six and a quarter million pounds of canned corned beef for delivery before the close of the current year. This is the first large sale of efforts which have been made on behalf of the Canadian packers by Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture.

This contract is of particular importance to Canada, as it will provide a market for a large quantity of the surplus cattle that are now finding their way to the Toronto and Montreal stock yards. The outlet for which the Minister has been striving at least as regard to a considerable proportion of this class of canner cattle has now been found.

Mr. Burrell has not undertaken to purchase the meat for the War Office, but through Sir George Perley, the acting high commissioner, has conveyed to the Imperial Government the tenders of the packers. He has been advised that a reply to the tender of frozen meat can scarcely be expected for some days.

Catch Negro Who Had Stolen Fowls

CLIFTON HEIGHTS, Pa., Oct. 25.—With 10 chickens in his possession, Chief of Police John A. McGowan arrested Samuel Davis, coloured, of Philadelphia, on an early Delaware county line trolley car, at Lansdowne.

In the last two months from 1,500 to 2,000 chickens have been stolen from Lynwood, East Lansdowne, Highland Park, Clifton Heights, Lansdowne and Primos.

A few days ago Davis was in Clifton Heights, where he represented himself as a detective to capture chicken thieves, and he inquired of Harry Craig, Jr., son of a hotel man, how many cops the town had. On Sunday morning the hotelman's chickens were stolen. Chief McGowan a few hours before the robbers had ordered Davis from town.

What Is Your Blood Pressure?

The age of the 40s is a critical period in every person's life. And one of the most common things that make it critical is increased "blood pressure" with its accompanying "hardening of the arteries."

Scientists have fully proven that increased blood pressure is caused by poisonous deposits in the delicate tissues of the arteries. One of the chief agents in this process is caffeine, the poisonous drug in tea and coffee.

"A man is as old as his arteries." life insurance companies say, and the Blood Pressure Test is one of the principal factors nowadays in determining a "risk." How do you stand?

If there is any doubt about tea or coffee hurting you if you have frequent headaches, biliousness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or heart flutter—try a 10 days' change to

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A TRIPLE SCARE

By SADIE OLCOTT

Mrs. Carpenter returned from shopping and rang the bell of her dwelling. The maid who admitted her looked at her surprised.

"What's the matter, Ellen?" asked the mistress.

"La sakes, mum! I thought you'd come in and was upstairs."

Mrs. Carpenter thought nothing of this. The maid went back to the kitchen and the lady went up to her room. Standing before a dresser was Herself!

Mrs. Carpenter put her hand to her forehead, then rested it on the dresser for support. Her double was arranging her to-et, looking at herself in a mirror. On hearing ... one at the door she turned her face ... k, seeing Mrs. Carpenter, exclaimed:

"My ... racious!"

"Who-o are you?" asked Mrs. Carpenter, gasping.

"Who are you?" was the reply.

"I'm Margaret Carpenter."

"So am I."

There was an interval of silence, during which each woman regarded the other with ... ss terror. The woman before the ... last showed signs of fainting.

"Oh, my heavens!" she cried. "Have I lost my mind?"

"Do go away!" begged Mrs. Carpenter.

"Go away yourself. What do you mean by coming into my house, as though you were I? Oh, my! Can it be that"

She looked again at Mrs. Carpenter, then buried her face in her hands. The latter stammered to the head of the stairs, called light to the ... ister, descended and tottered into the kitchen.

"Ellen!" she moaned.

"What is it, mum?" asked the girl, frightened at her mistress' appearance.

"Who is it upstairs?"

"I don't know, mum. You came in ten minutes ago and went to your room, and now you have come in again."

"Then there really is some one there. I'm not gone daft."

"I don't know, mum. I'll go and see."

"Do," moaned the mistress.

Ellen ran upstairs and was back again in a couple of minutes looking much troubled. She was very pale.

"I knew it," cried Mrs. Carpenter. "I've received a stroke. Oh, Ellen!" And she fell back into a chair.

There was a sound of a latchkey in the front door and Mr. Carpenter walked in. He saw the swish of a skirt on the landing above. His wife had fainted in the kitchen, and the maid was trying to keep her head falling to the floor. Mr. Carpenter went upstairs to his wife's room and saw her standing before the dresser. He was surprised to see the blinds closed.

"Why, my dear," he exclaimed, "why shut out the light?"

"I'm afraid I've had something break in my brain."

"Break in your brain? What do you mean?"

"I've seen myself."

"In the mirror, of course."

"No; standing in the doorway where you are now. It's gone."

"Vanished?"

"No; it went downstairs."

"Calm yourself. Some one who resembles you was here."

He approached her, but she drew away. "Go downstairs," she said, "and see if I am there." He stood irresolute for a moment, and she gave him an appealing look. "Steady, my dear." She sank on the lounge. "I'll be back in a moment. You have mistaken some one for yourself."

He ran down the stairs, passed into the living room, then the dining room and, pushing a swinging door, stood in the kitchen. There on a chair, pale as a ghost, supported by the maid, was his wife. She gave him an appealing glance.

"Oh, Henry," she cried, "I'm afraid something awful has happened to me!"

"Great Scott," cried the man, "I'm afraid something awful has happened to me!"

"Has she gone?"

"Are you Margaret or is the woman upstairs Margaret?"

"Then there is really some one there?"

"A woman who looks exactly like you, only the blinds are closed and I couldn't see distinctly."

An explanation occurred simultaneously to both Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter righted herself. The front door was heard to close. Mr. Carpenter ran into the hall and opened the door just in time to see the swish of a skirt around the corner. He stood thinking, then ran upstairs into his wife's room and opened a tin box in which his wife kept her jewels. It was empty. Going to the landing, he called:

"Margaret, come up here."

Mrs. Carpenter, considering the fright she had been under, went upstairs and into her room with remarkable rapidity. There stood her husband with her empty jewel box in his hands.

"You've been fooled," he said.

"How—where—what?"

"Some woman resembling you has scared you out of your wits and taken your jewels."

"The horrid thing!"

The police were put on the case and the woman was arrested, but the jewels were not recovered. The thief had seen Mrs. Carpenter and, struck with the likeness to herself, had resolved to play a game for some plunder. And she played it well.

PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS MEAN BAD BLOOD.

People who have impure or impoverished blood should be careful to take only a vegetable remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is and has been for over 40 years.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulations begin to separate in the blood and are then expelled through the Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin means that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne and all skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache and constipation.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to-day at any medicine dealers; it is a powerful blood purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

Contains neither alcohol nor narcotics. Its ingredients are made public and printed on wrapper.

Depend upon this grand remedy to give you the kind of blood that makes the skin clear, the mind alert, the vision keener and puts ambition and energy into the entire body. You will not be disappointed. For free advice write Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHAT ONTARIO FOLKS SAY.

St. Thomas, Ont.—"My husband and myself have used 'Golden Medical Discovery' for liver and kidney troubles, also for bad blood, and we found it good. I am glad of the opportunity of giving testimony in behalf of Dr. Pierce's remedies."—Mrs. George Burdett, 28 Chester St., St. Thomas, Ont.

The General Says:—

"There are some very good reasons why my business is bigger each year than it was the year before."

Some years ago asphalt roofing was sold at high prices because the volume was small and facilities were limited.

When the General entered the field he broke up the high price combine by taking advantage of all possible manufacturing economies, thereby reducing production costs to the minimum and at the same time making a roofing of unexcelled quality.

Eventually the General became recognized as the leader of the entire field, and today the best known and largest used brand in the world is

Certain-teed Roofing

The General's big success brought about an attempt by others to imitate his policies and prices, but they didn't have the General's wonderful facilities, nor his big organization, and it was an economic impossibility for them to equal the General's quality and price. Consequently with the reduction in price there was a big reduction in quality, and these lower quality roofings began to be sold under labels that had formerly been used on better goods.

Today the market is flooded with low quality roofings, made to sell at cheap prices without regard to the service they will give.

When you roof your building with Certain-teed you have a responsible manufacturer's guarantee of 5, 10, or 15 years according to whether the thickness is 1, 2, or 3-ply respectively. This is your advance assurance that Certain-teed will give you at least a definite guaranteed service. Beware of guarantees without responsibility behind them.

Certain-teed products are used and well known the world over. Consult your local lumber and hardware dealers. They will quote you reasonable prices.

London's Lord Mayor Has Dinner Record

Sir Charles Johnston, who retires from office as Lord Mayor of London, on November 9, is the first of the 726 men who have held that office who can boast that he has not given or attended a single public dinner during the whole year of his incumbency. "That, of course, is due to the war," he explains, "for the war has changed all our preconceived notions of what a London mayoralty means. We have been a serious people the past year, with no time for ceremonials, and an eye single to the grim business before us. Those who know my horror of speech-making tell me with a smile that I could not have had a more congenial mayoralty even if I had selected my own year."

The Lord Mayor quits his chair with at least one regret—that he was unable to carry out his cherished plan to visit America during his term of office. "I have many friends in America," he said, "and I have crossed the Atlantic no fewer than 78 times. But for the war I should have spent my vacation in the United States and Canada, and have been the first Lord Mayor to visit America while in office."

Praises Guard.

In reply to a question as to what particular part of his year's work he was proudest of, Sir Charles said:

"Without any hesitation, I would answer the establishment of that splendid body of men, the National Guard of the City of London. I rejoice to have taken a leading part in the inception and organization of that important branch of the system of national defense. Other interesting features of the year's work on its war side were my scheme for providing brass bands for recruiting purposes, and later the raising of the Bankers' Battalion for the front."

Under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, the National Committee for Relief in Belgium has raised $4,000,000, and several other war-time charitable funds have had their headquarters in the Mayor's offices. The relief fund for the Lusitania did not take—I do not know why, for the circumstances under which the 1,200 victims lost their lives were of peculiar horror and should, I think, have attracted greater generosity from the public, who had been especially liberal with the two previous disasters to the Titanic and the Empress of Ireland.

"I am not a prophet, and I have no means of knowing or estimating the duration of the war, but I hope that my successor, Sir Charles Wakefield, will see its close, and that he will be able to associate himself with the blessings and rejoicings of victory and peace, while I—if I am remembered at all—will perhaps be spoken of as the Lord Mayor of the War."

The new Lord Mayor will take office at midday on November 9, when he makes the time-honoured progress to the Law Courts to greet and receive the congratulations of the judges. In the evening there is the inaugural banquet in the ancient Guildhall, at which the members of the Cabinet, the principal judges, the diplomatic corps, and a few other notables are the guests of the Mayor and the two sheriffs.

Women With Weakness Find New Strength

For all special weakness from which girls and women suffer, no surer remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they maintain that bracing health every woman so earnestly desires, they uproot disease and bring strength that lasts till old age.

The blood is richly nourished by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Appetite increases, weakness and secret ills give way to surplus energy and reserve vigour.

No pale girl, no ailing woman can afford to miss the enormous good that comes from Dr. Hamilton's Pills; get a 25c box to-day.

"Is there any way of stopping these cyclones?" asked the man from the East. "Oh, no," replied the Westerner; "the best way is to go right along with 'em."—Yonker's Statesman.

Heat Value of Woods.

Certain kinds of wood—hickory, oak, beech, birch, hard maple, ash, elm, locust, long leaf pine and cherry—have fairly high heat values, and only one cord of seasoned wood of these species is required to equal a ton of good coal. Hickory of the nonresinous woods has the highest fuel value per unit volume of wood and has other advantages. It burns evenly and, as housewives say, holds the heat. The oaks come next, followed by beech, birch and maple. Coastwise vessels in Florida pay twice as much for Florida buttonwood as for any other, because it burns with an even heat and with a minimum amount of smoke and ash.

The Up-to-date Shortening

There is only one reason why a woman should use anything besides Crisco as a cooking fat. That is because she never has heard of Crisco.

CRISCO
For Frying · For Shortening
For Cake Making

Crisco is just as economical as lard—and is better. It is much less expensive than butter—and is every bit as good.

It makes foods rich, tasty, and easy to digest.

It is the up-to-date shortening and frying fat. Housewives everywhere are trying it out with excellent results.

The Intelligent Juror.

"It is not uncommon with lawyers when addressing a jury to single out the member who appears to them to be the most intelligent, and, therefore, the one most likely to be influenced by their appeals," said a well known jurist recently. "But it does not always work one advantageously," he continued. "All the testimony in a case recently tried in Texas had been taken, the lawyers for both sides summoned up, and the judge had charged the jury, when suddenly loomed up the aforesaid intelligent juror against whom both counsel had thundered their impassioned appeals. He was thirsty for information and straightway addressed the court:

"'I have been bothered a lot by two words the lawyers use here all the time.'

"'What are they?' demanded the court, expecting, undoubtedly, to be called upon to expound a fortiori, or some other abstruse term.

"'Plaintiff and defendant,'" said the juror. 'I don't know just what they mean.'"—Lippincott's.

BILLIE BURKE ROBBED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Miss Billie Burke, the actress, was the heaviest loser when an accounting was taken of the losses of guests of the St. Francis Hotel, whose rooms were entered by a burglar last night. Miss Burke estimated her loss at $6,150, including three diamond rings and a diamond studded watch.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

JEHOVAH'S DEALINGS WITH THE CHURCH

Spiritual Branches in Christ Must Undergo Pruning Process.

Much Worldliness Amongst Professed Christians To-day—Falling Away From Early Faith—The Faithful Few Granted Increased Light—God's Special Providences Over His People—How Branches in the Heavenly Vine Are Pruned—Number of Elect Church Limited—Who Are sons of God—Character More Important Than Many Works.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 24.—Pastor Russell is here to-day. He delivered a highly instructive discourse, a part of which follows:

For my text I will take the words of the Lord through the Prophet Malachi: "Ye have said, It is vain to serve God, and what profit is it that we have kept His ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of Hosts? And now we call the proud happy; yea, they that work wickedness are set up; yea, they that tempt God are even delivered." (Malachi 3:14, 15.) These words of the Prophet describe a condition that to a considerable degree prevails at the present time. There are many that are saying these very words.

We look back a generation or two and perceive that many of God's people, even though they did not have the light and knowledge that we have to-day, were very earnest, very devoted to the Lord, so far as we can judge from their words and their conduct. God's name was taken reverently by them. Songs of praise to God were often sung. Much was done in the way of Bible study. Then came a time when prosperity had come to the world in large measure, when those who were zealous for God and the Bible seemed not to make as much progress as did the worldly. Those who did not reverence Him got along better than did the more reverent. Then many of these began to say, "What profit is it that we serve God? It is really a disadvantage; for many of those people that trifle with God are being established in influence and power, and we are not prosperous in our affairs. The proud seem to be the ones that the Lord is blessing. It seems as though God had said, Blessed are the proud; yea, they that work wickedness shall prosper."

As a consequence we find to-day, just as with the Jews in the days of Malachi's prophecy, that there is a great tendency to worldliness; and that little attention is paid to religion, which is only of a formal kind. "Attend more to business, more to the lodge, more to society," they say, "and you will get along much better."

Present Blessings for the Faithful.

This is the general condition all over the world. So there is less piety to-day, except amongst certain classes. This was foretold in Scripture. But those who still serve God are being strengthened, are being given "meat in due season," are being separated from all denominations. God has some encouragement for them, giving them to see heights, depths, lengths, and breadths of His Love and of His great Plan never before seen.

These are not being blessed necessarily in outward things. Perhaps as a whole they have less than have the average persons of the world. It would not be well for us to have too many of the good things of this present life. Many of these, so long as they were prosperous in their earthly affairs, were inclined to have a more or less worldly spirit; and God greatly favored some of them by taking from them their earthly prosperity and giving them a greater knowledge of His plans and purposes through His Word.

Thus God gives His children what He sees is best for them as New Creatures. He is not dealing in this way with the world. While the world is indeed subject to a general supervision and a certain restraint, in that God says, "Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther," nevertheless He is not treating mankind as a shepherd does his sheep. On the contrary, He treats them more as goats. Let us thank God that we are His sheep, under His special care. Wisely and tenderly He withholds from us some of the earthly good things.

Treatment of True Branches in Vine.

It is in harmony with this that our Lord Jesus says, "I am the Vine; ye are the branches. Every branch in Me that beareth fruit, the Father pruneth it, that it may bring forth more fruit." (John 15:1, 2.) Those who have made a success of cultivating grapes declare that it is the tendency of the grape vine to spread out everywhere, to have a profusion of branches; that the strength of the vine is inclined to go out in this way; and that the result would be few grapes, small in size and inferior in flavor. When the vinedresser wishes the vine to produce better and more abundant fruit, he cuts off the suckers; for a good husbandman can tell whether a branch is a fruit-bearer or a sucker. Then, when the vine shows signs of fruit, he cuts off the branch entirely, a little above where the grapes are forming.

This looks as though the husbandman were spoiling the grape vine. But no! he is forcing the juices of the vine right into the grapes. Whoever wishes a vine to produce much fruit must know how to prune it. Our Lord says, in connection with His parable in John 15, "Herein is My Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit." Of course the leaves of profession are necessary; but our lives should not be all profession and no fruit. No, no! The Lord desires fruit from the Vine—large clusters of rich fruit.

Hence it is that our Heavenly Husbandman prunes us that we may bring forth much fruit. Otherwise we shall be cut off as useless branches, and shall die. Those branches that have no fruit buds, but are merely suckers, are illustrative of those who come into the Church, make a profession, but never produce any fruit. They are really not of the Church. God calls only for fruit-bearers. Those who have the matter really at heart, who have a desire to bear much fruit, will not think it strange nor be offended if the Lord shall prune off the natural tendencies to go out after worldly things. The Lord will pinch off these tendencies which dissipate the spiritual vitality of His people.

You have noticed how the little tendrils of a grape vine take hold of anything which they can reach. So we have a great tendency to take hold of earthly props, to fasten our affections to earthly objects. Our families, our homes, our business, even a little pet dog, flowers—any of these things are very liable to take the energy and the affection from the one thing that is of paramount importance. If the Lord shall find it necessary to tear away these tendrils, it is to our advantage; and we should be grateful, even though the process may cause pain.

God Not the Father of the World.

We should bear in mind the fact that the Lord is not thus dealing with every one, but only with a special class. We need to make a sharp distinction between the Church and the world. Often do we hear the expression, "The Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man," as though the whole world were all one brotherhood as members of the family of God. From a worldly standpoint, there is a brotherhood of man; but it is not a brotherhood under one Father, God. When Adam was created in the image and likeness of God, he was a son of God, and had an opportunity of bringing into existence a race of sons of God. But when he disobeyed God, he was cut off from sonship; and therefore his children are not sons of God.

God is not the Father of unrepentant sinners. This thought is the teaching of the Bible. We have a general relationship one to another, so that we are to do what we can do to help those in trouble. Even as the Bible says, we are to "do good unto all men as we have opportunity, but especially to the Household of Faith." (Galatians 6:10.) The Household of Faith are the sons of God. Having discarded Adam and his posterity, He has adopted a new family with Christ as the Head.

This new family began with our Lord Jesus Christ, while He was in the flesh. He was begotten again of the Holy Spirit. None preceded Him. He was the first to be thus begotten. This begetting occurred at the time when He made a full consecration of Himself to God and was baptized in Jordan. From that time on He was a New Creature, begotten to a new nature—the Divine nature. This nature was perfected when He was raised from the dead. "He was put to death in flesh, but quickened [made alive] in spirit." (1 Peter 3:18.) Jesus was made the Head of a New Creation. He was the first to become Heir of God on the Divine plane; and He opened up the way for a certain class of fellow-heirs. (Romans 8:17.) Many? No; it is a "little flock." (Luke 12:32.) God does not wish many. Therefore He has limited the number. He has declared that the Bride of His Son shall be made up of one hundred and forty-four thousand members.

Why should God limit the number of the Elect? We reply, For the same reason that we might limit the number of invitations to a wedding. In the army, a given number of men constitute a regiment. When that number is secured, the regiment is full; and one can no longer join that regiment. So God has provided, for a particular purpose, a certain class of definite number; and only the required number can enter that class. It has taken all the Gospel Age to find these. When the proper number shall have responded and made their calling and election sure, then the door will be shut. No more then can get into that company.

Sons of God—Who Are They?

So then, those who are begotten of the Holy Spirit of God are members of the Bride class. This privilege is not open to any and all. Beyond a general supervision, God is not dealing with the world now. He will deal with them during the Millennial Age. Now He deals especially with the Elect. These are the ones spoken of in the Bible as the sons of God. All who are begotten of the Holy Spirit are sons of God. (Romans 8:14-17.) The world are not begotten of the Holy Spirit. Not all professing Christians of any denomination are begotten of the Spirit. Very few of them claim to be so.

Our Methodist friends, in former years, used to speak of Christians as being "born again." They misunderstood the matter. What they should have said is that those only are sons of God who have been begotten of the Spirit; that these thus begotten to sonship must grow in character, in grace, in the likeness of Christ; and that then, in the First Resurrection, they will be "born again," and be sons of God in the full sense. Jesus was the First-born from the dead. We also who are members of His Body shall be born in the First Resurrection. We shall share His resurrection. None others of the human family are called sons of God. John 1:12 is one of the Scriptures on this point: "But to as many as received Him [Christ], to them gave He power to become sons of God."

That power came to the disciples at Pentecost. Jesus had put His Spirit upon them to enable them to act as His representatives; but not until He had finished His sacrifice and had appeared in the presence of God for the Church would God recognize them, in the legal sense, and give them the begetting of the Holy Spirit. Just before His ascension our Lord said to His disciples, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on High." Again He said, "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."—Luke 24:49; Acts 1:8.

After Jesus had ascended up on High, and there had presented His sacrifice and had been accepted of God, then the Father granted Him the privilege of pouring out the Holy Spirit upon those disciples. (Acts 2:33.) Then God recognized them as His children. This was their begetting of the Holy Spirit., as Jesus was begotten at His baptism. So it has been all the way down the Age. As many as are sons of God have received the Spirit of God, the Spirit of Christ. "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His."

We did not get the Holy Spirit in the same manner that Jesus did at the River Jordan, nor yet in just the same manner as did the disciples at Pentecost. There was an outward demonstration in their case, for a double purpose. It was to convince the Jews that God was dealing with these disciples; and it also convinced the Church that they were received of the Father as sons. With the begetting of the Spirit the early disciples also received gifts of the Spirit. One or more of these gifts came to each one who became a Christian.

St. Paul showed a difference between the gifts and the fruits of the Spirit. He declared that a man might have the gifts of the Spirit, and not really be growing in character-likeness to the Lord. One might give all his goods to feed the poor; but if he did not have love as the true motive of his act, it would profit him nothing. He might even give his body to be burned; but if the act were not prompted by love, God would not appreciate it.

After the Church had become established, however, these miraculous gifts of the Spirit passed away. But the fruits of the Spirit were to continue. It is the fruitage of the Spirit that has constituted the special riches of the Church from the beginning until now. All who have been begotten of the Spirit have been exhorted and expected to bear the fruits of the Spirit. These fruits are meekness, gentleness, faith, long-suffering, patience, self-control, joy, peace, brotherly kindness, love. Of this fruitage St. Peter says, "If these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—Galatians 5:22, 23; 2 Peter 1:5-11.

Development of Fruit Gradual.

All the way down the Age, then, this class have been bearing fruit, more or less; and our Father is glorified by our bearing much fruit. Fruit matures gradually. The next day after giving your heart to the Lord you will not have large bunches of ripe fruit. It is thus with the natural vine; the branch does not grow grapes at once. The fruit-buds first appear, having a small flower. Very shortly these flowers pass away and the little grapes appear. Gradually they develop. So it is with the Christian.

The fruits of the Spirit are more than mere outward activities in the Lord's vineyard. They are those qualities of heart such as meekness, gentleness, etc. God is more desirous to see how meek you are than He is to note even great deeds of service. He is more desirous to know how much love you have. Our acceptable service for the Lord depends very much upon our development of His Spirit. It is not so much the works as the humility and loving zeal that counts. One might be sick and unable to engage in active service; but if he has the spirit of meekness and the proper desire to serve the Lord, the Father looks at that spirit or intention. If we get the fruits of the Spirit well developed, they will make us active in God's work. The fruitage of the Spirit in an individual manifests itself in a daily endeavor to do the will of God in all things.

At first one might have the activity without the proper spirit. You may have noticed this in some of your own earlier efforts to serve the Truth. Some have asked me why they did not have better results in presenting God's Message. Generally, I have told them that it is probably because they have not presented it in the right manner. To do so, we must cultivate the Lord's way and spirit. His spirit is love, and when your heart becomes imbued with love, with the spirit of the Truth, you will forget about yourself and wish only to honor the Lord. If you are bent upon being somebody, God cannot use you in His service. We must be very humble. Humility is an essential trait of Christian character.

"Oh, to be nothing, nothing!
Only to lie at His feet,
A broken and emptied vessel
For the Master's use made meet;
Emptied, that He might fill me,
As forth to His service I go;
Broken, that so unhindered
His life through me might flow."

Soldiers' Thrilling Night Adventure

A special correspondent at the Front writes:

"There is a good deal of competition when volunteers are called for, and the other day when the volunteers were wanted for cutting the German barbed wire entanglements it would have done your heart good to see the men step out for it. A little later volunteers were wanted for "listening post," which means crawling out after dark as near to the German trench as possible and listening for any possible movement or excitement signifying an attack or what not. This time I was a selected one, and my smattering of German was useful.

"During the day a shell had fallen about fifty yards to the right of our trench and had excavated the ground till it looked like the crater of a volcano, and I marked it down for my post for the night.

"Crawling out at nightfall and carefully avoiding the wire, I slipped into the hollow. It was about thirty feet across, by eight or nine deep. I slid noiselessly down and crept up the farther side, when I could distinctly hear the Germans talking. They were saying 'Good-night, Friedrich—good luck, Friedrich!' and the next moment I saw a tall dark shape coming directly for my crater. He was obviously at all, massive man, whom I could scarcely hope to overpower without noise. I could have shot him easily, but the report would have started firing everywhere and all sorts of confusion. He came directly on, and I was funking a bit, and honestly did not know what to do—run or stay! But fate settled it all for me. The German set his heel in the side of the crater and came down about three parts of the way, where he halted, and in the dark I could discern him raising his night glasses to his eyes. He was within two yards of me, scanning the farther side of the crater! I was crouching with my rifle ready, and as he raised his arms my bayonet took him four or five inches below the arm-pit. The German never moved, but stood stock still. Then his glasses fell to the ground, and to my astonishment he sat down quite naturally, stretched his feet, and with a soft bubbly sort of sigh, lay back. I waited a few minutes and then crept over to him—he was stone dead.

"But it was a gruesome vigil waiting there for daylight. About half an hour before dawn I crept back, carrying the German's rifle, which I found was fitted with telescopic sights, but unfortunately he only had twenty cartridges on him, and our ammunition won't fit. We heard afterwards that he was a famous sniper and had accounted for a good many of our men."

Doctor Said Only Hope Was In An Operation

Was Skeptical When He Began the Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Relief Came Quickly

Here is a plain, honest statement in regard to Dr. Chase's Ointment. Between the lines of this letter you can read the gratitude which its writer feels. One does not suffer from annoying, distressing piles for ten years without appreciating a cure when it is obtained.

Almost every mail brings the report of someone who has been cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Such statements are never used without the permission of the writer, and until we are satisfied that the cure is genuine and the writer a person of responsibility.

You may believe in operations for piles, and think there is no other cure. Write to Mr. Ingles, enclosing stamp, and he will gladly verify his statement. He will tell you that the pain, the expense, the risk of an operation are quite unnecessary. That relief and cure come with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Ernest W. Ingles, Penticton, B.C., writes: "I suffered from piles for ten years, and though I tried all kinds of ointments and injections I really had no permanent relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. When I began this treatment I had absolutely no faith in it, for I had been examined by a well-known physician in Vancouver, and he said that an operation was the only thing that would benefit me. It was surprising the relief I obtained from the very first box, and now, after using four boxes, I am practically cured. My case was so exceptionally bad that I received no relief day or night, and for this reason the results are wonderful."

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Ointment from any dealer at 60 cents a box. If you do not want to risk this much send a two-cent stamp to pay postage, and mention this paper, and we shall send you a sample box free. We are so certain that any sufferer from piles will obtain relief by using this ointment that we do not hesitate to make you this offer. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

[illegible] Getting the Shells Up

[illegible] a small village is heard [illegible] It is allied to the [illegible] with ammunition. Some lorries appear apparently from nowhere and immediately, almost before the engines are stopped, men rush to the backs of the trucks. A [illegible] subaltern yells out commands and [illegible] begins. The [illegible] with a will. They know that [illegible] gun emplacements who will [illegible] shell in an hour or two and they also know that every shell fired helps to shatter the German defences. In an incredibly short time the lorries are [illegible] and gone. The train disappears and all is quiet again.

Now I open my eyes to the [illegible] Red Cross ambulances appear. They are those with men who were in the last attack. The ambulance train is shunted on to and a transfer of wounded takes place. The men seem to be all of the same regiment, and as the stretchers are hauled out and gently carried into the train well, people anywhere in the world is civilized, and yet there are men who are suffering torture—and all by human agency.

"Got a Flag."

[illegible] there comes a stretcher, and on it a man with legs blown off. Another has a piece of his right cheek and ear carried away. It makes me sick, and yet when a Tommy with a shattered leg and arms suddenly calls out, "Say, mister, got a flag?" in a cheerful voice, one wonders what it can be like. Not so bad, surely!

When I get downstairs I heard the tramping of many men, and on getting to the door I see an apparently never-ending line of fresh troops arriving. They are happy. There is no thought of "Well, I may be dead in an hour." It's a never-ending stream of men laughing and joking, all carrying the eternal cigarette.

Presently there is a gap and I slip through, and having half an hour to waste before my answer arrives I roll down towards the trenches. It's a wide road, and yet one wonders how so many ambulances can get on it. Hopping on to an empty one going up I sit beside the driver and [illegible] good spirits. "Well, sir, I hear that we captured [illegible] village with about 500 Germans. Course, sir, you'll realize we've got a fair number of wounded, but they seem to have got off more or less lightly."

I have gone far enough, so get off. In the distance I heard voices. "Ullo, matey, 'ow are yer?" "Cheero, Bill Kaiser!" I find a party of about 250 German prisoners marching down under cavalry escort being greeted by the wounded in the ambulances as they pass—perhaps the very men who halg and hour earlier had been the cause of their wounds.

Behind the prisoners comes a battery of field guns, and at first one is rather startled, as on the guns and horses are seated men with German helmets. Then one wonders what our guns are doing until closer examination shows them to be captured German guns with our Tommies in charge gloriously crowned with helmets.

There is a man strolling about with a German helmet on, apparently unhurt, and yet dried blood on his face. I ask him where he was hurt, and lifting his helmet he shows me a blood-red piece of plaster and cotton wool stuck on the top of his close-cropped head.

"Well, sir," he says, "them there Oeutschers 'ave been trying to cut me 'air, just as if it wasn't short enough already. Silly blighters! Given me quite a 'eadache."

At the entrance a fresh lot of ambulances appeared. Some of the men are only slightly hurt, but they bring one man in who, seeing me standing there, beckons to me, and says in a very husky voice: "Got a fag on yer, sir?" I produce my almost exhausted case and put one in the corner of his mouth and hold a match for him. He takes a long draw and utters a sigh. "I've been dreamin' of this 'ere fag ever since the brutes got me," and, in a lower voice, "the devils, they copped me proper, me number's up. But, sir, tell them there men at 'ome they're wanted to lend a 'and out 'ere."

In the stream, some of them still wearing their gas helmets, others bareheaded, but they are all happy. They are doing this for those at home.

Won't some of you men at home come out and do your share?

V.C. Awarded By Election For The Second Time in History

LONDON, Oct 23—Sergeant Alfred Richards, 1st Lancashire Fusiliers, who was on of three elected by their comrades to receive the Victoria Cross, received the emblem at the hands of the King at Buckingham Palace, a few days ago.

Only once before in army annals has the V.C. been awarded by election—in the Boer war.

Sergeant Richards was dressed in mufti and walked with the aid of a pair of crutches, having lost his left leg as a result of wounds sustained while performing the special act which won for him the V.C. He was a member of a party supplied by three companies from the Headquarters Division of the 1st Lancashire Fusiliers.

On April 25 last these men were set the difficult task of effecting a landing on the Gallipoli peninsula to the west of Cape Helles. They immediately came under a murderous fire from the Turkish defenders, but the survivors undeterred by their terrible losses, dashed forward eventually reaching a series of barbed wire entanglements. They forced their way through these and finally gained a permanent lodgment on the fire swept cliffs.

The feat called for special gallantry and coolness, as well, as iron determination, and, where so many men had done so well, the commanding officer had difficulty in choosing any individual for the V.C.

Accordingly it was decided to put the matter to the vote of the survivors with the result that Major Wills, Sergeant Richards, and Private Kenealy were selected by their comrades, and were recommended to His Majesty.

Sergeant Richards was most cordially received by the King, who took hands with him, chatted with him for a few moments before pinning on the V.C. most warmly congratulated him on his achievement and escape, and expressed the hope that he would long be spared to wear his decoration and to be a worthy example to soldiers generally.

His Majesty conferred decorations also on sixteen officers and men for gallantry, including Lieut. Stanley, of the E.H. who dived under several rows of mines and got through the Dardanelles.

TRIED TO BOSS KING ALBERT

NEW HAVEN, CONN., October 23. Dr Hugh Pedley, of Montreal, who extended greetings of the Canadian Congregational Council, moved the delegates of the National Council of Congregational Churches in session here to tears by his eloquent references to Canada's part in the European war.

Dr Pedley related how his daughter, a nurse in a Belgian war hospital, had met a man in the hospital who was the only one that she could find speaking English, and said:

"Well it is a wonder you wouldn't get these orderlies busy." Afterwards she learned it was King Albert of Belgium to whom she had spoken rather sharply.

KING AND PRESIDENT

We have won our freedom," said Dr Pedley, "as you have won yours. We in Canada are free. We have a King, but it is a question whether our King has as much power as your President. You have a President who is a King." (Applause). You will notice that of late the name of King George has not figured as prominently as that of your President, Mr Wilson.

We in Canada in common with you, are a peace loving people. We have something as a basis of peace, a boundary settled by the pen and hand clasp, and not settled by the sword.

WHY CANADA IS AT WAR

We bring greetings from a people that is at war with a people that is at peace. You may well ask why we are at war. We are in it because we could not help it. The question comes: What part shall the United States play? It has played the part of the good samaritan. It has not passed by like the Levite on the other side. It has poured in money, men and women to bind up the wounds of the afflicted. Sir Edward Grey had before him three problems to try and keep the world at peace, to try and keep Britain out of the war, and if he failed, to so conduct Britain's part in the war as to challenge the admiration of the world for all time. He failed in the first two problems but we believe that he will not fail in the third. You will try to keep the peace and if you fail to keep out of it we trust that you will do your part to uphold the right.

GREETINGS TO DELEGATES

The four Canadian delegates, Rev Dr Hugh Pedley, Rev H J Kilbourn, Rev H A Carson and Rev J T Daley, were presented to the National Council of Congregational Churches in session here. The greetings to them said in part: "We extend through them delegates our heart felt sympathy to fellow Congregationalists in Canada and all parts of the British Empire. As they bear the burden of the horror and sorrow of war we join them in fervent prayer to the All Holy God that hatred may cease, that righteousness may prevail, that the issues of strife may be freedom, fraternity and everlasting peace."

No Interest In Life

Health Gone—Position in Danger—Both Saved by Vinol.

Peterborough people please do us the favour to read this letter:—

Brooklyn, N.Y. "I was completely run-down, had no appetite and lost all interest in life. I thought I surely would have to give up my position. I learned of Vinol, and after taking one bottle felt better. I have taken it for a few weeks and it has built me up and cured me. If people who feel weak, nervous and run-down would only try Vinol I know it would help them as it did me." Robert Mitchell, 1205 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, N.Y.

This Brooklyn man's case is only additional proof of what we have been telling Peterborough people for years. We claim and are continually proving that Vinol is the greatest health and strength creator for overworked and run-down people obtainable. We will back this statement by agreeing to return anyone's money who will try it and who finds our claim not true.

Troops Sent To the Border

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The War Department ordered the 28th Infantry from Galveston to Harlingen, Texas, on the Mexican border, in the Brownsville section, to combat Mexican raiders. This detaches a brigade of troops, and the 23rd Infantry now at Jacksonville, Florida, for target practice, will be ordered there to be held in reserve.

TOPOLOBAMPO, Mexico, Oct. 23.—A detachment of troops has been ambushed by Yaqui Indians between the plantation of the United Sugar Company at Los Mochis and San Blas, Sinaloa, according to reports received here today, and 44 of the 46 soldiers were killed. The Indians then piled the bodies on a railroad bridge and, setting fire to the latter, destroyed all.

The Indians are now reported crossing the Fuerte River and moving toward one of the United Sugar Company's plantations at Ayuda, about nine miles from Los Mochis. Carranza troops have been sent from Los Mochis garrison against the Yaquis.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

No style has made quite the impression upon us that the [illegible] bolero registers this season. It is used to beautify even the plainest costumes and lifts them out of the ordinary at once.

A separate bolero is sometimes a little too much of a little too bulky for general wear, although many of the newer designs show the effect without its being a separate garment. This is the case in the present instance. The waist is quite plain, with a flat vest running the length of the front, leaving the neck a little open and having the collar attached. This waist is perforated for the addition of bolero trimming, or the material may be cut away on the bolero lines and a second fabric used for the balance. A little frill of lace, embroidery or of the dress fabrics is the more usual way of making these waists.

The sleeves of this device may be made full length, or shortened as much as desired and finished with a cuff provided in the patterns.

These dresses are made of silk, voile, novelty cottons and gingham, combinations of plain and figured goods being liked.

The dress pattern No. 7292, is cut in sizes 18, 20, 38 and 20 years. Medium size requires 5 yards of 36 inch striped material and 5/8 yards of 36 inch plain goods with 2 yards of sash ribbon.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

IMPORTANT FRENCH SUCCESS IN CHAMPAGNE

PETERBOROUGH BATTALION WILL BE THE 93rd

French Capture Strong Enemy Salients in Champagne District

3,800 Feet of Trenches to a Depth of 750 Feet Have Been Captured After a Desperate Struggle--Positions Taken Which Had Resisted All Previous Attacks---The Enemy Suffered Heavy Losses.

AUSTRIAN AVIATORS DROP BOMBS ON VENICE

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(French Official).—"Important French successes in Champagne on Sunday" were announced to-day by the War Office.

"The enemy," said the statement, "previously held a second line of strong salients, comprising the slopes north of Hill 196, a mile north of Mesnil. These works, which had resisted all preceding attacks, were called the 'Courtine.' They were taken by the French after a desperate struggle. Their length was about 3,800 feet, and their depth some 750, and they included three or four lines of trenches and tunnels defending Boyaux. Despate these fortifications, the strength and the Germans' fierce resistance, the position was entirely occupied. A heavy artillery bombardment preceded our violent assault. The enemy suffered serious losses, and left 200 prisoners from three different regiments."

ROME, Oct. 25.—Austrian aeroplanes dropped ten bombs on Venice on Sunday night, damaging the Stralzi Church and setting several buildings on fire, but injuring no one, it was officially announced to-day.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—The proclamation of King George, calling upon his subjects to put forward their best efforts in support of the war, has been promulgated in Canada in a special issue of the Canada Gazette issued at noon to-day. It is believed that the King's appeal for more men will meet with a generous response in all parts of Canada.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Arraigned in a Magistrate's Court at Weehawken, N.J., to-day, Robert Fay, an alleged German army officer, and Walter L. Scholtz, were given 24 hours in which to arrange for counsel to defend them on bomb planting conspiracy charges in factories making munitions for the Allies. Both the alleged anti-British conspirators were returned to jail without bond. A third arrest was made to-day, when Paul Daehre, 34, was taken into custody. He is a graduate of Cologne University. There appears to be widespread anti-British plots all over the United States.

BERLIN, Via Sayville, Oct. 25. New German regulations concerning food distribution and prices are practically completed to-day. Maximum milk prices were planned. Butter cards are being issued, and similar measures will be taken to ensure milk for the poor at a reasonable price.

LONDON, Oct. 25. Counter-attacking Austro-Germans in the vicinities of Alexandrovac, on the Melawa's right bank, and of Rochantza, also in Northern Serbia, the Serbs captured several mountain, machine and field guns and many horses on Friday, according to despatches received by the Serbian Legation here to-day. The struggle was desperate, and there had been on material change in the positions at the time advices were received.

Furious fighting was progressing also between the Serbians and Bulgarians in Krivelak, Veles and Uskub districts. In Southern Serbia fighting still raged to-day between the French and Bulgarians. They were defeated on Sunday in the Strumnitza region, near the Serbo-Bulgarian wounded.

Strumnitza is filled with Bulgarian wounded. The French losses are small.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Bulgarians who were trying to join the Austro-Germans by cutting across North-Eastern Serbia have been repulsed by the Serbs, according to Nish advices this afternoon. The Teutonic advance was reported delayed in the hope that the Bulgarians will yet get through.

The Serbians, French and British now control the Salonika-Nish railway from Salonika, northward to the Austro-German front, the same message said, but Sofia messages still declared the Bulgars hold Uskub.

There was much disaffection in the Bulgarian army, and many consequent executions were reported. Roumania is expected hourly to join the Allies.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Robert Fay, self-styled German Army Lieutenant, who, with two other alleged conspirators, is held in Weekawkan, N.J., admitted frankly this afternoon that he came to America to stop the shipment of war munitions to the Allies. Fay told the newspaper men that his passage to the United States was arranged by the German Secret Service, after he had been relieved of duty in the 10th Prussian Infantry. He declared, however, that the German Embassy here refused to have anything to do with his scheme. Fay denied flatly that he either had executed or had planned to execute any plots against the American munitions plants. It would have been folly, he said, to have attempted to stop the flow of munitions to Germany's enemies through such means.

Fay declared the German Embassy objected to his using his device in American waters, but expressed no objection to its operation in Canada. Fay said he was superintendent of a machinery plant before the war, and invented a special mine for blowing up trenches before leaving the battlefront for the West.

Fay didn't reveal what his plans really were. He gave out a lengthy statement after preliminary arraignment of the alleged German army officer, his brother-in-law, Walter Scholtz, and Paul Daeche. The statement was issued while detectives were broadening the scope of their investigation into the anti-Allies' conspiracy, developed by the arrest of Scholtz and Fay while they were testing explosives yesterday. Fay declared he planned to stop the shipment of munitions by blowing up Trans-Atlantic steamers, using a device of his own invention

AN ILLUSTRATION OF RED CROSS WORK AMONG WOUNDED

A nursing sister from Marmora in a letter to friends says:—

"I wonder if you all realize the work the Red Cross is doing. They have a depot at every hospital and we can draw so many comforts for the men—things we could never get otherwise—for instance, warm flannel shawls or nightingales as we call them, socks, pyjamas, small pillows for tucking in under the aching places. The other night every body had canned peaches and fruit cake and you should have heard the 'ohs' and 'ahs' 'poor boys.' We also got a can of maple sugar. Half of them had never tasted it before."

DRAFT IS AT PLYMOUTH

Peterborough Artillerymen in the 33rd Battery Have Arrived Safely in Old Country, a Cablegram Announces

FROM LIEUT. HUYCKE

The safe arrival in England of the draft from the 33rd Battery which left Barriefield camp on Friday, Oct. 15th, is announced in a cablegram received today by His Honour Judge Huycke from his son, Lieut. Meredith Huycke, one of the officers with the draft.

The cablegram read as follows:—"Arrived Plymouth. All well."

The news will be gladly received in Peterborough, whose citizens are greatly interested in the 33rd Battery. There are between 50 and 60 Peterborough men in the draft, the members of which were given an enthusiastic send-off when they were home on final leave a couple of weeks ago.

Knocked Down On George Street

Miss Jordan Was the Victim of a Painful Accident

Miss Jordan, 211 Stewart street, was knocked down by a horse and vehicle on Saturday evening. She sustained a number of bruises. Dr. Green was summoned and rendered medical aid after which he removed the patient to her home. The accident, which took place at the corner of George and Simcoe street, was caused by a horse shying at a street car. No blame is attached to any one.

ANOTHER ATTRACTION AT EMPIRE THEATRE

"Chimmie Fadden," a picturization of the famous Irish American comedy come to the Empire Theatre this evening. "Chimmie" is a Bowery boy of the rough, but good-hearted type. He saves a rich young woman from the insults of a "masher," which starts a love story of fascinating interest. The inimitable comedian, Victor Moore, holds the title role.

In addition, the favourite Comedian, Charlie Chaplin, will be extra special, at the Empire to-night.

The Canadian Casualties Now Total 15,187 Men

677 Officers and 14,510 Men Have Appeare on Casualty List

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Casualties among Canada's forces up to Oct. 15 totalled 15,187. Of the ten thousand wounded it is probable onethird will return shortly after to their regiments, while another proportion will return after a period of convalescence. The full list is as follows:

	Officers	Men
Killed in action	99	1625
Died of wounds	25	654
Died of illness	6	172
Accidentally killed	2	5
Prisoners of war	50	1251
Missing	52	1510
Wounded	457	9993
Totals	677	14510

A remarkable fact of the statistics is the very small proportion of men who died of illness. Most of them who died were from spinal meningitis. With modern sanitary arrangements and in consequence for typhoid, the death rate from illness has been below the normal in civilian life.

HORSE STARTED WHEN GATE BLEW OPEN

Mr. Alex Reid, expressman, had three ribs fractured on Saturday afternoon while unloading several trunks in a lane near the corner of George and Dublin Streets. A rush of wind suddenly blew open a gate, hitting his horse. Mr. Reid was overthrown when his horse started. He will be confined to his home for about ten days.

Peterboro' the Headquarters of The New 93rd Battalion C.E.F.

PTE. HAROLD LAWRENCE
Peterborough Boy in England with the 8th C. M. R.

Good News Received by Lt. Col. Johnston From Col. Hemming D. O. C. This Morning--Present Company Recruited for the 80th Will Remain in Peterborough and Will Be Transferred to the New Battalion Instead of Going to Belleville as Reported on Saturday---To-day's Military News.

Peterborough is to be the headquarters of a new Canadian Expeditionary Force Battalion.

It will be known as the 93rd Battalion.

It will comprise recruits from Victoria, Peterborough, Hastings and Northumberland and Durham counties.

The company at present drilling in Peterborough will remain here as part of the 93rd Battalion.

The new Overseas Band recruited in Peterborough will be the band of the 93rd Battalion.

The Battalion will be commanded by a Peterborough officer, and, in addition to local officers already appointed, other Peterborough officers will be chosen.

The above facts are the latest developments in military circles, having been conveyed to Lt.-Col. Johnston this morning in a message from Col. Hemming, the officer commanding the 3rd Divisional Area. The news will be joyfully received, not only by the men of the local company and the Speakers' Patriotic League, but by the citizens generally, coming as it did in the wake of well founded rumours that were disquieting, to say the least.

The understanding confirmed by a telegram from Major General Hughes had been all along that the men who have been recruited here would remain here this winter for training, and that although nominally recruited for the 80th Battalion, they would be transferred to a new battalion with headquarters here. With this understanding, the splendid Overseas Band was recruited, and is being equipped by the citizens, and the Speakers' Patriotic League had been announcing at all their meetings that the men that were being recruited in Peterborough district would winter in Peterborough. That inducement has been of the greatest assistance in recruiting, and it is felt that during the next few weeks, its effect will be even more appreciated.

It was therefore with dismay that it was learned a day or two ago from apparently reliable sources that the men enlisted here were to go to Belleville for the winter as part of the 80th Battalion, while two companies of the 59th were to come here. The Speakers' League felt that if these plans were carried out their recruiting meetings had been conducted on a fraudulent basis, and that the men who had come in had been recruited under false pretences. Strong representations were at once made to the authorities of the fact, and also of the belief that the removal of the men at present in Peterborough would seriously injure recruiting and nullify all the efforts that have been made by the League.

This morning, however, Lt.-Col. Johnston received the message from Col. Hemming that the men at present in Peterborough will remain here as part of the new 93rd Battalion which will have its headquarters in this city, news that was joyously received. As an evidence of the fact that it had been intended to send the men to Belleville, Major Alger, of the 80th Battalion, was at the Armouries this morning engaged in conducting a second medical examination of the men when the news from Col. Hemming arrived. He immediately stopped the examination, as the men will not now come under his jurisdiction. Lieuts. Bertram Hudgin and Seymes, of the 80th, who have been attached here for instructional purposes, have received orders to report at Barriefield.

No definite information has been received yet as to the commanding officer of the new battalion. That it will be a Peterborough officer is certain. Other Peterborough officers are being recommended for appointments in the battalion, and the recommendations of Lieut. Marling, of Lakefield, is also being sent on.

The official announcement of the number of the new battalion and the fact that Peterborough is to be the headquarters will prove a big boom to recruiting. Two companies before Christmas recruited right in Peterborough and district is now the slogan, and there seems no reason why the desired mark should not be reached.

Still another Peterborough physician—Dr. N. H. Sutton, Stewart street, who holds the rank of Major in the Canadian Army Medical Corps—is the latest to be leaving for the front. His services have been accepted for the C.A.S.C. (Although assigned Major Sutton does not know where he will be sent. He leaves for England within the next few weeks. He is one fifth Peterborough physician to answer the call of King and country. Drs. McPherson, Keller, Hicks and Young being the others gone overseas.

Last week Mrs. R. J. Craig of Bonaventure street received a letter from her son, Lieut. R. J. Craig, who is convalescing in England, from wounds received in action. A piece of shell struck him in the arm and during a recent heavy spell of weather he caught up the piece of shell. Lt. Craig had expected to return to the front about Christmas, but now expects to get back sooner.

Campbellford Boy Wounded

In the official list of casualties on Wednesday there appeared also the name of Pte. Clifford F. Weston of the 21st Batt., 2nd Canadian expeditionary force, wounded in action. He is a son of the proprietor of the Weston Shoe factory at Campbellford.

MANY ENTRIES ALREADY IN FOR PLOWING MATCH

Annual Contest Which Will Be Held at Westwood To-morrow Promises to Be Biggest Success on Record

KEEN COMPETITION

The plowing match for the championship for the County of Peterborough will take place to-morrow on the farm of Squire Brockenridge at Westwood. It promises to be keenly contested. This year for the first time outside entries are being accepted in the men's class in sod. One outside entry is that of George Berry, Jr., of Millbrook. Mr. Berry is a noted plowman, having won in numerous matches. This means that the Peterborough plowmen in this class will have stiff competition. Among the Peterborough plowmen in class one are Wm. J. Cleghorn, Otonabee, and John Gillespie.

Several of last year's competitors are taking part again this year, including Harvey Borland, of Indian River; Robert Geo. Fowler and Ernest Kelk, of Peterborough. An entry has also been received from Jeremiah Mahoney, of Peterborough.

The liberal prizes being offered are making the Peterborough prize list one of the best in the province. The liberal donations of $20.00 from Mr. R. R. Hall, and $16.00 from Mr. G. A. Gillespie, each being first prizes in different classes, will insure stiff competition in these classes. Other contributors are G. Walter Green $10.00, the Village of Norwood, Council $10.00, The Peter Hamilton Company $12.00, Farm and Dairy two special prizes, J. A. Sexsmith, M.P. $5.00 and several other smaller donations. These, of course, are in addition to the cup offered by M. F. H. Burnham, M.P., for perpetual competition and the bronze medal which goes with it.

C. L. A. SOCIETY WILL MEET

The C. L. A. Society of Charlotte street church will hold their regular meeting this evening at eight o'clock and promises to be a most interesting and profitable evening.

Four of the leading men of the Alliance will be discussed by capable speakers, the Sunday school orchestra will be present, and have charge of the musical part of the programme.

FRUITS OF A GOOD POLICY.

No better illustration of the benefit and wisdom of the democratic spirit of British institutions, as associated with the principle of self-government, can be cited at the moment than South Africa. Here is a country that a few years ago was in arms against Great Britain and British influence. To-day it is solidly behind Great Britain as bravely fighting its battles as if its people had been to the manner born. Of course, in a country where the old system could not at once be uprooted, and old ideals replaced by the British spirit, there were bound to be remnants of dissatisfaction; but the great majority of the people, recognize that their true interest lies in recognizing the wisdom and fairness, and generosity of Great Britain, in giving the benefits of self-government, and the ripened fruit of democratic liberty. The big section of loyalists represented and led by General Botha, did their share nobly in overcoming the intrigue and menace of Germany, and that he and his followers represent the major part of the people is shown by the fact that at the recent general elections, out of a house of 131 members, Botha and the British party captured 98 seats, the Opposition and independents only securing altogether 33 seats. This for result is is not only a personal triumph for Botha, the most striking figure of the age, but a triumph for the British spirit of fair play towards those who come under British sovereignty. In her treatment of the subdued Boers of South Africa, Britain was not only just but generous. Her policy has been vindicated, and her generosity justified a hundred fold. Force and guns, powder and shot and shell, are not the true weapons of conquest. They are types of the system half the world is combatting to-day, and one that will be destroyed, must be destroyed, before the world can breathe freely, and gain the undisturbed enjoyment of the liberty that goes with the real spirit of democracy, and the great doctrine of humanity and Christianity.

THE CRIME OF THE CENTURIES

The murder of Miss Cavell, the head of a training school for nurses in Belgium by German militarists is the most horrible and barbarous and gratuitous crime of which the gentle Kaiser's Government has ever been guilty. She was convicted of a crime which every German would commit if he had the chance, that is, helping the wounded and sick to escape to freedom. Under the Hague Convention, which Germany has signed, and which the German Government has violated in every particular, the nurses in the hospitals are not to be interfered with. Miss Cavell was the head of a hospital in Brussels, and she was charged with having helped English, German and French soldiers to escape to Holland. She was tried by court martial, convicted, and shot. Her execution was carried out in the most brutal manner. Instead of being shot by a firing squad, she was executed by a single soldier. Miss Cavell could not have been guilty of any crime known to civilized warfare. She was simply carrying out the principles of her profession, and the principles of humanity. Her murder was a deliberate one, and

THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETERBORO COLLEGIATE BEAT LINDSAY 7 TO 2

The Peterborough Collegiate Rugby team defeated Lindsay Collegiate in a hard fought battle at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon by 7 points to 2, leading at half-time by 6 to 1. It was a rocky struggle throughout, and there was very little to choose between the two teams. The local school won the game in the first half when Eastwood stole the ball from the Lindsay line and went over for a try. In the last period Lindsay were in possession a yard from Peterborough's line, but lost the ball for off side interference when it looked as if they would tie the score. Art Carew was the star of the Lindsay aggregation. For Peterborough Long did some good kicking, and Eastwood, Austin, and Green were always prominent.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lindsay.

Flying wing—Murchison.
Backs—A. Carew, Gregory and Conley.
Quarter—Dugan.
Scrimmage—Glenny, Crosser and McLeod.

FRED WHITCROFT SCOUTING FOR THE SEATTLE TEAM

The Edmonton Bulletin says: With four teams lined up for the Pacific Coast Hockey League, Lester and Frank Patrick must dig up some new players for the Seattle Club, and as the men sent them last year by Fred Whitcroft, their scout, proved so satisfactory, it is likely at least six men will be drafted from Alberta and Saskatchewan this coming season. "Whitty" received a letter last week from Lester Patrick, stating that the Victoria magnate would be in Edmonton shortly, and that he hoped to round up half a dozen players. Lloyd Cook, Micky McKay, and Barney Stanley all proved sensations in their first year, and Patrick figures there must be more good ones where they came from.

Scout Whitcroft has already signed two players who performed in Alberta senior hockey last season. Jack Gordon, the good right wing of the Edmonton Eskimos, will leave for the Coast in time to report on November 25, while Riley, who put up a star defence game for the Calgary Vics, is already assured a trial in faster company. Gordon has been in the Peace River country since the close of the 1914-15 hockey season, and the outdoor life has put him in shape to jump right into the game. Even if Riley had not accepted terms from the Patricks he would have been barred from amateur hockey this season, as he was one of the Calgary simonpures who played baseball in the Semi-Pro. League. Both Riley and Gordon are splendid hockeyists, and should have no difficulty catching a regular berth with one of the teams.

Lewis Deserves Chance at Welch

Former English Featherweight Steps Up Into Lightweight Division

NEW YORK, Oct 25. While a great deal of praise has been handed out of late to some of the fighters in the light weight class, there is one boy who seems to get very little credit for what he does in that division.

The lightweight in question is Ted Lewis, the former British champion featherweight who has decided to make New York his home and who has been living here ever since his return from Australia two years ago.

Lewis was never accused of being a hard hitter but he has improved in that work, too, for he has been beating some of the boys much heavier than himself and handing them out beatings that only boxers with a punch can dish out. In the past five months Lewis is credited with wins over several top notchers, including Jack Britton, Ed Graves, Mike Glover, and others. He received the referee's decision over Jack Britton twice at Boston.

Jimmy Johnston, who handles Lewis, says that he is open to meet any light weight in the world for the title or otherwise and he would especially like to get himself on with Charlie White, Willie Ritchie, Jack Britton, Benny Leonard, Johnny Dundee, Joe Shugrue, Johnny Kilbane, Eddie Wallace, Pal Moore, Frankie Burns, Joe Lynch, Jack Sharkey, Jack Bernstein, Jack Zivic, Johnny Ertle, Joe Welling, Joe Mandot, Johnny Griffiths, Joe Tiplitz, Jack Kid Wolfe, Jack Kid Berg, Jack Kid Goldstein, Jack Kid Wagner

CHIEF OF POLICE CLASHES WITH NEWSPAPER REPORTERS

Police Superintendent Regan Orders Desk Sergeant to Withhold News From Representatives of Papers Forcing Elimination of Vice Conditions—Police Blotters Public Record—Must Be Shown on Demand.

BUFFALO, Oct. 25.—Police blotters in precinct stations or records of arrest are public record and must be shown on demand by City Attorney Westphal under direction of Corporation Counsel Rann.

"Chapter 630 of the city charter states that records, papers and books of city officers are public records and must be shown on demand," said City Attorney Westphal. "The police from the superintendent down are simply city employees working under the commissioners who are city officers through appointment by the mayor. Their records are public record under this chapter."

Police Superintendent Michael Regan has at last ordered that general routine news be withheld from reporters working on Buffalo papers that are forcing him and his squad of confidential detectives to rid the city of vice conditions. The superintendent, much to the surprise and disgust of the police officers who heard him, gave the order verbally to Desk Sergeant Edward Armbruster in the Franklin Street Station.

The order was given when reporters appeared in the station house while a prisoner was being searched at the desk. The superintendent took one look at the reporters, turned his back on them and then in a voice that could be heard on the second floor of the building, he let go.

"Don't give any of those reporters nothing," said Superintendent Regan. "Remember, sergeant, nothing. Don't give 'em nothing."

Desk Sergeant Armbrewster followed out Superintendent Regan's orders and did not give out the facts in the case referred to, but the story was written and in the newspaper offices less than ten minutes after the order was given.

The story in detail which Superintendent Regan withheld is: Paul Drudel, of 326 Ohio Street, drew $400 out of a bank and was walking in Main Street, near Scott Street, when he was accosted by two men who entered into a conversation with him. He showed them his roll and one of the men grabbed the $400 and started to run in lower Main Street. Drudel caught one of the men who was later arrested by Patrolman Grant Shook and he was booked at the Franklin Street Station as Joseph Gallazzo, 22 years old, of 237 Seneca Street. He was charged with grand larceny. Gallazzo's partner made his escape in Scott Street.

While Patrolman Shook was booking his prisoner in the station house, Superintendent Regan passed through and inquired about the prisoner and when he heard the circumstances of the case he told the officers he would take care of the prisoner himself and he took Gollazzo to his office, the policeman therefore receiving no credit for the arrest. It may be said that Superintendent Regan very often takes prisoners away from his men. However, Gollazzo was later charged to Detective Martin Murphy, Charles Ryan and John Smaldino, who were in the station house when the arrest was made. This means that in the police records for the year detectives will be given credit for the arrest.

When Superintendent Regan heard that Gollazzo's partner escaped, he started out to look for him. The superintendent and Detective-Sergeant Bogumil Laszewski and Detective Murphy arrested Joseph Di Marzi, 28 years old, of 237 Seneca Street, in Seneca Street, near Michigan. Di Marzi, the police claim, is Gollazzo's partner.

This is the story Superintendent Regan ordered his men to keep from the papers. He was beaten to it and notice is hereby served on him that he is powerless in holding any news whatever in his department from the reporters. There are other sources of news in the police department outside of Superintendent Michael Regan's office.

Four Hundred Thousand Allies' Troops Needed To Make Greece Feel Safe

PARIS, Oct. 25.—The Athens correspondent of the Havas Agency sends the following despatch under recent date, relative to the attitude of Greece concerning the war:

"All the papers publish an identical note, said to be an exact representation of the Government's viewpoint in the situation. The note expresses surprise at the intervention of the powers in the relations between Greece and Serbia, the faculty of interpretation of the treaty of alliance of those countries belonging exclusively to the contracting parties, the accord having been freely concluded without the intervention or guarantee of a third party.

Allies Need 400,000 Men.

"It must not be forgotten," says the note, "that Greece is an independent nation that disposes of its fate in the full sovereignty." The note goes on to say that the Austro-German attack on Serbia releases Greece at least from the obligation of armed intervention, and that independent of that attack it is materially impossible for Serbia to give Greece the support of 150,000 men stipulated in the treaty in case of war with Bulgaria, and that the Entente powers have not furnished a contingent equivalent.

The note adds that the specialists best qualified consider that the Balkan expedition would require at least 400,000 men, and that under these conditions Greece would ruin herself without even the consolation of saving Serbia.

"On the other hand," says the note, "Greece offers all the service she can render in allowing the free passage over its territory of the allies' troops going to the Serbian frontier, and in maintaining her own army on a war footing."

The note expresses the gratitude of Greece for the offers made, though not yet concrete, and thanks England for the offer of Cyprus. It recalls the Greek sympathies for the Entente and the benevolence of the neutrality maintained thus far. It ends by saying that Greece does not forget that a state, no matter how small, has the absolute right to regulate itself its own fortunes.

No Dickering With Bulgars.

ATHENS, Oct 23.—(via Paris, Oct. 25)—The Foreign Office denies both the reported Serbo-Bulgarian understanding and the existence of pourparlers for such an understanding. The New Hellas, an opposition organ, notwithstanding this denial, insists that negotiations are proceeding.

In discussing Great Britain's offer to cede the Island of Cyprus to Greece, the newspaper Patrie, a supporter of the Venizelos party, says that the refusal of Premier Zaimis is not of a definite nature, and expresses the belief that the powers of the Quadruple Entente again will approach the Greek Government. The New Hellas says that it is evident the Greek Government will not accept, and has decided to remain absolutely neutral.

JUDGMENT IN FAVOUR OF PLAINTIFF

No Defence Was Offered in a Case Involving Two Local Tradesmen

No defence being offered, judgment was awarded plaintiff in an action brought by James Haggis and Bill Coros, trading under the name of Haggis & Coros, against Gus Boukydis, confectioner, Toronto. The case came up this morning before His Honour Judge Huycke. The plaintiffs entered suit to obtain $255.15, the amount of a promissory note, with interest and protest charges added. The note was made out in favour of plaintiff on March 8, 1915, for $250, payable in two months. It was defaulted, so it was stated.

Were Remanded For a Week

Three subjects of Uncle Sam appeared this morning before County Magistrate Langley on a charge of vagrancy. They were apprehended by County Constable Dickson. After a brief hearing they were remanded for one week. In the meantime the police will endeavour to find out something more about the men. Their names are George Daly, William Connal and William Helliwell. On Sunday last they were found loitering in the township of Asphodel, and, according to Constable Dickson, were unable to give a satisfactory account of themselves. They claim to have migrated from Rhode Island, U.S.A., on the invitation of the Trent Woollen Company, Campbellford. They arrived in Campbellford on Thursday evening and worked on Friday evening. Hearing of a better job in Peterborough, the trio started out to walk, and were sixteen or seventeen miles out of Campbellford when arrested.

The men pleadded for a chance to go back to work, but the Court pointed out that their coming here had set their prospective employers back about seventy-nine dollars, and they had made no effort to pay this back.

With this Constable Dickson stepped forward and clamped a pair of bracelets on two of the men, preparatory to removing them to the chateau on the hill, where they will sojourn for one week.

Five Ottawa Priests Killed in Action

OTTAWA, Oct. 24—Five priests of the Ottawa Roman Catholic Diocese have given up their lives in the cause of Empire at the front, it was announced here to-day. Fathers Albert, Edouard, an dJustinian, of the Capuchin Monastery here, have been killed while with their regiments, and Father De Leglise, of the Oblate Order, stationed in Hull, and Father L. Bodo, a Marist father of Papineauville, have also met death on the battlefield. All were French reservists.

It is stated that the record for enlistments from one church parish in Canada is held by St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church here, 230 members of the congregation being with the Canadian expeditionary forces.

GUELPH MAN IS KILLED

GUELPH, Oct. 25.—During a brawl in the Italian quarter here, early this morning, George Vern was killed instantly, and the police to-day, with the assistance of blood-hounds, are endeavouring to find the murderers who have apparently escaped for the time being. The tragedy occurred, according to neighbours, just after midnight, and the police found Vern's body with the breast and abdomen pierced with buckshot. Traces of the suspected persons were found on the outskirts of the city and all Wellington county is now thoroughly alarmed and on the search for the murderers.

PETERBOROUGH MEN ARE LIVING LIKE KINGS ON THE FIRING LINE

Corp. W. A. McIntosh of the 21st Battalion, Says Boys Are All Well and None of Them Had Been Touched Up to the Time of Writing.

HAVE QUAKER OATS

Corp. W. A. McIntosh of the Peterborough detachment, 21st Battalion, 2nd Canadian contingent, in a letter to his mother, Mrs. A. McIntosh, 460 Cedar street, has the following to say:

Just a line or two to let you know I am still well and feeling fine. We have been in the trenches now for five days, so I guess we will soon be out again. We had a nice time so far, and a little more work would not go amiss. All the fellows from Peterborough are well and not one touched yet. We have not seen any papers since coming in, but I suppose they will be waiting for us when we go out.

Since we came in last we have lived like kings, as far as eating goes. We have porridge every morning, also bacon, bread and tea. We brought in a package of Quaker oats and a can or so of condensed milk, so that accounts for the porridge. For dinner to-day we had bacon, fried onions, potatoes, bread, cheese and coffee. I have a tapioca pudding under way for supper, so we are not doing so bad. The most peculiar of all is our stove. It is a very cheap one, but it sure cooks in a hurry. I fried my bacon, then onions and then boiled my coffee at noon in about fifteen minutes, and it takes about two minutes to boil a canteen of water. To make a stove you take a candle and cut it the same height as an empty tin can. We use a condensed milk can. Then you take a piece of an old sand bag and wrap around the candle till it just fits into the can. Then you melt more candle and let the wax soak into the sacking in the can. It is then ready for work and only needs a match, as the wax burns out of the sacking all you need to do is to melt a little more around it and it still continues to burn. It does not smoke at all, so of course the Germans do not get a chance of seeing our smoke.

If you are thinking of sending a piece of cake over at Christmas or anything before then, I wish you would send a pound or two of Indian rice. I think it would go pretty good over here. Or if you have any recipes that a person does not need, anything to make them with, send them along, too. I suppose we could use oatmeal instead of flour, and we can get condensed milk and a little bacon grease, salt, and an egg or two. We had a chocolate pudding the other day made of ground tapioca, condensed milk, water and some cocoa. It went pretty good, but our morning porridge seems to touch the right spot every time.

Peterborough Battery in Belgium Has Been in Recent Actions

Gunner Dorris Mentions Arrival of Wet Weather—Receives Overseas Club Tobacco—Requests Remembrance of Tommy Miller, Only Peterboro' Boy With Lieut. Matthews.

Mr. Bert Dorris has received the following letters from his brother, Gunner Ambrose Dorris:

Belgium, Oct. 9, 1915.

Dear Brother,—Just a few lines to let you know I am fine and dandy. I am writing this letter in a house where there are two dear little girls like Muriel. They are at the table watching me write this. Well, Bert, things are lively on this front. I have not been on leave yet.

The weather here is very disagreeable. We are getting rain every day, and have at present all kinds of mud. Well, dear brother, this war is not really started yet. We expect, and also hope and wish it would begin in real earnest all along the front. I think the sooner the better for all concerned.

We receive cigarettes and tobacco from the Overseas Club. About twice a month we receive a double issue. We have about sixty Peterborough boys in our battery. We also have Lieut. Matthews and his batman, Tommy Miller, from Peterborough. They are in the 2nd Battery, 1st Brigade. I see Tommy quite often. I gave him some of the tobacco Sergt. Williams mailed to me. I wish you would ask any society or club that is sending gifts to us in the 4th Battery to be kind enough to remember Tommy Miller. He and Lieut. Matthews are the only two Peterborough artillery men that came with the 1st contingent that are not in the 4th Battery. Tommy's address is

Gunner Tommy Miller,
2nd. Battery, 1st Brigade,
1st Canadian Contingent, Belgium.

I do not think that Gunner Miller has ever been remembered in any of the many gifts we receive in the 4th Battery from Peterborough.

Well, Bert, we are doing a little on this front now, but we expect to be doing far more before the end of the year.

Gunner Dorris, referring to the Y. M. C. A. stationery which he was using, called his brother's attention to the words: "Chris. Graham, Secretary," under the letterhead and with evident facetiousness, asked "How did he get over here?"

The tobacco Gunner Dorris mentioned was received from the "Moonlight" held by No. 3 Company of the 57th Regiment, and forwarded to the Battery boys. Another bumper parcel represented the funds from the Knights of Columbus garden party. It was received in due time but the latter accompanying it did not reach the front and it was not until Gunner Dorris made further enquiries that they learned the identity of the donors.

Port Hope Guide Scores Cobourg's Patriotic Fund

Northumberland and Durham Counties Have Largely Overdrawn

Cobourg, says the Port Hope Guide, has been boasting for a long time about the number of men she has sent to the front and about the liberal donations made to the Patriotic Fund. Sir Herbert Ames in his report regarding Cobourg and the Patriotic Fund says:

"Cobourg decided sometimes ago to raise whatever money was required for the relief of their soldiers' dependents by taxation. As a branch of our Fund they will draw as they require, and from time to time remit to cover the amount drawn from us. I find that under this agreement during the first fourteen months of the war the town of Cobourg sent to the Patriotic Fund $6,765.80, and the School Inspectorate $1,396.82, a total credit of $8,160.10, while there has been drawn from the fund $6,390.90, so that on October 1st Cobourg has drawn $1,269.10 more than they sent in.

In a letter received from Sir Herbert Ames, Honorary Secretary of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, he says:—I cannot but feel that this is a very poor showing for a well-to-do town like Cobourg. In fact, Northumberland and Durham Counties have been a disappointment to us. Not only have they not cared for their own families, but they have overdrawn $8,687.18." In regard to the method of raising funds for this purpose the Honorary Secretary makes this comment: — "I may say that this is the only branch in Canada which adopts this method: namely, of drawing on us in advance for what they need to care for their soldiers' wives and then paying us a couple of months afterward, with monies advanced by the municipal council. No collections appear to have been taken up among the citizens of Cobourg. Surely there must be some who have patriotic desires as yet unfulfilled."

Further, the Honorary Secretary's communication reads: "If every town in Canada took the position that Cobourg does, there would not only be no fund but in many parts of Canada the soldiers' wives would starve. It is only when well-to-do communities in the east raise what is needed for local requirements and a little more that such can be helped out. Cobourg is not only no help, but a drag on the Fund."

Sister to Dardanelles, Her Brother With 33rd Battery

Gunner Fred Doig Home From Barrefield For a Few Days—Sister Tells of Interesting Incident at Le Touquet Hospital—Cyclists Paid Visit to Patients.

Gunner Fred Doig of the 33rd Battery, Barrefield, is home on a few days' leave. He received a letter a short time ago from his sister, Miss Anna Doig, who is a nurse with No. 2 Canadian Stationary Hospital. It was written from Le Touquet, France, but in a more recent letter to her brother, Mr. Herbert Doig of North Monaghan, she stated that she was leaving for the Dardanelles.

The former letter from Le Touquet, written on Sept. 10th, follows in part:

This is a glorious day. The sun is shining beautifully, and there is a nice sea breeze. I've never felt the heat here yet and I don't suppose I will now that the weather has been perfect.

I understand that in the winter they have here it rains nearly all the time, so it makes it quite bleak. They don't have or use steam heat as we Canadians do. Still a rain coat, long rubber boots and southwester for me, and it can rain all it likes.

I got a package of Toronto papers this morning. I have them sent me every week. A great deal of recruiting still goes on in Toronto, and everybody seems to respond so nobly in every instance. The English "Tommies" we get our bond in their praises of the Canadian boys. They have certainly made a name for themselves all over the line. They say the Germans fear the Canadians more than any other troops. They are noted for their fearlessness and it is not at all hard to see what they have done. The casualties tell the story.

A number of boys I myself knew have been killed in action, others have received the D.S.O. (Distinguished Service Order.) Matron in Chief McDonald visits our hospital to-day, so I feel almost sure there will be some changes made. Our six keep wondering if it will effect us any. Already there have been a few transferred; still I don't care where I go, it matters very little. This is a very expensive place to keep up, though a very healthful and pretty spot. They have been numerous rumours on it being closed, but as yet it still exists and is doing good work.

My word I couldn't begin to explain a military hospital here. It would cover too much space, and then I might not make my self very clear. This morning a French Cycle Corp wheeled out here. They got off their wheels in front of the hospital and played on different instruments. (French selections.) It was fine and the patients were much pleased.

The officers gave the cyclists some cigarettes, etc., and the Sisters threw some out of the windows. My what a sight it was, nearly two hundred men, their rifles on their shoulders, packs on their backs, and such a scramble to catch the boxes as they fell, coming from all directions. You can picture a bunch of kiddies having a candy scramble. Well these men were quite child-like for the time being.

Miss Doig is a graduate of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, and is a Peterborough girl.

PETERBORO COLLEGIATE BEAT LINDSAY 7 TO 2

The Peterborough Collegiate Rugby team defeated Lindsay Collegiate in a hard fought battle at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon by 7 points to 3, leading at half-time by 6 to 1. It was a muddy struggle throughout, and there was very little to choose between the two teams. The local students won the game in the first half when Eastwood stole the ball near the Lindsay line and went over for a try. In the last period Lindsay were in possession a yard from Peterborough's line, but lost the ball for offside interference when it looked as if they would tie the score. "Art" Carew was the star of the Lindsay aggregation. For Peterborough Long did some good kicking, and Eastwood, Austin, and Green were always prominent.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lindsay.

Flying wing—Murchison.
Backs—A. Carew, Gregory and Conley.
Quarter—Dugan.
Scrimmage—Glenny, Crosser and McLeod.
Wings—Mitchell, Flemelle, Allely, Maunder, White and McCrea.

PETERBORO' BOYS IN THE 21st WILLING AND ARE DOING THEIR BIT

Corp. Frank Roberts, of the Canadian Army Medical Corps, Attached to the 21st Battalion, Tells of Some of Their Experiences in the Trenches.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

A member of the Examiner staff has received the following interesting letter from Corp. Frank Roberts, C.A.M.C., who is attached to the 21st Battalion, C.E.F., at the front:

CORP. FRANK ROBERTS

It seems age since I have written you or had a line from you, but I hope this will find you and all the boys in the office in the best of health, as it leaves me the same. You will be pleased to hear all the boys of Peterborough are well and are doing their duty for their king and country with great determination. I am sorry to say that one of the boys has a bullet through his foot being an accident which could easily have been avoided with a little more carefulness. We did not have the best of weather when in the trenches at the last place, but still we have to get used to this kind of weather, but it made the trenches very dirty, but they soon had board sidewalks put down, which made things more comfortable. We had a very nice dressing station, which was an evacuated farm house, surrounded by trees just at the rear of the trenches, so the wounded could soon be admitted. I have their wounds attended to, which I might say have not been very serious, so to speak, but you soon get used to seeing a man brought in with wounds which get your nerves hardened to seeing ghastly sights. But up to the present we have had but little such sights. We had our Canadian artillery all around our dressing station, so it was a common occurrence to have a heavy bombardment, which would shake the houses from top to bottom, and then at times the Germans would return the compliment to try and find their guns, but it was impossible, as our boys are too clever in concealing their guns. So we often had a few shells explode in our vicinity which did no damage. It was a bang, whiz, explosion, no damage, with the German shells. When they did explode when they fell in the trenches, they did but little damage as regards casualties. Of course we have had several men hit, but you expect men to get hit sometimes, But our boys have certainly been lucky in not having more casualties. Our boys have had the highest praise from our Brigadier-General, Lord Brooke, to their ability in the trenches and their discipline. He said they took over the trenches from a British regiment, the East Surreys, just as if they had been used to the trenches for years. He spoke well of the boys, which gave them more encouragement. Lord Brooke is certainly a gentleman and a soldier from the word go, of which we are all very proud, to have such a brilliant soldier as our leader. I have not seen any of the 1st contingent boys of Peterborough up to the time of writing. We were relieved from our last trenches by the 1st contingent which consisted of the 1st and 9th Battalion of the 1st Brigade. I did hear the 2nd were also in the district, which is part of the 1st Brigade, but did not have the pleasure of seeing any of the boys. Where we are billeted now is a farm house with the occupants still living and working the farm. They say the French stayed about three weeks and had 250 horses here, and nearby is a small grove in which it is said the Germans crucified one of the Princess Pats on one of the trees. The wire from which he was supposed to have hung from but there is nothing on the tree to mark the crucifixion, so whether it is the original tree or not I don't know. The aeroplanes are very active all the time, but no sooner do they approach than the aircraft are after them with their guns and they soon beat it, so to speak. It is like being at the fair at night time, as both we and the Germans use the starlights, which are like fireworks, which make it almost as light as day. This is certainly a war of science, but we have not the least doubt that we shall come out victorious. It is a sad sight to see so many of the soldiers' graves along the road sides and in the fields, but they have a small wooden cross with their names on, so if any of their loved ones wished at any time to find them they could do so. If possible all will have a decent burial and the graves marked. We have had two killed and both were buried by our chaplain, Capt. Kidd. There is much war news that I would like to write about, but as all our letters have to be censured, it is impossible to write more, so will close with best wishes to all at home and friends. Hoping to hear from you when you find time. I must say your papers are certainly read with pleasure. It is interesting to read as to what is going on in Peterborough. They are certainly doing their share and I am sure the city will be proud of her sons who have offered their lives for a right and just cause, and those who are spared to return after a glorious victory will have a good reception. Well, old boy, it's getting bed-time, and I am retiring early as often as I can to catch up some of the sleep while in billets, as it has been very late before I have been able to retire, as in our lines we never know as to when we have to get out and attend to some poor fellow that has been wounded, but I never mind as to how often I have to get up as long as I can do my part to relieve their sufferings.

Good-night, with best wishes.

From your old friend,
50926 Capt. F. C. Roberts,

Nurses Lionize Young Canadian Bugler Who Wins a D. C. M.

LONDON, Oct. 25 The staff and patients of the Duchess of Connaught's Canadian Hospital at Cliveden were keenly interested in a young visitor who arrived there straight from the front. He was dressed in khaki which gave evidence of recent association with the trenches; he bore a rifle, and carried a soldier's pack. The youth was a puzzle to many, who watched him with amazement. He had not come for treatment; he was sound in wind and limb, and marched like an "old hand."

It was not long before the boy soldier was the centre of an admiring group, and he speedily revealed the object of his visit. He was Anthony Ginley, the boy bugler of the Royal Montreal Regiment, whose persistence won for him a place at the front, and whose work—so we have been informed—has resulted in his being recommended for the D. C. M.

Worked on a Farm.

The lad was searching for Capt. Richardson, the hospital quartermaster. He was introduced to the officers' mess, and very shortly after the nurses had him in their parlour. A photographer then appeared. The boy, in fact, was the lion of the institution, and produced a thrill of pleasureable excitement in all the wards.

Ginley is of Scottish parentage but an orphan. His father died when he was about eighteen months old, and he afterwards went with his mother from Scotland to Canada. The mother died about three years ago, and Major Woodside, of the Canadian Heavy Brigade, took an interest in the lad, engaging him to work on a small farm which he has near Ottawa. When war broke out Major Woodside volunteered for active service. The boy was also eager to go, but as he was so young his employer did not feel able to consent. The lad was so insistent, however, that Major Woodside agreed to his joining the 14th Montreal Battalion as a bugler.

Keen for Service.

With the battalion Ginley came to England and crossed with them to France last February. He was as keen as mustard for active service, and prayed to be allowed to accompany the men to the trenches. He was told that he would have to shoulder a rifle, and declared himself quite equal to it. In the time he has been in France, Ginley has grown three inches. He was present at both battles of Ypres and also at Festubert. Once he received a small flesh wound, and was straightway given attention at a dressing station. Shortly after he was missed from that party of wounds (, it was discovered he had returned straight to the firing line.

Recently he was granted seven days' leave in order to visit Captain Richard on at Cliveden and some friends in Scotland. He spent a full day at Cliveden, then proceeded to Scotland and afterwards returned to his regiment at the front.

Brussels Nurse One of The Great Martyrs Of Centuries

"I Have no Fear Nor Shrinking" Final Words of Miss Edith Cavell to Her Spiritual Adviser---Gave Life For Country

LONDON, Oct. 23—The British foreign office have made public the report of the Rev. H. S. T. Gahan, the British chaplain in Brussels, who visited Miss Edith Cavell just before her execution, and a letter from Brand Whitlock, the American minister to Belgium, to Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador in London. In his letter Mr. Whitlock says he requested that the body of Miss Cavell be delivered to the School for Nurses of which she was the directress, his request being referred to the Ministry of War in Berlin.

The Rev. Mr. Gahan in his report says:

"On Monday evening, the 11th of October I was admitted by a special passport from the German authorities to the Prison of St. Gilles, where Miss Edith Cavell had been confined for ten weeks. The final sentence had been given early that afternoon.

"To my astonishment and relief, I found my friend perfectly calm and resigned, but this could not lessen the tenderness and intensity of feeling on either part during that last interview of almost an hour.

"Her first words to me were upon a matter concerning herself personally, but the solemn asseveration which accompanied them was made expressedly in the light of God and eternity. She then added that she wished all her friends to know that she willingly gave her life for her country, and said:

"I have no fear nor shrinking. I have seen death so often that it is not strange or fearful to me."

She further said:

"I thank God for this ten weeks of quiet before the end. My life has always been hurried and full of difficulties, this time the rest has been a great mercy. They have all been very kind to me here. But this I would say, standing as I do in view of God and eternity. I realize that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness towards anyone."

"We partook of Holy Communion together and she received the Gospel message of consolation with all her heart. At the close of the little service I began to repeat the words, 'Abide with Me,' and she joined softly in the end.

"We sat quietly talking until it was time for me to go. She gave me parting messages for relatives and friends. She spoke of her soul's needs at the moment and she received the assurance of God's words as only a Christian can do.

"We Shall Meet Again."

"Then I said good-bye, and she smiled and said, 'We shall meet again.'

"A German military chaplain was with her at the end and afterwards gave her a Christian burial. He told me:

"She was brave and bright to the last. She professed her Christian faith and said she was glad to die for her country. She died like a heroine."

Mr. Whitlock in enclosing the letter he wrote to Baron von der Lancken, the German Governor, at the request of President Fauder, of the Court of Appeals in Brussels, and the president of the Belgian School for Nurses, asking that Miss Cavell's body be delivered to the School for Nurses, of which she was the directress, says:

"I have not received a written reply to my note to Baron Lancken on the subject but he came to see me yesterday afternoon and stated that the body had been interred near the prison of St. Gilles, where the execution took place, and that, under the regulations governing such cases, it was impossible to exhume the body without written permission from the Minister of War at Berlin.

He added that he had no authority to ask for permission to exhume the body, but that immediately upon the return of the Governor-General he would request him to take the matter up.

"I shall hope to be able to tell you that we have at least been able to accomplish this small service."

Miss Cavell Died Bravely.

Edith Cavell, the English nurse executed by the Germans at Brussels died bravely. When she was put to death by a Teuton firing squad in the darkness of early morning on October 2, despite the efforts of the American Legation to save her life, she showed the same calmness as she displayed before the court-martial. She refused to be blindfolded.

A despatch from Amsterdam quotes her as saying to her executioners: "I am not afraid to die." It states that when Miss Cavell faced the firing squad, she wore the nursing uniform which had been her costume in the hospital where she nursed British, Belgian and German soldiers alike. On her bosom she had pinned a small Union Jack. The firing squad that killed Miss Cavell consisted of Landsturm soldiers from the Brussels garrison. Some of its members wept as they obeyed the order to fire.

Execution was Inhuman.

The Hague, Oct. 22 Indignant over the execution of Miss Edith Cavell, the Nieuwe Courant, after relating the story of her execution, calls her "one of the great martyrs of centuries," but recognized the fact that by sheltering her own countrymen, who were enemies of Germany, she committed a punishable crime. "But the execution was inhuman," the paper declares. "The Germans apparently desired to give a terrorizing example which, however, only aroused embitterment and strengthened the opinion in neutral countries that Germany is ruling Belgium with unnecessary cruelty and harshness."

CONVICTS SMUGGLE CASH AND TOBACCO

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 25—That certain convicts in the penitentiary have been supplied with "dope" tobacco and money is the information which leaked out and it is further stated that as a result of the finding of the goods, an investigation is now being made to find out by what means these forbidden luxuries were obtained.

It is claimed that an underground system of getting letters in and out of the prison is also in practice.

Blacklister in Police Court

Magistrate Dumble Dismisses Case —Claims That Police Failed to Warn Prisoner

Because the police failed to produce sufficient evidence to convince the court that a prisoner had been properly warned of the potential use that might be made of any statement or admission made to the public, the case against Thomas Church was dismissed. Church was charged with having supplied a blacklister with liquor contrary to the act. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Church, and entered a plea of not guilty. The case was progressing nicely when Magistrate Dumble asked the police officer who was testifying, if Church had been properly warned that any statement made to the police might be used as evidence against him. The officer replied that the accused had been charged in the regular way. The court assumed that the charge referred to the offence in question and did not imply a warning. The Court declared the case dismissed and Mr. Gordon and his client stalked out of the courtroom.

A Five Dollar Drunk.

A local man was charged with being drunk on the Sabbath. He pleaded guilty and was fined five dollars, which is the usual fine for a Sunday drunk. Mr. Gordon pointed out that the drunk was carried over from Saturday night. The accused was unable to throw it off in one night. This observation had the effect of intercepting any further enquiries regarding the source of the liquor supply.

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT ASSEMBLY HALL

The special meetings in the Assembly Hall presented a very favourable and encouraging outlook at the opening meeting last night, by quite a large number being represented. All were favourably impressed with the speaker, Mr. R. McEvory, a few years out from the North of Ireland, where he was converted some twenty-four years ago. Last night he addressed the meeting from two Scriptures, Timothy 1:15, and John 14:3, defining two distinct comings of the Lord Jesus Christ, one past, and the other yet future. He mentioned that time is counted from the first coming as A. D. 1915, so that in writing the date an infidel, while openly denying this coming is, in reality, acknowledging it. The eternal pre-existence of the Son of God was dwelt upon at length, as also the object of the coming not being to teach man how to live but to redeem fallen men and women. Reference was then made to the future coming as the bright prospect ahead of every believer, and a very enjoyable meeting was brought to a close after a few words from Mr. N. P. Douglas.

An open-air meeting was held before the meeting outside the hall. Quite a number of people were on the streets and heard the Gospel message and an invitation to the meetings being held forth by Mr. Douglas and Mr. Walter Anderson.

The object of these meetings is to help and cheer the people of God and bring the Gospel before the unsaved.

Mrs. Gayboy—Tom the pastor is coming to make a call this evening and I want you to treat him with proper respect. Gayboy—"Sure! What do you want me to do. Mr. G——? Don't talk about any of the things you are interested in. Exchange.

Former Peterborough Boy Killed While Running Threshing Machine

(From the Cupar Herald.)

It is with deepest regret we have to record the death, under most painful circumstances, of one of our best known young men, Mr. Harry McConnell, formerly of Peterborough, Ont., second son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. McConnell, aged 20 years, which occurred at 8.00 o'clock on Friday morning last.

Harry had finished threshing at his own place on Thursday and had moved the outfit, a Hart Parr gasoline engine and separator, up to his brother Ernest's farm, about seven miles south of town. He was up at 4:30 on Friday morning, set the machine ready for threshing before anyone else was out to the field, going back and eating his breakfast feeling in the best of spirits. After breakfast, Harry and the rest of the men on the outfit went out to the machine and started threshing in earnest. They had not threshed more than ten bushels when the men feeding into the belt side of the separator looked towards the engine and saw Harry hanging by his arm to the drive pulley for a second, then dropping to the ground. On examination it was found that his arm was badly mangled and the right side of his head had been severely crushed, rendering him unconscious.

Dr. Stuart and Dr. Rutledge were immediately called and were quickly on the scene, but Harry was beyond medical care and died twenty minutes after being struck without regaining consciousness. Dr. Guyatt, coroner of Lipton, was called, but decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Just how the accident happened will never be known, but it is conjectured that the clutch was slipping a little and Harry went to push it in by hand and lost his balance, his arm being caught in the pulley which swung him around, striking his head on the rear iron wheel of the engine.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, an impressive service being conducted by the Rev. J. K. Irwin in St. Mary's church, which was crowded to overflowing with mourners and sympathetic friends. The casket was covered with beautiful floral tributes, which consisted of a Broken Pillow from Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. McConnell and family; Wreath, from Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Haw; Cross, from Mrs. Baker and family; Wreath, from Mr. and Mrs. Snook and family; Anchor, from the citizens and young men of Cupar, and flowers from Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. Shannon, all of which spoke of peace, purity and immortality. At the close of the service the Dead March was beautifully rendered by Mr. Clem. Jessup the sad cortege leaving the church meanwhile, to proceed to the cemetery, where interment took place after the last sad rites were administered.

The funeral procession was over half a mile long, about a hundred rigs and automobiles conveying the three or four hundred grieving friends to the cemetery to pay their last respects to the departed.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Wm Barr, R. Wiley, A. Newkirk, P. Clarke, F. Snook and F. Whiskin.

Harry McConnell was born in Kenhs, near Abernethy, and moved to Cupar with his parents about six years ago. He had been running a farm for himself for the past three years, and had just completed threshing a crop of 10,000 bushels. Harry was one of the sturdiest and most promising young men and was of a bright, happy and cheerful disposition, enjoying life to the full and had a bright future in store. His early death has brought the bitter cup of sorrow to the lips of friends and relatives.

He leaves to mourn their loss a father and a mother residing at Kenhs, two brothers, Bruce and Frank and three sisters Edith at home, Mrs. Haw of Cupar, and Mrs. Carmichael of Calgar, all of whom were present at the funeral.

To the bereaved, we join with their many friends in extending heartfelt sympathy in their deep affliction.

If the top of your range has become red from overheating rub it over with vinegar before blackening, and mix the blacking with a little ammonia and a few drops of turpentine.

Ex-Navy Minister Got Twenty Recruits

Twenty recruits and $1500 were raised in Madoc township last week, following patriotic addresses by Rev. Mr. Williams of Cambray, who served twenty-one years in the British navy. FATHER REGAINS CHILDREN AFTER WILD AUTO RACE

Daughters of Wealthy Jamestown Lumberman Kidnapped From School by Mother --Rushed Across the State Line

JAMESTOWN, Oct. 25.—Rosalin Kent, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan R. Kent, and her sister, Juline, 11 years old, were kidnapped from school by their mother and taken in a high powered automobile across the state line into Pennsylvania. Their father, in whose custody the children were by court order when the Kent divorce was granted some months ago in Boston, Mass., pursued the fleeing mother, caught up with her at Russell, Pa., and forcibly regained possession of the children. He brought them back to Jamestown, where they are closely guarded at the Kent home, at Prodergast avenue and East Fourth street.

All the parties are well known and members of the wealthiest and most exclusive social circles of the city.

Wealthy Lumber Man.

The family troubles of the Kents were aired in the courts last winter and spring. They had lived here for about 12 years succeeding their marriage, and Kent, who is the heir of A. M. Kent, is one of the wealthiest oil and lumber men in this section, a director in half a dozen banks, leading business man and manufacturer. The affair culminated in Mrs. Kent's leaving town. A well known young physician was thereupon named as co-respondent in the divorce action Kent brought against his wife in the courts of this county. The case never went to trial, compromise being effected under which Kent was divorced by his wife in the courts of Massachusetts some months ago, but given the custody of the children.

Engagement Announced.

Since the divorce Kent has been living here with his father, and the two children. Less than a week ago his engagement to wed Iva Elizabeth Poor daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Poor of Cincinnati, was announced.

Wednesday, Mrs. Kent came to Jamestown, accompanied by a friend whom she introduced as a Christian Science practitioner and companion. Mr. Kent met her ostensibly to discuss some business matters. They took luncheon together at a hotel, and she and her friend left in the evening saying they would return to Buffalo.

At 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, just as the children at the Central branch school were taking their seats, an automobile containing two heavily veiled women and a man, besides the chauffeur, stopped on Fourth street in front of the school. This is but a block and a half from the Kent home. The man went to the door of the school room, asked for Juline Kent, and showed his deputy sheriff badge, and said she was wanted outside. He hurried her into a waiting auto, and they drove rapidly to the East Second Street Grammar school, where the same performance was repeated, and Rosalin, the older girl, was hurried into the car. Then the car dashed south, over Foote avenue, toward the Pennsylvania state line.

Races in Pursuit.

Twenty minutes late word reached Mr. Kent, who was at the Hotel Samuels, as to what had happened. He had his new racing car out in front, and he raced to Police headquarters learned the facts, took in Officer Hayes and started for the Pennsylvania state line after the other car.

Two miles over the line on the road toward Warren, they came in sight of a car speeding south ahead of them. Near Russell, Pa., the road widened out, giving Kent a chance to open his throttle and go by the other car. As they passed Kent saw the children huddled in the back seat. A quarter of a mile farther on, Kent swung his car across the road, and brought the other car to a stop.

Man Pulls Gun.

He was in the road when the other car stopped, and the man on the iron seat, it is claimed, pulled a gun.

"Get out of our road," he yelled.

Instead of getting out, Kent rushed him and grabbed his gun, wresting it out of his hand.

Officer Hayes was on the other side of the car, and he grabbed for the children. Kent says they came willingly, the older one scrambling out of the car and calling, "Papa! Papa!" before the car stopped.

With the weapon in their possession and the two children, Kent drew his car to one side of the road, turned around, and started back for Jamestown. They made no effort to get warrants or make any arrests and do not know where the other car went or who its occupants were, except that one of the women on the rear seat, it is claimed, was the former Mrs. Morgan Kent. She was positively identified by both Mr. Kent and by Officer Hayes. Kent returned to Jamestown

TO CORRECT STOOP-SHOULDERS.

You should always remember to use the muscles of the waist instead of the shoulder muscles in sweeping. Many cases of stoop-shoulders are the result of leaning forward from the shoulders instead of making the back bend from the hips. This attitude strains the muscles between the shoulders, throws the body forward out of position. The result is drooping shoulders and a hollow chest.

A very pleasant time was held on Thursday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lawrence, when a birthday party was held in honour of her daughter, Miss Violet Lawrence. Her son, Pte. Harold Lawrence, who is at present gone to the front, was not forgotten through the evening, when a toast was read in honour of him. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence are fortunate enough to have a son who was ready when the call was sounded to fight for his country and who is at the present time in England, waiting the time to do his bit with the many brave Peterborough boys. The party was largely attended.

The band will give a first-class programme, supplementing the pictures. There should be a big attendance.

Society Woman Develops Tetanus

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—Slight scratches from the saddle, received while riding to hounds or cross country with members of the smart hunting set of the Main Line, are held responsible for the development of the tetanus in Mrs. H. Radcliffe Roberts, a prominent figure in social and hunting circles, who is critically ill at Green Bank Farm, her husband's estate in Villa Nova.

Symptoms of tetanus developed three days ago. While physicians believe there was improvement in Mrs. Roberts' condition sufficient to warrant hope of her ultimate recovery, it was admitted that her condition is very grave.

Before her marriage Mrs. Roberts was Miss Eleanor Butcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Butcher. She always has been an enthusiastic horsewoman and always has taken a prominent part in horse shows and hunts.

Nothing was thought of the scratches until last Thursday, when rigidity set in. Physicians were summoned, and they detected the dread symptoms of tetanus. Everything known to science was done to check the disease, but until now no improvement could be noted.

Had Eczema 20 Years

Cured by Zam-Buk

Mr. Joseph Johnson, 584 Broome St., New York, writes: "Over twenty years ago eczema appeared on my hands and face. I went to a doctor, but his treatment afforded only temporary relief. Finding medical attention and treatment of little avail I commenced to try first one and then another of the so-called remedies which were recommended, but for over twenty years I suffered from this painful, humiliating disease. During this time I spent hundreds of dollars and all I got was temporary relief. At last Zam-Buk was suggested to me; I decided to give it a trial, but did not expect a cure.

"The first few applications proved this remedy entirely different to the scores of preparations I had used in vain. Perseverance with Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap, I am more than glad to say, has effected a complete cure.

"Zam-Buk is beyond all question a marvellous preparation and I most heartily recommend it to all sufferers from eczema."

Think of it, suffering day in and day out for twenty years! Think of the grip this disease must have had on the entire system! Think of the healing power of Zam-Buk which, despite the long-standing nature of the disease, effected a cure! How much more easily and more quickly the cure could have been effected had Zam-Buk been applied at the outset!

If you suffer from any skin disease or injury, piles, ulcer, abscess, rheumatism or sciatica, take this lesson to heart. Try Zam-Buk first and give it a fair trial.

At all druggists and stores, or post-paid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c box, 3 for $1.25. Zam-Buk Soap, 25c tablet. Send 1c stamp, this ad and name of paper, and we will mail you free sample of Zam-Buk.

New Greek Cabinet Under Venizelos May Be Formed

THE ENEMY IS MAKING PROGRESS AGAINST THE SERBS

French With Serb Allies Sweep North Through The Vardar Valley

Contingent From Salonica is Moving on a Broad Front Bulgarian Army Moving Down From Kestendil Has Passed Kumanova.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—French troops who have joined with the Serbs above the Greek frontier have been engaged for the last two days with a strong force of Bulgarians south of Strumitza. The French contingent is receiving constant reinforcements from Salonika and is expanding its operations until its left wing rests on the Nish-Salonika railway and its right is near the Serbo-Bulgarian border below Strumitza. With this front it is sweeping up the Vardar and the mountains to the east and has cleared the intervening country of invaders as far as Gracko.

The Bulgarian army moving down the national highway from Kestendil has passed Kumanova and has captured Uskob after a hard battle, according to an official report sent Sunday night from Sofia. This places another important Bulgar army across the allied path to Nish. Uskob is an important junction on the railroad to Salonika and is a little more than forty miles south of Vranja, where the line was cut first.

The Austro-German army under Field Marshal von Mackensen has begun a more vigorous offensive along the Danube by forcing a crossig of the river at Orsava. Arsava is situated almost at the point where the Serbian, Hungarian and Roumanian frontiers meet and is nearly opposite the zone in which the Bulgars, crossing the narrow neck of land separating Bulgaria from the Danube, will debouch from the mountains. The last reports Monday night placed them in possession of Negotin and brings them much nearer to a linking up with the Teutonic armies.

Success is not being achieved without heavy losses, as the Serbian veterans, well intrenched in their mountains, are offering stubborn resistance and are making the invaders pay a big price for every mile of country invaded.

Advices from Athens say important steps are being taken by the Allies to hel ptheir small partner. Additional troops are being landed at Salonika, Bulgarian ports in the Aegean and Black Seas are being bombarded, and it is believed men and munitions will be sent to Serbia by still another route. Without the active co-operation of Greece and Roumania, however, the Allies, it is feared here, will not be able to do much for some weeks.

The Russian troops who landed at Domesnes, Courland, have, according to Berlin, re-embarked. If this is so, it is probable the landing was intended as a diversion, in the hope of drawing German troops from the Riga and Dvinsk regions, where very heavy fighting is still in progress.

There is no news of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's drive toward the Dvina, southeast of Riga, but northwest of Dvinsk he has made attempts to attempt to reach the river and says he has forced the Russians from their positions, inflicting great losses on them and taking nearly three thousand prisoners. Illoukst, which has figured prominently in al lthe recent communications, has been captured by the Germans.

The persistence with which the Germans are attacking in this region shows the importance they attach to the capture of Dvinsk and Riga and the line of the Dvina River before winter sets in.

On the rest of the eastern front the Russians continue their isolated attacks, which are designed to prevent the Germans from establishing a line of intrenchments such as they succeeded in doing before Warsaw last year after the first attempts to take the city failed.

VENIZELOS IS THREATENED WITH EXILE.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The rumour is current that the Hellenic government, which is permitting Bulgarian reservists to return to their homes through Greece, has warned Mr. Venizelos that he must cease his relations with the Entente Powers or be expelled. There is a general feeling in Rome that King Constantine is playing a perfidious role, and the hope is expressed that the Powers of the Entente will force him to live up to his obligations to assist Serbia or declare for Germany.

ROYAL SYMPATHY FOR MOTHER.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Queen Alexandra has sent a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Cavell, mother of Miss Edith Cavell, the nurse put to death by the Germans. Though eighty years old, Mrs. Cavell is still very active in occupying and interesting herself in her household duties, but the tragedy of her daughter's heroic death naturally has tended to take her mind away from the day's normal round.

To a friend who remarked that pride in the possession of such a daughter ought to outweigh all tendencies teward grief, Mrs. Cavell made the reply:—

"Yes, as you say, my daughter died the death of a martyr, and that thought is sustaining me, and certainly does make me proud, but I am also a mother, with a mother's feelings, and for all my pride in my daughter's heroism I cannot help feeling sorely grieved."

OBITUARY

WILLIAM FITZPATRICK.

There passed away at his home on the fourth concession of Dummer on Monday morning [illegible] one of the township's best known natives in the person of William Fitzpatrick, aged 49 years. Through his last illness covering a period of nearly two years, while gradually sinking with pernicious anaemia, he was buoyed up by his characteristic genial disposition radiating to the very last and ameliorating to a large degree his condition and that of those who were nearest and dearest to him. Talented with a keen sense of humor, and a friendly disposition and quick at repartee always modestly employed, made of him a most desirable acquaintance. His absence will be greatly felt in the community and at his late home, where one sister, Elizabeth, and two brothers, Patrick and Daniel remain. He was predeceased by three brothers, John, who was a Doctor of Medicine, and practised in Chicago, Charles who died at home, and Phillip in infancy. Other brothers and sisters are Timothy in the lumber business at Boville, Idaho; Dennis, farming near Saskatoon, Sask., Michael ranching in California; Mrs. William Ray in California and Mrs. Martin Carrol of Donegal, Emily township.

The largely attended funeral which took place on Wednesday was an evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held. Rev. Father Galvin delivered an excellent address over the remains at the Roman Catholic church, Norwood, after which interment took place in the Roman Catholic cemetery in Asphodel.

MRS. HERB. ROSBOROUGH.

The death occurred yesterday after a year's illness, of Jennie Hetherington, wife of Herbert Roseborough, 7th concession of Smith. The deceased was one of the best known women in Smith Township and her death will be deeply regretted by a host of friends. Her husband and three sons Sherman, Archie, and Bruce, are left to mourn her loss. Seven sisters and one brother also survive her. The sisters are Mrs. Patterson of Essex, Mrs. Watson, Dunro; Mrs. Roseborough, Smith; Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Sweetapple and Misses Annie and Susie of Lakefield. The brothers Mr. James Hetherington of this city.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday, at 2 o'clock from the family residence to the Lakefield cemetery.

FRY.

Miss Mary Fry, daughter of the late Edward and Catherine Fry, died in Nicholls Hospital, on Monday afternoon, October 25th. The deceased was born and had spent her whole life in Peterborough, and is survived by two sisters, Mrs. T. H. Armstrong of Marion, Indiana, and Miss Isabella Fry of this city, also one brother, H. R. Fry of Mexico. Miss Fry was a life-long member of the Episcopal Church and the funeral will be announced by Rev. Canon Davidson from Comstock's undertaking parlours, on Wednesday, October 27th, at 2.30 o'clock.

Louise Frenay, was shot at Liege. The correspondent says the aim of the German firing squad was not accurate, and that, as in the case of Miss Edith Cavell in similar circumstances, the commanding officer was obliged to put Mme. Frenay to death by shooting her through the head with his revolver.

Rain Cycle's Over, Hard Winters Begin

PARIS, Oct 26.—The world's rain cycle, beginning in 1868, which the French meteorological authority, Abbe Moraux, director of the Bourges Observatory, predicted as the result of his study of the sun's face, is now, the the Abbe says, ended. He forecasts a series, though not perhaps quite unbroken, of twenty-six hard winters, beginning the present year.

According to the Abbe, it is impossible to say where in Europe the winter cold will be excessive, but probabilities are France will have to face many rigorous winter seasons during this period. He bases his prophesy regarding coming winter temperatures upon the supposition that the temperature curve all over the world can be calculated on the same principles as the world's rain curve.

MOTHER! YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH FROM CONSTIPATION

If Tongue is Coated, Breath Bad, Stomach Sour, Clean Liver and Bowels

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful today often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, won't rest, eating and acting naturally, look Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Four Men Already Under Arrest in Plot to Blow Up Munitions For Allies

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.— With four men already under arrest in the widening plot to prevent ammunition from reaching Germany's enemies by blowing up trans-Atlantic vessels from the United States and Canadian ports, the police and the secret service were actively to-day centred on the search for Max Breitung, the fifth member of the alleged conspiracy. Three men in the Weehawken, N.J., jail— Robt. Fay, whom the police say is the "brains" of the plot, Walter Scholz, his brother-in-law, and Paul Daeche—will be arraigned before Justice Rander to-day for pleas of conspiracy charges. The fourth, Dr. Herbert Keinzel, inventor and engineer, is held in the Tombs in default of $25,000 bail.

Why They're Sold

WINNIPEG, May 19th, 1914.

"In the autumn of 1911, I suffered with a continual pain in the back. As a druggist, I tried various remedies without any apparent results. Having sold GIN PILLS for a number of years, I thought there must be good in them, otherwise the sales would not increase so fast. I gave them a fair trial and the results I find to be good."

FORD WANTS $1,000,000 OF CANADA'S WAR LOAN

Head of Great Automobile Concern is Strongly for the Allies.

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—An official announcement has come from this company that Henry Ford is strongly pro-British and that, as evidence of this, he would subscribe the first $1,000,000 to the Canadian war loan when and if one is issued.

Mr. Ford declared to Mr. Gordon MacGregor: "Tell the people of the Dominion for me that I am with them heart and soul."

The Manager of the Canadian Ford Company, Mr. MacGregor, stated: "A hundred times Mr. Ford has sent for me to come over and bring some Canadian newspapers, and by the hour we have calculated how the allies were going to triumph."

CHURCH TO BECOME MEMORIAL TO HERO

Father of Soldier Who Fell at Bethune Sends Help to Church Fund

LONDON, Oct 26.—A cheque for $125 has been sent to Canon Beal, secretary of the Archbishops' Western Canada Fund, towards the erection of a church at Bethune, Sask. A short time ago a young Englishman, named Jack Harrison, whose parents live at Yelverton, Somerset, fell in action at Bethune, in France. His parents contemplated putting up a memorial in the form of a mural tablet, or some piece of church fabric, in the local parish church. This was discussed by Mr. Harrison with Rev. H. E. Sawbridge, rector of Diss, Norfolk, who was formerly engaged in Western Canada as one of the Archbishops' Fund missionaries. "Why not commemorate your boy's heroism by helping to provide a church where it will be badly needed, perhaps by many of our soldiers, who will emigrate after the war," suggested the rector. Mr. Harrison at once acquiesced, and diverted his gift accordingly.

Now Canon Beal is anxious to see this example followed by others who may be desirous of raising some memorial to their fallen ones, and he would like to see this proposed church, as well as one or two others, erected entirely as war memorial churches.

Preferred Death To Matrimony

PHILADELPHIA, Oct 26. The body of Harvey Herman, of New Haven, Conn., and fiancee of Miss Edith Todd, of No. 582 Franklin avenue, Brooklyn, who disappeared a few days before they were to be married, was found here in a hotel. A hose attached to a gas jet was in his mouth. The police pronounced his death a suicide. He has registered as J. H. Husted, Trenton, N.J. Letters found in his pocket were addressed to Herman at New Haven.

Herman was the adopted son of George M. Griswold, a wealthy New Haven manufacturer. He was to have married Miss Todd on October 20. The day previous she received a message from him saying that he would call at the Franklin avenue address, the home of Mrs. Mary French, Miss Todd's aunt, to discuss wedding arrangements. He asked his fiancee to meet him at the Grand Central Station. Miss Todd waited in vain. When Herman failed to appear she communicated with Mr. Griswold. That night she went to New Haven to help in the search. She learned that Herman had left home October 20, and that his foster parents thought he was in Brooklyn. Miss Todd passed the day set for her wedding in New Haven and in New York searching for her fiancee.

Fate has played strange games with Herman. As a boy he sold newspapers on the streets of New Haven, where Mr. Griswold first saw him. The manufacturer was attracted by him, and adopted him. He was thirty years old.

AN ACT OF KINDNESS

"BE kindly affectioned one to another."—Rom. 12: 10.

Here is a story, the contents of which are vouched for as being the truth: At the inauguration of a United States Governor, a large public reception was being held. Two little girls pushed their way timidly through the crowd. They were not as well dressed as other children, but their clothes were neat and clean and their faces showed anxiety. The Governor's private secretary noted their presence and asked them if they wanted to meet the Governor. The girls were abashed and showed their confusion in being paid this attention and shrank back, but the secretary pressed them for a reply. At last the older girl timidly replied: "We don't want that, but we want something else."

"What would you like?" asked the secretary.

"We'd like that flower on your coat," volunteered the smaller one. "Papa is sick at home and couldn't come, and we'd like to take him a flower."

She was given the flower—a large American Beauty rose. It made her so happy that she broke down and cried. Then it was that willing hands stripped several of the vases and the two little ones were given all the flowers they could carry home to the sick papa—and to cap the climax, the Governor's auto took them home.

This is a simple story, but does it not contain a world of love and devotion, the like of which we seldom see. A significant feature of the narrative is that these little girls cared not for the great display of beautiful things and richly dressed guests at the grand reception. Their one ambition was to secure a flower for papa. Henry Ward Beecher has said that "flowers are the sweetest things that God ever made and forgot to put a soul into," and we can easily imagine that the father of these children would fully appreciate this sentiment when his little girls returned.

How much better this old world would be if more of us would take a lesson in kindness and sympathy from the above illustration. Some one has said that there is more power in tenderness and sympathy than in a dynamo. It is of such a different kind that perhaps no comparison is possible, but if the two can be in any way compared, the difference is all in favor of the power of kindness. Such a power is surely worth striving for.—M. M. R.

Limited Knowledge in the Klondike

The late Congressman W. W. Wedemeyer used to tell a story of rain in the Klondike, says the Denver Post. He was going up the Yukon on a government junket, and the sky drizzled all the way. At one landing a dejected-looking "sourdough" stood on the wharf awaiting the boat.

"I say, partner," asked Wedemeyer, "how long has it been raining?"

"Dunno," was the reply, "I've only been here 18 years."

Blue Otonabee

Upon the gory battlefield,
After the fierce wild fray,
Shattered by bursting shrapnel shell
A gallant soldier lay,
Life's vital tide; with crimson dyed,
His bed of trampled sand,
And by him knelt a sister
Of our noble Red Cross band.
Lately he'd come from Canada,
Beyond the distant sea,
Where Peterboro's turrets rise,
By blue Otonabee.

Chill, heavy on his pallid brow,
Lay damp the deathly dew,
And that all earthly hope was vain,
Full well the sister knew,
Yet to relieve those mortal wounds
With tenderest skill she tried,
And softly told the story old,
Of Jesus Crucified.
With faltering voice the soldier said
"I ne'er again shall see
My native land, and those I love,
By blue Otonabee."

"I shrink not at grim fate's decree
But bow to Heaven's wise will,
Yet deep within my spirit's care
Dark grief is lingering still,
It is not cowardly fear of death,
Or dread of warrior's fall,
For if a thousand lives were mine,
I'd gladly give them all
For the dear land that gave me birth,
Blest home of liberty,
And the true friends I love so well,
By blue Otonabee."

"But on St. John's grey ivyed tower,
Could I but feast my eye,
And hear once more the silvery chimes,
Contented I could die;
'Twas there the solemn vows were pledged
That bound our hearts in Hymen's bands,
And made sweet Mary mine.
Now she must wait and weep alone,
And watch in vain for me,
In the loved little lot beside
The blue Otonabee.

"To her in pity's gentlest tones,
The bitter tidings tell,
How in the charge of Langemarke
Faping the foe I fell,
That on my breast her pictured face
Fond, smiling, young and bright,
I wore amid the surging shock
Of that red, murderous fight;
And it shall share my lonely rest
When death has set me free,
And I am sleeping far from her
And blue Otonabee.

"May Heaven's sweet mercy, guard, protect,
And bless my widowed bride,
For our dear country, grant, she live,
As I have proudly died
Though rude mistortunes' withering blast,
Our hopes untimely blight,
Stern duty's rugged pathway leads
To raptures' holiest height.
And soon we'll meet where war can ne'er,
Or pain or parting be,
And rolls a river fairer still Than blue Otonabee."

Ma and Her Auto

(By Edgar A. Guest in the Detroit Free Press.)

Before we take an auto ride Pa says to Ma, 'My dear,
Now just remember I don't need assistance from the rear;
If you will just keep still back there and hold in check your fright
I'll take you where you want to go and get you back all right.
Remember that my hearing's good and also I'm not blind
And I can drive this car without suggestions from behind."

Ma promises that she'll keep still, then off we gayly start,
But soon she notices ahead a peddler and his cart.
"You'd better toot your horn," says she, "to let him know we're near.
He might turn out," and Pa replies: "Just shriek at him, my dear."
And then he adds "Some day some guy will make a lot of dough
By putting horns on tonneau seats for women folks to blow."

A little further on Ma says: "He signalled for a turn."
And Pa says: "Did he?" in a tone that's hot enough to burn.
I'm sure he doesn't see our car." An' Pa says: "I dunno,
I think I don't need glasses yet, but really it may be
That I am blind an' cannot see what's right in front of me."

If Pa should speed the car a bit some rigs to hurry past,
Ma says: "Now do be careful! You are driving much too fast."
An' all the time she's pointing out the dangers of the street
An' keeps him posted on the roads where street cars he will meet.
Last night when we got safely home, Pa sighed an' said: "My dear,
I'm sure we've all enjoyed the drive you gave us from the rear."

A Pleasant Parable.

Little Willie was asked if he had ever studied the Bible.

"Yes, sir," he replied.

"Then, of course, you know all about the parables," said the questioner.

"Yes, sir," said Willie.

"Good! replied the questioner. 'And now tell me which parable you like the best.'

"I like the one where everybody loafes and fishes," said Johnny.—New York Evening Post.

Choice Recipes

ONE peck green tomatoes, six finely sliced onions; sprinkle one teacup salt over and let stand overnight, then drain well and scald in weak vinegar for 10 or 15 minutes. Drain again and scald with two quarts strong vinegar; one pound sugar; two tablespoons curry powder; two tablespoons turmeric; two teaspoons cinnamon; two teaspoons cloves; two teaspoons allspice; two teaspoons mustard. Simmer all a few minutes. This is a fine rich pickle.

Pickled Cabbage

Select solid heads, slice very fine, put in a jar, then cover with boiling water, and season with grated horse radish; salt; equal parts black and red pepper; cinnamon and whole cloves. Cover with strong vinegar. This is convenient and always good.

Pickled Cauliflower

Cut off all the green leaves, put cauliflower into boiling water, with a good supply of salt and boil from three to five minutes. Take them out of salt and water and dip into clear cold water one minute to send heat to heart of cauliflower. Cut in pieces convenient for jars, then make a mixture of one tablespoon mace; one of cloves, allspice, ginger; two tablespoons white mustard seed and a red pepper pod with each gallon of vinegar. Let mixture boil and pour over cauliflower. Cover closely and let stand a week, then pour off vinegar, scald and return hot again to cauliflower. Put in jars ready for use. It is best to use cider vinegar. It is a wise precaution before beginning to pickle to turn cauliflowers upside down in salted water to remove possible insects.

Spiced Tomatoes (Ripe)

To four pounds large red tomatoes take two pounds good brown sugar, one pint cider vinegar, half oz. cloves, half stick cinnamon. Stew all together in a preserving kettle, until tomatoes are cooked, take tomatoes out to cool and let syrup go on simmering slowly. When tomatoes are cold, return to syrup for a little while, then let mixture become cold ere sealing. Syrup must be boiled as thick as molasses. Seal and tie down with waxed paper. This is an excellent recipe.

Green Tomato Pickles

Slice into a jar one peck tomatoes. Sprinkle over each layer a little salt. Let stand 24 hours, drain off liquor, put tomatoes into a kettle with a teaspoon each of the following spices: Ground ginger, allspice, cloves, mace, cinnamon and grated horse radish; three large peppers; three onions; one cup brown sugar. Cover all with vinegar and slowly boil for three hours. Neither add to nor take from any of those ingredients as this recipe is perfect.

French Pickles

Two quarts cucumbers; one quart onions; one small head of cabbage; one small head of cauliflower; two bunches celery. Add green peppers to taste. Cut all in small pieces. Sprinkle with salt, let stand two hours, then drain. Scald in equal parts vinegar and water, and then remove from this. Make a paste of two cups sugar, five tablespoons mustard, one cup flour, one half gallon vinegar. Boil mixture until it comes to a paste, and then pour over the pickles and seal.

A typewriter invented in Germany is said to do perfect work although it is small enough to be carried in a pocket.

Blood Thin and Weak Too Nervous to Sleep

Here is Another Case in Which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Proved Its Great Reconstructive Influence

Thin blood and exhausted nerves usually go together. A considerable portion of the blood is constantly consumed in keeping up the vitality of the nervous system. Once the blood is deficient, either in quantity or quality, the nerves suffer and bodily pains result. Headaches, neuralgic or sciatic pains are the indications in some cases, while in others weakness, nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness are the most marked symptoms.

Mrs R. F. Catlin, Elm Springs, Sask., writes: "For years I was troubles with nervousness, and could not sleep nights. Also had lack of colour as a result of the blood being thin and weak. My husband saw Dr. Chase's Nerve Food advertised, and got some for me, and wanted me to try it. I did so, and it has proven a wonderful help for me. By enriching the blood, it has restored colour to my face and has built up the nervous system so that I rest and sleep well. It is a pleasure to recommend so excellent a medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes direct to the formation of pure, rich blood, and for this reason is the most certain means of increasing the quality as well as the quantity of blood in the human system. The feeble, wasted nerves are restored, and through the nervous system new vigor and energy is imparted to every organ and member of the body.

You will be surprised at the way this food cure puts new strength and vitality into the weakened body. And the best of it is that the benefits are both thorough and lasting. Is this the Nerve Food differs from mere stimulating medicines which give rise to false hope and when discontinued leave you as weak as before. Put this great restorative treatment to the test and prove its merits in your own case. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

FOR an hour a teacher had dwelt with painful iteration on the part played by carbohydrates, proteids, and fats respectively in the upkeep of the human body. At the end of the lesson the usual test questions were put among them:

"Can any girl tell me the three foods required to keep the body in health?"

There was silence till one maiden held up her hand, and replied:

"Yer breakfast, yer dinner, and yer supper."

Guarding Paris Against Attack; How the Aerial Defences Are Secured

London Should Profit by Following Example Led by Paris, Says Balfour.

In view of the increasing part played by aircraft during war and the well known German methods of waging warfare on combatants and non-combatants alike, the problem of the aerial defence of large centres becomes one of great importance. In this respect the French defences of Paris—which were recently the subject of much comment by Mr. Balfour in the House of Commons—indicate one method of grappling with an always serious matter. Mr. Balfour's reasoned reply to various questions, however, also charged other aspects of the question, and directs particular attention to certain points of difference between two such cities as London and Paris.

"Pains have been taken," he said, "to make ourselves acquainted with the methods of the defence of Paris, and much, no doubt, has been learned and will be learned from studying their example. But," he went on, "we must not be carried away with the idea that the problem of London is identical with the problem of Paris. No is the problem of one who has to defend London at all similar to that of the Minister who has to defend Paris. Paris starts with being under a single military government, and it starts with being a great military fortress, and therefore being a military fortress it is supplied with a great many guns and with great defensive arrangements. London is not a fortified town. London is, as everybody knows—and nobody knows it better than the Germans—a city which should not, under the laws of civilised warfare, be the subject of this kind of attack."

The Zeppelin attack on Paris toward the end of March last drew attention to certain defects in the organization, with the result that the French authorities immediately set to work upon a new system of the defence of the capital, which has amply justified itself by the absence of German attempts on the city since its inauguration.

According to a report issued by the French military authorities in the early stages of the war, Paris was visited day after day by German aeroplanes. The government called back to Paris General Hirschauer, the former chief of the Aeronautical Department (who had gone to another post), and systematic defences against aeroplane attacks were organised. Since then there have been many attempts by German aeroplanes to reach Paris, not one of which has succeeded, as the whole defensive organization has received ample warning of their approach from one or other of the long chain of ceaseless watchers which extends in every direction from Paris itself across country toward every point of the firing line. Every section of the organization is connected by telephone with headquarters in Paris. Directly an alarm is received from any point calls are sent out all along the line of defensive posts, exactly as a "general call" is sent out by the London fire brigade. A message is received, perhaps, from Compiègne, forty miles away, that two Taubes have been seen approaching. Within five minutes aeroplanes will be ready at a dozen points to go out and drive the invaders off, and battery after battery of special anti-aero guns, scattered over 5,000 square miles of country between Paris and the enemy, will be ready to fire on them. As a result no aeroplane attack has reached Paris for nearly a year, and only one Zeppelin attack—which cut across a very small segment of the city's north-western curve—has ever been attempted. In Paris, more than anywhere, "the defence has developed more rapidly than the danger," and attacks are now looked upon not only with indifference but with actual contempt.

The aerial defence of Paris has been carefully thought out and prepared in an exceedingly thorough manner, so that there is little chance of any hostile airships being able to stay over the city long and to do damage worth mentioning. Should any raiders arrive near Paris they would be received by gunfire from the forts and anti-aircraft batteries, while a squadron of aeroplanes would also go out to meet them.

In the raid of March last—the only one of its kind carried out by the enemy—various anti-aircraft defence posts opened fire on the Zeppelins, which the searchlights kept constantly in view. The aeroplane squadrons took part in the fight, but a mist hampered them in their pursuit. In a word, the Zeppelin raid on Paris completely failed, and merely served to demonstrate the efficient working of the defence organization of the city.

When it is considered that the German lines to the north of Compiègne are but some fifty to sixty miles away from the capital, it will be seen that the defence works of Paris must be extraordinarily good to keep off any raiding aircraft. The city has now been left in undisturbed peace for many months, and there can be no question as to the cause of this.

The views on this page illustrate certain aspects of the aerial defence of the capital. The top view shows a portion of a fleet of armed aeroplanes, which are ready at any moment to ascend and attack any enemy aircraft threatening the city. The other two views show the means employed by French aviators to beat off attack and a close-up view of one of the biplanes guarding the entrenched camp of Paris.

Says Conditions Differ from Time of Napoleon

Dr. Paul Michaelis Contrasts Invasion of Russia in 1812 with Germans' Advance and Declares Latter Cannot Be Trapped or Defeated as French Emperor Was.

(Special Despatch.)

BERLIN, Oct. 25.

Dr. Paul Michaelis, one of the military experts of the Berliner Tageblatt, who has accompanied the German army in its drive against the Russians, makes a critical comparison between the campaign of Napoleon in 1812 and that of Field Marshal General von Hindenburg at the present time. He draws his conclusions why Napoleon failed and why the present German campaign in Russia will succeed. He writes as follows from Kowno:—

"Opposite the City Hall of Kowno, with its tall, slender tower built in the sixteenth century, there stands in the market place an iron monument. It is a tall, hexagonal pyramid, crowned with a golden Byzantine globe, and was erected in memory of the victories which freed Russia from the French invasion. This monstrosity was placed there about sixty years ago.

"At that time no one believed that Russia and France would unite to war on Germany and Austria. The remembrance of Napoleon's occupation still lingered and traces of his footsteps were still to be found Russia, already in that time had her eyes on Constantinople and the Dardanelles and regarded England and France as her hereditary enemies, and then ten years before the Crimean War this spite monument was erected against Russia's enemies of the west, particularly France. However, since then these enemies have suddenly become her friends, but this cast iron monument in the market place knows nothing of this. It still dreams of the Little Corporal and the fire, desolation and death that lay in his wake—the Little Corporal who wanted to become master of the world, but who met his defeat in the icy wastes of Russia.

"Let us follow his footsteps here and see what they teach us now.

"Really, if the Russian General Staff means to revive the tactics of 1812 in the present war it shows that they not only have not forgotten anything, but that they have on the other hand not learned anything. The circumstances to-day are entirely different from what they were a century ago. The majority of the Russian troops have been rendered incapable of any prolonged resistance. More than two million men are now prisoners in Germany and Austria-Hungary and an equal number have no doubt been killed or wounded.

"This in itself is an important fact to be considered, and it is also reasonable to suppose that Russia will for a long time be unable to take the offensive, if at all. How long the Russian nation will be content to bear the frightful losses remains to be seen. But the fact remains that the German campaign to-day is vastly different in tactics and strategy from that followed by Napoleon. In the Little Corporal's drive against Russia the traditions of Alexander the Great and Hannibal were followed in so far that they invaded an enemy's country without troubling themselves about their lines of communication with their own country. They felt confident that they could obtain all their necessary supplies on the enemy's own soil.

"There is just where Napoleon made his great mistake. It was cold and hunger that defeated him and not the Russian army. Without his lines of communication open to Germany even Field Marshal von Hindenburg would be helpless. A campaign that is carried far from the base of supply would to-day be regarded as insanity.

"In addition another very important point is the protection of the armies' flanks, and in both these matters there need be no occasion for worry. From the North Sea as far south as Bessarabia there is absolutely no likelihood of threatening the flanks of the Germans. The Russians may occasionally delay their progress or even for a time drive them back, but it is impossible now that the German army in Russia can be defeated. There is no longer enough room for the Russians to manoeuvre successfully.

"Field Marshal von Hindenburg is slow and careful, but he is absolutely sure of himself. Furthermore, the tactics of the Germans are diametrically opposed to those of the Russians.

"The invasion of Russia, long the dream of Napoleon, was even a hundred years ago a colossal undertaking, and when the time really came for it in the spring of 1812, Napoleon, despite the assistance of Germans, Poles, Spaniards, Portuguese and Italians, realized that he had a tremendous task before him. His army of 700,000 men was a formidable one.

"It was immeasurably superior in every respect to any army the Russians could mobilize against it. His proclamation to the Poles was chiefly intended as a means of holding their friendship after his arms had left them in the rear. General Macdonald marched ahead with the left wing occupied Libau and pressed forward to Mitau. At this place he was compelled to make a necessary halt before proceeding on to St. Petersburg. On the right wing King Jerome on June 16 reached Grodno, where he made his headquarters.

"Napoleon meanwhile pressed forward farther and farther in the centre. His road led to Kovno and the Niemen. It was the same road that the German troops followed in July and August of this year. He occupied Kovno and made it his headquarters. The house in which he slept is still standing. After a brief stop he forged ahead, like the Germans now to Vilna.

"The Niemen embraced his most important front. It was, therefore, natural that during his retreat from Moscow Napoleon again rested at Vilna. But it was only for a short time. This French Caesar, who shortly before held the world in the hollow of his hand, had to flee from Vilna under cover of the night, it a vain effort to try to save the tattered remnants of his once superior army. That was in December, 1812.

"His brief occupation of Moscow, the burning of the city, the disastrous retreat constitute the greatest tragedy in history."

HATRED OF ENGLAND DWINDLES IN BERLIN

(Special Despatch.)

BERLIN, Oct. 25.

The campaign of hate against England, which received its great impetus in Germany with the publication of Lissauer's poem, "A Chant of Hate," is on the wane. A change has come over Berlin, as is shown by its newspapers. Heretofore there was scarcely a theatre or dance hall where the poem by Lissauer was not recited with regularity every night, the audiences going wild over it, jumping out of their seats, shouting and waving their fists in the direction of the British Isles. Now Lissauer's "Chant of Hate" is no longer heard and is not in demand. Both press and the public have tired of it.

Up to a few weeks ago a theatrical manager in Berlin who would have dared to produce anything that came from England or was written by an Englishman would have been badly handled. To show the change which has taken place in sentiment, the Berlin newspapers now announce with every indication of pleasure that Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" will have its initial performance at the Royal Opera House in Berlin this week.

GERMAN WOMEN ASK GREATER ALLOWANCE

(Special Despatch.)

BERLIN, Oct. 25.

According to the socialist newspaper Vorwaerts, a petition has been addressed to the German Reichstag by Frau Louise Zietz, in the name of the socialist women of the country, asking for an increase in the government war allowances.

"Numerous soldiers' families," the document reads, "in less fortunate circumstances have been reduced to a pitiable plight. The State allowances are miserably small, 15 marks (about $3) a month for women and 6 marks (about $1.50) for children. Thousands of communities do not supplement this meagre grant with a local allowance, and in the few cases where this is done the assistance rendered is of little account. Only in some very rare instances the communal authorities contribute an amount equal to or greater than the national government allowance. Bitter complaints are continually being raised by wives of soldiers, whose situation has become precarious, especially in communities where no local help is afforded."

Further on the petitioner explains that the increased prices of provisions make it impossible for the common people to procure sufficient nourishment for themselves. Untimely administrative measures have also lately aggravated the already critical situation.

Crown Prince of Bavaria Is Latest Idol of German People

Rupprecht, Called by the Kaiser the "Stonewall Jackson of the Empire," Shares Honors with Field Marshal von Hindenburg for His Stubborn Defence at Lille.

(Special Despatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 25.

Newspapers from Germany arriving here are filled with laudatory articles about the Crown Prince of Bavaria, who is in command of the German army before Lille in France. He now shares honors with Field Marshal von Hindenburg, and meetings and celebrations are being held throughout Germany, toasting and congratulating him for his stubborn resistance and his success thus far in holding the German line against the terrific attacks of the Allies.

Incidentally, it is mentioned that the Kaiser himself selected Crown Prince Rupprecht to command the forces around Lille, contending that this would be the most difficult part of the line to hold in Northern France. While not a strategist like Field Marshal von Hindenburg or Field Marshal von Mackensen, the Kaiser regards the Bavarian Crown Prince as the greatest fighter in Germany. He has spoken of him as the "Stonewall Jackson" of the Empire.

It appears that after the battle of the Marne and the Aisne, when the Germans were driven back by the British and French forces to their present positions, the Kaiser argued that it would be a defensive conflict from that time on, and not one of strategy. Crown Prince Rupprecht was at once selected to hold that line, as he is a most relentless fighter. He is known as the most cold blooded commander in the German army; he fears nothing and has always been known as a daredevil.

His policy is one of blood and iron, even out-Bismarcking Bismarck himself. He asks for no quarter and gives none, and during the recent allied drive it is said that his order to his men was to fight until the last man, and woe to him who failed to carry out this command.

Crown Prince Rupprecht has advised the Kaiser and the German people that they need have no apprehension; he would hold his part of the line at all cost, and the Allies would only break through after every man in his command had apoplexy, and he added that he still had some men left.

The Bavarian Crown Prince is an indefatigable worker. German newspaper correspondents who have been with him at his headquarters say he makes a personal inspection of the line every day; that no detail escapes him, and that he works far into the night and is often up again at work before his staff. During the recent battle he was in the very midst of his men, urging them on by short, quick commands, and not a man dared lag while he was near. After the battle he expressed himself delighted at the bravery shown and, while never very demonstrative, he was visibly moved as he thanked his officers.

CROWN PRINCESS STARTS BABY FUND

BERLIN, Oct. 25.

Crown Princess Cecilie on the occasion of her twenty-ninth birthday recently issued an appeal to the women of Germany asking contributions for a fund for children born during the war. She said:—

"Having happily given birth to a little daughter, who, with God's help, came into the world with the sun shining in her face, I appeal to the patriotic women of Germany to contribute to a fund for the maintenance of the poor mothers of the empire who give birth to children during the war while their husbands are at the front.

"I, therefore, ask that all women help those sisters who have been blessed by the the birth of a war baby, and request that they give me all possible assistance in this work."

As a result of this appeal numerous contributions were forwarded to the Crown Princess at Potsdam from all parts of Germany, and cases of distress are being quickly relieved.

All That Mattered.

A young countryman, staying in a hotel, commenced to write a letter, and then went away, leaving it on the table.

Another came in and, without thinking, took up the missive. He had it in his hand when the young man returned.

"That's my letter, mister!" he said, fiercely.

"Well, you can have it," was the reply.

"Did you read it?"

"No, that is, I glanced over a few lines of it and noticed that hardly a word was spelled correctly."

"It is to my girl—the girl I'm going to marry."

"Yes?"

"And I don't care a cocked hat about the spelling. What I want to impress on that girl is lu—l-u-v—and lots of it, for there's a farm and 70 cows coming to her!"

How to Prevent Premature Grayness

It is logical to assume that care which will prolong the normal health of the scalp will prolong the years during which your hair will retain its natural colour. It is logical to assume that neglect of the hair and scalp resulting in dandruff accompanied by the vast number of tiny germs or microbes must impair the various scalp organs, including the pigment carrying cells, and thus hasten grayness. If a person takes the best of care of his hair and scalp and retains the natural colour until he is sixty there can be no absolute proof that lack of care in that particular case would have resulted in grayness ten or twenty years earlier. But there is very reason to believe that lack of care, lack of scalp health would have caused grayness at an earlier age. It is a logical and safe conclusion that keeping the scalp free, or as nearly free as possible from dandruff, dirt, germs and excessive oily secretions will do a great deal toward maintaining the healthy activity of the pigment cells and thus greatly defer the day when gray hair will be one of your social and business handicaps.

The following is a very popular and widely recommended formula for destroying the dandruff and germs and promoting and maintaining scalp health and thus warding off premature grayness: 8 ounces bay rum, 2 ounces lavona de composee, and ½ drachm menthol crystals. You can get the ingredients from any druggist and mix them yourself, or the druggist will mix them for you. Apply to the scalp night and morning and rub in with the finger tips.

Gorizia Was Key to Entire Campaign on the Isonzo

ROME, Oct. 25.—Gorizia, the key to the entire campaign on the Isonzo, has fallen before the combined artillery and infantry attacks of the Italians, according to news brought to Rome to-day by staff officers who have just returned from field headquarters.

These officers further report that the results of the Italian offensive, begun several days ago on the entire front from the Alps to the sea, are much more important than has been announced in the official reports from Gen. Cadorna, chief of staff, which have been given out by the War Office here.

Official information on the extent of the Italian gains in Tyrol and on the Isonzo are, they say withheld until the positions conquered by the Italian troops are consolidated and their advance is made a permanent victory. According to these officers, Gorizia, the Austrian stronghold on the Isonzo, fell three days ago.

Captured 1,000 Prisoners.

The official statement issued by the Italian War Office to-night makes no mention of the fall of Gorizia, but speaks of heavy fighting in this vicinity, in which the Italians were victorious. The Italians took enemy entrenchments on Monte Sabetina and the Podgora Hill, in the Gorizia zone, and under fire of the Austrian artillery captured by infantry attacks positions on the Carso plateau which the Italian artillery had bombarded. The Austrians made a counter-attack and the positions were taken and retaken, the Italians at nightfall retaining their advantage on the left wing, east of Peteano, and in the centre in the direction of Parcottini. The Italians claim the capture of 1,003 prisoners in the day's fighting on the Isonzo.

For five months the Italians big guns have been hammering the strong forts on the steep hills around Gorizia, which, situated in a pocket formed by a bend in the Isonzo, its natural protection on the west, and the mountains stretching in a semi-circle noth, east and south, has been regarded by the Austrians and the military experts of other countries as an impregnable fortress.

Clear Road To Trieste.

The Italian general staff has made no secret of its belief that the fall of Gorizia means a clear road to Trieste, the great Austrian port at the head of the Adriatic, which is the chief Italian objective in the campaign.

Gorizia is about 22 miles by rail from the Adriatic port. From the stronghold runs three railroads. One of these railroads, following the Isonzo to Sagrado, south of Gradisca, and thence turning eastward and following the Adriatic coast to the Adriatic port, is in the hands of the Italians as far as Manfalcone, 12 miles from Trieste. The other runs southeastward from Gorizia across the Carso plateau.

The seizure of Gorizia makes effective the advances made by the Italians on this plateau, which have been very slow on account of the nature of the ground. The Carso (literally "rock") is a vast tableland of chalky formation in which the rains, instead of forming streams, has dug out natural trenches and "bouches de loup" which have been occupied by Austrian infantry, while at the heights at the edge of the plateau and in its centre have been transformed into strongly fortified positions.

It was impossible for the Italians either to cross the plateau or to skirt it on the road to Trieste while the guns of Gorizia held the flank of the invaders. Further up the Isonzo dashing between cliffs several hundred feet high, military operations between the two fortresses were almost impossible. Hence the Italian decision to reduce the fortress at any cost.

TEUTON HATRED OF SERBIA DUE TO POLITICAL CAUSES

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Why the Central Powers hate Serbia is the subject of an article by Mr. Waclaw Czernewski, a prominent Serbian now in London, in the Daily Graphic.

"The endeavour of the Central Powers to drag Bulgaria into a suicidal war has two objects," he writes.

"It may open a way for them to exhausted Turkey and will facilitate the punishment of Serbia.

"With the great awakening of the national sentiment of the nineteenth century the Slavs, who inhabit the south of Austria and Hungary discovered that they are one nation. Serbs, Croats and Slavonians began to work for unity. In 1836 there was established in Zagreb the first Serbo-Croatian public library. In 1850 they gathered together in Vienna and established rules to govern a common Serbian language. Ten years later the Croats created the Academy of Sciences in Zagreb and the next year a university, calling both institutions South Slavish institutions.

"This consolidation of the nation was at the beginning of the twentieth century almost complete. In 1911 painters and sculptors from Croatia, Slavonia and Dalmatia refused to take part in the Austro-Hungarian section of the International Exhibition in Rome, and claimed their place in the pavilion of the kingdom of Serbia, and when the famous Croatin sculptor, M. Meshtrovich, was questioned as to whether he was a Serb or a Croat (he was a Catholic born in Croatia) he replied, 'I am a Croat and a Serb.'

"The culture development of the new nation soon assumed a political phase. The cruel and bloody administration of the Can Kuhan Hedervasy from 1883 to 1903 only strengthened the longing of the Southern Slav for an independent Great Serbia. The election for the Budapest Parliament in 1906 in Croatia returned fifty-eight seats. The government replied with a legal trial in Zagreb known as the Great Serbian trial, and in 1908 it gave a blow to Great Serbians by the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The crowning proof of the unity of the Orthodox Serbs and the Catholic Croats and Slavonians with the Serbian nation was the excitement during the Balkan Wars. In all towns of the southern parts of the Dual Monarchy, and especially in Zagreb, people put in the windows portraits of King Peter and Crown Prince Alexander with lighted candles in front of the pictures of saints and their relics. Money was collected and sent to the Serbian Red Cross Society. Zagreb alone gave 100,000 crowns for the wounded, which was the largest amount ever collected in this comparatively small town. Volunteers from all these parts poured through the Serbian frontiers to join the army.

"The idea of a Great Serbia is inextinguishable; it is a creative force of the Serbian nation, and nothing will be able to destroy it."

A gentleman, whose beautiful grounds were often visited by the public, had an old gardener who was in the habit of showing parties round the beds. At such times he would, in a hurried, gabbling voice explain the names to the visitors.

When nearing the exit gate he would, however, suddenly pause and draw special attention to a pretty cluster of modest posies, and then, in a significant tone of voice, exclaim:

"These, ladies and gentlemen, are forget-me-nots."

THE MARK TAPLEY SPIRIT.

Let Dickens introduce us to a typical example, as it seems to me, of the men who made our Empire. His name is Mark Tapley, and he is speaking amid all the miseries and pestilential squalor of his swamp-ridden home at Eden. "Do better?" he says cheerfully, "to be sure you will! We shall all do better. What we've got to do is to keep up our spirits, and be neighbourly. We shall come all right in the end, never fear."

So Mark worked on early and late with nothing but the habitual cheerfulness of his disposition and amazing power of self-sustainment," for within himself he looked on their condition as desperate, and in his own words "came out singing in consequence." Like Chaucer, he perceived the harmonies of the world and forbade despair. No troubles could extort from him a single fretful note.

A good type that, surely, of the men who made the Empire, made it in blood and tears, but still with a smile on their faces and hope in their hearts—men, who we may be very sure, will not lightly suffer to be debased the sovereignty that they won by matchless sacrifice.—W. W. Crotch in Empire Review.

Germany Shuts Off Meat 2 Days a Week

GOOD SITUATION CRITICAL

Rigid Card System Such as is Applied to Bread to be Extended to Many Other Commodities

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Germany's food supply has suddenly become of the most internal question of the day, the press devoting more space to butter, milk, eggs and meat than to war news. Meanwhile the highest State and municipal authorities, aided by hundreds of experts, are hard at work trying to cut the Gordian knot of supply and demand with sharp socialistic measures for price regulation and distribution. This is likely to prove the supreme test of German genius for organization.

A beginning probably will be made next week to "stretch" the meat supply along the following novel lines. There will be two no-meat days each week on which dealers will be forbidden to sell any kind of meat or foods composed wholly or partly of meat ingredients. This applies not only to hotels and restaurants, but also to butchers' shops, delicatessen stores, &c. On these days canned goods may not even be displayed in show windows. On two other days restaurants may not serve food fried or otherwise prepared with any fats, including butter or lard. On one other day—making five in all—the sale of pork is forbidden. Heavy fines will be imposed for violation of the regulations. The police and commissions of experts have far-reaching rights of entry and search of stores, restaurants, and other premises. Maximum prices for meats are expected to be put in force next week, and if it is not possible to regulate the distribution there will be a system of meat cards similar to the bread cards which have been in use for the past thirty-five weeks. Milk cards for babies and sick persons are also coming, and if this works out milk cards may be extended to the whole population. Petroleum cards are also a possibility in the near future, so that life in Berlin may acquire the fascination of a card game.

His Good Qualities.

"How do you like your new minister?"

"Very much, indeed. He's the right sort. One of those 'man-among-men' ministers, you know. Comes over to the house occasionally and smokes a pipe; plays on our baseball team; good at tennis and golf and seems to believe in getting pleasure out of his life."

"I see."

"Yes, and he's interested in the things we laymen are interested in. He discusses the problems of the day. I tell you, he's a fine fellow."

"I know, but what sort of sermons does he preach?"

"Well, that I can't tell you. I haven't been over to hear him preach yet."—Detroit Free Press.

Ready for It.

He was travelling in the South and had to put up over night at a second-rate hotel in western Georgia. He said to the clerk when he entered, "Where shall I autograph?"

"Autograph?" said the clerk.

"Yes; sign your name, you know."

As he was signing his name in the register, in came three roughly clothed, unshorn fellows immediately recognizable as Georgia "crackers." One of them advanced to the desk.

"Will you autograph?" asked the clerk, his face aglow with the pleasure that comes from the consciousness of intellectual superiority.

"Certainly," said the "cracker," his face no less radiant than that of the clerk, "mine's rye."—The Argonaut.

"Now, can anybody tell me," said he at last, "what part o' the body is the most hardly treated?" Only one youth showed any signs of intelligence, but he was most enthusiastic. "Well, Sammy, you seem to be the only boy who has learned anything. Tell the class what you know." "The part of the body what has the worst time is the eye." "How is that, Sammy?" "Because all day it is under the lash, and every night it gets a good hiding."—Philadelphia Star.

To Put on Flesh And Increase Weight

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat making food every day, and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat producing elements in their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles, and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from 5 to 6 pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Her Mainstay.

She was a dear old lady, one of the leading characters of the village, and the vicar looked admiringly at her. In spite of her ninety odd years, that serene face showed no sign of worry or trouble.

"My dear lady," he asked suddenly, "what has been the chief source of your strength and sustenance during all these years of your earthly pilgrimage? What has appealed to you as the real basis of the wonderful vigor of your mind and body, and has been to you an unfailing comfort through trials and sorrows? Pray tell me, that I may pass it on to others."

The old lady thought a moment. The vicar thought that he would find here a good subject for a sermon. Ah, she was about to speak! She raised her eyes, dim with years yet bright with sweet memories, and answered, briefly:

"Victuals!"

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat and Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach get sour, tongue coated and you feel thoroughly miserable when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water, also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

BOY'S SUIT.

By Anabel Worthington.

This season has brought us quite a variety in the suits of little boys, and the change is welcome after the long siege of the same styles for years past. There is nothing freakish in the later models. They show features which are to be found in the dresses of women, but so adapted to the wants of our little men that they retain nothing of their feminine character.

Recalling pictures of the days of Charles I of England, we have the suit shown in the accompanying illustration. The coat is quite long, coming down well below the hips, and the front is open, showing a straight vest. This may be made full length and perfectly plain, as shown in the figure, or it may be cut away at the belt, leaving an open space below, or it may even be omitted altogether, but in this case it would be necessary to wear a blouse underneath.

Vest and collar are of one material, while the remainder of the suit is in contrast. The sleeves are full length, the belt wide and flat, with the front section of the vest material if desired. The trousers are open at the knee and are made without a fly, as this style is only suitable for very little boys.

Sometimes we see these suits of serge with the vest and trimmings of pique, again the suit is of khaki or of beach cloth, in its pretty champagne shade, with white lines or pique or even embroidery for the vest, collar and cuffs. Still more in vogue is plain white linen with vest, collar and cuffs of the same material in a different color.

The suit pattern, No. 7284, is cut in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Medium size, as in figure, requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material with 1 yard of 27 inch contrasting goods to trim.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25c.

ALLIED POWERS SEND NOTE TO GREECE

Bulgarians Are Repulsed By The French

THE FRENCH HOLD FIRM THE NEW GROUND WON IN ARGONNE DISTRICT

All German Counter Attacks Have Been Repulsed and French Have Made Other Gains---French Forces Advancing to Help the Serbians Have Repulsed the Advance of the Bulgarians --- Features of To-day's War News.

PARIS (French Official Communique) Oct. 26.—Stubbornly resisting desperate German counter-attacks, the French remain in possession of La Courtine, the highly important defence in front of the Kaiser's second position in Champagne, the War Office reported to-day.

The struggle was still in progress when the statement was issued, with but slight fluctuations, the Gallic troops blocking all German assaults. A brisk attack northeast of Madsigne was said to have made the French masters of still another trench.

"In the near east," said the communique, "the Bulgarians have been repulsed in the Strymnitza region. The statement that they threw the French back on the right bank of the river Varda is false."

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The rush of enlistments which started following Miss Edith Cavell's execution at Brussels, was uninterrupted to-day. The Cavell case was still the recruiting officers' theme on thousands of street corners. Every reference to it elicited storms of denunciation of the Germans. The assertions by the German press that the French, England's own allies, have also executed women were not generally credited. At any rate it was asserted the victims unquestionably were out and out spies which the Germans themselves did not charge in the Cavell case.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Allies' offer of Cyprus to Greece has lapsed because Greece had not seen its way to helping Serbia, Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey told the House of Commons to-day.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—The Chief Commission of the Dominion Police has issued a notice to all aliens in all communities that they must report themselves to the local postmasters, and the postmasters shall in turn report to the nearest chief of police every month.

On the understanding that he will at once enlist for overseas service, John D. McKinnon, former manager of the Union Bank Branch in Hamilton, will be released from Kingston Penitentiary, where he is serving a three-years' term for embezzlement.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A diplomatic break between Greece and the Allies was hinted at by the Central News to-day as a possibility.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—An Anglo-French bombardment recently destroyed most of Dedeaghatch, Bulgaria, and besides soldiers killed, some citizens perished, it was admitted in Sofia reports to-day.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Premier Asquith was so much better to-day that he was able to keep his engagement to attend a Cabinet meeting.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—An editorial in the Post to-day threatens the Government with the formation of a new Opposition party. The editorial comments on the delay in "jettisoning" the declaration of London, which provides that the character of the vessel is determined by the flag she is entitled to fly, and the Government failure to adopt suggestions for a smaller and less unwieldy cabinet, so as to get away from the present alleged tendency toward conscription.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—Gen. Bertrame, chairman of the Shell Committee, intimated this morning, that contracts for shells to the value of eighty million dollars will be let in a couple of days. All the tenders are now in and are being examined by the Commission, but definite action will not be taken until Lionel Hichens, the British shell expert, returns to Canada from New York.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The death at Constantinople yesterday of Baron Wangeheim, German Ambassador to Turkey, was reported to-day to the State Department by American Ambassador Morgenthau.

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 26.—We have captured from the Serbians the northern stop of Raca Valley south of Palanka, also Marcorac; Laole and Kucovo, announced the War Office to-day.

The positions reported taken are near the centre of the Teutonic line in Northern Serbia, about 36 miles south of the Danube, and their capture signifies a continued advance, but not any particular acceleration of the Austro-German movements southward.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—An official statement received from the Canadian representative says: "There has been no material change in the general situation during the period from Oct. 15 to 22nd. For the first half of the period fog prevailed and the enemy's artillery was unusually quiet. During the latter half the weather cleared and the enemy's artillery displayed considerable activity.

"About fifteen hundred shells were fired in our line. Our artillery replied with good effect against the enemy lines.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A report reached to-day that Prince Von Buelow, former German Chancellor, will shortly submit to President Wilson the conditions on which Germany and the King of Spain an outline of might be disposed to discuss terms of peace. The report is contained in a Reuter despatch from Madrid, and has not been corroborated from any other source.

MORE RECRUITS FOR 33rd BATTERY LEFT FOR CAMP TO-DAY

Lieut. Hamilton Secured Twenty-three Men Here Last Week for Kingston Unit---Men Are Coming In Well for 93rd Battalion---Peterboro' Officers Are Being Recommended For Appointments---To-day's Military News

Another sturdy bunch of Peterborough recruits left this morning for Barrriefield camp to join the 33rd Battery. In spite of the heavy demands that have been made upon Peterborough, and in spite of the active recruiting for the Peterborough Battalion, Lieut Hamilton succeeded in getting twenty-three fine recruits for his Battery, and eighteen of them left this morning, the balance going later in the week. Of the 23 recruits, 17 are Canadian-born, four were born in England, one in Scotland, and one in the United States. Ten have been members of the 57th Regiment, one of the 24th Battery, and one with the 14th Battery.

The eighteen who left this morning were

J. O'Shea, born in Canada; 24th Field Battery.
B. Hamilton, born in Canada; no previous service.
S. Godfrey, born in Canada; no previous service.
J. Sabatino, born in Canada; no previous service.
R. Ramsden, born in England; 14th Field Battery.
H. Copp, born in Canada; no previous service.
J. Miller, born in the United States; 57th Regiment.
A. Ishister, born in Canada; no previous service.
C. Wilson, born in Canada; 57th Regiment.
R. Gorton, born in England; no previous service.
S. Smith, born in Canada; no previous service.
G. Perry, born in Canada; 57th Regiment.
V. Thorndyke, born in Canada; 57th Regiment.
H. V. Elcombe born in Canada, 57th Regiment.
C. Sharpe, born in Canada; 57th Regiment.
W. Cumming born in Scotland; 57th Regiment.
C. W. Manley, born in Canada; no previous experience.
A. Drummond, born in England; no previous experience.

The recruits who were in charge of Lieut. Hamilton, paraded at the armouries at 7.30 o'clock, and were escorted to the G.T.R. station by the band of the 93rd Regiment, and a number of the men of the Battalion, in charge of Sergt.-Major Miller. The infantrymen gave three hearty cheers for their artillery comrades before the train pulled out, and until the band played "We'll never let the Old Flag Fall." There were many friends and relatives at the station to say goodbye.

No. 1 Platoon of the 93rd Battalion are still "top dog" when it comes to football. Yesterday afternoon they defeated No. 3 in a hard game on the parade ground by 3 goals to 1, the same score by which they beat No. 3 a few days ago. No. 4 Platoon and the band have yet to be disposed of by Sergt Calladine's eleven Signaller Ernest Watson, of the 30th Battalion, formerly of the 57th Regiment, and son of Recruiting Sergt J. H. Watson, is being transferred to the 93rd Peterborough Battalion.

The announcement that Lieut Marling of Lakefield is to be appointed to the new 93rd Battalion will be pleasing news to the fine quota of Lakefield boys in the local unit. Lieut Marling will undoubtedly be appointed to No. 3 Platoon, A Company, which includes all the Lakefield boys, and which has Sergt W. Lemay of Lakefield as platoon sergeant. Lieut. Marling, who is on the staff of the Grove School was in South Africa with the Canadian Contingent

The band of the 93rd is preparing a fine programme for their concert in the Town Hall, Lakefield, on Friday night. They will be accompanied by Master Percy Luther, the little recruiting sergeant

The new recruiting headquarters of the Speakers' Patriotic League on Simcoe street next to the Bank of Montreal, are commodious and comfortable. There is plenty of room, and including a large room upstairs which will be fitted out, it is expected as a writing and recreation room for the men of the 93rd Battalion. There are now many men in the battalion from the surrounding district to which such a gathering place in the evenings would be a decided boon.

Major Mayer and Lieuts. Hudgin, Bertram and Symes, of the 80th Battalion were recalled to Barriefield yesterday, when the news of the authorization of the new 93rd Battalion was received.

Peterborough Boys Safe

Mr. Darling, Romaine street has received a field postcard from Sergt Fred Reid, of the 3rd Brigade, C.F.A., 1st Division, now at the front, containing the following:

Dear Friends: Just a line to say that I am well and have no complaints to make. Was in a big attack two weeks ago and came out without any casualties. Best regards to all the boys and all friends

AT BARRIEFIELD

The following verses were written by Pte. Everett Castle, a Peterborough boy, now in training with the 80th Battalion at Barriefield camp

Here we are in Barriefield,
We're learning how to fight.
We're bound to get the Kaiser's goat
If we take it in the night

We are going to fight for Canada,
And defend our Mother-land,
We are going to beat the Germans,
For by England true we stand.

The fellows who have gone before
Bravely fought in every place

To Protect Our Readers

We have just been advised that a well known brand of household ammonia has been widely imitated with a view to deceiving the public.

Every fair-minded storekeeper and every progressive newspaper welcomes the opportunity of defeating such attempts at substitution and we therefore wish to caution our readers against inferior imitations of a good article.

The particular product referred to is the popular well-advertised Snow Flake Ammonia known all over Canada and introduced to this community through the medium of the paper.

OUR FOREIGN BORN.

The last issue of the Census and Statistics Monthly puts the foreign-born population of Canada at 752,732, which is ten per cent. of a total population—in 1911—of 7,206,643. Of this total 169,729 belong to countries embraced in the Entente Allies; 416,000 belong to neutral countries, and 165,775 belong to hostile countries. It does not seem that the foreign element is in dangerous ratio. Of the 708,000 foreign-born about half, or 383,488 were born in the United States, and in spirit, sympathy and character, these are very much like ourselves, since, apart from other reasons, in racial origin, the vast proportion of the United States element of our population was British. It does not seem that there is a dangerous preponderance of hostile foreign-born in this country; for there is only 30,577 of the Hun element amongst our unnaturalized hostile-born population of 165,000.

COMPARISON.

We Canadians decline to "take a back seat" to any other blooming dominion in the Empire. We are "the brightest gem" in the tiara of the King-Emperor, we talk patronizing of Australia and other lesser dominion lights. But when it comes to a "show down" we are compelled to moderate our transports and revise our rather cocky self-estimates. We get the news from good authority, that Australia, in proportion to population, has beaten Canada in the matter of furnishing contingents for the firing line, and we know what Australia has done in naval provision for the defence of the Empire. While Canada shines Niobely in Rainbow tints in the matter of her naval equipment, and has submarinely succoured the mother land, Australia has built a complete fleet unit, and had the glory of first scoring, off her own bat, by the first capture of a German battle cruiser. A few weeks ago, at Sydney, Australia, a new destroyer of the Royal Australian Navy—doesn't that have a big sound?—was launched; and that makes the third addition in this class during the past year. The first was launched in December, 1914, the event being considered to be of great historical importance, since this warship was the first to be entirely built in Australia. The fleet "unit"—to which the new destroyer is attached, consisted of thirteen vessels authorized in 1909. They included one battle-cruiser — Australia; three light-cruisers—Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane; six destroyers, and three submarines — two of which have unfortunately been lost, one in the Pacific and the other in the Dardanelles. It was in 1909 that Australia authorized her naval programme, which she has gallantly carried out. It was in 1909 that Canada's parliament voted unanimously for a Canadian navy—built in Canada. In pursuance of this, plans were laid and tenders called for a fleet unit; and it looked as if Canada meant business. But a king arising "who knew not Joseph" a change came over the spirit of our dream, and our action became dreams; the plans for battle cruisers were permanently pigeon-holed. Henri Bourassa issued orders, through the Nationalists ministers, who were admitted to the new cabinet, that there was to be no Canadian navy, and there was no Canadian navy. Bourassa was backed by those little Canadians who said that Canada could not build battle ships—Canada with eight millions to Australia's four millions, and with an infinity of raw material could not do what our antipodean cousins, the "Cornstalkers," have been doing for five or six years. 'Tis true 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true.

THE RED CROSS.

With Edith Cavell, achieving a noble martyrdom for Red Cross work, that organization and its big beneficence more actively enlist our interest, and more insistently invite our cooperation. The Red Cross Society had perhaps no specific beginning; did not at once spring into being fully organized. Like Topsy of the story, it "was not born, it growed." Its inspiring spirit, however, is universally recognized as Florence Nightingale. Her work in connection with the Crimean war in 1857, has become a part of history. At that time medical science and its application to the treatment of wounded soldiers was crude and of a negligible quantity. Florence Nightingale, the "lady of the lamp," went into the pestiferous hospital wards of Scutari, where wounded soldiers lay neglected, and in filthy surroundings. She was indeed a ministering angel, and organized, as co-workers with her, a band of kindred spirits, the advance guard of the noble army of women who are now, day and night, heroically devoting themselves on every battle front, and in every nation of war scourged Europe, to nurse and tenderly care for wounded and sick soldiers. She brought order out of chaos, and replaced filth with cleanliness, suffering with comfort, and neglect with devoted care and nursing. At the end of the war a grateful nation presented her with the munificent gift of a quarter of a million dollars. She had not used her life for herself, and she did not use this gift for herself. She used it to establish and endow an institution for training nurses, and that was the starting point of the moving influence of the organization of the Red Cross Society in its present form. The Crimean war, and its horrors, especially the comparative neglect of wounded and sick soldiers, and her share in removing undesirable conditions, attracted the attention of the world; and about ten years later the Austro-Italian war, called new attention to the sufferings of soldiers, largely unrelieved by organized effort. In 1862 Jean Henri Dumant, of Geneva, Switzerland, stirred by the horrors of this war, graphically depicted the sufferings of soldiers and their needs. This writer in his book "Souvenirs de Solferino," proposed that, as Florence Nightingale was doing in Great Britain, nurses be trained, and supplies provided in every country. At an international congress upon the subject, held in Geneva in 1863, the delegates of the nations represented agreed to a provisional programme of organization of the Red Cross Society. The convention thus arrived at was ratified by forty nations, and now every nation has its Red Cross Society. This society is supposed to be perfectly neutral, and its members, as non-combatants, by every nation except heathen Germany. Its motive is founded upon the spirit of the saying that the rain "falleth upon the just and the unjust." Edith Cavell, who was done to disgraceful death, though an English nurse, had carried out the spirit of the Red Cross and had tended and nursed wounded German soldiers as tenderly as she would have cared for her own brother. Thus to an English woman belongs the credit of the inspiration of the Red Cross organization, as to an English woman belongs the glory of having spent her life, and laid down her life, in the interests of its magnificent mission of mercy.

Now the Red Cross Society has penetrated all nations, and is established in every nation, even in those for whom the sanguine symbol of the Red Cross has no moral meaning. It is stated that Japan, which is not a Christian country in name or by profession, has one of the best equipped and strongest Red Cross societies—numerically and financially — in the world; and Canadian soldiers wounded in the present war, speak of the Japanese nurses as the most skilful; with the lightest touch, of any nurses in the European hospitals.

This awful war makes great demands upon the activities and resources of the Red Cross, and the recent and still present Empire wide appeal for funds to strengthen the British Red Cross, is the cry of a great need. Every day wounded soldiers are added to our hospital population. Wounded soldiers are not healed in a day, and thus there is a constantly growing number to be cared for, and a constantly growing need for funds, and the supplies that require funds to provide.

THE STRONGEST CALL.

The strongest call for recruits comes from Miss Cavell. She being dead, yet speaketh.—The Globe.

PROTECTS THE WORLD.

Mr. Balfour is but echoing the knowledge and conviction of the whole civilized world when he says that "against world domination the British fleet, from the time of Queen Elizabeth to the present day, has always been found the surest and most effectual protection." Against this knowledge, based upon many historic demonstrations, and upon the demonstration that the world has had in this war, the plea of Germany that she is battling for the freedom of the seas and against the unjust domination of Britain, carries little weight. The people of the United States and other neutral countries know that to the British navy they owe whatever safety for their rights they have enjoyed during this attempt of Germany to make herself supreme. It was only when Germany resorted to barbarism that was unexpected even from her that the British navy failed to hold inviolate for the world the common rights of the sea. Britain's great naval strength has never yet been used to suppress the freedom of other nations. As Mr. Balfour says, it is a protection, not only for Britain, but for the civilized world.—Ottawa Free Press.

TURKISH ATROCITIES UPON THE ARMENIANS EQUAL THE GERMANS

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A long account by an eye-witness of Armenian atrocities is telegraphed by the Reuter correspondent with the Dardanelles fleet. The statement is from an official source, the correspondent explaining that it was given to the British staff by an Armenian serving in the Turkish army who was taken prisoner.

This account begins at Erzerum, the principal city of Turkish Armenia, last March. It covers travels about various parts of Armenia and gives details of various atrocities along familiar lines—how the bishop of Sivas was shod with shoes of red hot iron by a village blacksmith at the order of the Turks, how men of Tokal were tied to one another in groups of four and taken out one hundred at a time in the marshy districts for massacre.

This Armenian's story tells how the declaration of martial law at Zile included the confiscation of all Armenian property.

The account describes how women were tied to the tails of ox cars and exposed to hunger and rough weather until they accepted conversion to Islam or death, how mothers were bayonetted before the eyes of their children, how Armenian girls were distributed as chattels among civil and military officers.

The prisoner says that as a soldier he himself was compelled to assist in many massacres, being on one occasion a member of a party of forty soldiers which superintended the death of 800 Armenians. His account closes as follows: "There is reason to believe that German advisers of the Turks have urged upon them the undesirability of allowing a large alien and presumably unfriendly population to inhabit ports which are open to Russian attack."

"The Day" and the Morrow And the Day After To-morrow

It is impossible to speak too highly of the discretion of Grand Admiral von Tirpit zin keeping the Imperial German Navy in the calm and serene waters of the Kiel Canal for the last fourteen months. He cannot be too careful of those ships for us; because, if they are not technically our property they will be at the end of the war; and they are much more valuable in their present condition than they would be in the form of scrap iron at the bottom of the North Sea. There is nothing "scrappy" about them just now; the gallant Grand Admiral doesn't seem to fancy the idea of their being connected with anything of the nature of a scrap. Then we do not like the idea of their gallant crews being made for fishes. They are not doing any harm where they are, and they are having a good time drinking to "Der Tag" (not Trafalgar Day), and bragging about what they are going to do, if ever they have the misfortune to meet the British fleet. Von Wiegand has cabled to the New York World a tale of woe. They have been waiting for nearly a year and a quarter for a challenge from the British fleet, and the challenge has not come yet, and the gallant German sailors are wondering when they are going to get a chance to show how they can whip our navy. Meanwhile our ships, having driven off the sea or bottled up nearly every ship flying the German flag except a few in the Baltic, are devoting much attention to the latter area. They have practically bottled up in the Scandinavian ports about a hundred German vessels, and the wonder is that the Kiel Canal boatmen, who are so anxious for a fight, do not go to their rescue. The matter is of vital importance to Germany, because external supplies, always a prime necessity to the Fatherland, are every day becoming more necessary, and the Baltic is the only direct means of communication with the outside world. The Krupps and Herr Ballin, 'the assassin of the Lusitania," are said to control the Narvik Iron Mines, belonging to a nominally Swedish company, but what is the good of these Teutonic patriotis owning iron ore in Sweden if the British navy will not allow it to be shipped to Essen? The Kaiser is a large shareholder in Krupps, and yet he allows the British navy to prevent the delivery of the company's iron ore in Sweden to a German port, while his own grand navy is rusting in the Kiel Canal and his sailors are eating their hearts out. It has been suggested that the scrupulous regard of the British courts for the niceties, the technicalities, of the law is partly responsible for the indifference of the Hohenzollern-Krupp-Ballin combination to the financial aspect of the case. According to the law, Krupps do not own the Narvik ore, they are only controlling partners in a Swedish company which does own it. Consequently, if a British war vessel seizes a cargo of ore belonging to this company, which holds its charter from a neutral government, the British courts quixotically hold that the British Government must compensate the company for the ore seized. The Hohenzollerns, Krupps and Ballins, in their corporate capacity, are Swedes, and entitled to the protection of English law. It is like the Canadian Independence of Parliament Act, which forbids an honourable member to profit by a government act unless he takes his profit in the form of a dividend from an incorporated company. He may be practically the whole company, but the charter keeps him as pure as baking powder.

Under no conceivable circumstances, however, can Germany win the war until she has beaten the British fleet. While the fleet floats there is no possible conquerce for Germany, and Germany cannot live long without foreign trade. Still, that is not our business; if the Germans prefer to stay in the Canal and bluster instead of coming out to fight by all means let them do it. We do not want them to expose our property to war risks, and if they come out they cannot get any insurance at Lloyds.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

ROUMANIA OF THE IRON GATES

It is possible that the issue between Kultur and Civilization in Europe will be decided not in the east, not in the west, nor on the seas, but upon the war-eroded Balkan Peninsula. By the irony of events that is left for Roumania to say; and her policy is frankly one of "national selfishness." She is interested only in herself. The possibility, approaching probability, that she will put her sword on the side of the Allies is an offset to the discouragement they must feel at the course of the Balkan campaign so far, and also to their disappointment in Greece.

Roumania of the "Iron Gates" rises out of the Black Sea like a gigantic lobster's claw. The northern half is called Moldavia, and thrusts itself between Russia and Hungary. The southern half is called Wallachia, and lies between Hungary and Bulgaria, the tip of it touching Serbia. Thus, Roumania separates allies and belligerents in a most tantalizing manner. She hinders Russians, Teutons, and Bulgars all at once. If she were with Germany, the Austro-German forces, instead of fighting their way through Serbia, could march directly and without resistance to Constantinople. If she were with the Allies, the Russians could invade Bulgaria, join the Anglo-French forces in Serbia, and attack Turkey at the same time. So, just at the present moment, this thoroughfare across Roumania is of the highest strategic value. Add to this the fact that the Roumanian army, 600,000 strong, is one of the crack fighting machines of Europe, and you have a situation now both dramatic and fascinating, and bound to become historically celebrated.

Were ever the diplomats of a little Power in such a position as this? They are "negotiating." That is the euphemistic word. If they forbear to practice extortion they are not Roumanians but angels, for they have precious merchandise to sell and the competition of the buyers is intense. Besides, they rather make a point of not being angels at all, but selfish human beings, intent on getting what material things they want. Their natural feelings are anti-Teutonic, as Bulgaria's were believed to be, and probably are still. But their kings have been doubtful. Indeed, King Charles at the beginning of the war sought to bring Roumania into an alliance with the Central Powers, but was foiled by the "national selfishness" of his people, calling themselves "greater Roumanians." He died and was succeeded by Ferdinand, who apparently is somewhat less disposed to commit his country against its prejudices.

Until now Roumania's neutrality has been punctilious, even under the strain of great pressure from her formidable Teutonic neighbours and notwithstanding the tremendous reverses suffered by her only other powerful neighbour, Russia. If she had yielded military thoroughfare on demand it would not have been necessary for the Austro-German forces to go through Serbia. If now she should abandon her neutrality and take up arms against them, Russia for the first time since the war began would be able to make physical contact with her Allies. Then Germans, Austrians, Bulgars, and Turks would meet British, French, Russians, Italians, and Serbs on the Balkan Peninsula, in the middle of the world. Would Greece in that case enjoy the role of spectator? Her wavering sword is stronger now than it can ever be again.—New York Times.

How the Germans Got Cold

Giving his impressions of a sojourn in Berlin M. Maurice Strauss says the streets are no longer safe at night-time, and crimes and outrages are on the increase. M. Strauss was assured that in making arrests the order was given to single out people who seem to be in easy circumstances. At the police station these people are searched, and if gold is found in their possession they are reprimanded for their lack of patriotism, and are told that if they agree to exchange their gold for bank notes or War Loan scrip they will be released, and nothing more will be heard of the charge on which they were arrested.

"Mr. Starr," said the manager, "you positively must give up letting your mind dwell so much on your bicycle."

"Eh! Why?" asked the tragedian.

"Perhaps you are not aware of it, but in the third act, where you should have cried, 'Ye gods, I am stabbed,' you shouted, 'I am punctured'."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SCOUT'S ESCAPE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

During the Indian troubles which followed the close of the civil war I was attached to various western forts and camps as scout and dispatch rider and in that capacity had my full share of adventures. It was my fortune or misfortune almost at the outset of my career to strike the Sioux a blow which made them forever after hungry for my life.

It soon became known among the Sioux what had happened, and every branch of the tribe swore to have my life. A reward of ten ponies was offered to any one who would kill me and twenty if I were taken alive. I was advised by every one to clear out of that locality, but I refused to go till the long expected war finally broke out, and I was attached to a moving column.

I was finally made a prisoner under singular circumstances. I was returning from the flying column to Fort Wallace with dispatches. I had set out soon after dark and made a good twenty-five miles when a heavy fog settled on the plains. It wouldn't have bothered an Indian to keep the points of the compass, but after I turned and twisted among some dry ravines I had to own up that I was lost. My horse was just as badly off. When I gave him his head he came to a stop. The only thing to do was to dismount and wait for daylight. I was sitting on the ground, not feeling a bit sleepy, and my horse was lying down when a band of thirty-seven Indians, all mounted, walked right on to me through the fog. I heard the footsteps of their horses, but could not locate them in the fog until too late. When I leaped up it was with the thought that I might make a break for it on foot, but before I could turn they were all about me, and in another minute I was made prisoner.

The Indians were as much surprised as I was, and it was broad daylight before they identified me. Up to that time they had treated me fairly well. When it was known I was the scout whose life they had so long thirsted after half a dozen bucks tried their best to tomahawk me on the spot, but were restrained.

When their anger had cooled down there was as much rejoicing as if they had captured a fort. Six warriors were called out as a guard, and soon after started for a big Sioux village on Deer creek, between the two forks of the Republican river. I was, of course, disarmed. Then my elbows were tied together and my feet tied under the horse, and for fear the horse would run off with me he was led by a lariat.

When we reached the village I was put in a tepee and my arms unbound.

It was the third day after my capture before I was disturbed. Then, most of the warriors having returned to the village on purpose to witness my death, I was led out at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to undergo the preliminary to actual torture. This is running the gantlet.

I got ready as well as I could, and when the signal came I sprang away at the top of my speed. Blow after blow fell upon me as the savages shouted their delight, and, to my great surprise, I at length reached the end. There I fell in a heap, and they gave me ten minutes to brace up for the run back. I made only half the distance this time, being struck such a blow over the head with a club that I sank down unconscious. When I had recovered my senses they returned me to the lodge, where I lay for many hours, expecting to be taken out any moment for torture. They would have finished me but for the fact that the wife of Little Feather, who was in another village fifty miles away, had not yet arrived. She wanted to be in at the death.

The squaw arrived soon after midnight. My ankles were tightly lashed, and I could not sleep.

Half an hour after daylight the village was astir, and at sunrise a squaw brought me some breakfast, and the lashings around my ankles were cast off. I learned several years after that it was intended to oblige me to run the gantlet again. I was eating the meal the squaw had brought when a sudden excitement arose outside. There was a great shouting, followed by cheers and the report of firearms, and the next minute the 300 frontiersmen who had been raised in Kansas and Nebraska as an independent force charged into the village. It was a complete surprise to the Indians, but not for long. It wasn't five minutes before the fleeing warriors rallied for defense, but before that time I was safe. At the first alarm I sprang up and ran out of the lodge full against one of the guards, and as I ran I was fired at two or three times. I was with the horsemen in a minute or two, and after a bit I got a rifle and took an active part in the hot fight going on. We were driven off after a couple of hours, but we got every pony in the herd and burned all the lodges, and they had many a dead warrior to mourn over.

It was singular that in after years I should meet the squaw of Little Feather on the reservation and have a long talk with her. So it happened, and she calmly told me that she had been promised my scalp and it would have been her hand which would have ended my agonies after I had amused the warriors to their fill as a prisoner at the stake.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt. — "We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and clumsy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would sweat. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me." — Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Culloden Moor.

The last battle fought on the soil of Great Britain took place in the middle of the 18th century. While George II. was engaged in the war of the Austrian succession Charles Edward, who was called the young pretender, a grandson of King James II. of England, landed in Scotland and made two attempts to obtain the throne of his ancestors. He was victorious in the battle of Falkirk, but the Duke of Cumberland, son of George II., having been recalled from the continent to take command of the King's forces, the pretender was defeated at Culloden Moor, a plain in Scotland, four miles from Inverness.

The Duke of Cumberland gave no quarter. The wounded were all slain, and the jails of England were filled with prisoners, many of whom were executed. Among the latter were Lords Balberino, Kilmarnock, and Lovat, Lovat being the last person who was beheaded in England.

This was the last battle fought on the Island of Great Britain, and took place April 16, 1746, and it was also the last attempt on the part of the Stuart family to recover the throne of Great Britain. Charles Edward Stuart escaped to France after he had wandered five months in the highlands. He died in Rome January 30, 1788.

Answered.

A skeptic who was badgering a simple minded old man about the miracle of Balaam's ass finally said, "How is it possible for an ass to talk like a man?" "Well," replied the honest old believer, with meaning emphasis, "I don't see why it ain't as easy for an ass to talk like a man as it is for a man to talk like an ass."

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared — Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

STOCKINGS AND WAR HAVE SAME ORIGIN

Wood Pulp Germany's Cotton Substitute is the Commencement of Many Varied Articles

The claim of the Germans to have substituted wood pulp for cotton in the manufacture of explosives calls attention to the properties of this wonderful product.

Wood pulp is just what its name implies, and is obtained by disintegrating wood either by a mechanical or chemical process. The former variety is prepared by grinding it under water. It is inferior in quality, as the fibres are short and the product readily discolors. Under the chemical process the wood is cut up and boiled under pressure with a solution of caustic soda, sodium sulphide, or, best of all, calcium bisulphite, and the resulting soft product is pulped, pressed, washed and bleached.

It was the use of this material that so reduced the cost of paper as to make the halfpenny newspaper possible. So rapidly, indeed, did paper cheapen from 1875 to 1885 that the introduction of wood pulp is said, within those years, to have trebled the circulation of England's newspapers.

It is a far cry from high explosives and newspapers to ladies' stockings and "silk" neckties, yet the latter no less than the former are nowadays commonly products of the same origin.

All sorts of hardware articles are now compounded of the pulped tissues of trees that once swayed gracefully in some northern forest—cigar and cigarette holders, fancy combs, umbrella handles, buttons, insulating materials, films, and a hundred other things.

Of course, the extensive use of wood pulp for articles of clothing is not strange. Cellulose, which is employed in enormous quantities in the fibrous state in the form of cotton, linen, jute, hemp, etc., is the chief component of all vegetable tissues, in which it exists in elongated cells or fibres. Cottonwool and filter paper are almost pure cellulose. It is only a matter of technical skill to convert to textile uses the cellulose of the spruce tree instead of using that of the cotton plant. In the manufacture of hardware paulp is not so essential, high pressure and a strong adhesive being the great factors.

Nor is the course of wood pulp run when it is made into textiles or papers. The paper itself, when it has served its turn, goes back into the boiler, and once more becomes pulp. Mixed with starch or glue and pressed, it is then forced into moulds, previously oiled, and we have that useful product, papier mache.

Value is Increasing

The commercial value of this commodity has of late years been greatly enhanced by the ingenuity and skill of decorative artists, especially the French. The rich mural mouldings that give so imposing an aspect to certain public buildings are a superior kind of pulp product.

Carton pierre—an article that the French have carried to a high state of perfection—perhaps marks the acme in this line of manufacture. It consists of paper pulp, whiting, and gum, pressed into plaster moulds and stove dried. Improved so as to admit of gilding easily, it decorates portions of the Tuileries, the Louvre, and the Palais Royal at Paris.

The demand for wood pulp articles is said to be rapidly increasing, and in some of the factories they are unable to cope with it. The making of propulsive explosives does not exhaust the uses of the pulp even from a military point of view, for in the form of a solution, it is extensively used in the treatment of fabrics for accoutrements and in other ways.

SWEDISH AUTHORESS TELLS OF EXPERIENCE AT THE FRENCH FRONT

PARIS, October 22.—"Soldiers who has not see a woman for months crowd around me to pay their respects," said Sarika st. Jernstedt, a Swedish author nd the first woman to visit the French battle front by invitation of the general staff, on returning to Paris to-day. "Their cheering proved," she added, "that the have not lost a particle of the traditional French polish in the months of burrowing in the earth from refining influences. Their mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts may be proud of them."

Miss St. Jernstedt is not only the first woman to succeed where so many men have failed, but she is likely to be the last of her sex to enjoy the privilege of being specially conducted to the front. The French general staff is opposed to the presence of women in the zone of operations.

"The party will be within range of the enemy's artillery," objected the officials whom she appealed. "Won't you be afraid."

"What I fear most," said Miss St. Jernstedt, "is that I shall not be permitted to get close enough to show you I am not afraid."

The party approached close enough to inspect thoroughly the field of the fruitless battles in the Champagne, and what Miss Jernstedt saw of it, she declared to the Associated Press, "surpasses all imagination."

"I went so rapidly from one strong position to another that it is difficult to recall them all," she continued. "I traversed miles of devastation of the ground every rod of which had been heaved up, and where remained not a sign of vegetation. The din of it becomes so soon familiar that one pays little attention to the fact batteries firing close at hand, though the three inch guns make a noise quite in proportion to their deadly execution.

"The soldiers I saw while passing through Germany on my way to France, cannot stand comparison with the men I saw in Champagne. The latter are admirable in quality and in spirits. They are not only the same polished, polite Frenchmen of the times of peace but their eyes flash an intelligence that prevails over the simple discipline. Any French soldier can tell you what he is doing and why he is doing it. There is no roughness about him, but his eyes are full of energy.

"Of the battlefield itself, the most impressive thing I saw was what is left of the Souain mill and the spot where it stood before the battle. There is a hole there where you could hide a fair sized house and of the mill there remains only a few splintered boards.

"My conclusion after seeing the French troops and hearing them talk was that nothing could be more natural than a victory in the Champagne and others like it. I saw there the soul of an old soldierly people reawakened and ever quite as young. That was a grand and beautiful final impression."

The angry citizen puffed into the office of the city editor.

"See here, sir," he yelled, "what do you mean by publishing my resignation from my municipal office in this way?"

"You gave the story out yourself, didn't you?" asked the editor.

"Of course I did," replied the angry citizen, "But your fool paper prints it under the head of 'Public Improvements.'"

REST.

I felt so faint and weary, my life was full of care.
The burden laid upon me seemed greater than I could bear.
I turned to the world for comfort, but I looked for it in vain.
It smiled at my human weakness and mocked at my bitter pain.

I went to my dearest loved ones and poured out my story of woe
But their thoughts and feelings were different so my story they could not know.
They tried to soothe my spirit, they tried to cheer my heart
But they could not lift my burden, nor bid my grief depart.

Then I turned from the world and my loved ones, my loneliness and woe.
And looked up into Heaven, for God was there, I knew.
I felt my utter weakness and thought of His wonderful power.
And my soul cried out to its maker in the hush of that silent hour.

Forgive me, O Father, forgive me, for doubting thine infinite heart.
Forgive me for feeling so lonely, when I knew Thou wert everywhere.
Forgive me for grieving Thy spirit, O wonderful spirit of Love.
O gather me under Thy feathers and fill me with strength from above.

I bowed my head in the silence, the awful silence of God.
Then I knew the truth of His 'fried and drank in His spirit of love
Be still and know that I am God I read this o'er and o'er,
But now I knew the meaning I had to know before.

Like the calm of a summer morning a midnight storm.
Like the perfume of lovely flowers to traveller sick and worn,
So calm and sweet was the spirit that me thus be still,
And promised me peace in a world strife if daily I followed His will.

I am still surrounded with sorrow weighted down with care,
But round about and underneath God everywhere.
And when I grow faint and weary I on his wisdom and love.
And He gives a joy that this world not give, a taste of that world above.

CANADIAN PRISONER WAS KILLED BY THE GERMANS

Rifle Was Placed Against His Body and That of Companion —Father Made Many Enquiries—Mother Had Knitted Socks For Her Boy All Through the Winter—Was Only Lad of Seventeen.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—"Killed whilst a prisoner in the enemy's hands."

The pictured features of a fair-faced, blue-eyed boy, Pte. David Moncur, full of light and life, gazed down upon father and mother in a home in Toronto.

How the life went out from the living features is told, in part, in the line above.

The utter fiendishness of the taking of that life is more fully told in a letter from the Army Council, received by the father, Mr. Daniel Moncur, at the above address Saturday afternoon. It runs as follows:

No Excuse.

"In reply to your letter concerning 365, Pte. David Moncur, 2nd Battalion, Gordon Highlanders, I am commanded by the Army Council to inform you that it is regretted that this soldier is reported to have been killed near Gheluvelt on 31st October, 1914, in the following circumstances:

"The machine-gun officer states that he and Pte. Moncur were both wounded and, together with another man, were captured by the Germans, who were round them in large numbers. He ordered them to surrender as it was impossible to do anything and they were ordered to carry him up some distance, from where they were, which they did. Some few minutes later they were taken away fifty yards and both shot. The man who shot them put his rifle right against the bodies as he fired. There was no excuse for the shooting of these men as their captors had previously asked them if they would go with them, and the officer replied that they would.

"I am to express the sympathy of the Army Council with the soldier's relatives. I am, sir, your obedient servant, (Signed). B. B. Cutill.

Was Good Linguist.

David Moncur was only seventeen, and only a few inches over five feet tall. He enlisted with the Gordon Highlanders as a scout in Edinburgh, in August of last year, and the clever lad, with his knowledge of French, German and Italian, as well as his knowledge of the country, proved to be a true helper in the regiment.

No letter came to his parents after October 25th, 1914.

How the father, hoping against hope, tried to learn the fate of his son, is best told in his own words:

"I kept inquiring from the War Office, but they said he was all right as far as they knew. His name did not appear on the casualty list. One of the letters I sent came back from the War Office on March 9th marked Missing."

Still the enquiries went on. Mr. Moncur writing to an Edinburgh M. P., Mr. Price, to appeal to the War Office. Finally, on May 21st, came a brief word, "Killed while in the enemy's hands."

"How and where?" was the father's agonized query in brief. The final answer came as stated on Saturday.

Mother Knitted For Him.

All through the months until early in March the mother's hands have knitted socks for her boy.

Every week Mrs. Moncur and an aunt in England had sent the comforts addressed to the lad who had been foully murdered.

In the home in Toronto, the dead boy's photo, his kit and Bible, his tartan hose and an army medal he wore—the last three articles sent by a prisoner—are left to remind the father, mother and remaining brother of David. The young soldier was born and educated in Edinburgh, and was a musical prodigy, having played on the stage when a child of three with Lady Colin Campbell's company. He was travelling with a company when he enlisted.

Says India Has Given Million Men to Allies

Country Loyal to Britain and Hopes for Same Status as Canada.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 23.—More than 1,000,000 natives of India have enrolled in the British Army since the war began.

This is the statement of Bejoy Komer Roy, former student at the University of Minnesota, who left 18 months ago for his home in Calcutta, and who has returned to Minneapolis.

"India is loyal to the British Empire," says Ray. "The people of India, most of them, realize that the destiny of India is allied with the destiny of the British Empire and that India can become self-governing only as Canada, Australia, and New Zealand are self-governing as colonies of the Empire. These Indians feel that the time is coming when India will no longer be a dependency of Britain, when it will be a colony with governing bodies of its own.

"Perhaps this feeling has much to do with the way in which the Indians have come to the aid of the Empire, both with men and with money. We feel that this war will result in a victory for the Allies and that it cannot but help India and other dependent countries. Britain will be grateful to India for her loyalty. She will look with favour on any move to give India more liberty."

Roy says that tales of the courage of the Germans were brought back to India by native soldiers who had been sent home on sick and wounded leave.

"The Sikhs come back and tell us of the courage of all the European soldiers," he says, "and they have the highest admiration for the courage of the Germans. The war is disappointing in a way for these Sikhs and other soldiers of India, however. I talked with one soldier just before I left for America. 'It is not our style of fighting,' he said. 'One lies for days in a trench with shels bursting around. There is no hand-to-hand fighting. It is a poor way to fight.'"

Roy says that some of the Indian soldiers who were Mohammedans were disinclined to fight against the Sultan, but that the majority of the soldiers, Hindoos and Sikhs, had no such feeling.

"More than 70,000 Indian troops are in France now," he says. "Others have been sent to Africa and the Dardanelles, and there is a vast army at home drilling and making ready for departure.

"India is devoting every energy to the aid of Britain. Jute mills, instead of jute, now manufacture munitions of war. There are no riots or disturbances of any consequence, although the extremists, those who advocate independence of Britain, have stirred up a little trouble in some localities. The outbreaks have been spasmodic and of little consequence."

APSLEY NEWS

Can any one inform us as to the whereabouts of the teacher at S. S. No. 7, Chandos, who was only seen there for about one week, age 16, wearing glasses, very diminutive in stature, wearing long pants for the first time on receiving his appointment? Information regarding this small boy would be very much appreciated. Surely we are not to be left to think that any harm came to him on being left there, and that none of the scholars who are as old as himself, treated him very badly; shame on them if such has been the case; they might at least have had consideration, and remember that this child had but very recently left his mother's apron strings.

To the trustees who made the appointment we extend our sympathy on their losing this boy. It must have cost them a great deal of forethought and consideration, and how they must have put their wise heads together and made this careful selection, alas! only to lose their boy teacher in such a short time. Nevertheless, they will surely have learned a lesson and that is, never again appoint a child for such an office; always think a little deeper, and then they may not lose their teachers, or in the other case, if they must appoint children, let them appoint also a nurse to look after them. It would be money well spent.

Interested.

BESIEGED BY POLAR BEARS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—A. T. Fleming, in charge of a Canadian Government expedition to Hudson Bay to establish wireless stations, returned to-day and told a thrilling story of a fight which he and five of his men had with two dozen polar bears.

The men lost their way in a snowstorm and found themselves on an ice floe. To their horror they found it tenanted by bears. The men climbed to the top of the berg, where they remained all night, with the bears prowling around and trying to dislodge them.

There was only one gun in the party, but with it they killed one bear and wounded others. In the morning the bears went away. After two days on the ice without food the men were rescued by their comrades.

Many Comforts Sent To Canadians By War Contingent Association

Mrs. F. A. Thomas of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club has received the following letter from the Canadian War Contingent Association:

Mrs. F. A. Thomas, Brownton P. O., Peterborough, Canada.

Dear Madam,—I am directed by the Committee of the Canadian War Contingent Association to convey to you and to those associated with you our most grateful thanks for a donation received at the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital, in August.

The consignment was addressed to Col. Armour, who doubtless has thanked you 'ere this.

The gifts sent by you were of a most acceptable kind and we are correspondingly grateful.

The Queen's Canadian Military Hospital has opened its new wings, and is now filled to overflowing. The wounded come and go so fast that it keeps everyone extremely busy. Fortunately the Canadians were not engaged in the last desperate battle, and so there have been practically no casualties among them for some time but the wounded British Tommies who have come into the hospital from the last engagement are, some of them, very bad indeed. We hope, however, to pull them all through, but it is terrible how some of the men are smashed and broken. Every week some fresh device to torture our soldiers seems to come to the fore. Other wars have been child's play to this one. What the men are called upon to endure is beyond words and makes one dumb with admiration before the splendid spirit which counts a suffering boy nothing so long as duty is done.

We have now nearly 70,000 troops at the front, and if I may, I should like to say that I think it would be a good thing for the Canadian women to concentrate, to a certain extent, upon comforts for the front. Doubtless Mrs. Plumptre has issued the information which we cabled to her some time ago, namely, that mufflers should be about one and a quarter yards to one and a half yards' long, and mitten-wristlets should be 8 inches long, reaching to the second joint of the fingers, with a short thumb and no separate fingers. With these mitten-wristlets the ends of the fingers are uncovered and free.

I am enclosing you lists of the comforts sent to the front during August and September, from which you will see the quantities of such things as tobacco, confectionery, cake, etc., the Association has to send to fulfil the requisitions received from the officers commanding the different units. We have made excellent wholesale contracts for the purchase of these things and we can make a shilling go a very long way, but as I am sure you will understand, we need a great deal of money to carry on the work. If you could see the wonderful letters of gratitude we receive from the different officers you would, I know, agree that the Association is doing a great work.

We shall be very grateful if you will circulate the information in this letter among your friends.

May I say that all contributions, whether for the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital or for the troops at the front, should be addressed to us here in London, to the Canadian War Contingent Association, Westminster Palace Hotel, Victoria street, London, S. W. We understand that through some mistake it was given out that contributions for the hospital should be addressed to the Association. If gifts are sent to the hospital they frequently have to be sent back to London to be counted and registered as our books are kept here. Every available inch of space at the Hospital is needed for patients, and we cannot spare space for a big store room, nor the time of the staff for the book-keeping required. We forward from London by motor-van, as the hospital requests.

With the grateful thanks of the Committee,

Sincerely Yours,

Eleanor McLaren Brown.

Belgian Masons Protest To Americans on Peace Talk

Belgian Freemasons in exile recently assembled in London and issued a circular letter to the forty-nine grand lodges of the United States. It is their purpose to combat the insidious and fallacious pretensions of those who are demanding peace, when peace at the present juncture could only be for the benefit of the violators of Belgium and the murderers of women and children. The letter follows:—

Most Worshipful Grand Master.

The Grand Orient and the Supreme Council of Belgium, have since the invasion of their country found it impossible to meet. Under the circumstances it is therefore necessary for the few Belgian lodges, who have been able to constitute themselves in foreign territory to speak on behalf of their Masonic brethren.

Consequently the lodge Albert de Belgique — the name of our national hero—has, in London, grouped together Belgian Masons of all obediences, monarchist or republican, who now call the attention of American Masons to facts which it is our Masonic and patriotic duty to bring under this notice.

You certainly are aware, as we are, that the principles and landmarks of Freemasonary demand from Masons the patriotic duty of defending their native land when it is in danger.

A propaganda, pacific only in name, tends to spread itself in the United States to deceive the uprightness and faith of the American opinion by recommending an immediate, or at least an early peace.

No particulars are given as to the terms of the said peace; no one sets forth, as terms previous to any parley, the complete evacuation of our territory and a just settlement of an indemnity for all damage sustained.

Thus taking advantage of misunderstandings carefully kept up, this movement would propagate itself for a peace purely German, based on the status quo. That is to say, a peace which would include the annexation of Belgium. It is this that the Belgians as well as the Americans must reject with the utmost energy. The Belgians, as you may well realize, are the most interested parties in the establishment of an honorable peace; they know what the cost of war means to them, but they cannot consent to peace which would be a truce, neither will they purchase peace at the cost of the independence of their country.

Americans form of free nation; independent and proud. They have maintained, and are maintaining still by their inexhaustible charity, the famished Belgian population. They cannot possibly listen to the voice of those who would if they were heard make our country a nation reduced to servitude, conquered and despised in their own eyes, for they would only have helped her to live to see her plunged into slavery.

Germany has sworn to defend Belgian neutrality, but without any provocation on our part, without the least shadow of an excuse, she deliberately violated the neutrality she had promised to respect and defend. This is naked truth, which no explanation will ever be able to efface. Let Germany bear now, with all the weight of her shame, all the consequences of her crime. It is the chastisement of justice, and it is beyond the power of anybody to absolve her from it.

You cannot ignore. Most Worshipful Grand Master, the teachings of one of the Craft's degree that is based on the religious respect due to sworn faith in all circumstances of life, however tragic they may be, and this is as true for nations as for individuals.

We offer you, Most Worshipful Grand Master, the assurance of our sincere and courteous sentiments of fraternity.

In spite of the fact that Lieut. Hamilton has secured twenty-three recruits for the 33rd Battery in the last week, recruiting has been good for the Peterborough Battalion, and this week it is expected will be better than the average in view of yesterday's announcement that the 93rd will have its headquarters here for the winter. Among the recruits who passed the doctor in the past two days are the following:

Robert Scullie, 517 Sherbrooke Street, born in Canada.

Henry Washburn, Lasswade, born in Canada.

Michael Lonergan, 222 Perry Street. Born in Canada.

John Bronson Apsley, born in Canada.

Neil McArthur, Campbellford, born in Canada.

Wm. Howley, Omemee, born in England.

Michael J. Hallihan, 461 Chamberlen Street; born in Canada.

Henry Carter, Keene, born in England.

Last evening at a social gathering held in All Saints' Parish Hall, Mr. George East, secretary of the choir, was presented with a wrist watch, he having recently joined the colours with the 93rd Battalion. Mr. Chandler, the choirmaster, in the course of a few remarks, conveyed the feeling of sorrow the choir felt at losing so tried and useful a member. He had been a chorister for over three years, and had held the office of secretary for nearly two, and would be greatly missed, although a speedy return was hoped for. Miss Mabel Williams then fastened the watch on his wrist. Rev. Mr. Grobb also spoke of the loss they would all feel at Mr. East's departure as he had been one of the members who was nearly always in his place. The gathering then rose and sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. East suitably responded and thanked them all for their kindness.

It has also been decided by the militia authorities to distribute the 80th battalion, now in camp at Barrefield, between Belleville, Picton, and Napanee, with headquarters at Belleville, where preparations are being made for the accommodation of 600 men and officers. No information has been received regarding the distribution of the 59th batalion now in camp, and there is much speculation regarding it. The battalion will either go directly overseas or two companies with headquarters will be kept in Kingston and the balance distributed in nearby places.

A company of 300 tunnellers, made up largely of miners and experienced engineers, is already at Pembroke, where it will remain for the winter.

Gunner Howard Copp, who left with the draft for the 33rd Battery, this morning, was the President of the Beacon Class in the George Street Methodist Church, and will be greatly missed by the members of that class.

The employees of Barrie's, Limited, presented Gunner Bert Hamilton with a handsome wrist watch, yesterday. Gunner Hamilton left this morning with the draft from the 24th Field Battery to join the 33rd Battery, C. F. A., C.E.F.

Lt.-Col. Johnston is forwarding the names of a number of Peterborough officers to-day to divisional headquarters, recommending that they be appointed to the 93rd Peterborough Battalion. They will likely be appointed in the next day or two. Several Lakefield officers are also to be recommended. Three subalterns are needed to complete the establishment of A Company of the 93rd which is complete as far as rank and file are concerned. The organization of B Company will be proceeded with as soon as possible. It will likely be commanded by a Peterborough officer. Capt R. P. Watt is in command of A Company.

A large amount of equipment for the Peterborough Battalion arrived yesterday. The consignment included great coats, tunics, trousers, puttees, boots, towels, kit bags, etc., and when another supply of caps arrive there will be complete equipment on hand for 300 men. The clothing is being issued to the men to-day.

A presentation took place on Saturday last at the office of the Quaker Oats Co., to two more of the office staff who have enlisted with the 33rd Battery for overseas service. At the noon hour the employees assembled to say good-bye to Gunners Harold Elcome and Walker Jones. The Manager, Mr. W. H. Denham, on behalf of the staff, expressed regret at the departure from their midst of two such estimable young men, but at the same time they honoured them for the splendid step they were taking in rallying to the call of the Empire. He extended them good wishes for a successful career and a safe return. He then presented each of the young men with a wrist watch. Suitable replies of a grateful and appreciative character were made by the young soldiers.

Slightly Wounded.

Mrs. Jennie Kendry, 659 Water Street, was notified to-day that Pte. David Roscoe Kendry of the 57th detachment, 2nd Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, had been wounded, on October 12th, and returned to Regimental duty on October

Chimney Draught Was Not Working Smoothly

The Fire Department received a call this morning to 247 Park Street, occupied by Mr. James Middleton. The house was locked up but the firemen forced an entrance and found that the smoke which had been noticed by the neighbours was simply coming from the stove. Apparently the chimney draught was not working very smoothly.

2 ZEPPELINS, 17 PLANES—GERMAN BALTIC LOSS.

Petrograd Counts the Cost of Operations There to the Kaiser's Air Fleet.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 25.—The Bourse Gazette says that the losses of the German air fleet in the Baltic region to date have been two Zeppelins, four albatross, and twelve Taube aeroplanes, and one seaplane.

FELL IN A FAINT.

FAY ATTEMPTED TO DELAY SHIPMENT OF MUNITIONS

Says He is a German Agent and Went to United States to Blow Up Ships

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. Robert Fay, a lieutenant, admitted that he came here last April, through an arrangement with the German secret service for the purpose of blowing up or delaying steamers sailing from this country with arms and ammunition for the allies.

Fay declared, however, that while he had been here he had acted independently of the German embassy, or other German agents here. He added that he had told Capt. Von Papen, military attache, and Captain K. Boy-Ed, naval attache of the German embassy, of his plans, but said that both men told him not to interfere with steamers sailing from American ports or American ammunition plants.

Fay, and his brother-in-law, Walter L. Scholz, were arraigned at Weehawken earlier in the day on charges of conspiracy, and were held without bail for an examination to-morrow. Fay and Scholz were arested by New York and New Jersey detectives near Grantwood, N.J., late Sunday, while the two men were experimenting with explosives.

Daeche Gives People's Evidence.

Paul Daeche of Jersey City, who was arrested at his home early today, was also arraigned with Fay and Scholz. He was charged with conspiracy and held without bail. Detectives said, however, that Daeche had given them much valuable information, and they expected him to be an important witness in the case.

Fay said that while serving in the field with the German army, he invented a device for blowing up ships. He explained that he made the device after the French artillery, especially the 75 mm guns, had bothered his regiment a great deal.

Fay Issues Statement.

Police announced that Fay had made a complete confession of his activity during his stay here, and later the prisoner gave out a statement to the newspapers. In that he said:

"My only object when I came to this country was to interfere with the enormous shipments of artillery ammunition to the allies. Being a manufacturer myself, and knowing that any ordinary damage that may be done to a factory may be repaired within a few hours, I decided it was useless to bother with ammunition plants. Therefore, the intimation that I have been connected with various explosions or accidents that have occurred in such plants in the United States is entirely wrong.

"I am not a college man, but I hold the diploma of an efficiency engineer from an American correspondence school. I am interested in a plant that is manufacturing small machinery.

"I was serving with my regiment in the Champagne district and saw the terrible havoc and loss caused by the French artillery fire. Several French batteries at a certain point were annoying us. We made a night attack and dynamited the guns, but to our great dismay we found next day that the dynamited guns had been replaced. These were of 75 mm. type.

"During my spare time I had invented a device to explode mines by doing away with electrical wiring. In this way I was able to overcome the effect dampness or water had on the wires. I applied to the colonel of my regiment and he decided to give me a chance. He put me in touch with the secret service office and one of the agents arranged for my passage to the United States. I came here on the steamship Rotterdam, arriving, I believe, on April 23 last. I had no trouble in getting into the country."

Experimented Along Hudson.

Fay said that he and Scholz had conducted a large number of experiments with his mine device along the Hudson River, but declared that Daeche was in no way implicated. The man said that although Fay did not appear to be a German name, Robert Fay was his correct name and that he was listed under that name in his regiment. He also said that he was a German and denied that his father had been an Englishman. Fay said he was well supplied with money when he arrived here and therefore was able to act on his own responsibility.

HIS QUESTION

"What I should like to know
Is where the breezes rest themselves
When they're too tired to blow."

PETERBORO' BOYS IN ENGLAND ALL WELL

Pioneer Sergt. J. W. Edwards, of Peterborough, Tells of Life With the 39th Battalion at West Sandling Camp—Some of the 39th at Front.

THE NEW SONG HITS

Sergt. R. M. Beach of the 57th Band, has received the following interesting letter from Pioneer Sergt. J. W. Edwards, formerly of the 57th Regiment, and now with the 39th Battalion, C.E.F., West Sandling Camp, England.

Just a gentle reminder in my wife's last letter that I had forgotten some one in Peterborough, so I am going to drop you a line or two. I am pretty busy, I am pretty busy, but I always have time to send a word to an old friend. I am well and hope you and Mrs. Beach are the same. I was glad to know that some one else besides our own was thinking about us once in a while. We are settling down in our new camp and it means a lot of work for your truly, but I am there with the goods. I have a very good gang of pioneers. I think I have gained about 15 lbs. since coming here, so you see I will be in good shape to bump up against the Germans when we meet, but I may never get away from here, as we have a reserve battalion and will have drafts going and coming all the time, and I am on headquarters and can do as much good here as I could in France. This is some country, believe me, but there is another one that has it skinned a mile or more.

We have some regiments here now over 1500 strong. There are some of our boys in France and are doing good work, too, so I hear. The only thing they have against the Canadian, while he is a No. 1 fighter and won't be licked, is that he lacks discipline and you know what that means in an army at this time. We have as good men as God's sun ever shone on, but they have that fault, Major Carruthers, Sergt.-Major Dunkerly, Dodds, Max Metheral, in fact all the Peterborough men are well. We are brigaded with the 23rd and 39th and have the 4th just across the way, so you see we are quite a happy bunch. We have a sergeants' mess in connection with our regiment and it is some mess. We are about 108 strong. We held a concert the other night and believe me it was some time. I think we have about all the songs that are on the calendar, including the latest hits, "Keep the Home Fires Burning Until the Boys Return," and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling." They're good.

PIONEER SERGT. J. W. EDWARDS

My wife tells me that nearly all the Peterborough boys have joined the army. Good for them, I think she has done her share along those lines. I know of some who have not joined yet. Bad cess to them. May they have no peace until they do, say we.

We have been in our present camp about two weeks. We are in wooden huts. They are shells, but airy, and there is a stove in each hut. The boys are out playing football just now. Church in the morning and football in the afternoon—that's going some.

I took a trip to London and saw some of the sights and got lost, yes, lost. I saw some grand sight, visiting St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, and the Guild Hall, Buckingham Palace, the War Office, Tower of London, etc.

There is one thing I cannot get used to here and that is to see women sitting in the bars drinking with the men. It's heathenish to me, but everybody has his or her own taste.

Give my respects to all my friends and don't forget the boys who are far away from home.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS.

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

ARMENIAN REFUGEES FLEEING MASSACRE—RESCUED BY ALLIES—Allies' warships particularly along the Syrian coast have been recently engaged transporting these stricken people to places where they would be safe from Turkish aggression. On left is a young Armenian girl who narrowly escaped death and was rescued by a French battleship. On right is a French marine acting as a nurse to a little Armenian boy rescued.

The Bonaccord bridge is rapidly nearing completion. The concrete work was finished yesterday and nothing now remains but the top and the iron railing that will adorn the sides. IMMENSE FLOCK OF WILD DUCKS FLYING TOWARDS THE SOUTH

A North Monaghan farmer on Sunday afternoon saw a long line of wild geese slowly but steadily flying south. So high were they that although he knew by the far-away honking they were some place overhead it was not until he had gazed into the sky several minutes that he discovered the undulating "V"-shaped flight. They had reached an exceptionally high altitude and while their winging seemed leisurely it was only a few minutes until they had dissolved in the depths of the southern sky. Paraphrasing a biblical passage, when the birds fly south then winter is at hand.

ENCOURAGING MEETING IN ASSEMBLY HALL

Last night's meeting in the Assembly Hall was of a very encouraging nature, it being Monday evening which by those who labour in the Gospel, is generally understood to be a bad night for a meeting. The theme of Mr. McCrory's address was the Grace of God in its threefold effect on men, as specified in Titus ch. 2, v. 11, 12, 13. It comes out to men in their ruin caused by sin, bringing salvation. The speaker said he knew of no other word that designates the utter hopelessness of men like the word grace. It always reaches an object of a lower level. It then leads to a practical Christian life, and centres the object in the happy hope mentioned in v. 13. The meeting to-night is at 8 o'clock. All are heartily invited. The hall is on the first floor of the old Opera House building on George Street, over the Grand Trunk Ticket Office.—Com.

The Best Breakfast Possible.

Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal porridge properly made in a double boiler, and not stirred after first making it. Read directions on package. Better make night before for early breakfast, in double boiler, and warm in the morning while dressing, by allowing to sit in boiling water. Thus it's delicious and very nutritious. It prevents constipation, however cooked. Ask your doctor. At grocers', 10 and 25 cents.

Turks Are Daring In Work As Spies

SNIPERS GET A WATCHER.

Finally Kill Man Who Lay Hidden Five Days, Sending Back Word of Allies Landing by Pigeon Service.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A writer in The Daily Express says: "Astonishing stories of the guile of the German and his singularly apt pupil, the Turk, and of the many extraordinary ruses they have employed to deceive the Allies in the course of the Gallipoli campaign, are contributed to the New Zealand paper by a member of the expeditionary force from that country.

"On the first Sunday night, the Turks approached very close to our lines, (he writes), so close, indeed, that we could distinguish friend from foe. Then we started to get orders passed down the lines, such as 'Concentrate fire half right or half left.'

"But the queerest order of all was this: 'Cease fire.' No Australian is to fire another shot to-night.' Later came the reason for this: 'The Indians are in front of us.'

"This seemed a very good reason, so nearly every one ceased fire. After a while some one suggested that the Indians had not yet landed, and then definite word came down that there were no Indians with us. That settled matters, and shooting became very brisk again.

"What happened was this. An enemy officer had stripped a dead Australian of his clothes and slipped quietly into our lines. He it was who started all these bogus orders.

"This was by no means an isolated case. We had to be continually on our guard against such acts. Several Germans have been caught on the beach at our headquarters, walking round in full Australian or New Zealand uniforms. They have, of course, been shot at once as spies; yet there may still be many there now, walking round picking up information.

"'Saeeda; I'm de orderly officer!' said an obviously Turkish person, as he climbed over the top of the hill and lobbed heavily into one of the trenches. 'Saeeda,' I may say, is the Arabic for 'good evening.'

"The Turk must have been either a great fool himself, or deemed us such. His end was swift. No doubt he had been sent over to pass false orders down our lines.

"Now, during the first few days, those in charge of the Turkish batteries seemed to know just what was going on on the beach. They knew where one of our howitzers was situated and gave us a very warm time.

"They knew when we were landing reinforcements and shelled the landing stages. They knew when our lines of provision mules left headquarters, and shelled the valley which gives approach to our firing line, killing many of the mules. And, what is more, if a transport or warship came too near the shore the shells fell thick and fast around her; and one trawler was actually sunk by shrapnel. It was evident that the Turks had a very good observation station somewhere, with a very good man in charge. The difficulty was to locate him.

"As one of our men sat on the hill side one afternoon we saw a bird circling around high up in the air. He probably lay on his back and lazily watched the bird as it came closer and closer toward the earth. Then, curiously enough, it swooped down and disappeared in the crevice high up on the cliff's point. And instead of being a hawk, as he had supposed, it was a homing pigeon. The man watched the crevice carefully and saw some movement in there. He informed an officer, who soon had a dozen men shooting into it. Then a party was sent round to top of the cliff to investigate. Peering over the crevice they saw a strange sight. A man lay there dead, with sixteen wounds in his body. Beside him was a large crate of [illegible] the party was there. There was plenty of paper three weeks' supply of food and water, and food for the pigeons.

"For five days this man had hidden there, observing all that took place on the beach, and appraising the Turkish headquarters of it. He was a brave man and deserved a better fate. Yet he must have known from the first that sooner or later he would be caught, and his occupation of spy marked him for one fate—death."

Gunner Horace Coon Fittingly Remembered on Eve of His Departure

Farewell Dinner to Departing Soldier at Home of Mr. Robt. Neill Last Evening—Presentation of Wrist Watch and Fountain Pen—Enlists With 33rd Battery.

A farewell dinner and presentation was tendered Gunner Horace Coon, who has enlisted with the 33rd Battery, for overseas service, at the home of his employer, Mr. Robert Neill, corner Hunter and Downie Streets, last evening. Gunner Coon has been head salesman in the Neill shoe store and last evening's function was a fitting appreciation of the valuable and faithful service he has rendered the firm, and an expression of good wishes for a successful career and a safe return to Peterborough.

At 7.30 the staff of the Robert Neill shoe store, with their employer, his wife and family, sat down to a sumptuous dinner. Following the repast, Mr. R. J. Kidd, manager of the store, who acted as toastmaster, after proposing the toast to the King, proposed the toast to the guest of the evening. In doing so, he read the following address:

Peterborough, October 25, 1915.
Mr. H. W. Coon, City.

Dear Horace,—It is with sincere regret that we are called upon to say good-bye, and yet we realize the importance of the call, which you are responding to—a call to arms in defence of the Empire of which you are proud to belong. The British Empire, together with her Allies, are fighting for great principles, which include honour and liberty. This is our battle, and while we cannot go, we do admire those who are so situated and disposed to answer the strong appeal for more men.

You have the advantage over some who are now, and will be on the battlefield, namely, a healthy body and mind, the results of a clean life. You will, no doubt, experience some privation, and, at times, some lonely moments, but rest assured you will not be forgotten by those whom you leave behind. We will remember you as our representative, and if you are as successful in your military career as you have been in your business life, we will look forward to your prompt advancement from a Private to the Official Staff. We will follow with our best wishes for a safe journey, a protected life on the battlefield, and, in due time, a happy return to all those whom you now leave behind. We ask your acceptance of this watch and fountain pen, as a small remembrance, that you can carry with you without any incumbrance. This pen can be a medium between yourself and those you leave behind.

From your employer and fellow employees.

The presentation of the wrist watch and pen was made by Edgar Hatcher, messenger boy.

Gunner Coon, on rising to respond, was given an ovation. He expressed his sincere thanks in a neat speech, assuring his employer and fellow workers of his deep appreciation of their gifts and kind words. He would carry with him many happy remembrances of his association with the Neill shoe store. He hoped he would do his duty with credit to those he left behind.

Speeches expresive of good wishes to the departing soldier were also made by Mr. Robert Neill, Mr. P. Delaire, repair man, Misses Sherlock, cashier, O'Brien, head saleslady, Ackson, Dodds, Collins, Blank and Miller, and Messrs. W. D Stevens, J. Butler, Robt. Neill, Jr., Hugh Cruikshanks, Ed. Armstrong and Edgar Hatcher.

A musical hour was then enjoyed, Miss Blank contributing, as well as a number of selections on the Victrola.

At the conclusion a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Neill for their kind hospitality, it being moved by Mr. W. D. Stevens and seconded by Mr. Cruikshanks. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" concluded the evening.

Raccoons in East City

Animals Are Impressed With the Rural Aspects of the East Ward

Racoons to the number of five strayed into the city limits last evening and when last heard of were looking for Barrie's fur store. The coons wer first discovered in East City, near the south easterly limits. They were wending their way towards a corn patch. Judging by the way the coons wer travelling they were pretty well contented with the rural aspect of East City.

W. S. DAVIDSON MAY BE APPOINTED

Is Looked Upon as a Likely Successor to Police Magistrate Sanders of Calgary

CALGARY, Oct. 26.—Walter S. Davidson will likely be the new police magistrate. Mr. Davidson is a member of the firm of McArdle & Davidson, and has had considerable experience in magisterial duties at the police court, having occupied the bench for several years now, during the absences of Colonel Sanders. Mr. Davidson was out of the city when Colonel Sanders obtained leave of absence to join the Pioneers. He will probably be asked to sit on the bench at police court on his return. No official word has been received as to who will succeed Colonel Sanders, but it is believed that Mr. Davidson will be appointed.

Mr. Davidson came to Calgary from Peterborough, where he was a member of the legal firm of Hall, Medd and Davidson.

Enemy Attempts to Take French Positions Fail With Heavy Losses

PARIS, Oct. 25.—For the eighth time in five days the Germans attacked the French positions in the Givenchy region Saturday evening, and, as on each earlier attempt, were repulsed. The French fire was so terrific that the Germans were cut to pieces as they left their trenches, and they were compelled to give up the attempt.

Artillery fire continues at many points along the front. In Champagne, south-east of Tahure, the French fire has been effective against the enemy's trenches and earthworks, as also between the Meuse and the Moselle, to the north of Regneville, and in Lorraine, about Aubermenil and Domevre. Contipuous artillery firing is reported south of the Somme, in the region of Lihonne, Candy and Beauvraignes.

Two attempts by the Germans to make attacks, one in Artois and the other in Champagne, were reported Saturday. Both were repulsed without great difficulty, and in the case of German reconnoitring parties which attempted to seize French positions in the Butte-de-Tahure, the enemy was virtually destroyed by the French fire. The other German attacks were made in Artois, on the southern part of the Bois-en-Hache and near Givenchy. These attacks also failed quickly. There was a renewal of the fighting in Lorraine, the French taking an enemy trench at an important road function after a hand-to-hand fight.

Quiet on British Front.

In a report issued officially Field Marshal Sir John French describes briefly the progress of the campaign in France:

"During the last three days," says the report, "there has been considerable artillery activity south of La Basse Canal, but no infantry action other than grenade fighting in the trenches.

"On the 22nd four of our airmen had engagements in the air, and in each case the enemy's machines were either forced to descend or were driven away. One of the German aeroplanes dived head-first from a height of 7,000 feet into a wood just behind the enemy's lines.

"On the remainder of the front there was intermittent artillery action and a certain amount of mining and counter-mining, without any important results."

Germany again is closed from Basel to Constance to travellers of every condition. No steamers are allowed to approach the landings on the German shores of Lake Constance.

It is assumed as heretofore that the closing of the frontier is to keep intelligence from escaping of the movements of German troops.

Mark St. Church Fowl Supper a Great Success

Held Last Evening in Connection With the Anniversary—A Good Programme Followed Supper

In connection with the anniversary of Mark Street Church a very successful fowl supper and entertainment was held last evening in the Ashburnham Hall. From five until eight o'clock the long tables were filled many times, the abundance of good things providing all with a supper that was more than worth the price of admission.

The entertainment was held in the auditorium of the Church and long before it was time to commence the seating capacity was overtaxed.

The chair was taken by Rev. Mr. Greatrix of St. James' Church, and the programme rendered was of an unusually high order of merit. Splendid addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Greatrix, Rev. J. G. Lewis and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Whattom.

All congratulated the ladies on the success attending their efforts.

They had worked hard to bring about this success and it was a pleasure to know that their labours had not been in vain.

The musical programme was as follows:

Instrumental solo—Mrs. Lock
Vocal solo—"The Veterans' Song"—Mr. F. Heafield.
Selection—"The Sea Hath its Pearl"—The choir.
Violin solo—Mr. F. Whitehouse.
Vocal solo—"For Canada and Old England"—Mrs Ed Wand.
Instrumental duet—Mr. Lock and Bert Haverman.
Vocal trio—Mr. and Mrs. Lock and Mr. Tradale.
Male quartette—Messrs. Tradale, Lock, Howson and Speer.
Violin solo—Mr. F. Whitehouse.
Vocal duet—Mr. and Mrs. Lock

Two Canadian Divisions Not In Action

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Although a number of casualties have been reported in the last few days, these are merely occasional ones. There has not been any definite action yet in which the two Canadian divisions have participated. The casualties were sustained by men going to and from the trenches for rations.

Lieut.-Col. Adami, in charge of the statistical department of the medical service, informs The Mail and Empire's correspondent that the health of the troops is very satisfactory. There has not been any one complaint rife, though with colder weather influenza may make its appearance.

Details which have reached his family resident in London show that Private Leslie Ernest Uttbank, D Company, 16th battalion, was killed by grenade which fell in the trenches during a heavy bombardment by the enemy. This grenade fell between him and Lance Corporal Iaff. The latter was uninjured. Uttbank was farming at Mitchell, near Stratford, Ont.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WHEN CRICKET WAS POPULAR IN STATES

Nowadays the American is inclined to jeer at the British game of cricket, while the Englishman dismisses baseball as merely glorified rounders,' says an American writer. There was a time, however, when cricket was as popular on this side of the Atlantic as in Great Britain, and when a cricket contest would attract a much bigger crowd than a baseball game. This month is in a way the birthday of cricket as an American pastime, as it was in October, 1838, just 77 years ago, that the first cricket match for money was played in America. The cricket teams of New York and Brooklyn opposed each other on the field of the latter club, and played for $100 a side.

At that period the game of rounders was popular and already the sport was beginning to develop into the "glorified rounders" from which baseball was to spring. In Philadelphia "town baseball" was played by the Olympic club, the first game of its kind in America. In New York and New England distinctive games somewhat resembling baseball were in process of birth, and in 1845 baseball came into being. Even before that Major Abner Doubleday had originated a game at Cooperstown, N. Y., which was afterwards called baseball.

Up to half a century ago however baseball had but a small following among the adults, and it was usually played by the youngsters, by whom it was often called "two old cat," "three old cat," and "town ball." In the meantime cricket flourished and had a large following of fans all over the United States and Canada. An encyclopedia, published in 1859 does not mention baseball, while it describes cricket as "the favorite outdoor game of Americans, both of town and country."

Professionalism flourished in cricket long before it was thought of in baseball. Most of the early stars of the diamond were also cricketers. In 1859, when the Boston and Athletic clubs toured England and Ireland they played cricket as well as baseball. They defeated the famous Marylebone club, the Sheffields, the Manchesters and the All-Irelands in Dublin, winning all their contests except one, which was drawn. McBride, the Athletic pitcher, was a fine bowler, and so were the three Wright brothers. It was not until 1876 when the National league was launched, that baseball finally triumped over cricket in the affections of the American sporting public.

BAKER AND COMISKEY EFFECT RECONCILIATION

Home Run King to Rejoin Athletics But May Be Traded Later

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26. — The Philadelphia Evening Ledger says: Frank Baker will rejoin the Athletics. This does not mean that he is certain to play with the Mackmen next spring, as it is possible that he will be traded during the winter. But it is now certain that he is no longer a hold-out.

Manager Mack declared as late as August that he never wanted to hear Baker's name mentioned to him again, but he finally agreed to meet the big slugger, and the two parted the best of friends.

Mack believes that he convinced the public once and for all that the game was bigger than the players, and in refusing to trade or sell Baker at a time when his services could have brought a record price Mack also showed that he cared more for principle than money.

He admitted having a very pleasant talk with Baker, and said that he might be considering trades, but would not say whether Baker would be included.

"When I make a trade or do business I don't do it with a brass band advertising the fact. I may be considering a trade and I may have fixed everything up with Baker. I refuse to make any statement on this subject. I will not affirm or deny anything at this time.

"I am perfectly satisfied with the outlook. I can always use a star ball-player who can hit, but there must be more than that in a man to appeal to me and convince me that he is a winning player. I admit that I met Baker and we talked over things in general and parted the best of friends, but I don't care to say anything further."

SPORT NOTES

Toronto fans are incensed over the report that Bresnahan has signed Ed. Holly, the former Toronto shortstop, for the Cubs. Technically, Holly is still the property of the Toronto International League Club, and President McCaffery intends to do everything in his power to hold him.

International professional hockey, which last season was first considered possible, and then abandoned as impracticable, has a chance of being adopted this season. Pittsburgh, which ten years ago was the hockey centre of the United States and ran a very fine schedule of semi-professional matches in the Duquesne Garden Rink, in which most of the players were Canadians, has now built a new hockey arena with an ice surface of 20,000 square feet. The promoters are trying to make an international arrangement with some Canadian clubs to play there once or twice a week for a period of twenty-one weeks, the season to begin in November. As there has been some talk of curtailing the coming season of the National Hockey Association of Canada it is barely possible that some of the professional teams of the Dominion may compete.

The question as to whether amateur track and field meets should be held in Canada on Sunday will come up for discussion at the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, which is affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

The Province of Quebec section of the Canadian Union has given out sanctions of late and makes the following defence of its action through its secretary, H. E. Melville:

"These sanctions are almost entirely applied for by French-Canadian Athletic Associations. The French-Canadians, who by far outnumber the English speaking citizens of the province, are nearly all unable to find any other time to enjoy sports than Sunday afternoon. They have no religious scruples against enjoying themselves in a respectable manner after their religious duties have been attended to in the morning. Therefore, we consider it would be a hardship and would hurt the development of amateur athletics to refuse these sanctions."

DISMAL OUTLOOK FOR THE CANADIAN LEAGUE

All Clubs Lose Money in 1915—Circuit May Suspend in 1916

HAMILTON, Oct. 26.—It looks very much as if the Canadian League will suspend business next year. All the clubs in the circuit lost money this year and the directors of the various clubs do not feel like taking a chance until after the war. The Ottawa club, pennant winner, lost $2,900 on the season's operations, and, according to Shaughnessy, the Capital club is more than willing to have the league disband for the time being.

The other clubs in the league are not overly anxious to play, while in Hamilton the question of grounds is one which is going to cause some tall worrying even if the league should be in business when May comes around again. The Hamilton club lost nearly $2,000 last year, owing to the fact that it had to pay exceptionally heavy rental for the grounds and London also finished with a heavy deficit.

Jones, who suffers from catarrh, woke up in the middle of the night recently and hastily swallowed what he imagined to be a cough lozenge. It was only in the morning that he was able definitely to decide that the object in question must have been really his back collar-stud.

He confided his awful suspicions to his wife, expecting sympathy, but all she said was:

"Don't worry about your stud; for once in your life you know where you've put it!"

MAGNIFICENT SUCCESS ATTENDING THE ITALIAN OFFENSIVE

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 25.—A despatch to the Daily News from Milan says:

"Magnificent success is attending the offensive that is being pushed along the whole front and the Austrian losses have been very heavy. The preparation for the offensive by three days of artillery fire was most destructive both to the trenches and the men in them, particularly in the group of Austrian defences protecting the Col di Lana.

"Until the Italian offensive is completed it is impossible to gauge its importance on the future campaign, but already it is evident that the Austrians along almost the entire length of the front have been driven from their second line of defences which for four months they have been engaged in fortifying. The natural difficulties these positions presented were reinforced by every defensive device known to the soldiers.

"It is significant the Italian advance is of a nature to prevent the Austrians from taking advantage of strategic routes and moving troops from place to place in support of threatened positions and to fill gaps which are numerous, because, in addition to heavy losses in killed and wounded in two days, Austria's loss in prisoners totals 3,500. Austria will now be forced to draw on troops in one of her fighting fronts or further deplete her watching force kept near the Roumania frontier."

GERMAN SOLDIERS SUICIDE

LONDON, October 25.—The Daily Graphic prints the following despatch from Petrograd:

"In view of the statement of Hindenburg that the victory in this war will fall to the nation whose soldiers have the strongest nerves, it is interesting to note that cases of suicide are increasing largely in the German Army. During the Russian retreat the enemy strove to demonstrate the possession of strong nerves by inflicting numberless cruelties on the innocent population of the towns and villages. Near Dumbia, in the village of Charna, the Germans covered the streets with the bodies of tortured men and women and children, but the next morning nineteen dead bodies of German soldiers were also seen. These had ended their lives by suicide. In common with their fellows these nineteen men had been showing the strength of their nerves by capturing and shooting peaceful people.

"At Przemysl, when the Germans were firing thousands of guns, some of their soldiers with bloodshot eyes were seen rushing into the very thick of the hand-to-hand fighting, oblivious of the wounds they received. They appeared to be intoxicated by the fury of the fight. Others frenzied by the fearful scene shot them-selves dead with their own rifles, and pierced themselves to the heart with their bayonets.

"After Przemysl General Mackensen issued an order to the army in which he warned his troops that the wives and children of the soldiers who committed suicide would be deprived of pensions. The number of German soldiers who committed suicide at Przemysl was 111. On the Dniester and near Jurayno, there were similar cases caused by the dislike of the soldiers to face an overwhelming fire.

"Very often the cruelty of the German officers was responsible for cases of suicide. On the very day that General Mackensen arrived at Vladimir Volynsk he saw the body of a German soldier who had hanged himself. The officers looked confused at one another, but the General was determined to get at the cause of the man's death, and ordered that his body be searched. He read aloud the contents of the note which was discovered: 'I cannot bear any longer the beating and moral torture inflicted by Lieutenant Glaube.—Private Conrad Dummler.'"

"CHANT OF THE SWORD" IS NEW HYMN OF HATE.

Expresses Pride in the Slaughter of Children, According to an English Version.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Berne correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says Germany's "Hymn of Hate" has been supplanted by "The Chant of the German Sword"—a composition brought out in Leipzic a week or so ago, which has already run into half a dozen editions.

This is what its anonymous author makes the "German sword" say:

"It is no duty of mine to be either just or compassionate, it suffices that I am sanctified by my exalted mission, and that I blind the eyes of my enemies with such streams of tears as shall make the proudest of them cringe in terror under the vault of heaven.

"I have slaughtered the old and the sorrowful: I have struck off the breasts of women; and I have run through the body of children who gazed at me with the eyes of the wounded lion.

"Day after day I ride aloft on the shadowy horse in the valley of Cypresses; and as I ride I drag forth the life blood from every enemy's son that dares to dispute my path.

"It is meet and right that I should cry aloud my pride, for am I not the flaming messenger of the Lord Almighty?

"Germany is so far above and beyond all the other nations that all the rest of the earth, be they who they may, should feel themselves well done by when they are allowed to fight with the dogs for the crumbs that fall from her table.

"When Germany the divine is happy then the rest of the world basks in smiles; but when Germany suffers, God in person is rent with anguish, and, wrathful and avenging, He turns all the waters into rivers of blood."

EDITH CAVELL.

She faced the firing squad alone,
And with unbandaged eyes
Looked upward to the moon that shone—
The moon of British skies.

The prison faded from her view,
The trampling armed men;
And in the lanes her childhood knew
She roamed a child again.

A tiny flag upon her breast
Showed where her heart did lie;
"I'm glad," she smilingly confessed,
"For England's sake to die."

A volley!—and her spirit fled
From earth without a groan—
O foemen! wept ye o'er the dead,
Or had ye hearts of stone?

Knew none of you her gentle hand
Had smoothed your comrades' cot?
Shrank none of you from their command
To fire the fatal shot?

Her blood proclaims with crimson stain
The doom of tyranny;
They die for freedom not in vain
Who die as brave as she.

—E. S. BUCHANAN, in New York Times.

Parent—"What is your reason for wishing to marry my daughter?" The Young Man—"I have no reason, sir, I am in love."

An Irishman has said: "In oulden times they hangedthieves on crosses; now, begoora, the Kaiser hangs crosses on thieves."

Employer—"So you want me to raise your wages? Can you give me two good reasons even why I should do so?" Meek employee, sadly—"Yes sir; it's twins."

A beautiful answer was given by a little Scotch school girl. When her class was examined she was asked,—"What is patience?" Her reply was, "Wait a wee, and dinna weary."

Friend—"So your husband has been deceiving you, eh?" Mrs. Henpeck—"Yes, the wretch! I used to give him fourpence for his bus fare every day and I've found out he's been walking to the office and spending the money."

Bob—"That boy of yours is a fine, tall lad, Jack; you should be proud of him." Jack—"I ain't though." Bob—"No! How's that?" Jack—"Why, he is eight inches taller than I am and his mother insists on cutting his trousers down to fit me!"

SALUTE THE FLAG

Salute as you pass, the Flag to the last;
Hats off to the world's grand old flag.
For, boys, it is grand—the flag of our land,
The sun bold kissed, red, white and blue.
For it flies above them all, this mighty flag so strong.
Stay with it, boys, it's the world's pride and joy,
And where ever you may "on land or at sea,
Keep your eye on this grand Flag—The one of the free,

Salute as you pass, the flag of rich class,
And wherever you roam, praise this flag in rich tone,
For it's the emblem of honour, rich and fame;
And will live and die, one and all for same
Salute as you pass, the Canadian Flag;
Hats off to our nation's mighty Bar.
And we're going to see the day
When other nations shall say:
Salute as you pass "Candian flag to the last."
Should at battle I'm found dead,
Just let it be said,
That I died like a hero, under the flag I was bred.

Boys, you may travel far and near, but none so dear,
As this dear old flag of young Canada grand;
Here's my hat off to you, brave red, white and blue,
And will always fight for thee and country;
And wherever I will be, you'll be just the same to me,
You dear old flag, I claim as mine.
And when the world is at rest, you will wave your best,
So salute as you pass, this flag of rich class.
For you're just the world to me, my heart does crave for thee.
You are the flag of them all, this mighty flag so strong.

Old Love Letters

Do you think, dear, that it is absurd
To keep these letters and at times retail them,
As if no years could modify each word
Nor custom stale them?

Of course I meant them all to the extent
In which we always mean our young effusions,
But now it seems a cruelty to present
Their fond illusions.

I did not bargain for this long distress
Of written bonds, like lawyer's verbal fetters.
Think more about the spirit, dear—and less
About the letters.

Would you rebuke a bird who stops his trill
Because he feels no more the spring-time rapture?
Do you expect me to be chasing still—
After the capture?

—A. L. Salmon.—Judge.

RUSSIANS ARE MAKING DETERMINED EFFORTS TO WIN BACK LOST GROUND

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Russians are fighting pitched battles in the Riga and Dvinsk regions in an effort to retake the ground won from them by Field Marshal von Hindenburg last week. The Russians attacks southeast of Riga have been repulsed, according to the Germans, as were those undertaken north-west of Dvinsk. The German forces however, which crossed the Illoukst, north of the town of that name, withdrew in the face of a superior Russian army.

It is also claimed by the Germans that Russian attacks in the lake district south of Dvinsk were repulsed, and that the Austrians have broken through the Russian lines over a front of more than four kilometres (2 1-2 miles) west of Konarow.

Telegraphing to the Times under date of Sunday from Russian headquarters, Stanley Washburn says: "The Czar personally gives most of his time to military affairs, leading a life of the greatest simplicity and winning ovations from the townspeople each time he appears in the streets, which is very frequently. He goes driving every afternoon without guards or escorts, and walks about talking with the peasants and others almost invariably accompanied by his son and he is apparently absolutely devoted to the heir to the throne. The Czarevitch, whom I have seen repeatedly, impresses one as a healthy high spirited boy of great charm and winning personality.

Nothing in Peace Talk.

"Since being here I am inclined to believe that the talk of a separate peace which was widely circulated after the fall of Warsaw never had any basis, in fact, from the very beginning of the war."

Another despatch from Petrograd says that successes for the Russians are continuing along the entire front south of Dvinsk, while the energetic efforts being made by the Germans in the vicinity of Riga have not succeeded in shaking the position of the Russians along that part of the front.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs as follows:

"The Russian general staff states that the Russians are holding their ground, in spite of the fury of the attacks by the Germans and the fact that the Germans have received heavy reinforcements. The men of the landsturm, who were called out only last month, were sent to the front after a few weeks' training. This shows how eager the German genral staff is to announce a victory before Winter makes the task far more difficult."

"MADE IN CANADA"

Ford Touring Car Price $530

Now surely you can own a Ford. With the first cost of the Ford now so low it is possible for the average Canadian to have a real motor car of his own. Unprecedented production makes possible these low prices, but the quality of the car is, if anything, higher than ever.

Starts New Auto But Cannot Stop It

A Shenandoah business man purchased an automobile, and after a lesson in driving started out by himself. From her window his wife proudly saw him whizz by, well up to the speed limit. In a few minutes he came back and again, and then again and again.

Finally he shouted to her as he went by, "Say, Lizzie, telephone to the garage and find out"——

He completed the sentence the next time round—"how to stop this darned thing and tell me the next time I go by."

WEDDING BELLS

FAY-IRWIN WEDDING.

One of the prettiest of the October weddings was solemnized Wednesday at high noon, at St. Thomas Episcopal church, when Miss Ethel Elizabeth Irwin and Thomas B. Fay, two well known young people of Battle Creek, were united in marriage. The bride was attended by Miss Loella D. Warner, and the groom by Roy S. Miller, both of Battle Creek. The bride wore a dainty and becoming wedding gown of pale blue satin, trimmed with lace and pink rosebuds, and carried a cluster of white roses. Her costume was completed by a white picture hat trimmed with pink plumes. The impressive marriage service of the Episcopal church, which includes the ring, was read by the Rev. Walter J. Lockton, rector of St. Thomas Episcopal church, in the presence of a small company of relatives. The bride was given away by her mother, Mrs. Frank Irwin of Port Hope, Ontario, who has been spending the summer in Battle Creek with her daughter. After the wedding ceremony, the bridal party went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hildenbrand, 125 North Division street. Mrs. Hildenbrand being a sister of the groom, where an elaborate wedding dinner was served and an informal reception for the bride and groom was held. The dinner table and the dining room and parlour were artistically decorated with roses carnations, smilax and autumn leaves. Mr. Fay is employed at the Grand Trunk shops, and his bride is at present visiting nurse with the local branch of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. She was formerly connected with the Associated Charities bureau as visiting nurse. Mr. and Mrs. Fay have a pretty new home all furnished at 50 Adams street, and will go to housekeeping at once, taking their wedding trip later on. They were remembered with a number of handsome wedding gifts by their friends.—Battle Creek Enquirer.

Mrs. Fay is a niece of Mr. J. Doughty, 681 Aylmer street, Peterborough

Fire Destroys Mattress Factory

Started This Afternoon at 3 o'clock —Roof Collapsed in Less Than an Hour

Fire broke out in the Peterborough Mattress Factory shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon and despite the efforts of the firemen, completely gutted the building. The building, which is of wood and plaster construction, is located on the east side of the Hunter Street bridge. When the firemen arrived on the scene, smoke was issuing from all parts of the building and several lines of hose were laid, and an effort made to confine the fire to the upper part of the structure. About 3.30 o'clock the roof fell in, sending up a shower of sparks and huge volumes of smoke.

The building which is owned by Mr. James Ellis, is one of the oldest structures in East City. It was purchased by the late William Faint. For some years past it has been used as a mattress factory.

The fire was very spectacular in appearance as the contents of the building was of such a nature as to produce an unusual amount of smoke which at times obliterated the view of the onlookers.

The fire was still burning at the time of going to press.

DEATH RESULTED FROM TETANUS

William Henry Manley, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Manley, Otonabee, passed away early this morning. Tetanus was the immediate cause of death. Some ten days ago deceased was thrown from a horse sustaining injuries from which he never fully recovered. Lockjaw set in about a week ago. He was the eldest son of a family of four sisters and two brothers.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 p.m. from the family residence, at three o'clock, to Zion cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Edmunds of Keene will officiate.

Deceased was a grandson of Mr. Harry Crane, Rogers street, East City.

Two boys were expatiating on the relative merits of their fathers' professions.

"My father is the greatest musician in the town," said one.

"Oh!" the other said. "When my father starts his music every man stops work."

"How's that?" said the other, "what does he do?"

"He blows the whistle for meals up at the mill."

Men Have Gone To London

The paving on Hunter street, from George to Sheridan streets, has been completed. The finishing touches were accounted for yesterday. This pretty nearly completes the contract of the Standard Paving Company, which amounted to approximately fifteen thousand yards. A part of the company's paving gang has been sent to London, Ontario, to help complete a large contract.

The paving of George street north is in the hands of the Warren Paving Company of Toronto. It will be some days before the work is completed.

Labour Conditions In Peterborough

The following report of labour conditions in Peterborough is taken from the October number of "The Labour Gazette":

Merchants reported business better than it has been for some months.

Labour conditions during September showed some improvements as compared with last month. There has been a good demand for unskilled labour and all trades with the exception of the building trades were well employed. Some manufacturing establishments were busy. There was considerable civic work going on, a number of streets being paved and sidewalks constructed.

There was a heavy movement of grain from Midland passing through this city over the Grand Trunk for the seaports.

French Adjust Selves to Times

PARIS, Oct. 25.—The public of France has not yet suffered in any extraordinary degree from the expenses necessitated by the war. There has been no fresh taxation, and what is more, the two great burdens for those of fixed incomes, namely, rents and taxes, have been left almost in abeyance. The former will have to be paid sooner or later, either in full or with reductions in the case of the mobilized tenants, and so perhaps will the latter, but ther are various projects on foot for relieving the really needy in both these particulars.

Although the price of food has gone up, it has not done so to a ruinous degree, and it only means for the majority that they are more frugal in their consumption of meat, butter and vegetables, sugar, rice and a few other things. The quality of all foodstuffs has not deteriorated in the slightest, and there is abundance of bread, meat, milk and butter for all who can pay for them. Fish is not quite so plentiful on account of the trawlers having been requisitioned by the government and of the decreased facilities for transport, but vegetables and fruit are to be had in profusion at increased prices.

The stoppage of night life and the induced habit of going to bed early have a probably unexpected economic effect, as there were few Parisian families who did not spend by some of their members a good many francs, or centimes, according to their means, between the hour at which they are now usually in bed and midnight. The abolition of racing has likewise economized enormously in many a budget, and it is heard on all sides that those who have not more than two-thirds, or perhaps half of what they had a year and a half ago, are living very nearly as comfortably as they did before, now that they have acquired the practice of the simplest and most easy economy.

Cereals for milk puddings should be soaked before cooking begins.

Bater puddings are quite light made with part water instead of all milk.

Smith Patriotic Meetings

A meeting of the Rate Payers of the Township of Smith will be held in the Forester's Hall, Bridgenorth, on Monday, November 1st. and in the Forester's Hall Selwyn on Wed. November 3rd. The meetings are called for 8 o'clock and are to be addressed by his Honor Judge Hoycke and Mr. D. O'Connell. The committee are securing the services of local talent and an enjoyable evening is anticipated. Bring the ladies along and have a good time.

Oyster Crop Will Be Light

Bivalves Will Be More Expensive—Season Has Opened in Peterborough

The oyster season has again opened in Peterborough, though judging from present indications it is anticipated that it will be lighter than usual. "Lighter" referring to the quantity that will reach the city for the consumption of the public. Notwithstanding the fact that a householder claims he has searched in vain for a little pasteboard pail filled with the imported delicacy to carry home, a wholesaler states he has had shipped in within the past two weeks something more than four hundred gallons which he has sold in lots to the fruit dealers, confectioners and grocers of the city and surrounding district.

How will the reduction of the crop affect the prices? The war tax is being given full credit or blame, as the case may be, for a decided advance in this item of cost o' living. "Just a little advance," says the wholesaler. This means probably 60 cents for the standards that last year retailed for 50 cents, and 70 cents for the "selects," for which in better days only the small sum of 60 cents a quart was extorted.

The sources of supplies are drawn upon during the season, Long Island Baltimore and Virginia. The housekeeper who always likes to provide her table with the very latest thing on the market is buying Long Island oysters just now which have been brought up from the sea with rakes, hand manipulated. As she brings the creamy milk to the right heat point for the delectable stew or fills the scallop dish, she is probably too busy to think much about the life history of the edible with which she will tempt the appetites of her family. It will probably be Jimmy or Maud who at the table will spring the question in regard to the adventures of the oysters before they got into the soup.

While the well-informed parent enjoys his stew, he will tell of the shanties outside the big warehouses on Long Island where perhaps seventy-five or one hundred men and women sort the oysters and "shuck" them, which means open the shells.

The big and little oysters are separated like sheep and goats, the little ones called "standards" and the big ones "selects," the latter commanding more respect and a larger price.

By and by, about the beginning of December, machine drags will be substituted for the rakes, the law forbidding interference with the oyster beds until that time.

REAL TROUBLE

Stones (peering out of the window at drizzle falling on the links)—What made old Brassey growl so, when Hopper dragged him home? Didn't know he minded a Scotch mist so much.

Smith (sitting by the grillroom fire) Huh! 'Twasn't the Scotch mist; it was the missed Scotch.—Judge.

The editor of a certain paper recently ordered a story of a certain length, and discovered the novelist had written several hundred words too many. In order to make the story fit the space at his disposal, the last few paragraphs were condensed into a single sentence. This is the way it read:

"The cracksman took a small glass of whisky, his hat, his departure no notice of his pursuers, a revolver out of his pocket and, finally, his life."

There were two Browns in the village, both fishermen. One lost his wife and the other his boat at about the same time. The vicar's wife called, as she supposed, on the widower, but really upon the Brown whose boat had gone down.

"I am sorry to hear of your great loss," she said.

"Oh, it ain't much matter?" was the philosophical reply; "she wasn't up to much."

"Indeed!" said the surprised lady.

"Yes," continued Brown, "she was a rickety old thing. I offered her to my mate, but he wouldn't have her. I've had my eye on another for some time."

And then the scandalized lady fled.

SEVEN OF ONE FAMILY KILLED

DETROIT, Oct. 25.—Seven members of one family were instantly killed and an eighth was fatally injured to-day by a Grand Trunk passenger train which struck an automobile at Frazer, Mich., 16 miles from Detroit.

The dead are Mrs. Rachel Stoldt, 47 years old, her five daughters, Pearl, 17, Esther, 15; Hazel, 12; Mabel, 10; and Martha, 6, and Miss Minnie Engel, 47, a sister of Mrs. Stoldt. William Stoldt, a farmer of Troy, Mich., the husband and father, was badly mangled.

There were no witnesses of the accident. Apparently Stoldt, who was driving the automobile, did not see or hear the approaching train, and drove the machine on the crossing directly in front of the locomotive. The train was stopped, and the crew gathered up the bodies, which were scattered along the right-of-way a distance of a quarter of a mile. Stoldt was the only member of the family left alive, and he was unconscious. He was taken to a hospital in Mount Clemens, where the physicians said he cannot recover from his injuries.

REPORT SAYS GREEKS HAVE CLASHED WITH BULGARIANS

Fifth Member of Alleged Plot to Blow Up Munitions Has Been Rounded Up

Reports That "Higher Ups" Were Concerned in a Far-reaching Conspiracy to Blow Up Munitions Carrying Vessels is Strongly Denied---Bulgarians Reported to Have Taken Negotin.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—With the expected arrival and surrender here to-day of Max Breitung, the fifth member of an alleged plot by German agents to prevent artillery munitions from reaching the Allies, secret service operatives and detectives said their cases would be complete.

Reports that "higher ups" in a far-reaching conspiracy to blow up ammunition carrying vessels were strongly denied by both government and police officials. Whether the case really is cleaned up probably will be revealed this afternoon, when Breitung is arraigned before United States Commissioner Houghton on the same charges that the others were arraigned—"that of conspiring to violate United States laws by tampering with international shipping."

LONDON, Oct. 27.—It is officially announced that the British transport Marquette was torpedoed in the Aegean Sea. Only 99 were unaccounted for.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. Among the passengers who arrived from Liverpool on the White Star liner Baltic was Lieut. Paul Sydney Harold Arbon of the British Army Aviation Corps, who was carried down the gangway to the pier in an invalid chair owing to an injury to his left leg that he received at Hendon two weeks ago. He said a machine fell with him and a piece of the skid, which had snapped struck his leg and ripped it open from the ankle to the knee. He hoped to be able to walk about in a few days.

When the war began, Lieut. Arbon said, he joined the Navy Aviation Corps and remained in it four months. Since then he had been with the army in France, flying across to London and back with despatches about once a week. He added:

A great deal has been accomplished in aviation by the British Government since August, 1914. At that time there were only 300 pilots altogether. Now, without counting the number killed and wounded, there are 500 pilots in the Navy and 500 in the Army, and when I left France we were forming our twenty-third aviation squadron for the Army. There are forty pilots in each squadron, and each pilot has three machines and three mechanics to a machine. James C. Porte is now the commander of the North Sea squadron of aeroplanes."

When asked about the attacks on German cities by the aircraft of the Allies, Lieut. Arbon said one reason why none had been made recently was that the Germans had invented a new anti-aircraft gun, which had an accurate range of over 10,000 feet.

He said that Claude Grahame-White had resigned from the Naval Aviation Corps and was now making aeroplanes for the Government at his own factory at Hendon.

The lieutenant has come over to inspect some machines that are being constructed in this country and Canada, and expects to be here two or three weeks.

French Have Triplanes.

F. S. Chanonhouse, a manufacturer of Hyde Park, Mass., who returned on the Baltic, said that he had seen one of the new French triplanes at Issy-les-Molineaux. It carried eleven persons and was driven by four motors of 200 horse-power each. It had a wing spread of 120 feet, and the top of the planes was 18 feet from the ground. The triplane carried a three-inch gun.

Mr. Chanonhouse said that when he was at Buc he saw a French biplane with four motors of 110 horse-power each. The French Army would not use any aeroplane now unless it had two motors. The value of the two motors had been recently shown, he continued, when a biplane was attacked by a German anti-aircraft gun, which destroyed one motor and killed one aviator. The other aviator was able to return to the ground on the French side by using the remaining motor.

Zeppe Hide in Steam.

R. B. Foster, a Chicago business man, who was a passenger on the Baltic, said that the German Zeppelins which raided London threw out clouds of steam behind their machines which hid them from the view of the anti-aircraft guns.

"I was at my house on the Hampstead Heath," he said, "on the night of 8th September, when a shell burst at 11 o'clock about 300 yards away, and shattered all my windows and knocked me down. I could see the Zeppelins afterward against the clear sky when the guns were firing at them. They suddenly disappeared from view in a sort of haze, apparently of their own creation. Powerful searchlights were being played on the aerial raiders, but the rays did not seem to be able to pierce the haze or fog which enveloped them, and they got away."

THE VALUE OF TRUTH

Truth in business is just as important as truth in every day life; truth creates confidence, establishes good-will and builds a reliability that will not be wrecked by the storms of competition.

Through three generations people have learned to place reliance on the advertised words of Scott's Emulsion, because they are untarnished, unexaggerated truisms about a household remedy of real and actual worth.

The popularity of Scott's Emulsion is increasing as intelligence advances, because in these days of adulterations it continues to guarantee pure cod liver oil medicinally perfected with glycerine and hypophosphites to build strength, improve the blood and strengthen the lungs. FEED CHILDREN.

On Properly Selected Food. It Pays Big Dividends.

If parents will give just a little intelligent thought to the feeding of their children the difference in the health of the little folks will pay many times over, for the small trouble.

A mother writes: "Our children are all so much better and stronger than they ever were before. We made a change in the character of the food. We have quit using potatoes three times a day with coffee and so much meat.

"Now we give the little folks some fruit, either fresh, stewed, or canned, some Grape-Nuts, with cream, occasionally some soft boiled eggs, and some Postum for breakfast and supper. Then for dinner they have some meat and vegetables.

"It would be hard to fully describe the change in the children; they have grown so sturdy and strong, and we attribute this change to the food elements that, I understand, exist in Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A short time ago my baby was teething and had a great deal of stomach and bowel trouble. Nothing seemed to agree with him until I tried Grape-Nuts softened and mixed with rich milk and he improved rapidly and got sturdy and well.

"There's a Reason."

Event—Second annual plowing contest under the auspices of the Peterborough County Plowman's Association.

Place—Squire Breckenridge's farm, Westwood.

Time—Tuesday, Oct. 26.

Judge—Jas. McLean, of Richmond Hill.

Class I was open to the province. Last year its winner was Chas. Would, who retains the cup for a second year, as it was donated only to Peterborough County men.

Coles was the winner of Class II last year. On this occasion he was sixth, probably an indication of a keener contest and better work.

A Successful Contest.

The second annual plowing match under the auspices of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association held in Asphodel yesterday, on the farm of Squire Breckenridge, about seventeen miles from the city, was a great success and an inspiration in better agriculture to the hundreds of farmers who were present. The occasion was graced with splendid weather and a large gathering of farmers from the four ends of the county. On the Breckenridge farm, two level fields, practically free from stones, had been laid out for the match, and shortly after nine o'clock the twelve contestants began to "dig themselves in." By four o'clock, all using the required luncheon intermission at noon, the last furrow was turned. The two fields then presented specimens of the best plowing this county produced, but the premier prize was carried off by Mr. George Berry, a young farmer from the vicinity of Millbrook, a Cavan township man, who afterwards remarked that he entered the contest in order to keep in practice for the matches to be held in his vicinity.

Superficial Deficiencies.

The judge, Mr. James McLean of Richmond Hill, a comparatively young man, but a veteran plowman and champion in York county matches, commended the contestants upon the general quality of their work. Most of the men lost points in the formation of their crowns, in their lay-outs in their finishing furrows and in the wrong turns to their finishes. In a few cases the crowns were noticeably high, but the rest of the furrows fell away. Mr. McLean drew attention to these defects, which he said could be remedied by experience, carefulness and a wider knowledge of the work. In the main, however, all the competitors demonstrated their abilities in the essentials of the art, as the advocates of better plowing term it. Their lines were straight, in some cases appearing as if they had been turned out with a long rule and a chisel, the depth and width of the furrows left little to be desired and the work generally appeared very satisfactory. It was in the nicer details that the quality began to decrease.

Future Results.

However, the plowmen and the others who followed their courses throughout the morning and afternoon should profit by this contest, and it is fully expected that, as this year's match showed decided improvements over that of last year, each succeeding contest will attract a larger field of entrants and produce better quality of plowing. Certainly, the association is doing its share to promote the work. The prizes are worth while, and there was the best of spirit manifested by the contestants, the directors and the spectators.

Thirty Years Ago

It was a noteworthy coincident that the last plowing match in the days when Peterborough used to send men like Mr. Joshua Smithson to the provincial matches and win them, the last occasion on which the Breckenridge farm was the scene of a contest, was just thirty-three years ago. There were competitors of those days present yesterday, and the fact that they were pleased with the restoration of the matches should be an incentive to the young generation to take up the work with the same desire to excel which helped to mould the characters of their predecessors into ways of thoroughness, attention to detail and determination to succeed.

County Well Represented.

Probably the agreeable weather of yesterday was responsible to a large extent for the attendance. The city and even the remote townships were well represented. Practically all the members of the City Council were there, a fact that was widely noted. They have not only encouraged the Plowmen's Association with a $100 grant, but they have shown their personal interest in the movement. Reeve Shaw came all the way from Harvey for the event. Reeve Crough and some of the other members of Ennismore Council motored down. Their car stalled on the way back near the Westwood bridge and they were there when train time came. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., Mr. H. B. Cowan of Farm and Dairy, Mr. F. D. Kerr, Alderman G. Walter Green, Mr. Jas. Storey, Mr. John Reid, Mr. Gordon Hall and others from the city were present. Mr. John Telford of Bridgenorth, Mr. Chas. E. Moore of Smith, Mr. Graham of Smith, Rev. Father Galvin, Mr. O'Reilly, Reeve Squire, Mr. Dave King and others from Norwood were also noticed.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt, president, and Mr. F. L. Campbell, North Monaghan, secretary of the Association, were present and Mr. William Knox also assisted in promoting the success of the event.

Short Speeches.

In the presentation of the prizes a number of short speeches were made. Ald. Green stated that although he was residing in the city he had been brought up on the farm and had turned many a furrow. He could do it again if required. He was pleased to know that the first prize was going to the county in which he had spent some of the best years of his life. Ald. Green vouched for the beneficial results from plowing contests and predicted that they would be of great good to the community.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie said he believed that the art of plowing in the county had deteriorated since the discontinuance of the former plowing matches, but their resumption would soon have a good effect upon the farmers.

Mr. Cowan said the young men should endeavour to measure up to the achievements of the men of Mr. Smithson's time.

The winners of the prizes made appropriate speeches, all expressing the desire to make a better showing at future contests and their appreciation of the work of the Association.

The directors are very grateful to those gentlemen who gave donations for the prizes. They are also pleased with the work of Mr. McLean, as judge. The visitors from the city and other parts enjoyed the home dinners served at Mr. R. Faux's temperance house in Westwood.

Defy Dyspepsia!

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia or Indigestion may be mentioned a heavy, cutting pain soon after eating; a distended, full feeling of the stomach and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; oppression of breathing; pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated tongue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the natural specific for all these conditions. Being an antacid, it immediately relieves the acidity of the stomach and stops the fermentation. It stimulates the secretion and muscular action of the stomach and bowels, and overcomes the constipation. When its use is kept up the normal action of all the organs of digestion is re-established.

BARBED WIRE'S PART IN THE WAR

By Wilbur S. Forrest.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The part barbed wire plays in the war is graphically portrayed in letters from the front just before the battle, September 25, when the allies after an almost continuous bombardment of three days made their first appreciable advance since the Marne.

To prepare for the infantry advance at only three points it was necessary to expend thousands of tons of shrapnel and high explosive projectiles along practically the whole line from the sea to the Vosges. Thus were the Germans kept in ignorance of what particular sections were to be attacked.

"This is the third of the bombardment," says one correspondent. "Our artillery fire is intense. Point by point, section by section the trenches' barbed wire has been pelted with a hurricane of shells. Rifle and machine-gun fire has been absent except for straggling bursts at night.

"Looking out over the German lines to-day, not one sign of life could be seen. Not even trench periscopes was hoisted over the parapet to indicate the watchfulness of the enemy. Doubtless the German infantry is packed away in its deepest dugouts. The shells have done their best to search them out, and must have made them extremely uncomfortable.

"The spectacle from our side has been wonderful, awe-inspiring. To the Germans it must have been awful. The tremendous shells of our heavy artillery were bursting in spouting geysers of flame and smoke and dust on the slag heap near Lens, among the houses of the villages and along the lines of the trenches. Lyddite from the howitzers plunged into the communication trench, blew down their parapets and broke down their sides; and shrapnel tore savagely and unceasingly at the masses of barbed-wire entanglement protecting the enemy's front.

"The amount of wire used by the Germans is stupendous. No matter what part of the front one visits the same thing is found—thickets, hedges, pile of wire, running in wide rips before every trench, arranged in heaps so thick they look absolutely solid round the redoubts and in the more or less vulnerable angles.

"It would be utterly impossible for any infantry to advance under fire and cut their way through. Shrapnel can blast a path but only after days of constant firing.

"Because the Germans know quite well that wire cutting with shrapnel is a preparation for an advance, many miles more wire must be demolished than are actually required for the attack.

"Throughout to-day the batteries have been cutting wide stretches of wire, while the "heavies" have been pounding the trenches. Every H. E. shell that flew threw up an enormous column of thick dust that hung heavily and drifted. Slowly downwind along the German front. The pelting storm of shrapnel swept clouds of dust before them to mingle with the smoke of the bursting shells. At times while sections of the German lines were blotted out by the slow-moving curtain of dust and smoke, and through the haze could be seen the vivid orange flame of still more bursting shells and springing clouds and pillars of still denser smoke and dust.

"The bellowing thunder of the guns, and shrieks and screams and whistlings and rumble of passing shells, the crash and growl and thump of the bursts have never ceased all day. Even now, after dark, a steady volume of fire descends on the German lines, the long roll of distant guns, the sharper kicked-biscuit tin bangs of the nearest batteries, the "r-r-rump" and boom of the shrapnel still continue.

"The dark sky flickers and winks all round the horizon from the gun-flashes. As far as we can see to the north these flashes tell the story of the artillery's ceaseless activity along the battle front; as far as the ear can catch them to the south, the roll and mutter and rumble of the guns tell the same tale.

"Whatever is to come on the morrow—it it is the big advance at last—the British army, is ready and eager for it."

SIR EDWARD GREY'S FISHING KNOWLEDGE.

Sir Edward Grey (a correspondent of the Glasgow Bulletin writes) knows every river and loch in Scotland from the Tweed to Holladale River, and possesses an encyclopædic knowledge of the possibilities at precise periods during the various open months. "Every little trout I hook," he once declared, "costs me from 10s. 6d. to 15s. each, apart from hotel expenses. It is a pity such a healthy and enjoyable pastime should be so prohibitive to the masses of the people."

NEVER GIVEN.

"Pa," said Johnny, who is a persistent knowledge seeker, "what is a law giver?" "There ain't any such thing, Johnny," said the old gentleman who had been involved in considerable litigation in his time. "But this book says that somebody was a great law giver," persisted the youngster. "Then it is a mistake," rejoinder the father. "Law is never given. It's retailed in mightily small quantities at mighty high figures."

PANAMA CANAL TO BE RE-OPENED

PANAMA, Oct. 26.—Although an official statement is lacking it has become known that the Panama Canal again will be ready for traffic not later than January 1 next. Major General Goethals, Governor of the Canal Zone, continues to maintain an attitude of reticence, declining to commit himself on any definite date for reopening the canal in view of the uncertainty of slide conditions in the Gaillard cut. General Goethals declares that it is still too early to make predictions because a large movement of earth can happen at any time, although none now is actually in sight.

Major General Goethals expressed gratification at the progress being made by the dredging fleet, which is coping with a tremendous task in view of the vast quantity of earth set in motion by the last slide. Although he would not set a date on which the canal might be reopened other canal engineers expressed the conviction that a sufficient channel would be obtained considerably before the first of the year.

These engineers explain that the channel was originally closed for a distance of 1,800 feet, and that since the last great slide dredges have restored a thirty foot channel practically half of that distance and at a width sufficient for the passage of smaller vessels. It is generally conceded that the outlook is considerably brighter than a week ago, but still too early to set a definite date for the reopening of the canal.

Nearly all of the ships which were delayed at Christobal have gone by other routes and those held up at Balboa are steaming as fast as they can obtain coal.

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

A Warning of Acid Indigestion. Prompt Use of Magnesia Stops All Soreness and Pain

Sufferers from indigestion or dyspepsia should remember that the presence of gas or wind in the stomach invariably indicates that the stomach is troubled by excessive acidity.

This acid causes the food to ferment and the fermenting food in turn gives rise to noxious gases which distend the stomach, hamper the normal functions of vital internal organs, cause acute headaches, interfere with the action of the heart, and charge the blood stream with deadly poisons, which in time must ruin the health. Physicians say that to quickly dispel a dangerous accumulation of wind in the stomach and to stop the food fermentation which creates the gas, the acid in the stomach must be neutralized and that for this purpose there is nothing quite so good as a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia taken in a little water immediately after meals. This instantly neutralizes the acid, thus stopping fermentation and the formation of gas, and enables the inflamed, distended stomach to proceed with its work under natural conditions. Bisurated Magnesia is obtainable in powder or tablet form from any druggist; but as there are many different forms of magnesia it is important that the bisurated which the physicians prescribe, should be distinctly asked for.

WASHING CHAMOIS GLOVES.

The first time you wash them blow out the gloves to straighten out the fingers. Then lay them on a towel near an open window. When they are dry look them over. If they have stretched so they look big and wrinkled when you put them on, the next time you wash them don't blow them out. Instead, squeeze them into a little ball and then dry them quickly near heat. If they have shrunk, fill them with rice on the second washing and hang them in a shady window. Whatever the tendency of the gloves the method of washing is the same. Use water that is just a little warmer than chilly and make it soapy with castile or some other pure white soap. Then immerse the gloves in it. Cover the soiled places with the soap and rub them between the hands. Rinse in fresh, soapy water. Some people get best results by adding a tablespoon of olive oil to the rinsing water.

Careful washing is also necessary with silk gloves. Always handle these gloves by the fingertips when they are drying. Pin the tips to a cloth, and hang with wrists or arms down. This position makes the water run away from the fingertips which are the parts that always wear out first. If the water runs into the fingertips it is held there by their thickness, and rots the silk.

Another thing to remember when washing silk gloves, if they are white is never to use very warm water, as it turns the silk yellow. They should not be dried in the sunshine, but in the shade, as a further preventative of yellowing.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY

To lead a dissipated life may be called a kind of death.—Ovid.

Neither self-possessed or prudent love is all abandonment.—Emerson.

Till the war is over let us all be optimists, for I believe the end will justify our hopes.—Mr. Walter Porter.

Life, to be worthy of a rational being, must be always in progression; we must always purpose to do more or better than in time past.—Johnson.

He who is rich for himself, laying up treasures for himself, is by so much robbing his real inward life, his life in and toward God, of its resources.—Alford.

No man is born into the world whose work is not born with him; there is always work, and tools to work withal, for those who will; and blessed are the horny hands of toil.—Lowell.

The literature of people must spring from the sense of its nationality, and nationality is impossible without self-respect, and self-respect is impossible without liberty.—Mrs. Stowe.

The art of life is much more like the wrestler's art than the dancer's in respect of this—that it should stand ready and firm to meet onsets which are sudden and unexpected.—Antoninus.

WORTH KNOWING

One of the latest trends of fashion is to have the handkerchief to match the colour of the skin.

Putting a coat of varnish on the linoleum yearly will make it last for years, and look bright and new.

A little salt added when cooking sour fruits greatly reduces the quantity of sugar required for sweetening.

It is best to give linens a long soaking before washing. If this method is followed stains will wash out easily.

When boiling cabbage put a small head of celery into the saucepan. This will greatly improve the flavour.

If the piano keys are washed with a soft flannel dipped in alcohol they will retain their colour and not grow yellow as they do when washed with water.

Linen hats trimmed with fur are coming from Paris. "I saw one of these," says a correspondent, "made in Japonica pink linen with a band of skunk round the crown."

To preserve rubber heels, scrape all grit and mud out of them when cleaning the boots. Grit and small stones wear out the rubber as it revolves on the screw, making it fall off long before the heel is really worn out.

The best way to warm up a joint of meat is to wrap it in thickly-greased paper and keep it covered while in the oven. By having it covered thus the steam will prevent the meat from becoming hard and dry, and the joint will get hot through in less time.

When a child has the slightest tendency to crooked legs he should have a very special treatment. His bones are too soft, and he needs more lime and iron. He should be taken off his feet at once, and have salt water bathing and massage.

Unless eaten to excess butter is one of the most wholesome foods. Children that are kept well supplied with butter do not require to be doctored with cod-liver oil, which is well, as the butter is the cheaper. Consumptive people and diabetics should be supplied with as much butter as they can digest without giving rise to biliousness.

Here is an excellent way to kill moths in carpets which never fails. Wring a coarse crash towel out of water and spread it smoothly on the carpet; iron it dry with a good hot iron, repeating the operation on all parts of the carpet infested with the moths. There is no need to press hard, and neither the pile nor the colour of the carpet will be injured, and the moths will be destroyed by the heat and steam.

HOPE IN SIGHT.

A young man who had received his diploma has been looking around successively for a position for employment and for a job. Entering an office he asked to see the manager and while waiting he said to the office boy, "Do you suppose there is any opening here for a college graduate?" "Well, dere will be," was the reply, "if de boss don't raise me salary to t'ree dollars a week by termorrer night."

Don't Persecute your Bowels

NEVER FORGET HIM.

Sir Thomas Lipton has been telling a very good Scotch story. Some time ago he visited Scotland, when he met an old friend whom he had not seen since they were at school together. They got to discussing old times, and Sir Thomas suddenly asked, "And how's George?" referring to an old school friend known to both of them. "Oh," was the answer, "he is dead long ago, and I shall never cease to regret him as long as I live." "I never knew you had so much respect for him as all that," said Sir Thomas in surprise. "Na, na, your're wrang there," answered his friend. "It wasn't the respec' I had for him, no' that; but you see, I married his widow!"

SHE FOUND THEM.

A gentleman holidaying in the High lands was engaged one day in writing a letter in a humble abode where he had obtained accommodation. The guttering candles annoyed him, and he called out, "Mrs M'Pherson, can you get me a pair o' snuffers?" "A pair of snuffers?" repeated Mrs. M'Pherson, somewhat bewildered. "Well, I'll dae my best." In a few minutes there was a commotion outside. Two stalwart figures shuffled in, followed by Mrs. M'Pherson. "This is Donald M'Dougall," she said, "and this is Dougall M'Donald. I diuna ken what ye want wi' them; but I'm thinkin' the twa o' them tak' mair snuff than ony ither two in the parish."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Episode Of the Russian Revolution

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

A meeting of a revoutionary committee broke up in Petrograd, and the members went out one—sometimes two—at a time in order that they should not attract the attention of the police. A couple emerging from the building went together down the street.

"Peter," said one to the other in an undertone.

"What is it, Ivan?"

"We have a traitor among us, a spy of the government, who has joined our circle to betray us."

"Heavens! What can we do to circumvent him?"

"It will be impossible without making sacrifices. I am going to the chief of police to denounce him as a traitor to the government, one who pretends to serve it while betraying its secrets to the circle. But I will not be believed unless I betray several of our members at the same time."

"But they will be sent to Siberia."

"We must contrive to get them off before they go, and if that is impossible we must attempt a rescue."

"A rescue! Impossible!"

"We shall see."

Ivan Demizorf the next day was closeted with the chief of police. He named four men who were plotting against the government, including the spy, and recommended that they be confined in a room on the top story of a certain building, a window of which could be seen from windows on the opposite side of the street. "Other conspirators," he added, "will learn where they are, will communicate with them and can be arrested." The chief assented to the plan, the arrests were made, and the prisoners were confined as suggested.

Spies were set to watch the opposite side of the street, and if any one was seen making signs to the prisoners the police were to be informed. The men were held several days, but no one was seen to be communicating. Not only did the spies become tired of watching and consequently careless, but those guarding the prisoners relaxed their vigilance. It was hoped that they would all go to sleep at the same time, but they did not. Finally Ivan Demizorf confessed to the chief of police that his plan was a failure, but it was agreed to leave the prisoners where they were one day longer. If at the end of twenty-four hours no other fish were hooked the four men were to be sent to Siberia.

That night at 8 o'clock a man of dark complexion, wearing a red fez, was seen to enter the building where the prisoners were confined. About half past 8 a woman with a long stride went in; later a negro and still later a man in Montenegrin costume. The last of these persons passed in at 10 o'clock, and none of them were seen to pass out.

In the morning when the relief guard went to the building they found the door of the room where the prisoners had been placed locked. They called and were answered by the guard within and told to break down the door. They did so and found the guard bound and gagged, while the prisoners were gone. They told the relief that during the previous evening they were set upon by a number of men dressed in different costumes, who had succeeded in snatching their guns, had overpowered them and taken away the prisoners.

The man who wore the fez, first entering the building, was Ivan Demizorf; the others were members of the circle of which he was a member. They concealed themselves in different parts of the building, and near midnight the negro, who was so black that he could not be distinguished in the darkness, crept up to the top story, where the prisoners were confined, and, peeping, saw that of the four men composing the guard at the door three were sound asleep, and the other was dosing. Returning, he reported what he had seen, and the rescue party, headed by Ivan Demizorf, crawled up the staircase. On reaching the top Demizorf awaited his opportunity, then made a dash for the gun of the man who was nodding.

One of the other men of the rescue party got the gun of a man who was asleep without encountering any resistance, but the two remaining rescuers were obliged to fight for the other weapons. However, it was not a minute before every guard was covered by a gun in the hands of a rescuer.

Demizorf opened the door where the prisoners were confined and found them all awake and intensely interested in what had been going on outside. There were now double the number opposing the guards, and their guns had been taken from them. Ropes and gags had been brought, and the first thing done was the insertion of the latter. Then the guards were bound, laid on the floor, the door locked, and the rescue party departed with the prisoners.

The three bona fide members of the circle made their escape across the border. One remained in Germany; the two others went to America. Demizorf did not dare face a suspicion of having had a hand in the rescue, though he had been well disguised, so he made off for parts unknown. He turned up in the United States, where he became a head center for an association of exiles who plotted to aid their fellow workers in Russia.

The fourth man who was rescued was never heard from after his rescue. It is supposed that he suffered for his treachery before the party separated.

A GREAT FACTOR IN LONG LIFE

BULGARIAN NOTES

Bulgaria has an area of about 43,300 square miles—less than a third of the size of the United Kingdom—and a population of just over 4,750,000.

There are nearly 300,000 Turks in Bulgaria.

The peace strength of the Bulgarian army is about 3,900 officers and 56,000 all other ranks, but the efield army amounts to about 380,000 men, besides line of communications troops, etc.

About five-sevenths of the population are engaged in agriculture, most of them being small proprietors holding from one to six acres.

Bulgaria is divided into nine military districts, each of which supplies a complete division to the field army.

All the minerals in Bulgaria belong to the State. The chief manufactures are woollen goods, cottons, cord, and cigarettes.

A great deal of trade is done in timber, which is cut in the defiles and floated down the rivers to the Danube.

Large herds of cattle and horses are also reared.

The legislation of the country rests with the National Assembly, the members of which are elected for five years, the King being assisted in the government of the country by a council of eight Ministers.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

AERONAUTS WANTED

French Mere and Mere Realize Possibilities of Aerial Warfare

One of the foremost French aviators speaking of the allies' increasing aerial offensive, remarked: "We began the war with aerodrome machines. We now have battle aeroplanes. In the matter of military aviation no one should be regarded as a visionary or bluffer. Every hope is permissable, every scheme realizable. Bombarding squadrons have formed. New machines fitted with excellent mitrailleuses, and ship at the front. There is no harm in my saying this, for the fact is well known to the Germans, who have already been in contact with them much against their will. They themselves have excellent and very fast Aviatiks. Cars are still faster. It is merely a question now of multiplying them.

"Losses are inevitable, and we must make them good as they occur. We must also have for each type of aeroplane a perfect mitrailleuse. In the matter of finding new pilots—the most important question of all—there is plenty of raw material. What we want is sportsmen. There are plenty of motorists and they make excellent pilots. They should be taken from the front."

By keeping household supplies always on hand a great deal of the sense of rush and weariness is saved.

WOMEN OF CANADA.

Port Coulonge, Quebec.—"I am happy to tell you that your medicine did me wonderful good. I was troubled with weakness and I tried wines and other things but received very little benefit. I was young at the time and knew very little about medicines till a lady friend came to me with a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I became strong and a year afterward had twins."—Mrs. J. Raapp, Port Coulonge, Quebec.

Thousands of women right here in Canada who are now pleased with robust health cannot understand why thousands of other women continue to worry and suffer when they can obtain for a trifling sum Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which will surely and quickly banish all pain, distress and worry and restore the uniformly health.

Young mothers who preserve the charms of face and figure in spite of an increasing family and the care of growing children are always to be envied. "Favorite Prescription" gives the strength and health upon which happy motherhood depends. It enables the mother to nourish the infant by properly on her, and enjoy the happiness of watching the development of a perfectly healthy child.

MR. PERCY ROCKEFELLER son of William Rockefeller, who engineered the $38,000,000 deal by which the Midvale Steel Company passed from the control of the Harrah interests to that of a new syndicate headed by William A. Read and Co. Sentiment and sympathy had little or nothing to do with the transaction. The opportunity of making war munitions at great profits appealed to the capitalists and they took it. Incidentally Great Britain and her allies offered the only market as Britain's fleet controlled the seas.

To clean the inside of a bottle a Frenchman has invented a brush that can be adjusted to any angle from its handle by a screw running inside the latter.

POPULAR PLUMER

A Sketch on the Politest Man in the British Army

"This retirement, carried out deliberately, with scarcely any loss, and in the face of an enemy in position, reflects the greatest possible credit on Sir Herbert Plumer and those who so efficiently carried out his orders." Such was one tribute which Sir John French recently paid to General Plumer in despatches concerning a western front battle.

Plumer is fond of saying that the only way to learn the art of battle is to fight. To him an hour of experience is worth a year of textbooks. General Plumer's record of service dates back to 1884, when he took part in the Egyptian campaign, and fought with such gallantry that he was mentioned in despatches, and received the medal with clasp and the Khedive's Star. It was in the Matabele campaign and the Boer War however, that he made his greatest name.

"Tommy" has always regarded Plumer as the soldier's friend, although, on account of his regard for dress, he is known as the "Dandy General" and the politest man in the British army. He believes in saying "please," even at the cannon's mouth. When he was in South Africa it was always a case of, "Sergeant, you see that cloud of dust on the right? Try a little pom-pom, please. Thank you; that is very nice. Just a little more, please—a little to the right. Thank you." Mayfair could not have been more polite.

Much of General Plumer's popularity is due to his happy temperament and keen sense of humor which has led him to collect quite a number of military stories, chiefly of his campaigns in Rhodesia and the Transvaal. One which he is particularly fond of telling relates to one of his men who was in hospital, being treated for a wound in the thigh received on the march to the relief of Mafeking.

After dressing the wound, one of the surgeons handed to the soldier a battered sixpence, which had been driven by the bullet through the pocket into the wound, whence it had been extracted by the doctor. "Ah, I know all your R.A.M.C. tricks," cried the wounded man, on receiving the coin. "Give me the other nine and a tanner. I lost half a quid."

JUST AS HAPPY.

On the whole poets do not seem to have too good a time of it. It is rather rare for an editor to see eye to eye with them in regard to the quality of their work. Samuel Simkins had had his work "turned down" by five editors in succession, and was now being told the cold and bitter truth by the sixth. His rage got the better of him. "Some day," he burst out, "you editors will be fighting for my work." "Never mind," chortled he of the hard heart. "When the day comes, even if I lose I shall be just as happy!"

AN IMMEDIATE RUSH

As a set-off to recently quoted instances of tactlessness a correspondent cites an incident which happened in a Scotch town just before a number of men went to the front. A lady who had been assisting to make pleasant the leisure hours of the soldiers produced her autograph book one evening and asked the men to sign their names. "Och, aye," said a stalwart private. "You want our names so as you'll ken them when ye read them in the casualty list." "Indeed, no," said the lady smartly. "I want them so that when I read of you going up to Buckingham Palace to receive your V.C. I can say to my friends, 'These are my boys.'" There was an immediate rush to sign names.

Cures Biliousness Prevents Brights Disease

The Certified Statement of One Has Proven the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Mr. Colin M. Kiel, Craighurst, Simcoe county, Ontario, writes: "My mother and I have both used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with great satisfaction. We find that there is nothing to equal them as a prompt cure for torpid liver, biliousness and indigestion. Some years ago my mother came near to death from kidney trouble and has to be careful in preventing Bright's disease. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills occasionally she keeps the kidneys healthy and active. Another point favourable to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is that they do not gripe and yet accomplish good results. You are at liberty to use my letter."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

7287

One more in this waist we find the leading characteristic of the summer style, fullness and fulness in the front of the garment. This fulness is gathered in the shoulder seam, where it joins the little tab extension of the sleeve. The back is plain and the fulness at the waistline is drawn in as flat as possible.

The sleeve is also loose and is of three-quarter length, ending in a handsome flare cuff. The neck is quite open and is filled in with a small, flat chemisette, which can be omitted. The edges of the opening are outlined by shapely revers and by a wide collar, which lies flat upon one's shoulders.

These waists are well adapted to voile, which is by far the leading shirt waist material this season. They are equally suitable for all the crepe fabrics, not only the silk crêpe de Chine and crêpe Georgette but the pretty cotton crêpes, some of which have colored stripes either singly or in groups. Handkerchief linen is also appropriate for them, and this comes not only in white but also in a large assortment of charming colors and designs.

In nearly all such waists the collar, revers and cuffs are of the waist material, and a second set of organdie or fine muslin is worn over them. This keeps the trimmings fresh and clean and allows of considerable changing in the sets used as an overlay. Very few women will care to retain the chemisette, but it is there for those who wish to use it.

The waist pattern, No. 7287, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material, with ¾ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods to trim.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

NAE WONDER

A country minister, who weighs over 21 stones, and is large in proportion, was officiating the other Sunday for a brother cleric of rather small stature. He was delighted to find that the eyes of the enraptured congregation were fixed upon him the whole time, and that they listened to his sermon without moving a limb or even an eyelid. In the vestry at the close of the service he remarked to the beadle, "I declare that I never had a more attentive audience, John. Why, they never let their eyes off me the whole time!" "I dinna wonder at that, sir," replied the beadle. "You see the floor o the pulpit has been rotten for years, and the were expectin' to see ye gang through every minute"

ASKED HIS MATE

An absent minded country gentleman went botanizing one day. Having forgotten his vasculum he extracted a large red handkerchief from his pocket. Putting his collected specimens into it he carefully tied them on his arm. Pursuing his way reflectively he came upon a workman looking down a deep trench and wearing most profusely. "My good man," said the shocked person, "Do you know who Satan is?" "Me—no but wait, an I'll ask my mate. Haw, Wull, dae ye ken who Satan is?" "No, is there anybody wantine him?" Ay, here's a man wi his dinner"

Women Conductors

By Wilbur S. Forrest.

LONDON, Oct 26—Women tram conductors have come to stay—at least in England.

In her fight for emancipation the English-woman has established her right and ability to hold the rear platform. Serious consideration is even been given to ceding her the front platform. Motor-women seems a question of but a few months.

Since the beginning of war, women have been employed as conductors in Germany, France, Italy and England. Nearly 2,000 now have permanent positions. Another 15,000 have applications on file. From these every vacancy is being filled in preference to men

The crowning culmination came when the seal of official approval was placed upon her employment by the Municipal Tramways association of the United Kingdom, in annual conference. There was not a single protest against her employment and when the proposal of 'motor-women' was made cries of 'Why not?' rang from all parts of the room

The assembly found that woman trolley car conductors brought certain problems and these were discussed.

The delegates from Glasgow, where nearly 1,000 women are employed, stated it was feared the skirts on the conductors would prove an impediment in winter in running up and down stairs on the double-deckers.

The Glasgow corporation proposes to remedy this by furnishing the women conductors with gaiters.

Glasgow has been so won to the woman conductor idea that a permanent school of instruction has been opened. A ticket-inspector is the teacher

Each pupil is put through the process of inquiring the destination, issuing the punching tickets, and calling stations until she is letter perfect in her route.

One of the few complaints registered against the women was their lack of appreciation of the value of time. They find it difficult to realize that the matter of being a few moments late in signing on or in taking up a relief is serious. The companies are trying to overcome this difficulty through inspectors.

One of the most frequent causes for this delay it was reported was that "a woman conductor had something to say to another woman and would not go on duty till she finished it."

At the Glasgow school, while one woman is being put through her recitation the others listen. This acquaints them with all routes in the city

It was agreed that women between 24 and 35 make the best conductors. Their influence has been all for the best. Even on the "roughest and toughest" routes they can control bestreperous passengers better than the men conductors

So successful has been their work, that the congress decided to ask the county council of London to remove its ban against their employment. London is the one city in the British Isles that so far has held out against them

A KITCHENER STORY

Lord Kitchener is so much regarded as a man without a smile, writes a correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, that an anecdote illustrating his human quality may be to the point. One of my officers has a rich father, who wrote directly to Kit of K. offering to settle 250 pounds apiece on each of his two sons if the War Minister would give them commissions. "Settle the money on your daughters instead," came the reply, "if your sons are any good I will be glad to take them for nothing." Sound, common sense, as well as humour touched with irony.

VILLA GENERALS SURRENDER; MEN JOIN CARRANZA

No Foreign Loan Contemplated By the New Mexican Government—Customs Returns Mortgage To Cover Debts.

MEXICO CITY, Oct 27—The Carranza-ista government does not contemplate the negotiation of a foreign loan in the near future, according to acting Finance Minister Nieto, who was interviewed regarding the financial situation

He said that 62 per cent. of the customs returns already have been mortgaged to cover the existing foreign debt and he believes this amount will be sufficient. The interest on this debt will be paid soon

Will Exercise Rigid Economy.

Senor Nieto asserted that he knew nothing of the report of an arrangement for conferences with representatives of foreign nations on the subject of finance. The normal returns of the nation in times of peace approximately 150,000,000 pesos, he said. Minister Nieto believes that these figures will again be reached in a few months. He believes that rigid economy will be exercised, particularly in the army

Minister Nieto is of the opinion that the Villa and Zapata notes total more than 500,000,000 pesos. He knows, he said, that Mexico City banking houses bought large amounts of these notes and used them to advantage

The Carranzistas will resume the coinage of gold and silver within four months, Senor Nieto believes. He promised that the government will do everything in its power to reduce exchange fluctuations to the minimum

Villa delegates sent by General Carbajal La Pena, commander of the Villista state of Queretaro, has arrived here with an officer from his chief to surrender. General De la Pena believes that, in view of the recognition by the United States government, for him to continue his struggle against the Carranzistas would be unpatriotic. The delegates will await the arrival of General Gonzales from Tolnca

Several Villa Generals Surrender.

More than 300 conventionist officers, including several generals to whom General Gonzales has extend ed amnesty, have arrived here from Tolnca and are being registered to await further action by the authorities. They assert that soldiers and noncommissioned officers, of the chiefs who have surrendered, will be enlisted with the Carranzistas under General Mejo Gonzales' command to enter the struggle against their former comrades.

Washington's recognition of the Carranzista government has caused discouragement among the Zapatista officials, who now appear to have withdrawn all their forces from the federal district. The district is now quieter than in many months.

FARM AND GARDEN.

There are within the limits of the United States eleven species of thrushes, five of which are commonly known as robins and bluebirds. The other six include the Townsend solitarie, the wood, the veery, the gray-cheek, the olive-back, and the hermit thrushes.

In case your horse falls and must have the harness and waggon removed to enable him to get up, after loosening the checkrein, instead of tugging at the traces to free them from the singletree unbuckle the hamestrap; this relieves the tension on the traces at once

In selecting fowls for stock purposes the system of "lining" will be found useful. There is a law of nature which says that the use of any organ or part of the body tends to its increase. It is this law which enables us correctly to "line" a fowl. The bird to be judged is viewed sideways and an imaginary line is drawn through the center of the body from the neck, just where the hackle feathers rest, to the legs. If the greater portion is in front of this line the bird will be most useful for its table qualities; if the posterior region is the larger, one may be quite sure that the bird will prove a layer rather than a table bird, while if the body is fairly equally divided the fowl will be of the general purpose type—that is, will combine the two qualities of egg-production and edible properties. Once the method of "lining" has been mastered it becomes exceedingly simple, and one becomes very expert in selecting the types best suited for one's particular requirements

Auto Plunged Into Balsam Lake

LINDSAY Oct 27. A Lindsay mechical man learned some new stunts which his automobile can perform that were hidden mysteries to him before. Men who own machines say that they are much like railroad engines, kick up and get balky at times, speed hard to control at other intervals and one hundred other ugly tricks could be charged against them, not mentioning the blowing up of a tire which may happen in the garage and take a wing off you. This doctor left to visit a patient out near Cobconk, and while he was taking the invalid's temperature and so forth, which he did not think would occupy much time, he left the engine running. The continued vibration threw the machine into gear and away it started with a snort and a run down the road prepared to knock the socks off the most pretentious car this side of the north pole.

Away it travelled over dizzy heights, escaping putting rocks and pine stumps along the roadway till it took a suicidal turn of mind and jumped into Balsam Lake from the roadway

A Lindsay garage man was sent for, who found it in four feet of water, with nothing but the wind shield sticking up like a periscope. No damage was done to the machine

A number of tourists were recently looking down the crater of Vesuvius. An American gentleman turned to his companion.

"That looks a good deal like the infernal regions."

An English lady, hearing the remark, said to another

"Good gracious! How these Americans do travel!"

Teutons Form a Junction With The Bulgarians

Claim Road Is Opened To Constantinople

BERLIN CLAIMS TO BE IN DIRECT CONNECTION WITH BULGARS

If True the Move Will Mean a Stronger Force for the Teutonic Drive to the South---United States Note to Great Britain Protesting Against Interference With American Commerce is on the Way to London.

GERMAN ATTACKS ON THE WEST FAIL

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 27.—"We are in direct connection with the Bulgarians at Ljubicevac, announced an official statement to-day.

The expected junction between the Austro-German and Bulgarian forces means, not only a stronger force for the southward sweep through Serbia, but that a road has been opened through the northeast corner of the invaded country, so that the Teutonic troops have a through route, though not a railroad from their own territory to Constantinople.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—"Strong German patrols," said the War Office announcement to-day, "have been repulsed and dispersed by the French fire south of Loos.

"The Germans tried to recapture the Courtin trenches in the Champagne Tuesday night, but were repulsed by our machine guns and infantry." Elsewhere, it was said, the night was quiet.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The Marquis of Lansdowne's admission in the British House of Lords that Britain has only 13,000 troops at Salonika was regarded here to-day as definitely disposing of any possibility of Greek participation in the Balkan campaign at least at present. How many French are on the Greek coast to help the Serbs has not been revealed, but was thought unlikely that they far outnumber the British.

As a condition even to considering her entrance into the war Greece specified the presence of an adequate force of the Allies. That she deemed 30,000 or 40,000 adequate was regarded out of the question. Reports of a Greek clash, presumably with the Bulgarians, though this was not specified, were believed to mean an unauthorized frontier skirmish, not surprising in view of the present strained relations, and too common in the Balkans to mean serious developments.

The story that King Constantine of Greece is going to Salonika was strongly doubted.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The question whether peace suggestions have been made from any quarter will be asked of Premier Asquith by Annan Bryce, a Liberal member of Parliament from Inverness in the Commons to-day.

He seeks to know whether any representative of any neutral power is making inquiries with a view to restoring peace, and whether the Premier still adheres to his Guild Hall declaration that England will not cease fighting until German militarism has been crushed, Belgium has been freed, and the small countries' safety guaranteed.

It was believed the Premier would give a specific answer to Mr. Bryce's queries, as it is understood the Cabinet members agree the point is one on which the country should be definitely informed.

Twenty-two captured German guns, nineteen of which were taken at Loos were exhibited here at the Horse Guards parade to-day.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Star predicts that "when Asquith comes back to his place in the House of Commons he will receive an ovation which will confound the hidden assassins with their furtive daggers, their masked faces and their poisonous press."

The Westminster Gazette says: "This seizing of any pretext to discredit the Prime Minister and prevent him from taking a few days of greatly qualified repose, necessitated by his recent illness, is repugnant to all."

ATHENS, via London, Oct. 27.—Following the Serbians' recapture of Veles on the Nish-Salonika railway, the beaten Bulgarians were rallying today at Istib, 25 miles to the westward. With the Allies' aid the Serbians were hopeful of holding Veles.

LUGANO, Switzerland, Oct. 27.—Negotiations between Russia and Roumania appear to be nearing a successful conclusion, says the Informazionne. While awaiting the consent of Roumania for the passage of Russian troops, the newspaper asserts Russia has temporarily suspended arrangements for disembarking troops on the Black Sea coast of Bulgaria.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 27.—Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, announced this morning that in future on no consideration will regiments be allowed to conduct canteens except for the benefit of the regimental funds. No civilian will in future be allowed to work in a military canteen, and the sale of liquor will be strictly prohibited.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The United States note to Great Britain, protesting against interference with American commerce, is already on its way to London by special messenger, it became known to-day, though Secretary of State Lansing refused to deny or confirm the statement. A note already has been sent, and formal announcement of its transmission probably will be made when it reached London.

Alexander C. Kirk, third secretary of the American Embassy in Berlin, was reported to be the messenger bearing the British note. Kirk sailed from New York last Sunday. Kirk is returning to Berlin with orders to stop at London. It is believed his trip was taken advantage of to send the long-delayed note.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Max Breitung, cousin of E. N. Breitung, the Michigan millionaire, to-day appeared at the Federal Building and was given a preliminary arraignment on a charge of participation in the alleged conspiracy to blow up war munition ships.

Breitung was held under $25,000 bail for appearance on November 4.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 27.—The following casualty was announced this afternoon: Second Battalion—Killed October 13, Hubert De Arse Gill, Winnipeg.

King's Appeal Brings Rush to The Colours

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Chronicle says: "King George's appeal to the nation, combined with Lord Derby's scheme and the indignation aroused throughout the country by the execution of the nurse, Miss Cavell, has created a new broom in recruiting. At Birmingham to-day recruiting meetings were held in the large factories and these will continue daily for some time. Amongst yesterday's recruits were a large number of clerks and postal employees. More single men are now coming forward at Birmingham than ever before, but the number of ejections on account of physical unfitness is rather heavy. Not since the early days of the war has recruiting in Bath been so brisk. The head of the recruiting office was besieged on Monday and yesterday by young men in such numbers that the staff was hard pressed in dealing with them. Fifty-three Bath taxi-drivers marched in a body to the recruiting office and offered their services as motor transport drivers. In Leicester 24,000 men have been raised in a fortnight. Recruiting is also reported exceedingly brisk in South Wales.

The owner of some limestone caves in Virginia has piped the air from them into his house to provide an even temperature the year around.

A safety gas meter invented in Holland is claimed to prevent the possibility of asphyxiation and to indicate the loss of unconsumed gas.

$4000 DAMAGE THE RESULT OF THE FIRE YESTERDAY

Peterborough Mattress Factory Practically Destroyed Only the Walls Are Now Standing

SOME INSURANCE

Damage to the extent of about four thousand dollars was the result of yesterday's fire that destroyed the Peterborough Mattress Factory. The loss occasioned by the destruction of the building was about $1,000. Mr. Jas. Ellis, the proprietor, had between $3,000 and $4,000 worth of stock in the factory. About one third of the same was salvaged. The insurance on the stock, it was learned, was about $2,000. It could not be ascertained what insurance was on the building, as the owners reside in Winnipeg.

The fire enveloped the building so rapidly that it was impossible for Mr. Ellis to get his books out. The origin of the conflagration is a mystery. It spread very rapidly, and Chief Howard and his men were kept busy until seven o'clock last evening before the fire was under control. The brigade remained in relays until 10.45, and throughout the night one line of hose was kept on the smouldering factory, and a detachment from the brigade watched the place until this morning.

It could not be learned whether the building would be rebuilt or not.

TENDERS FOR THE REMOVAL OF SNOW

Tenders will be asked for snow ploughing. This was decided upon at last night's meeting of the Board of the Board of Works. Some difference of opinion arose as to what form the tenders should take. Some of the aldermen objected to the rule which necessitated the use of a shovel at the street crossings. Others were in favor of the city doing its own ploughing, as well as garbage collecting. The city could purchase sufficient horses and wagons for this purpose. The horses could be utilized on the snow ploughs whenever conditions warranted. Alderman McIntyre, chairman of the Property Committee, who has just returned from a trip to Ontario cities, in company with Sanitary Inspector Spence, with a view of ascertaining the methods employed elsewhere, said that the collection of garbage usually came under the jurisdiction of the Board of Works, and not the Property Committee, as was the case in Peterborough.

"We wouldn't mind a little thing like that," said the chairman of the Board of Works.

Contractors will not be required to use the shovel in this year's contract for snow ploughing.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT THAT LT.-COL. MILLS IS TO COMMAND 93rd

Assistant Adjutant-General Informs Lt.-Col. Walker, Local Recruiting Officer of the Appointment--Recruiting For Peterboro' Companies is to be Done in Peterboro' County--Work of Turning Armouries Into a Barracks Has Commenced---To-day's Military News.

An official announcement of the organization of the 93rd Battalion and of the fact that Lt.-Col. Jos. Mills of the 57th Regiment and the 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., is to command, has been received by Lt.-Col. Walker, O. C. 57th Regiment, and recruiting officer for this district, from Col. Ogilvie, the Assistant Adjutant-General of the 3rd Division. The communication reads as follows:

"Authority is given for the formation of a new infantry battalion of this division to be known as the 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F., with headquarters at Peterborough, Lindsay and Cobourg. Lt.-Col. J. Mills, 57th Regiment, has been appointed to command the battalion. Recruiting will be divided as follows:

Peterborough—The County of Peterborough.

Lindsay—The Counties of Haliburton and Victoria.

Cobourg—The Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

The recruits obtained will be retained at these headquarters for the winter.

The number of recruits now at Peterborough will remain there as a nucleus for the new battalion.

Every effort is to be made to stimulate recruiting."

The Examiner heard on seemingly good authority this morning that Lt.-Col. M. K. Adams, the officer commanding the 16th Prince Edward Regiment, had been given the command of the 93rd, but the official announcement from Col. Ogilvie discounts this report.

No. 3 Platoon of the 93rd took the measure of No. 2 yesterday afternoon by 3 goals to 1, the second loss in two days for No. 2. The winners scored all three of their goals in the first half, while No. 2 tallied their only counter in the second period. Sergt. Calladine refereed the contest. This afternoon Nos. 1 and 4 Platoons were scheduled to play, the game marking the first appearance as a football team of Sergt. Hartshorn's men. The standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Goals.	Att.
No. 1 Platoon	2	0	6	2
No. 3 Platoon	1	1	4	4
No. 2 Platoon	0	2	2	6
No. 4 Platoon	0	0	0	0

The 43rd Battalion soccer team will play the return game with the Normal School on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval, and the game promises to be a hummer. In the first game the soldiers won by one goal to nil. Both teams will be stronger Saturday and will be a royal battle. There will be plenty of supporters on hand for both sides.

Gunner Horace Coon of the 33rd Battery was last night the recipient of a handsome signet ring from members of the Epworth League and Sunday School of the George Street Church. Gunner Coon left to-day to spend a few days at his home at Tweed before going to Barriefield.

Entertainments will not be lacking for the boys of the 93rd Battalion this winter. To-night the St. John's church members of the battalion are being entertained at Coleman's' parlours, and on Monday night next a large number of the soldiers will be the guests of the C.L.A. at Charlotte street Methodist church.

Among the latest recruits for the 93rd Battalion are Thos. Jackson, 127 Queen street, Lindsay, John W. Devine, Hastings, and Henry Muskrat, Hiawatha.

The band of the 93rd Battalion will play the following programme at their concert in the town hall, Lakefield, on Friday night:

March ... "Dragoon Guards"
93rd Band
Overture ... "Lutspiel"

The work of converting the local armouries into a barracks to accommodate the 600 men of the 93rd Battalion who will be housed there this winter, was commenced this morning. Messrs. Fitzgerald and Pagett, the contractors for the carpenter work, had a large staff at work and the alterations will be pushed ahead as rapidly as possible. The carpenters are busy in the artillery gun room to-day, turning that room into a kitchen. The main drill hall is to be used as a dining room, and sleeping quarters for the men will be provided in the various company rooms, band room, etc.

Separation Allowances.

As there is always a good deal of anxiety on the part of the wives and mothers of enlisted men to know if the separation allowances have been granted, the following lists received at the Patriotic Fund Office in the last few days are published. The matter is one of general interest, as well. While the office will give any information it has at any time very few will take the trouble to enquire over the telephone or personally. In future the lists will be given for publication as they are received:

1—Allen, Mrs. Louisa, 687 Concession street.
2—Bailey, Mrs. Dorothy, 490 George street.
3—Bacon, Mrs. Eleanor, 414 McDonnel Street.
4—Baumer, Mrs. Eugenie, 567 George street.

MET PTE. BRUCE MILLS ON A FRENCH ROAD

Extracts From Interesting Letters From Pte. Geo. Butcher, 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles Now in France—First Impressions in the War Zone

NEAR FIRING LINE

Interesting letters have been received recently by Mrs. John Butcher, 301 Burnham Street, from her son, Pte. George Butcher, who enlisted here with the 8th C.M.R. Pte. Butcher was one of a draft of fifty from the 8th Mounted Rifles, who went over to England in June last. He is now in France, and the following are extracts from letters received from him these:

"It is quite a time since I wrote you last, but things have happened since then, as you will see by the heading. I have been in France now nearly two weeks. It is chilly, but just now something like a day in the late Fall, when it is raining. It has been raining these last two days, and rain means lots of mud, so that with the cold breeze it sure is lovely. We are billeted only about a mile and a half from the trenches, so naturally can hear the artillery and rifle fire quite plainly. At night the Germans send up star shells which burst in the air and show a bright light all over the country. It looks like a 1st of July celebration at home, to see them shooting up all along the line. On coming from England we landed at a point in France away down the coast. We stayed there about two or three days and then loaded up our wagons for our trip farther on. They put forty of us in a box car. They were not cars like those at home, either—little, small cars about half the size of those on the G.T.R. or the C.P.R.

Saw Pte. Bruce Mills.

We spent two nights and one day in it and at the end of that had a ten mile march to the town where we were to billet for a few days. We arrived there Sunday a.m. and left again Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock. When we were leaving the town who should I see but Bruce Mills. He walked along with me about half a mile and then had to turn back to go on with his work. I sure was glad to see him. The night before we left Caesar's Camp I was down to Folkestone and I met Bill Hazerman (with reinforcements to Princess Pats. He arrived the night we (Pte. Vic. Hazerman, 21st Battalion) left, and I think they passed each other on the way, but of course didn't know it. As yet I have not been to the trenches, but some of the gun sections have been there, mostly to take observations and get accustomed to it.

Used to Noise of Shells.

Writing under date of Oct. 8th, Pte. Butcher, in part, says:

"At present I am stopping at a dressing station for a couple of days, as I have a bad boil on my left arm. When I came out to have it fixed they made me stay here for a couple of days. I draw rations every day from the regiment and have a little brick stove when I make my own tea, boil potatoes, or fry bacon. I have bread and biscuits with jam, and a couple of tins of bully beef as a day's supply. Of course I get tea, sugar, bacon, and cheese also. I'll be back with the bunch again to-morrow. We have to be pretty careful with scratches and cuts, as the least thing is liable to cause blood poisoning.

"To see some parts of this country you never would think a war was going on, even though some of the buildings are a bit battered up. We can hear the guns all day and also hear the shells going over our heads, but we never pay any attention to them, as we are getting used to it. Last Saturday a.m. they took our regiment to an old brewery about two miles away from where we were billeted, and we had a hot bath in tubs and vats. It certainly felt good. I saw some of Vic. Hazerman's regiment yesterday, and I hear they are coming this way. I don't know whether we will be here when they come, or not, as we are moving around all the time.

Pte. Butcher's address now is:
No. 113,004—Pte. G. R. Butcher,

That is the Comment of a United States Resident on the Cavell Case—Cannot Go to the Front Himself But Offers to Pay $100 a Month to Send a Substitute.

FULL OF INDIGNATION

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.— A concrete expression of indignation at the Cavell horror perpetrated in Germany was received to-day by Sir Sam Hughes from a prominent resident of the United States who was born in England, but who has lived in the United States for 35 years. The letter read: 'This Cavell murder should rouse every Briton throughout the world to vengeance. I cannot fight at the front, but I can pay for a substitute, perhaps two and I am willing to put $100 a month in your hands for the purpose as long as the war lasts. Use it, I beg, in a way that will actually damage the Huns. Let others care for the Red Cross." My heart is so full of indignation that I feel I am incoherent, but you know what I mean. Your friends are all proud of you and what you have done and are doing.

Patriotic Meeting To-night at Bethany

There will be a patriotic meeting in Bethany to-night under the auspices of the Speakers' Patriotic League. Addresses will be given by Lt.-Col. Miller, Judge Huycke, Mr. D. O'Connell, and altogether likely by Pte. Chas. Stenson, just back from the front. The party will be accompanied by Sergt.-Major Miller of the 93rd Battalion.

Is Here to Assist Brother

Mr. J. C. Fowler, brother of Mr. A. A. Fowler, Peterborough's popular optical specialist, has come to Peterborough to assist his brother in his growing business.

For a period of thirteen years Mr. J. E. Fowler was with the late W. A. Sanderson, who at that time conducted the only optical business in Peterborough. He then moved to Havelock, where he carried on the business of jeweller and optician for ten years, and for the last six years has been the official watch inspector for the C.P.R. On the invitation of his elder brother, Mr. Fowler has just sold his Havelock business and moved to Peterborough to devote his time in future to the optical business exclusively, and to assist Mr. A. A. Fowler in taking care of his rapidly increasing business here.

Mr. Fowler's long experience in the jewelry repair work will be found a most important acquisition in that department of the optical work of the establishment.

A CONTRIBUTION FROM GALWAY

On Friday evening last, a meeting was held in Galway under the auspices of the municipal officers and residents of both Galway and Cavendish. An interesting programme was provided. The proceeds amounted to one hundred dollars, which will be devoted to the British Red Cross Society.

A Drama in two Acts Entitled 'The Last Loaf' will be given in the Lecture Room of Charlotte Street Church, on the evening of Friday, October 29th, at 8 o'clock, by the Ladies' Aid Society. Admission 25c. 2d-98

GRAMMAR OR GO?

A theatrical company placarding its patriotic play covers our hoardings with the appeal "Your King and country needs you? Hewing to the line of grammatical rule the appeal should be, "Your King and country need you?" But what's the odds, so long as the appeal gets home? It is not a matter of grammar, but of go. When a recruit comes under the examining doctor's tape there is no question of grammar. If his wind and heart are right—everything goes. Never mind the grammar, get into the ranks. The King James translation of the Holy Scriptures is full of grammatical errors, yet it has enlisted millions into the ranks of the great Captain. If you see a placard telling you that "Your King and country needs you," don't quarrel with the grammar; take a little wrestle with your sense of duty and heed the call. Neutralize the bad grammar by being a good patriot.

RECRUITING AND EQUIPMENT.

Sir Sam Hughes spoke at a big recruiting rally in Toronto and made one sifinificant statement. He said: "We can't equip any more men than we have enlisted—of the 160,000 men we have enlisted, 15,000 are yet to be supplied with arms and equipment." Is not this a most humiliating confession, or excuse, to make. Does it, or does it not, reveal neglect of duty on the part of the military authorities? When enlistment is slow we feel inclined to criticise our young men for a failure to do their duty; and respond promptly to its call. Have we not a similar reason to chide the government which does not do its duty, which is a much easier thing to do. The Government, the ministers, take no personal risk in providing arms and equipment. The man who enlists puts his life, his limbs, his health, his all, in pledge. How can the minister of war consistently call upon men to do their duty by joining the ranks when in the next sentence he confesses that his department and the government have not done their duty. He calls for recruits when he knows that if his call is heeded the resulting soldiers will appear in the ranks looking like—when compared with the clean cut kahki figures of properly clad soldiers — Falstaff's ragged regiment. There is no doubt that lack of uniforms is a great hindrance to enlistment. Many a potential recruit in the almost-persuaded class will have his decision converted into an adversed decision by so simple a thing as the prospect of going on parade in mufti amongst men cleanly clad in the uniform of the service. He feels like the man found out at the bridal feast, not having on the wedding garment. There is no reason, except not doing it, or not having done it, why we should not have uniforms and equipment to spare—waiting for recruits, instead of recruits waiting for them. We have spent millions to develop our industrial plants for the making of shells and munitions of war. Could not the same have been done in providing additional industrial equipment, for making the proper equipment of soldiers? Is the government afraid that the war may suddenly collapse and leave a few unneeded uniforms in store? If the war should suddenly end with a hundred thousand uniforms left unrequired on our hands, would we not hail the event as a boon, and make a bonfire of the useless uniforms to celebrate the occasion? Even that loss of good cloth, would be better than putting the uniforms on a hundred thousand soldiers' backs to be worn through another gruelling year of war. How can the government expect prompt enlistment when they provide discouragement instead of encouragement? Why should the Speakers' Patriotic League have, amongst other hindrances, to contend against the hindrance of lack of uniform for the recruit to step into the moment he has been accepted? They are doing their duty, let the government do theirs. Recruiting has for months been ahead of equipment. Now for a change. Let us have uniforms and equipment waiting for recruits, instead of recruits waiting for equipment. Sir Sam at Toronto, rather boasted, and took credit for the fact he asserted that since the war broke out, Canada has turned 360 million pounds of steel into shells. He didn't, as he should have been in a position to do, boast of the number of thousands of yards of cloth that had been converted into uniforms.

THE TRUE SPIRIT.

Major-General Sir Sam Hughes is a busy man; as a war minister he is a hustler; but he makes many false motions, aims many blows that don't get home. He is busy as a bee, but he always finds time to blow his own horn and that of the government. He, however, sometimes sounds a false note in blowing his own and the government's horn. At the Arena meeting in Toronto Sir Sam declared that there was no truth in the statement that the Motherland had—

> "Sent out a call for men to the Overseas Dominions. No such requst was ever made, or will be made during the war. It was the Canadian Government that offered the troops; and it was from this government that the call went forth."

This may be technically correct, but it is far from the truth in spirit. The call to Canada was higher than the call from any government or other human authority. It was the call of duty to which the people responded; the call of the higher humanity, the call of patriotism, sharply divided from party considerations. The recent personal appeal of King George was as much of an appeal to Canada as if it had been published solely in the Canada Gazette, and even in Peterborough it had its effect on recruiting interests. It is a narrow view of the situation to assume that Canadians are not appealed to to do their share in the war except by order-in-council from Ottawa. We are not fighting because we are ordered to do so. We are fighting for our wives and our children; for our homes and our liberties; fighting for the freedom of humanity. Our position is well defined in the following from the Ottawa Free Press:

> The other day we heard the story of a former well-known Ottawa young man who, by his brilliant ability, had won for himself a high position in a profession. He was clad in khaki. A friend expressed surprise that he should have enlisted, leaving behind a wife and two beautiful children, and all the comforts of a fine home. The reply: "As a father I want to do everything to give my boys a chance. I should like them to train for public service. I would seek for them happiness and contentment in their native country. What will their native country be if the Germans win this war; where will be their freedom and happiness and contentment? What impression of public service will they get if I stay at home when Canada is in danger? I am going to fight for my sons."

What government orders, what government "offer of troops" can compete with that spirit? We are spontaneous in devotion and loyalty to the Motherland, to our own land, to ourselves, and the cause that involves protection and preservation of the highest interests of civilization and humanity. Governments and parties are nothing in this great war; it is the peoples' war, and governments are only the instruments of giving our spontaneous patriotism effect. If the government will give us equipment we shall do the fighting.

GERMAN REASONING.

So far as appears from the German criticism of allied intrusion in Greece, read in the light of a Belgian episode, Kultur justifies the violation of neutral territory, and no nation except fortunate Germany possesses Kultur.—New York Sun.

CONDEMNED BY A FRIEND.

The German raid over London, of which we have latest information, netted anything but a glorious result, gauged by the true soldier's standard. 16 soldiers, 18 male civilians and 14 women and children were killed, 114 persons were injured and a conflagration entailing a loss of $5,000,000 — all non-military structures—followed the bomb dropping.

We search in vain to discover even the smallest advantage that will accrue to Germany from this business.—Buffalo News.

PRACTICAL AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP.

The warm and practical sympathy of our friends in the United States since this war started is among the pleasant things which we can never forget. Nobly they have opened their hearts and purses. The Canadian Society of New York formed a Relief Fund Committee in September, 1914, for the purpose of raising funds to be used in assisting the wives, children and dependent relatives of those resident in the United States who had volunteered for active service in one of the Canadian contingents. The Canadian Patriotic Fund, organized by act of Parliament, could only furnish assistance to "the wives, children and dependent relatives" of those who had gone to the front, and were "residents of Canada." Thus no assistance from that source could be extended to Canadians residing in the United States. The New York committee made themselves into a clearing house to work with the Canadian Patriotic Fund and American local organizations all over the United States. In Boston there is the British Imperial Relief Fund. In Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Rochester, Detroit and Chicago there are similar organizations. Of course many of the dependents of American residents who joined our army made no application for assistance. There are many thousands of similar cases in Canada. The first annual report of the New York Society shows, however, that 111 families were aided in twenty-two States, showing how general the American enlistment has been.

The contributions to these funds are by no means confined to Canadian-born residents of the United States. The very chairman of the New York Relief Committee, Mr. Alfred W. Kiddle, is a native-born American, though his mother was a Canadian. This war has certainly demonstrated who our friends are.— Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

SPLENDID SPIRIT OF SACRIFICE AND DEVOTION OF THE ENTENTE ALLIES

An American, well known in the commercial and financial world, writing to Scribner's recently, gave some first-class observations on the progress of the war, and the way it was being conducted which have proved to have been accurately prophetic. At the outset the Germans filled the world with a kind of awe, he says. They seemed to have everything, and in a day millions of them, fully armed and equipped, were on the march. No such organization had ever been dreamed of, and the description of the tramp of German armies into Belgium and France oppressed the mind with a sense of irresistable force. It was not a people who were moving, it was an incredible engine composed of human beings, who from infancy had been trained to subordinate their wills and sink their own individualities. This machine was fully wound up on July 30, 1914. When the war engine was started the dates of the arrival in Warsaw, Paris and London were advertised. Presently something went wrong with it, and it was discovered that there was nothing superhuman or divine about it. The invincibility of the German army is now believed by no one except the German people, for whom facts have been distorted, suppressed or misrepresented.

Great Britain became Greater Britain indeed. Sikhs and Gourkas fought in Flanders; New Zealanders and Australians are fighting Germanized Turks; Canadians have won imperishable renown in Belgium; Dutchmen, under English colors, fought Germans in South Africa. The Empire has been carrying on seven wars at once; on the Continent, in the Dardanelles, in the Persian Gulf, in Egypt, in East Africa, in West Africa, and in the Cameroons.

The British navy has cleared the seas, and has kept open the great trade routes. It has convoyed armies from the ends of the earth; and the German flag is no longer afloat, except upon its navy; which, after all the swagger about "The Day" is still skulking at Kiel. When it began to be seen that the "contemptible little army" was to be followed by a huge force being raised in Britain and her overseas dominions, Von Hindenburg said: "Even if there were a million they would form no real army, but a uniformed crowd." He has since had an opportunity of learning that, to use the vernacular, "it was some crowd," and there are upwards of three million of them.

The most thrilling development, in the first year of the war, however, was the tone and temper of the allied peoples. In Russia the Czar at last was free to move about his own country. In France the Kaiser and his school have evoked a spirit well described by Mme. Juliette Adam in writing to the Women's Congress at The Hague:—

"Are you truly an Englishwoman? Although I am but little of a suffragette, I must confess to you that I better understand those Englishwomen who would like to fight. England and France to-day have proof of what arbitration and mediation would have done for us. To ask Frenchwomen at this moment to talk of arbitration and mediation, to discuss an armistice, is to ask of them national abdication of their rights.

"All the Frenchwomen could desire is to watch over and applaud their children, their husbands, their brothers, even their fathers, with the conviction that a defensive war is such a sacred thing that everything should be given up, everything forgotten, everything sacrificed, that death itself should be faced heroically, to defend and to save what is most holy in the world, one's country. To-day every German act outside acts of war is monstrous. They lie, they loot, they burn, they kill women and children, they take hostage, they assassinate wounded stretcher-bearers and doctors, they set fire to ambulances, they violate women, young girls and nuns.

"It would be treachery to those I have lost to seek anything but what is and ought to be, if the God of right and justice, the Enemy of the demon of brute force and of mad pride, is the true God."

In Britain they do not say much, but the American writer quoted says one gets a sense of high resolve and of determination under a tranquil exterior which is most impressive. Every man, woman and child is doing something for the armies; terrific taxation with more to come, is faced cheerfully. Papers are constantly filled with long lists of subscriptions to innumerable funds which aggregate vast sums. They talk of mourning for their nearest and dearest. They talk of their dead calmly and without a whimper. In particular there is no boasting or talk of what they are going to do. All such German utterances as the Kaiser's telegram to his sister, the Queen of Greece, which said, "Our final victory is certain. Woe to those who still dare to draw the sword against me. Regards to Tino (the King). William," the British people put by with a smile. There is no other reply than that "we are going to see this thing through."—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

Are Ottawa Citizen's Charges of Loot Shell Profits, Fantastic Exaggerations or the Truth?

"To my mind there is something absolutely revolting in the idea of anybody making profits out of the nation's agony." These words of the Chairman of the Steel Company of Scotland are quoted by The Ottawa Citizen in an article dealing with war profits in Canada, and particularly with the operations carried on under the direction of the Dominion Shell Committee. The charges made by The Citizen are of so serious a sort that they must be considered at once by the Premier. If they are untrue they do grievous injustice to men of the highest standing in the Canadian steel industry. If true, the Shell Committee as at present constituted should be abolished immediately.

The Globe has not the necessary information upon which to express an opinion, but that information must assuredly be in the possession of Mr. D. A. Thomas, the representative in Canada of the Minister of Munitions. If Sir Robert Borden feels that the country's honour is involved in the operations of the Shell Committee he should replace the committee by one in which no person financially interested in the manufacture of shells would have a place. The Globe does not wish to reprint the personalities contained in The Citizen's article further than to say that it names General Bertram, M. G. W. Watts of the Canada Foundry, and Mr. Thomas Cantley of the Nova Scotia Steel Company as gentlemen who represent the manufacturers' interests on the committee. The charge that excessive profits are being made is most explicit The Citizen says:

> "What good would reorganizing the Shell Committee do, so far as business as usual in Canada is concerned? Does any man say it is not doing everything possible to keep the fat of profiteering on munitions as rich and high as the British Treasury will stand? Is it not making Britain pay more for shells from Canada than for shells from the United States? Does it not shells, hundreds of thousands of shells, for $2.90 each when they could be machined profitably at $1 each? It is true the Shell Committee can no longer 'touch' the British Treasury for $5.15 for a dollar's worth of work But in spite of embarrassing publicity, and even with one manufacturer in Hamilton not playing the game—actually offering to machine shells at cost—and another giving the profiteering game away by offering to machine them at $1.40 each, the Dominion Shell Committee has still succeeded in forcing Britain to pay $2.90 each for the machining! Why, indeed, should it be reorganized?"

Sir Robert Borden should at once get into touch with Mr. D. A. Thomas, who has plainly intimated that excessive profits were being made by Canadian shell manufacturers, and discover what truth there is in The Citizen's charge. It does not lack in particularity. The statement that the Shell Committee has been "touching" the British Treasury for a grossly excessive rate per shell for machining is one that must either be established or refuted. The honor of Canada is involved, for the Shell Committee is the creation of the Dominion Government, and its members were chosen to give Britain aid, not to touch the British Treasury for excessive profits. What does the Premier say about The Citizen's charges? Are they fantastic exaggerations or the truth?—Toronto Globe.

"Human Freight Car" Dies in Chicago Hospital.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Edward Dunkhorst, 38 years old of Syracuse, known as "The Human Freight Car," on account of his enormous size, is dead here at a hospital.

He was a former sparring partner of Robert Fitzsimmons, and for the last nine years has been sparring exhibitions. Dunkhorst was 6 feet 7 inches in height and weighed 672 pounds at the time of his death.

SHE GOT IT.

A Glasgow contemporary records the fact that the other day a plainly clad woman stalked into a jewellers shop and inquired the price of a diamond ring at which she had been gazing fixidly in the window for some time before she had the fortitude to enter. The salesman winked to a friend in the shop as much as to say, she expects to get this for about eighteen pence. "Fifteen guineas," said he. "All right, then, I'll just take it," she responded without turning a hair. "My mans earning about ten pound a week the noo, an' he said I wus to get a gid yin when I was at it." And she paid in gold.

Satisfied.

There is supreme satisfaction in knowing just what you want, and getting it. There is very great lack of satisfaction in not knowing exactly what you want and getting something you are not quite sure of. If you will read the advertising columns, you will probably find just what you want, and where to get it. The makers and sellers of things, good to eat or to wear, do not make any mystery of their business. They tell you, as plainly as print can, what they have, and how good it is, and most of them give an unqualified guarantee of satisfaction. Read the advertisements, know what you want, and insist upon getting it.

AMERICA BRANDED AS A NATION OF DEGENERATES

Herr Edward Meyer, University Professor, in "North America and Germany" Assails President Wilson and His Policy of Neutrality

That Americans are a nation of degenerates ruled by a college professor, who has no knowledge of foreign politics; that they have become effeminate because their youth are instructed by female teachers, that their neutrality is a farce, and that they are hypnotized by a degrading yellow press—these are some of the criticisms which fill the pages of "North America and Germany," a book recently published in Germany, which has just reached America.

This book, which has been welcomed in Berlin, is written by Edward Meyer, Privy Counseller, and professor of history in the University of Berlin, and a brother of Professor Kuno Meyer.

He begins his book by bewailing the tidal wave of hate that swept toward Germany at the beginning of the war, and adds that of all countries the hate generated in the United States was the most overwhelming and inexplicable.

"It was just here that we expected sympathy and friendship," says Herr Meyer. "All efforts of the Kaiser and the German diplomats have been directed to a friendly alliance with the United States. To such an end we have effected an exchange of professors, have sent artists and others on friendly missions and have done everything to make American students of art, music and science thoroughly at home in Germany. In a twinkling America seems to have forgotten its war of 1812, when the British sacked and burned its capital, its bloody civil war, when England was hostile to the Union, and later the conflict with England over Venezuela, while with Germany there has never yet been the slightest difficulty.

"But Germany labored under a hallucination. From the moment that the Fatherland, threatened on three sides in a struggle for her very existence, had to defend herself, a tidal wave of hate, continually augmented by British lies, sought to engulf us. However, since then the Americans have had plenty of time for reflection, they have had both sides of the question put before them, and have had the opportunity to render an impartial verdict. But the majority are against any impartial and just verdict."

EXPECTED COLLEGES' SYMPATHY.

"Of the real reason for which Germany was forced into the conflict they have no comprehension, and do not care to have any. That we were compelled to invade Belgium and to battle against murderers and franc-tireurs for our own existence, they do not give the slightest thought.

"Germany at least expected the sympathy of the American universities many of whose professors have studied with us. A few of them, Burgess and Sloane of New York, and President Wheeler of the University of California, took up the cudgels in our behalf, but the majority have remained silent. There is a pro-German sentiment in the University of Wisconsin and also among some of the professors in Columbia University in New York.

"The sentiment of the people is that of the government. The shipping of arms to the Allies is permitted; the American cable is at the disposal of England, while even the use of the wireless to Germany is limited. There is no complaint because the British Consulate in New York openly seeks recruits. England can do what she wishes, seize ships, hold cargoes and take off passengers suspected of being Germans. That is what America calls 'neutrality.' Goods and food can be shipped to England, France and Russia, but no American goods can go to Germany without England's stamp of approval, and America, priding herself on her humanity, makes no protest to England's attempt to starve Germany.

"But there are two groups in America who have come to our rescue—the German-Americans and the Irish. They have openly protested against this one-sided neutrality, and their votes are an important factor. In the Congressional election of 1914 they made their influence felt, and there is every indication that these combined factions will yet force the president and his Cabinet to observe an impartial neutrality.

"During my visit to America in 1903 and 1909-10, I was often amazed at the result of my observations of the workings of the so called 'yellow press.' Of the depravity and filth of this press it is scarcely possible to give an adequate idea unless one has been in America and observed it at first hand. Every time that I took one of these papers in my hands I was almost overcome by a sensation of nausea, and yet the majority of the people are omnivorous readers of these papers. Even the better class of periodicals and magazines picture the Kaiser as a sinister individual, whose brutal hand even comes between lovers."

THINK LITTLE OF AMERICAN ARMY

Herr Meyer speaks sarcastically of the small army of the United States and the confidence every man has in the Hague Tribunal as the panacea which eventually will bring about a world peace, and yet "they would not for a moment submit the Monroe doctrine to that tribunal for decision as to its legality." He asserts that the Americans have become effeminate since the civil war, owing to the fact that the education and the training of our youth are in the hands of women, and that some Americans even go so far in their 'silly' prejudice against anything pertaining to war, that they request the Nuruberg toy manufacturers to cease making toy soldiers.

"In fact," he adds, "in their frenzied business life and lust for gain the Americans have become a nervous, sickly race. During my visit in 1904 no other question was put to me so often as that concerning the degeneracy of the race. Americans know no rest. They do not walk—they run. Every American has either dyspepsia, or some other ailment, and this accounts for the remarkable success of Christian Science. The decrease in the birth rate is alarming and the increase in the divorce cases equally so. The Anglo-Americans are slowly dying out and immigration alone keeps the population going."

President Wilson no doubt is an honest man but he knows nothing of international politics, in the opinion of Herr Meyer, who gives a history of the Mexican question to illustrate this, and criticises the President for not having recognized Huerta.

"Because Huerta was not regularly elected president of Mexico, Wilson refuses to recognize him, as if any election in Mexico or even in the United States for that matter, is really a fair election, not disgraced by corruption and all kinds of illegal methods to produce a desired result," he writes.

"In this and other international questions President Wilson has not helped the Democratic party. He is convinced that England is in the right and Germany in the wrong. In the Mexican revolution he placed an embargo on arms, and he no doubt felt justified, as he did not consider a government existed in Mexico.

"Because the German-Americans and the Irish oppose his administration, Wilson has termed them 'hyphenated Americans,' and this ignominious name is also given to others who have a good word to say for Germany. In this he shows himself a real schoolmaster. Only those who are real Americans, who cover themselves with the mantle of a false neutrality and align themselves on the side of the Allies. These latter have perfect freedom, but those who sympathise with Germany must hold their tongue. In reality the pro-British Americans are just as hyphenated as the others, but of course this does not enter their consciousness, as the pro-British are in the majority, and in accordance with ideas of American freedom the majority rules and the minority has to remain silent.

DEFENDS LUSITANIA ATTACK

"Therefore, these folk are so naive and unsophisticated as to believe that Germany could consistently spare a British ship like the Lusitania, loaded with arms, ammunition and contraband, just because there were some American millionaires on board, who laughed at the warning which was given."

Herr Meyer attributes all this hate to jealousy and envy of Germany's remarkable development, thoroughness and efficiency, and the natural enmity that Americans have against a monarchy.

"If the Kaiser and Germany were destroyed," he says, "it would please the Americans immensely."

Considerable space in the book is devoted to a survey of our previous wars with England and the writings of Thomas Jefferson and President Monroe.

"A hundred years ago," he adds, "America was in a similar position to the one she is now. At that time England waged her war against Napoleon just as she is now waging her war against Germany, and the United states and her commerce were then as now, held up by the British navy. American harbors were watched by English ships, many American ships were seized, plundered and sunk, so that President Madison declared war. On May 24, 1813, Thomas Jefferson wrote a significant letter to Mme. von Stael, in which he asserted that England always had been and always will be the enemy of all sea-faring nations, and that her entire aim was to enjoy a monopoly of the seas and crowd off all commerce but her own.

"Thus did the founder of the Democratic party express himself a century ago, while President Wilson, who is at the head of the Democratic party today, on December 28, 1914, wrote that the British were fighting for the freedom of the seas and that the American government was in sympathy with her fight, which had always been waged for the benefit of the weaker nations."

Herr Meyer summarizes the situation by saying the lesson which Germany has learned from all this unfriendliness and hate is manifest.

"We should and must give up all attempts to win the friendship of the Anglo-Americans. The friendly offers which we have always extended most now and forever cease. We have only injured ourselves, for in their blind prejudice Americans imagined there were sinister motives behind all these courtesies. Polite we still will remain, but the sterner and cooler we are, the better."

In Montana a railway bridge had been destroyed by fire, and it was necessary to replace it. The bridge engineer and his staff were ordered in haste to the place. Two days later came the superintendent of the division. Alighting from his private car, he encountered the old master bridge builder.

"Bill," said the superintendent—and the words quivered with energy—"I want this job rushed. Every hour's delay costs the company money. Have you got the engineer's plans for the new bridge?"

Octogenarian Resident of Dummer Honoured

Pleasant Valley, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob White, Dummer Township, was the scene of a happy gathering on Monday evening, Oct. 25th, when a number of relatives, friends and neighbours gathered together in a surprise party, to celebrate Mr. White's eightieth birthday, and that of his wife which was on the following day. The aged couple were in good spirits and all who had the privilege of attending enjoyed the pleasure of their host and hostess' warm hospitality.

An interesting programme, which was opened by prayer and the hymn "Blest be the Tie that Binds," was given, consisting of hymns, love-songs, patriotic songs, speech-making and instrumental music, the aged veteran performing with much skill, the principal parts on his violin.

One of the most pleasing features of the evening was the song "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," sung by Mrs. White, who although in her 75th year has a voice of peculiar sweetness, the accompaniment being the violin, played by her aged partner.

An address was read and presented by their Pastor, Rev. M. L. Hinton, as follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. White,—Your relatives, friends and neighbours find great pleasure in gathering at your home this evening to celebrate your eightieth birthday and also the birthday of your beloved wife, which arrives as the clock strikes twelve. We wish to express to you, Mr. White, in a few words, how highly you are esteemed by all, for your liberality, honesty, and uprightness of character. You have let nothing deter you in your progress, and you have fulfilled the words of the old poem: "I'll Find a Way, or Make it," and so it is that such pioneer lives count; marking out the way and making it possible, for the generation growing up, to have many privileges which they otherwise would not have had. You have had the honour of filling, not only one capacity, but many in all lines of honorable business and in service to the Township.

We greatly appreciate your work in the Church, in the Sunday School, where you have laboured so many years as Superintendent; also in the choir, where you have been a leader for so long a period and are still filling that position, giving inspiration to the young, to gain proficiency in the art of music, and by your deeds of charity, known only to those who received the bounteous gifts.

We believe at no time in your life did you manifest greater wisdom than in the choice of a life-partner. Surely the words of the Bible are true "A good wife is from the Lord." Her life might well be taken as a pattern for the younger generation of women to follow. So full of meekness, patience and love. A life that those coming in contact with her, would be inspired to noble deeds and self-forgetfulness. A life "hid with Christ in God." When we think of her it is with a warm glow of love in all hearts.

Space will not permit and words would fail, to express all we would like to say of you both, but we hope that you may be spared many years to enjoy your cosy home and that the remaining years will be filled with the abiding love of Christ.

Written on behalf of those present and absent, Oct. 25, 1915.

Mr. White replied by proclaiming his unworthiness and his gratitude to his many friends for remembering them; basing his remarks on the hymn "Blest be the Tie that Binds," and emphasizing the need of the tie Christ Jesus to link our hearts in Christian love.

Mrs. White spoke in her usual way which is always giving glory to her Saviour.

A substantial lunch was served by the ladies. As the clock struck twelve ushering in Mrs. White's birthday, she was congratulated on seeing her seventy-fifth year, and the company dispersed.

STORIES OF THE BATTLEFIELD

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A fascinating book on the war is published this week by Mr. Edwin Arnold. "A Surgeon in Khaki" it is called, and it contains the experiences of Dr. A. A. Martin, a New Zealand surgeon with the British Expeditionary Force in France. Dr. Martin began his adventures (the Daily News says) with the battle of the Marne, into which he ran quite suddenly, unaware of what was happening. He darted across the Marne right in the track of the retreating Huns; terrible are the stories he tells of their wholesale frightfulness, their drunken riots, and their debaucheries. Under the screaming shells Dr. Martin noticed many strange and interesting things. Under shrapnel, for instance, "it was curious to note how badly wounded men seemed to try to escape from the open and crawl for shelter into a ditch or a clump of trees.

"A man wounded in the field would do as a wounded stag or rabbit would—try to cover. Some men died after crawling away a few yards. Some got a distance away into the ditches and died there, a bloody trail marking their last painful journey.

The Faces of the Dead.

"The expressions on the faces of the men were, on the whole, peaceful. Some had a look of wild surprise in their upward staring eyes. Some looked as if a great fear and terror had possessed them at the last awful moment. The expression on the face of one finely built German officer, with a clean-cut, intellectual face and firm jaw, was that of sublime contempt.

"His eyes and nose and the curl of his lip betokened a contemptuous disregard that was curious to see in a dead man."

The dash from the Marne to the Aisne is picturesquely and vividly described. The ride into Billy under the very dust of the fleeing Germans, for instance, is good:—

"We billeted at a small cottage abutting on a very smelly cowshed. Madame of the cottage was très intelligent and very satisfied with the progress of the war. She told us that our advance guard had entered the village only six hours behind the retreating Germans, that the Germans were in a great hurry and almost too tired to march, that their officers were angry and cursed and struck the men who lagged behind. She also assured us that Some Uhlans had ridden through and that they were very drunk and had bottles of champagne suspended in festoons round their necks.

"And all the time 'with all Europe in the melting pot and the devil stirring the broth,' and in the very middle of the fighting 'we were all anxious to get the London papers to see how we were getting on at the front. We knew just what was going on around us, but knew nothing more!'"

A Fine Comparison.

One could go on quoting interminably from this most engaging volume. Only space for one more extract—a review of the way that the British, French and Germans charge with the bayonet.

The French charge magnificently, but they charge in a state of tremendous excitement. When rushing across an open space to the enemy they shout and scream with excitement. "France! A bas les boches!" "En avant!" They are uplifted with the wild ecstasy of the onfall. Men fall in the mad rush, never to rise again. N'importe! It is unnoticed as they go, an impetuous, irresistible avalanche of steel, yelling, stabbing, slaying, overwhelming. They are superb these Frenchmen.

The British charge stoically and more grimly. They do not shout. I have heard them cursing. The British line advance as a sinister cold line of steel in a sort of jog trot. It is a line of cool-trained gladiators, alert of eye and thoroughly bent on slaughter. Our Briton sees his foe and smites savagely with the calculating judgment of a good Rugby forward and with the bound of a wild cat.

The German, in spite of what is often said to the contrary, is a brave and determined man with the bayonet. The German discipline is undoubted. It is a part of the people. It is the fibre of the nation. They charge well, advancing with a stooping and jerky trot, uttering hoarse guttural cries of "Hurrahs." On they come in solid masses, shoulder to shoulder, hoping by the weight and speed of the dense columns to get a momentum that nothing can withstand. But if this compact line and solid column is broken, as it so often is to-day by shrapnel, rifle or machine gun fire, the sense of cohesion is lost and the heavy column is then no match for the lightning bayonet onfall of the French infantry, or the weighty heave forward of a British regiment.

Dr. Martin is prodigal in his praise of the "little Cockney British soldier"

Cheques for the allowances are forwarded direct from the department at Ottawa, to the several recipients.

Mr. Jack New, who has been a student-at-law with the firm of Gordon and Widdifield for the last two years, enlisted some weeks ago for overseas service. Lieutenant Colonel Russell of the 40th Regiment, Northumberland and Durham, has recommended his appointment as a provisional lieutenant, and Mr. New left to-day for the Infantry School at Barriefield to take his qualifying course.

Mr. New has been very well and favourably known for some years in Peterborough, and was formerly a reporter in the Examiner Office, and later entered law by becoming articled to Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, and has since that time been a member of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

Mr. New's many friends will wish him every success in doing his part.

It might be added that Lieutenant Gordon & Widdifield has been attached to the 80th Battalion, and it is possible that he may be attached to the 93rd Battalion, in the near future.

Sets 3 Months As Limit Of Teutons Full Strength

LONDON, Oct. 27. Hilaire Belloc sums up as follows the military and political aspects of "the new move in the Near East"—to link up Constantinople with the Central Empires:

"1. It is the last effort of the Austro-Germans to create a diversion before their effectives begin to fail. That they can keep these at full strength six weeks more is doubtful, that they can keep them two months more improbable, that they can keep them three months more is mathematically impossible.

"2. The effort has mainly a political object. German control in Constantinople, with full opportunities for munitioning and equipping the Turks, would have a very great effect throughout all hither Asia and the Mohammedan world. The calculation is that this would compel Britain and France to draw off great numbers of men to this field.

"3. The Austro-Germans are compelled to make this effort with such insufficient forces that they would never have undertaken it without the aid of Bulgaria. Their losses have already been exceedingly heavy, which increases their dependence upon Bulgarian aid.

"4. It is certain that Bulgaria is given only at a price—one may conjecture, only for a time. Bulgaria holds the door to Constantinople. It is immensely to her advantage to continue to hold it. It is no advantage to her King or her people merely to be absorbed in the German scheme. Therefore we shall not fully understand this probably doubly treasonable Bulgarian plan until we see what form it will take when the Austro-German decline in effectives begins in the very near future."

Aldermen Take Exception to Action of Legal Committee Constructed Three Sets of Steps

Work Was Done on Private Property With a View it is Said, of Avoiding a Lawsuit—Illuminating Discussion Features Meeting of Board of Works

Ald G. W. Green, chairman of the Board of Works, and mayoralty candidate for 1916, was the storm centre at a meeting of the Board, which was held last evening. The opening number was a discussion concerning three sets of steps that were constructed on the property of Mr. H. Zacks, Stewart street. Alderman Green was of the opinion that the Legal Committee was in error in recommending three sets of steps. The recommendation arose out of a threat on the part of Mr. Zacks to institute legal proceedings with a view of obtaining compensation for damage said to have resulted to his property due to the change in the grade of the sidewalk at that particular point.

Up to the Chairman.

Alderman Stratton contended it was up to the chairman of the Board of Works to see that the work was properly done, and the expenses reduced to a minimum.

Alderman Green resented this statement, saying the Board of Works had nothing whatever to do with the matter, as it never came before the Board. If anybody was in error it was the Council, which accepted the Legal Committee's report and did not send it back to the Board. The agreement drafted by City Solicitor Gordon providing for the construction by the city of three sets of steps to facilitate ingress and egress to Mr. Zacks' property.

Alderman Stratton was of the opinion that City Solicitor Gordon should be present to show why three sets of steps were necessary.

Action for Damages.

Alderman Green explained that the city was threatened with an action for damags, and that the cost of the work did not exceed forty dollars. He believed that the city was establishing a precedent by doing work on private property.

City Engineer Parsons said he had followed the instructions of his superiors.

The chairman of the Board of Works said he had no intimation that the steps were going up until Monday. He found the men working on the second set of steps. He had the work stopped until he got in touch with the City Engineer's Office, and found there was an agreement authorizing the construction of three sets of steps. He saw there was no use stopping the work, although he was of the opinion that the city was establishing a precedent.

Alderman Langford did not feel very much perturbed about the matter, while Mayor Buller said it was a question of whether the Legal Committee or the Board of Works should pay for the work.

"A cheap way out of a lawsuit," observed Alderman Saunders.

Board Must Pay.

On motion of Alderman Stratton and Alderman Evans, it was decided to pay for the work out of the Board of Works appropriation.

At this stage, City Solicitor Gordon entered the Committee room, while the Assistant City Clerk opened the window. The city's legal luminary explained that where the highway was so high as to interfere with the ingress and egress to private property, the owner of the said property was entitled to such facilities as the city could provide. It was on this basis that the agreement to construct three sets of steps, was made.

"I didn't recommend anything" replied Mr. Gordon. "I have no discretion in the matter. It rested with the Legal Committee," he added.

Further enquiries were intercepted by a dissertation respecting a man who was hurt while in the city's employ and for whom compensation is claimed.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING WAS HELD IN DOURO

A most enthusiastic meeting, under the auspices of the Speakers' Patriotic League, was held in Douro on Monday night, when the need of the doing in regard to men for the firing line and the subscribing of funds for patriotic purposes was laid before the people of Douro by His Honour Judge Huycke, Mr. Logie, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and Mr. D. O'Connell. Reeve Walsh of Douro who occupied the chair, assured the speakers of his confidence that the people of Douro would do their share. The meeting was largely attended, and the addresses of the speakers were followed with interest.

Increase in Cost of Living Affects Germany

TUCH via London, Oct. 27 — There are many signs of war weariness in Germany. The extent and the intensity of this feeling can only be gauged from the various indications that are visible from day to day, but certainly it is no longer accurate to say that the whole German nation is absolutely and enthusiastically united in carrying on the war. The ruling classes of Germany are united, and public opinion, taken as a whole, is unquestionably on the side of the government. But beneath the surface there is a growing discontent caused by the sufferings of the war.

There are no signs of a violent outburst against Kaiserism now, or even later, but the disappointment and disillusionment of the German people will, nevertheless, operate to the advantage of Germany's enemies in the future, always growing in importance as the war drags on from month to month, taking its heavy toll in German lives and imposing ever increasing hardships on the masses of the nation.

The persistent advocacy of peace by the Cardinal Archbishop of Cologne seems to represent the feeling in the Rhine provinces and other parts of Western and Southern Germany, where the majority of the inhabitants are Roman Catholics. During the last few weeks the Cardinal Archbishop has expressed his strong desire for peace in several different ways. Great surprise was caused by his bold action in announcing his intention to arrange a peace demonstration in Cologne on Sunday, September 26. All the members of all the Roman Catholic associations of the town and surrounding district were summoned to join in a huge procession to the cathedral, where the Cardinal Archbishop intended to offer special prayer for peace. Six months ago it would have been impossible for any man in Germany, however influential to dare to suggest a public demonstration in favour of ending the war. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the Cardinal Archbishop would have incurred the danger of being lynched in his own city. How different now!

The response to the summons was ready and eager, every Roman Catholic organization and society prepared to take part in the great procession, and there was every prospect of a most striking peace demonstration. Then it became known that the socialists of the Rhine provinces intended to swell the ranks of the procession by appearing in their tens of thousands; there was to be an influx of socialist workingmen from Duesseldorff, Essen, Oberhausen, Duisburg, Dortmund, Aix-la-Chapele and other towns of the mining and manufacturing district. The authorities, who had hesitated to interfere with the Cardinal Archbishop's arrangements, fearing his great power and influence over the people, jumped at the opportunity of prohibiting the procession on the ground that the participation of socialists would make it a dangerous demonstration. At the last moment immense placards were posted up in the streets of Cologne announcing that the idea of the procession had been abandoned "owing to objections which have arisen." Its suppression increases the significance of the movement that lay behind it.

Almost equally significant is the publication in the leading Roman Catholic organ, the Kolnische Volkszeitung, of a rebuke addressed by one of the army chaplains to the arm-chair firesters at home. He declares that many of the letters written from the homes of Germany to the husbands and sons in the field disgust and dishearten the soldiers at the front, the best of whom are tired of the bitter losses and terrible sufferings caused by the war. He denounces the habit of classing Germans as supermen, and says that the German troops at the front have learned to respect their foes, so that they do not echo many of the sentiment expressed by their ultra patriotic friends and relatives at home. The whole letter is really an appeal for less war enthusiasm and more reasonable appreciation of the point of view of Germany's foes. This, too, would have been impossible six months ago.

It is the rise in the cost of living, and especially in the price of food, that increases more than anything else the growth of war weariness. A remarkably outspoken comment on the food question which appeared in the socialist Vorwarts was as follows:

"One of the most dangerous deceptions perpetrated during the war is the pretence that Germany, although cut off from all her overseas supplies, can feed her own population. The fact is that the population of Germany cannot be properly fed by products of our own country. The war has proved beyond all doubt that it is impossible to produce enough articles of nourishment or to raise a sufficient number of cattle to feed the German people without foreign assistance. It is true that we shall be able to hold out for some limited time, but only at the cost of the health and strength of the nation, now being undermined by systematic deprivation and underfeeding."

VICTIM'S JOKING FRIENDS FREED

Coroner's Jury Exonerates Boys Who Caused Death of Anthony Faath from Acid Burns.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. — "Death was due to a practical joke."

That verdict was rendered by a Coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Anthony Faath, fifteen years old, of No. 713 Forrest avenue, Queens, who died on October 13 from burns caused by acid that was poured on the seat of his chair in a factory where he was employed. He died in St. Catherine's Hospital several hours later.

Andrew Warumuth, fifteen years old, of No. 82 Evergreen avenue, and John Roffelt, fifteen years old, of No. 126 Noll street, who were accused of causing his death, were exonerated from any intent of causing Faath's death, the jury deciding that they merely wanted to play a joke.

MISS DAHLGREN READY TO FIGHT

Engages Counsel to Demand Restoration of Her License to Run an Automobile.

LENOX, Mas., Oct. 27. — Miss Katharine Dahlgren has engaged counsel to demand the restoration of her automobile license, and a conference with officials of the State Highway Commission has been arranged for in Pittsfield. Then Miss Dahlgren will ask for more definite information than she has on what charges the Commissioners base their contention that she operated her automobile in an "improper manner."

Miss Dahlgren says somebody wrote to the Highway Commissioners and they sent an investigator to Lenox. The Lenox police told the inspector that Miss Dahlgren showed care in operating her automobile and was not guilty of speeding in Lenox, but the inspector made an unfavourable report and the Commissioners acted thereon.

Miss Dahlgren says that early in November she will take her automobile to the Sheepshead Bay track, where she can speed when so disposed.

BELGIANS HAPPY AT ALLIES' DRIVE

How Brussels Received News of Victories on Western Front is Told in German Newspaper.

GENEVA, Oct. 27. — The Strassburg Post describes the manner in which the Belgians received the news of the successes won by the Allies on the western front last month.

"When the first news of the Allies' victory became known a feverish emotion took hold of Brussels," says the Post.

"With great effrontery the French and Belgian nation anthems were whistled all day in the streets, but on the approach of German patrols there was silence.

"There was general joy at the victory over the 'enemy' among the Belgians. Many wealthy Belgians from the outskirts of the city went into the capital and ordered champagne. Many of them were accompanied by their women folk, in splendid evening costumes.

"At the corners of the streets where the German official reports were placarded, there were laughing, unbelieving crowds. Then an enemy aviator appeared above the city. The citizens rushed to the roofs of their houses, thinking it was the hour of their deliverance.

"We must educate Brussels and the Belgians."

The dealer in antiques was showing an old violin to a probable buyer.

"Yes," he said, "this is of historical interest. That is the identical fiddle Nero played while Rome was burning."

"Oh, that is a myth."

The dealer agreed, saying:

"Yes, it is; and Myth's name was on it, but it has got worn off."

City Will Pay The Claim

The city has been notified through the medium of the Workmen's Compensation Board that F. Richea, 280 Lansdowne street, was entitled to partial compensation as a result of injuries received while in the city's employ. At last night's meeting of the Board of Works a resolution was adopted authorizing payment of the claim also any subsequent claims that might arise.

KING OF ROUMANIA MAY BE FORCED TO SIDE WITH ALLIES

LONDON, Oct. 27.—There is increasing tendency in despatches from many different sources to the opinion that King Ferdinand of Roumania may be forced by his people to intervene on the Allies' side at once. The operations of the Teutons and Bulgarians not far from the Roumanian border, within Serbia, have caused a panicky feeling among a certain part of the population and already the cry is raised, "Let us prevent the junction of the Teutons and Bulgarians; they are threatening Roumania's existence."

There is a strong undercurrent, all reports show, aiming at the overthrow of Premier Bratiano, and the next few days are expected to show just how strong this movement is.

NEW BRIDGES ARE INSPECTED

Reeve Chas Cohen, of Galway is in the city. The Roads and Bridge Committee of the County Council, of which Mr. Cohen is the chairman, made an inspection of the new bridges in Dummer and Asphodel yesterday, and today they are leaving on a trip of inspection of the Pigeon Creek bridge, which is in a bad state of repair, and which has been condemned by the county.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 27.—In a final effort to save his life from the spread of gangrene, Judge Francis J. O'Connor, one of the best-known lawyers of Cambria county, sacrificed his right leg in a hospital here. Physicians said that he might recover, in spite of his serious condition.

Recently Judge O'Connor experienced pain from a corn, and the usual remedies were applied; but gangrene developed, resulting in the operation Monday.

STUDENTS WILL GO AS HOSTLERS

HANOVER, N.H., Oct. 27.—After the interstate commerce commission had put their ban on Dartmouth students travelling as "live stock" to Amherst, Mass., for the game Saturday, at the rate of 50 cents a head, some one discovered that if a few pigs were shipped on the same train the students could get under the law by travelling as "hostlers."

So far as could be learned yesterday, the number of "hostlers" is not limited, and about 600 Dartmouth undergraduates expect to make the trip at 50 cents per.

ASSEMBLY HALL MEETINGS

The contrast between law and grace was the subject of last night's address in the Assembly Hall. The text was taken from the Gospel of John, ch. 1, verse 17. "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

Several instances were cited of a woman taken in adultery, of John 8. The law said she should be stoned, but grace said, "neither do I condemn thee." The contrast between the dealing with the stubborn and rebellious son of Deuteronomy, chapter 21, verse 21, under law, and of the prodigal of Luke 15, under grace, was mentioned. At the giving of the law, Exodus, 33, 28, three thousand were slain when the Apostle Peter preached the gospel of grace in Acts 2, 41 three thousand were saved. In 2 Cor. 3 the two covenants are spoken of as "the ministration of condemnation" and the "ministration of righteousness," the one revealed in the Old Testament being preparatory to the other revealed in the New.

It was mentioned that [illegible] is the knowledge of sin, and that righteousness could never be by the law.

The precious truth was then dwelt upon, that redemption and [illegible] come only through the grace that "came by Jesus Christ." It was then pointed out that the Scripture speaks of "grace and truth." If grace is rejected truth comes into action which means judgment.

The message was felt to be well spoken and was appreciated by all. All welcome to tonight's meeting at 8 o'clock. Come.

Germany 'Regrets' Aviator's Mistake

Will Pay Swiss Government Indemnity for Attack.

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 27. — The federal government announces that the German minister has expressed his government's deep regret for the act of a German aviator in dropping bombs recently on Chaux de Fonds and has promised to pay indemnity for the death or injury of Swiss citizens and damage to property.

The minister explained that the aviator who dropped the bombs had lost his way and believed himself to be over French territory. He and the observer have been punished and transferred.

TWO NIECES WERE THERE

Mrs Macdonald's two nieces were spending their summer holidays at her residence. The day following their arrival being Sunday they both accepted her invitation to accompany her to the church service. Both were attired entirely in white. They were rather late in entering the church and as the three passed down the aisle the minister was giving out his text, which read, "What are these which are arrayed in white robes?" The congregation were rather startled to hear Mrs Macdonald making the reply: "They're me two nieces from Peterboro!"

PASSENGERS MUST SHOW TICKETS BEFORE ENTERING G.T.R. TRAINS

New Order Recently Established Is Now in Operation Throughout the Entire System—Probable Reasons For Its Enactment—Co-operation of Public Will Obviate Difficulties.

G. T. R passengers must show their tickets to the conductor or brakeman of a train before entering it. This applies to all stations on the line, and has been operating for a short time in Peterborough. The brakeman or conductor stands before the steps and requests to be shown the passenger's ticket as he is preparing to mount into a coach. If possible both brakeman and conductor are supposed to carry out this work, taking up positions at separate entrances. The regulation requires that if only the brakeman has time for this duty the other entrances shall be locked. On local trains composed of a first class coach and a smoker the brakeman stands on the platform before the contiguous vestibules and thereby commands the entrances to the two coaches.

There are possibly several reasons for this new rule; it is desired to discourage the sale of tickets on trains, also to prevent passengers getting on wrong trains, and to keep intoxicated men off. A G.T.R. conductor recently had nine persons on his train coming east who should have taken a Niagara train. In Toronto where so many trains are arriving and departing, the possibilities of these occurrences are more numerous than in cities of Peterborough's size, although the morning traffic might cause some confusion. Of course the new rule does not apply to flag stations.

Mr. J. A. McNab, commenting on this order this morning observed that it seemed to aim at securing a closer control of the traffic. The most effective means towards this end was found in England where no one is permitted entrance to the station platforms without presenting a ticket at the gate. The general public is thus excluded, and no one but a prospective passenger may enter. Mr. McNab did not anticipate any difficulties in the operation of this order but felt that with the cooperation of the public it could be worked smoothly.

Russian Resistance Is Well Maintained Against Germans' Efforts to Take Riga

PETROGRAD, Oct. 27. —Near the left bank of the Dvina, 12 miles south of Riga and just opposite the river islet of Dalen, are two villages which at the present moment are of primary importance in the struggle for Riga. One, Repe, 2 1-2 miles south of Dalen, is in German hands, while the other, Klange, just on the bank of the river, is held by the Russians. The Germans are here trying to force their way on to the islet of Dalen so as to command the railway leading to Riga. The Russians at Klange are resisting this firmly on the left bank, and maintaining a fierce fire against the German impetus. In case of their attempt failing here the Germans are ready to take advantage of any chance opportunity that may offer at Olai, further west again.

In order to secure their flank they are keeping up a pretty steady artillery fire near Shlok. But the main struggle is around Dalen and on the left bank of the river south of the railway station at Uzkuell, which lies 15 miles south-east of Riga on the Dvina. Six desperate attacks of the Germans were beaten off by the Russian infantry and artillery.

It is not worth while discussing the theory whether the Riga operation is a demonstration intended to divert attention from Dvinsk. The Germans want Riga very badly, and are trying their hardest to get it, and if in the meantime the operation serves the purpose of a diversion that would be all to the good advantage of their strategy.

But the Russians, while firmly resisting at Riga, shew no signs of allowing themselves to be diverted from Dvinsk, where the Germans have again brought up reinforcements and ammunition, and renewed the attacks. They have succeeded in establishing themselves in the blackened ruins of Illouxst. They will probably try to force the Dvina here, but the conditions are not wholly in their favour. The Russians have the advantage of an ample cover in the shape of a forest extending between Illouxst and Dvinsk, and on the edge of this forest they have already checked the German advance. If, too, the Germans should come to the river they would be exposed to a terrible Russian fire.

Counter Move to the South.

The Russians are, moreover, steadily maintaining a counter-manoeuvre to the south of Dvinsk. Here the capture of each obscure village may be unimportant in itself, but in their sum these captures denote the insistent approach of the Russians to the railway, on which the whole German operation against Dvinsk is absolutely dependent. The haste of the Germans to force the Dvina is now intelligible. Snow is falling and winter is setting in early.

Russian headquarters reports tonight that a recent success achieved in the Galician theatre was the result of the fine fact of self-sacrifice on the part of the Czar's troops. The Teutons scored an initial success by driving back a Russian detachment with the result that the Austro-Germans afterwards were enveloped, suffering enormous losses. Many Germans were among the prisoners taken here.

An automobile jack has been invented that automatically lifts all four wheels of a car clear of the floor when they are run upon a track.

The belting used on machinery in the Russian oil fields is made of camel's hair, resisting grease better than rubber, leather or cotton.

GERMAN AIRMEN SOUGHT DEATH AFTER LANDING

Mr. W. G. Read recently received a letter from his son, Lieut. D. G. Read, Somewhere in France, describing a thrilling air duel between a German and British aeroplane. Both airmen swung around each other like giant birds manoeuvring for advantage. Finally the gas tank of the German machine was pierced and the pilot was forced to land within the British lines. As soon as they alighted the German observer turned a machine gun into the British soldiers, who surrounded them expecting their surrender. Two of the soldiers were killed outright, but the Germans sealed their own fate. They were almost instantly riddled.

Lieut. Read has been in the trenches since July with the Princess Patricias. He had resigned from the Bank of Commerce to attend the Guelph Agricultural College. Came the call for recruits for the McGill students' officers' corps, and Lieut. Read enlisted last fall. He went from Montreal to Niagara, and was one of 250 handpicked men selected to fill up gaps in the Princess Pats.

HAS RETIRED FROM OFFICE

MONTREAL, Q., Oct. 27.—According to a circular issued from the offices of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, which is closely associated with the C.P.R., Mr. P. Gifkins retires from the general managership. The circular is signed by Mr. George Bury, vice-president, and reads: "Mr. P. Gifkins, who has with so much zeal occupied the position of general manager of the Dominion Atlantic Railway for the past fifteen years, and who has been associated with the service of that company for a full period of forty-four years, having expressed a desire to relinquish the arduous duties connected with the important position now held by him, the company has yielded to his expressed wish, and effective November 1st next he will be placed on the retired list in order that he may secure well merited leisure. Mr. George E. Graham is appointed general manager, with headquarters at Kentville."

TEXTILE INDUSTRIES OF GERMANY STAGNANT

Regarding conditions in the textile industry in Germany, a correspondent writes to the Paris Temps as follows:

"The Central Union of Christian Textile Workers and the German Textile Workers' Union, two of the greatest labour organizations in Germany, have recently held a conference for the discussion of the grave crisis menacing this industry. After ascertaining the exact situation, a remedial programme was agreed upon, which will be submitted for approval to the authorities of Elberfield, Barmen and other industrial centres in Rhenish Prussia and Westphalia. The fundamental cause for the crisis is lack of raw material, cotton and other products, of which there are not sufficient quantities on hand to keep the numerous mills in operation. The steadily decreasing import trade, which may soon cease altogether, cannot but aggravate the general economic situation. The official sequestration of the raw materials in all Germany and their subsequent redistribution by the government have only ruled over matters temporarily. Soon it will be necessary to reduce operations still further, either by discharging part of the workers or by cutting down the hours of labour.

"In this crisis, which affects hundreds of thousands of textile workers, their organizations have invoked the aid of the government and local authorities. The demands presented include the employment of the idle men on public works, the procurement of knitting and sewing work for the women, the furnishing of temporary financial assistance to those without any means, the payment of insurance premiums for all who are unable to keep up their policies themselves and the appointment of a general executive council to look after all these details.

Ald. McIntyre Criticizes the Work on the Outfall Sewer

Claims That the Cost of Construction is Higher Than It Would Be if More Advanced Methods Were Employed Two Weeks Holiday for the Street Commissioner and a Feed of Venison For the Council, eh! What?

Ald. A. A. McIntyre disapproves of what he characterizes as a "farmer's way" of excavating for the outfall sewer, which is being constructed on Park street. The matter was brought up at last night's meeting of the Board of Works, when Ald. McIntyre ventured to suggest that better and more economic methods be employed. The ditch is sixteen feet deep and nine feet wide. Ald. McIntyre would use teams and scrapers to excavate to at least a depth of four feet. As it is men work the whole way down with a pick and shovel.

Ald. Green pointed out that City Engineer Parsons was open to receive any suggestions that Ald. McIntyre might have to offer, with a view of minimizing the cost of the work. Mr. Parsons was not altogether convinced that existing conditions would permit of the use of teams and scrapers as suggested by Ald. McIntyre. He promised to look into the matter.

Ald. Green informed the Board that the work was being prosecuted in the very best interests of the city.

Ald. McIntyre replied that he could take out the first four feet of the excavation five times cheaper than is being done at present. He also took exception to the slow and laborious manner of removing the piles. This was done by means of a block and tackle attached to three pieces of timber. Several men were required to move this along the banks of the excavation, whereas if a proper equipment was used, much time and money would be saved.

Two Weeks Holidays.

Street Commissioner H. Evans applied for two weeks' holidays which was granted on motion of Ald. Saunders.

"Every member of the Council to receive a piece of venison," suggested Mayor Buller.

"Those who don't vote for it get no venison," put in Ald. Stratton.

From this might be adduced the fact that Street Commissioner Evans intends to spend his two weeks' holidays among the big game of the north country.

Permission Granted.

The Board will recommend that permission be granted the Bell Telephone Company to erect five poles on the west side of Aylmer street and four on the north side of London street; also four poles on the west side of Bethune street and one on Park street.

Prohibit Traction Engines.

Mayor Buller suggested that steps be taken to prohibit traction engines traversing the paved streets of the city. The engines have lugs on the wheels which tend to destroy the pavement. It is probable that a by-law to this effect will be prepared and enforced.

RICHARD CAVELL, BROTHER OF MURDERED NURSE, LIVED HERE?

Mr. James Garside With Whom He Resided Almost Sure That His Sister Edith Was The Young Nurse Shot In Brussels

Was Miss Edith Cavell, the brave English nurse, who was put to death by Germans in Brussels last week, the sister of Richard Cavell, who until about eighteen months ago boarded with Mr. and Mrs. James Garside, corner of Reid and Dalhousie streets? For various reasons that seem to substantiate the opinion, Mr. Garside believes they were brother and sister. He is now expecting information from a freind in Manchester who is well acquainted with the Cavell family.

Richard Cavell came from Stockport, only six miles distant from Mr. Garside's home town, Charlesworth, Derbyshire.

He had two sisters, one of whom Richard said was a nurse-in-training. She was the elder of the two, and Mr. Garside is almost convinced that she is the same girl whose name is sounding throughout the Empire a deep call for vengeance.

Through the interest Mr. Garside took in Richard Cavell, he frequently communicated with the young man's father and received a picture taken several years ago in which the daughter, Edith is included. She was an accomplished young lady with keen musical talents, and evidently yearned for activities similar to the nursing which Edith Cavell performed in Brussels. The father of the family Mr. Garside knows, is employed in Libby's glassworks, Manchester. None of the despatches referring to her death have conveyed information about the young lady's home.

Mr. Richard Cavell moved to Toronto about one year and a half ago.

The name Cavell is certainly not a common one. Mr. Garside does not remember having otherwise heard of it in both England and Canada.

Using a modified wireless receiving instrument a French scientist has been able to detect thunder storms more than 300 miles distant.

Made of a flat steel spring, a quickly adjusted belt has been invented to take the place of strings on kitchen or laboratory aprons.

NURSE EDITH CAVELL, VICTIM OF TEUTON ATROCITY—Miss Edith Cavell, English war nurse, who was executed by the Germans. Miss Cavell several years ago visited Mrs. C. N. Olson, of Chicago, while travelling as nurse with a wealthy English family.

Fire Marshal Shot In Arson Raid

Three Detectives Less Seriously Injured in Fight with Alleged Members of "Ring."

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.—Working under orders of State's Attorney Broening, Baltimore detectives rounded up near Odenton what they declare to be the biggest arson ring in the country. Three men were captured after a fight, in which the State Fire Marshal, Edward J. Meyers, was shot, probably fatally. Two suitcases, said to contain highly inflammable gases and oils, and an "arson bomb," a large glass globe eighteen inches in diametre, were confiscated by the police. Three of the detectives were injured in the fight that followed after their ammunition was exhausted.

Those injured are:—State Fire Marshal Edward J. Meyers, shot through the right eye; Detective Lieutenant Charles Vahle, fractured right hand; Detective Lieutenant William Cullison, cut on the right hand.

The prisoners are Gottlieb Freund, Harry Miller and Harry Goldberg.

Fire Marshal Meyers was shot early in the raid. Just as the detectives surrounded two men, who, they allege, were about to "plant" the gas bomb under the waggon shed on the place of George M. Murray & Sons, canners, one of the men fired. The ball struck Mr. Meyers in the right eye.

Only Friday $25,000 insurance had been placed on the property which it was attempted to destroy Friday night. The State Fire Marshal first learned of the intention of the arson ring, and the go-between was a nephew of the State's attorney, who joined the band, posed as a bad man and laid the trap that led up to the placing of the insurance.

It developed late Friday night that the band had conspired, through a New York agency, to fire a large general store situated near Capitol Heights, Washington. The identity of the New York agents could not be learned from the men under arrest.

ELOPERS GET THROUGH STATE POLICE CORDON

High School Girl and Fiancee Disguise Selves to Escape.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 27.—Miss Lulu Sterner, known as the prettiest girl in Schuylkill Haven, and her fiancee, Russell R. Smith of Glenworth, succeeded in getting through a cordon of state police and county constables stationed to intercept them, and reached Elkton, Md., where they were married.

The parents of both opposed the match, and even went to the extent of having trains from Pottsville bound to the Maryland border searched.

To avoid detention, the couple separated, and both were disguised. Smith, clad in an old overcoat and wearing a pair of dark spectacles, passed right before his bride's father without being recognized.

63 YEARS WEDDED, HAVE HAD NO SPATS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bodine of Philadelphia celebrated the sixty-third anniversary of their marriage, and took in a "movie" performance. When they came back four generations of their family were home to surprise them. In all the sixty-three years there has never been a quarrel between them, Mr. Bodine says.

"I was kept interested all the time," and Mr. Bodine retorts: "Father's a man you can't stay cross with."

CASE SETTLED

An action instituted by G. W. Green against Messrs. A. E. Mathison, C. W. Drury and Wm. Mathison of Belmont Township has been settled out of court. The case which was to have been heard this morning before His Honour Judge Huycke, concerned a claim of $215 and $30 extra for cost.

Plaintiff in their claim allege that machinery and service were sold to defendants to the amount of $300, of which amount $215 is still unpaid.

A counter claim was entered by Mr. Wm. Mathison which stated that the action was unfounded, that in the transaction he became responsible for only one-third of the purchase price, and in the matter of repair service rendered by plaintiffs, he (defendant) acted only as a communicating agent with the plaintiff, stating willingness of the co-defendants to purchase the said services.

Cadigan, youngest son of Michael P. Cadigan, formerly of Emsmore, the bride looking charming in a suit of Russian blue trimmed with white fur and blue velvet hat, with willow plume, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Rose Lahay, in a suit of Belgium blue with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. The groom was assisted by his brother, J. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Daniel Cavanagh, only sister of the groom ,who was prettily attired in Alice blue silk and wore a black picture hat.

LE ROY FARMER SHOT BY FUGITIVE THIEF

Man Caught Stealing Apples Thrice Wounds Albert Grebe—Victim Not Seriously Hurt.

LE ROY, Oct. 27 — When Albert Grebe, who works the W. H. H. Osborne farm in the eastern part of the village, ordered a man, who he says was stealing apples, from his orchard the fellow drew a revolver and fired several shots at the farmer.

One bullet passed through Mr. Grebe's left ear. Another struck him on the little finger of his left hand. A third grazed his scalp. Mr. Grebe gave chase and when he was within a short distance of his assailant, the fugitive threw a rock at his pursuer, striking him in the left side, and breaking two ribs. Mr. Grebe continued the chase across the lots to North Street, when his pain became so intense he had to give up. The fugitive got away. Mr. Grebe says that the man who attacked him was a foreigner and that he wore a blue suit and a blue cap.

Mr. Grebe was removed to his home where his injuries were dressed by Doctors Oaniard and Graney. The injury to Mr. Grebe's side appears to be the most serious, but it is believed he will recover.

At 10:30 o'clock Mr. Grebe, accompanied by his son, Charles, aged 7, and his daughter, Margaret, aged 4 went down to the pasture, towards the north end of the farm, across the railroads to see to live stock. Mr. Grebe saw a man and small boy in the orchard filling bags with apples.

He told the man to leave the premises, whereupon the fellow replied "You get out or I'll down you." At that Mr. Grebe took after him and it was then that the man drew a revolver and began shooting. Mr. Grebe says that he can identify his assailant.

Spring clamps at each end permit a new cord adjuster for electric light wires to be attached or removed without disconnecting a cord from its socket.

New Military Governor Terrorizes People of Belgium

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 26.—Since the appointment a few weeks ago of a Prussian cavalry officer as the new military governor life in Brussels has been unbearable, the most oppressive regulations have been instituted, and large numbers of people arrested.

The principle of the mailed fist has also spread to Antwerp, where between twenty and thirty persons have already been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment and transported to Germany.

In the villages the same process has been carried out. Lokeren, Rotselaer, and Eltichoe have each been fined 5,000 marks ($1,250) because their authorities had not discovered in the three places a total of sixteen pigeons.

A remarkable description of the reign of terror in Brussels is contributed to the Nieuwe Rottedamsche Courant by its Brussels correspondent—and the message is all the more extraordinary because it passed the German censorship.

"For some days past," it says, "the walls here have been covered with placards in such superfluity as has not been seen for a long time. Not only the quantity but the tone of contents of the notices proved that something was altered. What it is precisely is difficult to describe. Perhaps I can indicate it by saying that the Iron Fist will make itself felt.

"On Oct. 12 there was an order for the surrender for all men who during the war had belonged to the enemy's army and might be hidden here. Not only must the men themselves, report, but everybody who knew of their presence was commanded, under threats of heavy punishment, to disclose their knowledge.

"Now the inhabitants are threatened that on the renewal of the visit of the allies' fliers they will have German soldiers billeted upon them. To the uninitiated, the logical connection may not be immediately grasped. It is this: The enemy's fliers have repeatedly chosen as targets buildings in which it was known German troops assembled. It is presumed that the population has made known these buildings to the Allies; therefore the population is held responsible, and, in order that they may be watched more narrowly, soldiers will be quartered in their houses if the fliers come again."

Similar steps will be taken if hereafter arms and ammunition are found in the possession of the residents of Brussels.

"It's no use," pouted little Freddy, who had just completed his first week at school. "I shall never go to school again!"

"But why?" asked his mother.

"What's the use of going? I shall never learn to spell!"

"Why?"

"Well, how can I learn to spell when the teacher changes the words every day?"—Chicago Herald

JACK OF SPADES DEATH SIGNAL FOR THIS GOVERNOR

Fifth Threat Sent to Spry in Demand to Save Hillstrom From Firing Squad.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 28. The Jack of Spades, when received by Governor William Spry, will mean that his "doom" has been sealed, according to the fifth "Knights of Death" received in the Governor's mail.

The letter said the Jack will not be sent if Spry saves Joe Hillstrom, the I. W. W. poet, from the firing squad on November 19.

It also threatened to "raise to the ground some of the most prominent buildings in the city." The letter was mailed here. It was written in a plainly disguised hand.

"Our vengeance will be sure, swift and terrible," stated the letter, closing with a final appeal to the Governor to intervene in Hillstrom's behalf.

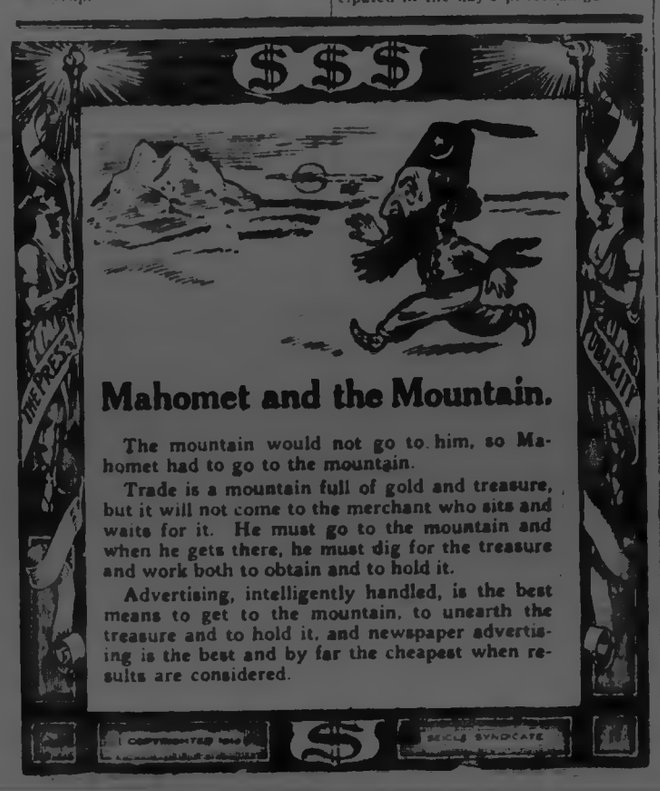
DON'T SCOLD, MOTHER! THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at Tongue! If Coated, Clean Little Stomach, Liver, Bowels

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish full of cold bad breath, throat sore doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea give a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all sizes and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other kind of syrup.



Mahomet and the Mountain.

The mountain would not go to him, so Mahomet had to go to the mountain.

Trade is a mountain full of gold and treasure, but it will not come to the merchant who sits and waits for it. He must go to the mountain and when he gets there, he must dig for the treasure and work both to obtain and to hold it.

Advertising, intelligently handled, is the best means to get to the mountain, to unearth the treasure and to hold it, and newspaper advertising is the best and by far the cheapest when results are considered.

PREMIER VIVIANI HAS RESIGNED

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Premier Viviani resigned to-day. It was believed ex-Premier Briand would succeed Viviani as head of the ministry. Official announcement of a reconstructed cabinet was expected hourly. The best information was that it would be made up by Briand as Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs. President Poincare held a conference this morning with Briand and Jules Cambon, the latter formerly French Ambassador to Berlin. Viviani's resignation followed a decision not to attempt a reconstruction of the ministry himself, and another solution of pending complications was decided on, including the new cabinet head. The changes, it was agreed, had undoubtedly strengthened the ministry.

Beautiful Tourist Route

A prominent lady traveller from Brooklyn, N.Y., who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast, and the Panama Pacific Exposition, has written to the Grand Trunk Pacific as follows:

"I want to let you know how I enjoyed my trip to San Francisco this summer, journeying over the Grand Trunk Pacific, via Fort William, Winnipeg, Edmonton, and Prince Rupert. The scenery from Edmonton to the Pacific Coast was a combination of Switzerland and Norway, and last but best, that beautiful journey from Prince Rupert to Seattle. There is nothing in Europe, (and I have travelled in every country of Europe), that is more charming, more gloriously grand and beautiful than this sail.

"The courtesy shown at your hotels. The Fort Garry and Macdonald was all that one could wish for. Let me say a special word for the Macdonald, beautifully situated, beautifully built, and beautifully managed."

Finally it reached its destination at Long Beach.

The sender happened to be in Los Angeles and was notified by Kling that the letter mailed in Vancouver three years ago had arrived safely.

Army to Handle Food in Russia

Ministry Takes Steps to End Freight Congestion Which Has Sent Prices Up

LONDON, Oct. 28.—An extraordinary meeting of the Russian Council of Ministers has empowered Alexei Khvostoff, Minister of the Interior, to take urgent measures to cope with the food problem, says a despatch to the Times from Petrograd.

During his tour Mr. Khvostoff ascertained that as many as six thousand cars of foodstuffs were being detained in freight sheds at Moscow. To a representative of the Novo Vremya Mr. Khvostoff explained that the main cause for the unprecedented rise in prices lies in the congestion of freight at Raizan, Tula, Orel and other places, and the extravagant wage demands of teamsters, together with the failure of municipalities to adopt measures to facilitate the delivery of freight.

He proposes to organize military companies of teamsters, consisting of refugees and soldiers, to discharge freight, and also to requisition drays and horses.

GERMAN ADVANCE ON THE DANUBE FRONT IS SLOW

PARIS, Oct. 23.—"Quiet has prevailed along the Franco-Bulgarian front since yesterday," says a Salonica despatch, under date of Monday, to the Havas News Agency. "The French are fortifying extensively the region they occupy east of the railroad between Gievgeli to Krivalek.

"The Bulgers are masters of the Krivalak-Vranya section of the line. They occupy Uskub, Kumanovo and Rislovac.

"The Germans are pressing their advance on the Danube front, but their progress is low and difficult."

Serbs in Retreating Inflicted Heavy Losses On the Invaders

Enemy Making Steady Progress But at Heavy Cost---Making Them Pay Dearly For Every Mile Covered--French Join Serbians in the South.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Serbian troops which have been so gallantly holding the little northeastern corner of their country, where the Austro-German and Bulgarian armies are trying to unite, are being slowly forced back as the pressure upon them becomes greater. Lord Lansdowne, Minister without portfolio in the British Cabinet, regretfully announced to the House of Lords last evening that he feared they could not much longer withstand the attacks.

In fact, all along the northern and eastern frontiers in Serbia the invaders are making steady progress, although at great cost, as the Serbians, now that they have reached the hills, are making them pay heavily for every mile covered.

It is only in the south, where the French have joined hands with the Serbians, that the Bulgarians are being held. Here the French and Serbians are intrenching themselves and awaiting reinforcements, which they hope will enable them to drive the Bulgarians out of Macedonia.

Great Britain and France, according to the statement of Lord Lansdowne in the House of Lords, are despatching a strong force to the near East and are only awaiting the report of General Sir Charles Carmichael Monro, the new British commander on the Gallipoli Peninsula, and other military and naval advisers to decide at which point they will be used.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, told the House of Commons that Great Britain's offer to cede Cyprus to Greece had lapsed, as Greece had not fulfilled her treaty obligations to Serbia. The British Minister at Athens is reported to be making representations to Greece with respect to the use of Salonika as a base for the Allies and also with regard to Greece's future action.

On the eastern and western battle fronts, as in Serbia, heavy fighting continues. In the Riga and Dvinsk regions of Russia the German Field Marshal von Oindenburg, undaunted by repeated failures during the last forty days to reach the Russian fortress on the Dvina River, is making another furious effort to achieve his aim. Reports were to the effect that he had made further progress, particularly near Illoukst. Along the rest of the line, through the Provinces of Vilna, Grodno and Volhynia, and in Galicia, there have been battles at many points, with the advantage first on one side and then on the other.

The Italians are still carrying on their offensive against the Austrians, while the struggle in the Champagne region of France continues. The French have captured a portion of the Courtine works from the Germans, some of which the Germans have recaptured. The French say they have extended their gains by taking an adjoining trench north of Massiges.

SITUATION IN SERBIA—The accompanying map indicating the positions of the Bulgar-German armies who have joined hands, shows why Lord Lansdowne has little hope of the Allies being in time to help Serbia against the overwhelming strength of the enemy in this field.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Butter and Eggs Maintain High Prices—Potatoes Remain Firm—Apples Going Up in England—Peas Take a Sensational Advance—Comparison in Prices.

The law of "supply and demand" contributes very largely to the regulation of prices. If we were a self-contained people, it would be different, but everywhere commerce is king, and as a result our markets fluctuate. The wise man—the man who courts success—is the one who buys right and sells right; in other words the way to make or save money is to buy what you "require" when prices are down, and sell what you "don't require" when prices are up.

Dairy and Poultry.

Butter, dairy, lb.	.32
Butter, creamery, lb.	.34
Cheese	.20
Eggs, new laid, doz.	.32 to .35
Turkeys, lb.	.25 to .30
Geese	.20 to .22
Ducks	.18 to .20
Chickens, per pair	1.20
Cream, qt.	.35

The present high prices of butter has been the result of the war, which has caused a great scarcity of the finest grades on the English markets. The competition for Danish, Finnish and Dutch butters between England and Germany is as keen as the struggle between their armies on the Western front, and the prices may go higher. To add to the great scarcity in England the production in Denmark has fallen off with the setting in of the autumn season, and no Australian butter has yet been offered. Denmark is receiving abnormal prices, never before experienced, due to the heavy buying of England, Germany and Austria.

The finest grade of butter in England bring the unprecedented price of 202 shillings per hundred weight.

A strange feature of the outside egg market is the fact that more bad eggs are being received by the shippers than in summer time. They explain this is caused by farmers and country storekeepers have been holding back summer stock for fall prices, and stock so held must, of necessity, be inferior in quality.

Eggs are up to 55 cents in New York.

In a recent egg-laying contest two hens made a record of 226 eggs for one, and 167 for the other in twelve months. The hen which laid 167 eggs actually produced almost as much total weight in eggs as the one that laid 226—234 lbs. to 24 lbs. It does not take much mental calculation to see that selling them by the dozen produces marked differences in quantity. We sell meat, in the form of beef, mutton and pork, by weight Even poultry is largely sold by weight. Why should the absurd practice continue of making dozen lots the basis of payment in the most valuable of all forms of meat?

Meats and Hogs.

Bacon, per lb.	.28 to .30
Ham	.30
Cooked hams	.35
Pork	.18 to .20
Spare ribs	.10
Lamb	.14 to .16
Veal	.13 to .20
Rib roast	.18
Sirloin steak	.23
Round steak	.22
Live hogs, cwt.	$9.00
Small pigs, cwt.	$8.50

Fruit and Vegetables.

Apples, per bbl.	$2.50 to $3.50
Potatoes, per bag	$1.40 to $1.50
Onions, peck	.25 to .30
Onions, white pickling qt.	.10
White beans, lb.	.10
Carrots, peck	.15
Turnips	.15
Parsnips	.15
Beets	.15
Celery, head	.10
Cabbage	.05

Apples are bringing sensational prices in England, which, no doubt, will induce an advance on this side of the "pond." Here are some of the big prices obtaining in Britain: No. 1 Kings, 28s. to 35s., No. 1 Wealthy, 27s. to 33s., No. 1 Snows, 27s to 40s.

Potatoes still continue to advance, due to the shortage of supplies and the brisk buying at outside points.

Grains, Hay.

Wheat, per bushel	.90
Barley	.50
Oats	.35
Peas	$1.80
Bran, ton	$23.00 to $25.00
Shorts	$25.00 to $27.00
Baled hay	$18.00 to $20.00
Loose hay	$18.00 to $20.00
Flour, cwt.	$3.05

The most remarkable condition in a market situation is the extraordinary level reached in pea prices. Peas were high last year this time, but they are still higher now. The cause is an almost complete failure in crop coupled with a phenomenal demand abroad.

Wool and Hides.

Wool (no market.)
Sheep skin, each	$1.25 to $1.50
Calf, skins, lb.	14c. to 15c.
Beef skins, lb.	14c. to 16c.
Tallow, rough	2c.
Tallow, refined	5c. to 6c.

General.

No. 1 granulated sugar, cwt.	$6.50
Honey, lb.	15c.

Comparison in Prices.

With this time the last two years:

	1913	1914	1915
Wheat	.98	1.15	.95

Farm and Dairy Market Report

TORONTO, October 25.—Business at this time of year depends very largely on the weather, and the weather has been too warm. Even had the weather been favorable, however, the volume of business is below normal. This statement refers only to ordinary lines of trade. War orders are now giving employment to much of the surplus labor released from other industries and as a result there is less unemployment than a year ago.

The wheat situation is a serious one. A few weeks ago implement men, business men and bankers, were giving out interviews stating that the farmers of the West would be given every chance to market their crops to advantage. Now that the crop is actually ready to market, implement companies are insisting on the payment of all notes when due, and bankers are not giving the assistance promised. These promises of special consideration for the Western farmers this year were apparently "just talk," as is usually the case. The result of conditions, however, is a strong agitation for free entries to the United States market. Prices on that market are around 10 cents a bushel ahead of prices on the Canadian side, and there is a market there for certain grades of wheat which are not taken up readily in Canada. Premier Norris of Manitoba, was in Ottawa recently presenting the views of Western farmers and there is a probability that the tariff will be lowered.

WHEAT.

Prices are down several cents as compared with a week ago. This fall is directly traceable to the big receipts of spring wheat at all primary points. In fact receipts have been of a record nature. Anticipation of free entry to the United States has had a steadying effect on the Canadian market, but this has been counterbalanced to some little extent by fairly large shipments of wheat from Russia to Western Europe Quotations now are: No. 1 Northern, immediate shipment, $1.05; No. 2, $1.03; Ontario wheat, No. 2, 93c to 95c; slightly tough, 87c to 91c; sprouted or smutty, 70c to 85c.

COARSE GRAINS.

The market generally is strong, with prices advancing in a few sections. There have been no sensational changes, but nets show the most encouraging quotations. Quotations are as follows: Oats, C.W., No. 2, 49c, Ontario, No. 2, 38c to 40c; No. 3, 36c to 39c; No. 1 commercial oats, 35c to 37c, corn, American, 72c; Canadian, 72c; peas, $1.60 to $1.80; buckwheat, 70c; barley, malting, 54c to 57c; feed, 40c to 48c; rye, 87c; tough, 70c to 75c; No. 1 commercial, 82c.

The following quotations rule on the Montreal market: Oats, local white, 44½c to 46½c; barley, malting, 66½c to 67c; corn, 78c; peas, $2.50 to $3; feed wheat, 90c to $1.05.

MILL FEEDS.

Mill feeds are going up. Canadian quotations are determined largely by the United States demand and the market there is strengthening. It would seem that the best buying season for the feeder is past. Bran is here quoted $23; shorts, $24; middlings, $28; good feed flour, bag, $1.50. Delivered at points on the main line of any railroad in Ontario, bran is $23.50; shorts, $25, and middlings, $24, in car load lots; cottonseed meal, $36 to $37.50, f.o.b. Toronto; linseed meal, No. 1, $40; No. 2, $35, f.o.b. mills; oil cake, $36 and gluten feed, $25 f.o.b. mills; corn meal, 98 lb. sacks, $2.25. At Montreal bran is quoted $22; shorts $25; middlings, $30 to $31; moullie, $36 to $35.

HAY AND STRAW.

Receipts at Montreal are now considerably in excess of a year ago, but the market has a fair undertone, the government requirements being sufficient to take care of the excess. The United States market, too, has advanced and their buyers are operating more freely in country districts. On that market No. 1 hay is quoted $18 25 to $19 50; No. 2, $17 50 to $18; and No. 3, $15 50 to $16. On this market No. 1 hay is quoted wholesale, $15 to $16 on track; No. 2, $13 to $14; baled straw, $6 50.

EGGS AND POULTRY.

There is a good all round demand for eggs for storage and for export. The prevailing price in the country is 28c to 30c. On this market specials are quoted 35c to 36c; extras, 32c to 33c; No. 1 straight storage, 29c to 30c; No. 2, storage, 28c to 24c. At Montreal the market is strong, the local price for new laid eggs being 39c to 40c; selects 36½c to 38c; No. 1, storage, 28½c to 29c; No. 2, 27c to 27½c.

Poultry quotations follow: Old fowl, live, 11c; dressed, 15c to 16c; spring chickens, live, 15c to 16c; dressed, 18c to 20c; old turkeys, live, 13c to 17c; dressed, 17c to 23c; ducklings, live, 11c to 12c; dressed, 17c to 18c; turkeys, dressed, 21c to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Exports of butter for the week ending Oct. 16, were 2,300 packages; for the season from May 1st they were 38,846, against 7,225 for the same period last year. These figures from the Trade Bulletin explain in large measure the wonderful strength of the butter market under war time conditions. There is a general opinion, however that prices have reached their highest limits for export at present. The open fall with an increased make also tend to ease the market. Prices are high, 32½c to 33c for finest creamery.

Government demand is responsible for the strength of the cheese market, which has advanced over one cent in the past week. At Peterboro, for instance, the market was cleared at 16½c, an advance of 1½c over the sales of the previous board It is rumoured that further contracts have been received from the Imperial government. Receipts are well ahead of last year at the same time. The New Zealand situation can hardly yet be predicted as the new season has hardly yet set in and none of the new make has yet arrived in England.

LIVE STOCK.

The past season was characterised by heavy receipts the first of the week and comparatively light receipts towards the close. The net results of the trade was a decrease in market strength and quotations are not as satisfactory as they were a week ago. Very few cattle brought over $7. Canners and cutters, too, were off 10c to 50c. Milkers cows were decidedly easier. In the stocker trade, this week as in past weeks, most of the animals sold went across the line. Quotations follow:

Heavy choice steers, $7.50 to $8; handy choice, $7.25 to $7.50; butchers' cattle, good, $7 to $7.25; com. to med., $6 to $7.25; heifers, $6.25 to $7.60; butcher cows, choice, $6 to $6.50; med. to good, $5 to $6; bulls, $4 to $6.75; feeders, $6.25 to $6.75; stockers, $4.75 to $6.50; canners and cutters, $3.25 to $4.25.

A feature of the trade in milch cows nowadays is the large number that are being shipped to the West. The market has been steady, choice ones going at $75 to $100; med. to good, $60 to $75; com., $45 to $60, and springers, $50 to $100. Calves are quoted $4 to $11 according to quality.

Spring lambs are firmer, with receipts falling off. Quotations follow: Yearling sheep, $5 to $6.25; spring lambs, cwt., $8.50 to $9.90; cull lambs, $7.50 to $8; light ewes, $5.50 to $6.25; heavy sheep and bucks, $4.25 to $5.25; culls, $2.50 to $3.50.

The hog market has quotations that are satisfactory to the shipper, but the state of the market is unsettled. The receipts continue to be heavy and packers are reported to be endeavoring to force down the market. Hogs are quoted, off cars, $9.70 to $9.95 for choice; light and heavy, $9.20 to $9.45; fed and watered, $9.50 to $9.70, and f.o.b. country points, $9.15 to $9.35.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart had and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework, and have a family of ten."

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY.

Mortality was made for man, not man for mortality.—Zangwill.

Give me the making of the ballads of a nation and I care not who makes the laws.—A. Fletcher.

He who receives a good turn should never forget it; he who does one should never remember it.—Charron.

To lose money ill is indeed often a crime; but to get it ill is a worse one; and to spend it ill worst of all. —Ruskin.

Curiosity is a gift, a capacity of pleasure in knowing, which if you destroy you make yourself cold and dull.—Ruskin.

None can be perfectly free till all are free; no one can be perfectly moral till all are moral; no one can be perfectly happy till all are happy. —Herbert Spencer.

From the littleness and meanness and niggardliness forced upon us by circumstances what a relief to turn aside to the exceeding plenty of Nature.—Jeffries.

To set about acquiring the habits of meditation late in life is like getting into a go-cart with a grey beard, and learing to walk when we have lost the use of our legs. — Bolingbroke.

ALWAYS LOOKED THAT WAY.

"Yes," said the old mathematician with a gleam in his eye. "I have always looked at it that way. Marriage is addition; when the little ones come it is multiplication: when dissension comes to cloud the horizon of their hapiness it is division; and when the final parting comes it is subtraction?" "And how about divorce?" asked the listener. "Oh, that would come under the denomination of fractions!"

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS

It is more economical to cook potatoes in their skins. They can be pared with much less waste after boiling than before.

Throw your orange peel into the water jug instead of into the fire, and it will perfume the water as well as soften it.

Hard cheese is more digestible if grated. Certain people can eat cheese prepared in this way who cannot digest it in any other form.

When toasting in the front of a hot fire push the handle of your fork through a piece of cardboard, which will shield your hand from the heat.

After boiling salt beef leave two or three carrots in the liquor until cold. These will absorb the salt, and the liquor can be used for soup.

Veal ought always to be thoroughly cooked. If it is well cooked it is not a dangerous article of diet. Only when it is eaten underdone is it indigestible

The best and only way to get finished with the many household duties is to sweep the doorstep and pavement first, and then work quietly away inside and talk to no one.

For oatmeal pudding pour a quart of boiling milk over a pint of the best fine oatmeal, and let it remain all night. Next day beat two eggs and add a pinch of salt. Butter a basin that will just hold the ingredients. Cover tight with a floured cloth, and boil for an hour and a half. Eat it with cold butter and salt. When cold slice and toast it.

For baked apples take the number required, and choose them, if possible, of equal size. Wipe them well with a damp cloth, and remove the core with a fork or apple corer. Place them in a baking tin, sprinkle them first with a little water and then with granulated sugar, and bake in a moderate oven until soft. The time will depend upon the kind of apple used, and will vary from 20 minutes to one hour. When the apples are ready lift them on to a clean dish and sift a little sugar over.

Mustard Pickles.

One gallon vinegar, one cup salt, one cup ground mustard. Mix all together in a jar and add as many freshly gathered and washed cucumbers as it will cover. Do not heat These are excellent as they will keep crisp for a month without sealing and are so easily prepared.

A New Tomato Catsup.

Two gallons tomatoes, four onions, half a teaspoonful allspice, half a tablespoonful cloves, half a tablespoonful nutmeg, half a tablespoonful ginger, half a tablespoonful mustard, half a teaspoonful black pepper, half a tablespoonful cinnamon, one quart sugar, one pint vinegar. Salt to taste. Run the tomatoes through the sieve and grate the onions.

Pepper and Cheese Salad.

Wash a sweet red and a sweet green pepper and cut off the stem end of each. Remove all seeds and pith. Mix cream cheese with a little cream, pepper and salt and chopped parsley and nut meats. Stuff the pepper shells full and chill thoroughly. Then slice, about three slices to the inch, and serve a slice of each on each plate on a bed of white lettuce leaves. Dress with mayonnaise.

* *

Pineapple Whip.

Two small cans grated pineapple, one and one-half pounds marshmallows. Cut marshmallows into small pieces with scissors, then mix with pineapple. Stir and beat occasionally, allowing about 24 hours to blend thoroughly. Cover with powdered nuts before serving.

Toppings for Ice-cream.

Roll macaroons rather fine, use equal parts minced almonds and enough heavy syrup to make a paste. Grated maple sugar with sprinkling of walnut meats is fine, or one can use grated sweet chocolate with any desired nut meats. These are easily made at home, and just as good to look at as if bought in the most exclusive ice-cream shop.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A BOMB AT SEA

By F. A. MITCHEL

"There's something going on aboard this ship," said one passenger to another. "We are in some danger."

"Submarines?"

"I hope not," said the other, turning pale.

"It's not submarine danger," a third put in; "it's a bomb. A wireless has been received from New York stating that a letter has fallen into the hands of the police indicating that a box is aboard containing an explosive, set to be fired in three or four days after sailing."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!" exclaimed an elderly lady sitting in a steamer chair with a very pretty daughter beside her. The mother showed signs of fainting. The daughter was very much troubled. Her mother's heart was weak.

"There's no danger, mamma; indeed there isn't, I assure you."

"How do you know? You don't know. Isn't it awful?"

"I do know."

It appeared that the girl was trying to keep her mother from another danger than a bomb; therefore no one who overheard what she said paid any attention to her claiming to know that nothing was to be feared from an explosion. In the wireless message received a description of the box was given. It was six feet square and marked: "Fragile. Handle With Care. This Side Up."

A thorough search was made of the hold where freight had been stored, but it was not necessary to remove anything, for the box was found as described with nothing stored in it. An officer conducting the search listened for a ticking, but heard nothing. He was not surprised at this, for the bomb was probably in the center of the box with packing material around it.

The next information the lady and her daughter received concerning the danger was seeing the box swing out over the side of the ship. The girl gave a shriek and, running to the rail, called out frantically to those below not to drop the box into the water. The mate directed them to hold it, and while the infernal machine dangled in the air the girl ran down the companionway to a lower deck where the work of getting rid of the danger was going on. The mate, the man at the tackle and a group of passengers standing around looked at her wonderingly.

"Oh, heavens," she cried, "don't let it go; take it in!"

"What have you got to do with it?" asked the mate.

"Bring it in."

"It's safe enough where it is. Come, confess. Are you mixed up in the plot?"

"No—yes. It isn't a plot to blow up the ship; there's no bomb in the box."

"Well, what is in the box?"

"Why, there's nothing to hurt anybody."

"How do you know?"

"Because I do."

"No such woman's reason as that can be taken where the lives of hundreds of persons are at stake. Let her go, men."

The girl sprang to the ropes. The officer made a sign for them to hold.

"Come, out with it! We can't take any further risk."

"Bring it back and I'll open it if you are afraid to. There's nothing in it to hurt any one."

The box was brought back, and for the first time holes were noticed bored in its sides.

"A stowaway," remarked the man who made the discovery.

"Bring a hammer," said the mate.

The lid was taken off the box by one of the men, and the top of a man's head appeared.

"Come out o' that!" roared the mate.

The man was helped out of the box, as pale as the girl. They staggered together and fell into each other's arms. The act caused more commotion than the receipt of the wireless telegram.

"What in thunder does this mean?" asked the mate. "Young feller, if you've been trying to beat your way you'll go down into the furnace room to shovel coal."

"Nonsense," exclaimed a passenger. "Don't you see that they're a pair of lovers?"

"A love story?" cried another looker on. "Let's have it."

The young man and the girl looked at each other sheepishly; then the former said:

"My friends, I suppose we'll have to confess. This young lady and I are lovers. Her mother is taking her abroad to get rid of me. It occurred to us to outwit her by my being shipped as freight. Some friends helped me. I was put in this box, with plenty of food and water, and all might have gone right, but some of the crowd must have talked. Likely one of them has reported the box to contain a bomb as a practical joke."

"Joke be hanged!" said the mate. "In another minute you would have been dropped overboard."

"A parson!" cried a passenger.

"Good!" cried another. "Tie 'em up before the old lady comes."

The girl shrank back, but nothing would do but that there must be a wedding. There was a clergyman among the bystanders, who, being recognized by his canonicals, was pushed forward, and before the pair realized what had happened they were made man and wife. Just as the ceremony ceased the mother came down the companionway. She was greeted with a burst of laughter.

A Poet's Infirmities.

Those who imagine there is some necessary connection between literary genius and laches will have to explain away the case of Alexander Pope. Pope was exactly four feet, six inches high. He was humpbacked and deformed.

According to one of Lord Oxford's servants, he was "so weak as to stand in perpetual need of female attendance; extremely sensible of cold, so that he wore a kind of fur doublet under a shirt of very coarse warm linen, with fine sleeves. When he rose he was invested in a bodice made of stiff canvas, being hardly able to stand erect till it was laced, and he then put on a flannel waistcoat. One side was contracted. His legs were so slender that he enlarged their bulk with three pairs of stockings, which were drawn on and off by the maid, for he was not able to dress or undress himself."

LONDON'S GUARDIAN

A Sketch on the Life of Admiral Sir Percy Scott

Admiral Sir Percy Scott, head of gunnery defences of London, is probably the greatest gunnery expert in the world.

Sir Percy Scott is, indeed, the creator of modern gunnery. He invented a system of directing the fire of heavy guns in warships which was promptly adopted by the navy and copied by every foreign navy.

It was in 1896 that Sir Percy Scott electrified the heads of the world's navies by the remarkable shooting record of the ship Scylla. When he joined her the average of hits was 31 per cent. When he left her it was over 80 per cent.

It was Sir Percy Scott who invented the famous "dotter" target, by means of which Jack Tars have become the most deadly shots in the whole world. If it had not been for that, and one or two other ingenius target inventions by Sir Percy Scott, the gunners would not have begun hitting at a range of nearly ten miles, as they did in the Heligoland battle.

Two years earlier Sir Percy Scott had become Director of Target Practice, and the gunnery returns of the fleet jumped up so much that the German naval authorities jeered at them and openly stated the high percentages of hits were faked to please the British public.

Among his more recent inventions in gunnery is a system of electrical fire-control which was actually being fitted to big British ships when war broke out. Naturally this system is quite secret, though it is known to be one by which one officer can control a whole broadside, instead of each gun having to be sighted separately by a gun-layer.

It was thanks to Sir Percy Scott, that Ladysmith was able to hold out. Sir George White found that he had no guns to compete with those of the Boers, and wired to the Terrible in Simon's Bay to ask if they could send up some 4.7-inch guns.

During the night he invented a new gun carriage, and before another twenty-four hours had expired two 4.7-inch guns and four twelve-pounders were on their way to Ladysmith.

Sir Percy enlisted at thirteen, and fought in the Ashanti and Egyptian wars. He retired in 1918, but was appointed to "special service" in November, 1914.

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

DO YOU WANT TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG?

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use in flesh building. Sargol, which comes in the form of a small non-injurious tablet taken at meals, and mixing with the digesting food, tends to prepare its fat, flesh and muscle building elements so that the blood can readily accept and carry them to the starved portions of the body. You can readily picture the transformation that additional and previously lacking flesh making material should bring with your cheeks filling out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappearing and your taking on form 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not obtained as per the guarantee found in each large package.

NOTE.—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless an gain of weight is desired.

The Balkan Babel

In no part of the world are so many and such diverse languages spoken as in the Balkans. Bulgarians and Roumanians, for a beginning, are wonderfully at variance, for the Bulgarians keep up the tradition of the ancient Russian language, while just across the river boundary Roumania maintains a language closer akin to ancient Latin than even Italy can claim. Not only Latin but Greek is still the colloquial talk further south, and the Albanians have a language that is a puzzle to philologists, who find in it a mixture of such strange and divergent speeches as the Basque of Spain and the Hungarian of the great central plain of the present Austro-Hungarian kingdom empire.

LUCKY AT CHEATING DEATH.

On One Gun Testing Occasion a Sudden Impulse to Run, Which He Obeyed, Was the Means of Saving His Life—A Magazine That Got Its Second Wind.

One of the most thrilling adventures in my experience took place at the government proving grounds at Sandy Hook, N. J., when the United States government was testing maximite before adopting it.

Near a light frame building in which I was filling shells with maximite, a ten inch gun was being tested. A number of shots had been fired from the big gun. Just as I had concluded my work and started for the wharf to take the government tug for New York, the signal was sounded for another shot. I was walking along a stretch of railway track directly behind the gun.

At that instant I remembered that several years before, when one of these guns was being tested, the breechlock had blown out, passed through the bombproof and killed six officers and men, but I argued with myself that the chance was infinitely remote that the breechlock would be blown out of the present gun on this discharge at the very instant I was in range, but upon a sudden impulse I ran with all my might.

The gun was discharged. I looked round just in time to see the huge breechlock pass through a building near the one in which I had been at work. It came up the track, striking and breaking one of the rails over which I had passed. It ricocheted against the top of the old granite fort and glanced high into the air. A shower of stones and debris fell over a wide area and many fragments struck the ground close to me.

I walked back to the scene of the accident and found that the windows in the little building where I had been filling maximite shells were completely riddled with partly burned cylinders of smokeless powder that had been blown from the gun.

I once had another curious experience at Sandy Hook during some trials of the Maxim automatic machine gun.

Among the severe tests to which the gun was subjected was one intended to simulate what might occur in making a landing upon the seashore, where the mechanism of the gun might get filled with sand. The test is known as the "sand test."

The gun being tested at the time was of the kind using black gunpowder cartridges, for it was before the introduction of smokeless powder. There was so much energy in the recoil of the barrel that a great deal of sand could be thrown into the mechanism without interfering with the working of the gun.

The commanding officer did not arrive to see the gun fired until after the board in charge had completed the test. He then appeared and demanded that the firing should be continued for his benefit. The chairman of the experimental board demurred, saying that the gun had passed through the test admirably and that it was too bad to fire it more than was absolutely necessary, with its mechanism filled with sand. But the commander insisted.

A schooner was approaching near the line of fire. The commander said he only wanted to see a few rounds fired and that the firing would be completed before the schooner would come within range. Accordingly a belt of 333 rounds was inserted, and the firing begun. After perhaps fifty rounds were fired the command was given "Cease firing," but the gun kept right on. It afterward proved that the trigger was blocked by sand, so that it was impossible to stop the gun. The schooner came into range, and the bullets flew over and around her.

My assistant, who was firing the gun, did his best to work the trigger and stop it. It did not occur to him on the instant to unlimber the gun and swing it round so as to bring the schooner out of range. As the gun fired at the rate of 750 shots a minute the firing was all over inside half a minute.

Fortunately no damage was done. When the same gun was undergoing a sand test at Annapolis, Md., I came very near being killed by it.

The gun had passed successfully through a severe sand test, but the officer in charge wanted to see whether he could put enough sand into the gun to stop it. So he had the gun box filled full. The gun fired about 150 rounds and then stopped. My assistant threw down the safe—that is to say, locked the trigger, so that it could not be pulled—and began clearing the gun box.

Thinking that the gun was safe, I was just about to step round in front of it. Suddenly it fired a dozen or more shots so close to me that my clothes were seared by the powder gases.

One of the tests made at Annapolis was to fire a Maxim gun vertically into the air. We had fired a couple of hundred shots in this manner, when something struck very near us. It then occurred to the officer in charge that what goes up must necessarily come down. Firing ceased, and we sought cover for a few minutes to avoid the leaden rain.—Hudson Maxim in Youth's Companion.

How to Quiet a Crying Baby.

Fits of crying, indicative of discomfort if not pain, in babies, usually after meals, are quite naturally attributed almost universally to the food. It would be well, however, if attention were given to the clothes at the same time, if there are no other indications of the diet given disagreeing with the baby, for in very many cases these are to blame. Very often there is something tight around the little abdomen, the bander, to which mother and nurse cling so jealously, being frequently at fault.

How to Remove White Spots.

Take several thicknesses of blotting paper and cover the spots with it. Place a hot iron on top and as soon as the surface of the wood is warmed remove the iron and paper and rub the spot with paraffin, rubbing hard enough to leave a coating of the substance. Then rub with a warm piece of flannel until the whiteness disappears. The operation may have to be repeated.

Marvelous Recoveries.

The case of the soldier who has been lying in a Munich hospital for four months with a bullet in his heart serves to show that there is a possibility of recovery after almost any form of injury. Playwrights and novelists usually make their villians die immediately when pierced through the heart, but hunters have often seen bears and other big game run over a hundred yards after receiving such a wound, and in recent wars several cures of heart wounds have been effected.

When a bullet touches the brain, recovery is not rare, provided that only the outer portion of this organ be injured, and that no large blood-vessels be opened. In the Anatomical Museum of Harvard University may be seen a drill, four feet long, which was blown entirely through the brain of a mechanic, from below upward, destroying the sight of one eye, yet the man recovered and subsequently proved capable of earning his living.

Eczema Was Cured Twelve Years Ago

Dr. Chase's Ointment Proved to be a Permanent Cure

The old idea of eczema being a disease of the blood has been pretty well exploded by the record of cures made by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Some doctors still advise internal treatment, but the results are slow and uncertain, and too often a lamentable failure. With Dr. Chase's Ointment it is different. You apply the ointment to the sore parts. It cleanses the sores, and soon sets up the healing process. In a few days you can see with your own eyes the wonderful change that is taking place and are encouraged to keep up the treatment until the cure is complete and the sores replaced by smooth, natural skin.

It is wise to look after your general health, keep the bowels regular and the blood rich but you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure the eczema if you will do your part and apply it regularly.

Mr W. H. Roberts, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "I can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering from itching skin disease. I had eczema on my leg and suffered terribly from the itching. I had a doctor treat me for four months without relief, and I was getting worse all the time. A second doctor gave some relief for a time, but made no cure. I tried several advertised treatments, but without relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This ointment cured me in a month. That was twelve years ago, and I have never had a sign of the old trouble since.

"Since then we have always kept Dr. Chase's Ointment in the house, and find it invaluable for chafing, chilblains, insect stings and burns. I would not be without it if it cost $5 a box."

"This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. W. H. Roberts, and believe his statement regarding the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment to be true and correct." —(Signed) Alex. Horne, Justice of the Peace.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

Of the many designs which are worn this summer it is the more simple ones which are meeting with the greatest favor. This is for various reasons, one of the main being the ease with which such frocks may be made, even by the veriest amateur at dressmaking.

The frock shown in the accompanying illustration is an excellent one for all the plainer fabrics which are now in vogue. Plain colors in linen and gingham are suitable and will be effective, poplin silk recommends itself for such dresses, and the many pretty ginghams and other fabrics which have no special name are nearly all appropriate.

The blouse is quite plain, with a small rounded collar trimming the back of the neck and coming down in plain straight tabs in front.

The three gore skirt is made with either the raised waist line or the normal one, most women preferring the raised effect. It fits neatly around the hips and flares at the hem to a measurement of 2¾ yards in the medium size. The band effect at the lower edge is obtained by making a small upward turning tuck in the material where the line of perforations is placed, and this may be omitted if desired. It is also possible to face the skirt from the perforations downward.

The dress pattern, No. 7282, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 5¼ yards of 36 inch material, with 1⅛ yards of 27 inch contrasting goods.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach regulator in the world.

An English journalist and a private of the Irish Guards were dining recently at a restaurant in a small French town. The soldier, who had picked up a few scraps of the language, insisted on ordering everything in doubtful French, while the journalist would offer explanations that were in the nature of criticisms. At length Tommy's temper rose to the explosive point. "Will you," he said in English, "be so good as not to interfere with me in my use of French?" "Very well," replied the journalist. "I simply wanted to point out that you were asking for a staircase when you wanted a spoon!"—Peoria "Star."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork, they get sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and, thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys feel and act like lumps of lead, and you have stingy pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, and stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

THE ROUGH LITTLE RASCAL.

A smudge on his nose and a smear on his cheek,
And his knees that might not have been washed in a week;
A bump on his forehead, a scar on his lip,
A relic of many a tumble and trip;
A rough little, tough little rascal, but sweet,
Is he that each evening I'm eager to meet.
A brow that is beady with jewels of sweat,
A face that's as black as a visage can get;
A suit that at noon was a garment of white,
Now one that his mother declares is a fright;
A fun-loving, sun-loving rascal, and fine,
Is he that comes placing his black fist in mine.
A crop of brown hair that is tousled
and tossed,
A waist from which two of the buttons are lost;
A smile that shines out through the dirt and the grime,
And eyes that are flashing delight all the time;
All these are the joys that I'm eager to meet
And look for the moment I get to my street.

HITTING THE HYDRANT.

A noted temperance lecturer who had been in his day a hard drinker, went back to his boyhood hope after his reformation and his first successful season upon the platform to renew youthful friendships. His favourite chum of earlier days was an Irish blacksmith. It seemed the blacksmith still imbibed at intervals.

The convert to temperance dropped in on him to argue with him.

"Larry," he said, after they had exchanged handshakes, "they tell me you still hit the bottle on Saturday nights. I wish you'd quit it, old man. Yes, I know I used to carouse round with you, but I've learned better. Whisky is a bad thing for any man. Try cold water, old man, and stick to it. It quenches your thirst as beer or whisky can never quench it, and instead of burning you it will help you."

"Frank," said the blacksmith, "many's the good time we two had in the old days, settin' together at the festal board singin' songs and knockin' our glasses on the table, and goin' home arm in arm at two o'clock in the mornin'."

"Yes, I know that," said the other. "I know what you say is true and I'm ashamed when I think of it. We had those good times together, but, after all, cold water is——"

"Frank, me boy," broke in the blacksmith, "did you iver hear of any body havin' much fun at a pump?"—

Reason for Thankfulness.

At a social session some time since references was made to the candidate when his little story was smilingly recalled by Senator George Sutherland of Utah.

One morning, after a big political rally, in which the two candidates met in an exciting debate, Jones was rambling down the street when he saw his friend Smith about to enter his place of business.

"Hello, Smithy!" he cheerfully exclaimed. "I suppose you went around to hear the candidates last night."

"Yes," answered Smith, but without any great degree of enthusiasm. "I heard them all right."

"Thought you wouldn't miss the show," smilingly observed Jones. "What was your opinion of them?"

"Well," thoughtfully replied Smith, "the longer I stayed there and listened to them the more thankful I became that only one of them can get in the office."—Exchange.

Just as the manager was showing some visitors round the factory the dinner-bell rang, and the men stopped work and disappeared as if by magic.

"Do all of them," said one of the guests, smilingly, "drop their tools the instant the bell goes?"

"Oh, no; not all of them," said the manager. "The more orderly ones have their tools put away before that time."

PREMIER VIVIANI OF FRANCE HAS RESIGNED

BIG VICTORY CLAIMED FOR ITALIANS

ITALIANS STATED TO HAVE TAKEN MANY AUSTRIAN PRISONERS AND GUNS

Unofficial Reports Credit Gen. Cadorna's Forces With a Great Victory---Allies Still Control Greater Part of the Nish-Salonika Railway and French Have Occupied a Number of Bulgarian Cities---Little Fighting is Reported From Western Front.

BRITISH CRUISER IS WRECKED IN A GALE

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(French Official).—"Only patrol reconnaissance engagements have occurred," announced the War Office to-day, speaking of latest developments on the Franco-German front, "and they have everywhere resulted advantageously to the French."

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The occupation by the French troops of the Bulgar village of Tirteli, near Strumnitza, south-western Bulgaria, was reported, without confirmation, in Athens despatches to-day. The Bulgarians were accused of plundering and burning various Serbian towns they had captured. Reports of the Serbian recapture of Uskub were repeated in to-day's Athens messages.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Fighting between the Bulgarians and the Serbians, helped by the French and British, still rages at Veles, according to messages to-day from Athens.

ROME, Oct. 28.—It is unofficially reported here that the Italians have scored a big success, capturing Goritz and Isonzo, with several thousand Austrian prisoners and many guns.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The British cruiser Argyll is ashore off the East Coast of Scotland, and may be a total wreck, it was announced to-day.

Bad weather, it was stated, drove the ship ashore. The officers and crew were saved.

The Argyll is a vessel of the Devonshire class, displacing 10,850 tons, and carrying a crew of 655 officers and men. She was completed in 1905.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—"The resignation of Premier Viviani does not mean any change in the conduct of the war," said a high official at the French Embassy to-day. "Political changes do not affect our defence. Regardless of parties, France stands as one man. What difference does it make who is in one office or another when we fight together," he said with a shrug. "Briand, I observe, may become Premier. He is a strong man and Viviani is to remain in the Cabinet. This shows there is no break."

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The official announcement of the constructed Cabinet was expected early. The best information was that it would be made up as follows:

Briand, Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, replacing Viviani. Jules Cambon, General Secretary; De Freycinet, Vice-President of the Cabinet, without portfolio. Viviani, Minister of Justice. Gallieni, Minister of War. Admiral Lacaze, Minister of Marine, replacing Augagneur. Ribot, Minister of Finance. Doumergue, Minister of Colonies. Painleve, Minister of Education and Invention (the latter newly created). Cementel, Minister of Agriculture, replacing David. Klotz or Thierry, Minister of Commerce, replacing Thomson. Bourgeois, Combes, Dentis Cochin and Jules Guesde, Ministers without portfolios. Other "slates" make Combes Minister of Instruction.

The shake up in the Government was attributed mainly to general dissatisfaction with the Government's foreign policy, especially in connection with a German diplomatic victory which brought Bulgaria into the war on the Teutonic Allies' side.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Under the heading, "Germany is beaten," the Tribune, in its leading editorial this morning, says: "If there were needed any evidence of the actual as contrasted with apparent condition of the European struggle it could be found without difficulty in the statements of the German public men, German newspapers and the German people. After fifteen months of strife, after conquests, victories, triumphs unequalled since the Napoleonic era, who is it that is talking of peace, 'victorious peace,' or some other be-adjectived peace? Travellers returning from Germany recently agree that the only real qualification to German confidence is found in the apprehension of a protracted war. Peace now means victory—but next year!"

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Having reached in their retreat a belt of more than usually broken country through which even an unopposed advance would be difficult, the Serbians have stiffened their resistance to the Austro-German progress southward in the Balkans, and are temporarily holding their ground, according to Athens advices to-day.

Reports continued to conflict concerning the Uskub situation, but on the strength of unconfirmed reports, it was believed the Serbians, French and British have recaptured the town from the Bulgarians. The Allies have beaten the Bulgars at Veles, control the Nish-Salonika railway more than 100 miles north-west from Salonika, and are operating in south-western Bulgaria.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—M. Briand has accepted the task of forming a new Cabinet. Viviani, the late Premier, will take the post of Minister of Justice, and many of the old members of the Cabinet will have places in the new. One of the most important changes is the substitution of General Gallieni, Military Governor and Defence of Paris, as Minister of War in place of M. Millerand. Popular feeling demanded a new War Minister.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING HELD IN MANVERS TOWNSHIP

Members of the Speaker's Patriotic League Visit Bethany in the Interests of Canadian Patriotic and Red Cross Funds

APPEAL TO MANHOOD

BETHANY, Oct. 28.—An overcrowded and successful meeting in the interests of the Canadian Patriotic and Red Cross funds was held last evening in Bethany's commodious hall. Mr. McCartney occupied the chair, and the speakers were His Honour Judge Huycke, Colonel Miller and Mr. R. B. Hall.

Colonel Miller made a splendid appeal to the young men to take advantage of the opportunity and go to the front. Never at any time in the past has there been such an opportunity to take part in such a gigantic struggle. Colonel Miller said he thought the Canadian ladies were taking a greater part in this war than the men. There was scarcely a lady to be found who was not engaged in some branch of the Red Cross work.

CANADA'S FREEDOM.

Mr. R. B. Hall was the next speaker. He said that we in Canada do not appreciate the freedom and liberty we enjoyed. Canada's freedom and liberty has come down to the past four generations without a struggle, and with no sacrifice. In consequence, many of the Canadians had grown selfish and do not appreciate the law, order and civilisation that we enjoyed. Canada had every reason to congratulate herself on the fact that she had noble and courageous men who were prepared to do their bit on the field of battle. So far as the number of Canadians that have gone to the front are concerned Canada has very little reason to congratulate herself. If Canada were doing as well as Great Britain she would have to-day at least 600,000 men under arms. She is not doing as well even as Australia has done. One of the great causes of this weakness is that the Canadian people have not been stirred up to the same extent as they are in the old country and in Australia.

A YOUNG MAN'S DUTY

His Honour Judge Huycke emphasized the duty of every young Canadian to take part in this great war. "If a young man believes it his duty to go to the front," said His Honour, "and does not go, then he will lose his own self respect, and he will lose the respect of his own father and mother, and his own friends, and ever after he will be of little use either to himself or the society in which he lives. It is also the duty of those who stay at home to contribute freely of their means in supporting the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross Fund."

Mr. J. J. Preston, M.L.A., also spoke briefly on the immediate duty that lay before the Township of Manvers to make a creditable showing in connection with the canvass that is shortly to be made in connection with the Canadian Red Cross Fund. The old Township of Manvers cannot afford to lag in the background and to be less generous and noble in its giving than the surrounding townships.

XMAS GIFTS FOR SOLDIERS FROM ST. JOHN'S

Friends of soldiers at the front are requested to send in the addresses of those soldiers they are in touch with to the Rector or Church Warden at St. John's. It is intended to forward Christmas boxes to Peterborough soldiers, and the full address is necessary. Please don't delay. Not a Peterborough soldier abroad should be forgotten.

WORK OF ALTERING ARMOURIES IS BEING RAPIDLY CARRIED ON

Carpenters Are Erecting the Bunks in Quick Style---Stores of the 80th Battalion Are to Be Transferred to the 93rd---Notification of Granting of More Separation Allowances---To-day's Military News.

The alterations in the armouries are being pushed ahead at top speed, and judging from the present rate of progress it will not be long before the Peterborough soldiers are housed therein. Bunks three tiers high have been erected in part of the gun shed, in the artillery quarters on the north-west corner, and in the bugle room, while this afternoon work was commenced in the band room with the result that the band has been turned out of its quarters and will have to use the recreation room for practice purposes.

Major Burritt, the chief engineer for this division, was here last night, and was delighted with the progress made. Naturally the work is being watched with great interest by the soldiers who inspect the operations every spare minute.

Captain R. E. Layfield, Quartermaster of the 80th Battalion, will be here to-morrow to transfer the stores of the 80th Battalion that had been issued to the recruits here over to the 93rd Battalion.

The 93rd Battalion marched out to Downer's Corners and returned by way of East City this morning. On the return to the armouries platoon drill was carried on.

The members of the 93rd Band are not going to let No. 1 Platoon carry off the football honours without an argument, and the musicians have organized a team and are hot on the trail of Sergt. Calladine's men. No. 4 Platoon also state that they are distinctly in the race, and the team that wants to be "top dog" will have to first dispose of them.

Sapper J. E. Dickson of the 146th A. T. Co'y, Royal Engineers, has the writer concludes from a paragraph which appeared in the columns of the "Examiner"— friends in Peterborough, who will be pleased to have news of him. The following is taken from "Tea Table Topics" by "Elsa" in the Buxton Herald of recent date.

Permission has been given me to record a little ceremony which took place at Beighford House prior to the departure of the 146th A.T. Co'y. R.E., for "Somewhere" on the Continent, that mysterious region which persists in—temporarily—swallowing up our best. This, of course, I regret, but, sometimes—I blush to confess it—sometimes I cannot regret this vile war as I ought always to do. It has brought me acquaintances which prove to me that British courage, British integrity, grit and reliableness are very far from being extinct even on the wane. The ceremony I have mentioned was the presentation to their hostess, Miss Pollitt, of a handsome dinner gong by "Nine Boys of the 146th A.T. Co'y. R.E." Corporal Jordan (of London) was deputed to hand the gift to Miss Pollitt, to whom it gave great pleasure. The party contained R.E.'s from many places—Corporal Kenrick from Lizard, Cheshire; 2nd Corporal Hallam from Hucknall, Notts; 2nd Corporal Reid formerly of Mexico and Peru; and 2nd Corporal Gardner of Morecombe, Sapper Dickenson, formerly of Peterborough, Ontario, Canada; Sapper Dawson, London; Sapper Humphreys, Alberystwith; and Sapper Knight of Eastleigh, Hants.

The writer wishes to draw attention to the fact that Sapper Dickenson received his training at Buxton, not "Brixton" as stated in the paragraph mentioned. Buxton, the beautiful mountain spa of Derbyshire, England, is proud of the many fine soldiers who have been sent from her training ground to fight for King and Empire.

The concert in the Empire Theatre yesterday afternoon in aid of the Peterborough soldiers at the front was a most successful event. In addition to the pictures there were a number of selections by an orchestra from the 93rd Battalion, while Pte. Frank Traynor contributed a recitation and the 93rd Band a march. A large number of men from the 93rd were in attendance. Dr. Robinson's kindness in devoting his theatre is appreciated.

The recruiting headquarters on Simcoe street make a comfortable meeting place for the men of the 93rd. A donation of the current numbers of all the leading magazines and periodicals from Messrs. Trebilcock Bros. and Mr. R. J. Soden is a gift that is much appreciated by Peterborough soldiers.

Peterborough's fine representation in the 33rd Battery at Barriefield, will be increased to-day by the arrival of four more recruits in the persons of Gunner McCracken, Harold Yelland, E. W. Jones and Horace Coon, who left this morning on the 8.10 G.T.R. train for Kingston. A large number of friends were on hand to say goodbye.

Gunner Harold Yelland of the C.P.R. telegraph office, who left this morning for Barriefield to join the 33rd Battery at Kingston, was presented with a wrist watch yesterday by Mr. Skinner, the local C.P.R. agent on behalf of the employees. Gunner Yelland is the third employee of the local C.P.R. telegraph staff to enlist. Signaller Chas. Hardwick is at the front with the 21st Battalion, while Signaller Percy Gray is also in France with the Cyclist Corps. A former employee, Lance Corp. Fred Long, is a prisoner in Germany.

The Peterborough Choral Society has a large number of its members in the different Canadian contingents and at Tuesday night's practice it was decided to send a Christmas present to all former members at Barriefield, in England or at the front.

Husband and Wife Face Murder Charge

Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Lindsay Appear Before Magistrate Langley This Afternoon—Alleged to Have Caused the Death of Their 14-year-old Daughter.

REMANDED FOR A WEEK

Five separate charges, including two charges of murder, were preferred against Sandford Lindsay and his wife, who were apprehended by County Constable A. Moore after a chase extending over one hundred and fifty miles, and lasting for several days. The case concerns the death of the Lindsay's fourteen-year-old daughter, which according to the finding of the coroner's jury, resulted from foul play. The prisoners appeared before County Magistrate Langley this afternoon and were remanded for one week on the following charges:

Sandford Lindsay.

1. That on Friday, September 17th, Sandford Lindsay did murder Lily May Lindsay.

2. That at divers times throughout the year 1915, Sandford Lindsay did have criminal relations with Lily May Lindsay.

3. That on Monday, September 13th, Sandford Lindsay did unlawfully cause the death of the unborn child of Lily May Lindsay.

Mrs. Phoebe Lindsay.

4. That on September 17th, Mrs. Phoebe Lindsay did murder Lily May Lindsay.

5. That on Monday, September 13th, Mrs. Phoebe Lindsay did cause the death of the unborn child of Lily May Lindsay.

Three Children.

The Lindsays were arrested in the County of Haliburton, some distance from Lochin. They appeared in the County Court this afternoon in company with their three children, two boys of twelve and four years, respectively, and one girl of seven. The children manifested signs of fatigue, having spent the last couple of days in an automobile. They will be turned over to the Children's Shelter. Mrs. Lindsay pleaded with Magistrate Langley to be allowed the custody of her children, even though they would have to remain in gaol. This was denied as the Magistrate pointed out that he had no power to grant the request. Mrs. Lindsay decided to communicate with her parents through the medium of her solicitor, Mr. G. N. Gordon, and see if they would take care of the children.

Changed His Name.

Soon after the inquest, Lindsay and his wife, together with their three children left Dummer township, where they had been residing. According to Crown Attorney Hatton, Lindsay shaved off his moustache and adopted other means to disguise his identity. At one point where it was necessary to sign a document relating to some baggage that was being checked, Lindsay declared his inability to write. His wife performed this operation, using the name of "William Rogers."

They were next heard of in Cobalt, and were finally traced back to Lochin, where the culminating event took place. Before leaving Dummer Lindsay is alleged to have threatened a number of persons who were regarded as prospective witnesses.

The Girl's Death.

The girl's death occurred on Friday, September 17th at the home of her parents near Clarina Centre Dummer. She was fourteen years of age. The inquest, which was held in the town hall, Havelock, on Thursday September 23rd, revealed a sordid state of affairs. The finding of the jury empannelled by Coroner Dr. Kindred, was to the effect that death was the result of foul play. The jury also recommended a continuation of the investigation that had already been instituted by Crown Attorney Hatton. Members of the Provincial Police Department were assigned to the case with the above result. A few days after the inquest the Lindsay family moved away. Prior to this a number of prospective witnesses residing in the same neighbourhood claim to have been threatened.

Death Bed Confession.

A post mortem examination performed by Doctors Holdcroft and Blair indicated a condition of septic poisoning resulting from a criminal operation. The girl, according to her mother made a death bed confession in which she attributed her plight to a young man who had worked for her father at Nogie's Creek and also in Dummer. After the girl's death Dr. Kindred became aware of the step

ADVICE UNHEEDED AND DEATH WAS THE PENALTY

How Two Soldiers Were Instantly Killed Because Out of Curiosity They Put Their Heads Above the Parapet of Their Trench—Interesting Letter From Pte. Roscoe Kendry.

WOUNDED IN HAND

Pte. Roscoe Kendry, of the 2nd Battalion, writing to his mother, Mrs. Kendry, 650 Water Street, under date of October 11th, tells of some very interesting experiences. Pte. Kendry was reported wounded, but has returned to duty. He refers to it in his letter, telling how it happened. His letter is as follows:

Somewhere in Belgium, Oct. 11, '15.

My Dear Mother, — Received your very welcome letter all O.K., last night and once more delighted to hear from you. Glad to note that all at home are quite well and hope for the best in the future.

Well, mother, I suppose you will want to know about some of our doings. We have been on the move again and by the papers you will note that things in general have been "noisy" on this front again. Of course I cannot tell you exactly, by name of place, where we are, but it is considerably warmer than where we were last. We are on the flying column again and co-operate with the crack division of the English regulars. For a while we had to be taken off as we were so far below strength, but after quite a few drafts we are now pretty well fixed. Have seen quite a few of the boys in the 2nd contingent, but they were Montreal and Winnipeg boys. They have received their baptism of shell fire all right, all right, and I was talking to our old Chaplain a few nights ago, and he said they had quite a few casualties in the brigade in which he was now Chaplain—2nd contingent. Seems the Huns blew up part of their trench by a few mines, and then tried to rush the trench—about fourteen killed and thirty-two wounded by one mine. This morning it was discovered that Fritz & Co. were trying to put one under us, but we sunk one underneath their's and spoiled their game, (Safety first). Gee! they must have been mad for all kinds of shrapnel came over for about an hour—but we were having dinner and while eating could see the shells bursting behind us, as their range was long. You see, mother, in places, their trench is only forty yards from ours, and their snipers are always on the look-out for the unwary.

Sad Piece of News.

Here is a sad piece of news. You will remember how young Dempsey wanted to enlist. Well, he came out on a draft with the 38th Battalion, and seemed a very nice little fellow. Yesterday morning, early, he looked over the parapet, out of curiosity, and a dirty sniper's bullet crashed through his brain. Poor boy, he would never know what happened and he was dead almost as soon as he fell over. We buried him yesterday afternoon. He and his brother will now be united, and it does seem sad to think of two out of one family. The price has surely been paid there. You know it is hard for us to convince some of the new fellows that these snipers can see your head above the parapet, and they don't seem to realize that these snipers have telescope sights on their rifles, and although you may be a couple of hundred yards away when they look through this kind of sight it brings the object up very close. Just a couple of months ago I was on a working party in the front line and while on my relief for twenty minutes; sat down and watched a fellow who was banging away as if he saw a horde coming across. To make matters worse he was standing in the same place all the time, instead of shifting a little. Well, I watched him for a few minutes and finally went over to him and said "Say, mate, I wouldn't

THE AVENGING MACHINE GUN.

The firm of Crowell, Limited, Sydney, Nova Scotia, has sent forward its cheque for $7,000 for the purchase of machine guns with the endorsation, —"In memory of Nurse Cavell, murdered by the Huns." Edith Cavell, though she is dead, by the manner and meaning of her death, is a more exciting recruiting agent than any other single force in the world at the present time. Still it is doubtful if machine guns offers are the swiftest means of avenging her death. At the rate at which money has been converted into machine guns in Canada, the grass of spring will be growing over Nurse Cavell's grave before a Canadian machine gun can be trained on her slayers.

CANADA "CAN'T."

The "Canada can't" cry is superlative cant — a whining admission of our inferiority. Canada can't supply equipment for soldiers, though Canada can supply soldiers.. "Can't" should have no place in the lexicon of Canada, when it is contradicted by facts. There were those who said in respect to building warships, "Canada can't." Even Premier Borden said Canada couldn't build a navy in fifty years. Yet Australia, with a little more than half of our population has, in five years, built a splendid navy of her own, as far as her own resources were concerned, which she turned over to the Imperial authorities; and its value was shown by the capture of Samoa from Germany, the sinking of the Emde . that for months eluded the whole british navy, and the destruction of the Koenisburg. While Canada can't supply equipment for its soldiers, Australia has sent 17,000 splendidly equipped troops, and has in training enough to bring her total to nearly 100,000. Australia equips her ment with great promptitude and thoroughness. The average cost of the first issue of clothing and equipment to an Australian soldier is $115. The whole expense of Australia's naval and military forces is borne by the Commonwealth, and up to the end of June, it was 65 million dollars. Australia can, and Australia does. It is not the people of Canada that say "Canada can't"? Neither the people, nor the resources and spirit of Canada are to blame.

SHOULD WOMEN THINK.

The subject of Mrs. Nellie McClung's lecture last night, "Should Women Think?" made women and men too, realize that women should think, and that they can think. Mrs. McClung, with her charming presence, her perfect figure, and a face where the light of mind shines through and mingles with womanly grace, dealt admirably with her subject and showed not only the capacity, but duty of women, to think, not only in connection with the emergent calls of the present crisis, but upon the problems that affect women's relations to the state and to society; also the necessity of women, through thinking effectively, of becoming a factor in the solutions of the problems that will confront us when, the war over, the work of reconstruction and adjustment shall come. This war, and the noble way in which women have met its multifarous calls, show that they not only think but act; has brought out in a new way the noble side of woman's character, fine feeling, sympathy, and the unending patience that seeks the end through toilsome working. It has also brought out woman's capacity for initiative and organization, and for directness of achievement of purpose that furnishes lessons to multitudes of men—to our civic, provincial and state administrations. If women, as they have done and are doing, have shown themself capable in administration of their share in the activities the war and its consequences, evoke, it has at the same time shown in a larger way, her capacity for [illegible] less subordinate share in the activities that involve our application of the principles of self-government. In the political and social, as well as in the moral [illegible] of action, there is a place for on an equality with men. If their critics say, should — home, they should have a voice, share, in pronouncing upon the [illegible] ions, that affect the integrity, happiness of the home. The [illegible] that would confine women's work and activities, and interests, to the home exclusively, and deny the privilege of going beyond its narrow and monotonous round of duties, reduce women, without, perhaps, intending it — from lack of thinking — to the level of the Moslem ideal, of a subjugated and soulless sex. The women that are worthy to be the mothers of our children, have a right, as well as duty, to have and exercise a voice in what determines the moral status of their children on the way to manhoods' estate, and later too, when they take their places in the battlefield of life. Women should think, women do think, women do think much more than the mass of men who show a supercilous superiority, founded upon their own unfounded assumption.

MACHINE GUN MUDDLING.

The Government at Ottawa cannot complain that it has been hampered by adverse criticism; or at least by criticism that was not fully justified. All, or most of the criticism devoted to crookedness in war contracts, has been brought on the Government by its own action, or lack of action; by its carelessness in looking after details. Investigation has shown that German methods of crookedness and graft obtained to a disastrous and disgraceful extent in connection with the earlier war contracts. And it is not evident that there has been a complete elimination of the spirit of patronage and the party spirit. Even in the composition of the Shell Committee, regard to private interests has not been lost sight of. Three members of the committee, appointed to deal with the manufacture of shells, are in a sense, parties to ordering shells from themselves — they are prominent members of firms having shell contracts. There is a party truce in Canada, and by virtue of this the Government had been relieved of criticism of the kind that usually accompanies the party spirit. But the Government itself has not observed the spirit of the truce. In nearly all its administrative acts, even in connection with the important matter of providing war equipment, regard has been had more to the patronage list than to the necessities of the crisis. The consequence is that there has been failure to provide equipment to meet the demands of recruiting, and to meet the demands of the war situation.

We remember that some months ago there was a flurry of excitement over the shortage of machine guns, and that money poured in like water, to provide for their purchase, still the Government stopped the flow. And it appears that at a time when the necessity of providing Canadian troops with these guns; when from lack of them, and from the superiority of the enemy in this regard, the Allied troops were not able to make the progress they would have made had they been fully equipped with machine guns, the Government has been inactive. It is not unbecoming to criticise the Government in this respect, when its own party journals open the fire. The Montreal Star, under the heading "Machine Guns," has the following surprising statement:

> "The very awkward position into which the Government has got itself over the machine gun question suggests that the right thing to do now is either to return the money to the individual subscribers who gave contributions for supplementary machine guns or to ask the individual subscribers what their wishes are.
> "It will be remembered that in nearly all the early engagements in the west front it was discovered that the German troops were found to have an immense preponderance of machine guns, at least double or treble the British equipment. The discovery was startling, and all Canada was appealed to to subscribe for extra machine guns for Canadian troops.
> "At this juncture a Federal Minister, in a speech, asked the people for money for more machine guns. The Montreal Star and other papers in Canada took it up. The response was instantaneous and generous. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were subscribed, and everyone supposed it meant more machine guns. It turns out that this is a delusion. The Government's explanation is that an order for all available machine guns was placed long ago, and the individual subscriptions cannot be used as desired, and moreover the issue of machine guns to units is restricted by army regulations. Somebody has blundered."

Here we have nearly four months elapsed since the flood of subscriptions and cash for machine guns began to pour in, and yet not a gun has been delivered, and will not be delivered for some time to come, according to a statement made by Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia.

This condition of things is wrong. In effect the Government is giving the donors of machine gun funds a slap in the face. Instead of the Government leading public generosity and giving it practical direction, the public is driving the Government. There is still money given for machine guns that has not been used, and the offers are still coming in. The people, not the Government, are leading in Canada's doing her share. Recruiting is ahead of equipment. Money for machine guns is going a-begging. There is something that is not right. The Government and the people should cooperate. The Government has no excuse for inaction. It has the country solidly behind it without regard of party in anything it can do to strengthen the hands of Canada in fighting the good fight. The criticism the Government is getting these days is not party criticism. The hottest fire comes from party journals, friendly on party lines, to the Government. One, through criticism of the Shell Committee, pours shell fire upon the Government, and another opens fire upon it with machine guns.

METICULOUS GAUGING OF CANADA'S GENEROSITY

[illegible]ese columns it has been re[illegible]y emphasized that in this war [illegible]as are fighting for themselves for the protection of their own country, families and property. We have contended that Canada is not sending troops to France merely to "help the Motherland," as we are so often told by thoughtless orators. We have urged that the possession of Canada is the particularly luscious titbit that the Germans would like to win from this war. In fighting to defeat the Germans, therefore, the Canadians are fighting for Canada and Canadian freedom.

Those of us who hold these views can, therefore, have little patience with the argument that Canada is entitled to some very special consideration at the hands of the Motherland because Canadians have been so generous as to come forward to fight for Britain. Take, for instance, the contention of Mr. R. B. Bennett, M.P. for Calgary, whose speech at an informal meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute is printed in the Empire Review.

After declaring that "Canada has made more sacrifices than any other dominion in this war," a statement that is of doubtful accuracy in view of the tremendous Australian losses in the Gallipoli, Mr. Bennett went on to say that it was "of tremendous importance to show to all the people of Canada that whatever they do in the support of the Empire is of the utmost value and is appreciated in the Mother Country."

Although Mr. Bennett asserted that "Canadian patriotism is not commercial," that statement also, if Mr. Bennett's speech is evidence, is open to question. He "proceeded to show that the generosity of Canada had not been fully recognized, so far as the placing of ammunition orders was concerned"; he warned the British to "see that there is no opportunity for bitterness afterwards," and gave formal notice that "Canada must see that her sacrifices have not been in vain."

Probably allowance must be made for the "informality" of the occasion, but the speech shows a line of thought in some Canadian minds that is unfortunate and inaccurate.

In this war Canada has shown no "generosity" at all and therefore has no right to demand "recognition" for that generosity. What Canada has done has been for Canada, and what "sacrifices" Canadians have made have been for Canadians.

Canada will "see that her sacrifices have not been in vain" when the Huns' plan to take Canada over as spoil has been frustrated. To suggest that we are going to gauge the value of our "sacrifices" by the amount of ammunition orders placed in Canada is an insult to Canadians generally, an insult to those Canadian parents whose sons have already fallen or who are risking their lives at the present moment.

When it is remembered also that the huge profits made by the war contractors are all going into private pockets and none into the state treasury as in England, the suggestion seems to be still more grossly impertinent.—Ottawa Free Press.

THE MAD KAISER'S INSANE MISREADING OF HISTORY

The Kaiser's mind is undoubtedly full of all kinds of crazy ideas derived from reading history. It would have been a great blessing to mankind if the Kaiser had been working in a sawmill instead of reading history and getting perverted ideas of history. There is no doubt that the Kaiser is thinking about the old Holy Roman Empire. There need be no doubt that the Kaiser is thinking about the Eastern Roman Empire, the capital of which was Constantinople. There need be no doubt that the Kaiser is thinking about the strange following that was created by Mohammed. He wants to be Mohammed, as he wants to be the Emperor Constantine, as he wants to be the Pope, as he wants to be Luther. He has said that the three hundred million Mohammedans that are scattered throughout the world may rest assured that the German Emperor will eternally be their friend.

It is easy to see how the Kaiser has read history. The sensible man reads history in order to broaden his mind, to remind himself that he is "not the only pebble on the beach." The Kaiser's reading of history has only sharpened his vanity. If somebody has cut a great figure in history, the Kaiser will do the same. He will be Caesar, he will be Constantine, he will be Mohammed, he will be Napoleon, he will be the Pope. He is ready to play as many parts as Bottom the Weaver. At this moment he is probably thinking chiefly about Constantine and Mohammed, and regarding himself as at once the creator and conqueror of the Eastern Roman Empire. He dreams that he can play Constantine, and at the same time lead the Mohammedans in a "jehad," or holy war, against Christianity. Intelligent Mohammedans laugh at his pretensions. They know, as he does not know, that the world has moved since the days of Mohammed.

To Roman Catholics the idea of the Kaiser playing Pope, trying to be the sacred and secular head of the Holy Roman Empire, Pope and Emperor, must be equally amusing. The Kaiser would be glad to assume the headship of the Roman Catholic Church as one of his numerous activities. He conceives himself as the head of the Roman Empire of the West and the Roman Church of the East, chief of the Roman Catholic Church and chief of Islam. This is the bee, or rather the swarm of bees, that is buzzing in his bonnet. History, instead of informing him and broadening him, has filled his imagination with insane and perilous dreams.—Toronto Star.

GIFTS OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

THE Quebec Branch of the Navy League is forwarding gifts of fruits and vegetables to the vessels of the fleet in the North Sea, and has asked for contributions, particularly of apples, which are very acceptable. The distribution is carried out in Great Britain by the Vegetable Products Committee, the President of which is Admiral Lord Beresford. This committee up to May 30th of this year has supplied over 3,000,000 lbs. of fresh fruits and vegetables, besides thousands of special packages for Christmas, all of which have gone to His Majesty's warships in the North Sea fleet.

Ontario growers can well afford to help in this good work. A few boxes of choice apples from many orchards would mean much to the sailors, who get no fresh fruit whatever, except what they pay for out of their own pockets. The strain and exposure which these men are now undergoing call not only for our deepest sympathy but for something more tangible. Try your hand at wrapping and packing a few boxes from your orchard this fall and send them prepaid on to Quebec with your good wishes. The honorary secretary is R. R. Scott, 1 College Court, St. Ann Street, Quebec.

Fruit For the Army Hospitals

The Ontario Government is shipping apples regularly to the Canadian wounded in the hospitals of Great Britain and France. Already a half carload of Duchess has been forwarded and two carloads of Wealthy and Ribston are awaiting shipment. These will be followed by carloads of winter varieties from time to time as ships are available. About 5,000 boxes in all will be sent over to the London office for distribution.

The fruit is being wrapped and packed in boxes in the usual way, the only difference being the banding of the ends over the cleats with iron to further strengthen them against breakage when being transhipped from cold storage in London to the various hospitals. The Fruit Branch of the Department is selecting and packing the fruit, much of which is coming from the experimental orchards of the Department at Whitby, Paris, Wellington and Collingwood.

In addition to the fresh fruit, the Government is sending 30,000 gallons of canned peaches to the hospitals. This fruit is being put up at the Horticultural Station at Vineland, where an experimental cannery is operated as part of the equipment of the farm. Most of the fruit used is grown in the orchards there but will be supplemented from the commercial orchards of the Niagara District. — Fruit Branch Circular.

A curious tree grows in one of the numerous islands which are studded about the Pacific Ocean. It grows, at its full height, to nearly thirty feet, with branches spreading like a huge umbrella, yet it is completely leafless, the species having never been known to show signs of a single bud. Its sap is useful as a medical property, but as fuel the wood is worse than useless.

This year's wheat crop in Canada is a total of 396,830,800 bushels from 12,986,400 acres, representing an average yield per acre of 23.78 bushels. This total is 147,550,800 bushels, or 91 per cent. in excess of last year's inferior yield of 161,280,000 bushels, 77,122,800 bushels or 33 per cent. in excess of the previous highest yield of 241,747,000 bushels in 1913, and 112,814,800 bushels, or 56 per cent. in excess of the annual average yield of 196,026,000 bushels for the five years, 1910 to 1914.

Taking Due Precautions.

Little Albert, son of a minister, was intensely afraid of thunder. One afternoon in July he was caught in what promised to be a severe electrical storm. His father saw him dash for home, and noticed that his lips were moving as he ran. As he got safely into the house his father soothed his fear and then asked:

"What were you saying, Albert?"

Albert shuddered: "Oh," he replied; "I was just reminding God that I am a minister's son."

RELIEF WORK

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—Miss Crystal Macmillan is one of the active women of the world who will make Toronto her home for the next few days. Miss Macmillan, who is a tall woman, with a capable and kindly face and the bright color which Scotland gives its own, is a graduate of Edinburg University. Some years ago Miss Macmillan gained a great deal of prominence by pleading before the House of Lords the right of women graduates to vote in the election of "university members of Parliament. But perhaps in the eyes of Canadians her most noteworthy achievements so far was the large share she took in the alleviation of distress shortly after the outbreak of war.

Finding on the day of the fall of Antwerp that thousands of refugees were in Flushing and its vicinity practically without food, Miss Macmillan and a staff recruited from the membership of the International Women's Relief Association besieged Government, Home Office, customs officials and officers of the port of London, prevailed upon them to cut all red tape in connection with the embargo on the exportation of food, and the usual dues, and between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. they loaded a boat with £300 worth of food and despatched it to the hungry people. "One of the items of the first day's load," said Miss Macmillan, when seen at the King Edward last night, "was 20,000 pounds of bread, and within a few days we had sent across more than £4,000 worth of supplies."

There is supreme satisfaction in knowing just what you want, and getting it. There is very great lack of satisfaction in not knowing exactly what you want and getting something you are not quite sure of. If you will read the advertising columns, you will probably find just what you want, and where to get it. The makers and sellers of things, good to eat or to wear, do not make any mystery of their business. MENNEN HAS TRIPLED CANADIAN ADVERTISING

(From Printers' Ink, Issue of September 30, 1915)

When a few weeks ago Colonel J. B Maclean, president of the Maclean Publications of Toronto, expressed his optimism regarding trade conditions in Canada there were some who believed that he was overenthusiastic However, an American corporation, the Gerhard Mennen Chemical Company, of Newark, N. J., has found conditions there to be even better than the colonel stated.

At the time prospects seemed the darkest over the border, the Mennen Company tripled its advertising appropriation and determined to make an aggressive drive for the business in the Dominion.

So on July 15 copy began appearing in a campaign which included newspapers and trade journals, besides direct work on the dealers. Already the business of the Mennen Company in Canada has been increased 40 to 45 per cent., and from the outlook the growth will be continued.

The main drive has been in the newspapers, although several thousand dollars have been spent in the trade papers and in direct matter. The entire appropriation is estimated by W. A. McDermid, sales and advertising manager, at $13,500. The campaign has been scheduled to run until the latter part of the winter.

The Mennen Company has been in business in Canada for 15 years, but never has added to its business so rapidly as during the present campaign. For ten years the company has operated a factory in the Dominion. Mr. McDermid is a Canadian and is familiar with the market in Canada, as well as enthusiastic about the wonderful possibilities of keeping a business pace in step with the great growth of the population which is certain to come.

In discussing reports which have been circulated about Canada during the last few months, Mr. McDermid remarked

"Although there have been statements asserting that Canadian immigration has fallen off, we have authentic figures to show that such is not the case. In one province alone there has been an increase of nearly 500 per cent. in the population.

"The results which we have obtained during our present campaign verify my opinion of the wonderful trade possibilities in the Dominion. When others were retiring from the field, sure that a trade crash would result from war conditions, we tripled our advertising efforts and our big increase in business shows that we had the right idea."

Striking newspaper copy has been a feature of the campaign. The advertising has a punch in it, although Mr. McDermid stated that the campaign was written almost overnight. It was prepared with the assistance of a Canadian agency man (Mr. A. J. Denne, of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency.

through until January or February of next year.

They Sound Alike, Anyway

"No man is so well-known as he thinks he is," says Enrico Caruso, the world-famed tenor. "While motoring in New York State," continued the great singer, "the automobile broke down and I sought refuge in a farmhouse while the car was being repaired. I became friendly with the farmer, who asked me my name, and I told him it was Caruso.

"The farmer leaped to his feet, and seized me by the hand. 'Little did I think I would see a man like you in this here humble kitchen, sir!' he exclaimed: 'Caruso! The great travellier, Robinson Caruso.'"—Ladies Home Journal.

Third Brigade Canadian Artillery in Loos Fight

Artillery Unit to Which a Number of Peterborough Boys Are Attached Figured in Important Engagement—Gunner Writes of How it Was Pushed into British Line.

BELGIUM, Sept. 30—It is a bleak, sodden, gusty day, when the soldier is wet and cold, with the land under mud where it isn't under water. For several days past we have been afflicted with what we call in the "argot" of the district, "tres mauvais temps."

You will not be surprised at my undue dilation on that universal topic, "the weather," when I tell you that admist this meteorological misery our battery is homeless. Funny, isn't it, to expect otherwise in the fighting line, but the explanation is as follows. No matter where a battery goes into action, if the position is maintained for anything more than a day or two, the gunners and drivers begin to dig in and make more or less comfy habitations. Up to a matter of three weeks ago we—the 3rd Brigade Artillery — had been in action in the quiet part of the firing line for several weeks, with the result that a regular gypsy encampment had sprung up around the guns and further back around the horse lines.

Pushed Into British Line.

Suddenly the brigade moved out one night, and, alone of the Canadian artillery, was pushed into the British line several miles away to take part in the big offensive which resulted in the magnificent victory of a week ago.

On the conclusion of the fighting in that quarter, we came back to the old position to find that our collections of "dug-outs," "bivvys," "shacks," and other "homesteads" was no more. Some newly-arrived "bunch" had come into the neighborhood in our absence, and had lifted every brick and sandbag in the billet. The lurid language this scene of desolation on a dark, wet night called forth from some of our impressibles I forbear to repeat. But, of course, was is not quite a holiday outing.

When the order came along that the 3rd Artillery Brigade (which includes Toronto and Hamilton batteries) were to pull out and go into action alongside British batteries in another part of the line, we wondered what was in the wind. It had not been the practise to split up the divisions, and, of course, Dame Rumour immediately commenced her rounds, "We're going to the base, boys, to get new guns, sure"—and such-like yarns, until in the dead of night we found ourselves "manhandling" the guns into the new position, aided considerably by the German flare-lights.

Ammunition and Rations.

The waggon lines of the various batteries were at first placed too far back, owing to the difficulty of finding accommodation for so many ammunition waggons and teams, every available space of ground being occupied by troops. Next day, however, a daylight reconnaissance revealed a spot where the brigade waggon-lines could be accommodated within easier reach of their batteries for the sending up of ammunition and rations.

"Ammunition and rations" two easily-written words, but covering a huge amount of work —without the former your guns cannot talk, and minus the latter the gunners become "non est." Rations and forage are, of course, the business of the Army Service Corps, and when the 3rd Artillery Brigade cut loose from the Canadian Division for the big fight a section of the Canadian Army Service Corps established a forward post from which they were able to send supplies daily to the brigade waggon-lines.

It then became the duty of said waggon-lines to get rations to the guns —often a perilous job. In this particular position the roads were well registered by the enemy, and those leading to the gun-emplacements were specially marked and shelled.

Under Heavy Fire Once.

It was my duty to go in charge of the transport party taking the daily trip up to the guns, and we were fortunate, indeed, in only coming under heavy fire once —the only result of that being to bury a shell splinter in the waggon. Narrow escapes, however, do not count nowadays. Time was—as sucklings of war—when we recounted how "this shell just missed me," or "that bullet went through my water bottle," but now we neither talk of nor care to listen to accounts of "near" things. Not that we are callous to narrow escapes, for I believe a fellow in his heart registers a word of gratitude to his Divine Preserver at such a moment.

There is, however, a danger in becoming too careless or, rather, too cock-sure, where the shells are concerned. Round the gun position I have referred to the shells "plunked and burst everwhere but in the emplacements themselves. Emergency tracks had been made from the battery, or rather indicated by white pegs, across grass-land and turnip field, so as to avoid a very dangerous cross road.

Gunners Picked Blackberries.

On one occasion, leaving the battery with a huge, piled-up load of empty shells, we found the mangold field was sodden and the going heavy. The transport man and I, therefore, walked behind, leaving the driver up to guide the team to the hard road.

The blackberries were very tempting, and we picked them as we followed the waggon. Suddenly we heard a big shell coming nearer than the others had done. Like silly goats we stood erect listening, expecting each instant the sound to die away to one flank or the other. Yelling "Duck," we bobbed on the instant as the horrible thing flew just overhead — certainly giving us both a lesson in over-confidence. That little experience could not have happened six months ago, for at the first hideous screech of the approaching shell we'd have ducked and taken no chances.

Regarding that big load of eighteen-pound shell cases, this was on the second day of the big fight, and already it was known to the folk in the nearby villages that the Germans were this time being "strafed," and as we passed along the significant pile of smoke-begrimed brass cases brought the simple folk to their doors with gesticulations of wonder and delight, that there was some tangible evidence that the "Allemagnes" were getting it with a vengeance.

Good Things To Eat.

I see that the censor had a gentle rap at one of the boys for overdoing the heroic strain in a letter home. One soldier wrote "We live on bully and biscuits, but we do not mind this for it is part of the soldiers' life." When the letter arrived home it had the following note by the censor added to it. "Your correspondent has neglected to mention that he also receives bread, bacon, potatoes, fresh beat, jam, butter, and cheese." Surely a sarcastic hint that there is no need to paint the picture blacker than need be. The censor might have extended his list and given some of the wonderful variety of pabulum which have at one time or another, graced our al fresco board, viz Honey, currants, raisins, prunes, carrots, onions, dates, treacle, etc. Incidentally we have also had fly-papers, candles, insect powder, disinfecting fluid, etc., issued. From all of which you will gather that the Canadian A.S.C. deal in a multiplicity of goods.

A Spy Round Up.

Quite a neat little spy round-up was made close to our billet during the late offensive movement. A barber had a little place on the main road. With him were two grown-up sons and a dog. Loquacious with his soldier customer and much of his conversation leading to unsuspecting Tommies, giving him information useful to an enemy), he was watched with the result that he was discovered to be in communication with the Germans by means of smoke signals or the dog. The last we saw of him was when he was marched off under guard, accompanied by his two lads and the dog.

The lid is on pretty tight now so far as promiscuous travelling on the roads leading to and from the fighting line go. Portrait passes are necessary for civilians, and only soldiers on duty are permitted to proceed. And at night woe betide you if you do not instantly halt and have your answer ready.

I hope it will not betray any secret to tell you of a trifling contretemps of the other night. It was dark and wet. The roads were very bad. Just outside our lines we heard a lot of shouting and horses struggling. We found—what do you think?—a bunch of the second contingent with a waggon ditched. We got one of our horses and a rope and sent them on their way rejoicing.

Hit Enemy Magazine.

Again referring to the recent operations, we saw some splendid shooting by the British batteries near to us, one especially being a direct hit on an enemy magazine, the splash being terrific. As a Canadian brigade we were pleased to hear the general, to whose division we were temporarily attached, had said very complimentary things about our Canadian gunners.

A heavy white frost greeted us this morning — though from our shivers during the night we rather expected it. Many of the boys are getting twinges of rheumatism, but it's all in the day's work.

Wait until we are comfortably housed in Potsdam.

Cooking for the Children

Children crave cakes and cookies—and they ought to have them—in moderation.

The use of Crisco in making such cakes and cookies helps to keep the children in good health.

CRISCO
For Frying-For Shortening
For Cake Making

Crisco digests so easily that it puts no strain whatever upon the digestive organs.

It melts at a temperature below that of the body, and therefore is readily assimilated.

It is made of the cream of the highest grade vegetable oil, and is as pure as human ingenuity can make it.

For the children's sake, and for your own, you ought to give Crisco a trial.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood forming qualities of Dr Chase's Nerve Food, and by its use flood the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefit.

PERVERSITY PROVERBIAL

The perversity of mankind is proverbial. In his church magazine this month the Rev. D. P. M'Leod, North Parish Church, Stirling, complains that so many people are anxious to get sittings in the back pews, and will even stay away from the church altogether if their wishes are not gratified. Why all this desire to be at the back of the church, he asks, when in the theatre everybody wants to be at the front?

Don't Forget!

Tea and coffee contain the drug, caffeine—from 1½ to 8 grains to the average cup.

Some people use tea or coffee for years and either forget or don't know that caffeine is a cumulative poison, working away in the system, insidiously undermining and destroying health.

Some of the signs are headache, heart flutter, sleeplessness, biliousness, and various stomach, kidney and liver troubles.

Of course, if one prefers his tea and coffee, and is willing to put up with these "comforters," why—keep right on!

But, if one values health and real comfort, and at the same time would enjoy a delicious, wholesome beverage, the thing to do is to quit both tea and coffee and use

A PLEASANT ENTERTAINMENT IN COLEMAN'S PARLOURS

Some of the Men of the 93rd Battalion Feted--Military Serenade of the Newly-wed Lieut. and Mrs. Grahame

Under the auspices of Canon Davidson and several of the more prominent laymen of St. John's Anglican Church a very successful smoking concert I was going to say, but as the whole affair was impromptu, without any set programme, a better term would be free and easy, was held, last evening at Coleman's Palm Parlours, on George Street. The affair was arranged as a reception for such members of the 93rd Battalion as make use of the spiritual advantages offered by St. John's Church.

The room was filled by the men in khaki and the laymen. Canon Davidson, Rector of St. John's, was chairman, and among the laymen present were Messrs. F. Kerr, Frank Linton, Stewart, Scadding, Coleman, R. J. Devey, Cyril Devey, F. Russell, A. Kingdon, R. Fair, Roberts, Major Ackerman, Pidgeon, &c., &c. Mr. W. F. Johnstone and H. Morphet sent expressions of regret at their inability to be present.

The Chairman opened the proceedings by some warm patriotic remarks. Pte. Sam Taylor gave a "step-dance," which received great applause. Sergeant Hartshorne played a violin solo in good style, Mr. C. Devey accompanying this artist; in fact this young gentleman played most of the accompaniments of the evening. Canon Davidson sang a song receiving much applause.

Mr. Arthur Kingdon, whom the Chairman spoke of as a friend of young men, brought his gramophone, and at intervals, amused those assembled with songs, recitations, &c. Sergeant Hartshorne sang, in good form, "Sons of the Sea," accompanied by Mr R. J. Devey.

And, of course, there were speeches. Mr F. Kerr was extremely happy in his remarks. He eulogized the British Navy, which ruled the waves, and gained great applause when he told his audience that on the arrival of a British transport in a French port, the French soldiers immediately sang "Rule Britannia." Mr. Kerr then followed with a recitation.

Then the men in khaki were asked to give their names, and say where they came from and what they thought of Peterborough, and their opinions, generally, were certainly favourable to our fair city. There were men from Lakefield, Keene, Millbrook, Bethany, Campellford, and other places.

Then came more speeches, as the Chairman called on most of those present.

Mr Robert Fair remarked that it was a great thing for St John's that one of their members Lieut. Col Mills should be in charge of a battalion. Hearty cheers were given for the gallant Colonel, and the audience sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The chairman then observed that although this was a reception to those attending St John's, it was not for a moment to be supposed that the various religious bodies in the city were in competition. On the contrary, they were all working together. Each communion would endeavour to remain in the happy fellowship existing between them, and this was only a little effort to express their fellowship with the men in the battalion who attended St. John's Church.

Mr. Scadding thought that the men of the county had turned out splendidly, but they needed more than physical strength; they must look to God for help and assistance, for they were fighting under the banner of the Cross. He urged as many as could to attend the quiet devotional service of intercession held daily at St. John's Church at 5.15 p.m., which had been carried on for nearly two months. There were, said he, some who had been present at every one of these intercessory services. He had received a letter from a soldier in the trenches, enclosing a flower, and the writer said that, making allowances for the difference in time, they knew that at a certain hour they were being remembered by their fellows. We may not always see God's ways, and in facing brutes we need and want God's help. Go to Church by all means on Sunday, but try to go on week days as well.

Mr Frank Linton said how glad they were to extend the hand of fellowship, and glad to see so many of the "boys" in his Church.

Mr R. J. Devey said this was not a time for talking, but doing, and the men and women of Peterborough were doing well. There was not a patriotic meeting for miles round but what some Saint John's men were among the speakers. There is work for all, whether we can go to the front or not. The hearts of the St John's people were throbbing for our boys at the front and it will be shown to those who return what we think of the sacrifice they have made to right a wrong.

Mr. F. Russell said he felt proud to be among such a fine body of fellows. He knew that the Britishers would give a good account of themselves and from what he had seen of the Canadians he felt sure that they would not only do the same but try their best to, if possible, to go one better.

Major Ackerman, brother of Charles, said he had two brothers at the front, and hopes to be there himself.

Mr Stewart followed, remarking that Peterborough was proud of the men, and it gave him much pleasure to be among them.

Refreshments were then served and tales, yarns, anecdotes, and choruses to the tune of about a thousand and one, were indulged in.

The chairman then announced that just before the gathering he had united two young people in the bonds of holy matrimony, Gordon H. Grahame of Lakefield, as a private, went to the front, where he had the misfortune to break his arm, and was sent to the field hospital. He "jumped" the hospital to get into the firing line, for which he was promoted on the field, to Lieutenant. He was that night married to Miss A. Grieve, a soldier's daughter married to a soldier, and he proposed a military serenade.

Accordingly, at the termination of the festivities, after the National Anthem had been sung, those present filed out of the room and fell in company formation on George Street, numbered off, formed fours, and, singing "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" marched, some fifty strong, to Mr. Grieve's house, on Brock Street. Here the happy couple were serenaded, "Rule Britannia," "O Canada," "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" &c were heartily sung. Lieut. Gordon H and Mrs. Grahame came out, inspected the Company and shook hands with each and every one, receiving the heartiest congratulations.

Thus ended at about 11.15 p.m. one of the pleasantest imaginable evenings. Every one appeared to thoroughly enjoy himself. Some generous donors of a couple of boxes of cigars contributed materially to the success of the evening. F. R.

Advice Unheeded And Death, etc.

keep my head up in one place so long if I were you." He said. "Oh, I've just come up from headquarters, and I'm taking a few pot-shots at the 'sausage-eaters.'" I said, "well, may be you know best, but to me it looks too much like 'asking for it'." Five minutes after he had crossed the Great Divide. The bullet had passed through his head, entering below the eye and coming out behind the ear.

Only Eighteen Now Remain.

Did I tell you in my last letter that out of the original eleven hundred which we came out with we now have one hundred and eight in our battalion? Of the one hundred and thirty that marched away that August morning last year, about eighteen now remain. New faces have replaced those who have gone to their last rest, having fought the good fight and gave all they had to give. Yes, mother, I am in the best of health, and have a lot to be thankful for, and sure am, too. Have been in some hot spots, and at times when dug-outs were blown to pieces I would say to myself when I would hear the next shell coming, "this must be mine." Our trench would be swept all the way down with shells and it would be a case of sit tight and, at times, stop breathing. One can hear those big shells coming for quite a while with a peculiar whistling and screeching sound and if very close a stop, a blinding flash, and then, crash, bang, crash, and much dirt flying all directions when the shelling dies down out we come, and shake ourselves just like rabbit out of a hole. Sometimes you'd fail to recognize me especially when it's wet, as it is a case of mud from head to foot, but who minds a little mud. Heard a good one the other night when the rations were being issued. One fellow was handing the other a loaf of bread and it dropped out of his hand into the mud. The handee said "Oh" but there was no storm of protest from the other as he merely remarked "Oh, never mind a trifling matter like that. I've eaten half of my second peck of dirt now." You know that adage about "you have to eat a peck of dirt before you die."

Slightly wounded.

October 12, 1915.

Well, mother, here I am again. Had to go on guard last night and came off at 6 a.m. to-day. Have a little more news now. When I came off I thought, well I won't awaken Noel and Bunkall and will make the breakfast, for we were all due for a fatigue at 8 a.m. Had just made the tea and started to cook the bacon when the Huns shot over a high explosive rifle grenade and it hit in the trench where I was, about five feet away. Needless to say the concussion knocked me flying, and for a minute or two all I could remember was seeing a bright flash almost blinding, and a deafening roar. Gee! it was sudden and I was in the midst of a black smoke. Am quite sure now that the days of miracles are not passed, for I cannot understand how I was not "fluffed out." Noel got an inch hole through his thigh, and two others in the next dug-out about six or eight wounds each. All three have gone down the line to hospitals. All I got was a few splinters of iron in the back of my hand, and some in the face. Went to No. 2 Field Ambulance and was inoculated against blood-poison, and am now waiting to go back up to the scene of hostilities again. My canteen, on the fire, was blown to atoms, and a piece of shrapnel passed through the wood part of my rifle. About five other canteens nearby were riddled and looked more like a sieve than anything. Don't know where the meat I was cooking disappeared to, but the fire went instantly. Now you don't need to worry mother, for I am quite all right, and surely thankful it was not worse than it was. Will have to stop now. Give my love to all at home, as if named.

Your loving son,

Roscoe.

WHILE ITALY TRUSTED TEUTONS PREPARATIONS FOR ATTACK WENT ON FOR YEARS

ITALIAN FRONT, Oct. 28.—From Riva di Trento to Ala, and from Caporetto to Monfalcone on the Adriatic; the Austrian border tells Austria's plans against Italy.

A statesman would say Austria's long-caressed dreams of eliminating Italy as a factor in Balkan politics, her determination to rule without rival or competitor over the small nations and ultimately reach the goal of her dreams—an outlet on the Ionian Sea—is unmistakably reflected on her south-eastern border.

As an ally, Italy had never considered the possibility of an attack on Austria. During the last fifteen years she has even renounced to the Trentin and done everything in her power to discourage the irredentist propaganda, devoting all her energies and economic resources to the development of her industries and commerce.

Knew Clash Was Near.

But not Austria. Pressed on her eastern border by Russia, whose political penetration in the Balkans, as mother of the Slav people, tended to wrest from Austria the long-held sceptre of political and economic supremacy, she knew the day of the clash was approaching.

Consequently, Austria prepared for the day, quietly and stealthily, while Italy trusted her duplicity. Every now and then, when the construction of a new fort provoked a cry of alarm, it was Germany that reassured the Italian statesmen. Germany had solemnly promised Italy Austria would never attack her—she would use her influence to settle every dangerous question that might have arisen between the two nations. Germany was sincere. Austria would never attack Italy unless the latter became an obstacle against the realization of her ambitious projects of political and territorial aggrandizement. In the meanwhile precautions were never too many.

The work of fortifying the Trentin and Istrian border went merrily on for years. Austria spent hundreds of millions in public works in the Italian unredeemed province, but these works had always a military side to them.

All For Military Uses.

Roads were built, but they were, above all, military roads. Power houses were erected for the electric lighting of entire valleys, but they were also needed by the entrenched camps nearby and the forts on the mountains. Railroads were built, but they were chiefly intended for mobilization purposes.

As the Italian Staff is learning at the expense of hundreds of Italian lives, these roads were laid along the most easily defended route. The Austrian Alpine Club built scores of Alpine refuges, innocent, useful little huts, either on the top of the mountains or on their slopes, but, as the war has proved, they were either observation or advanced posts.

Some of the huts to which mountain climbers, when caught in a snow storm, owe their life, successfully defend now the advance of the Italian troops. Many of them are carefully concealed behind walls of rock and the day war was declared, a copper wire connected them with the nearest military command, a small garrison with several thousand hand grenades and a few mitrailleuses took charge of them and they became small forts capable of holding back a whole division.

Beside the refuges Austrians built numberless hotels, patronized by the aristocracy and the middle class of the Dual Monarchy, but it was the General Staff that indicated the right spot where to build them. They are housing now whole regiments.

Dolomite an Example.

A typical example of the Trentin stategical road is the so-called Dolomite road which runs through the seventeen valleys. Tourists had a weakness for this highway for its picturesqueness, the unsurpassable, almost unique diorama of snow-topped peaks, green valleys, emerald rivers and lakes and small, white towns.

This road cost Austria a colossal sum. It runs a few miles from the Italian border and it was built to facilitate the movements of troops from valley to valley. This road is defended by dozens of fortified peaks which in their turn are defended by numerous lower peaks on which fortifications have been strewn with lavish hands from the Lake of Landro to Trent. The Geierwand, 6,000 feet high; Mount Cristallo, 9,000; the three Tofanes, averaging 9,000 each; the Averau, which is like a tower accessible only from the Austrian side, and the Col Lans are a few of the colossi whose fortifications guard the road against the invading army.

The Tomale road is another typical example. It runs through the Adamello group of mountains and is guarded by dozens of small and large forts. The same thing could be said about the Belluno-Toblach road and the Gorizia Tarvis, the first of which is guarded by Mount Tarvis fortifications, while the second runs through an uninterrupted series of entrenched camps.

Sapper Will Holdcroft Writes Interesting Letter From the Trenches

(From Havelock Standard)

The following interesting letter was received last week by Mrs. Holdcroft:

Belgium, Oct. 10.

Dear Mother,—I got back from the trenches on Saturday morning, after going out there again on Tuesday last. The fatigue party did not show up until late so I did not get much work done and the men went home at 4 o'clock. I then did a little scouting around and located a walnut tree. By means of crawling on my "tummy" I reached it and collected half a sand bag of walnuts, the kind you buy at Christmas. I came back after dark that night and shook down about two sand bags more of nuts, but when I got a few moments next day and went to get them I found some other guy had beaten me to it. I got quite a bit of work done Wednesday. I had a lawyer's clerk, a stenographer, several real estate agents, a couple of lumber jacks and a prospector in the party. The engineers have orders not to do any work themselves and I do not discuss that kind of an order. The infantry men used to laugh at us in England when we would start off with picks and shovels in the morning to the trenches, but the laugh is on our side now, and some of them do get sore. M. Colts automatic is very handy as I do not have to carry a rifle when I have a revolver. We had just finished supper when we heard the Germans artillery open up. Some one yelled, "Here comes a wagon load," in nine shell a dozen shells in quick succession. Everybody made a rush for the dugout. One burst in the air about thirty feet away and the rest hit the ground about 100 yards farther down. Outside of kicking up a frightful racket they did no damage. They sound like an express train coming and then "Bang" which beats thunder forty ways. I got three 5 inch shell nose and some shrapnel bullets which I am saving for souvenirs. You can hear the shells coming for some time before they burst. They call the 5 inch shells "whiz-bangs," because of the noise they make. The "coal boxes" make more noise and the earth is black when they burst and you could bury a horse in the hole they make. But the "black Johnsons" make a noise like an express train and when they burst they shake the earth for hundreds of yards and you could put a team of horses and a wagon in the hole they make. However a person is quite safe as they drop flat in a hole when they hear them coming and no one hesitates going that mad or no mad.

Friday I had my party packing satchels from the stores to the front line. It's a tiresome job up and down the communication trench and I think I know every bend in it now. Friday evening we got out and at 7 o'clock what war really is. At 5.45 the Germans blew up a mine, destroying 15 feet of front line trench. The bombs and bullets fairly flew and when our artillery opened up you could hear yourself think. It lasted about one and a half hours and even in the trenches they were going to make a charge but they didn't. Our fellows wanted to jump over the parapet and rush them but the officers would not let them. Of course we were at attention when it started so nobody got hurt, but it gave us an idea of what real war means.

I got home on Saturday morning, saw Clarence and had a bath, yesterday. Say I see you are collecting fruit for soldiers. I know a way that is very fond of fruit, jam, etc., which he seldom sees in Belgium and anything you want to send over will come in handy. You see you'd better send it soon so that it will not miss it with the parcel you are sending at Christmas.

Well I must close now as it is getting late. Write a long letter. I get back to the trenches in nine days in Tuesday morning.

Good-bye,

BILL.

Record Yield Market Produce

Norwood Man Produces Two Crops on One Piece of Land

NORWOOD, Oct. 28.—Mr. F. W. Wilkins, Norwood, who makes quite a study of gardening, has obtained a yield from a plot in his garden, which for quality and quantity, would be hard to surpass. The plot in question is the 25th part of an acre. Two crops were grown on it this season. The first crop was onions and the yield was 3 1/2 bushels. Many of the onions measured from three to four inches in diameter. After the crop had been harvested, cabbages to the extent of fifty heads were raised on the plot. Worth about $40 the yield from an acre if sold at the lowest probable market price would amount to considerably over $1,000.

COLLEGE MAN ESCAPES DEATH AS A SPY

WOOSTER, Ohio, Oct. 28.—Prof. Dan C. Parmalee, instructor in German at Wooster college, a graduate of Oberlin and a native of Vermont, Ohio, narrowly escaped being shot as a spy in Germany shortly after the outbreak of the present war, friends have just learned.

Prof. Parmalee was trying to get out of Germany after war was declared, but trains were all being used to transport troops. While standing for hours at one railway station, his actions aroused suspicion. He was arrested, jailed and was to be shot at dawn. A sergeant-major, a guard, dabbled him to get a message through to the American consul, and an answer was received in time to save his life.

FALL FROM A LOAD OF HAY WILL PROVE FATAL

Patrick Quillen, of Ops Township Sustains a Broken Neck—Did Not Lose Consciousness

WILL NOT RECOVER

LINDSAY, Oct 28—A serious accident occurred at the residence of John O'Reilly, Lindsay, when Patrick Quillen, a well known resident of Ops Township, sustained injuries which will probably terminate fatally.

The unfortunate man had come to town during the afternoon with a load of hay for delivery to Mr O'Reilly's. Mr Hennessey, who is employed by Mr O'Reilly, went over to the stable with Mr Quillen to assist him in unloading. The load had been drawn up close to the stable and Mr Quillen who was on top, has either reached out to catch the barn door to unloosen the chain on the load, or he was seized with a weak spell, for he was seen by Mr O'Reilly's son, who was in a field nearby to fall from the load between the waggon and the barn. He at once hurried to the scene, and with Mr Hennessey's assistance, Mr Quillen was carried into Mr O'Reilly's residence and cared for until the arrival of Dr Barichard and Monsignor Casey.

Examination of his injuries revealed the fact that the unfortunate man's neck was broken and that his body was paralyzed from the neck downward. He did not lose consciousness, however. Mrs Quillen and one of her sons, who was in town, were sent for and Mr. Quillen made his will and received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church before being removed to the Ross Hospital in the ambulance.

Enquiries at the hospital have elicited the fact that Mr Quillen, though conscious, is sinking fast. The members of his family are with him most of the time, and his death is only a matter of a short time.

The unfortunate man is 67 years of age.

DEAF AND DUMB ARE RESTORED

Belgians Alone Do Not Yield to Treatment, Says American Physician.

Dr. J. Elliott Rever, a neurologist, of Kansas City, Mo., who returned yesterday on the American liner St Paul, told of the surgical marvels accomplished in British war hospitals.

"I was persuaded to join the Kinmorge and National Hospital in London shortly after the war broke out," he said. "In this hospital only those soldiers who have been stricken deaf, dumb or blind by shell concussions are treated.

"These men, who have not been hit, come in droves. The percentage of recoveries is very high and the average treatment three months.

"One remarkable exception resulted from the inability of the Belgian soldiers to respond to the treatment. We have been very much puzzled over it. We don't know why, but it seems to be something in their nature, and we couldn't do much with them."

KINDNESS BRINGS BIG FORTUNE TO 2 SISTERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 28—For thoughtful courtesies extended to her in her declining days, Mrs. Marie Becker bequeathed the bulk of her $250,000 estate to Emma Monet and Clementine Monet.

Although eighty years old when she died Mrs Becker was remarkably alert until the end. Her friends often made the trip over from their home and never failed to bring delicacies with them, and while in the house did many little tactful things that won the heart of the aged woman. There was a close tie of language, too, as all spoke French.

GERMANS EMPLOY SWISS GIRLS TO ACT AS SPIES

LONDON, Oct. 27—Describing how German spies are obtained and the alluring offers that are made to girls in this connection, a Zurich correspondent writes:

"There is a German espionage centre at Berne, working in close touch with and to a certain extent under the supervision of the German Minister there, but its operations to avoid any interference by the Swiss authorities. German agents are stationed in other Swiss towns; some of them hover in the vicinity of the French and Italian frontiers trying to pick up scraps of useful information; others watch the trains from Switzerland to Germany; others try to ascertain who and what pass along the direct route from and to the allied countries; others again, find and encourage Swiss women and girls to act as spies.

"An advertisement is inserted in the Swiss newspapers offering some kind of remunerative employment abroad, application to be made in writing to an address that inspires confidence. In due course the applicant, who seems to the advertiser to be a possible spy, receives a summons to Zurich or Berne or Geneva, as the case may be; the German agent then sizes up his caller and if he is satisfied he enlightens her on the work required, offering a rate of payment likely to overcome her fears and scruples.

"In some cases the Swiss woman is sent direct to some post awaiting her in one of the allied countries; either the employer is a subject of that country of German origin in league with the German Secret Service or there is an organization in the capital for filling vacancies for governesses, nurses, teachers, waitresses, etc., with neutral women who are German spies. In other cases the woman has been sent to the destined country to find employment there, but as persons without a definite destination and purpose for entering the country now find entry difficult this method seems to have been dropped."

WITNESSES TELL OF BITTER QUARRELS BY THE CHARLTONS

COMO, Italy, Oct 28 Porter Charlton's physical condition showed improvement at the resumption of his trial for the murder of his wife. No further interruption is looked for and a verdict is expected by Tuesday or Wednesday.

Twenty witnesses were interrogated. Among them were hotelkeepers, boatmen, porters, physicians, a druggist, a milkman and the owner of the house in which the Charltons were living at the time Mrs. Charlton met her death.

The witnesses gave contradictory testimony concerning the mode of life of the Charltons and their quarrels.

Some thought the couple's differences of opinion were spats, others spoke of them as violent quarrels. Some thought Charlton dominated his wife; others that she controlled him completely. The testimony related to events which led up to the tragedy.

Mr. R. C. Braund Gets Contract For Groceries and Provisions To Be Supplied the Soldiers

It was learned to-day that the Militia Department had accepted the tender of Mr R C Braund for the following groceries and provisions to be supplied to the 93rd Battalion as soon as they go into barracks here: bacon, potatoes, beans, prunes, butter, cheese, salt, split peas, sugar, rolled oats, rice, pepper, milk, powder, yeast cake, Beans and Vegetables, including carrots, cabbage, onions, beets, parsnips, turnips. When approached by the Examiner, Mr. Braund confirmed the report, saying that he had received notification of the acceptance of his tender for the above articles to be supplied until March 31st.

It is evident that soldiers will be well fed in their barracks at the armouries during the winter.

What Happens to Your Quarter Given to Overseas Tobacco Fund

You bring your quarter in to The Examiner Office, or to one of the collectors. You are handed a book in which you write your name, address and amount given. This book is taken to Mr. R. W. Travers, Bank of Montreal, Treasurer of Fund. He checks up the total amount in book, receives the money and receipts the book and your quarter is in the bank. Your quarter is then used with the others to buy a Sterling draft made payable to Mr. Evelyn Wrench, Hon. Secretary Overseas Club, London, England. The collection book which has been receipted is turned in to the secretary of Peterborough Branch of the club. He copies your name and address on a postcard which, with the others is sent to Mr. Wrench, London, Eng. Your quarter is then used to pay for 1-4lb. tobacco, and 50 cigarettes, which have already been sent to England by Tuckett's Co., Hamilton, Ont. Your tobacco, cigarettes, postcard, and a box of matches are then made into one parcel, and are ready for the front. Your parcel is then put in a box with some of the other Peterborough parcels and the box is addressed to Peterborough Boys, 2nd Batt., 21st Batt., etc. The box is handed over to the Army Service Corp, who deliver it to the trenches. The officer in charge of Peterborough Boys has the box opened and hands out the parcels. These cards are just beginning to come back now, and some of them may be seen in the north window of Mr R. J. CITY'S APPEAL AGAINST AWARD TO PETERBORO' LIGHT AND POWER COMPANY HAS BEEN DISMISSED

Mr. Justice Britton has dismissed the appeal of the City of Peterborough against the award of the arbitrators in connection with the expropriation of the distributing system of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. of that city.

The city obtained a private act permitting the expropriation, subject to certain restrictions and proceeded with it in pursuance of the powers contained in the act. The arbitrators award of the power company nearly $161,000 and it was from this award that the city appealed.

Mr. Gordon's Statement.

The City Solicitor when asked what he thought about the judgment of the Honourable Mr. Justice Britton, said that it was simply another evidence of the uncertainty of litigation and that the last appeal usually wins. In answer to enquiry Mr Gordon said that the appeal of the arbitrators was launched before a single judge in Toronto, partly on account that the reasons and particulars of how the award was made could be secured from the Board of Arbitrators. They were requested to give these particulars but did not give them and in fact, one of the arbitrators was subpoenaed for examination but declined, without the consent of the others, to give the particulars, on the ground that he should not be called upon to give particulars and items without the consent of the other arbitrators. The matter then went on before the Honourable Mr. Justice Britton, who gave an interim judgment last August, and intimated that he should have the reasons for the award. The Board subsequently met and probably out of deference to the Honourable Mr. Justice Britton's request, gave a memorandum of what they said was not included in the award, but the particular items making up the award have not been given up to the present time. Mr Justice Britton simply does not make any findings upon the facts, according to the information I have, and the position is practically the same as when it was at the time the award was made.

Mr Gordon further stated that he was getting the material ready to place before the Mayor and Aldermen and to go into the particulars of the memorandum sent in by the arbitrators and also a certain memorandum given by one of the arbitrators in which figures are given, and once that was done, Mr Gordon said he did not feel like giving any details, as the Mayor and Council are first entitled to the information he had.

A KHAKI WEDDING

A wedding of unusual interest took place last evening in St John's church, when Miss Lillian deAlvarado Grieve, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Grieve, 55 Brock street, was united in marriage to Lieut. Gordon H. Grahame, son of the Hon. Lawrence Grahame of New York. The latter, who has been home on leave, has received orders to report for foreign service, so that the wedding, which was to have been of a private nature, was hurriedly arranged. Word was passed around and at seven-thirty o'clock last evening St John's church was well filled by a gathering of people who warmly entered into the romantic as well as the military phase of the occasion. The decorations were of a military nature. The marchment flag that was recently presented to St John's was draped over the doorway through which the bride and groom passed when leaving the church.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who is a retired officer of the British army. The bridesmaid was Miss Phyllis Cumberland who has two brothers in the Canadian forces, while the groom was supported by Captain Charles Ackerman. Both the bridegroom and best man appeared in military uniform, also Major J. C. Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

Impressive Service.

The service was of a most impressive nature and was entered into most warmly by the congregation. Mr R. J. Devey presided at the organ, the bride being a member of St John's choir. At the conclusion of the service Major Davidson added a few informal remarks, in which he referred to the national character of the event. Lieut. Grahame enlisted as a private from this district and had so distinguished himself on the field of battle that he was promoted to a lieutenancy, a distinction rarely attained on the field. He was supported by another soldier, in the person of Capt. Charles Ackerman, who had also rendered valuable service in the interest of his country. The bride was a daughter of a soldier, and by her many sweet maidenly qualities, had endeared herself to a large circle of friends.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding march was played on the organ, also Canada's national anthem, "O Canada," in recognition of the military service. This was followed by a most informal reception which was held at the residence of the bride's parents, Brock street.

Later in the evening the St John's members of the 93rd Battalion, who had been attending a reception, visited the residence of the bride's parents and serenaded the happy couple. They deployed in front of the house and sang "O Canada" and other military songs. The couple appeared on the verandah and Lieut Grahame made a short address of appreciation, after which they passed down the line shaking hands with each of the men. The event concluded with the singing of the National anthem.

GAS EXPLOSION

Cook and Maid Blown from Kitchen By Explosion Which Causes Blaze.

NEW YORK, Oct 22 — Judge John McAvoy, of the City Court and a son of Thomas F. McAvoy, veteran Tammany leader of the Twenty-third district, was waiting for dinner in his home, at No. 79 Haven avenue, when there was an explosion of gas in the kitchen range. The cook and a maid were blown out of the kitchen and Judge McAvoy was unseated.

Seeing that the kitchen was blazing, Judge McAvoy ran up stairs and gathered his wife and children, hurrying them to the street. While neighbours turned in an alarm he attacked the flames with buckets of water, servants forming a bucket brigade between the bathroom and the kitchen. By the time the firemen arrived the volunteers had the fire out, but the rear of the dwelling was badly seared.

WOMAN'S PLACE IS IN THE HOME BUT SO IS HER HEART AND DEEPEST SYMPATHIES

Mrs. Nellie McClung a Type of the Canadian Women Who Refused to Be Thwarted by the Ancient Prejudices Against Women Widening the Scope of Their Efforts

REVIEW OF HER ADDRESS

That the war has discovered and made manifest some of the fallacies in the generally accepted theories and traditions concerning woman's activities in the affairs of the state was one of the striking thoughts expressed by Mrs Nellie McClung in a fascinating address at George street Methodist church last night. One of the time-worn statements intended to discourage woman's interest in public matters assured her that she was fully protected. Hence on that point her efforts were unnecessary But Mrs. McClung pointed to the women of Belgium ,whose helplessness she emphasized; the women of the other countries have been the silent sufferers, giving their all in the sons they had borne and raised. Will any one dare to say, she asked, that women do not share to the full in the pains resulting from war?

If the old theory had worked out that the home-staying, loving, forgiving mother contributed the spirit and influence of chivalry to the race, then the German soldier should have been the most chivalrous of those engaged in the present war. It was said of Germany's women that they were the least contaminated with the new movement among women. The Kaiser had defined their spheres to the church, the kitchen and their children. And the German women were the best of housewives. They were patient, kind, loving, self-sacrificing, meek. According to the old theory their sons should have been the last to perpetrate the deeds that devastated and blackened Belgium and crushed and broke its people

"There is nothing the matter with that theory," said Mrs McClung conclusively, "except that it won't work."

Should Women Think.

Mrs McClung spoke under the auspices of the Peterborough Teachers' Guild, who are giving the proceeds for patriotic purposes. The George street church held a capacity crowd who were not only fascinated by the exceptional forensic ability shown by Mrs. McClung, but also impressed by her mental breadth and power and particularly by her evident knowledge of human nature, especially man's. She knows the feminine mind which she is striving to lead to heights commanding a wider vision, but she also knows the commonalty of man. Also she respects them even if she does satirize some of their conceits and smug complacency. She is avowedly working for a recognition of women's right to the franchise, but she never stoops to the methods of many of the opponents of this movement. There was a distinctly feminine touch to her address, but no febrile flights marred it. Her arguments were clearly presented, with here and there a rareness that suggested her western influences. If Mrs. McClung is a type of woman the new movement produces, there should be no hesitation in making easy the way to Parnassus.

The Women Who Work.

The women's movement is the present result of the gradual removal of woman's work from the home to the factory. Women are merely following it. Thirty per cent. of the women in the United States and Canada are wage earners. What a hypocrisy it is to say that they are protected. The women are feeling the shock of the changing economic conditions and the people might as well get used to the effects.

Women are told that they should place their dependence upon the chivalry of men. It has a pleasing and romantic sound. In the good old days women were worshipped, but it was also a hard and fast rule of chivalry that only the beautiful women were worshipped. They simply had to be beautiful. All the ugly women were put down as witches and were drowned in the ponds on holidays.

It was said of the movement that it would hurt woman, but no one will say that illiteracy is of any help to any woman anywhere. Her enforced entry into business life has taught women to be business-like and in that respect has done good. They have learned more of promptness, orderliness and the other essential qualities upon which business swings smoothly.

Should women think? The question presumes the ability to do so, a point Mrs. McClung referred to at the outset. They are thinking anyway. The Lord never gave women brains without intending that they should use them.

Set Your Value High.

The burden of Mrs. McClung's address was a plea to set a higher value upon themselves, for, she said, the world accepts you at your own valuation. Had the women of Germany insisted that they be respected, that their place in society be recognized, had they sat in the Reichstag holding an equal number of seats with the men, this war would not have taken place. Mrs. McClung drew an amusing picture of the German woman so sure of themselves and their positions as to have been able to say to the Kaiser, "Come, come William, forget it," when he proposed to plunge the nation into war.

Woman's Place the Home.

Mrs. McClung spoke no social sedition, in fact the women's movement appears as a loftier loyalty to the home. Woman's place is in the home, but there are old evils threatening it as they have always threatened it. She told of the successful fight against the liquor traffic in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan and the influence of the women in these campaigns. "I have a good home myself," said Mrs. McClung, "and I stand for the right of every woman to have a good home. I can't understand how any chivalrous man can attempt to prevent women from protecting their homes."

TIME FOR VOTING

If a woman has it in her to neglect her home she will neglect it, and find something to neglect it for, whether she gets the vote or not. Mrs. McClung said she had a vote. She assured the timorous men that she had put the potatoes on to boil before going out to mark her ballot, and was back in time to strain them. Voting takes place only on one day in four years, but some men would have the people believe that the women would be hanging around the polling booths during the whole four years. Mrs. McClung dealt ironically with woman's voting privileges in Ontario. If she is a property owner and remains single she possesses the franchise. But immediately she marries she is disqualified. However, if she should be unfortunate enough to lose her husband all is forgiven and forgotten. She may vote again. And this disqualification of a married woman exists in a province where men have been known to vote years after they have been dead!

In Great Britain a woman had discovered that every person had the right to vote. There was no sex discrimination. However, a court of men decided on this point that a woman was a person in the matter of pains and penalties, but she was not a person in the matter of rights and privileges. The Dominion law withholds the ballot from women, lunatics, idiots and Indians. Mrs. McClung remarked that any woman who claims the standing of the idiot and Indian was worthy of it, and should have it, but it was unfair that the irresponsible woman should be allowed to set the pace for the rest.

Mrs. McClung closed her address by dealing with woman's attitude toward the liquor traffic. While she preferred the humanitarian arguments directed against it, the present situation focussed attention to the economic aspect. "The Empire is in danger, and we haven't a man nor a dollar to spare," she voiced as the present objection to the ravages of alcohol

Mr. Duncan Walker made a very capable chairman. During the evening a short musical programme was provided by Miss Logan, violiniste, and Miss Richardson and Mr. Carlisle vocalists. Mrs McClung also pleased the audience with several bright reading numbers. One came away with the impression that with the majority of women Mrs. McClung is as the voice of one crying in the wilderness. However, the feeling prevails that the path of woman will yet be made straight.

EARLY CLOSING RULE TAKES EFFECT ON MONDAY NEXT

License Inspector Stewart Has Notified Each of the Eleven Licensed Hotels in the City—Bars Will Close at Eight O'clock Instead of Eleven—The Official Notice.

On Monday next, November 1st, hotels in Peterborough to the number of eleven, will close their bars at 8 o'clock in compliance with the resolution passed by the Board of License commissioners for Ontario on October 13th, last. License Inspector Joseph Stewart has served the local hotels with the following official notice

Whereas a state of war now exists in the result of which the British Empire is vitally interested;

And whereas it has become apparent, especially during the last few months, that the cost of the war will be enormous, and that in every portion of the Empire it is desirable both on patriotic and other grounds that steps should be taken to reduce within reasonable limits during the period of the war all unnecessary expenditures on the part of the general public;

And whereas the daily consumption of liquor as a beverage is an expense which ought to be modified during the present critical times, and in the opinion of this Board it is desirable in order to assist in accomplishing this object that the hours of sale of liquor in the bar-rooms and hotels of the Province should be reduced.

And whereas in the opinion of this Board it is wise and prudent that by way of experiment every hotel bar in this Province should be closed at the hour of 8 o'clock in the afternoon on every day of the week other than Saturday.

Therefore be it resolved that, notwithstanding any statutory provision to the contrary, no liquor shall be sold in any licensed tavern in this Province upon any day of the week after eight o'clock in the afternoon, but this resolution shall not be construed to interfere with the statutory provision respecting the hour of closing on Saturday

This resolution shall go into effect on Monday, the first day of November next, and shall thenceforth continue in full force and effect during the period of the war in which His Majesty's forces are now engaged

Fifty Children Perish in a School Fire

Special to The Examiner:

PEABODY, Mass., Oct. 28. — St. John's Parochial school, where from twenty to fifty little children literally roasted to death in a fire which broke out about ten o'clock this morning, was merely a brick shell with inflammable interior and no fire escapes. The doors opened inwards and when the fire alarm sounded the children and nuns were panic stricken and piled up against the inside of shut doors, which could not be opened from the outside. The scene following the extinguishing of the flames was of unspeakable horror.

Sister Aldegon of the Order of the Sacred Heart, was one of the heroines of the holocaust. She saved the lives of 25 children by dropping them from a window to the outstretched arms of the men standing below. Some of the youngsters she threw from the window by main force as they clung to her skirts, sobbing and terror stricken. At least fifty children perished and twelve of the injured will die.

Twenty Bodies Are Recovered

PEABODY, Mass., Oct. 28—Twenty burned and crushed bodies of children have been taken out of a burning school here, when a fire occurred today. It is certain that as many more are still in the building.

CLEANS LEATHER.

How One Brave Mother Sent Her Third Boy to War

An extract from a Winnipeg letter written by a mother whose son went overseas in the 79th Battalion, shows how some brave mothers send their boys off to fight for King and Country. The Battalion headquarters was Brandon, but many of the lads belong to Winnipeg:

"There were thousands waiting to see the boys off and when the train pulled in there was great excitement. Everybody was afraid that they would miss their dear ones. When the gates (three of them) were opened it was one great rush. The boys were all looking out of the train windows, waiting for their friends, and there was great running to and fro, and all were located. We had over one half hour to say good-bye and it was hard indeed to keep a brave face. One fine looking lad leaned away out of the window to wave at his mother, and called 'Smile, mother! smile.' Immediately an old lady began to sing 'Sweet dreams of the King,' and she sang it right through, verses and all, to the end. No one dared push her for fear of breaking down. Some of the people looked at her in wonder and said, 'How can she?' One look was enough for me, for I knew she was heart broken, poor thing. As the train pulled out she waved and waved to her boy, smiling all the time. One of the woman's friends, when speaking of it afterwards, said that this was the third son she was seeing off and that two sons had been killed at the battlefields. It is no wonder our boys can fight when they have such mothers. It is said that it requires such sacrifices to uphold a nation's honesty, but let us hope it will be for the brightening of this old world."

LOCAL LADIES IN CAMPBELLFORD

In the Interests of the Red Cross

A meeting of the ladies of town was called for Tuesday afternoon in the public library, and a fair number were in attendance. The object of the meeting was the organization of a local branch of the Red Cross Society.

Miss Peacock and Miss Rush of Peterborough Society were present and addressed the meeting and their efforts were much appreciated. It was decided not to organize a branch at this time, but a resolution was adopted recommending the formation of a general committee for the whole town through which work for the various patriotic funds and objects might be accomplished. In short, it is desired to have a joint committee representative of several existing organizations to work for the best interests of each and all.—Campbellford Herald.

Husband and Wife Face Murder Charge

cious circumstances surrounding the case and ordered an inquest. One of the witnesses at the inquest was Mrs. William Scott, a neighbour of the Lindsays. She told of the condition of the girl, which he declared was common knowledge in the community. She also told of some pills that deceased was supposed to have taken. Mr. Scott volunteered the opinion that "the poor girl had been dosed to death."

Doctors Consulted.

Dr Munro of Warsaw told of being consulted by the girl's mother in August last, and prescribing a common remedy for a cold under certain conditions to young girls. He had never seen the deceased.

Dr Sutton of Norwood, who had been called in just before the girl's demise, told of the serious condition from septic poisoning he had found his patient in, and of the means he took to afford her relief. The mother, he said, had admitted to him that the girl had been in trouble, and that a young man by the name of Young was responsible for her trouble. He swore that his patient had died while under the anaesthetic. "Oh, papa, take your hands away."

Denied the Evidence.

Mrs. Lindsay, the mother of the deceased girl, swore positively that she knew nothing of the girl's condition until the premature parturition took place, and that her daughter had told her on her death bed that the cause of her trouble was a young man named Eddie Young, who had visited the Lindsay home for a day or two, in July last. Witness didn't know where Young was now, but she had told them he was going to Lucan. She denied Dr. Sutton's evidence as to the girl's remark while under chloroform. The pills referred to above had been taken by her, and had been procured by her husband from a druggist in Norwood.

The Father's Evidence.

Sanford Lindsay, the father, in his evidence corroborated his wife's story as to Young being the cause of his daughter's trouble. The deceased had never seen any medicine except some liniment that he knew of. He could not recollect buying any for his wife at Norwood nor could he recognize the box they came in.

Mr. Frank Sowell of Norwood, another neighbour, and an undertaker, testified of the dead girl coming home, and complaining that she was in "trouble and that it was her father's fault. Just before her death the girl told the witness that it was her father who was to blame for her trouble.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

NO BONUS OR TERMS FOR ANOTHER YEAR FOR PAT MORAN OF PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Pat Moran has gone to his home in Fitchburg, Mass., without having any talk with officers of the Phils over his 1916 contract.

While Moran stoutly declines to utter one syllable in connection with his differences with the club, they are as strained as ever.

It can be said with authority that Moran will not consider any proposal to continue at the head of the pennant winners unless his salary is substantially increased.

Moran worked for a nominal salary this year, and fetched the first championship to Philadelphia since the club was organized, yet the best he has received has been a "thank you."

No Bonus for Pat.

Peerless Pat didn't get any more for winning the pennant than had he finished last. For getting his team into the world series and earning $71,000 on the side for the stockholders, Moran didn't receive a penny extra in the way of a bonus, not even a loving cup.

Yet Pat did get a loving cup, but it was from some persons who left 75 cents at the gate every time they entered the park, and not from the owners.

Moran has grown gray in baseball service, and naturally will not tolerate any shoddy treatment, particularly in the present baseball upheaval.

Pat has the upper hand in the controversy, because he is a free agent and can go where he pleases. He is an idol all over the circuit, especially in Chicago, where the fans would welcome him as the leader of the Cubs.

Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg team also is without a manager, and unquestionably would go the limit to land Moran. Pat's feat of capturing the 1915 pennant with a dark horse gives him an added value as a tactician that the baseball world cannot overlook.

Hope Owners Will Get Busy.

Of course, all the fans who supported the Phils this year are hoping that nothing will happen that would cause Moran to leave. They are trusting that the persons who own the club—whoever they are—will get busy and sign Moran without any unnecessary delay.

They recall that Mike Doolan and Tom Seaton were lost in the spring of 1914 through dilatory tactics and hope that the mistake won't be repeated.

In the meantime, Moran will purchase a $100 shotgun and enjoy the shooting around Fitchburg, confident that he will get some suitable post in baseball next year. You can't keep a winner down.

ARE NO MATCH FOR GREEK FLEET IN CASE OF WAR

Hellenic Fleet Efficient and Modern —The Enemy's Ports.

The only important port Bulgaria possesses in Macedonia is Dedeagatch, which has been several times visited by our ships since the operations began in the Dardanelles, says the London Times. This place, where the Bulgarians landed in the opening stages of the first Balkan war, is connected by rail both with Salonika and Constantinople through Adrianople.

It is, however, in the Black Sea that the Bulgarian coast presents many points on which a descent might be made with advantage. Neither Varna nor Burgas has fortifications of a modern formidable character, so far as is known, and little trouble should be found in disposing of the few torpedo craft.

To place such a force on shore, or perhaps even to make a feint of doing so, should have the effect of detaining a large portion of the Bulgarian army, which might otherwise be placed on the frontier of Serbia. In both seas the work of the Allied fleets will, it is likely, afford adequate protection against submarine attack.

Greek Navy.

The Greek navy is one of the very few which before the present struggle had had experience of a modern war. In the conflict with Turkey in 1912-13 it showed its efficiency by the alacrity with which it seized the initiative when it was necessary to prevent the enemy from bringing reinforcements into Macedonia from Asia Minor across the Aegean. The conditions gave no opportunity for brilliant victories, but the fleet played its part effectively and well.

During the last four and one-half years the Greek navy has had the advantage of British training and instruction by staffs of officers under Rear Admiral L. G. Tufnell and Mark Kerr. The former served at Athens from May, 1911, to May, 1913, and the appreciation felt for the work accomplished under his direction was indicated by the decoration conferred upon him by the King of the Hellenes, and by the fact that the contract with the British Government was renewed on better terms.

Since the conclusion of the war with Turkey, the fleet has been improved by the purchase in July, 1914, of two fairly good ironclads from the United States navy, the Mississippi and the Idaho, which were renamed the Kilkis and the Lemnos, respectively, and by the addition of new torpedo craft.

The light cruiser Helli, formerly the Chinese Fei-Hung, also was purchased from the New York Shipbuilding Company on completion in the summer of 1914, and is now serving with the sea going fleet. At the outbreak of the European war Greece had several ships and vessels under construction in British, German, French and other yards, but how many of them have been taken over by the respective Governments is uncertain. At least the battle cruiser Salamis, building at the Vulcan Yard, Stettin, has been seized by the Germans.

WAR ORDER FOR LIMBS BOOM TIMBER LANDS

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Several hundred acres of yellow willow in this section, formerly valueless, have become very valuable as a result of orders placed by the allies for artificial limbs. Four contracts aggregate about $15,000,000.

Immediately the European contracts were awarded in this country artificial limb manufacturers placed orders with the owners of the yellow willow for all that can be shipped. Several carloads have been going forward daily since last June. Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburg and New York

MONSTER SNAKE ON A SIMCOE FARM

SIMCOE, Oct. 28.—A "big snake" story has been circulating for some time here, but up till recently has been treated as somewhat of a joke. Some light has been thrown on the rumors, however, and it is now known that a monster reptile variously estimated at from 12 to 15 feet in length is at large within a mile and a half of the town.

Reuben Sloat, of Strathlynn Farms, keeps his shotgun loaded and ready in the stable. He is confident that he will get the big snake within a short time if it doesn't get him first. The reptile has been seen several times within the last few weeks, but not when it was possible to take a pot-shot at him.

Scared the Children.

A few weeks ago the Sloat children went to the stable for their kitten. They came back panic-stricken with a tale of having seen a big snake.

The mother took one look at it, sent a little boy for the father, who was working at the back of the farm and then locked herself and the rest of the children in the house, where they were found, badly frightened, when the husband returned some hours later.

He had not thought it worth while to return to kill a "big snake," which he thought might perhaps be four feet long. His wife told him that the creature would be easily twelve feet long and six inches through.

Saw It Himself.

A week ago Sloat walked into his barn and saw the snake's full length in the feed stall in front of the horses. He estimated it at eighteen feet long and describes it as black on the back and white underneath.

The reptile glided into a mow of pea straw and Sloat has heard it rustling several times since. There are no rats and mighty few eggs in the Sloat barn now, whereas the hens used to be pretty good layers and the rats much in evidence.

Gus Jacques, of this town, recalls that he saw a large snake come out of a car of rugs received by him some time ago.

THIS COLLEGE PLACES BAN ON TETE-A-TETES

President Issues Set of Novel Rules for Girl Students.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 28.—Rules, regulations and statutes in such case made and provided have been promulgated at the Milwaukee Normal School.

They apply to women students at the school. They include the boarding house mistress and the renters of "furnished rooms" in the city. They provide for clean sheets and pillow cases and towels. They impose quiet after 10 o'clock. They ban tete-a-tetes on the front porch in the mellow light of the harvest moon. They banish the chafing dish as a competitor to the boarding house menu unless the landlady consents to let it in.

They chase men roomers from under the roof where a normal girl finds domicile. They then turn around and offer compensation, for they rescue the parlor from the private domain of the landlady and insist that the normal girl roomers have the right to entertain company there.

President Carrol G. Pearse announced the rules at the assembly. Some of them, he said, were suggested as good form. Others he insisted would be rightly enforced. Which was which he did not specify, but merely announced the new rules. Here they are:

No men roomers shall be kept in houses where normal girls have rooms.

Room and board shall be paid for weekly; rooms in advance, board at the end of the week.

Rooms are to be thoroughly cleaned at least once a week.

Rooms are to be kept at a temperature of 68 or 70 degrees in Winter.

Clean sheets, pillow cases and towels are to be provided weekly.

Girls are not to be left alone in the house over night.

There shall be no noise in the room after 10 o'clock at night.

No lingering on porches, steps or walk shall be permitted during evening entertainments.

A reasonable period for parlor for company shall be permitted. (Not oftener than two nights a week, nor later than 10:30 o'clock.)

No [illegible] shall be served for food [illegible] except with the permission of the landlady.

Synopsis of Lady Aberdeen's Address Before National Council of Women

The many interesting meetings under the auspices of the National Council of Women at their annual convention last week culminated in a large patriotic meeting on Saturday evening.

A three minute report of the local councils was given by each President after which Lady Aberdeen spoke. The following is a short synopsis of her address:

As an officer of the British Red Cross Society Lady Aberdeen referred to the Trafalgar Day gift, and said she knew that the motherland would be touched to the heart by this evidence of what Canada can and will do. She paid a tribute also to the work the women of Canada have done in connection with the war, and spoke again of her pet project of sending furs to the men fighting in the mountainous regions of Italy. It is the women of Italy who have made this appeal to women of Canada, some of whom they remember with pleasure from their intercourse during the Quinquennial in 1914. The Italian Ambassador in London had sent by Lady Aberdeen his thanks for the expression of cordial sympathy from the Canadian women.

Lady Aberdeen re-read the letter of sympathy and encouragement from Queen Mary and also the greetings from the Executive of the National Council of Great Britain and Ireland and from the Honorary President of the Canadian National Council, H.R.H. the Duchess of Connaught.

No Ease When War Ends.

"When the war is over," said Lady Aberdeen, "it will not be a time of ease. We owe it to those who have laid down their lives in freedom's cause to see that they have not died in vain. The world has been through a crucible, and we must see that the precious metal that emerges shall be moulded into a better shape." The speaker concluded with a plea for the strengthening of the established Councils and the building up of new ones, making a chain of these federations of women all joined under their emblem of the Golden Rule.

At the conclusion of her address Lady Aberdeen was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses, tied with the Council's colors.

Three Days Cleared Field Comforts.

Following the address of the Advisory President, a report of the Patriotic Service Committee was given by Mrs. Plumptre, who quoted a letter received just that afternoon from the Red Cross Commissioner in France, in which he said that in the three days following the beginning of the allies' big drive on the western front 100,000 articles from the Red Cross stores were used. Mrs. Plumptre hoped that this might answer the queries of many who feared that the storehouses in France might be overstocked. Three days emptied these storehouses, and when the demand came for more supplies the Red Cross was there with the goods.

The supplies needed, Mrs. Plumptre said, are socks, always, in addition to the Government supply, soap, stationery and smokes.

There is always a pleasant air of hospitable welcome about even formal affairs at Government House, and the guests at Saturday's reception put off making up their minds to come away till the last possible minute. Sir John and Lady Hendrie received in the conservatory, with Colonel Clyde Caldwell in attendance, and with them were the Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen and Temair. Mrs. Caldwell was in the tea-room, which was fragrant with many pink roses. Mrs. Philip Gilbert and Miss Fraser, her feminine assistants, with Captain T. B. Caldwell helping [illegible] the honors also. The guests who were chiefly the officers of the National Council of Women and the delegates to the meeting, included Mrs. Torrington, Mrs. W. E. Stanford, Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, Mrs. George Watt, Miss Machar, Mr. and Mrs. Huestis, Mr. and Mrs. Runciman, Mrs. Irvine, Professor and Mrs. Robertson, the Rabbi and Mrs. Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Groves, Mrs. Neal of Peterboro', Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Hastings.

Mrs. Pennybacker, the President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs of the United States, and one of the most charming as well as one of the most influential women across the line, was the guest of Lord and Lady Aberdeen at the Queen's Hotel for a day. Lady Aberdeen gave a luncheon for her while she was here, Lord Aberdeen also being present, and the guests asked to meet her were the officers of the National Council of Women, the Presidents of Local Councils and the conveners of the National Committees. Beautiful roses and lillies of the valley decked the tables, and there were several speeches. The guest of honor spoke brilliantly on the basis of work of her federation, and made a touching appeal for the uplift of the home life by the women of the world. Mrs. Pennybacker mentioned that fact that through the women working in conjunction many bills such as the pure food bill had been passed by Congress and that each of the many wires pulled that had at its end something for the good of the country.

BUSINESS GIVES WOMEN LINE ON MEN'S HABITS

One Wife Wishes all her Sisters had been Employed Before Marriage.

"Business life for women is teaching them one good thing," said the middle-aged woman who holds a responsible position in a big firm.

"Yes, it teaches women to know men and their bad habits," spoke up her married friend. "I've often wished I'd had some business experience before I was married. I would either have married differently or not at all. Instead of worrying over an uncertain husband and a family of children, I might have been independent like you."

"I—independent?" There was a tinge of bitterness in the business woman's laugh. "What notions you protected women have!

"I was thinking of men when I made my first remark," she resumed, "but not of their bad habits—unless one can call hard work, worry and quick lunches bad habits. I was thinking that when a woman works for a living and has somebody else to support, she realizes what the married man is up against.

"Most of the married men I have met are a pretty good sort. They are doing everything in their power to give their families the best in the land. They want their wives and children to dress as well as other men's wives and children, and to have a good time. I know plenty of men whose regular routine is hustling out of bed early in the morning (some of them get their own breakfast), hanging to a street car strap all the way down town, bumping over a desk or hustling in the shop till noon; then a gulp and a swallow for lunch, same programme till going-home time then a tired evening with possibly a poor dinner, a wife who thinks she should lose my position now I would not know how to live beyond a couple of weeks, if I couldn't immediately get another position."

"I asked him why he didn't insist upon economy. He told me he'd tried but it always made a fuss, and that as long as his credit was any good he guessed he'd have to pay the bills.

"That man is no exception to a pretty general rule. I have since learned. And the business woman is also learning that she cannot deny to the limit of her earning power, the demands of those dependent upon her, whether they are reasonable or not. I want my old parents to be happy, though it means I haven't been able to save a cent for my own old age.

"Nobody who supports dependents is independent, and if I were a man with a modern family, on an ordinary [illegible] and [illegible] salary, I believe I would go crazy." By Edna K. Woodey.

BARRIERS.

We live together years and years
And leave unsounded still
Each other's springs of hopes and fears,
Each other's depths of will.
We live together day by day,
Meet hourly face to face,
Conjecture what the other may
Do in some distant place;
Yet know not what the hour will bring
Of love or calm or strife,
We live together year by year,
But oh, the barriers in life!

War Brings Great Blessings To the World, Says Dr. Eaton

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—War brings its benefits as well as its evils. This was the substance of a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Chas. V. Eaton of the Methodist Avenue Baptist Church. He declared the present war had brought one of the greatest blessings the world had received. He said:

"The present war is a blessing because it has demonstrated that our civilization was based on lies. Otherwise it would not have crumpled in a day.

"It has set Russia free from tyranny. Russia has become a nation.

"It has been a blessing to France. She had become a nation of cynics and sensualities, beautiful and cultivated, but with a spirit that was dying.

"It has been a blessing to Italy. Keep an eye on Italy. She is coming to her place among the leaders of the new age.

"It has given England a new lease of life of hundreds of years. She was never stronger than at this minute, because the war has awakened that great democracy to the realization she has not been doing her duty to her children.

"The war will destroy the traffic in strong drink.

"America, too, has been a spiritual awakening."

The inventor of a windmill with horizontal vanes has so sheltered those that move against the wind with a hood that they do not feel its force, thereby permitting increased size and power.

Public Charges Are Not Beneficiaries of Life Assurance

A census was taken about a year ago of the inmates of alms houses, of prisons, of asylums for the care of the helpless, in an eastern state. It was found but three of the occupants of these institutions, who numbered altogether over fifteen hundred, had been beneficiaries of life insurance.

It was somebody's neglect that forced the public to pay higher taxes in order to take care of nearly all these people.

Life insurance limits the needs of poorhouses, prisons, old folks' homes. Life insurance, therefore, reduces the needs of the State in maintaining institutions for the care of the needy.

The man who has sufficient insurance to take care of his own future if he reaches old age, and of his dependents, should anything happen to him, is doing his duty, not only to his family, but to his State.

WORK OF ALTERING ARMOURIES

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—The suggestion has been made to many municipalities and organizations that had been collecting funds with which to purchase machine guns, that the patriotic fund was in greater need of the money. In this connection, Sir Herbert Ames, M.P., secretary of the patriotic fund, said today: "When money is sent to the government for machine guns it simply means that a machine gun which the government had already ordered will not be paid for by the government and thus save the taxpayers money. If any man wants to supply the soldiers with brass buttons or putties, or bayonets he can do so in the same way. The government will accept the money, but they will not add any more buttons to the soldiers' uniform or give him more putties or two bayonets."

LT. COL. MILLS IS NOTIFIED

Capt. Chas. Ackerman received a letter to-day from Lt.-Col. Mills, written at the front, on Oct. 13th, in which Col. Mills stated that he had been notified that he was to command a new overseas battalion and expressed the hope that Capt. Ackerman would be with him. Lt.-Col. Mills also added that he would like nothing better than to have at least five hundred men from the good old city of Peterborough in the new battalion.

OBITUARY

INFANT CHILD.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bell, Fowler's Corners, will sympathize with them in the loss they have sustained in the death of their infant daughter, which occurred this morning.

The funeral will take place to-morrow to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. J. W. HALES

There passed away in Nicholls Hospital this morning at 10 o'clock, Mrs. J. W. Hales, 635 Stewart Street, after an illness of only a few days' duration from pneumonia. The deceased was only taken ill last Friday evening and the news of her death will come as a great shock to a host of friends. The late Mrs. Hales was 60 years of age. She was born in Potsdam, N.Y., and had lived in Peterborough for the past nine years, her maiden name being Isabella McFadden. She was a faithful member of the George Street Methodist Church, and a woman whose many estimable qualities won for her a high place in the community.

Her husband, two sons and two daughters, are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Messrs. W. Hales, Park Rapids, Minn., and Walter Hales, in Saskatchewan. The daughters are Mrs. E. Baudry, 53 Park street, south, and Miss Hattie Hales, at home. Two sisters, Mrs. John Hales and Mrs. Alex. Newbury, residing in the West, and three brothers, Messrs. S. McFadden, Burleigh Township, Sandy and John McFaden in the West, survive her.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

MINUTE OF FORMAL MEETING OF ENNISMORE TOWNSHIP COUNCIL HELD AT WESTWOOD, OCTOBER 25TH, 1915.

On motion of Messrs. M. Perdue and P. Y. Crowley, it was unanimously decided to purchase an Overland and Overwater Automobile, the same being an economical investment from the fact that occasionally it is necessary to visit the city in a body, therefore the Chemung road being the proper width no obstacles will block the ambitions of the progressive council.

THE WONDERFUL RISE OF DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

Munition Minister's Extraordinary Career—Never Egotistical—Great Fighter

Recent political events have shown David Lloyd George in the light of the "sheet anchor" of the Coalition War Cabinet. Yet twenty-five years ago, when he entered Parliament as the representative of Carnarvon, he was generally regarded as a dangerous demagogue.

However, the whirligig of time has rounded off the angularities of his early political creed, and to-day he stands forth as a statesman of great capacity.

From the obscure Welsh village of Llanystymdwy young Lloyd George went to Criccieth, and when twenty-one years of age was admitted solicitor. From that time onwards to 1890, when he was elected to Parliament, he was head of the firm of Lloyd George & George.

His recent success in settling the miners' strike in South Wales brought him once again into the limelight of public opinion, but as a pacificist; yet Mr. Lloyd George's political career has been built up by his fighting proclivities. As an advocate in the county courts and magistrates' courts in his native Wales, he became famous for his successful attacks on the local legal luminaries. On more than one occasion when a county court judge upset a jury's verdict on a point of law, Mr Lloyd George appealed to the High Court, and got the judgment quashed.

The Celtic fighting spirit has always dominated the public life of the Minister of Munitions, who made his first big impression on the House of Commons by having a tilt at Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. Though fifteen years have passed, the scene is still green in the memory of most politicians. The Colonial Secretary had been very ably defending the Government policy during the South African campaign against the attacks of the Opposition, and had held his ground with decided success; till suddenly, from the seat below the gangway, on the Opposition side, which Sir Charles Dilke had previously occupied, rose Mr. Lloyd George, as the Unionist cheers rang out for the speech just delivered.

With incisive tones, low pitched, "the man from Wales" badgered the Colonial Secretary to such an extent that the implacable Minister for once in a way writhed under the caustic utterances of his opponent; so much so that he begged permission of the House to make a second speech in reply. It was subsequently admitted in the lobby that the strong man of Lord Salisbury's last Cabinet had met his match in debate. Mr. Lloyd George had won his first line of trenches, and a little later on tried to consolidate his position.

On his second assault he failed. The heavy artillery of the Chamberlain party at Birmingham prevented Mr. Lloyd George from "digging himself in." Physical force on this occasion told against the man who attempted to carry the war into the enemy's camp. Some 20,000 to 30,000 people assembled in the neighborhood of the Birmingham Town Hall, and such was the din that the speaker's voice could not be heard.

The "Bloomin' Coppers"

Stones were hurled through the windows, and the doors battered down, and Mr Lloyd George, thanks to the efforts of the chief constable, escaped disguised in the uniform of a policeman. The victim of the occurrence saw the humorous side of it, for he tells of the walk home to the house where he was stopping, how he and his companions were tauntingly referred to as "bloomin' coppers."

Certainly, up to the outbreak of the war, Mr. Lloyd George could not be described as a popular man with the masses. His legislative efforts usually have created much controversy. His Insurance Act was an instance, while his Budget of 1909 was of such a revolutionary character as practically to paralyze the House of Lords.

Possessed of great personal courage and much self reliance, Mr Lloyd George has never developed the slightest degree of egotism. He believes in the system of party rather than individualism, and on this account has steered clear of political self conceit.

To the disputants at Cardiff one of his sentences was pregnant of conciliation: "Let the past be buried in the deepest pit you have go in South Wales; flooded, if you have got one somewhere; out of sight let it be."

Stark Realism.

An advance agent for a theatrical production was speaking to a newspaper man with reference to the wonderful powers of the leading woman. "Do you know," he said enthusiastically, "that in New York, when she appeared as the dying mother in the last act, an insurance man who had written her a policy for $10,000 actually fainted in the theatre!"

Sweden and Norway together manufacture more carbide of calcium than any other single nation, but use very little of it, exporting almost the entire production.

WHITE DRESSES RUIN THE BABY'S EYES

Babies eyes are being ruined by white walls, white dresses and white carriages, declared Professor F. A. Well, of Columbia University, before the nineteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Optical Society here.

"If you care for the health of the youngster, the worst color a room can have on the walls of his nursery or bedroom is white," he says. "Babies' eyes are spoiled by white dresses and white carriages. Neutral and dark tints should be used. The dress, carriage and walls of rooms in which babies spend most of the time should be of some tan or neutral tint, either a light brown or a green gray. This applies to the dress of the nurse and the mother as well."

He told the optometrists that their big task is not to fit correctly glasses to the eyes, but aid the public in eye hygiene by teaching them to regular illumination to fit the eye. The color of the walls the size of the printed page and widths of newspaper columns are subjects that effect the eye and should be regulated and controlled by men who know what is good for the eye, he said.

"The width of newspaper columns is very restful to the eye, and considered from the viewpoint of eye hygiene are more beneficial than the pages of books. The eye should be required to make as few 'jumps' as possible in reading a line of type. The eye makes only three 'jumps' in following a newspaper line and that is the most satisfactory number."

When a new automobile fender strikes a pedestrian it gently trips him and then picks him up in a sort of scoop with a minimum of injury.

Mrs. Newlyrich, by virtue of her husband's wealth had obtained an invitation to a big English dinner-party, and as she was being piloted from drawing room to dining-room she noticed a marble bust on one of the pillars in the hall.

"Do you know what that is?" she inquired of her cavalier.

"That is Marcus Aurelius," was the answer.

"Oh, is it, now?" ejaculated the lady. "But can you tell me," she added promptly, "whether it is the present markis or the late markis I do get so mixed up with your dukes and things!"—London Tit-Bits.

Two friends—a Londoner and a Scotsman—happened to be lunching together recently in a certain restaurant. The latter, true to his natural habit, kept turning around to see that his hat and coat remained still on the peg where he had left them.

"You are a suspicious chap," said his friend at last. "Who do you think is going to walk in here and steal our coats?"

"Can't say," replied the Scotsman, "but I'll take good care that nobody gets mine! Yours went 10 minutes ago!"

Teuton Armies Are Bleeding To Death and Can Never Expect to Crush Allies

Germany is Losing the War--Balkan Effort is to Gain Peace ---The Kaiser's Last Bid For Victory

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Under the caption "Germany is Beaten," the Tribune, in its leading editorial yesterday morning says:

"If there were needed any evidence of the actual as contrasted with the apparent condition of the European struggle, it could be found without diligently in the statement of German public men, German newspapers and German people. After fifteen months of strife, after conquests, victories, triumphs, unequalled since the Napoleonic era, who is it that is talking of peace?

"Take the public statements of German statesmen, take the comments of the press, is there any mistaking the facts that in all, at some point, the word peace crops up. Victorious peace," or some other headjectived peace, it is, to be sure, but peace. Travellers returning from Germany recently agree that the only real qualification to German confidence is found in the apprehension of a protracted war. Peace now means victory—but next year.

Compared With Civil War.

The Tribune compares the German successes to those of the Confederate successes in the civil war, which "with proper allowance for the difference in size, the essential fact is the same," and continues: "Yet reading history, looking back now, nothing is clearer than that the south was always doomed, unless it could get an early decision on the battlefield. Outnumbered, inferior in population and resources, cut off from seaborne commerce, the South was condemned to defeat, unless on the battle field it could win a victory that would destroy the armies before it.

"Precisely this the south could never do. It could win battles and campaigns operating as do the Germans, on interior lines, it could concentrate superior forces at the important point, while inferior in numbers as a whole. But its victories fell short of the essential requirement. Steadily the armies of its foe grew stronger, its own numbers weaker. The whole world contributed to the arming and munitioning of northern armies, as the whole earth now contributes to the allies.

North was Depressed.

"All this was not perceived at the outset or until almost the close of the civil war. Despondency, despair were common at times, when, as we see it now, victory for the North was already assured. Compare northern depression after the bloody and fruitless campaign from the Wilderness to Cold Harbor with British depression now, and the thing is patent. Yet this campaign broke the back of the south by the sheer attrition of Lee's army.

"With all the various differences in degree between Germany and the Confederacy, the main fact is the same. Germany and her Austrian ally are outnumbered, the wealth and resources of England, France, Russia, and Italy are incomparably greater. Sea power has destroyed German commerce, sealed up German harbors while for the allies the sea brings all the resources of America and the colonies to the battle lines.

Germany Bleeding to Death.

"The single significant fact in the military situation now is that Germany is bleeding to death. German soldiers on three fronts are killing British, French, Russian and Serbian troops—but to match this, these are all killing Germans. This terrible drain on German manhood is utterly disproportionate to the drain on any one of her opponents, although collectively their losses may exceed German.

"It may take a year, two years, to bleed Germany white; it took four to grind the soul out of the Confederacy. But the thing every one who would understand the war must recognize is that the process is going on steadily, remorselessly, and that as it goes on Germany continues to fail to get the decision.

What Balkan Effort Means.

"To get to the Balkans Germany has had to abandon her Russian drive. Apart from a local operation, for Riga, all effort to crush the Russian military power has been abandoned and Russia has been left to recuperate, as France and England were left after the Marne and the Yser. In the west Germany is hanging on, but no more. In the east, save about Riga Russia is on the offensive. Yet Germany has hardly sent more than 250,000 troops to the Balkans.

"Viewing the war from this angle, then, it is clear why German statesmen talk and think of peace. There is no corresponding talk in London, Paris or Petrograd. The apparent losers, the nations which have so far lost, are not discussing peace on any terms, but out of Germany, despite censor, official warning, patent effort, there emerges only an ever-growing talk of peace.

Big Effort For Peace Soon.

"When the Germans have opened the road to Constantinople, destroyed Serbian resistance, temporarily asserted their supremacy in the Balkans, nothing is more certain than that from one end of this earth to the other every German, every German sympathiser, will talk peace. Every influence that can possibly be exerted will be called into play to procure a settlement.

"But no American should mistake this. It compares admirably with those frantic but abortive peace conferences of 1864, when the South was already beaten, but southern influences in the North, combined with the pacifist and the war-weary in the attempt to prevent the inevitable and avert the final scene at Appomattox, which every soldier now knew was but a question of time.

Defeat Certain.

"And if Germany fails in her peace efforts, then the end is assured. Her defeat in the war is as certain as was that of the Confederacy after Gettysburg unless she can tire out her opponents, persuade them to forego victory, because victory will be costly and delayed.

"Germany is now approaching what will be her last great bid for victory, but it will not be made on the battlefield—that is over. It will be made in conference, in peace negotiations, in operations through neutral nations. If these fail, we shall presently see the whole character of the conflict change and an utterly new spirit flow from the Rhine to the Vistula. What Americans cannot now know is whether the spirit that ruled in Washington in 1864 dominates in London, Paris and Petrograd in 1915."

Omemee Girl Is Killed

Miss Esther Shaw Met Instant Death When Team of Horses She Was Driving Took Fright and Threw Her Off the Wagon and Ran Over Her.

OMEMEE, Ont., Oct. 29. — Miss Esther Shaw was instantly killed last night near her home about two miles from Omemee. She was driving a team to allow her brother to draw a buggy behind the waggon when the horses frightened, threw her off and ran over her.

Cavell Documents Were Not Garbled

Published By Britain, With Permission of the U. S. Embassy

LONDON, Oct 28.—It is officially stated in London that the papers relating to the case of Miss Cavell were published exactly as they were received from the American Embassy and, of course, after the consent of the American Embassy had been obtained.

This is in reply to a statement issued by the German authorities in Brussels, in which it is asserted that:

"In these documents most of the important events are inaccurately reproduced. The American Minister at Brussels was painfully affected by the report as made public. He intends to inform his London colleague and his Government at once of the difference between the written report of the Belgian attorney for the legation and the facts."

The German statement suggests that the Belgian attorney in question was responsible for the "impression" that Minister Whitlock was put off with promises by the Germans at the time the death sentence was being carried out and alleges that Mr. Whitlock admitted that no such promises were given.

BOMBARDMENT OF VARNA LASTED SEVERAL HOURS

PETROGRAD, Oct. 29.—The Admiralty announces that the bombardment of Varna on Wednesday lasted for hours. Seaplanes co-operated with naval gunners by dropping bombs from the sky.

Bulgarian harbour works, sheds and coast batteries were reported badly damaged, but it was denied that the town itself suffered. Seaplanes finally returned in safety to ships. There were no Russian casualties.

The honey and wax production of the United States is valued at about $6,000,000 a year.

To prevent stone buildings absorbing dampness from the ground a process has been developed in Europe which consists of cutting slots in their walls and inserting asphalt coated lead plates.

400,000 BABIES DYING IN POLAND

Mothers Feed Chalk and Water to Ease Hunger—Conditions Are Heartrending

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Caught between two conflicting armies, the provinces of Tarnow, Gorlice, Satanow and Grybow in Russian Poland have been changed from cultivated farming lands, dotted with happy villages, into a vast waste of stones. Where once the city of Wisnawek, in the district of Tarnow, stood, wild dogs and vultures scour the land for corpses left unburied by fleeing armies.

Such is the picture of Poland, drawn in a letter recently received by Mme Padewsky, wife of the pianist from Miss Henrietta Ely, Philadelphia, who was in Poland while investigating for the Rockefeller Fund.

"Four hundred thousand babies are starving," said Mme Padewsky. "Chalk and water is being given to these poor infants so that they may starve more slowly and less painfully. The poor mothers could give their babies food at one time, but now that is gone.

"Miss Ely says that she and her party could not bear to eat even bread for weeks after their return to England. Our hotels and restaurants with their lavish tables and rich meats must seem like devils to those who have come from the devastated districts."

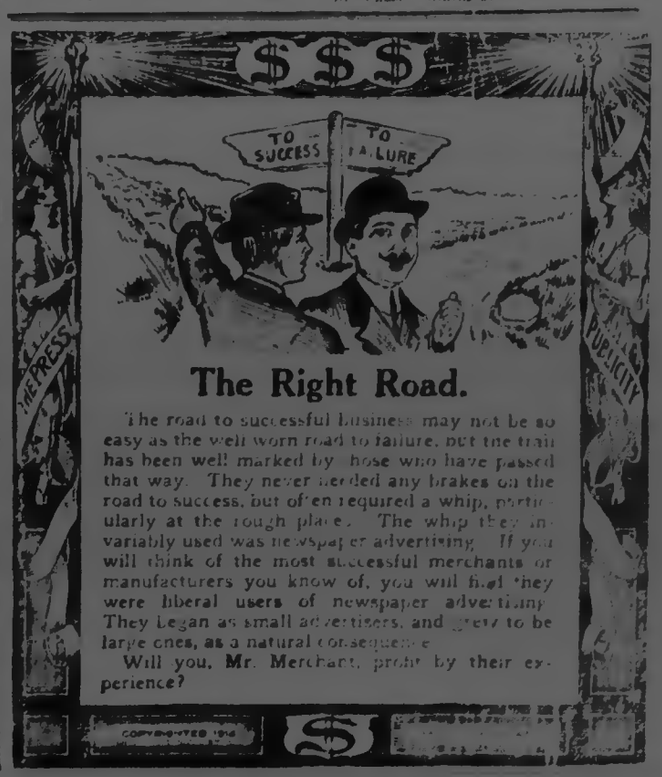
WHOOPING COUGH

Mr. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "My [illegible] had a severe attack of whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have used it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by Dr. Chase's Ointment."



The Right Road.

The road to successful business may not be so easy as the well worn road to failure, but the trail has been well marked by those who have passed that way. They never needed any brakes on the road to success, but often required a whip, particularly at the rough places. The whip they invariably used was newspaper advertising. If you will think of the most successful merchants or manufacturers you know of, you will find they were liberal users of newspaper advertising. They began as small advertisers, and grew to be large ones, as a natural consequence.

Will you, Mr. Merchant, profit by their experience?

Home Health Club

Edited by Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill.

Rest and Re-Build.—In nature the season of rest is a time of gain. Strength and vigour are accumulated for renewed growth and production. Let us look at the apple or almost any fruit tree and we find that as the fall approaches the fruits bearing its seed are droped to the ground and then covered by the falling leaves. The sap leaves the branches and goes down to reinforce the roots. The decomposition of the leaves furnish food that goes into soil and is utilized by the roots in giving greater strength and vitality to the tree. During the winter season the tree does not get out of the free air and the cold and shut itself up where the sun and the wind or the cold and the snow cannot affect it. Instead it utilizes these forces to strength the fibres of its body and limbs so that they will be able to bear the burden of fruit during the coming season.

When the frost begins to leave the ground and the warm rains of spring or the melting ice and snow trickles down to the little roots they begin to send up material that will give greater beauty to the tree, more colouring and fragrance to its blossoms and more abundant fruit than ever before.

Man does not profit by the lessons of Nature as he should. When prevented by the elements from tilling his fields he believes in a great majority of cases, that he has conquered nature by building a fine dwelling house well supplied with closely fitted storm windows and double doors and thoroughly heated by stove or furnace. By his energy during the growing season the cellar is well stocked with the fruits, nuts, grains, vegetables, and the pantry and storehouse well supplied with meats, jellies, jams and preserves. He laughs at the storm and the smoke from his pipe or from the frying meat, cabbage and onions fills the room with a combination of odors that should give him food for reflecting instead of for his stomach. He has little to do but eat and sleep, but when the spring time comes, instead of being rested and refreshed, ready for bigger, broader and more abundant life with greater achievements, we find him bilious and full of pains, stiffened joints, a dull brain and a year older than last spring.

Although the physical body has actually grown a year older, instead of depreciation there should be increased efficiency. During each annual resting period the mind may be actively educated and improved to such good advantage that the physical ability to produce definite results is increased in proportion, and if the body is properly fed (and not overfed), exercised and washed and aired, the passing of time makes but little impression.

Constipation and biliousness, stiff joints and flabby muscles, should not be tolerated and they need not be if the practical methods of living and growth taught in these columns and the Club books are observed. Make the coming winter season the best of your life, when springtime comes be ready to help make the world about you a better place to live because you are there.

HOW JOFFRE BATTLES

Leader at Kitchen Table Directs Awful Scenes and Carnage

A writer describes the Joffre method of handling big battles as follows: General Joffre himself conducted the advance, not as a picturesque general on a white charger, but sitting attentively at a kitchen table in a wine shop behind the lines, while his aides, with telephone receivers attached to their ears, sheeted the latest developments from the various attacking columns. A staff officer states that he sat impassively with his eyes glued to a huge map, making no comments, but giving concise orders in a quiet, unemotional voice. For twenty-four hours General Joffre did not interrupt his close study of the situation, even for a sandwich. It was only when he was satisfied no more could be achieved that he smilingly remarked: "Well, that's done. Now for a smack." After a perfunctory meal he slept four hours.

Meanwhile a few miles distant a scene worthy of Dante's Inferno was being enacted on the battlefield. In the dead of night scores of thousands of blue-clad French infantry leaped out of the trench at the word of command and dashed across the ground, upturned like a plowed field by shells. What the German saw from his shell-bottered trench when rockets and star-lights illuminated the grim spectacle was the gleaming point of a fixed bayonet, handled by an infuriated soldier wearing a mask which gave him the appearance of a howling demon. From a distance the battlefield formed a phantasmagoric spectacle. Lit by greenish lights, the rays of which pierced dense clouds of smoke and poison gases, the troops were seen swaying in a titanic struggle wherein no quarter was given or asked. All round the flames leaped from concealed batteries, belching high explosives and shrapnel.

The victory was won in true Hindenburg manner. The attacking forces were divided into three columns. While the right and left wings swept forward, the central body remained quiescent till the advance on the flanks began to converge and act as powerful pincers. Then the centre came on and delivered the last blow, netting regiment after regiment.

One of the most terrible features of the battle was the number of German artillerymen driven mad by the terrific cannonade. French wounded brought to Paris say that during the advance they came upon groups huddled around guns which they made no effort to serve. Some were dumb, the teeth of others chattered, while others screamed wildly. "These poor wretches," said one soldier, "were quite harmless. They had gone stark mad." Meanwhile the tired Papa Joffre slept from exhaustion.

Battlefield Diseases

Cholera, typhoid fever, dysentery and pneumonia are by far the commonest diseases soldiers suffer from, apart, of course, from those caused by bullet wounds. In past wars these diseases have carried off more soldiers than all the fighting. The deaths in the Boer War, for example, were 21,000, of which 16,160 were due to dysentery and other diseases. Modern science has, however, altered the proportion, and more men are killed from bullets than diseases. The two great causes of typhoid are bad drinking water and the myriads of flies which breed on the dead carcases of horses. Now all drinking water is thoroughly filtered and all refuse is cleaned up as quickly as possible. Not only that, but in most of the fighting forces it is compulsory to be inoculated against typhoid, and the latter precaution has had an immense amount to do with getting rid of disease.

Choice Recipes

Carrot Conserve.

Five cups ground carrots, cover with water and let stand over night. For each cup add one cup sugar. Chopped rind and pulp of oranges, peel of two lemons cooked in water till tender. Pour off water and chop fine. Add as much more sugar as oranges and lemons. One cup (or more) chopped walnut meats. Cook carrots and sugar (in water soaked over night) until quite thick then add orange, lemon and nuts and cook until thick if desired.

Plum Conserve.

Five dozen white plums (can use blue), six dozen raisins, three oranges one cup chopped nuts, as many cups sugar as fruit. Cut up plums with skins on, cut up raisins. After squeezing out juice of oranges, put rind through grinder, use juice also, cook all together 20 or 30 minutes.

Pepper Hash.

Use this for fifteen onions, 24 green and ripe sweet peppers, mixed; three strong peppers, one and one-half cups of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of salt, two and a half pints of vinegar. Take the seeds from the peppers, cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Drain, add sugar, salt and vinegar, bring to a boil and can.

Nut-Date Cookies.

Cream one cup sugar with two-thirds cup butter and lard. Beat in two eggs, add one tablespoon soda sift one and one-half cups of flour with one teaspoon cassia, one nutmeg and one of allspice. Add to first mixture. Add one pound dates chopped and one cup chopped walnuts.

Macaroni Quenelle.

One cup of cooked macaroni a quarter of a pound of bread crumbs, two eggs, one cup milk, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a pinch of powdered herbs, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of chopped cooked ham and salt and pepper to taste. Cut the macaroni into small pieces. Bring the milk to the boiling point, and pour it over the bread crumbs. Add the macaroni herbs, butter, ham beaten eggs, parsley and seasoning. Cover and steam for one hour. Serve with white sauce.

Shrimps in Casserole.

One quart of boiled shrimps, one-half can of mushrooms, one-half can of French peas, one-quarter can of tomatoes, one onion, three cloves, one bay leaf, two tablespoonfuls of catsup and salt and cayenne pepper to taste. Put the ingredients, except the shrimps, in the casserole, and bake them for an hour, then add the boiled shrimps, which have been cut into dice, and bake until a light brown.

Crab Apple Wine.

Squeeze the juice from the crab apples the same as for cider. Let stand 24 hours. Put in casks and add two and one-half pounds of sugar to each gallon of juice, and let it ferment for four weeks or until all the bubbles cease to rise, saving out enough juice to keep filling up the cask as it ferments. Then bottle.

Molasses Cakes.

One cup molasses, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, one-half cup hot water, 1 teaspoon soda, 2½ cups sifted flour. Ginger to taste.

English Salad Dressing.

Mix three tablespoons of French mustard, one-fourth of a teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of paprika, one tablespoon of vinegar, and one-half teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce. Then add one-half a cup of olive oil slowly, stirring constantly.

The Tired-looking Face.

For that tired face that many women have, a nice, long walk every day, with deep breathing, will do much. Then, too, she should retire at a certain time each night, so that she gets at least eight hours of sleep. Then if she wishes to use a massage cream, here is one that will be beneficial, and will remove the tired lines:

Mutton tallow, 1 pound.
Spirits of camphor, 1 dram.
Tincture of benzoin, 2 drams.
Glycerine, 4 ounces.
Powdered alum, ½ dram.
Rose water, 3 ounces.

After you have tried out the tallow in a small pan, you will have 1 cupful of fat. Add to this the alum, and after mixing the glycerine with the benzoin add it to the tallow, then beat in the rose water, a little at a time till mixture becomes light and creamy.

Cleanse the face and neck thoroughly with a good soap and water, taking care to rinse soap well out, then massage in a little of the cream.

If the neck seems yellow, diluted peroxide-of-hydrogen will bleach it.

Improvement with peroxide treatment comes gradually, and should not be expected to work magic in a night.

Why Teeth Decay.

The rate of acid formation depends upon the nature of the food particles left in the mouth. The sweets are the foods that most readily ferment and produce acid. For this reason a meal should never end with jams, cake, candy, or other food rich either in starch or sugar, nor should these be eaten between meals. When sweets or starchy foods are eaten they should be followed by some kind of solid food which has a cleansing effect upon the teeth. Apples are ideal for this purpose.

Whatever the food, the essential thing is to keep the mouth clean. It has been demonstrated that in the thorough mastication of solid food, teeth which are sound and well-matched clean themselves. In fact, they accomplish this about as effectively as a toothbrush. On the other hand, if the food is of a kind that becomes pasty when chewed like pie of cake, mastication plasters it so tightly against the teeth that no ordinary amount of brushing removes it.

An Italian who kept a fruit stand was much annoyed by possible customers who made a practice of handling the fruit and pinching it, thereby leaving it softened and often spoiled. Exasperated beyond endurance, he put up a sign which read:

"If you must pincha da fruit, pincha da cocoanut."

Totally Discouraged by Nervous Prostration

After Many Weeks of Doctoring a Friend Recommended Chases' Nerve Food and She Was Cured

There is nothing more discouraging than Nervous Prostration. Because of the exhausted condition of the nervous system, weakness and helplessness take possession of the body. The faculties of the mind as well as those of the body are affected and hope and courage disappear.

The patient, often appearing well, gets little sympathy, and few doctors understand diseases of the nerves well enough to treat nervous prostration intelligently. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is founded on the prescription of a great nerve specialist, and hence its wonderful success in curing ailments of this nature.

Mrs. Edith May Williams,, Tilsonburg, Ont., R. R. 3, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I suffered for years with my nerves, and at one time I was confined to my bed with nervous prostration for several weeks. I cannot just explain my feelings, but I was weak and helpless and so discouraged and despondent that I thought I would lose my mind. I doctored with several doctors and received but little benefit. At last I became very much discouraged and thought I would never get better. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had finished the first box I knew that it was helping me. It took several boxes of the Nerve Food to make me well and I can truly say that it is a wonderful builder-up of the nervous system."

It is only wise to prevent such dreaded diseases as Nervous Prostration, Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia by keeping the nervous system in good condition at all times. When you cannot sleep well, have headaches and indigestion, be warned of approaching dangers and restore the nervous system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BOWSER PLAYS HORN

Undertakes to Develop What He Calls Talent For Music.

HE STARTS ON THE CORNET.

Weird Noises Soon Attract a Crowd Is Front of the House That Is Dispersed by His Wife—Musical Career Is Cut Short.

[Copyright, 1907, by W. G. McClure.]

Mrs. Bowser happened to be upstairs the other evening when Mr. Bowser reached home, and he had five minutes in which to hide a bundle that he had brought under his arm. Throughout the dinner hour she noticed that he had a triumphant look on his face, and now and then he gave vent to a soft chuckle, but she did not seek to fathom the mystery. If he had bought and brought home an X ray plant in order to discover if the cat had swallowed the ten cent piece he had lost in the morning he would have something to say about it in due time. He hung off longer than usual, but after finishing dinner and smoking half a cigar he turned on her and blandly said:

"Mrs. Bowser, you don't begrudge me any little happiness I can take around the house, do you?"

"Why, of course not," she promptly replied.

"You know I'm not much of a hand to go out evenings."

"No, you are not."

"I think it is a husband's place to pass his evenings at home as much as possible, but of course he wants a little something to divert his mind. I don't care to read and you don't care to play cards, and as it is a bore to run into the neighbors' I am sometimes a bit lonesome. It has seemed to me that if I had a musical instrument of some sort to play on it would take up my time and add what you might call zest to the occasion."

"BLAST THE COOK!"

"But you haven't the slightest idea of music, you know," she rejoined without weighing her words.

"What? What's that?"

"That is, you haven't what they term a musical ear—that is, you don't sing, and the time you got a harp and tried to learn to play on it pedestrians stopped at the gate to see what was going on."

"By the seven spotted bulls of Bashan, Mrs. Bowser, but do you know what you are saying and who you are saying it to?" he demanded with a face as red as fire.

"I mean that you kicked the harp out doors after the third evening."

"Never! Never in all this world! I gave it up simply because of the cramp in my fingers. You tell me that I have no ear for music! Why, woman, I was leading a church choir while you were wearing short dresses. Is this insult intended to drive me out into the world tonight to get druuk and smush up some saloon?"

"You know it is not," replied Mrs. Bowser. "It is nothing to your discredit that you can't whistle a tune. There are lots of people that way."

"More insults, eh?"

"I mean that you couldn't—that is, I hoped you hadn't brought home another harp. The cook is very nervous, you know, and some of our neighbors don't even like to hear my soft playing on the piano. If you wasn't to take lessons and would hire some hall"—

Was All Mixed Up.

Poor Mrs. Bowser was all mixed up and could not finish.

Mr. Bowser, who was as pale as the dead and as weak in the knees as if he had seen a bear, looked at her for a moment and then pointed to the hall and stairs and said:

"Woman, you may go to your room. I will excuse you for the rest of the evening. To-morrow morning I will endeavor to find out whether you have a brain storm or wish to drive me from my home in ignominy and humiliation."

Mrs. Bowser went. She was glad to go. Mr. Bowser looked after her for a moment with set jaw and then brought out his package from its hiding place and removed the wrappers to reveal a secondhand cornet. He had seen it in the window of a pawnshop as he was about to pass, and while he stood looking at it the pawn man came out and offered him a bargain that he couldn't resist. It was the veritable cornet that a king of France was playing on when the revolutionists called to say that he must part with his head to show that he had no hard feelings against the common people. It would just fit Mr. Bowser. He had the wind for it. He could lay back in his Morris chair and blow and blow and blow and feel ten times the satisfaction of nesting Mrs. Bowser at euchre. The instrument was purchased.

"And now I'm told that I have no ear for music," said the purchaser as he lifted it up and puckered his lips for a toot. "I am coolly and calmly and deliberately informed that I can't even whistle a tune, and I am recommended to hire a hall. By John, we'll see about it! The neighbors object to a little soft music, do they? We'll see about that too. We'll see whether the neighbors run this house or I do."

Mr. Bowser sat down and drew a long breath; then he raised the cornet to his mouth and let her go. The sound was a combination of grizzly bear growl and the shouts of a man slowly sinking to a horrible death in a quagmire. Other sounds followed. They were sounds of saws sawing against iron. They were sounds of a man with the asthma trying to hurrah for Bunker Hill on the Fourth of July. They were sounds of five or six dogs engaged in deadly conflict over a bone and five or six more joyously hastening up to take part in the scrap. The pawnbroker had told Mr. Bowser that when he got the thing to going not to stop and let it cool off, but to keep it at the redhot pitch. The instructions were carefully followed until the wind gave out, and the noise died away like the tail end of a cyclone. By that time Mrs. Bowser had come downstairs to say:

"Do you know that you will scare the cook to death with that noise if you keep on?"

"Blast the cook!" retorted the player as he raised the horn and blew another medley of wails and screams.

"And that pedestrians are already stopping at the gate?" she continued as she looked out of the window and caught sight of four men hanging on the fence.

"Blast the pedestrians!"

"And the neighbors will be knocking at the door. The folks that moved in next door two weeks ago are from the country and not used to such noises."

"Woman, retire! Retire upstairs! Retire to stay retired! I have hired my hall and propose to play this horn as long as I want to."

Music Was Weird.

Mrs. Bowser could do nothing else. Then Mr. Bowser resumed. The revolutionists that killed the king that blew on that horn had the proper idea of things. They knew that it was either his life or theirs. It emitted groans and grunts and toots and wails. It sounded flats and it sounded sharps, and between them it sounded several other things. Mr. Bowser had been insulted by Mrs. Bowser declaring that he was no musician. The thought of that helped his wind at least 50 per cent as he blew. He had been advised to hire a hall. He rolled his eyes around the room and imagined that he was in a hall filled with 10,000 people and that he had got to toot loud enough to send the shivers up and down the spines of every listener. For ten minutes the ruction went on, the earnestness and the determination of the player increasing every second, and then came a thundering knock at the front door to interrupt a long drawn wail. Mr. Bowser answered it. There were two policemen there and a crowd behind them.

"What the devil is this?" demanded one of the officers.

"Look at the sad faced murderer!" added the other.

"A rope and a limb!" shouted the crowd.

Then Mrs. Bowser came down the stairs and talked softly and sweetly to the officers. She explained that it was only Mr. Bowser and it was only one of his little ways and that if they would not club or lynch him he would soon tire of his new toy and be looking after a chicken farm or a squab ranch, and in five minutes she had worked the crowd out of the yard. Then she took the horn out of Mr. Bowser's hands and said:

"When you get ready to retire, you can come along up."

Three hours later, as he had not appeared, she slipped downstairs in a wrapper and found him asleep on the lounge, and there were undried tears on his cheeks. His musical career had been cut short.

Beachmont, Ont.—"I feel it my duty to tell what Dr. Pierce's remedies have done for me. When I commenced taking them I was completely run down. I have taken altogether nine bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription,' together with the 'Pleasant Pellets' and can truthfully say that I feel like a new woman. I would certainly recommend these medicines to any one suffering as I did."—Mrs. Wm. Plumley, Beachmont, Ont.

An imitation of nature's method of replacing waste of tissue, enriching impoverished blood and increasing nerve force is when you take an alterative extract of herbs and roots made with pure glycerine, without the use of alcohol, like Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This vegetable medicine coaxes the digestive functions and helps in the assimilation of food, or rather takes from the food just the nutriment the blood requires.

Pure blood is essential to good health. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery not only cleanses the blood of impurities, but it increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and enriches the body with an abundant supply of pure, rich blood. It thus cures scrofula, eczema, erysipelas, boils, pimples and other eruptions that mar and scar the skin.

THIS TURK BEWAILS FATE OF ARMENIANS

Noble Exile Praises Fine Qualities of Race Whom Young Turks Basely Deceive and Destroy

An arraignment of the Young Turks or the Committee of Union and Progress, as having for years plotted the extermination of the Armenian people is contained in a letter addressed by Mehmed Cherif Pasha to the editor of the Journal de Geneve. The views of this eminent exile should doubtless be considered in the light of the fact he has had excellent opportunities for observation of the Young Turks' policy, since he was prominent in their councils when they first obtained power on the over throw of the Abdul Hamid regime, and left their ranks to build up the Liberal opposition party only when he became convinced that their leaders had no intention of carrying out the program of reform to which they were pledged. He is the son of the late Said Pasha, who was one of the chief advisers of Abdul Hamid and the first Grand Vizier under the new Constitution. He, himself, was at one time Turkish Minister to Sweden.

An Old Plot

"After branding the Armenian atrocities perpetrated under the present regime as surpassing the savagery of Genghis Khan and Tamerlane, Cherif Pasha continues: 'It is no use, the state of mind of the Unionists was not revealed to the civilized world until they had openly taken sides with Germany; but for more than six years I have been exposing them in the Mechecontietta (his newspaper, published first in Constantinople and then in Paris) and in different journals and reviews, warning France and England of the plot against them and against certain nationalities within the Ottoman borders, notably the Armenians, that was being hatched. If there is a race which has been closely connected with the Turks by its fidelity, by its services to the country, by the statesmen and functionaries of talent it has furnished, by the intelligence which it has manifested in all domains—commerce, industry, science, and the arts—it is certainly the Armenian.'

Cherif Pasha then enumerates some of the contributions which Armenians have made to Turkish civilization, including the introduction of printing and the drama, and gives credit to an Armenian, Odian Effendi, for having collaborated with Midhat Pasha in framing the Ottoman constitution, and he lays stress upon their fine qualities as agitators against the despotisms of Turkey and Persia—qualities, one suspects, which have not highly recommended them to the autocratic "reformers" of the Young Turk regime.

Turkey's Debt and Treachery

And he continues: "Alas! at the thought that a people so gifted, which has served as the fructifying soil for renovation of the Ottoman Empire, is on the point of disappearing from history not enslaved, as were the Jews by the Assyrians, but annihilated—even the most hardened heart must bleed. Certain individual Armenians and some propagandist groups have for the last six years so maladroitly constituted themselves the defenders and apologists of this Committee of Union and Progress, the author of all their present sufferings. How often have I warned them against the bad faith of the Unionists, the perversity of whose black souls I know only too well! Besides the massacres of Adana, provoked by the Union's orders, ought to have brought them to a sense of the real state of affairs. If, instead of enrolling themselves under the banner of this immoral and treacherous association, they had ranged themselves openly beside the true liberals who had long been pointing out the danger of their course, even at peril of their lives, they would not only have remained true to their principles, but they would also have spared their unfortunate brethren the persecutions they suffered before the war and their whole nation the prospect of an extermination unique in the annals of history."

SIR JOHN FRENCH

The Countess of Warwick has a character sketch of Sir John French in the London Daily Express. She says he lives in his profession, and breathes the very air of it. Soldiering claims his every thought, and yet he is in no aspect the "beau sabreur" of the Ouida novels. If you were to drive with him through the most exquisite landscape, his mind's eye would at once select the salient points of attack and defence. He would grasp every military possibility of what lay before him, but the surrounding beauty would pass him by. Sometimes we have talked of war. "I hate war as much as you do," he has said to me more than once, "but——." There it ends, and he is looking with far-seeing eyes at encounters yet to be. He is the perfect type of the leader of men, a splendid example of the power of concentration driving a single purpose to its end. I think Frederick the Great would have made much of him, and that his chief here in a military sense, the first Napoleon, whose battle grounds he has studied all over Europe, would have kept him by his side. It is well for England that she had had a John French to lead her armies.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Fishes That Climb Trees.

One of the queerest of odd creatures is the mud skipper, or jumping fish, which inhabits the large rivers of India and the neighboring sea coasts. At ebb-tide these little fishes leave the water to hunt for tiny crabs, flies, etc., and their strong pectoral and ventral fins, aided by their tail, enable them to move about easily and to climb upon trees, grass, and leaves. With their huge eyes, seeming to project far out of the sockets, they can see as well on the land as in the water. They progress in short, quick leaps, effected by sharply bending the rear third of the body to the left and suddenly straightening it. In color they are usually light brown with dark bands, though they sometimes appear light green. They are easily caught and are much used in Burma for live bait.

Disturbed His Rest.

"Pie for breakfast? No, thanks. Last Sunday morning I finished my breakfast with a piece of pie and was sorry."

"Why so?"

"I had terrible dreams in church."

DETAILS OF THE LAST AIR RAID

Foremost Zeppelin, Attacking London, Killed Four in an Omnibus With One Bomb

LAWYER FLED FROM OFFICE

This Was Destroyed After His Departure, but Another Bomb Killed Him in Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The following additional details of the Zeppelin air raid on London on Oct. 13 were brought by a passenger on the Tuscania:

"The chief havoc of the night's destructive bombs was in the West End theatre district, off the Strand; at Lincoln's Inn Court, in Chancery Lane, famous as offices of barristers, and in Aldgate, three blocks away from the Liverpool Street railroad stations, where terrific damage was done a month before.

"Besides this, the Zeppelins dropped bombs on Moorgate Street, near an underground station, five short blocks from the Bank of England. They missed Parliament only by two blocks, one of their bombs splashing down into the mud of the river bank at the bottom of Strand Street, running from the Strand to the river's edge and just off the Savoy Hotel.

"While the Savoy Hotel escaped with a shaking up and a few panes of windows being cracked, the Savoy Mansions, just down the slope from the Strand toward the river, had windows pierced by flying fragments of bombs. Three women guests were cut by the jagged missiles.

"Most thrilling of the work of the Zeppelins was the uproar they created in the theatre district, at Aldwych. The Lyceum Theatre got the brunt of it. The Gaiety, Strand, and Aldwych Theatres, all close by, were also damaged, but not badly enough to force the management to close them up.

Heart of London Aroused.

"The Zeppelins dropped their first bomb at the river's edge after apparently having worked their way along the Thames. Evidently they were heading for Parliament, Westminster, and Whitehall. Before they had gone the 100 yards to the Strand anti-air craft were after them and the whole heart of London was aroused.

"As the foremost Zeppelin of the fleet—it is now said, there were four of them in different parts of the town that night—got over the Strand the second bomb was let loose. This one fell with a terrific roar into the middle of the roadway half a block beyond the Lyceum Theatre, on Wellington Street, some 150 feet from the Strand, off in the direction of Leicester Square.

"In a flatiron-shaped strip between the Lyceum and Strand Theatres is the office of The Morning Post. Every window was smashed in and debris hurled over the plant. Employees escaped with bruises or scratches.

"The Gaiety Theatre is next door to Marconi House, the offices of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company. While no windows were broken in Marconi House, the heavy brass fastenings on nearly every one of them were snapped off by the force of the explosion.

Four Killed in an Omnibus.

"The Zeppelin's next bomb exploded almost in front of the Waldorf Hotel, toward the Kingsway end of Aldwych, some 100 feet from Marconi House. This one dropped toward the side of the roadway, digging its way through an omnibus and killing four passengers.

"One man was killed in a cigar shop in the Waldorf block. Candy shops, a theatre ticket office, a drug shop, music shop, art shop, and other places along the Waldorf block were smashed in. The hotel suffered a few broken windows, while its walls were pierced with hundreds of chips from the bomb.

"A piece of wooden pavement used in the roadway went sailing to the roof of Marconi House. The force of the explosion burst windows in Somerset House, across the Strand from the Marconi House. The Aldwych Theatre's glass and iron awning was smashed, like that the Strand Theatre.

"The Zeppelin swerved off toward the City district, dropping two bombs in Chancery Lane on the way. Here are clustered hundreds of barristers. Their offices, in gray, weather-beaten structures fashioned after the Whitehall architecture and most of them put up two and three centuries ago, lie a few blocks off Fleet Street, back of the famous Law Courts.

Flees from One Bomb to Another.

"One bomb exploded in front of a law office which forms one of a complete square surrounding an open parkway, much like Irving Square, in New York. It ripped the building to bits and tore windows in every other office in the same square. A barrister left his office there in great haste when he heard the bombs dropping off the Strand. He hurried off into Chancery Lane, getting away just as the bomb dropped on his office.

"But he was unfortunate enough to have picked out the wrong way to go, for he went directly into the path of the next bomb, which, falling into the middle of Chancery Lane, killed him. This bomb wrecked a restaurant, killing three wayfarers. It ripped the whole street up so that the wooden blocks rose into a ridge in the middle of it.

"In Moorgate Street a bomb missed the underground station by fifty feet, but the concussion of it tore the windows out and the jagged glass badly cut pedestrians.

"At Aldgate Street a bomb dropped into the London and Northwestern Bank branch, completely wrecking it. The walls of the bank were knocked out, tumbling into the Algate Hotel, next door. In the hotel it is feared many lives were lost. Some guests had already retired. They were undoubtedly killed in their sleep. As the hotel's floors gave way and wreckage was carried to the cellar, no actual estimate of the casualties there had been made up to the time when I left London.

"Everywhere for two blocks the effect of the Aldgate Street bomb was evidenced in broken windows, pierced walls, and battered doors.

"The Aldgate Street bomb fell five blocks away from the American Consulate, on New Broad Street."

According to Colin A. Cockburn of Toronto, who returned from London on the Tuscania, a panic was averted in the Lyceum by the cranking of an automobile on the stage.

"I was sitting in a box," he said, "about 9:30, when we heard a terrific explosion which seemed just outside the wall of the theatre next the box. The concussion was so great it rocked us in our seats, and we heard a crash of glass as if all the windows in the theatre had fallen out. An English artillery officer who was in our party exclaimed, 'My word, it's the Zepa!'

"Fortunately, just before the explosion a big automobile on the stage had been cranked, and the audience thought it was a cleverly arranged backfire of the motor, and the people never knew what really had happened until they left the theatre."

The following account, dated Oct. 14, the day after the raid, is from a private letter:

"The raid was participated in by five or seven Zeppelins and was by far the most ambitious effort made by German aerial craft to carry terror and dismay to the hearts of the British people. In this respect it was an utter and grotesque failure. It is true that the casualties were heavier than in any previous raid on London and the eastern counties, especially in women and children, but from a military point of view the raid was an empty achievement and the material damage was lighter than ever.

"Only two of the Zeppelin fleet succeeded in reaching the metropolitan area. One of these devoted its attention to Croydon and Woolwich Arsenal and the other crossed the heart of London from west to east.

"It was this second 'Zep' which caused the greatest sensation. At a few minutes after 9 searchlights in Whitehall located the airship hovering almost directly over the Houses of Parliament and at once the angry roar of several anti-aircraft guns advertised the fact that another raid was in progress.

Overlooked Westminster Abbey.

"The crew of the Zeppelin were evidently unaware of the splendid opportunity they had to drop bombs on Westminster Abbey and Westminster Hospital, for immediately the British guns began to bark the airship sped eastward over Whitehall and the Strand, and did not begin to drop bombs until it reached the heart of the Strand Theatre district.

"There nine were dropped in rapid succession between Exeter Street, Strand, and Chancery Lane at intervals of about 100 yards.

"The first bomb struck the coping of the roof over the gallery entrance of the Lyceum Theatre in Exeter Street, killing and injuring several people in a house on the opposite side of the street and smashing hundreds of windows in the locality, notably those of the east wing of the Strand Palace Hotel.

"When this bomb fell J. E. B. Stuart of Norfolk, Va., an official of the Texas Company, who, landing in England on Monday from the American liner St. Paul, was seated in his room on the fifth floor of the Strand Palace Hotel—less than fifty feet away—finishing a letter to his wife. The concussion smashed the window of Mr. Stuart's room, and gave him the shock of his life, almost hurling him from his chair. In less than twenty seconds Mr. Stuart was in the corridor, surrounded by shrieking and weeping women guests in various stages of undress, and he had great difficulty in calming them, some of them being so frightened that they sat up all night. Mr. Stuart, when he had recovered his nerves, added a postcript to his letter home, at least as interesting as the letter itself.

"It is an interesting fact that of the nine bombs dropped by this Zeppelin in the heart of London, where buildings are as thick as bees and the streets very narrow, only one—the first—struck any building, and the structural damage caused by this one was less than $300.

Strand Finished the Play.

"It was in the Strand Theatre, at the corner of Catherine street and Aldwych, that the most notable episode connected with the raid occurred. Here Fred Terry and Julia Nielson are playing "The Scarlet Pimpernel." They were in the middle of the second act when a bomb fell on the sidewalk at the very door of the theatre, shattering doors and windows and bringing down laths and plasters in showers on the heads of both players and audience.

"Fred Terry, covered with dust and debris, stepped at once to the front of the stage, raised his hand, and in his calm, quiet voice said:

"'Ladies and gentlemen, please keep your seats and be calm. You are as safe here as anywhere. The play will proceed.'

"And proceed it did, the final fall of the curtain being only fifteen minutes later than usual.

"A number of persons were killed or injured by these nine bombs, but the material damage is almost wholly represented by a few tons of broken glass, carted away this morning, and the chippings of walls and woodwork by flying pieces of shrapnel from the Zeppelin bombs, all of which appeared to be of a highly explosive nature.

Zeppelins a Fascinating Sight.

"Throughout this bomb-dropping performance the Zeppelin was subjected to a fierce cannonading by anti-air-raf guns. The spectacle of the 'Zep' clearly outlined against the dark sky by searchlights with shrapnel shells bursting around her every moment was one of extreme fascination and people stood in the streets in hundreds watching it, apparently quite forgetful or scornful of the danger. Many of the shrapnel shells burst very close to the airship, but its altitude was so great—fully 6,000 yards—that it was practically impossible to get the range.

"The Zeppelin subsequently dropped three or four bombs in Aldgate, one falling close to the London Hospital—the biggest in England—and wrecking the well known Three Nuns Tavern. Several were killed or injured here.

"To-day the recruiting offices in London were busier than they have been for months, many thousands being added to Kitchener's overgrowing army."

Clarice M. Herivel, a nurse, in St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, writing to her sister, Mrs. L. M. Williams of Waverly, Penn., on Oct. 11, said of the raid previous to the last one:

"We have been having quite a lot of excitement here lately. I suppose you know that we have been 'Zepped.' About a fortnight ago—I forget the exact day, or rather night—a Zep flew over our heads (at 10.50 p.m.) and peppered us with bombs for about ten minutes. We hadn't a word of warning until the first bomb fell. None hit Bart's, (St. Bartholomew's Hospital), but one fell in Bart's Close—twelve yards from the nurse's home—and smashed everything in the square (of course). It made a hole twelve feet deep.

"Our nurses' home suffered badly, and shook as though on top of an earthquake. Nearly every tile came off, ceiling fell wholesale, and windows and frames were broken and bb. We had 1,200 panes of glass smashed."

A small special constable when on top of a tram-car was requested by the conductor to come down to deal with a man who was inclined to be abusive. Reluctantly, the special constable complied with the request, but found himself confronted by a huge navvy about 6 feet 6 inches high and 4 feet broad.

"There he is," said the conductor. "He won't pay his fare."

The small special constable reflected, and then remarked sadly: "Well, I suppose I must pay it for him."—"Tit-Bits."

BRIGHTER CHILDREN

Children are probably brighter to-day than a generation ago—but are they stronger? That's a grave question. So many pinched faces, dulled eyes and languid feeling make us wonder if they will ever grow into robust, healthy men and women.

If your children catch colds easily, are tired when rising, lack healthy color, or find studies difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion for one month to enrich their blood and restore the body-forces to healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion is used in private schools. It is not a "patent medicine", simply a highly concentrated oil-food, free from harmful drugs. It cannot harm; it improves blood; it benefits lungs and strengthens the system. Your druggist has it—refuse substitutes.

"WHO DID HIS DUTY"

English Veteran's Dying Cry in a Flanders Trench.

Corporal W. Buckland, of the Meerut Division, Indian Expeditionary Force, in a letter to a friend tells how his comrade, by falling over a German trip wire near one of the enemy's listening posts in Flanders, brought a fusillade upon both of them, the comrade being mortally wounded. "I'm mending in my checks, old man," said the wounded man as they regained the British lines. "And a" the doctors in the world can't save me."

"After I had made him as comfortable as I could, on an old overcoat, and lit a cigarette for him," says Corporal Buckland's letter, "he started to talk over the times we had had together in different parts of the world. He did not last long, though. Just as the grey dawn was breaking he asked me to lay his rifle by him, and, after I had done so, he pulled me down by his side and I just managed to hear him say, 'Bill, I'm on the road now. I can hear someone sounding the great challenge. "Halt, who comes there?" With a tremendous effort, he staggered up, and, in a terrible voice, shouted with almost superhuman strength, 'An Englishman who did his duty.'

"The grey dawn was breaking in the east and the only sound to be heard was an aeroplane that was just going over our lines. That is how an English soldier meets his death."

Fighting Poison Gas

No sooner did the Germans resort to the use of poisonous gases in their efforts to break down the Allied lines than methods to make those gases useless were invented. Although respirators soaked in special preparations practically render Britain's soldiers safe, yet a far better plan is now being tested. The idea is to place all along the trenches a, intervals of a few yards, powerful hand-driven fans. These fans create a counter air current, and either roll the poisonous vapour back again or cause it to lift and drift harmlessly over the heads of the soldiers in the trenches.

Section of Incendiary Bomb.

This shows a sectional view of the bombs dropped by German Zeppelins. The funnel is generally filled with Thermite which upon ignition generates intense heat and by the time of concussion has taken the form of molten metal with a temperature of over 5,000 deg. Fahr.

Wire in Warfare

Barbed wire was invented by a farmer about fifty years ago for the simple purpose of preventing cattle from breaking their way through fences, but the honest Hodge did not think that later his discovery would be taken up by every army in Europe. Yet such has proved the case. Barbed wire is to-day as necessary a part of an army's equipment as pontoons or trenching tools. In war barbed wire is used in various ways, but its main object is men-stopping. Whenever possible barbed-wire entanglements are hidden in long grass or in hedges, so that advancing troops will be trapped while the enemy rake their lines with shot and shell.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Colour and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hairs disappear, and, after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

RECRUITING IS BETTER THAN FOR LONG TIME

LONDON, Oct. 28.—There has been a great increase in recruiting throughout the country during the past week, according to a number of newspapers.

The Manchester Guardian says that recruiting is now going on at a higher rate than any reached since the early months of the war.

200,000 Canadians Now at Front Or in Training

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—There are now 200,000 Canadian soldiers under arms, either at the front, in England or Canada.

To the 150,000 which it was announced had enlisted up to the end of September nearly twenty new battalions have been added during the

Manned By Old Veterans

Say British Reservists Called On Fleet at Dardanelles.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—In an article in the Daily Mail describing the work of the British fleet at the Dardanelles, a correspondent says: "All the hard work, dangers and strain of these naval operations off the Dardanelles are not falling on the young and vigorous manhood of the fleet, but on the old home-trooted reservists who were called back to the colours to man this auxiliary fleet at the outbreak of the war.

"The ships are the oldest of veterans, and so are their crews. In some of the ships out here there are hardly any men of active service rating on the upper deck. There are many men between 45 and 50 years of age. Nearly all are fathers and many are grandfathers."

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear; no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

Of the many designs which are worn this summer it is the more simple ones which are meeting with the greatest favor. This is for various reasons, one of them being the ease with which such frocks may be made, even by the veriest amateur at dressmaking.

The frock shown in the accompanying illustration is an excellent one for all the plainer fabrics which are now in vogue. Plain colors in linen and gingham are suitable and will be effective, poplin or silk recommends itself for such dresses, and the many pretty ginghams and other fabrics which have no special name are nearly all appropriate.

The blouse is quite plain, with a small rounded collar trimming the back of the neck and coming down in plain straight tabs in front.

The three gore skirt is made with either the raised waist line or the normal one, most women preferring the raised effect. It fits neatly around the hips and flares at the hem to a measurement of 2¾ yards in the medium size. The band effect at the lower edge is obtained by making a small upward turning tuck in the material where the line of perforations is placed, and this may be omitted if desired. It is also possible to face the skirt from the perforations downward.

The dress pattern, No. 7282, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 5⅛ yards of 36 inch material, with 1¼ yards of 27 inch contrasting goods.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or ½ for 25c.

THE FRENCH FORCES DOMINATE STRUMNITZA

THE BULGARIAN FORCES ARE ON THE DEFENSIVE

FALL OF BULGARIAN POSITION TO FRENCH IS EXPECTED SOON

Strumnitza Cannot Hold Much Longer---French and Serbians Are Taking the Offensive Northward Along the Nish Railway and a Big Battle is Expected in the Neighborhood of Istip Towards Which the Allies are Marching

KING GEORGE INJURED BY FALL FROM HORSE

LONDON, Oct. 29. The French operating in the Strumnitza region have occupied the heights which dominate Strumnitza, which is not expected to hold out much longer against the French attack. The aspect of operations on the Serbian front is changing since the French successes at Veles and Strumnitza. The Bulgarians are on the defensive, while the French and Serbians are able to take the offensive northward along the Nish railroad. A big battle is expected in the neighborhood of Istip, toward which the Franco-Serbian army is marching. The Bulgarians are entrenching themselves on the heights around the town. The Bulgarians operating in the valley of Lower Tinok have been cut off and annihilated.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—King George is suffering from severe bruises due to a fall from his horse, it is announced to-day.

The King is confined to his bed, it was admitted. He passed a fair night, his physician stated. His temperature was given at 99.2; his pulse at 75. His Majesty's accident occurred on Thursday morning. He was inspecting an army in the field in northern France when his mount was excited by the troops' cheers and fell.

As a result of bruises he suffered, the King must remain in bed "for the present." Assurance was given that he had improved over night, however, and that there were no complications.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(French Official).—Bomb and petard combats have occurred in the Aisne region and in the vicinities of Puisaleine and Quennevieres along the Franco-German front to-day.

"In the Champagne district bombardments continue at Tahure, Masons, Champagne and Courtine."

LONDON, Oct. 29. "Mr. Montagu, Financial Secretary to the Treasury," says the Express, "stated a few days ago in the House of Commons that every citizen ought to be prepared to put half his annual income at the disposal of the nation. The Treasury is now considering the advisability of acting in accordance with this warning, and if the nation will not save voluntarily it will be made to do so.

"Not half, but third, of every man's present income will be commandeered. Part will be taken as tax, while the remainder, an equivalent in interest bearing paper, will be issued."

LONDON, Oct. 29. Memorial services for Miss Edith Cavell brought to St. Paul's to-day one of the greatest crowds in the Cathedral's history. Immense numbers were turned away. All the streets in the vicinity were filled with mourners. Queen Mother Alexandra was present in person. King George and Queen Mary sent representatives. The Cabinet members and numerous other notables were in the audience. Six hundred London nurses occupied the front seats. American Ambassador Page was unable to attend.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. Whether the United States or Spain will mediate in Europe's war is the question in official quarters as the result of renewed interest here and in Europe's capitals of peace terms. Ambassador Gerard's long conference with the Kaiser is believed to have launched the discussion of peace. Prince Buelow's visit to Geneva to consult and make a definite formula for the presentation to the Pope of peace terms is taken as a basis for the report that Germany is about to let the States and Spain know on what terms peace would be made.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—A violent public demonstration against the policy of the Government took place in Bucharest. One faction of manifestants sought to reach the Palace but was prevented by a large force of troops. Two of the leaders asked for an audience with King Ferdinand. A number of minor street disturbances occurred.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—An Anglo-Franco-Russian joint note, dated October 19, in which Japan was invited to join in the Allies' agreement not to make separate peace treaties with the Teutonic powers and an acceptance, signed the same day by Ambassador Inouye, were published by the Government to-day.

BERLIN, Oct. 29. "Fiercer than Belgium," is the semi-official description of the resistance the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians are meeting in Serbia, though it is said the Teutonic Balkan campaign is progressing rapidly. It was declared the difficulties the invaders were being compelled to surmount were terrific. Just now the German and Austrian armies are in the Serbian Alps, where the advance is especially arduous. The Serbs are fighting like mad, the women and children taking part, on equal terms with the men, in the struggle. Sniping and bushwhacking were reported literally incessant. There has been a heavy snowfall in Northern Germany, which has brought the realization that another winter campaign is opening. The newspapers are already discussing the soldiers' Christmas wants.

GET SEPARATION ALLOWANCES FROM DATE OF JOINING

This is the Effect of Official Announcement From Ottawa Dealing With the Rates of Pay and Allowances For the Canadian Forces

AN EXPLANATION

Recruits enlisted under the new system arranged by Major General Hughes, who are billeted in villages, etc., are to be paid in addition to $1.00 pay and 10c field allowance, 50c a day for single men, and 75c a day for married men, and single men who are the sole support of a widowed mother. This of course is only in cases where the men are not fed and housed by the Government, and does not apply to Peterborough's soldiers in the 93rd who will be in barracks, and will receive the usual pay and field allowance. An important feature of the new regulations, as announced in a despatch from Ottawa, given below, is that recruits drafted into any unit of the Canadian Expeditionary force are entitled to receive separation allowance from the date they joined such unit. The official statement is:

Ottawa, Oct. 29 "Beginning November 1, 1915, the following rates of subsistence allowance where the men are not provided with rations and quarters, will be paid recruits of Canadian Expeditionary Forces, unmarried men, 50 cents a day, married 75c a day. Pay, $1.10 per day, and field allowance, 10c per day, will be paid in addition to the above rates of subsistence. The officer acting as paymaster will, however, issue to the wife or widowed mother, $15 a month from the soldier's pay and allowances." As soon as the recruits are drafted into a unit of the C. E. F. separation allowance will be issued to those entitled to receive it from the date of joining such unit."

LINDSAY CHILDREN IN THE SHELTER

Parents Remain in Goal on a Charge of Murder

The three children of Mr and Mrs. Sandford Lindsay have been committed to the care of the Children's Shelter. In the meantime an attempt will be made to get in touch with the parents of Mrs. Lindsay in the hope that they will take care of the children. Mr and Mrs. Lindsay are taking their position quite calmly. They never twitched a muscle when the charge of murder was read out to them yesterday. They intimated that they had a number of witnesses and were inclined to feel confident of the successful outcome of their case. It was a pathetic sight to see the three children in court clinging close to their parents, who were charged with the capital crime if murder.

GENEVA, Oct. 27.—Word has just reached here from Basle of the death of the German aviator Reigrer, who is said to have established a world's record by flying with passengers to an altitude of 5,500 meters (nearly 3½ miles).

Reigrer and his companion, Capt. Mogar, were killed by the fall of their aeroplane.

DENTAL WORK TO BE DONE AT EXPENSE OF THE GOVERNMENT

Dr. M. A. Morrison Appointed to Look After the Teeth of the Men of the 93rd---Capt. Winnett in Charge of Dental Work For the Division Here To-day---520 Bunks Have Already Been Erected---To-day's Military News

Henceforth all Peterborough's soldiers in the 93rd Battalion in need of dental attention will have this work done at the expense of the government. Capt. Winnett of Barriefield camp, who is the officer in charge of dentistry in this division, was here to-day and made arrangements, by which Dr. M. A. Morrison will do after the dental work of all the members of the 93rd Battalion stationed in Peterborough. For some months since the order was issued that no applicant for overseas service was to be turned down on account of his teeth, the examining doctors have paid no attention to the condition of a man's molars, and there is therefore likely to be a large amount of dental work necessary. From now on all such work will be done at the expense of the government. It is altogether likely that every man in the battalion will have his teeth inspected and all necessary filling, etc., done.

520 bunks for Peterborough soldiers have already been erected in the armouries and the carpenters are plowing ahead at top speed. The stores of the 57th and 24th Field Battery have been removed from the different rooms. The saddle room of the 24th Battery is to be used as a wash room and bath room. Shower baths and washing troughs are to be installed at once.

Mr. Chas. A. Stevens, son of Mr and Mrs. George Stevens, 574 Rogers street, has joined the overseas contingent at Chatham, Ont.

Kingston Standard: About six hundred of the 80th battalion will remain in Belleville for the winter. A Khaki Club is being prepared for the men, and everything that the city can do will be done to make the men of Lt.-Col. Ketcheson's battalion comfortable during their stay. The staff will be located at Belleville, with two companies. One company will be at Napanee, and the other in Picton. Both the latter places are being prepared for the men.

Kingston Standard: Two contracts have been awarded for the fixing of places in Napanee, Cobourg, Picton, Peterborough, Lindsay, Belleville, Pembroke and other places where troops will be kept this winter, and the Engineers' Department, under Major Burritt, is busy pushing the work. Major Burritt left the camp yesterday afternoon to visit all the places designed as mobilizing centres, and the work of preparation will be hurried, so as to be ready for occupation at the earliest possible date.

Pte. Chas. Stinson of the 2nd Battalion, invalided home from the front after going through the battles of Ypres and Festubert, is not satisfied with doing his bit at the front, but is doing some more work for the Empire since he got home. He was one of the speakers at the patriotic meeting in Bethany on Wednesday night and delivered an effective appeal for more men for the firing line. He did not mince matters at all and told the young men in the audience their duty in plain terms.

Another bandsman passed the medical examination this morning, in the person of Bandsman Robinson of the Temple Band, who will join the band of the 93rd. Bandsman Robinson has a son in the 59th Band at Barriefield, and will apply for a transfer for his son to the local band.

Kingston Standard: H. Kelly of the 59th orderly room staff has returned to duty after being on leave. He left smiling, but comes back to his duties as a married man. The marriage took place in Peterborough.

The visiting officers at the armouries this morning were delighted with the 93rd Band. Bandmaster Hughes' organization played a selection from H.M.S. Pinafore for the benefit of the visitors, who were loud in their praises of the band's work.

The 93rd Band will motor to Lakefield for their concert to-night. Cars have been kindly provided by Messrs. Spencely, Oke and Banks, and will leave the armouries at 7 o'clock sharp.

Capt. Winnett of Barriefield Camp, the officer in charge of dental work in this division, is in Peterborough to-day on business in connection with the 93rd Battalion.

Capt. R. E. Layfield, Quartermaster of the 80th Battalion, is here to-day transferring the stores belonging to the 80th over to the 93rd Battalion. To-morrow he will go to Lindsay to transfer a quantity of uniforms to the 93rd. Capt. Layfield returns to Barriefield on Monday.

Major Watson of the headquarters staff of the 3rd Division, and an official visit to Peterborough to-day.

The soccer team representing the 93rd Battalion will cross with the Normal School team on the return game at Norwood Oval to-morrow. The game is called for 2:30 o'clock [illegible] the first game the soldiers won by 1 goal to 0, but the civilians promise a surprise to-morrow. Lovers of football will be amply repaid for the trip to the Oval as the teams play clever football. The 93rd team will line up as follows:

Goal, Sergt. Celestine.
Backs, Lance-Corp. Coleman, Pte. Sam. Taylor; half-backs, Pte. Norman, Sergt. Kunz, Pte. A. Harriman; forwards, Sergt. Harrison, Pte. A. Edwards, Pte. J. Scott, Pte. Shaw, Pte. T. Harriman.

M. Briand the New Premier Has Taken up the Work—Jules Cambon to Take an Important Part in the New Ministry

FORMAL RESIGNATION

PARIS, Oct. 29.—President Poincare to-day received the formal collective resignation of the entire Viviani ministry, given officially in the decision of the cabinet yesterday to retire.

M. Briand immediately took up the work of forming the new ministry, which already was well advanced in anticipation of President Poincare's formal request. M. Briand conferred with Jules Cambon, who was Ambassador to Germany at the outbreak of war, and it is expected to take an important part in the Briand ministry as General Secretary to the Foreign Office. In this capacity he is to give special attention to diplomatic questions arising from the war. M. Briand requested his colleagues to confer again with him late in the afternoon when it was expected a definite conclusion would be reached concerning the distribution of the various portfolios.

Exchanged Prisoner Now in London Writes Regarding Life in Prison Camp at Giessen Where Local Boys Are Confined

DEPEND ON PARCELS

Mr. R. B. Rogers, Hunter street east, has received a letter from Mr. George Hogan, of Toronto, enclosing a letter he received from Pte. S. Young, now in a hospital in London, England, but who until exchanged a short time ago, was a prisoner of war at Giessen, Germany, where Lance Corporal John Hogan of Toronto, and Pte. Heber Rogers, are also prisoners. Lance-Corp. Hogan is well-known in Peterborough, having lived here a number of years. He was at one time on the reportorial staff of The Examiner.

The Letter.

Pte. Young's letter tells of conditions in the camp and is as follows:

3rd London General Hospital,
October 10, 1915.

Mr. Geo. Hogan,
26 Brookmount Road,
Kew Beach, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—Having recently arrived from Germany I am writing to tell you that I left your brother, Lance-Corp. John Hogan, of the 3rd Toronto Regiment, in good health. I may also mention that Heber Rogers, of the Second Battalion, Machine Gun Section, is in the same camp, and is entirely recovered from his wounds, although it has effected the sight of his right eye.

I was unlucky enough to get a bullet through my left hand which is now nearly useless, and owing to that I got away in the exchange. I am not sorry to get back to civilization again, believe me.

All the English prisoners in Giessen depend entirely upon the parcels which they receive from their friends in food. The bread which they receive from the Germans is about the only food that is fit to eat. Speaking about the general run of the food from day to day it is hardly decent enough to feed to a dog, and I am sure a dog would not touch it if it was starving.

There are working parties sent out occasionally, and if the men refuse to work they are brought back to the camp and put in a punishment barrack. While there they are not allowed to write either letter or post cards, and to receive no parcels. They are also made to work about camp during the day. Your brother Jack just finished 21 days of that punishment shortly before I came away.

Let me suggest a warm blanket would be a good thing to send as it will be very cold during winter, and the Germans only give them one blanket per man. I will close now.

Yours faithfully,
No. 7969, Pte. S. Young,
M. G. S., 2nd Batt.
Canadians.

P.S.—Anything you would like to know about your brother I will be pleased to tell you. Please inform Heber Rogers' parents of their son's camp life.—Young.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, OCT. 29, 1915

A NEW PLAN.

Guelph is not satisfied with its present form of civic government. Alderman Carter of that city has a plan for remedying the ills the city now suffers from in regard to the administration of civic affairs, and his plan will be submitted to the electors, and if they approve of it it will in turn be submitted to the Legislature for ratification. Alderman Carter's plan is briefly described thus. It provides for the abolition of all the present public service commissions and the appointment of a business manager responsible to the city council, which body will remain in number as at present, but will be elected four each year for a three-year term. This proposal might repay investigation, when Peterborough has entered upon consideration of the problems of government by commission as a way out of the unsatisfactory conditions that attend the present form of city government. If we are going to make a change, we should strive to get the best substitute for a system that both aldermen and ratepayers who think cannot but regard as as unsatisfactory.

THE RED HERRING.

The Toronto News is drawing a red herring across the scent of ineffective provision of machine guns and equipment, with all the zeal and energy that partizanship to the hilt can command. Partizanship and puerility are singularly out of place, in face of the necessity of united action and the uselessnes, and even injury of harking back to dead issues. The News assails the Star and other journals for calling attention to the need of waking up the Government, to realize and grapple with the present emergency. It blames the Star and the Liberal party for the state of unpreparedness this country found itself in when Germany declared war, though even Great Britain and Russia, and to a certain extent, France, were equally unprepared. It says that the emergency was denied, though events proved that there was an emergency. But the point is not now who was responsible for denial of an emergency; though if we were unprepared, nobody is to blame but the Government and party which saw the emergency, as it now claims to have done, and had the power to prepare for it. The Liberal newspapers, and the Liberal leaders, did not conduct the administration of public affairs; that was in the hands of the Government, with a big following—big enough to give effect to any preparations to meet the emergency it might, and, as the claims go, did foresee. If anybody is to blame for being unprepared it was the Government in power from October, 1911, to August, 1914. It had three full years to make the preparations, it is now proclaimed the patriotic party foresaw, were necessary, but lifted no finger to provide.

But the responsibility for unpreparedness is not the point. That is a dead issue. The point is now the question of preparation to meet the present emergency. This is no time for recrimination. This is no time for bandying party reproaches. There is no party now, or should be no party, but the the country and its interests as associated with our duty at the present time. Canada is called upon to do her duty, and Canada is willing and earnest in discharging this duty. The people of Canada are heart and soul in the work. There is no lack of enlistment to fill the ranks. In fact the trouble is that the people are doing all they can do, and waiting for the Government to second their efforts. Recruits present themselves faster than they can be equipped with clothing and munitions. The people are doing their duty nobly in this regard, and it is the Government that is not meeting the call, is not seconding the popular elan in providing men. That is the sole ground upon which the Government is criticised. It is not party criticism, because fault is found with the Government for not moving rapidly enough—not only by Liberal journals and citizens, but by journals that are supporters of the Government's general policy in time of peace. But in this time of war there is a higher loyalty than party loyalty, loyalty to the country and Empire, loyalty to British ideals, and loyalty to the duty of doing our best to preserve them.

Canadians differ in politics, but there is no difference of opinion in the matter of Canada's duty of participation in this war. The only aim of every true Canadian, no matter what his political principles, or his party affiliations, is to strive that Canada should do her full best, and that the Government, the provided instrument, should cooperate to give the fullest effect to the national ambition and national willingness to do our best.

And are we doing our best? Is the Government encouraging recruiting by providing an adequate supply of uniforms and equipment, something experience has shown to be one of the necessary stimulants to recruiting? Is it encouraging recruiting to have delay in the provision of machine guns to put Canadian soldiers in the field on an equality with the enemy? We know that Canadian soldiers measure up to the standard of the bravest and the best; but this is of no avail unless efficiently armed. Battles are fought with guns, not with bare hands.

Not only Liberal newspapers, but men of both parties, who gave money for machine guns, are puzzled to know why there has not been more activity in providing them. Lack of money is no excuse. Some eight hundred thousand dollars was privately subscribed for machine guns, on the call of the acting Minister of Militia, but the Government claims that before this appeal it had ordered all the machine guns that could be procured. There is a big muddle over the machine gun matter, and the people naturally hold the Government responsible.

The people feel that some way or other the Government is not doing its best, and that feeling is not inspired by partizanship. It is not party politics, but patriotism that raises its voice. The whole country, Grit and Tory, is solidly behind the Government in whatever measures are necessary to Canada doing her full duty, in meeting the emergency we now know exists. There is no call for recriminations about differences of opinion years ago in the matter of an emergency. We all know that there is an emergency now, and the best way of meeting it is the problem, that confronts the Government of Canada, and the people of Canada. If the party hacks will only let them alone, the people will drop party politics and unite as one man to do their duty themselves, and to require the Government of the day to do its duty. The Government of the day is not now the Government of a party; but the Government of the whole people, backed by the whole people, so long as is does its full duty, and adequately helps the people to do theirs.

THE REASON WHY.

Toronto subscribed more than a dollar per head to the Red Cross fund last week. Ottawa and Hamilton gave half a dollar per head. The contribution of the whole province averaged nearly fifty cents. But some places gave surprisingly little. Belleville for instance subscribed about 10 cents per head. Why? Not from lack of means or goodwill, but from lack of organization, and of some earnest, resolute persons to start organization. Organization well pushed is a wonderful thing to get results. Germany is illustrating that.—Ottawa Journal.

ALIENATING SYMPATHY.

Is it Prussianism or is it militarism, is it heredity, or is it in training which inspires and explains the activities of men like Fay and Scholz arrested in Hoboken Sunday? High explosives and devices for destroying ships were found in their possession, and Fay admitted that he was a German army officer who was given leave of absence and supplied with money to come over here, develop his contrivance and put an end to shipments of supplies to the Allies.

Every so often the imperial government can be relied on to do some act to horrify or antagonize public sentiment in neutral states. There seems to be a fatality about it. As indignation at one outrage begins to subside another occurs. Now it is interned officers who break their oaths; now it is ship bombers who come to our seaports to destroy our commerce. One after another in unbroken sequence come events or disclosures which seems calculated to change good will or friendly neutrality into hostility. Evidently, we are not as a nation to be permitted to sympathize with militarism. Apparently American sentiment is to be kept harrowed up and inflamed to such a degree that the overthrow of militarism and the downfall of "divine right" autocracies will be welcomed on this side of the ocean and by the world at large as a great forward step for mankind.—Rochester Post.

A Five Hundred Year Old Lesson From History

Little notice has been taken of the fact that Monday of this week the 25th day of October—St Crispin's Day—was the five hundredth anniversary of the Battle of Agincourt. Only two years had passed since the roystering Prince Hal had sloughted off his folly and showed himself a noble and spirited King. The dynastic quarrel which had kept his grandfather, Edward, embroiled with France was still unsettled, and he had led an army of thirty thousand across the Channel to enforce his claims to the Crown. France was already disturbed by civil broils, alike between nobles and burgesses, but, as always has been the case, was able to put a splendid and powerful army in the field. Henry landed at the mouth of the Seine and after a siege of five weeks took Harfleur, a strong fortress on the right bank of that river. Sickness and siege reduced his numbers so severely, however, that after leaving a garrison in the captured town his whole force did not exceed ten thousand men. With this little army he determined to march through a hostile country to the city of Calais. He marched by the sea coast till he came to the River Somme, which he hoped to cross, as his grandfather had done before him. The French had not been idle. The bridges had been broken down and the fords defended by lines of sharp stakes. After several days delay, however, the English army, still further reduced, had found a passage and gained the crossing. The French chivalry barred their passage on the Calais road. Heralds were sent to the English King to demand surrender. He refused:—"The sum of all our answer is but this: We would not seek a battle as we are; nor as we are we will not shun it." The night before the battle, like that before so many others, was one of storm and rain. The soldiers, hungry and cold, crouched around their struggling camp fires. In the morning off hunger and cold were forgotten, and both sides prepared to do battle for a kingdom. Shakespeare has pictured the scene for us in winged words. We know how the hearts of Henry and of his army seemed to rise with the imminence of the danger. The King fought in the forefront of the battle. He was unhorsed and all but unpowered. His uncle the Duke of York, was slain, and the royal standard which he carried nearly taken. But King and standard were both saved. The English archers, those "good yeomen whose limbs were made in England," poured in their terrible arrow flights; the knights and heavy cavalry, and the Welsh and Irish levies all played their part leading to a crushing victory.

The peace which succeeded Agincourt was cemented by a marriage between Henry and the French Princess Catherine, and it was arranged that he should succeed to the French throne after the King's death. But what an uncertain element is human conquest. Seven years after Agincourt the young conquerer was dead, and in seven years more Joan an Arc had relieved Orleans, and the dream of an English empire in France was forever at an end.

We know now that Britain has as much cause as France to be thankful for this. Each country has followed the line of its own development until this day, when the sons of those who fought against each other at Agincourt are standing shoulder to shoulder for the liberties of Europe. Henry's raid into France is unjustifiable by all modern international law. He is said, however, to have forbidden plundering and outrage as he marched through France. We must judge him in the light of his times, and so can be proud of him and his people for their courage, their chivalry and their patriotism. We can be glad that the spirit of Agincourt is still alive among us. Our men opposing the German hordes to-day may well repeat the old words:

"And gentlemen in England now a-bed shall think themselves accursed they were not here, and hold their manhoods cheap while any speaks that fought with us upon Saint Crispin's Day."—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

THE GIFT OF WAR-TIME GIVING

The following article is by John Galsworthy, the famous author of "Justice," "A Man of Property," "The Freelands," and other novels.

As the sands of the sea for number, are the sufferers of this war. If there be any sort of brotherhood between man and fellowman, we are all sufferers in the greatest tragedy that ever befell the human race. But most of us here in America are spared the actual and atrocious forms of physical suffering, the ghastly wounded, the blistering fevers, the starvation, and the homelessness that line the road of this struggle, riving the heart, twisting the very neck of Europe. We are spared sight of the battlefields, sound of their ceaseless hours of moaning; spared vision of the seas alive with the drowning.

When the Lusitania was keeling over one on board who survived, saw a great wave sweeping back on her black with wailing men, women and children. We in the United States are spared sight of maimed and blinded soldiers and of their pitiful heroic cheeriness; and spared the long agonized waiting for those we love.

For us in this land still peaceful, it is hard to realize that nearly three million French and Belgians are being just kept alive by doles of charitable food which may yet fail them; that at least twice as many have been plucked from thriving prosperity and flung into the dingy heap of ruin, that the Serbian people and the Polish people are pressed to the very wall by fever and want.

All these things are hard to see, to realize, so far off are they. And yet, if there be a soul in man, a heart in our people, we must try and realize and do what little we can to stay this tide of suffering.

For most of us money is the only thing we can give. Money is cold, but it buys warmth, hope, shelter, ease from the sweat of agony; it mends limbs, keeps mothers with their children, builds homes again. Money! It fights fever and feeds the starving. Let us give money! If we do not give, how shall we show that our hearts feel that the spirit of America suffers with the suffering of these millions of innocent, maimed, fevered, starving bodies, these millions of innocent and tortured souls.

How else, save by giving and again giving, shall we—can we—show our pity and our comradeship.

GERMANY'S IMPERIAL FOOD

At the request of the Imperial German Chancellor, the Under Secretary of State prepares and issues to the world a statement of the food problem in Germany. In the first place, there is no such thing. There is plenty of food. "As a matter of fact," says the Under Secretary, "we have carried over from last year's harvest into the new so much grain that we are compelled to let 3,000,000 tons of it be fed to cattle." Previously, as the reader knows, German cattle were fed on potato peelings. There is no scarcity of that progender. "We have also this year," continues the Under Secretary, "such a record potato crop as Germany has never known before in her existence." Besides, the raising of hogs has "had an undreamed of impetus."

Meal, pork, and potatoes to the point of satiation. What more could people want? Nothing. As the Under Secretary said at first, there is no food problem in Germany. The talk of it is all that remains to be explained. "The basis of fact," he says, "which has caused the foreign press "to busy itself with our internal affairs is that the Government is now "concerned in unifying and regulating by-law all those measures which "the local authorities and military "Governors have singly promulgated." For instance, the great potato crop "will be apportioned throughout the empire by the newly organized Imperial Potato Department, fith maximum prices, so that "the inhabitants of the cities will get "a sure and cheap supply of this "most important food."

The Under Secretary either contradicts himself or is contradicted by his Government. Why apportion the supply and fix the price of an extra abundant potato crop, other food being also plentiful? He is contradicted in many other ways, and not only by the "foreign press." Last week the Cologne Gazette denounced food speculators indignantly:

Exasperation festers in the people because the task of holding out in the long war is rendered difficult by those who see in the present economic conditions a wonderful opportunity to make money. War usuary remains an unsightly stain on the white shield of German honor, and war usurers incur the responsibility of gradually producing in a people who are self-sacrificing, enduring, and conscious of victory a gloomy and exasperated feeling.

What are "the present economic conditions" which give speculators their wonderful opportunity to make money? Conditions of plenty? The Under Secretary's conditions? On Oct. 22 the Berlin correspondent of The Times cabled that the food question had become suddenly more important than anything else, the newspapers devoting more space to the subject of food, particularly butter, milk, eggs, and meat than to the war itself. Then followed a discussion of the means to be adopted to "stretch" the meat supply; also that of milk.

On the same page with the Under Secretary's reassurance to the world that there is plenty of food in Germany appeared the news that in parts of Berlin the Imperial German Government had posted the scarlet color warnings against rioting or any kind of rebellious violence, and this was to awe the housewives, who had been riotous in their efforts to obtain butter and other food commodities. This was only in the "poorer sections" of the capital.

The Under Secretary may be right. It may be that the confusion exists only in the terms. The problem in Germany may be not one of food, but one of poverty. In his statement are several inconspicuous phrases which perhaps deserve to be emphasized. "The old lay of supply and demand no longer holds good," he said, "as in "times of peace. Government regulation must supplant this law at "many points in order to spare the "poorer population from excessively "high prices." In another place:

Others measures also will be taken to provide a sufficient supply of meat at cheap prices to the poorer population by means of meat cards or otherwise. To achieve this we must be sparing in the use of meat fats and regulate the consumption in such a way that not only bread and potatoes but all other forms of nourishment can be got by all who need them and not only by those who can pay.

Those who cannot pay! They are the terrible load. There is food enough for all the rest, no doubt, without the aid of the Imperial Potato Department.

CHILDREN DIE IN SCHOOL FIRE

At Least Twenty-one and Probably Forty Children Perished.

PEABODY, Mass., Oct. 29.—At least twenty-one and probably as many as forty boys and girls were killed when fire started in the basement of St. John's Parochial School here, yesterday, and was spread throughout the building. It was first thought to have been started by a boiler explosion, but this was later proved to be incorrect. There were 572 pupils in the school, and the greater number of them were in their places and at prayer when the fire started at 9 o'clock. At ten minutes past nine practically the whole lower floor was burning.

Boys and girls were jumping from the second storey windows or climbing down the ladders that were hurriedly secured. But so many were trapped in the building that Father Nicholas J. Murphy, head of the school, said he believed many bodies will be found on the third floor unless the floor falls before the fire is extinguished.

At 10.45 o'clock twenty-one bodies of children had been taken out.

Panic broke out among the children in the school when the fire was first discovered, and there was a rush for the stairways and the doors and windows. The first rush carried a good part of the children to safety.

The arrival of the firemen added to the rescuing force. Down the ladders came a steady stream of little figures weeping and white-faced.

The sisters who had been serving as teachers, stood at the windows, marshaling the lines that led to the ladders and holding in check the terror that would have meant a deadly panic.

The fire spread throughout the school building and the roof fell in at 10.30.

Satisfied.

There is supreme satisfaction in knowing just what you want, and getting it. There is very great lack of satisfaction in not knowing exactly what you want and getting something you are not quite sure of. If you will read the advertising columns, you will probably find just what you want, and where to get it. The makers and sellers of things, good to eat or to wear, do not make any mystery of their business. They tell you, as plainly as print can, what they have, and how good it is, and most of them give an unqualified guarantee of satisfaction. Read the advertisements, know what you want, and insist upon getting it.

ALEX. GORDON

Recruiting is responsible for a good story from Carmarthenshire. One of the latest accessions to Kitchener's Army is a stalwart man 6 ft. 2 in. in height, from the heart of the country, and on joining he expanded his chest with pride and ejaculated: "Now for the Germans."

The following day he received from London a telegram: "Heartiest congratulations.—Kitchener."

This was duly shown round, but next morning his pride was boundless on receiving the royal message: "The Empire is proud of you. George."

It was not till the third day, when he received a wire: "For heaven's sake, keep neutral.—Wilhelm," that he realized a waggish friend had been pulling his leg.

"Some of the grandest discoveries of the ages," said the great scientist, sonorously, "have been the result of accident." "I can readily believe that," said the fair lady. "I once made one that way myself." The great man blinked his amazement. "May I ask what it was?" "Certainly," replied the fair one. "I found that by keeping a bottle of ink handy you can use a fountain pen just like any other pen—without the bother of filling it."

When U.S. Secretary Hay appeared before a committee of Chicago lawyers, after applying for admission to the bar, he found them talking vigorously together. At last one of them, turning to him, said: "Mr. Hay, what would you do if a client should come to you with such a case as this?" and described a complicated legal case. "I should ask for a retainer of fifty dollars," promptly replied Mr Hay. "and tell him to call to-morrow." "Mr. Hay, you are admitted," said the gentleman, and with a hearty laugh from all present the proceedings closed.

DIRECTIONS FOR KNITTING SOCKS FOR THE BOYS IN THE TRENCHES

Standard Set of Instructions for Willing Workers—Save Them for Future Reference—Sometimes the Feet Are Too Big

The following instructions are for the benefit of those who may find time to knit socks for soldiers. They are standard and are recognized by the British Red Cross Society as the most suitable form for the needs. By many whose instructions are considered superior to those formulated by the Canadian Red Cross Society. In many cases mistakes are made by making the feet too big and abbreviating the legs.

The length of the foot when finished is as follows: size one, 10 inches; size two, 10½ inches, size three 11 inches; size four, 11½ inches.

The largest numbers now required are of sizes three and four. Use worsted 4-ply super-fingering or wheeling. Colour, grey or Lovat's mixture. Needles number 13.

Sizes I. and II.

Cast on 64 stitches; rib 4½ inches, 2 plain, 2 purl; knit plain 7¼ inches (12 inches in all).

The heel.—Knit plain 32 stitches; on to one needle; turn, purl these 32 stitches; turn, knit plain; repeat these two rows (always slipping the first stitch) fifteen times (16 in all.)

*With the inside of the heel toward you; pury 19 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 6 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 7 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 8 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 9 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 10 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 11 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 12 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 13 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 14 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, purl 15 stitches, purl 2 together, purl 1.

Turn, knit 16 stitches, slip, 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1, turn, pury 17 stitches, purl 2 together*.

Turn, knit 18 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over.

Pick up and knit 17 stitches down the side of the heel piece.

The Foot.—Knit the 32 stitches of the front needles (on to 1 needle). Pick up and knit the 17 stitches at the other side of the heel piece. Take 2 stitches from each end of the front needle to the side ones, divide the heel stitches on to the 2 side needles, and knit right round again to the centre heel.

First needle: knit to within 5 stitches of the front end of side needle, knit 2 together, knit 3.

Front needle: plain.

Third needle: knit 3, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit plain to end of needle.

This reducing to be done every other row until there are 64 stitches on the needles (front needle 32, side needles 16 each).

Knit plain until the foot (from the back of the heel) measures 2¼ inches less than the full length required, viz: (a) 7¼ inches from No. 1 size sock; (b) 8¼ inches for No. 2 size sock.

To decrease for the toe: Add 2 stitches from each side needle to front one, making 32 in all. Begin at the front needle, knit 1, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit plain to within 3 stitches of the end of the needle, knit 2 together, knit 1.

Second needle: knit 1, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit plain to end of needle.

Third needle: knit plain to within 3 stitches of the end, knit 2 together, knit 1.

Knit 3 plain rounds, then decrease as before. Do this twice.

Knit 2 plain rounds, then decrease as before. Do this three times.

Knit 1 plain row, then decrease again. Do this 3 times.

Now decrease as above in each of the next three rows, which leaves you with 20 stitches. Narrow these down to 10, and cast off.

SIZES III. AND IV. ....

Cast on 68 stitches; rib 4 1-2 inches, 2 plain, 2 purl; knit plain 7 1-2 inches. (12 inches in all.)

The Heel.—Knit plain 34 stitches on to one needle; turn, purl back these 34 stitches, turn, knit plain repeat these two rows (always slipping the first stitch) sixteen times (17 in all.)

Work as for smaller sizes from * to * and finish by purling 1.

Turn, knit 18 stitches, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit 1.

Pick up and knit 18 stitches down the side of the heel piece.

Knit the 34 stitches of the front needles (on to one needle). Pick up and knit the 18 stitches at the other side of the heel piece. Take 2 stitches from each end of the front needle to the side ones, divide the heel stitches on to the 2 side needles, and knit right round again to the centre heel.

First needle: knit to within 5 stitches of the front end of side needle, knit 2 together, knit 3.

Front needle: plain.

Third needle: knit 3, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit plain to end of needle.

This reducing to be done every other row until there are 68 stitches on the needles (front needle 30, side needles 19 each.)

Knit plain until the foot (from the back of the heel) measures 2 1-4 inches less than the full length required, viz. (a) 8 3-4 inches for No. 3 size sock; (b) 9 1-4 inches for No. 4 size sock.

To Decrease for the Toe: Add 2 stitches from each side needle to front one, making 34 in all. Begin at the front needle: knit 1, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit plain to within 3 stitches of the end of the needle, knit 2 together, knit 1.

Second needle: knit 1, slip 1, knit 1, pull slipped stitch over, knit plain to end of needle.

Third needle: knit plain to within 3 stitches of the end, knit two together, knit 1.

Knit 3 plain rounds, then decrease as before. Do this twice.

Knit 2 plain rounds, then decrease as before. Do this three times.

The Boy Joash Crowned King.—2 Kings, 11; 1-20.

Golden Text: The house of the wicked shall be overthrown; but the tent of the upright shall flourish.—Prov. 14, 11.

Verses 1-3—What was the parentage, position, and character of Athalia?

2. When a child turns out bad whose heredity and environment were as vile as they could be, how much is he or she to blame?

3. Who was Joash?

4. Who was Jehoiada?

5. Who was instrumental in saving the child Joash from the murderous intent of his grandmother Athalia, and how was it done?

6. Verses 4-12—If an individual, a company, or a nation is established and carried on by unrighteousness, what will the probable result be?

7. Can you give from your own experience or from history any instance where wrong actions have brought about right results, or can you conceive of such a thing as possible?

8. When those who are in authority are usurpers, and when the regular legal processes fail to dispossess them, what should the people do?

9. On what ground do you justify the high priest Jehoiada for planning the death of the reigning queen, and by force putting the boy Joash on the throne?

10. What can you say, from this history, in favour of the possibility of right environment overcoming in a child the worst kind of heredity?

11. What can you say for or against private citizens carrying firearms?

12. Verses 13-16—How did Ahab and Jezebel, the father and mother of Athalia, die?

13. What are the chances that those who practice violence will themselves receive violent treatment?

14. Why, as a rule, is it impossible for us to get from others any different treatment to that which we give them?

15. Verse 17—What are the chances for national success when the rulers and the people are serving the Lord?

16. What is the probability for national greatness when the rulers and the people are corrupt?

17. Verse 18—What relation does the success of a people bear to their religion?

18. How many centuries will the prosperity of this country continue if we forsake the precepts of Jesus Christ?

19. Verses 19, 20—Why is it impossible for a really happy people to be turbulent and revolutionary?

20. What is the relation of the present day Christian Church to the prosperity of the masses?

Subjects of Pressing Import Discussed by Women Delegates

Food Prices, Question of Employment, Educational Matters and Appointment of Female Truant Officers Dealt With by the National Council

TORONTO, Oct. 28—Had the consumers of Canada been organized there would not have been the atrocious rise in the price of flour that occurred last summer, a rise not justified by crop or war conditions, but which was undoubtedly of great advantage to certain persons intermediate between farmers and consumers was one of the statements made in the report of the committee on Household Economics at Wednesday's meeting of the National Council of Women. The activities of many of the consumers' leagues throughout Canada were reported, also the aims of bringing before the people the subject of "Made-in-Canada" goods. Several other interesting phases of the work were touched on. In the discussion that followed it was brought out that the women are vitally interested in the matter of securing goods that carry a brand showing where they were made and the manufacturer's name. The following resolution was passed. "That the National Council of Women draw the attention of the Manufacturers' Association to the necessity of branding Canadian-made goods with the name of the manufacturers in order that the consumer may be able to choose intelligently among the goods sent out by different manufacturers." Again it was found necessary to refer back to special committees resolutions, also in one case to withdraw a resolution, as the necessity for it since sent in had been provided for. It was decided to set aside one day in the year as a special day devoted to the interests of the council.

Among the several committees reporting for the past year, "Agriculture for Women," compiled and read by Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, occasioned interest. Homesteading privileges in British Columbia are given to the women, as well as the men. In the very able report on "Equal Moral Standard," by Dr. Margaret Patterson, she said that she considered the councils the chief educators of public opinion. Separate courts for women and more juvenile courts were tending to help in the work of looking after certain classes of girls.

Employment for Women.

"Professions and Employments for Women" provoked a long discussion on the question of pensions for teachers. The Committee on Education report brought out the great need that exists for more co-operation between parents and teachers, the suggestion being made that parent teachers' associations be started with this idea in view. In Manitoba all schools are used for social purposes, while in another province they cannot get the use of the schools for even technical classes.

A woman truant officer was another thing advocated. In New Westminster they had combined this office with that of the visiting nurse, and it worked admirably.

Mrs. Dignam characterised the report of the Committee on Fine and Applied Arts as "a charming, rambling essay, containing nothing." She wished for facts concerning the actual work being done over Canada in the interest of art. It was suggested in the report that the children be taught an appreciation of the arts and crafts of the country, and interested in the preservation of beautiful things. A separate report on music was given.

The question of investigating housing came up for consideration, the Vancouver council sending in the request. It was agreed that the councils should all take an active interest in the subject. Considerable time was spent in the morning discussing the finances of the National Council. A budget was presented showing the income from all sources, and what would be the probable expenditures for the year. Greetings were received from Lady Aberdeen, who sent the following message:

"Before the council closes, Lord Aberdeen and I wish again to be permitted to express our great pleasure in being with you for the 21st annual council meetings, and to again meet so many friends. I rejoice in the council's progress, and in the spirit in which you reflect the attitude of the women of Canada in this time of trial. I look forward confidently to your help in the responsibilities of the International Council, and I feel we have renewed pledges to one another to do our best and to give our best in the service of God and humanity."

Greetings were also sent from the council meeting in San Francisco to the National Council of Canada.

The officers of the Canadian Suffrage Association and the Medical Alumnae of the University of Toronto entertained the delegates to a delightful luncheon. The tables were decorated with yellow flowers and flags of the allies. To-day Miss Carty will be the hostess at luncheon, and the meetings to-day are not open to the press. This is the final day. A meeting was held last night for the consideration of business.

SAILOR AGED 56 SERVING

English Reservists Are Being Used in the Dardanelles Operations.

LONDON, Oct. 27 - Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, describing in The Daily Mail the work of the British fleet at the Dardanelles says:

"By one of those strange ironies which even the most astute of minds could not have foreseen, all the hard work, dangers, and strain of these naval operations off the Dardanelles are not falling on the young and vigorous manhood of the fleet, but on old, homerooted reservists, who were called back to the colors to man this auxiliary fleet at the outbreak of the war. The ships are the oldest of veterans, and so are their crews.

"In some ships out here there is hardly an active service rating on the upper deck. There are many men between 48 and 56 years of age. Nearly all are fathers, and many are grandfathers. They have reached that age when, after a hard life at sea, they might reasonably expect to look forward to passing their declining years surrounded by their children and grandchildren in the happy enjoyment of their small pensions and engaged in the civilian pursuits each may have adopted at the conclusion of his period of active service."

SHE EXPLAINS.

Mabel—You and Harold seem inseparable.

Gertrude—We are together a good deal. You see, Mabel, I take a peculiar interest in him.

Mabel—Oh, you do?

Gertrude—Yes. I was engaged to him at one time and in love with him at another.—Judge.

PRESS ON KILLING OF MISS EDITH CAVELL.

Putting to Death of Woman in Brussels by German Military Court Text of Comment.

"A Brave Woman"

Detroit Free Press: Miss Edith Cavell died a brave woman and a good soldier, and possibly in her death did more for her country than she had been able to accomplish in a whole lifetime of devotion.

"Exalted Courage."

Buffalo Times:—"The broad humanitarian aims which actuated this woman, the calm and exalted courage with which she met death, her refusal to ask for clemency her forgiveness of her enemies, encircle her memory with an immortal aureole."

"The Dictator."

Chicago Tribune:—"Disobey the military dictator even by doing those things which have always been considered noble, and the penalty is death, death by shooting in the chill of the early morning hours—death to a woman alone and separated from relatives and countrymen."

"The Death Penalty."

Kansas City Times: "By common civilized usage the death penalty is executed on a woman in war time only under the most extreme provocation. The shooting of Miss Cavell under the circumstances comes as a shock to the world."

"World-Appealing Pity."

Atlanta Constitution: "The deep, the human, world-appealing pity of that death, the natural horror of the execution of a woman—and of such a woman—has cast a shadow on the world distinct and separate from all the dark war shadows."

"World Opinion."

Pittsburg Gazette-Times: "The world has ceased to be amazed at anything atrocious in this war. But it is finding it increasingly difficult to account for Germany's indifference to world opinion."

"The Duke d'Enghien."

Philadelphia Inquirer: "The murder of the Duke d'Enghien was the blackest spot in the career of Napoleon, but it was brilliancy itself compared with the murder of a woman who had given her life to following the principles and teachings of the meek and lowly Jesus."

Peterborough's Fire Insurance Bill Amounts to $173,600 Fire Loss Only $20,000

High Insurance Rate is Due to the High Fire Losses Elsewhere—Interesting Figures Presented to the Fire, Water and Light Committee—The City's Fire Loss for the First Eight Months of the Current Year Was Below Five Thousand Dollars.

For the first eight months of the current year, Peterborough's fire loss did not exceed five thousand dollars, according to a report that was made to the Fire, Water and Light committee last evening, by Fire Chief Howard. During that time eighty alarms were responded to. The Chief pointed out that the year 1914 was a record one for Peterborough from the standpoint of fire losses. The total for the year was only $11,583. The alarms totalled 142. The recent fire at the Peterborough Mattress Company will bring this year's fire loss up to about ten thousand dollars.

Lower Than Usual.

At the Fire Chiefs convention held recently held in Ottawa, it was learned that the fire losses all over Canada were lower than usual. This was unexpected owing to the general business depression.

A resolution from the Berlin Board of Trade was read at the meeting. The resolution asked for the cooperation of municipalities and individuals in an effort to reduce the fire loss. The matter has been taken up by the Commission on Conservation and it is probable that the government will inaugurate a policy of compulsory fire prevention.

Chief Howard pointed out that Canada's fire loss amounted to $4.15 per capita, whereas in some of the European countries it was as low as 50c. In Germany it is lower than that. Canada's fire loss is the highest in the world. "We are burning up enough to maintain a standing army," said Chief Howard. Peterborough is paying out each year approximately $174,000 in the form of insurance, whereas the average yearly fire loss did not exceed twenty thousand dollars. It was a case of this city paying for some of the losses that are incurred in other places. As it is Peterborough enjoys a lower insurance rate than many other cities in Canada of a similar size.

Chief Howard attributed the low fire loss to the voluntary system of prevention inaugurated five years ago. The present move on the part of the Commission of Conservation is to make such a system compulsory. Fire prevention consists in keeping lanes, cellars, etc., free of all combustible material.

The committee endorsed the purpose set forth in the resolution.

LINDSAY, Oct. 29.—After suffering for about 40 hours in the Ross Hospital with his neck dislocated, Patrick Quilian, of Ops, died from the effects which it caused.

The unfortunate man was conscious for some time after the accident happened, and spoke in subdued tones to his physicians and members of the family who were at his bedside.

The man's body was paralyzed from his shoulders down, and at no time were there any hopes held out for his recovery.

Regular Meeting Of 57th I. O. D. E.

Balance on Hand of $98.28—Letters of Thanks Received

The regular monthly meeting of this Chapter was held in the recreation room at the armouries on Thursday. There was a large attendance of members.

After the reading of the minutes the treasurer's report was read and adopted. A balance on hand of $98.28, $50.00 of this having been given to the Chapter by Lt.-Col. Walker for wool, for which a hearty vote of thanks was passed, also a donation of $5.00 for wool, from Miss L. Peat.

Letters of thanks were read from the following:

Capt. Ackerman, for flowers received while ill.

From Lt. Huycke, for 30 pairs of socks for the 30 men under him, who had not before received any.

From Capt. Park for socks, and from Private Bruce Sloan for chocolate, etc., received through Miss Plummer.

A letter re British Red Cross was read, and a collection taken at the meeting, the amount to be announced later, as there were promises of more to follow.

The Knitting committee reported 175 pairs socks on hand.

The Visiting committee reported 69 visits paid.

It was decided to open a tea room each Thursday at the Oriental Tea Room, which has been very kindly loaned to the Chapter for this purpose.

Three new members were enrolled.

NOTED BULGAR AIDS RUSSIA

General Dimitrieff is Now Trying to Secure Roumania's Permission for Passage of Troops.

MILAN, via Paris, Oct. 29.—The Corriere Della Sera learns from a diplomatic source that General Radko Dimitrieff will command the Russian forces sent against Bulgaria. He is now at Bucharest trying to induce the Roumanian Government to permit the passage of Russian troops through Roumania.

Dimitrieff at the opening of the war was Bulgarian Minister to Russia. He resigned and offered his services to the Russian War Office. His offer was gladly accepted, for he had been commander-in-chief of the Bulgarian army in the first Balkan war. In the war between Serbia and Bulgaria in 1885 he was Chief of staff of the eastern Bulgarian army corps, and was decorated by Prince Alexander with the Order for Bravery. Later, however, he led a conspiracy against the Prince, King Ferdinand's predecessor, and was forced to flee to Russia. He was pardoned in 1898 by Ferdinand, whom he had assisted to the throne. Much of the present efficiency of the Bulgarian army is attributed to Dimitrieff's training. He has been called "Bulgaria's Little Napoleon." He is 56 years of age.

BANK CLEARINGS

The bank clearings for the week ending October 28th totalled $423,595, a decrease from last week of $9,939. The same week, last month, the clearings were $376,853 and in the same week a year ago they were $372,067.

Germans Pounding on Defence at Two Points Between Riga and Dvinsk

PETROGRAD, Oct. 28.—Uxkuell and Illoux are the points at which the Germans are making the biggest effort to force the Dvina, Uxkuell is on the right flank of their Riga positions. Illouxt on their left flank of their Dvinsk position. The simultaneous attacks at these two points are probably being made with the definite object of separating the Russian Riga and Dvinsk armies.

The seriousness of this effort is not to be minimized. The Germans know perfectly well that a new Russian advance is only a matter of time. To meet that advance on a strong front it is necessary for them to be in possession of the Dvina line before Winter sets in, otherwise their position will be perpetually insecure. Moreover, once established beyond the Dvina they can hold their front with a smaller force and devote closed attention to the western and Serbian fronts, where the need of men grows more pressing every day.

During the last fortnight the Germans have considerably strengthened their forces on the Dvina, perhaps to a certain extent at the expense of their centre and partly, according to on rumor, at the expense of the Belgian front. The main body of reinforcements seems, however, to consist of Landstrum troops, mobilized for home service the beginning of the war, and later trained for first line work.

The number of troops operating directly against Dvinsk is not extraordinarily large, about 80,000 men, on a 28-mile front, but they are supported by a most astonishing quantity of artillery, which, at its maximum intensity, pours out shells at the rate of 100,000 a day. This reckless expenditure has led to interruptions in the supply. The light railway from Vilkomir has proved unequal to the task of transport, and the service of local peasants have been commandeered.

In point of courage and energy the battles near Uxkuell and Illoux do honor to both sides. Dashing attacks are followed by splendid counter-attacks, and the magnificent fighting qualities displayed here shine out even in the long record of the courage of patient millions which this war has already established in history.

German soldiers are assured by their commanders that once Riga and Dvinsk are taken there will be no more fighting for the Winter, so they are gathering up for the one desperate effort every scrap of courage and endurance left in their sorely-tried spirits.

Street Lights Will Be Changed

Couple of 'Electrical Antiques Will be Scrapped—Trees Cover the Lights up

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee held last evening, the question of improving the street lighting system on Water and Hunter streets, was discussed. It was decided to remove the "electrical antique" from the corner of Hunter and Water streets and substitute five smaller lights to be distributed between Simcoe and Brock streets on Water street. The same treatment will be applied to Hunter street east of Aylmer street. The arc light at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer will be removed. A similar change may be made on Parnell street. The Utilities Commission is somewhat reluctant about making many changes until such time as they are ready to install their new system, which may be a year or two. The Fire, Water and Light Committee's appropriation for street lighting is overdrawn by about seventy-five cents. The matter of rearranging the lighting system at the City Hall was left in the hands of Mayor Buller and Alderman Duffus, chairman of the committee.

J. J. Turner and Sons requested the city to remove one of the cluster lights in front of the Street Railway offices on George street to the rear of the Opera House. The lights in question have not been in use for some time. No action was taken.

Some of the street lights at present in use are covered up by the trees.

As Chief Howard remarked—"You would have to get a lantern to find them."

More than one-third of the 186,000 white men in the Transvaal are unmarried.

Charlotte Street As A Speedway

Since Charlotte street has been paved and is now the best stretch of pavement in the city for speeding up, that part of the street west of Park street is responsible for more Barney Oldfields than any other section of the city.

Big cars, little cars, old ones and new ones, all get the bug and vary in speed all the way from 10 an hour to so fast they just look like a streak when passing. None of the residents object so long as no one is killed, but as it is impossible to have a guarantee of this they hope that all the cars in town have had a try at the street and that more reasonable speed will be assumed in the future.

Some of the cars run up one side of the street and down the other as if they were after the Vanderbilt Cup, and for a stretch they would give Anderson, the last winner, a run for the prize.

Before some one is killed it would be better now to realize that Charlotte street west is in the city limits.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

Maintenance of Indigent Patients

Is a Source of Concern to the Finance Committee of the City Council—A Star Boarder

A meeting of the Finance committee of the City Council, of which Ald. Stratton is chairman, is incomplete unless some reference is made to the regular batch of reports respecting indigent patients treated at the local hospitals. These reports, which are furnished by Mr. F. W. Miller, often reveal some interesting facts concerning the modus operandi of those who seek to assign their hospital bills to the city. One of the reports read at last night's meeting of the Finance committee credited one woman with "keeping a gentleman boarder." Just what constitutes a "gentleman boarder" was not made plain to the committee. The aldermen were unable to determine whether the individual in question was an asset or a liability to the domicile over which the woman presides.

"No good, never was any good," was the charge registered opposite the name of a man who frequents the local hospitals as a free patient.

"Have to get my prison farm scheme under way," observed Mayor Buller.

For the next few minutes Ald. Stratton struggled with a number of names of Italian origin.

The committee learned that one other man could not be deported as he had resided in Canada longer than the time stipulated. The city will have to contribute ten cents a day towards his maintenance in an Ontario asylum.

System is Unnecessary.

The committee decided to dispense with the electrical alarm system in operation at the south end pumping station. The system which is provided by the Bell Telephone Company, is said to be unnecessary. A bill of forty dollars hastened the committee's decision to eliminate the system.

A letter was read from Police Magistrate Dumble, in which the magistrate denied he had engaged a stenographer to record police court proceedings.

The committee decided to notify Crown Attorney Hatton not to employ a stenographer without the authority or consent of the Mayor or Chairman of the Finance committee.

A Meeting To Organize Girl Guides

A meeting will be held to-morrow afternoon at the Y.W.C.A. at three o'clock, for the purpose of organizing Girl Guides. All girls over 12 years are invited to attend.

The Girl Guide movement was founded by Miss Agnes Baden-Powell, sister of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, for the purpose of making girls useful and self-reliant, and of developing those qualities of character which make good women and good citizens.

It is a purely womanly scheme and the aim of the pursuits engaged is to make girls better housekeepers, more capable in womanly arts, from cooking, washing, and sick-nursing to the training and management of children. Girls are encouraged in every way to study the most useful subjects a woman can know in order that they may become "better mothers and guides to the next generation." The method of training is to give the girls pursuits which appeal to them, such as games and recreative exercises, which lead them on to learn for themselves many useful crafts.

Any girl, over the age of 12, who is earnestly desirous of doing right and who is anxious for self-improvement can become a Girl Guide upon presenting a letter of consent from her parents or guardian.

THIRSTY COLONEL WAS REFUSED

Hotelkeeper Puts New Order in Force Prematurely.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—The Toronto hotelkeepers are taking no chances of getting into trouble through serving soldiers. Although the order prohibiting the sale of liquor to soldiers does not come into force until Saturday, at least, one hotelkeeper in the city is making sure that the order will be lived up to in his hotel. A Toronto Colonel was perhaps the first in the city to be refused liquor. With a friend he entered the bar of one of Toronto's leading hotels and asking a "Scotch and soda" was amazed when he was refused. He tried to explain that the new order did not come into force until Saturday, but the bartender was immune to all arguments and the thirsty colonel had to look elsewhere for his beverage.

Chief Inspector Burrow's circular was delivered by hand, but some of the hotelkeepers have not yet received them. Wherever they have been delivered, however, the hotelkeepers are preparing to have the order observed.

NEW ITALIAN OFFENSIVE HELPING THE RUSSIANS

VERONA, Oct. 29.—Greatly increased activity all along the Italian front for a week past is already having one result, in the reported withdrawal of Austrian troops from the Russian front via Lublin to Innsbruck.

Noteworthy progress has been made on the eastern side and Austrian end of Lake Garda, where, besides overspreading the rich vineyard country between the Rivers Garda and Adige, the Italians have occupied Brentonico, with the neighboring castle, thus dominating the important road leading from Mori to Riva, as well as the railway line thereto.

In the Tolimino and Mrzli Alpini and Bersaglieri add one by one fresh mountain positions, thereby protecting themselves from long-distance Austrian artillery attacks, and are taking yet another step toward the mastery of neighboring towns, of which the Italians desire to take possession without a bombardment of the civil population and public buildings.

Music & Drama

"UNDER ORDERS."

The military play, "Under Orders," presented at the Grand Opera House last night, was a rapid fire exciting melodrama, based on the present war, and full of sensational incidents that kept the audience aglow with interest. As a revelation of the espionage methods of the Germans, "Under Orders" was of great educational value, and as a play it was at all times gripping and appealing. The company was in all respects excellent, the caste being a thoroughly capable one, who made the most out of a host of opportunities. As a recruiting medium, the play was a peculiarly effective one. The recruiting speech of Judith Grey, as Patsy O'Grady, in the first act was as an inspiring address as has been heard here. This talented little star was charming in her conception of the part. St. Clare Bayfield was very funny as "Percy Fitzgibbons." "Tauntebroy," once Patrick Barrett, did an excellent bit of work as Father Noonan. One of the most exciting scenes showed the interior of the British submarine K244.

The officers of the 93rd Battalion occupied a box, while the band was also in attendance.

A feature of the evening was the little speech by Miss Grey at the end of the play, when she made an eloquent effective appeal for recruits.

Guest Departed In A Hurry

Was Brought Back to Peterboro by the Police and Charged With Fraud

A traveller staying at one of the local hotels found it convenient to leave the city in a hurry, also a bill of twelve dollars. He was arrested in Toronto and returned to the city, where he appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble on a charge of fraud. He was allowed to go on suspended sentence. He will have to pay the costs of the case, which amount to sixteen dollars and fifty cents, also twelve dollars as restitution. He claimed he took sick while here and had to get out through the night.

TRIED TO "HOG" ALL NEW ENGLAND TRAFFIC

Mellen Testimony Before the U. S District Court.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—That the New Haven railway left no stone unturned to "hog" all the traffic possible in New England was further shown to-day in the conspiracy trial of William Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Ledyard and nine other directors of the railroad before Judge Hunt in the U. S. District Court.

The eccentric Mellen letters again were the order of the day. The prosecution is depending on them, read in large quantity to prove that the New Haven violated the law in methods by which it browbeat the New York and New England railway into a receivership, thereby enabling the New Haven to destroy its most powerful rival in the New England territory and to obtain its stock at the lowest possible figure.

Sou' Westers For The Firemen

Supply Will be Purchased For the Use of the Fire Fighters—Also Two Controlling Nozzles

Fire Chief Howard has been authorized to purchase a supply of sou' wester caps for the use of the men of the central fire station. They will be worn at grass fires and other conflagrations of a minor character.

A sample cap was produced at last night's meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee. Ald. Stratton tried it on and declared it to be all right. He characterized it as a nightcap,, while Mayor Buller gave it the more dignified appellation of forage cap. Chief. Howard came to the rescue by explaining that it was a sou' wester, and would be much more comfortable to wear at fires than the heavy helmet, providing the latter could be dispensed with.

The caps cost five dollars and a half a dozen. Both the helmets and sou' westers will be carried on the apparatus.

Controlling Nozzles.

The next thing that occupied the attention of the committee was a controlling nozzle. This brought out Ald. Stratton's astronomical propensities. The Centre Ward representative held the nozzle up to the light and studied its internal workings, telescope fashion. The committee decided to purchase a couple of extra nozzles for the department.

HALLOWE'EN

To-night, Hallowe'en, is held sacred by Scots the world over—what dreams of days gone by, when we used to turn our jackets outside in, and parade from house to house doing "tarnd" for the bawbees! Those were the happy days!

The Peterborough Caledonian Club are celebrating the event to-night in the W.O.W. Hall, George street, where a social evening is being held. An interesting programme of music and songs has been arranged, including the following artistes: Misses Duthie, Allen, Rowen, and Mrs. Robt. French; and Messrs. Weatherstone, Humpage, Naples, Smith, McKenzie and Anderson. Miss Goodwin is the accompanist.

Italians Take 5,000 Prisoners Austrians Are Rushing Reinforcements To The Front

ROME, Oct. 29—Slight advances by the Italian troops are recorded in today's official statement on the Monte Nero zone and the Carso plateau, while Austrian attacks were repulsed in the Torra Valley and in the Plava sector. On the Isonso front the Italians have captured 5,084 prisoners, including 115 officers, and have taken a mortar, 21 machine guns and a quantity of other material in the week ending Oct. 27.

The Austrians are rushing reinforcements to the Italian front to withstand the Italian offensive, but the belief is expressed in official circles here that these reinforcements will not be able to postpone the fall of Riva, about which Italian effort has centred for some time. Salvatore Barzilai, Governor-General of the Austrian territory held by the Italian forces, was present at the Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon, and gave a report on the progress of the offensive. He was at Venice after the bombardment by Austrian aviators, and expressed the conviction that the airmen had sought to destroy St. Mark's but said they had missed their mark. The Cabinet will meet again to-day.

The Secolo, of Milan, says that Ezio Garibaldi, one of the remaining three sons of Gen. Ricciotti Garibaldi, has been seriously wounded in fighting near Courlaros, a bullet, perforating one of his lungs. He was taken to a hospital at Venice, where his father and mother are now with him.

Billets Wanted For The Boys' Conference Delegates

Have you heard of the boys' conference to be held in our city beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 19th, and extending over Sunday, Nov. 21st? This will require a large number of billets, and representatives are being appointed from each church to look after this matter. It is the intention of the Billeting committee to have the name of your representative announced from the pulpit next Sunday. And if you can take some of the boys to billet it will help so much if you let your representative know about it on that day. It is not the intention of the committee in charge that those taking boys to billet will have to provide dinner or tea on Saturday. A meeting of the different representatives of the Billeting committee is called for Tuesday evening, Nov. 2nd, at the Y.M.C.A. at eight o'clock.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Roumania has mobilized 450,000 men, of whom 200,000 are concentrated on the Bulgarian frontier and the rest on the Hungarian frontier, where impregnable defences have been constructed.

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—As a result of the investigation which is being made by Sir Frederick Donaldson, Woolwich Arsenal expert, there is a good prospect of big guns being manufactured in Canada. Sir Frederick has visited all the large manufacturing plants in the Maritime Provinces, and will now turn his attention to Ontario and Quebec. He is said to be favourably impressed with the outlook, the facilities in Canada being much better even than he expected.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The total British casualties to October 9 were 493,294, Premier Asquith announced to-day. The killed in all areas numbered 6,660 officers and 94,992 men, the wounded 12,633 officers and 304,832 men and the missing 2,000 officers and 72,177 men.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—President Poincare accepted Rene Viviani's resignation as Premier just before noon to-day. The entire Cabinet went out with the Premier.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Financial representatives of Great Britain and France will remain in this country indefinitely to look after affairs for their Governments and arrange further credits in the purchase of munitions. Sir Paul Harvey to-day relieved Basil T. Blackett, who will go back to England. Harvey and Octave Homberg, of France, will take care of the Allies' affairs.

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—Japan has given President Yuan Shi Kao of China the friendly advice to postpone transforming his country into a monarchy with a view to avoiding calamities, it was announced officially to-day.

BOOM IN RECRUITING FOLLOWS KING'S APPEAL.

Execution of Miss Cavell Stipulates It—Many Birmingham Clerks Enlist.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The King's appeal to the nation, Lord Derby's scheme, and the indignation aroused throughout the country by the execution of Edith Cavell, have created a new boom in recruiting.

At Birmingham to-day recruiting meetings were held in the large factories, and these will be continued daily for some time. Among to-day's recruits were a large number of clerks and postal employees. More single men are now coming forward at Birmingham than ever before, but the number of rejections on account of physical unfitness is rather heavy.

Not since the early days of the war has recruiting in Bath been so brisk. The head recruiting office was besieged yesterday and to-day by young men in such numbers that the staff them. Fifty-three Bath taxi drivers marched in a body to the recruiting office and offered their services as motor transport drivers.

In Leicester 24,000 men have been raised in a fortnight. Recruiting is also reported exceedingly brisk in South Wales.

The horsepower, as used as a measurement unit on the continent of Europe, differs from the British and American horsepower by more than one per cent.

Successor To Grand Duke Is Russia's Best

According to Report of Stanley Washburn Who Says the Army Has Recuperated

Russian Headquarters, Oct. 27. — After remaining here ten days and talking with the men in whose hands rests the future of the campaign, one feels increasing optimism and confidence in the intention and capacity of the Russian High Command to conduct the war to the end. It is impossible from here to discuss the details of operations but it is possible broadly to outline the situation.

The armies under General Ivanoff have clearly proved their complete recuperation from the Summer's campaign and their capacity to hold their position and strike back viciously when the occasion presents.

The unknown ability and tested record of that commander to fight both aggressively and defensively, plus the fact that he is now holding admirable positions, while the morale of the whole army has been increasing daily the past few weeks, lends light to the opinion held here that Kieff, which is the only objective which could warrant German sacrifices, is practically beyond danger this autumn.

It would be futile to estimate beyond this year, as next year there will be a new campaign involving new armies, new plans and new aims.

The situation as regards the higher command is probably more satisfactory than since the inception of the war. The unanimous opinion of practically all the Russian army is that in General Alexeiff we have now at the head the highest military ability that Russia possesses. He is a quiet, rather shy man with enormous capacity for work, and in a crisis he actually directs personally the most important movements.

It is stated that during the retreat from Vilna almost every detail was directly arranged by General Alexieff, while there is no doubt he directed personally many details of the sweeping withdrawal from Warsaw. He is a man of absolute simplicity and perpetual calm and balance, who lives only for the conduct of this war.

The Czar, who personally gives most of his time to military affairs, is leading a life of the greatest simplicity, winning ovations from the townspeople each time he appears in the streets, which he frequently does. He drives every afternoon without escorts and walks about the country talking with the peasants and others.

Almost invariably he is accompanied by his son, to whom he is absolutely devoted. The Czarevitch impresses one as a healthy, high-spirited boy, of great charm and a winning personality.

Since being here I am inclined to believe that the talk of a separate peace, which was widely circulated after the fall of Warsaw, never had any basis in fact.

Counts War Cost at $45,000,000,000

United States Banker Home From Europe Assumes War Will Last 18 Months Longer

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. — Edward Shearson, head of Shearson, Hammill & Co., bankers, of 71 Broadway, returned from London on the American liner St. Paul. He had been away since June. He spent most of the time at Ascot, near Windsor.

"The financial conditions are very serious in England," said Mr. Shearson, "graver, I fear, than the London financiers realize. The taxation to meet the cost of the war will be the greatest that any nation has had to bear in the history of the world. By officials in the Government service and men of affairs in England I was told that the war certainly would last another eighteen months. Taking this as a basis for a rough estimate, formed from the expenditure up to date, it will cost the belligerent nations about $45,000,000,000 for the destruction of property, waste, and labour in this war.

"England has done wonderful work, work that never has been equalled before. She has 3,000,000 trained soldiers, perfectly equipped for war, at the presnt time, and her navy is invincible. There are 1,000,000 British troops in France, 350,000 in the Dardanelles, and 1,650,000 in Great Britain awaiting orders to proceed to the front.

"No American can realize how England is conducting the war without going over there to watch the bearing of the people under the great strain. It is the Anglo-Saxon spirit that carries them through without a murmur. Men of rank and wealth say good-bye to their families and go to the front, often to death, as calmly as if they were going for a fortnight's pleasant shooting. If it were not for the darkness of the streets and the number of khaki-clad soldiers everywhere one could not tell that the country was at war with a powerful enemy. There is one thing certain, and that is that conscription is absolutely necessary to enable England to carry on the war, and it will come very shortly."

When asked for his opinion regarding the outcome of the war Mr. Shearson said: "There can only be one end. It will be a long and bloody struggle, but the Allies will win. The Germans realize this now, and that is why they are so desperate."

WOUNDED AT YPRES, HESPERIAN VICTIM NOW SAFE AT HOME

Lieut. Reilly, of Welland, Tells Vivid Tale of Terrific Fighting When Foe Turned Machine Gun on Hedge Where Canadians Were Concealed—Rescued From Drowning When Allan Liner Sank by Girl Who Helped Bail the Water Out of Lifeboat With Her Shoes.

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—Aided by a crutch, and with his right leg swinging in a cotton bandage which passed over his neck, but otherwise apparently hale and hearty, Lieutenant J. Reginald Reilly, of Welland, Ont., disembarked from the Allan liner Corsican. Few returned wounded soldiers have so interesting and so remarkable a story to tell as Lieut. Reilly. Briefly it is this: Serving through all the engagements with his own 4th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, up to the second battle of Ypres; wounded in hip and leg at Ypres; spending months in hospitals in France and England; a helpless returning passenger on the torpedoed liner Hesperian; rescued largely through the efforts of two young women; dragged in and out of two sinking lifeboats and finally picked up by a mine-sweeper; taken to Queenstown and later hospitals and later to Liverpool and London; close to the bombed area in the recent Zeppelin raids on London; and now back home at last.

Lieut. Reilly had no cosy-corner time over in France and Flanders, as may be guessed from his experiences. With the rank of a captain in this country, and with a fine chance of getting a captain's commission in the Second Canadian Contingent, he chose to go as a lieutenant, and get there. And now this is the way he sizes it all up:

Would Do It Again.

"If I were where I was over a year ago, knew exactly what I should have to go through, what would happen to me, and that I should come back like this, I would do it again, for its worth it." That was Lieut. Reilly's way of saying that it was a pleasure to have done his duty. It does not disclose the fact that for months his life was despaired of, that it was a foregone conclusion that he should at least lose his leg, and that he should be saved by the "skin of his teeth" from a second death from the torpedo which wrecked the Hesperian. Previous to that, his own surgeon had been willing to wager five thousand pounds against one pound, he said, that the leg would have to come off. And Lieut. Reilly now says this:

"I lost my uniform in the Hesperian, but I shall get another, for I am going to stick to this thing until it is over. As my leg will always be stiff, after it gets well, perhaps I can do something in the Welland Canal guard, or Home Service. The worst of it is I lost my chance of promotion by getting knocked out when I did. Up to that time we had lost no officers except juniors to me. There we lost most all of them. The present junior major of the battalion was my junior on the field. I wish I could have been at the front a little longer."

Whole Attack a Bluff.

The Fourth Battalion, which was Lieut. Reilly's, took in the big engagement up to the second battle of Ypres. "In that fight," said the Lieutenant, "our work was a complete bluff. In order to prevent the Germans from attacking us, we made a sort of attack on them. Yet the whole force in reserve, behind the lines, was sixty men. If the Huns had struck us, they could have gone through without difficulty, considering their numbers. I was in reserve, and was ordered up in the night. All day the fight went on, and in the afternoon a general order to advance was given. We went ahead until we came to a hedge which we had to carefully cut our way through.

"When we did get through, it was a slaughter. The Germans had their machine guns trained on that hedge. Our men fell thick as we broke through it. A machine gun bullet lodged in my hip when I had gone fifty yards. It bored a clean hole through my hip bone and pelvis and part of it is in there yet. I started to crawl back to the shelter of the hedge, passing on my way at least half a dozen of our best officers, lying dead. Then another bullet struck me in the leg below the knee. It was a 'richsaw' bullet, one that had struck the ground and was going end over end. It went crazy when it hit my leg, flattened out against the bone and shot up into my knee joint, which it smashed. A comrade tried to bandage me up, but he got a bullet straight through the head, and fell dead upon me. I soon lost consciousness, but recovered and crawled on my elbows back to the ditch we had started from. There I found some of the other boys and was removed to the rear. It was two days before I could get anything but preliminary medical treatment, and have since been in the hospitals at Boulogne and London, where I have had several operations and received the finest of treatment.

'About the Hesperian: If you are ever on a boat that is torpedoed you will not have to doubt that it is your vessel that is hit, or what has hit it. I was in the smoking room at the time, and couldn't walk alone. The Army Medical officer with me put me into one of the boats, but we got in under the bilge. I was soaked, and he was knocked out, which was the last I saw of him until getting back to London later. He was picked up and was tickled to find me rescued as well, as he had felt his responsibility of losing me when in his charge.

Saved by a Girl.

"The boat we were in had no plug, and it filled as soon as we were in the water. I found myself floating in the ocean, when a girl reached out of another lifeboat and grabbed me by the shoulder. I hung on and managed to climb in. That boat was three-quarters full of water. We had nothing to bale the water out with, so the young lady took off her shoes, she using one and I the other. Another young woman, Miss Rae, also helped. Both girls were coming to Toronto to be married. By a queer coincidence, a young man was in my father's store in Welland the other day, telling him that his fiancee had helped a young officer into a boat when the Hesperian sank. I was the officer."

"After drifting around for two hours we were picked up by a mine-sweeper and taken into Queenstown. Then we went back to Cork and later to Liverpool. In Liverpool a wounded companion and I had the distinction of holding up traffic, while we crossed the street to buy some clothes."

Lieut. Reilly suffered no ill effects from the ocean tragedy, though several excited people walked over his wounded leg in the boats. He has had another operation since the affair, but is now well on the way to recovery.

HUNT CLUBS ARE MOVING OUT FOR THE ANNUAL DEER SEASON

Many of the Local Veteran Nimrods Are Itching for the First Baying of the Hounds and Sight of the First Deer

With the opening of the deer shooting season on Monday, the Peterborough "gunmen" have already become impregnated with the germs of buck fever, and are scattering or preparing to scatter themselves in the remote woods in the northern parts of the county and province. A few of the clubs have been gone several days to get in early, others left today, and the majority are going tomorrow.

Nearly all the local parties are preparing to "trek" and the usual enthusiasm is apparent. The various villages and towns around have their own clubs, who are reported moving out; the Nurse party of Fowler's Corners, the Payne crowd from Wapaw, the Bridgenorth hunters, they have all got the fever, and are eager to sight tha first deer. With good weather they should have two glorious weeks, and, of course, should meet with a fair share of luck.

ROCK LAKE HUNT CLUB.

The following members of the Rock Lake Hunt Club are leaving to-day for their Parry Sound shooting lodge: R. A. Elliott, C. S. McClelland, Jas. Storey, Ken McClelland, R. J. Boden, H. B. Taylor, Tom Mitchell, Cobourg, Geo. Mitchell, Toronto, Malcolm Cook, Sterling, Robt. McCamus, of Keene, H. S. Barnard of Hamilton and Mr. Charlie Cheverill, of Peterborough, who will have charge of the commissary department. They expect to be away two weeks.

SHAWANAGA HUNT CLUB.

This morning's exodus of hunters included the Shawanaga Hunt Club, which left for Gladman's camp in the Parry Sound territory. It mustered the following members: Messrs. Martin, McFadden, Chas. Gladman, Jas. Graham, Chris. Moffat, Chas. Curtis, Albert Curtis, Bert Lillie, W. Theobald, Sam Ray, J. B. Pentland, John Bennett. Mr. R. Hicks and Mr. Jas. Metheral join the party within a week.

BRIGHTMAN PARTY.

Messrs. Tom Brightman, John Brightman, Wm. Gill, Robt. Matchett, Wm. Brightman and H. Hamilton, compose a party who are in north of Renfrew for the shooting season.

KETCHECUM LAKE HUNT CLUB.

The shooting lodge of the Ketchecum Lake Club will have their usual good crowd including the veteran, Mr. Harry Winch. Some of the regular members are unable to enjoy the fall outing this year, but the following are going back sometime to-morrow: Messrs. H. C. Winch, J. D. Collins, H. A. Morrow, J. H. Beatty, Toronto; R. Stuart, of Chicago; J. H. Andrews, of Akron, O.; Dr. Jenkins, of Chicago; John A. Lang, of Berlin; R. J. Munro, Manson Comstock, W. H. Hill, and W. G. Morrow.

BOTTLE LAKE CLUB.

The Bottle Lake Hunt Club will locate themselves in their usual backwoods precincts, the following members comprising the crowd: E. A. Fitzgerald, Jas. Skinner, W. B. Warne, Jiles Stone, Clinton Coon, Ray Best, Mordecai Blewett, Geo. Hall, and Fred Marston of Paris.

EAGLE LAKE HUNT CLUB.

With one of the finest pack of hounds seen around these parts in a long time, the Eagle Lake Hunt Club expects to have a full measure of sport. They leave to-morrow for their grounds, the following members going: Charlie Gunsolus, Harry Evans, Billy James, Dick Sheehy, Jim Leahy, J. Leary, Wallis Evans, C. B. Adair, W. H. White, H. Elmhirst of Otonabee. Art Johnston, Bob Gollop and Charlie Nixon are expected for the second week of the shooting, after the License Inspectors have paid their visit.

Movement To End Zeppelin Raids Growing In Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The German press reveals for the first time the existence of a movement in Germany to end the Zeppelin raids upon open cities and the killing of innocent civilians. This movement is disclosed through articles condemning and bitterly denouncing the anti-Zeppelin agitation.

The Berliner Morgenpost says this movement is "un-German," and adds: "At the occasion of the last raid on London such hellish fire was opened on the Zeppelins by at least fifty batteries stationed right in the centre of the city that it becomes ridiculous to speak any longer of London as an undefended town."

The Vossische Zeitung also denounces the anti-Zeppelin movement in Germany, saying: "The raids are of the most vital importance, and must continue in London if abandoned elsewhere. To make the Englishman feel, you must attack him in the weakest spot—destroy his property, his banks, his money, his spinning establishments.

"This is best done by King Zeppelin. The character of the Englishman has long remained an enigma to many people, but those who have travelled outside of Germany read it correctly enough.

"If in the course of your travels an Englishman should hustle by you and tread on your toes you should never beg his pardon, for if you do he will treat you with the utmost disdain. If, however, you deal him a blow in the ribs, the Englishman will beg you most amiably to excuse him.

"This is the result of personal experience in the course of intimate dealings with Englishmen. We must apply personal experience to our warfare against England. Translated into good German, this means: 'Our Government must repeat again and again with ever-growing violence the Zeppelin raids on London and other English towns.'"

Belgian Front Now The Scene Of Much Activity

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The Belgian front again is the scene of marked artillery activity. After a period of comparative quiet, during which the Germans have devoted much of their attention to attempts to dislodge the French from their recent acquisitions in Champagne, the enemy has shifted a part of this attention to the front of Hetsas and Steenstraete, and to the positions north of Arras at the Boisen-Hache and about Roclincourt, and has directed against these points a bombardment which, because of its violence and duration, may well be considered a preliminary to a projected repetition by the Germans of their attempt to break through the allied line at its western end.

The enemy evidently has not abandoned his efforts to regain the lost ground in Champagne. Yesterday he bombarded violently the French positions at Tahure and the Maisons de Champagne, the French guns replying systematically. The French, through a successful reconnaissance, have destroyed a German trench on the Reichsackerkopf, and have repulsed a counter-attack which the Germans made to recapture the position.

Tries Travelling Hospital.

Dr. Alexis Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, who has been in charge of a hospital at Compiegne, is to devote part of his time to operating and research work in a travelling hospital composed of five automobile trucks, two of which will carry a portable operating room, another a sterilising plant, a fourth an electrical generating plant, and the fifth an X-ray room.

The travelling hospital will make its headquarters at ———. The hospital outfit will go on the road at the end of next week and will be thoroughly tried out along the front, retreating during bombardments.

Dr. Carrel will still supervise the 50-bed hospital at Compiegne, and it is probable that a further extension of his activities in another direction will be announced in a few weeks.

BOMB SHOCKS WERE FATAL

Many of the Air Raiders' Victims Were Not Hit by Shells.

LONDON, Oct. 18, (Correspondence)—Surgeons in English hospitals who have attended victims of Zeppelin raids give remarkable facts regarding the work of bombs launched from aircraft. Apart from their explosive force, missels dropped from a height of a mile or two gain such momentum that they do great damage by their disturbance of the air.

Some of these killed have met their death from the shock of explosions without being hit by any fragments of shell or sustaining wounds. Persons have lost legs and arms from the same cause. A large proportion of those killed in the streets and a majority of the wounded have received their wounds from broken glass.

More persons in the London area have been killed or wounded in the streets than in buildings. Notwithstanding the warnings of the Government that they should stay indoors, the inhabitants persist in crowding into the streets, running to windows and going to the housetops when the word that Zeppelins are coming is passed around.

A prominent American resident, who had mounted a large telescope on the roof of his house, happened to be entertaining a dinner party on the evening of a recent raid. The party ascended to the roof and had a good view of the spectacle.

LIEUT. SWEENEY DECORATED.

Ex-West Pointer, Wounded but Recovering, Makes Legion of Honor.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Charles Sweeney, of Seattle, a former West Pointer, who joined the Foreign Legion at the beginning of the war, and was promoted to a Lieutenancy two months ago for gallantry on patrol duty near the German lines, was shot through the lungs in Champagne, on Sept. 28, and brought to the American Hospital at Neuilly.

Yesterday he was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. He was thought to be hopelessly wounded, but the surgeons now say he will probably recover.

Lieutenant Sweeney's father fought in the Foreign Legion in the Franco-Prussian war.

"THE END OF THE WORLD."

The time flew swiftly on
The hour of ten had gone
I heard them say, this is the day
When beer at night will pass away,
Then the lights began to fade
As my poor brain with fear it whirled,
Next week's the date, they close at eight,
To-night is the "End of the World."

Trooper Finds Lost Family

He Discovers Who He Is After a Loss of Memory for Nine Years—Is Serving With First Contingent at Front

LONDON, Oct. 29.—There is now no doubt that "Trooper J. Thorpe," of the Canadian Contingent at the front, and George Ernest Oldroyd, the son of Mr. Joseph Oldroyd, of Stratford street, Dewsbury road, Leeds, England, who has long been mourned as dead, are one and the same persons. A short time ago a pathetic letter was published in The Yorkshire Post from "Thorpe" to Mr. Oldroyd seeking for confirmation or denial of a story told him at the front by a Leeds man that his real name was Oldroyd, and that his home was in Leeds. George Ernest Oldroyd emigrated to Canada ten years ago, and ceased to communicate with his parents nine years ago; "Thorpe" made it clear in his letter that he had suffered for nine years from complete loss of memory and identity following the wreck of a train in which he was a passenger. Mr. Oldroyd from the first was convinced that "Thorpe" was really his son George, the handwriting of his letter and the last received from his son were almost identical, but now there is no further doubt on the point, for "Thorpe" has forwarded a photograph of himself, which clears up the mystery at once.

In the course of a letter accompanying the photograph, "Thorpe" says:

It is with the greatest pleasure I write these few lines. I wrote to mother, but I regret deeply to hear the news that she has passed away. I would have given everything to have seen her. I am longing for a pass, which will enable me to be with you again. I am confident that at last I have found my people again. I am going to send you a picture of myself and my wife and baby. You will be able to recognize whether I am your son or not. I hope I am, and I believe that I am.

P.S. — I asked an officer about changing my name, and he says it would cause a great deal of trouble in Ottawa, so he advised me to keep this name (Thorpe) until after the war.

Greece Officially Denies Change In Attitude

LONDON, Oct. 29.—There were renewed reports to-day that Greece had suddenly taken a threatening attitude toward the Entente powers and had demanded immediate withdrawal of the allied troops now in Salonica and those in Serbia as well. Little credence was given these reports, however, as they came from unofficial sources, and late this afternoon they were entirely discredited by a despatch from Paris which said that the Greek Minister to France, Athos Romanos, had called at the French Foreign Office to give assurance in behalf of the Greek Minister, M. Zaimis, that the reports of such a change in Greece's attitude were unwarranted.

An Athens despatch quoted the Budapest newspaper Vilag as follows: "Greece has replied to the British note. Greece demands that all troops landed at Salonica, including those that have gone to the Serbian frontier be re-embarked without delay.

"The Government declares that it will regret to be under the necessity of disarming and interning by its own forces the allies now in Greece."

DENTAL WORK TO BE DONE AT GOV'T EXPENSE

The following parody was written by Pte. Frank Traynor of No. 4 Platoon of the 93rd, intended, he states as a little reminder to the young men who hang around pool rooms, picture shows and street corners, that there is a place in the ranks for them:

I didn't raise my boy to be a quitter;
I brought him up to be my pride and joy;
Who dares to say he cannot be a soldier,
Like any other mother's darling boy?
The boys in khaki are the boys we're proud of;
They go to fight for King and homes, so dear;
They don't stand round and gaze, but march along so brave—
I raised my darling boy to be a soldier.

James Wilson and John Smith of the 78rd Royal Highland Regiment, Montreal, are visiting in the city for a few days. Previous to enlisting in this crack regiment they were employed with Mr. Alex. Archibald. Both are widely known in the city and have been warmly welcomed. They have just returned from Valcartier, and appear to be in splendid condition. This Montreal Scotch regiment will be with the Black Watch, and is admittedly one of the very finest regiments that has left Canada for overseas. The Blackwatch squares are woven into the khaki tunic and kilts, and while they do not appear at a distance are quite apparent at a conversational range.

It will be interesting information to the friends of the Peterborough boys in the 33rd Battery draft to know that the draft is stationed at Ross Barracks, Shornecliffe Camp, England. A cablegram to this effect was received from Sergt. Orme Cavanah, to-day.

FINDS BETHLEHEM FORTUNE.

Twenty-eight Shares, Mislaid Since 1908, Net $15,000 Profit.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—"My heart almost stopped when I discovered that a sheet of paper I was about to throw into the waste basket was a forgotten certificate for twenty-eight shares of Bethlehem Steel," said Frederick M. Kerr of Garden City yesterday, confirming a report that he had discovered a fortune in a forgotten corner of his writing desk.

"Some one induced me to buy twenty-eight shares back in 1908 at $19 a share. I paid the $538, tucked the certificate away in my desk, and gradually forgot the matter.

"A few days ago, while going through my desk, I was on the point of consigning it to the waste basket, when the word 'Bethlehem' attracted my attention. Then I nearly fell off the chair. I did a little figuring, and found that I had a profit of $15,000."

"Have you still got the stock?" Kerr was asked.

"Bet your life!" said he, "and I intend to keep it. Maybe it'll skyrocket some more."

THE GAME DISTRICTS ARE CONVENIENTLY REACHED VIA CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

Canada's most famous hunting grounds are easily reached via Canadian Pacific Railway. Year after year organized hunting parties visit these localities and practically always bag the limit.

HIGH PRICES FOR FOOD STIR RUSSIA TO ACT.

Will Organize Refugees and Soldiers as Teamsters to Relief Freight Congestion.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—An extraordinary meeting of the Russian Council of Ministers has empowered Alexei Khovstoff, Minister of the Interior, to take urgent measures to cope with the food problem, says a despatch from Petrograd.

During his tour south Minister Khvostoff ascertained that as many as 6,000 cars of foodstuffs were being detained in the freight sheds at Moscow. To a representative of the Novoe Vremya M. Khvostoff explained that the main cause for the unprecedented rise in prices lay in the congestion of freight at Raizan, Tula, Orel, and other places, and the extortionate wage demands of teamsters, together with the failure of municipalities to adopt measures to facilitate the delivery of freight.

He proposes to organize military companies of teamsters, consisting of refugees and soldiers, to discharge freight, and also to requisition drays and horses.

The Collection Of Garbage

The Property Committee of the City Council will meet this evening. One of the matters that will be dealt with concerns the collection of garbage for the forthcoming year. As it is the work is done by contract. As a result of a trip made to several Ontario cities by Ald. McIntyre and Sanitary Inspector Spence, the work may be undertaken by the city. This would necessitate the purchase of several horses and wagons.

FORD MELON IN CANADA.

WALKERVILLE, Ont., Oct. 29. — Distribution of a 600 per cent. stock dividend to shareholders of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, equivalent, at the present price of the stock, to $18,000,000, was recommended by the company's stockholders at their annual meeting. This action follows payment on a 50 per cent. cash dividend to stockholders within the last two weeks.

The stock dividend is recommended as part of the plan approved by the stockholders for increasing the company's capital stock from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000. The directors are expected to approve the action of the stockholders within a few days. There are only about 150 stockholders.

WHAT TOMMY TOLD THE DUCHESS.

I bared my manly bosom to 'is 'orrid stethoscope—
I called on Gawd to witness that all my ribs was broke!
'E thumped me and 'e punched me and 'is bloomin' face was long,
But when 'e says, "Count five, my lad,"
I give 'im this 'ere song:
"It's a long way to Tipperary,
It's a long way to go,
It's a long way to Tipperary,
And the sweetest girl I know!"

They chucked me in a luggage van with 'alf a 'undred more,
And gruesome kind of cheer it was, with straw ticks on the floor.
The matey wot was nearest me 'ad lost out both 'is eyes—
'E cried for 'is old lady and then 'e ups and dies!
"It's a long way to Tipperary,
Too far for some to go,
It's a long way to Tipperary—
Ah, Gawd! 'e loved 'er so!"

I 'ad to keep my spirits up, though tears ain't no disgrace
When you're coughing blood and shrapnel, but I 'ad to save my face,
So I 'ollered in my blanket and you bet I made 'em 'ear—
"If any mate will 'elp me sing, I've two bits left for beer."
"It's a long road to Tipperary,
We're goin 'ome to-day,
We cursed the surgeon for a thief,
But 'e wouldn't let us stay."

Then something must 'ave 'appened, for an English nurse was near—
With natural imperliteness, I said, "Mornin', sister dear."
She turned as white as paper. "Man, be careful what you say!
You 'aven't spoke for seven weeks — we thought you'd die to-day!"
"It's a long way to Tipperary,
But when I 'eave in view,
Moll won't mind the crutches
Because me 'eart is true.
I don't mind your crutches, Tom,
I know your love is true!"
That's wot Moll will say to me
When I 'eave in view."

Pure Country Air.

A professor in an educational institution of this city was examining some students in hygenic science.

"The great city agglomerations vitiate the atmosphere," he said. "Morbiferous germs, escaping from inhabited interiors, contiminate the air round about. In the country, however, the athmosphere remains pure. Why is that Jones?"

"Because," said Jones, "the people in the country never open their windows."—New York Times

Cultivate Cheerfulness.

We are all apt to let trifles irritate us at times, and it is at such times the household is wrecked.

It would seem we are given strength to bear big troubles but the small ones get us. One must be continually on guard or small vexations become exaggerated until discontent results.

Life is too short to allow our energy to be wasted in any such way, or our character spoilt by petty happenings. Just decide they are of no real importance after all. We must concentrate on big things, if our lives are to be enlarged.

Cheerfulness and good temper cost nothing, and are almost priceless in contributing to the happiness of husband and children. Depression and discontent unnerve, and take from us the real working power given by God. A happy disposition is the greatest help in the world, and the woman who insists in turning her face to the sun, instead of standing in the shadow of small worries will live longest and gladden more hearts, than she who commands millions, but has a discontented mind.

DIED.

HALES—In Nicholls Hospital on Thursday, Oct. 28th, 1915, Isabella McFadden, wife of John W. Hales, 635 Stewart Street, aged sixty years.

Funeral from the above residence, on Monday at 10:30 to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service at 10 o'clock.

EMPTY STOMACH AND SLEEPLESSNESS.

A glass of warm milk drunk at night just before going to bed is very soothing to the nerves, and sometimes serves as a definite sleeping potion, as an entirely empty stomach often causes sleeplessness. In extreme cases of wakefulness, it is a good thing to take a hot footbath just before going to bed, and the feet can be rubbed afterward with turpentine, which will increase the warmth and pleasant tingle. As to the bath it cannot be given too much importance where the health and comfort of the anemic woman are involved. It is absolutely necessary, but should not be taken too soon after eating, and water should be neither too hot nor too cold.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR A CHAUFFEUR

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—Charles Tang, a chauffeur who, while under the influence of liquor, lost control of a motor truck which struck and killed two children a month ago, was sentenced by Chief Justice Meredith to three years' imprisonment. Tang pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter. Owing to the erratic course of the truck it was thought at the time of the accident that the steering gear had gone wrong, but Tang's breath betrayed him and the police followed his trail to several hotels.

"It was the human gear that went wrong as a result of drink," said the chief justice.

Allies Will Send An Ultimatum to Greece To Demobilize or Fight

Will Force King Constantine to Do Away with the Present Menace---Attitude of Greece and Roumania is Causing Apprehension.

ROME, Oct. 30.—The Entente Powers have decided to send an ultimatum to Greece, according to information secured in semi-official circles here yesterday. The attitude of Greece and Roumania is causing much apprehension in London and Paris.

The Athens correspondent of the Tribuna states that decisive developments are expected within the next forty-eight hours.

The Entente Powers are expected to send a note to Greece demanding that King Constantine either demobilize or else enter the war against the Teutonic Powers.

BULGAR BRIBE TO GREECE.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The Frankfort Gazette is authority for the statement that Bulgaria has offered to cede to Greece all of Macedonia east of the Monastir-Gievgeli line if she will enter the war against the Allies. At the same time Turkey has promised to recognize Greece's sovereignty in the islands seized by Greece from Turkey during the Balkan war.

ROUMANIAN MOBILIZATION.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—The Salonika correspondent of the Petit Journal learns from a reliable source that Roumania has mobilized 450,000 men, of whom 200,000 are concentrated on the Bulgarian frontier and the rest on the Hungarian frontier, where impregnable defences have been constructed.

ALLIES ABANDON HOPE.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A special despatch to the London News from Milan says:

"From a semi-official statement of what occurred in the Italian Cabinet council Thursday night, it appears obvious that the Quadruple Entente Powers have abandoned hope that either Roumania or Greece can be persuaded or bribed to observe their treaty obligations to come to the aid of Serbia. This comes as a disappointment to certain circles, where it was hoped Thursday that Italian and Russian efforts to influence Roumania might be crowned with at least partial success.

"Italy remains of the opinion that the best counter-move will be a vigorous offensive against the German, Austrian and Turkish line in every theatre of war, thus preventing the transference of troops to the Balkans area and compelling the Central Powers to go slowly with their new enterprise."

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A report has reached here of a terrific fight on the Island in the Dvina River, where after luring the Germans on, the Russians annihilated them. The river was choked with German corpses.

N.Y. WOMAN WATCHED AIR RAID ON LONDON

Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll, who is temporarily living in London in apartments at 13 Wilbraham Mansions, witnessed the big Zeppelin raid on Oct. 13. In describing it to a friend in New York, she wrote:

"It was somewhere near 10 o'clock I was thinking of going to bed, when my sharp ears caught a muffled 'bomb, bomb.' For an instant I thought of subway explosions—realized that they did not have them over here, and that it must be Zeppelins, so I seized a coat and scrambled through the dormer window out upon my balcony.

"It was a clear starry night, with just the usual cold London night mist in the streets, and there, way up among the serene stars, were exploding falling globes of fire—many searchlights darting across the heavens, and the distant muffled 'bomb, bomb' of the guns; then a muffled explosion like dynamite under ground. I cannot describe to you how spectacular and yet how simple it was—like titanic fireworks. That men were fighting up in the air gave it a completing touch of unreality. So might the fallen angels have battled. It was all over in fifteen minutes. There really was not enough of it. My little cook joined me on the balcony, but her sister was crying and frightened in the kitchen, so she went back and I watched alone.

"This is a very quiet part of London. Hardly any one was in the street and presently a policeman ordered me in for fear of bits of falling shell. The explosion was so far off and dull I thought the raid was nowhere near London, so fancy my surprise when I went to see the damage done yesterday. I found that it was just one block from the Savoy.

"Last night, another raid was predicted, but none came off. It is rather like sitting at the theatre and waiting for a dilatory curtain. Some people say they saw the Zeppelins, but I did not, and the noise near the Strand must have been intense, here it was dull and far off.

In a letter to a relative in this city a resident of London called the noise of the battle between the anti-aircraft guns and the raiders "terrible," and concluded:

"This is what it was like—searchlights crashing about in all directions and to the left of us, lots of little stars popping out near a thick, short bar of yellow light. The yellow bar was the 'Zep' the long rays searchlights and the stars shrapnel bursting. I should think about a dozen guns were firing at once. First they made a huge 'b-o-o-o-o-m-m-m,' then came a noise like thousands of chains being dragged over corrugated iron, and then a sharp 'bang' and explosion, ending in little stars.

"This was exciting. I felt rather frightened for a few seconds, because I didn't know how near the 'Zep' was, and my teeth chattered and legs shook. So did Lydia's. But after the first few seconds one lost one's fright. This row lasted on and off from 10 o'clock till 12:30. We went out to the anti-air station between whiles, but came hastily back, as the guns started again, and the police wouldn't let people come near the gun station."

A recent development of the electric sewing machine is one in which the motor is built in and its speed is controlled by a brake operated by a pedal.

Bulgar Mutiny Reported at Varna

Soldiers Shouted "Long Live Russia" During Bombardment

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A mutiny has broken out in the Bulgarian army at Varna, says an Athens despatch to the London Star to-day. Bulgarian soldiers in some forts refused to man the guns while the port was under bombardment by Russian warships, shouting "Long Live Russia!" Many of them were afterwards executed.

A despatch to Rome from Kustendje, Roumania, describes the damage caused by the bombardment as very serious, while the Bulgar artillery made only a feeble reply.

A Sofia despatch says that as a consequence of the bombardment of Dedeagatch, "which was contrary to international law, and in which considerable private property was destroyed, the Bulgarian Government intends to place under compulsory administration all French and English property in Bulgaria in order to have security for the indemnification of Bulgarians who suffered by the bombardment.

FIERCE ITALIAN ATTACKS REPULSED SAYS VIENNA

VIENNA, Oct. 30.—"We have repulsed unprecedently fierce Italian attacks again,' announced the War Office to-day. "Along the entire coastal front we retained our positions. The attacks continue with undiminished violence, especially in the direction of Goldliana."

PETROGRAD, Oct. 30. — German reports of the serious differences between the Allies over the various Balkan policies, were denied in a semi-official statement issued here to-day. "It is superfluous," said the statement, "to point out the fallous nature of this assertion."

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 30 —British submarines chased the Hamburg-American liner Stavonia and three other German ships into Swedish waters, it was learned here to-day.

HOW THEY WERE TRANSFORMED INTO FRIENDS

"It was the greatest day I ever spent," said a wounded soldier to a representative of the press, describing a day in the recent advance. "Just my little crowded hour."

"I never knew that in less than five minutes a crowd of sober, respectable 'Scotties' could be transformed into a perfect torrent of howling fiends. The extraordinary thing about it was its beastly methodicalness that charge I mean.

"They were raging and yelling, and fighting like tigers, really, but it was all so internally systematic in spite of that. Thinking about it since, I reckon it was the training the traning we groused at, and I could often have dodged it we could. We sank in deep. We were for the time being just line upon line of wild savages run amuck, and yet, sub consciously if you like, the training held and guided us in our madness.

"I got my knock out after the second trench, and dropped. It was funny listening to the fellows streaming past—the things they were saying. If ever I meet some of them at home I'll levy blackmail on them. Otherwise I'll astonish their friends.

"It happened that I was lying on my face, and pretty sick from the slap of the bullet.

"If there's a finer regiment in the world than Wilhelm will have to wire 'em at once to remain neutral or it's all up with him. Talking about it all is nothing, but thinking it all over again is awful."

"In case there should be any dispute as to the battalion being the finest regiment in the world, I think the matter should be referred to the Germans. I'm not arguing. We'll settle the matter in Berlin. But the battalion made a charge on September 25, 1915, which is going to take some beating. For I saw them."

CANADA SENDS AID TO RELIEVE DISTRESS CAUSED BY ZEPPELINS

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The House of Commons last night learned of a generous contribution by Canada towards relieving the distress on the east coast of England through naval and air raids.

The president of the Local Government Board, answering a question regarding the alleviation of this distress, said that payments would be made out of the fund generously provided by the Canadian Government.

I think he said, we all desire to express our warm thanks to the Government of this great Dominion for this additional proof of a desire to share in the common burden." The statement was greeted with great cheers.

GERMAN BEER HIGHER—OUTPUT LESS.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—There has been an increase in the price of beer in Germany, and it is announced that the consumption of Pilsener beer must be reduced to one-third, as owing to the shortage of raw materials, the famous Bohemian breweries have been forced [illegible] on account of the war.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" IF TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomachache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

A WOMAN'S WARDROBE

The thrifty woman nowadays is not only careful in the purchasing of her wardrobe but she is very attentive, even to the minutest detail, to see that her wardrobe is properly cared for.

Any time that is spent on caring for the clothes is well spent, as the results will well compensate you for any trouble. First of all, clothes should always be kept in a cupboard where the dust will not get at them. Coats, suits, gowns, etc., should be hung up as soon as they are taken off, and hats should be kept in a box.

Women always like to look nice on the street, and to do so, great care must be taken of the suit which is, probably, the most worn of any garment in the wardrobe. A suit that is worn a great deal should be pressed at least once a week, more often, if necessary, and spots or dust should be removed at once, as if they are allowed to remain too long it is difficult to remove them at all. To keep a suit perfectly clean it is well to brush it thoroughly whenever the garment is taken off, and in this way any spots will be seen and removed at once. The life of a suit will be almost doubled by good care. Any little tear or loose button on a garment should be attended to at once. If we are possessed of two good suits one can be undergoing a thorough overhauling while the other is being worn.

Variety in Hats.

Our hats, too, should undergo the same careful inspection. Velvet hats, especially, should be well brushed. A dusty velvet hat is an eyesore and will spoil the effect of a smart suit. A hat can be made to look like new by changing the trimming now and again. Girls that are handy with the needle can very often fashion some charming little hats for themselves, the trimmings from their discarded hats and then when they need a rose or a feather it is right at hand.

How to Get Full Value out of Furs.

Our furs should receive the best of attention. When the winter is over they should be put away amongst camphor balls out of the way of the destructive moths, then when winter once more comes round they are as fresh as ever. As soon as furs begin to show signs of wear they should be taken to a good furrier and repaired. Perhaps the style of the furs can be altered in such a way as to do away altogether with the worn part. Furs should be well shaken out every day, especially after they have been worn during a snow storm. After we are finished with our furs we can sometimes utilize them as trimming, and so on, or perhaps there will be enough fur in the collar and muff to make a collar for a knock-about coat.

Taking Care of Blouses and Gowns.

The blouse, as we know, is a very necessary item of the wardrobe, and there are many ways of taking care of and remodelling a blouse. Washwaists should be pressed each time they are worn. When the cuffs of a fancy waist becomes soiled the sleeves can be made short, and we can often change a blouse completely by adding a new collar.

Afternoon gowns and house dresses should be pressed continually, and when you tire of the style, they can be remodelled or made into sleeveless jumpers, which are most effective when worn with gumpes of lace, Georgette crepe, silk or satin. It will be seen that by constant care and remodelling a great variety can be given to the wardrobe at a very moderate cost. The same thing applies to evening gowns, and many girls would be surprised if they knew how some well dressed girls change the aspect of a gown so successfully that it would hardly be recognized as the same gown.

Shoes Should be Worn Alternately.

Shoes and boots should be cleaned and brushed very attentively. It is always the truest economy to have two or three pairs of shoes. They will last longer when they are worn alternately than if you wear one pair every day until they are completely worn out and then buy another pair and do the same with them. Boots should not be worn without rubbers if there is snow on the ground, as they will get wet right through and the leather will rot away.

Every Garment in the Wardrobe Should Receive Attention.

There is not a garment in our wardrobe that will not be the better for a little care, and even our underwear should be carefully and neatly mended, and fresh ribbons inserted when necessary.

There so many ways by which we can take care of our clothes and give variety to our wardrobe, that it would be impossible to enumerate them all here, but every girl can at least follow out some of the methods outlined above. A certain time should be set apart each day for the care of the wardrobe. If this is done you will notice in a short time a perceptible change in the appearance of your clothes.

Mexican Omelet.

Break four eggs into a basin, add to them a little pepper and salt, a dessertspoonful of finely chopped parsley, a tiny piece of onion scalded and finely chopped, dash of red pepper; beat them all well together. Melt half an ounce of butter in an omelet pan; pour the mixture into it. Move the pan round until the eggs are set; fold it over in half; turn it onto a hot dish and serve immediately.

Sally Lunn.

Sally lunn can be baked either in a flat sheet or in muffin pans and is delicious in either form. MOUTH REMEMBERING

When making gravies a generous pinch of salt added to the flour used for thickening it will keep the flour from lumping.

When feet are extremely sensitive, it is a good plan to wash hosiery in a borax solution and wear without ironing.

Never let a comb soak in water to clean it. Use a stiff brush and do not use much water.

Turpentine and beeswax, mixed to the consistency of thin cream, makes a fine polish or leather-covered furniture.

Never use soap on a baking board; use sand with a stiff brush, and rinse with very hot, then cold water and allow to dry standing.

Sore mouth can be cured by rubbing with sweet oil or vaseline, nine times out of ten.

Oxalic acid and javelle water are excellent for removing ink stains.

If a bureau drawer sticks, remove it and rub the edges with hrd soap and it will run smoothly.

If you buy a choice rug you wish to clean at home, moisten cornmeal with gasoline and rub the rug all over with the meal. See to it that there is no fire in the room, and leave the windows open for two hours after doing the cleaning.

In sweeping carpets, always sweep with the grain. To brush the wrong way is not only to injure the carpet, but it tends to brush the dirt in and not out.

Some Beauty Dont's

Don't wear thin shoes and gossamer stockings in cold weather, or you will have that pinched, chilled look that is so unbecoming. Don't economize in shoe leather. It is economy which will likely cost you dear. Don't give up taking exercise even if the weather is bad. A brisk walk on a cold day is a splendid complexion beautifier.

Don't fail to dry your hands thoroughly after washing if you wish to prevent them from getting chapped. Don't forget to wear a veil if your skin is susceptible to cold winds. Don't wear heavy headgear. It is very bad for the hair. Don't let your rooms get hot and stuffy. Always leave the window slightly open at the top.

An excellent lotion for preserving the color of fair hair is made from camomile flowers. An ounce of these should be placed in a bowl and about a pint of boiling water poured over them. Cover the bowl and allow to stand for a couple of hours, then strain carefully and use cool. Gradually darken the tone of the hair.

The more fair hair is brushed, the better it looks. Brushing gives a glossy touch to curls, does away with dandruff, helps to make the hair grow. The brushes must be kept scrupulously clean, should be washed every morning, and left to dry ready for the night brushing.

This is very poor economy and poorer philosophy, thinks Horace. There is no wisdom in working all day on an empty stomach and taking a chance on catching the first contagious disease that comes your way, as well as spoiling your chances of being beautiful. If you do not conserve your strength to combat germs, they will find easy lodgment in a weakened body.

Defy Dyspepsia!

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia or Indigestion may be mentioned a heavy, cutting pain soon after eating; a distended, full feeling of the stomach and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; oppression of breathing; pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated toogue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the natural specific for all these conditions. Being an antacid, it immediately relieves the acidity of the stomach and stops the fermentation. It stimulates the secretion and muscular action of the stomach and bowels, and overcomes the constipation. When its use is kept up the normal action of all the organs of digestion is re-established.

CHRISTMAS CAKES

Due to the commandeering of many vessels for transports by Greece, currants which are imported from that country to Canada will take a considerable jump in price, according to wholesale grocers in this city. It was stated to-day that great difficulty encountered in arranging shipments of the fruit across the Atlantic and that as a result housewives may look for a soaring in the cost of Christmas cake when that season rolls around.

Raisins, it is stated, have been a poor crop this year, only about 25 per cent. of the average yield in Spain, from which country Canada obtains the major portion of its supply, being fit for use. Prices as a result will be higher than last year. Dates, which mostly come from Persia can be handled with little more difficulty than last year, and prices are expected to hold firm.

SALMON SALAD.

One can of salmon, one half cupful of milk, grated rind of one lemon, two tablespoonfuls of chopped celery, tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne, one cupful of stale bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, two eggs beaten thoroughly, one half teaspoonful of mustard. Combine all the ingredients, steam 45 minutes, serve cold with tartare sauce.

CHOICE RECIPES

TOMATO MINCE MEAT

Four quarts of green tomatoes, chop and drain. Cover with cold water and simmer three minutes, then drain again and add two pounds of brown sugar, one pound of raisins, one half citron, chopped, one half cup butter, one-half cup vinegar, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cloves, two teaspoons cassia, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg, cook slowly about two hours. Grind the tomatoes and the raisins with the meat grinder, using coarsest knife. Use a handful of raisins on your nice when you make them. This is very good.

NUT BREAD.

Four cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, half cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one half teaspoonfuls of chopped nuts, one egg, and two cups of sweet milk. Sift together the flour, sugar, salt and baking powder, stir the nuts into the flour, mix the egg and milk together, then the rest of the ingredients. Put in two pans, let rise half an hour then bake an hour.

KIDNEY STEW.

Here is an excellent recipe for kidney stew.

Take a large beef kidney, cut all the fat out, cut it up in slices, then lay in cold water with salt for one hour. Wipe dry, then put in the pot with three half pints of cold water, let it come to a boil, then simmer for two hours. Half an hour before it is done add one large onion sliced, one teaspoonful of powdered sage, a very little grated nutmeg, add pepper and salt to season, serve hot, with mashed potatoes.

CRANBERRY FRAPPE.

One teaspoonful gelatine, one pint cold water, one pint cranberries, one and one half cups sugar, juice of one lemon, one quarter cup boiling water.

Soak the gelatine in half a cup cold water and cook the cranberries in the remainder. When soft press through a sieve, add sugar, lemon and the gelatine dissolved in the boiling water.

Freeze to a mush and serve with roast pork or roast turkey.

GRAPE CONSERVE.

Remove the skins from a basket of Concord grapes, measure the pulp and cook until the seeds can easily be removed by pressing through a colander. Add as many cups of sugar as you had pulp before cooking. Also the skins, and one large orange sliced in thin shavings skin and all. One pound of raisins cut in two or three pieces. Place on back of the range and cook slowly for one hour, then add a pound of English walnuts cut in small pieces and cook for 30 minutes longer. Treat as jelly.

A little grape juice and the white of an egg added to lemonade makes a delicious and healthful drink.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

WHEN THE "BABY" STARTS TO SCHOOL.

My baby boy has gone away, my precious baby boy.
My little, helpless baby boy, my weak and helpless one.
Has grown so fast, and it was at last
I have to let him go.
He needs much more than I can give but ah, it hurts me so.
And oh, it makes me choke, and oh,
my heart is very sore.
To think that he won't need me as he used to any more.
The stories that his mother tells, the songs that mother sings
Will not be all important now. They just are little things.
And there will be so much that's new; his world is quite another
From that he's known, in which his greatest love and friend was mother.
New world, new play, a whole new life, built on a different plan.
My clinging baby boy replaced by this—a sturdy man.
But when he trotted off to school, he looked so small, so young.
My arms so ached to hold him, and my very heart was wrung.
And now I hoped he'd be afraid and beg to need not go.
But off he went, and then at noon,
his face was all aglow.
Because he loved it all so much, for him it's just the dawn
Of everything that's good; but ah my baby boy is gone.

USE LIFE'S GOOD THINGS

How much better to use some of the good things of this life as we go along to make our humble homes as cheery and bright as possible now. Do not starve to-day, either body, mind or soul, thinking that poverty will knock at your door to-morrow. Don't hoard and scrimp through the best years of your life that you may be generous in your wills. Life is uncertain and it is better to make your children happy while they are under your roof; to call to that home every agency that will make their lives sweeter and better, than to deny them these that you may leave them a large bank account when you are gone. It will be too late for them to return kindness to you then. Don't keep the parlors shut up and live in the kitchen, unless you want the boys and girls to be anxious to leave you. Don't think that they mustn't go anywhere else but to Sunday school and prayer meeting. Remember that you were once young yourself. Do not ask them to walk two miles to a singing or lecture after working hard all day, when there are two or three horses in the barn that would enjoy the trip as much as they. For God's sake, show them that you think as much of them as you do your beasts, if not more. Take time to enjoy the championship of your friends, especially the society of your children, it will only be a few years at the best that they will be with you and these ought to be years of happiness to both you and them. Would you not rather have them look back when out in the world to that blessed home, (though it may not have been a mansion,) where they received more joy and comfort than the world can afford, than to have them forget home in a week and hardly return to your burial? If we are ever happy in this life, we must enjoy what every day brings us. We should be grateful and glad for all the good things that come into our lives, and patiently bear our trials, believing that all things, if rightly used will fit us for the enjoyment of perfect happiness hereafter.

"Look at this day," said the philosopher, "for it is life, the very life of life. Yesterday is but a dream, and tomorrow is only a vison, but to-day, well lived, makes every yesterday a dream of happiness, and every to-morrow a vision of hope."

It makes little difference in home happiness whether you own your house, or have one little room on the sixth floor of an apartment house. You can make that one little room the perfection of all that is worth living for, a quiet harbor to which a husband will turn, feeling that he has run out of the storm of his day's work into the security of something that is real.

Heaven's best gift is a hopeful heart, which rises superior to every adverse element and stems every opposing tide. One such spirit in a family is a blessing beyond estimate and if a whole family would give out all the sunshine it could generate by continually striving to outshine every other member there would be few cloudy days in the year.

Be content with what you have; you may butter your bread until you are unable to eat it.

Bear in mind that you are largely responsible for your children's faults whether inherited or acquired, and so be patient with them.

There are a hundred successful men and women where there is one that is content.

The rarest feeling that ever lights the human face is the contention of a loving soul.

Enjoy the blessings of today, if God sends them, and the evils of it bear patiently and sweet.

FROCKS FOR MATINEE WEAR

Velvet and Faille, and Velvet and Broadcloth Combine Effectively

A TOUCH OF FUR DEMANDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—There are many interesting plays in town; afternoon teas are among the social demands, and the tea rooms of the Ritz, Plaza, Astor and Vanderbilt are once more gay with the laughing chatter of many voices. The charming array of gowns makes these more public places wonderfully interesting. The dark rich velvets, combined with satin, taffetas, broadcloths, and velours are most effective and wintery-looking with the touch of fur which almost invariably appears on some part of the gown.

The Popularity of the Jumper.

Perhaps the most generally favored style of gown or blouse is the jumper, there is the little jumper bodice made with narrow shoulder straps, crossing suspender fashion down the back, or continuing down each side of the back in straight lines. The sleeveless basque in various styles is popular, too with sleeves of satin, taffeta, or crepe Georgette. Many of the blue serge gowns, and the heavier fabrics, such as duvetyn and velours de laine, are made this way, as many dislike a heavy sleeve. This is also an economical idea, as the sleeves may be varied; a pair of satin or taffeta may do service for morning, and by substituting a gumpe or crepe Georgette, or chiffon cloth, the same frock becomes dressy enough for afternoon wear. A very chic dress of the new material has red or contrasting sleeves is broadcloth grosgrain; a blue serge, for instance, is made with a gumpe of blue grosgrain brocaded in gold, with charming harmonies of effect.

Among the dressier afternoon frocks the use of velvet combined with satin, faille or taffeta, striped or plain, is much in vogue. One charming little frock made with the lower portion of the skirt in velvet, arranged in panels of Troy design, the satin effect carried out in the lace sleeves, the bodice also of satin. Black velvet for upper part of skirt of striped grosgrain for the upper portion of the skirt, the bodice of satin and plaited net, collar and cuffs of velvet.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

The Mental Attitude. Health, according to my way of thinking, is not altogether a state of mind, although I agree that many cases of illness, in fact a large percentage of them, are due to the mental attitude. For many years the physicians and surgeons dismissed Christian Science, new thought and mental healing with a gesture of disgust and ridicule. They also attempted to do the same thing with osteopathy, chiropractic and dietetic specialists. In spite of ridicule and even persecution such as arrest and imprisonment, all of these various methods of healing the sick have made rapid progress in the confidence of the people.

When the medical profession could no longer ignore and pooh, pooh the success of Christian Science and new thought or mental science in successfully treating conditions of the human body in cases where medicine and surgery failed, they sought to accuse outside of that claimed by the so-called Healers. They now claim that through what they call Psycho-analysis, Dr. Freud has lighted the way out of the mystery and that they can through the scientific application of his discoveries locate the cause of the ailments they previously failed to cure, remove that cause and by the touch healing take place.

Truly wonderful, but when one carefully analyzes Dr. Freud's method and proves the correctness of his theories of treatment it is found that he has simply proved in a scientific manner the correctness of new thought and Christian Science in the field of healing wherein they are successful.

According to Dr. Freud it is suppressed desire, tension, fear, hate, worry and hurry that is at the bottom of all disease and if we analyze all of these we might boil it all down to tension. Hate, fear, worry and hurry all cause tension. Love which is the foundation and basic principle of new thought and Christian science causes a relaxation from the tension, the circulation is freed and life flow normally.

Hate is a mental cancer.
Love is the antidote.
Fear is much like hate.
Perfect love casteth out fear.
Love begets confidence.

When you have confidence in your own ability to overcome disease your battle is half won. When you exercise good common sense in regard to what, when and how as well as how much you eat, you have confidence in your digestive organs and know that you are not abusing them. If you don't know what, how much or when you should eat then you would better get into closer touch with the Home Health Club and find out.

Some of the converts to the mental or spiritual methods of healing are inclined to think that it is not necessary to take any thought about the food or to exercise any kind of common sense in that direction, but others admit that while man is an soul, and has a body that is subject to the mind, God gives him the mind with which to govern the body. He expects us to exercise the mind in relation to the body. He has given us the matter of food just as much as other creatures. He put the corn in the ground, but does not expect us to build a steam engine by mental effort only. He placed the trees in the forest but He does not intend that them into lumber and houses for the protection of our bodies from cold and rain or storms. Does it not that the house must first be constructed in the mind before the sawmill can turn out the plank, so mental effort must be applied to the matter we must use in the construction of any of these things. Because we do not build houses in certain kinds of food we make the [illegible] and [illegible]

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BOWSER PLAYS TRAMP

Disguises Himself as Hobo and Goes Out Begging.

TO PROVE A STATED THEORY.

Incidentally to Show Mrs. Bowser That She Is Hard Hearted—Distressing Results Follow, and, as Usual, It Is All the Fault of His Wife.

[Copyright, 1915, by T. C. McClure.]

As Mr. Bowser reached home the other evening a tramp who had been at the basement door passed out of the gate. He was not halted or addressed, but two minutes later the inquiry was put to Mrs. Bowser:

"Was that man who was just here asking for something to eat?"

"Yes, it was an old tramp."

"And you gave him something?"

"No. This is the third or fourth time he has been here this week. He is both impudent and persistent. Why do you ask?"

"Because, madam, when he passed me at the gate his whole attitude portrayed hunger and dejection. He must have felt that the whole world was against him."

"He didn't ask for food, but for money. If he is suffering for anything, it is for whisky."

"And you are ready to libel his character as well as turn him from your door!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser. "Woman, you have a heart of stone. I have no doubt that you have driven a dozen different men to crime and a dozen others to suicide."

Mrs. Bowser made no reply, and nothing further was said until they were seated at the dinner table. Then Mr. Bowser took the matter up again by saying:

"Yes, the man seemed utterly lost to hope, and before we have finished our dinner he may be floating in the river. If so, you will be to blame for it."

"But I tell you I'm not going to make a tramp hotel of this house," she spiritedly replied. "There's a lot of rubbish in the back yard, and I've offered tramp after tramp money to remove it. Not one would touch it."

"That makes no difference to the general character of the case. The tramp is the victim of misfortune. He has lost wife, children, all. He is bowed with sorrow. Ambition has fled. He feels that the hand of all men is against him. From our store of plenty can we not afford him a crust or a dime? Who can say that it would not be the beginning of a new era with him?"

"Tramps don't eat crusts, Mr. Bowser, and, as for dimes, you leave so precious few of them around the house that I don't have one for my street car fare half the time. I think I can make as good use of them as any tramp."

Bowser Glares and Turns Red.

Mr. Bowser knew that the cook overheard the remark, and he also knew that it was trite and true, and for the next two minutes he did nothing but glare and turn red and white by turns. Then he said:

"You look at things from your own selfish standpoint. There are thousands of people that feel as I do that when misfortune makes a tramp of a man he still remains a human being and is entitled to humane treatment. How easy for you to have passed out some food and a few kind words! Instead of that, you slammed the door on his toes or yelled to the cook to do it, and the man has gone away wondering if we are devils or human beings. Listen to the moaning of the wind! It is going to be a dark, rainy night, and as that poor, hungry tramp makes his bed on a pile of ashes in some alley what can his thoughts of you be?"

"I don't believe there are thousands that feel as you do," replied Mrs. Bowser. "I don't believe"—

"Hold on right there, madam. I firmly believe that you are the only woman in this town that will bang the door on the toes of a hungry and discouraged tramp. I not only believe it, but I'm going to prove it. I acknowledge that the world is selfish, but I also contend that there are thousands of hearts that beat for misfortune."

"How can you prove it?"

"You will see at the end of a couple of hours."

For an hour after dinner, until it began to grow dark, Mr. Bowser read his paper and smoked his cigar. Then he disappeared upstairs, and when he came down again Mrs. Bowser thought the tramp had come back and sneaked in at the front door. Mr. Bowser had donned up one of his oldest suits and reduced it to a ragged state.

"And now what?" was asked.

"I am going to prove my case. I am dressed like a tramp. I am going forth to appeal to the charity of my fellow men. I shall find human sympathy with me. You can't make me believe, Mrs. Bowser, that this town holds another person as selfish as you are. If it does, then where is our boasted Christianity?"

Mrs. Bowser made no objection to his going out, but smiled behind his back as he went. Mr. Bowser had gone only three blocks before he saw a lady sitting on the steps of her house. She looked sympathetic and charitable. She looked tender hearted and full of love for humanity. He therefore turned in, and, removing his rusty old hat, he said:

"Lady, I am a tramp through misfortune. A tornado caused the deaths of my wife and children, and"—

"And why didn't it cause yours as well?" was asked.

"Madam, I was once a happy man. I had around me"—

"James," called the woman over her shoulder, to some one in the house, "here is some one bothering me. Please come out and remove him."

"Madam, I simply ask for a crust of bread. I haven't had anything to eat for three"—

James appeared. He was a husky fellow. He also had a voice on him like the roar of a bull. When he roared at Mr. Bowser to "git" the disguised tramp got. Five houses down a man sat on his steps smoking. Mr. Bowser leaned over the gate in a weary way and worked a bit of pathos into his voice as he asked:

"Sir, do you know what it is to be an outcast in this world?"

"Why, I've got the jail for company," was the reply.

"I do, sir, that I must sleep on the damp earth tonight for the want of a dime to get me a bed?"

"It can, and you'd better be doing it. Come, go on with you!"

This was a direct and an aggressive order, and Mr. Bowser moved on. As he struck the next block he found a cook taking the evening air at a basement door. She was a middle aged woman, and he saw pity in her eyes.

"I can see that you have the heart of a woman," he said as he halted.

"And what of it?"

"I crave a little food to assuage the pangs of hunger."

"Oh, you do! Perhaps you crave a strawberry shortcake with whipped cream on top."

"No, ma'am, only a few crusts. I am a broken, despairing man. Anything is good enough for me."

"Then get in the way of some cop and let him give you the collar. Lord, but how I should like to see him make your heels fly!"

Sure of a Kind Welcome.

Farther down the street, but on the opposite side, a woman was playing the piano and singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee." As the words floated out of the open window upon the evening air Mr. Bowser felt sure that his welcome would be kind. He had mounted the steps and was looking into the hall when the music ceased and the singer came out and said:

"Well, sir, what is it?"

"Lady, will you please be kind enough to spare"—

"No, sir! You get right out of here!"

"But, lady, I am not to blame for my"—

"Officer, officer!" called the woman to a policeman that came pacing along at just that moment. "Officer, please remove this lazy and drunken old tramp!"

Mr. Bowser was removed. He was removed with energy. He was removed by the scruff, by the back, by the arms and legs. He was yanked, and he was twisted, and when let go of on the corner and told to "pike" his head swam and his knees wabbled, and the only conversation he could call up was to say to himself:

"By the seventeen bullfrogs of Bull lake, but Mrs. Bowser shall suffer for this! How she shall suffer!"

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

His Regrets.

"It is very easy to say the wrong thing," remarked the moralist.

"That is very true," answered Senator Sorghum.

"I suppose, even cautious as you are, that you regret some of your utterances."

Reason Enough.

"Aw, really, Miss Pert, you rather rude to say you don't like my face. Why don't you?"

"Oh, because."

"Because? There's no reason in that answer."

"Neither is there any in your face."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clog and need a flushing occasionally else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, and stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and anyone makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink. Advise our readers to take a tablespoonful of Jad Salts occasionally, as it is said to prevent kidney trouble.

"CALL BOY" IN BATTLE

Theatrical Youngster Describes His Fight For Revenge

Here is how a former call boy at a London theatre, who has just arrived back wounded from the front, told his story when he arrived back. "It was all right once the curtain was up. It was the all-night wait for the advance which I found most trying, with the incessant thunder of the guns and the shrieking of shells over our heads. It was a most impressive overture to the great drama to come. This was my first appearance, as you may say, in a real battle, and although I knew the part I was to play well enough, after many months' rehearsals in England, I must own that I felt a trifle shaky. Looking back, it seems strange how quickly this feeling passed away when someone cried, 'Up lads, now's your chance.'

"My chum and I had agreed that we would stick together as long as we could, but our plans were quickly upset, for no sooner had we clambered out of our trench than he went down. This seemed to rouse me. I seemed to go mad with rage, and hardly knew what I did, the most extraordinary thing being that I seemed to have no fear of the hail of bullets which rained down upon us—they all seemed part of the play and I was carried along by an overwhelming impulse to get at the enemy and avenge my chum. Like the rest of us, scampered as fast as my legs could carry me, slipping and sliding in the mud, until I at length went sprawling in the slush, which had been churned up by the rain and shells.

"I had just scrambled to my feet again when I heard the order to charge, and, levelling my bayonet, I rushed headlong forward, jumping over bodies and barbed wire as though I was electrified. My experience of battle was short and sweet, for I was bowled over at the first trench. I remember plunging my bayonet into a huge German who confronted me with levelled rifle. Then I was hit on the head with something or other which made me see more fire than I had seen during the whole time I had been out here. Then I must have lost consciousness, for I remember no more until I found myself in the hands of the stretcher bearers who told me that my wound was not very serious.

"I hope to get a 'return engagement' and be in the last act after all, and I have at least avenged my chum."

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS

To turn a jelly out of a mould without breaking it, try rubbing a little of the best olive oil on the shape before pouring in the jelly.

Olives and English walnuts ground together and moistened with mayonnaise make a tasty luncheon sandwich.

A long handled buttonhook is the best thing to use for removing lint or hair that gathers in the waste pipe of bowl or bathtub. Keep one in the bathroom for that purpose.

If a strong brine is thrown over coal it will clean it and cause the coal to burn longer.

Both spinach and onions will prove immensely effective in ridding the body of the waste poisons which cause a poor complexion.

Put a bit of butter on the top of the water in which cauliflower is boiled and it will keep it from turning brown.

To keep linen white which is not in daily use, wrap it up in a well blued towel or a piece of cotton.

Powdered alum added to ordinary stove blacking adds to its brilliancy.

In cold feather, rag rugs are nice in the kitchen, as they can be taken up and washed.

A steak cut from an inch to an inch and a half in thickness is about right.

New tinware will never rust, if greased with a little fresh lard and baked in the oven before it is used.

The cedar chip uses for moths, sprinkled on the range will dispel the bad odor from anything cooking.

In washing, remember that all white garments should be hung in the sun, while colored clothes should be hung in the shade.

If ink is spilled on the carpet or table cover, cover it immediately with salt. Renew the salt as it absorbs the ink.

A paste made of fuller's earth mixed with water and rubbed over the spot will remove all traces of the grease. It is well to make the second application.

Water bugs may be driven away by using eucalyptus oil mixed with flour. Scatter it around in their haunts. They will eat it and never trouble you again.

Put just the least amount of cotton-batten in the tips of children's gloves and it will keep them from wearing out in the fingers.

Care of Goldfish.

A globe of two or three goldfish with a bit of green seaweed makes a pretty centerpiece, and they are inexpensive and easily cared for. They should be placed at some distance from stove and register and not in the rays of the sun. They endure extremes of cold rather than heat. In the bottom of the globe place some small stones, a bit of sand, a little charcoal and a spray of cabomba, a fine water plant. Feed them a little at a time. Once in two weeks remove them to a pail of muddy water for an hour, clean the globe, replace the shells, stones, etc., and refill with clear, cold water.

TOMATO COCKTAIL.

Select firm ripe tomatoes. Put them into a wire basket and plunge into boiling water for a moment; remove the skins. Put aside in the refrigerator until very cold. At serving time cut into cubes, season with salt and pepper and add enough mayonnaise dressing to cover the tomatoes. Serve very cold in tall glasses or small glass cup. Sprinkle a little chopped parsley over the top of each.

Choice Recipes

Sauerkraut in Small Quantities.

Shred fine on a vegetable slicer some white-headed cabbage. Pack in a jar or wooden tub. Sprinkle over a handful of salt, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Put the big outside leaves of the cabbage on top, place a cover on the jar with a weight on it and keep in a warm temperature. In a week or two the sauerkraut will be ready for use. In making it for commercial purposes a number of heads of fresh white cabbage are cut in long shreds placed in layers in barrels or kegs, strewn with salt over each layer, a cupful of salt to each.

Sugar Cookies.

Cream 1 rounded cup of butter, add gradually 2 cups of sugar, then stir in 2 beaten eggs and beat thoroughly. Add 1 cup of rich sour milk in which 1 teaspoon of soda has been dissolved, flavor with grated nutmeg, then add enough flour to make a soft dough. Place on a floured board, roll out, sprinkle with granulated sugar, roll again lightly, cut into shape and bake in a hot oven.

Avoid Grumbling.

Certainly it is commendable to cultivate the patience that never grumbles, never tries to put on a martyr's crown, or gives even a hint to the outside world of the stress that exists.

It is a great mistake and shows a lamentable lack of self-control to air our grievances, to tell our friends and acquaintances of the unpleasant things we have to put up with in our daily life. Talked-over wrongs are always magnified and take on the form of mountains.

How much more notable it is to cultivate the sweet virtue of patience.

Corn Bread.

Two cups of yellow meal, one cup of flour (sifted before measuring), two cups of milk, one-half cup of sugar, two eggs, one-half teaspoon salt and two rounding teaspoons of baking powder. Beat eggs in bowl and add milk; mix all dry ingredients and sift together into the eggs and milk.

Bake the bread about half an hour in a hot oven; lower gas after bread has been in oven about 15 minutes.

To Eliminate Ants.

Here is an excellent method for getting rid of ants. Into a three-ounce bottle of gram alcohol, put a teaspoonful of powdered corrosive sublimate and let it dissolve. With a long handle camel's hair brush paint around objects ants infest. As this is a very poisonous preparation, keep it out of the reach of children and ignorant persons.

JELLY PANCAKES

These can be made in a few minutes and require two cups of flour, two cups of sweet milk, one egg, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a generous pinch of salt. Beat the egg very light, add the milk, and lastly, with just enough beating to mix all together the flour sifted twice with the salt and baking powder. Pour enough of the batter in a hot buttered pan to cover the bottom. When browned, spread with butter and jelly, roll up and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

BUTTERSCOTCH PIE

Brown a piece of butter and to this add a scant cup of brown sugar and four tablespoons of milk. Mix one tablespoon of flour with a little milk. Add the beaten yolk of one egg and stir into the hot butter and milk. Boil until thick. Make a rich crust, fill with the mixture, beat up to a stiff froth the white of an egg, and brown all in the oven.

GINGER NUTS

One and three quarters pounds of syrup, one pound or moist sugar, one pound of butter, 2 3-4 pounds of flour, 1 1-2 ounces of ground ginger, 1 1-2 ounces of allspice, 1 1-2 ounces of coriander seed, sal volatile size of a bean, a little cayenne, flour enough to roll out, but thin, cut with a wineglass, roll between your hands into small balls and pinch.

FRUIT CHEESE SALAD

Six dates, three figs, one-half cup of blanched almonds, one scant cup of cream cheese, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, pinch of salt.

Mix the ingredients to a paste, serve two to each person on a nest of lettuce leaves, with a mayonnaise, to which an equal amount of whipped cream has been added.

PEACH CONSERVE

Three pounds of peaches, 1 fine pineapple cut, 1 quart of canned pie apples, 2 lemons, 2 oranges, 4 pound sugar. Dice the peaches and pines. Cook one half hour together, then add sugar and cook till thick. Then add juice of oranges and lemons and chopped rind of oranges. Can add 1 cup of chopped nuts if preferred.

SUNSHINE CAKE.

Beat the whites of 7 eggs to a foam, add 1-3 teaspoon of cream of tartar and salt and continue beating until very stiff. Stir in lightly 1 cup of fine granulated sugar, add the beaten yolks of five eggs and 1 teaspoon of flavoring, fold in 2-3 cup of sifted flour, turn into an ungreased pan and bake from 40 to 50 minutes.

PURE essence of fine soap in flakes---and most economical of all washing preparations---

GREAT DEPRESSION IN THE HOMES OF THE HUNS

BERNE, Oct. 29.—An acquaintance whose knowledge of general public feeling in Germany I have previously found reliable gives me the following summary of German feeling about the offensive in the west, adding that it refers more to provincial towns and the more populous country districts of West Prussia than to the university centres or big capitals.

The offensive, according to this informant, came unexpectedly to many Germans, because they had awaited it so long that they had begun to think it would not come at all. Its results were at first a bad shock, but from this the public generally has recovered. They have been assured that the offensive was "a colossal failure," and they have been fed with so-called neutral opinion (chiefly from Switzerland and Scandinavia) to the same effect.

The officially prescribed view of the situation is that the attempted offensive was mainly political in the Balkans is said to prove the political object has failed.

Ypres the Cemetery.

German public opinion is all the more attached to excuse for the time being this highly optimistic view of events in the west because for many months the west front has been the one war area on which even private families, anxious for the welfare of fathers, sons, or brothers, have been accustomed to look with complacency.

The explanation that letters and parcels arrive and are acknowledged with extraordinary promptitude, there is plenty of "news" and the men getting the rest are known to be fairly comfortable. The German [illegible] and sweet [illegible] from Ypres to come to [illegible].

OPERATION EXPLAINS HOW CIRCUS GIANTS GOT THEIR GROWTH.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—An operation to regulate the growth of persons afflicted with [illegible] was demonstrated before the Massachusetts Surgical Society in Boston by Dr. Harvey Cushing, of Harvard.

He explained that the disease which results in [illegible] and [illegible] Dr. Cushing said back the use of the patient's [illegible] and [illegible] the nose.

Another Boston surgeon, Dr. R. H. Miller, showed the process of serum treatment for cancer, in which [illegible] and mortality in [illegible] cases was reduced by nine per cent.

Several speakers at the congress declared that modern fashions in clothes caused numerous ailments to women, among them the foot, each [illegible] troubles.

Home Health Club

Cancers.—There is seldom a week that goes by without some one tries to cause a sensation and call especial attention to some certain hospital telling of a new cure for cancer. The sad and disappointing thing about all these loudly trumpeted cures is that we seldom hear anything more about them. When radium was discovered there was known use for it. It was known to cure in very small quantities, and it was said at the tremendous amount of [illegible] It was conceded [illegible] cancer, but I am inclined to think it will [illegible] use of radium no better [illegible] the same good [illegible] as well been accomplished [illegible] sunlight and less expensive [illegible].

For [illegible] years ago an old lady came into my office when I was located at La Porte, Ind. She had a [illegible] on her nose. She said it had troubled her for several years, and that it had been treated by a number of physicians, but had grown steadily worse. I had at hand a one ounce bottle with twenty per cent. of glacial acetic acid in pyroxeline and witch hazel, the directions for which was to apply with a soft cloth night and morning. This she used and also some of the "cell salts" ordered. The sore was entirely healed within 60 days, and it never returned.

The diet, the habits of life, and the mental attitude, as well as inherited tendencies, all have a bearing upon cancer, and such being the case much can be done to prevent the development of the disease in those known to have the inherited tendencies. The researches of the Rockefeller Institute proves that surgery is of no value in the treatment after the cancer is established for 30 days, and as there is perhaps not one case in ten thousand in which a correct diagnosis can be or is made within that time, it is just as well to say that time, it is just as well to say that surgery is useless.

A cancer sore is different from any other kind of sore. The tissues seem to rot and at the same time, in some forms of cancer, a rapid growth of the tissues takes place. The stench is sometimes frightful, unless the proper remedies are used to kill the progress of the disease. My own ideas of cancer are that it is in the nature of a propagating ptomaine, which must be destroyed before a cancer of the malignant type can be cured. It is in the blood the local manifestation appears at the point of least resistance, and a cancerous sore is the result.

A lump in the breast or a sore on the lip, tongue or cheek is not necessarily a cancer, but it what is called by some "the suitable soil," or ptomaine, is in the blood, and such lumps or sores continue to develop and refuse to yield to ordinary means of treatment, then it is time to adopt active means of destroying the ptomaine. This, I believe, can be done, but if the disease progresses too far before treatment is applied, there is but little hope for a cure.

Temperance and wholesome food, properly masticated, are powerful factors in preventing disease. Constipation, indigestion, overeating, undereating, and worry are important factors in the cause of disease.

LOOKING OLD TOO SOON

The Condition of Too Many Women and Too Many Girls

Too many women and too many girls look old long before they should. Their faces become pale and drawn, wrinkles appear and their eyes seek brightness. Can this be wondered at when they so frequently have headaches, backache and a general feeling of wretchedness and weakness. In most cases it is the blood that is to blame. From one cause or another the blood has become thin and poor and it is a fact that anaemia (bloodlessness) more than any other cause, gives women this prematurely aged appearance. It is important that the blood supply of girls and women be regularly replenished. important not only on the score of looks but to retain robust health which is of greater value. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and restore the system shattered by overwork or worry. These pills give a glow of health to pale faces and make tired, weary women and girls feel bright and happy. With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at hand there is no need for any woman or any girl to look ill or feel ill. Mrs. J. McDonald, R. R. No. 1, Orono, Ont., says: "I honestly believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. For a year and a half I suffered from anaemia and did not realize the seriousness of the trouble. I soon became a complete wreck. I got so weak I could hardly walk. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I was simply a bundle of nerves. I had no ambition for work and was unable to do any. I suffered almost constantly from a dull headache and when anything I would start to pick up. I would get so dizzy that I would have to lie down. I was under the doctor's care for a long time but got no better. I was a miserable, discouraged girl. My mother advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before I had used the contents of the second box I felt better. I continued the use of the pills for about two months and was completely restored to health. I am strong, healthy and well and I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Living Peaceably.

It is pretty hard to live peaceably with those we do not find congenial, people who, if not downright rude, at least have rough edges, and do and say the things that set us on edge.

It is the easiest thing in the world under such circumstances, for one to be sarcastic and make matters worse. To all these forced to live in strained conditions, the words of dear old Thomas a'Kempis, will be found useful.

It is no great achievement to associate with good and gentle people, who politely consider us as well as themselves, there we enjoy peace, and love those who agree with us.

"But," says the wise Thomas, "to be able to live peaceably with hard and perverse persons, or with those who are disorderly, or with such as go contrary to us, is a most commendable thing."

Just Suits My Needs Building Up the System

This is the Way Thousands of Women Are Speaking of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"I want to state that I have never taken anything to do me so much good as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food," writes Mrs. Edson Brock, Trenholmville, Que. "and I am never without it in the house. I was so nervous I could not sleep, but now I sleep soundly at nights and wake up feeling refreshed and ready for the day's work. I used the Nerve Food for months and found that it just suit my needs and has built up the system wonderfully. I know it is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that has brought about the great change in my condition and am thankful for it."

"My husband was a great sufferer from itching piles and has been entirely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

We are constantly receiving letters like this in regard to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Everywhere it is beginning because of its great restorative and reconstructive influence on the nervous system. Men and women who are run down in health, tired, nervous and discouraged, find in this great Food Cure the means of nourishing the exhausted system back to health and vigour.

Headaches, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervous irritability, lack of energy, and vigour all tell of nervous exhaustion, and indicate the need of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Instead of affording mere temporary relief by stimulating the nerves, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food builds up the system by supplying the ingredients from which Nature forms new rich blood and revitalizes the wasted nervous system. Put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test when you are feeling tired out and discouraged, fill the body with new rich blood and new nerve force and you will realize again the joy of good health. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S COAT.

By Anabel Worthington.

No coat will ever take the place of the plain box model, and this cut is the foundation of the pretty mode shown in the accompanying illustration. It is single breasted, the edges of the front closing just to one side and the neck open low above the bust and having a shaw collar, which tapers to nothing at the closing. The back of the coat is seamless, and the material is left open a little at the side seams. Little pocket flaps are placed at each side of the lower part of the front.

The sleeve is plain, with a cuff to match the collar in material.

If something a little more fancy be desired this same model can be made without the collar and with the material cut away below the waistline, while the fullness is drawn in a little to the figure by a belt. This changes the character of the coat entirely and with the omission of the collar and cuffs we have a design which can be used for a smart taffeta jacket instead of a serviceable woollen one.

The plain coat is usually made of serge, gabardine, or other woollen fabric, with trimmings of rep silk or of taffetas while the more dressy jacket may be of the same materials or of taffetas or other silk with braid or jet trimming.

The coat pattern, No. 7300, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires, as on figure, 2⅝ yards of 44 inch material, with ⅛ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods to trim.

As in small view the coat will require 1⅝ yards of 44 inch material, with 5⅞ yards of braid.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age if a child.

Price 15 cents or 2 for 25c.

Address The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

BIG BATTLE IS EMMINENT IN BALKANS

Canada's Army To Be Increased To 250000

RUMANIA WILL BE WITH ALLIES

WON BY THE CESSION OF BESSARABIA

Permission For Crossing of Russian Troops Through Her Territory is Expected Hourly---Meanwhile Russians Are Preparing to Land Troops on Bulgarian Black Sea Coast---Big Battle is Expected Shortly at Istil.

KING GEORGE IS BETTER TO-DAY

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Permission by Roumania for the Russian troops to cross her territory to help the Serbians was expected here hourly to-day. Petrograd's reported offer to cede Bessarabia to the Roumanians was believed to have won the latter to the Allies. Whether or not Roumania would lend active military aid was more doubtful, but this, too, was hoped for. Despite the repeated rumours that Greece is also likely to join the Entente Powers at last, no definite intimation to this effect had been received from Athens.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(French Official Communique).—"In the Artois district last night we made progress at Boise En Hache and occupied a section of the enemy's trenches. To the south-east of Souchez the Germans this morning undertook an attack in the vicinity of Hill No. 140. They were repulsed by a curtain of fire from the French machine guns. In the Champagne district fighting is still going on in the vicinity of the position known as La Courtine, with the greatest ferocity. On four different occasions the enemy has endeavoured to recapture from us the trenches we took possession of yesterday. These four counter-attacks all completely failed before the energetic resistance of our troops, who were successful everywhere in retaining the advance made. There has been no other activity on the remainder of the front."

LONDON, Oct. 30.—King George is improving, it was announced officially to-day.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(Special Cable).—Fear of starvation is declared by newspapers here to-day to be producing a very serious situation in Germany. Amsterdam and Copenhagen reports of the food shortage declared to exist already through the Fatherland are prominently displayed in the press. American despatches concerning German peace overtures which are attributed generally to economic pressure, also are given much prominence. The newspapers are unanimous that the Allies should ignore all Teutonic peace suggestions, despite the admitted gravity of the Balkan situation. The Cavell incident has had a wonderfully stimulating effect on enlistments, as well as hardening the determination to continue the fighting regardless of cost. Careful enquiries, furthermore, have failed to disclose any peace sentiment at present in any responsible British quarters.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Sympathy with the Royal Family on account of King George's fall from his horse was expressed to Queen Mary by General Joffre, the French Commander-in-Chief, a caller at Buckingham Palace to-day. Later the General resumed consultation with Lord Kitchener at the War Office.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A fierce Austro-German drive to the southwestward from Batocina, Serbia, was reported in Athens messages today. The Teutonic forces were believed to be aiming at Kragujevac, where the Serbs have their arsenal. Batocina and Kragujevac are about ten miles apart.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—J. P. Morgan, operated on for appendicitis yesterday, was "progressing nicely" to-day, it was stated at his office.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 30.—Large contingents of Russian troops have set sail from the Black Sea ports of Odessa and Sebastopol for the Bulgarian coast. A despatch, telegraphed to the Tageblatt from Bucharest says that the transports are convoyed by a strong squadron. The recent attack by Russian warships on the Bulgarian port of Varna, according to this account, was undertaken in preparation for an attempt to land troops.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The Allan liner Hesperian was torpedoed and not sunk by a mine, as contended by Germany, according to the report submitted to-day by the Navy Department to Secretary of State Lansing.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 30.—The Turkish War Office announced a terrific bombardment by the Allies of the Turkish trenches at Gallipoli, assisted by fire from monitors. Four thousand shells were fired by the Anglo-French troops, which caused many Turkish trenches to cave in.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Between October 11th and 23rd, twenty German ships were sunk by British submarines in the Baltic, says the Liverpool Post to-day.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—The success or failure of the Bulgarian operations in Southern Serbia depends on the outcome of the battle reported imminent at or near Istib, between the Bulgarian forces and the Combined Serbs and French. The French capture of Strumnitza is believed only an incident of the Gallic sweep northward from Salonika, with a view to clearing Southern Serbia of Bulgarians and proceeding to the Serbs' assistance against the Austro-Germans. Still further north, the Bulgars are concentrated along the line extending northeastward from Vales, which they recaptured from the Serbs, to resist this northern advance.

WAS 94 YEARS OF AGE

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—A cablegram from Sir Geo. Perley to Premier Borden to-day announces the death of Sir Chas. Tupper.

The Right Hon. Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., G.C.M.G., C.B., P.C., D.C.L., was born at Amherst, N.S., July 2, 1891. He was the son of Rev. Charles Tupper, D.D. He first entered the Nova Scotia Assembly for Cumberland in 1855, remaining until Confederation, when he was returned to the House of Commons for Cumberland, in which he sat until May 24, 1884. He was re-elected in 1887, remaining in Parliament until 1900. He was a delegate to England on public business from the Nova Scotia Government, 1858 and 1865, and from the Dominion Government in 1868. He was Minister of Inland Revenue from 1872-1873, Minister of Customs 1873, Minister of Public Works 1878, Minister of Railways and Canals 1879-1884 and was appointed High Commissioner for Canada, London, England, in 1884. He re-entered the Cabinet as Minister of Finance, 1887-1888. He was then re-appointed High Commissioner. He was Secretary of State and leader of the House of Commons, Bowell Ministry, and upon Sir M. Bowell's resignation he was called upon to form an administration, assuming the position of Premier. The Government was defeated in 1896, and he was then leader of the Opposition until 1900. He was summoned to the Imperial Privy Council and sworn in 1906.

THINGS TO SEND THE SOLDIERS

MAUD ALLAN AT THE EMPIRE

Maud Allan, the world renowned dancer, makes her first appearance in moving pictures as the star in "The Rug Maker's Daughter," a stirring romance of the American-Turkish rug trade.

She will appear at the Empire Theatre in motion pictures on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

PROCEEDS WERE NEARLY $200

The net proceeds of the Nellie McClung lecture, given under the auspices of the Women Teachers' Guild, amounted to nearly $200. The women teachers have organized for patriotic work this winter, and, realizing the need of money for supplies, brought Mrs. McClung to the city. So urgent was the demand for tickets, that the seating capacity of the Collegiate Hall was found to be insufficient, and the trustees of George Street Methodist Church generously offered the use of their church. The gratitude of the Guild is hereby tendered the pastor and trustees of the church; also Mr. Renwick, the soloists and the many others whose kind co-operation made the lecture such a signal success.

Mrs. McClung, whose power in the West can now be readily understood, is a gifted speaker, and it is to be hoped that the citizens of Peterborough may soon have another opportunity of hearing her.

CANADIAN FORCES TO BE INCREASED TO 250,000 MEN

Order-in-Council Passed For the Enlistment of an Additional 100,000 Men---178,000 Have Already Enlisted---New Members for the 93rd Band---To-day's Military News

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—One hundred thousand more men for overseas service are to be called in Canada.

Announcement was made after tonight's Cabinet Council that, following the appeal issued recently by the King, it had been decided to take this step, thereby increasing the Canadian forces to a quarter of a million.

The official statement issued by the Prime Minister is as follows: "The Government received through H.R.H. the Governor-General on the 25th inst. a cable message from the Secretary of State for the Colonies setting forth the recent appeal made by His Majesty the King for an increase in the forces of the Empire, which are required to secure victory and enduring peace. Since that date the Government have secured from the various camps and enlistment depots in Canada a statement of the number of men already enlisted and under training in this country, as well as complete information respecting the number despatched overseas.

"The estimate based on this information is as follows: Forces despatched overseas, including small garrisons at Bermuda and St. Lucia, 101,500; under training and on guard and outpost duty in Canada, 71,500; total, 173,000

"The forces actually authorized up to the 8th of July last were 150,000 men. Having regard to the appeal issued by His Majesty and taking into consideration the necessities of the war, the Government have concluded to increase the authorized forces by 100,000 men. Accordingly an Order-in-Council has been passed increasing the authorized Canadian forces for the purpose of the war to 250,000. Steps will be taken in the immediate future to enlist the additional number of men required to bring the Canadian forces up to the number thus fixed."

The band of the 93rd wish to express their thanks to Capt. Bygott of Lakefield and Pte. Joe Lemay of the 93rd military police for their efforts in preparing for last night's concert at Lakefield. Thanks are also due to Messrs Spenceley, Oke and Banks, who provided motor transport for the members of the band

Lieut. Stewart and Sergt. Major Miller of the 93rd were in attendance at the band concert in Lakefield last night

Sergt. W. Lemay of No. 4 platoon is spending a couple of days at his home in Lakefield.

Quite a number of the 93rd Battalion are on the sick list as a result of vaccination. Some are unable to drill at all and others have to pare up the physical exercise.

To-day is a red letter day for Peterborough's soldiers. The men of the 93rd Battalion were paid this morning—hence the happy smiles this afternoon.

To-day the carpenters are busy erecting tables and benches in the main hall of the armouries which will be used for a dining hall. Rapid progress is being made in this work. Mr. G. A Brenton, who has the plumbing contract is also making great headway with his end of the work.

Congratulations are due Pte. Angus Sheppard of the 93rd Battalion who is on duty at the recruiting headquarters and who joined the ranks of the benedicts last night.

The band of the 93rd Battalion received two valuable men this morning in the person of Bandsmen Waln and Keal of the Salvation Army Band, Hamilton, who passed the medical examination successfully and who will report for duty in a week. One is a solo cornetist and the other a bass player, and one of the two is a pianist as well, who will fill a gap in the battalion orchestra. The two musicians met some of the Peterborough bandsmen during the visit of the latter to Toronto recently with the result that they decided to enlist with the band of the 93rd

Barrefield War Camp, Oct. 29.—The camp is on the eve of November, and it now looks as though it would be fully two weeks before the men in camp will "fold their tents like the Arabs and silently steal away." The places to which the troops are to be distributed are making all haste in the work of preparation, but the contractors have several days' hard work before them yet before they will have things ready for the soldiers from Barrefield camp who are going to outside places. There is no word yet as to the destination of the 59th Battalion, and it is said that unless they go directly overseas, they may be divided between Brockville and Kingston, with the chances all in favour of Kingston. Mayor Sutherland said last night that he would take care of all the troops the militia department would give the City of Kingston, and the city was prepared to give the 59th Battalion one of the best places in this old military centre. To give Kingston the 59th Battalion is only keeping a promise when the battalion was first organized

The proceeds of last night's concert at Lakefield amounted to $50.10. The money will be devoted to the band fund

The 93rd band wish to acknowledge the gift of an overture "Poet and Peasant" from Mr. J. H. Renwick, a warm friend of the band

The 93rd Battalion will attend divine service at St. Paul's Presbyterian church to-morrow morning.

MR. J. J. HARTLEY IS IN THE FIELD

Despite rumours to the contrary, Mr. J. J. Hartley is still in the field as a candidate for the Mayoralty vacancy that will mark the retirement of Mayor Buller at the end of the present year. So far only two candidates have declared their intention of entering the field. They are Ald. G. W. Green and Mr. J. J. Hartley. The latter has had previous experience in the Municipal Council and will no doubt receive a large measure of support.

Enemy Will Find Only a Wall of Steel

In the Balkans as in the Other Theatres of War—Germany Will Finally Meet Defeat and Disaster Says T. P. O'Connor.

THE BALKAN SITUATION

(Copyright, 1915, Central News.)
BY T. P. O'CONNOR.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—This has been the most confusing week since the beginning of the war. While there is a certainty of tremendous events and, perhaps, strange changes, nobody knows what shape these portentous things will ultimately take.

What will happen in the new battle front in the East? Will the defeat of Serbia be the end or but the opening of a new chapter in a startling new volume which will extend the area of the war?

There is no doubt whatever there will be initial gains for Germany on this front, as on all others, but she will find herself in the end against a wall of steel. For she cannot in the Balkans, any more than anywhere else, overcome finally the crushing superiority of men and munitions combined against her.

Before that time comes we have to face plenty of anxious and even some humiliating hours. Though the situation is confused, this is my forecast:

WILL BE THE BEGINNING.

The defeat of Serbia will not be the end, but the beginning. Britain, France, Russia and Italy now are convinced, equally, that it is their business to meet the new German move in the Balkans with forces so powerful as to compel the still vacillating neutrals to throw in their lot with them, and thus to create a movement so overwhelming against Germany as to make this last enterprise the beginning of her end, not her triumph.

As at the beginning of the war we face splendidly organized preparedness by our enemies, and mysterious unpreparedness by ourselves and our Allies. Will there be a battle from London to Cairo and Calcutta that will lock the fighting empires in a deadlier and more crushing and conclusive struggle than any yet? At home will there be new political developments, with new combinations and rearrangements of the political forces and the rise and fall of many men?

MAY HAVE TO WAIT WEEKS

I can only forecast dimly a future that remains confused. We do not expect news for some days or weeks, perhaps months, but we shall go on pouring still incalculable forces against the enemy whose limited resources every day more and more exhausts.

Amid all the changes, perturbations in political circles are confined to London, and even in London to certain groups of journals. The determination of the British people to go on to the bitter end becomes more and more inflexible. The splendid success of Lord Derby's recruiting campaign reveals the resources and universal resolution of the British people.

Whether the new international developments and crises impossible to say, but the situation is considered easier. The campaign against Mr. Asquith is losing strength. Conscription has ceased, for the moment, to be possible. For that reason it ceases also to make that hot division of opinion which threatened last week the disruption of the ministry.

I do not profess to know at all the complicated aims of the negotiations in the Balkans. But some of us who have kept in touch with the representatives in London of the Greek and Serb populations were warned for months that there never can be at least expectation of our getting to the end of Bulgaria. The breakdown of all our

BRUTALITIES PRACTISED ON THE HUN SOLDIERS

Diary of German Private, Former Professor of University, Tells of Inhuman Treatment By The German Officers

LIVE LIKE BEASTS

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Times publishes this morning extracts taken from the diary of Private Becker, of the 6th Company, or the 6th company of the Ersatz battalion of the third foot guards of the Landstrum, professor of Latin at the gymnasium of Bonn. The writer throughout makes complaints of brutalities practiced by German officers on soldiers. On August 7, when on the Russian front, Becker wrote:

Lives Like Beast.

"March of 17 to 48 miles. Everywhere graves, bodies of horses unburied or only half covered, flies, death. One lives like a beast in the filth.

"Disgusting conduct of officers. Officers divide presents from home among themselves. They take away tent canvas from the men and have fine tents put up for themselves in which to wrap themselves up comfortably. They go on a spree, steal wine and bread out of waggons, and all the while they are drawing big rations."

Morale Low.

On Aug. 9 Becker wrote: "We are now three miles from the front. The third company has come back. All the men I knew in it were either wounded or killed. They are horribly tired and their morale is low."

Aug. 10: "Drill night, under canvas. It is sad in itself, but the endless threats of punishments for the smallest blunders make life unbearable. In the presence of the haughty and independent attitude of the non-commissioned officers, the men seem like mere ciphers."

Fed Up With War.

Aug. 13: "Everybody is fed up with the war, and especially with the whole of the military regime. It was five o'clock in the afternoon before we got anything to eat, for we had to march past before Prinz Eitel Friedrich. The prince looked well and seemed in good spirits. He might almost have been having a treat

Fired on His Own Men.

Aug. 14: "In action. Awful hell. The regiment lost about 170 men. It is stupid to attack so strong a position, muttered Captain B. All the same, it did not prevent him from firing on his own men."

Worse Than Criminals.

August 15: "In pursuit of Russians. Worn out by excitement and hunger. Exuberant cheerfulness of the officers. Colonel, major, captain laugh boisterously, their faces beaming and shining with fat, for us, hardships, dirt and hunger. We are treated like criminals and worse. All of a sudden, for nothing, one is threatened with a beating. The commissioned ranks, from Major Sulfmeyer down, set the example. Everybody is discouraged. Men of peaceful nature are crushed, the passionate desire for peace amounting to physical pain."

Grotesque Sight.

Aug. 25: "Lieut. Reinicke is never there when the firing is going on. When the danger is over he rushes impetuously to the front. The whole company laughs at it. He is a grotesque sight."

Officer Stays Behind.

Aug. 29: "As soon as the attack opened, the officer commanding the company, Lieut. Reinicke, stayed behind, and nothing more was seen of him. Not only so, but the section of leaders and non-commissioned officers stayed behind the section and groups advanced without leaders. Indescribable jumble. We had heavy losses, but one no longer notices them."

Triumph of Vile Regime.

Sept. 21, when the diarist was transferred to the French front, he wrote: "Lieut. Reinicke has got the iron cross. It is the triumph of this vile regime of masters and slaves. As a result of our marches in Poland,

SATURDAY, OCT. 30, 1915

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

The death of Sir Charles Tupper, removes one of the most distinguished Canadians, and one of the most striking figures in Canadian history. A native of Nova Scotia, where he was born ninety-four years and four months ago, he shared the distinction of intellectual ability and oratory, that attaches to the people of the Maritime Provinces. For the past sixty years Sir Charles Tupper has been a factor and force in the public life of Canada. He has served his native land and the Empire in numerous capacities, in both the Provincial and Dominion arena of activity. He was a strong partizan, and was noted for giving and taking hard knocks in political strife; but he was withal a nobly patriotic figure. With all his partizanship, he wrought hard and well for the good of his country and the Empire. He was one of the fathers of Confederation, though he refused office in the first coalition cabinet. When the history of Canada for the past half century is written, it will be found that Sir Charles Tupper was very practically associated in interest and action with its most important features. He has several times visited Peterborough, and many will remember the trenchant, if a trifle verbose, eloquence ,with which he dealt with political subjects. In 1882, as Minister of Railways and Canals, he visited Peterborough and district to personally and officially look into the merits of the Trent Canal; and as a slowly maturing result of his visit, the construction of the Burleigh Locks was undertaken, and another link supplied in a work whose progress was contemporaneous with Sir Charles Tupper's long life, and whose completion almost synchronized with his death.

CANADA'S GOOD WORK.

General Sir Sam Hughes, is authority for a statement which does splendid credit to the Canadian spirit of devation to the Empire and to the cause of humanity as involved in this war. Canada, he says, has already under arms, 200,000 of the best soldiers in uniform, and by the spring 50,000 will be added to this number. Thus Canada of her own free will, without any other compulsion than the sense of duty, has an army under the colours three times greater than the forces Wellington had at Waterloo. Canada's army numbers considerably more than the whole United States regular army and the "National Guard" combined. Canada has done and is doing well, throughout every province—in participating in a fight that she is prepared to help wage till victory comes, and a permanent and true basis of peace is prepared. Not only are Canadian soldiers fighting as soldiers — and often as heroes—but nearly every member of our civil population is doing its duty and making its sacrifices. The whole nation is working at war or in war interests, and not only in that way alone. It is combining patriotism and production in a very practical way; doing more than in times of peace. We had this year a greater breadth of grain sown and reaped a bigger harvest than ever before in the history of the country. Our soldiers make us proud of Canada; but we, ourselves, by our collective activities, in the interests of the highest patriotism make ourselves proud of ourselves.

POSTAL SERVICE.

The New York Merchants' Association has summarized the results of investigation in the statement that the railways of the United States are carrying the mails of Uncle Sam at a loss of eleven million dollars per year. This statement is borne out by other investigations, and the conclusion is inevitable that the present rate of railway payments is an important factor in the decreased earnings of the railway lines; and the inference is that by failure to earn sufficent to meet operating expenses, provide for maintenance, and a fair profit on investment, their transportation efficiency is decreased. This will be prejudicial to the producing, manufacturing and distributing classes. In this event the postal service, assumed to be an important agent in commercial prosperity, becomes a detriment. These things have an interest to Canadians; though in absence of definite information as to whether or not our railways are underpaid for mails carriage, definite conclusions cannot be drawn. That Canadian railways are not underpaid seems to be deducible from the fact that the expenditure for postal service in Canada is greatly outstripping revenue. The cost of administering the post office department in Canada has doubled in the short space of four years. In 1911 the expenditure was $7,954,222. In 1914 the amount voted for post office expenditure is $14,946,030. In 1911 the revenue was $9,146,952, so that in that year there was an excess of revenue—post office surplus—over expenditure of $1,192,730. Within four years this surplus has been wiped out, and a deficit incurred, notwithstanding a greatly increased revenue, the deficit last year being $134,157, and the probable deficit for the present year is the enormous sum of nearly two millions—$1,909,366—a gap between revenue and expenditure in four years of about three millions. This increase in expenditure would indicate that the railways, instead of being underpaid for postal transportation, are greatly overpaid. If not, there is something of inexcusable extravagance in the administration of the post office department, the 100 per cent increase not being accounted for by increased postal facilities. Kural mail delivery, and parcel post may account for some increase of expenditure, but not for all. If these services account for the duplication of expenditure, in the short space of four years, we are paying pretty dearly for them, and the possibility of their continuance, especially of the experimental enterprise of parcel post, seems to be problematical. If Canadian railways are underpaid as in the United States, the tremendous increase of post office expenditure is still more inexplicable, except on the ground of exceptional inefficiency, or exceptional extravagance.

PATRIOTIC GENEROSITY.

Canada has been doing a good deal in the present big fight. She has sent soldiers by thousands to the fighting line. That, however, is not the extent of her active participation. Aside from the thousands, if not millions of dollars, contributed and spent in various ways by local organizations, for Red Cross purposes, in the supply of hospital requirements, and in comforts for the soldiers, a work that is engaging millions of Canadian women day and night almost; and in spite of the hundreds of thousands conhributed for other simliar purposes, Canada's contribution to the patriotic fund has been splendid. During the first year of the war, every man, woman and child in the Dominion contributed seventy cents to the patriotic fund —towards the support of soldiers' families. That is, the total contribution of $5,350,000 represented an average of 70 cents for every man, woman and child of our population. This sum has been ample for the requirements of the first year, but a considerably larger amount will be needed next year. An increase of about two millions, or a total of 7½ million dollars will be needed for this purpose, for the coming year, or a per capita increase to $1 per head.

It is interesting to note the distribution of patriotic fund generosity by provinces. While the average rate of donation for the Dominion was seventy cents per head, the percentage of the provinces greatly varies. The Maritime Provinces gave 36 cents per head, while Quebec provided 80 cents per head, and Ontario 68 cents. Manitoba splendidly headed the list with a contribution of $1.42 per head. If all the provinces had done as well last year's patriotic fund contributions would have been doubled — would have amounted to $10,600,000 instead of $5,350,000. We have more soldiers in the field now, and more wives and mothers and children to be provided for. It is estimated that the patriotic fund requirements for the year beginning Sept. 1st, 1915, will be $7,500,000, or an average for the Dominion of one dollar per head.

When we come to the administration of last year's fund, we find the critics silenced and our governments, dominion, provincial and municipal, shown what can be done by effective organization and business management, in the face of considerable difficulties. The management has not only spent the money; it had to expend a good deal of energy and maintain a good deal of vigilance in safeguarding the fund against the unduly greedy and the unscrupulous. It is asserted that "but for the thorough work of the head office and branches, many thousands of dollars would have been given to persons not entitled to assistance." An expenditure for distribution of so large an amount as five and a half millions, of only $70,000, the greater part of which was covered by bank interest, is a good record, and should inspire great confidence in the administration of the Patriotic Fund, and be a guarantee of future efficiency of administration. Taking into account, the amount gained by bank interest, the actual impairment of the Patriotic Fund by expenditure for administration, amounted to only 65 cents for every hundred dollars.

GERMAN PEACE TALK SHOWS THEY ARE GETTING ENOUGH WAR

The British censor may be stupid, but he has at least occasional gleams of sense. It was in one of them that he permitted the long extracts from German newspapers to be published in England and cabled to this country a few days ago. Those were the first German paeans over the beginning of the Balkan campaign; and their tone must have helped stiffen English determination and ease the threatened cabinet crisis. Equally sensible was it to let through the long series of quotations from the German press, which the Sun printed this morning. They are not, perhaps, of great direct value, but they are of high interest as giving us an indirect light upon the state of mind of the German people.

Take first, the fact that a general order has gone forth from Berlin to the press and public not to discuss the terms of peace. This is vouched for by the Frankfurter Zeitung, which admits that it may rouse a certain degree of apprehension "among laymen and the less well-informed," but adds that the reason for it will be understood by "anybody who contemplates the present politico-military situation, and the present state of feeling in the camps of our enemies."

These words may be thought rather Orphic, but one thing is plain; the German newspapers and the German people would not be commanded to refrain from discussing peace unless they were thinking a vast deal about it. That they are, and that the desire for an end of the war has mounted in Germany, until it has become almost a passionate longing, there is plenty of evidence. The thing was explicitly testified to only a few days back by Maximilian Harden. Indeed, one would scarcely need testimony to make it certain. The minds of Germans are not so different from those of other races.

The terrible losses which Germany has suffered in the war are known and felt throughout the Empire. The destruction of German foreign trade, the sterilization of her splendid mercantile marine, the dislocation of her industries, are no secrets. Upon the intellect and heart of Germans they cannot but make much the same impression that they would upon any other people. The prospect of another winter campaign must appall them to at least as great an extent as it does the French or the English. Human nature being what it is the endurance of flesh and blood being limited as it is, it is antecedently impossible that the thoughts of German men and women should not be turning to hopes of peace. Now we have, as strong confirmation, the order of the military authorities that peace is not to be publicly discussed. There would be no reason for posting such a "verboten" unless the people were strongly inclined to do the thing forbidden.

Doubtless, the time has not yet come for open negotiations. So far, only "feelers" have been put forth. One of them appears to have been the recent appeal of the Pope to the King of Belgium. That might have led to a sounding of official German sentiment, had not Albert returned to stark negative. But the day will come when, directly or indirectly, the United States or some other neutral nation or nations will be given to understand that proposals of mediation will be welcome. There are limits to everything. Maximilian Harden speaks with a kind of horror of the possibility that Germany's enemies might resolve to continue the war until she was exhausted. But the exhaustion point is certain to be reached some day, and then peace will be inevitable.—New York Evening Post.

Why Not Tax War Profits As Well As Impose Other War Taxes?

The President of the Canadian Car & Foundry Company, in an official statement to the shareholders, announces that the company's business during the year which will end on September 30, 1916, should be in excess of $150,000,000 as compared with $27,000,000, the best previous year in the company's business. This amazing increase of output is anticipated, although the company's railway equipment business is less than in former years. The record of this corporation, which has large orders from the Russian Government, indicates the need for immediate action by the Minister of Finance in the direction of taxing war profits. The volume of business already brought to Canada as a direct result of the war cannot be less than five hundred million dollars, and may run up even as high as three-quarters of a billion. For the most part it is highly profitable, and as the supplies are shipped to the order of the British, French, and Russian Governments, there is no fear that the profits be eaten up by bad debts.

The Globe has received information, the authenticity of which it cannot question, that in many of these army contracts the profits range from twenty-five to fifty per cent. of the gross earnings, and that some shell contracts in particular have been awarded at prices which give the proprietors of the factories more than a half of all the money paid for the munitions Only an accountant, with the authority of the Government behind him, could tell if these assertions are true, for it goes without saying that few of the public companies will disclose at once all their war profits. Some part, by the hocus pocus of bookkeeping, will be held in reserve against the proverbial rainy day, which, after the warspending is over, and when the war-paying begins, may prove a deluge.

Canada needs revenue, and war profits should provide this year at least ten million dollars towards the cost of Canada's army. In Great Britain the Chancellor of the Exchequer expects that the Treasury will receive during 1916 payment will be made by industrial concerns after the limitation of profits by Government authority. It does not mean that the makers of war supplies are to be permitted to charge excessive rates and then return to the public Treasury some small part of the excess. The average profits of the three years before the outbreak of war will be taken as the basis of calculation, and the companies will be allowed five per cent. above the average as legitimate profit on their capital as at April 5, 1914. Thus if a company had $100,000 invested in its plant at that time earning an average profit of 6 per cent., the shareholders would be allowed 11 per cent. on $100,000 as a reasonable profit. A very large part of the excess above this must be returned to the State.

Mr. White in taxing war profits, will be following a sound British precedent. It is not fitting that the owners of the factories adapted to the making of war supplies should be permitted to make great fortunes while the bulk of the people pay in greatly increased taxation, and many in blood and tears. War profits in Canada should be taxed. An immediate announcement that they will be levied upon would do much to end gambling in war stocks.—The Globe.

Brutalities Practised, etc.

many of us have sore feet. Every day the color-sergeant checks some of the lame men, threatens them, and puts them on extra fatigue and even those who have swollen feet, of which the battalion doctor has advised them to be careful, are made to march unnessantly. And if they flinch they are threatened with extra drill in the afternoon."

SUNDAY SCHOOL RAISED $10

At the home of Mrs. John Allin, Sherbrooke street last night, Miss Grace Allin's Sunday School class held full away on behalf of Red Cross funds. Tables were daintily set out with a tempting display of cakes and candy. Busy little saleladies, gaily attired, flitted hither and thither, with the result that the funds of the Red Cross have benefitted to the extent of about $10.00.

A musical programme was presented by several friends, which added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Many Soldiers Are Rejected From The Training Camps

Recent returns from the Militia Department show extensive rejections of recruits throughout Canada. On Thursday, October 28th, the total was almost 150, on Wednesday 140, on Tuesday, 160, on Monday, 160; on Saturday, 90. This is a total of 640 for five days, and indicates one of the reasons for the continuous appeals for men. Most of these 640 men were turned back on account of physical unfitness some weakness that escaped the medical examiners developed under the rigors of soldiering, a few deserted, some others were marked as undesirable. The figures awaken thoughts about the probable causes of the lack of endurance in so many young Canadians who appeared physically fit.

NO CARS ON BOUNDARY ROAD THIS YEAR

Mr W. G Ferguson of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, states that a service will be run through the winter on Charlotte Street west. It has been suspended recently while construction work was being completed and residents of that vicinity have been wondering when the cars would be returned to this street. Mr Ferguson stated that the Company had intended to lay rails on the Boundary Road to Patterson street, but the city had not graded it and the Company was thus held up. City Engineer Parnell stated that the city was not informed of the Street Railway's plans until about a month ago, at a time when they had expended the most of their appropriation. Had they received definite word from the Company at an earlier date the city would have provided for the grading work.

Stories of Old London at The Present Time--Gun Belching From St. Paul's Just a Romance

LONDON, Oct. 29.—About that battery—the battery of which the Zeppelin commander Mathy told Mr von Wiegand. It lurked in the shadow of St. Paul's, he said. He could see it from there—from four or five thousand feet in the air on a dark night. It was belching shrapnel at him and his craft, hiding the while behind a church which he had been told not to destroy.

Very good, Mathy. I have been down there looking for that battery. I approached the location very carefully that the battery might not take to its heels. I purposely forgot that I was in the shadow of St. Paul's myself while the Zeppelin bombs were tumbling upon "the London district" that night. I put it out of my mind and went to search earnestly for that battery.

Twice I circled St. Paul's. I saw no battery. For twenty minutes I scanned closely the niches and crevices of the time blackened cathedral. There was no battery concealed among them. I widened the circle, and conscientiously examined the vicinity for blocks and blocks around. And I do not believe any battery is there. And nothing can convince me that a battery was there on that fateful evening.

There is a woeful scarcity of snake-charmers in London. A pretty pass the world has come to when the more dangerous art of munition making so depletes the snake charmers' ranks that the land is full of snakes vainly pleading to be charmed.

Yet that is the situation, take it from Louis Casson, a prominent theatrical agent of St. Martin's Court. In despair Mr. Casson sits in his office racking his brain for an inspiration that will bring to him a snake charmer or lead him to the lady. He has a gang of snakes which he wants to send out in his revival of "Kismet," but after days of weary waiting and hopeless advertising he has concluded that snake charming is out of fashion.

He mourns the good old days, when no music hall show was complete without its snake-charmer and her "poisonous" reptiles. A few months ago, he tells me, he could have put his hand on a first-class snake-charmer, but her snakes died and she took her life in her hands, and went into a munition factory to work for Lloyd George.

It's a happy life, snake-charming, Mr. Casson says. Any girl can do it. All that is necessary is not to be afraid of the animals, and just give Mr. Casson a good, smart girl who isn't, and he will teach her in no time how to charm the deadliest boa or copperhead that ever lived.

London is in the throes of a moral spasm. The idea of sacrifice seems to have got a sited grip on everybody. Stoically they have met the rapid-fire mandates issued during the last twelve months.

Without squirming they submitted to the muffler which was put on their gaiety through the mediums of the early closing hours and the darkening of the streets.

The terrific budget caused little more than a ripple—so far as tangible evidence showed. The no-treating rule, which must of needs be damning to sociability, is apparently accepted in a matter-of-fact manner.

But underneath the surface—if my judgment be true—there runs a strong eddy which is hard to describe. "Yes," they say, when the gaunt hand of officialdom hits them a new wallop, "it's a bit tough, but we must expect these things when we are at war."

The remark usually ends in a little sigh of self-commiseration. If put in to words it might read: "Yes, we make these sacrifices cheerfully. But we want you and the world to know that they are sacrifices. We want to impress upon you that we are giving up a whole lot. In short, we are heroes—the original sacrificing kids."

And now that the authorities have done about everything that could be done to make life in London miserable, they are going after the "night clubs." Night clubs are the only bright spots remaining to the festively inclined. There are good night clubs and bad night clubs.

Some of them obey the law and others do not. Some purvey strong beverages after ten o'clock and are frequented by questionable characters. Others close the bar at the appointed hour and their patrons appear content with a good dance floor and equally good music for several hours after their supply of drink is cut off.

DESTROYS GERMAN CAPTIVE BALLOON

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Sergeant Aviator "G. 4," who recently destroyed a German captive balloon and an aeroplane on one trip, describes his double exploit in a letter received by friends at Fontenoy-le-Comte, where he was a high school teacher.

"It was our fourth attempt," writes the aviator, "to attack a famous balloon which was so well guarded that we never were able to get near it. When we got over the Boche lines I saw our balloon emerging from a sea of clouds fifteen miles away. Being windy, we made a wide detour so as to get to windward and beat down upon it from its own lines, whence it was certain not to expect an attack.

"On the way, however, we came upon a stunted aeroplane which, being beneath us, did not appear to see us. I signalled our pilot. He pushed his engine to thirteen hundred revolutions and dropped vertically upon the enemy. My position was precarious, my body banging out over space, clinging to a strut with the left hand, my right hand grasping the butt of a machine gun.

"At three hundred and fifty yards I opened fire. Instantly the Boche swerved and tried to flee, but he got across us and I gave him a broadside. He pitched downward into the clouds.

"We were then within three miles of the balloon. We advanced crabwise, jumping from one cloud to another. The balloon didn't budge. We got close up. I gave the run and we swooped upon him. When three hundred yards away I opened with the second gun.

"In twelve second it was all over. I leaned over and could see the balloon half deflated lying on the trees. The German batteries saw nothing and did not fire on us.

"We waltzed home delirious with joy, photographing each other on the way."

GERMANS WOO POLES

Archbishop Denounces Kindness After Brutality—Professors Fail

There is a general feeling of disappointment at the lack of enthusiasm for Germany shown by the population of Russian Poland, writes a correspondent. Immediately after the capture of Warsaw the German press contained long articles from the special correspondents who at the Kaiser's invitation had accompanied the victorious German troops into Warsaw, describing how the Poles generally greeted the Germans as liberators and rejoiced that the long Russian rule of oppression had come to an end and that the resurrection of the old kingdom of Poland was merely a question of time. Later however, the news which comes to Berlin from Warsaw is not very cheering. The population is very calm and admittedly behaves very well, but the people keep aloof from the Germans and all attempts to bring about more cordial relations have failed.

Recently Prince Leopold sent for the Archbishop of Warsaw, Monseigneur Kakovsky, and asked him as a last attempt to order the priests all over Poland to encourage the members of their congregations to show more friendly feelings towards the Germans, who, he assured him had no higher desire than to safeguard the interests of the Catholic church and the welfare of Poland. Greatly to his surprise the Archbishop absolutely refused to do so and when asked his reasons declared that his countrymen distrusted the Germans and suspected them of planning to Germanize the country.

"You re-opened our old university here shortly after your arrival and we should have greeted the event with joy if you had appointed Polish professors, but in spite of this you imported a number of German professors who are doing nothing but make propaganda for Germany and who are now, as Your Royal Highness is well aware, lecturing to empty benches. You took possession of the well-equipped laboratories of our university to make poison gas in them, and the Polish people strongly condemn the use of inhumane means of warfare.

"You tried to force our workingmen to work in your munition factories and when they refused you sent them to Germany, leaving their wives and children behind to shift for themselves. These things have aroused much ill-feeling against the Germans here, and the people of my diocese would lose all faith in me, were to ask them to show a feeling of friendliness towards your country men which could not be sincere."

Arms Machines For The Enemy

Germany Buys Old Equipment from Neutrals, Which Import New.

In spite of the efforts of England and her Allies to prevent Germany from obtaining war material in this country, large quantities of metal-working machinery, such as could be used in the manufacture of arms and munitions, have been shipped from New York and other American ports with Germany as the ultimate destination, according to F. P. Alford, editor of "The American Machinist."

Engineers from abroad told me recently that Germany had been procuring a great deal of nominally old metal-working machinery from the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland," Mr. Alford said. "The reports prompted us to have a statistician compare the reported shipments of such machinery from this country to the Scandinavian countries for this and preceding years, and many of the statistics are already in. These show that during the fiscal year ended last June these countries purchased hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of such machinery in excess of their normal purchases in America.

"According to the engineers from abroad, the German agents buy up the old machinery in the shops of Sweden and Switzerland, and have the machinery in the original plants until it can be replaced with new machinery from America or elsewhere. Through this ruse they prevent the Allies from being able to prove that the new movement is not actually intended simply to replace the old machines. It is also said by the engineers that some of the new machinery is smuggled into Germany with the old. Nine-tenths of the machinery from America has been shipped from New York."

Mr. Alford said that there was much speculation among war supply agents and machine manufacturers as the result of a sudden increase in the quantity of war supplies purchased by Spain. He learned from foreign agents that within the last few weeks several representatives of the Spanish Government had inquired where they could procure huge quantities of rifles and other small arms. These arms were formerly made in Belgium for the Spanish.

"One Spanish agent," Mr. Alford said, "wanted to place a contract for rifles for hells for the Spanish Army. None of the agents would give any information regarding the reason for the sudden demand for war material in Spain."

Foreign engineers, he said, believed this one of the decisive factors in the war would be the final wearing out of the metal-making machinery in Germany and that country's inability to procure new machinery in sufficient quantity to replace the vast quantities of equipment destroyed in battle.

CHARLOTTE STREET LADIES' AID SCORE A SUCCESS

"The Last Leaf" Was Presented to a Capacity House—Play Was Full of Interesting Situations—Was Well Acted—The Specialties.

MAY BE REPEATED

The entertainment given in Charlotte street Methodist church last evening by the Ladies' Aid Society was one of the best in the history of that organization. The piece de resistance of the evening was a two act sketch entitled, "The Last Leaf" which was played with considerable dignity and force. The Sunday school room of the church was filled to capacity when the curtain went up on the first act. The latter encompassed a dash of love, a little romance and some mirth provoking situations. The participants were heartily applauded for their efforts. The play represents a bright little sketch, involving at times, an intricate piece of acting. The company was equal to the situation and made the most of it. The smaller parts were well filled.

The Cast.

The cast follows:
Mark Ashton ..... Mr. D. Fleming
Kate Ashton (Mark's Wife) ..... Mrs. M. W. Lyle
Lilly Ashton (their Daughter) ..... Miss Greta LeBar
Caleb Hanson ..... Mr. Wm. Galbraith
Harry Hanson (His Son) ..... Mr. Newton Staples
Patty Jones (A Yankee Girl) ..... Mrs. A. F. Bookout
Dick Bustle ..... Mr. Fred Jamieson
Tom Chubbs ..... Mr. Wm. Giles

Mrs. Corrigal of the Conservatory of Music was responsible for the splendid framing of the cast.

The Specialties.

For an amateur production, the individual work of the performers was excellent. The entire programme was carried through without a hitch.

The specialties consisted of a vocal selection by a quartette comprising Messrs. R. F. Downey, John Crane and the Hartshorne brothers, and a duet by Messrs. D. Fleming and N. Staples. Both of these were encored. Mrs. Cruickshanks was the accompanist.

The Sunday school orchestra, representing a number of Sunday schools of the city, contributed a number of well rendered selections.

The A. W. Cressman Company and E. B. Clegg supplied the furnishings for the platform. The decorations were tastefully arranged and thoroughly in keeping with the good quality of the performance.

A New Wrinkle On Catching Fish

A Lindsay disciple of Izaak Walton has struck on a new idea by way of catching fish, without hook or line, and as he has a patent pending on the invention he is not afraid to give the secret to the public. He will place a mirror in the water of the lake or stream, and in front of it a plate glass slanting at an angle of 45 degrees. The bait will be placed between the two. As the fish approaches he will see his image in the mirror, and, thinking it is another fish that is after the coveted morsel, will act promptly by making a quick dash for the bait, striking the plate glass and s dong up into a net placed at the top.

DEATH OF MISS HELEN TAYLOR

Former Peterboro' Girl Passes Away in Saskatoon

The following clipping taken from the Saskatoon Star, refers to the death of a former Peterborough girl in the person of Miss Helen Taylor, who passed away in that city on October the seventh. The late Miss Taylor will be remembered by many friends in Peterborough. She resided here seven years. She was a daughter of Mrs. E. Henry, Saskatoon.

Referring to her death and funeral the Star says:

Miss Helen Taylor, late Secretary to the city engineer's department, died at four o'clock this morning (Oct. 7th) of a complication of diseases following blood poisoning.

Miss Taylor has been in the service of the city for a number of years and was the highest paid secretary in the city hall, her efficiency having won her this premier position.

She had the highest respect of every member of the city hall staff and it was with sincere sorrow that the news of her death was received. More than one little stenographer friend ran in a dark corner to hide the tears that would come, and the generous sympathy of the entire staff, from the chief magistrate down to the smallest office boy, is extended to the family in their bereavement.

The Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Helen Taylor, late of the city hall staff, was one of the largest that have taken place in Saskatoon this year.

The cortege left the house at nine thirty this morning (Oct. 9th), the service commencing at ten o'clock when High Requiem Mass was celebrated in St. Paul's church by Rev. Father Lacoste.

The service was attended by practically every member of the city hall staff, and business at the city offices generally was suspended while the funeral was in progress. The flag remained at half mast on the city hall flag pole all morning.

Interment took place in the Catholic cemetery and a large proportion of those who attended the service in the church this morning followed the remains to the last resting place. The service at the graveside was read by Rev. Father Larose.

The pallbearers were Denis and Joseph Shannon, John Ryan and Jerry Brown. A large number of floral wreaths covered the casket.

A weighted sketching board, with which information can be dropped from an aeroplane without forcing it to alight, has been invented by a United States army private.

HALLOW-E'EN

A Relic of Roman and Druidical Times---Some Curious Superstitious Customs Practised on the Vigil of All Saints' Day

Written for the Examiner by Frank Russell

Hallowe'en, or more strictly speaking, All Hallows Eve, is the name given to the last day of October, and is the Vigil or Eve of All Saints' Day. It is, without the shadow of a doubt, a relic of pagan times, the leading idea respecting this evening being that supernatural appearances prevail.

The Druidical Period.

A great characteristic used to be the lighting of bonfires. This practice undoubtedly has descended from Druidical times, for around the first of November, the Druids held a great autumnal festival in thank-giving for the harvest, and in honour of the sun-god, lighted huge fires. There is also a tinge of Ancient Roman Ceremonial,

For on November the first a festival in honour of Pomona (the goddess whose symbol was an apple), was held, and in this nuts and apples played a large part, both of these articles representing Nature's winter store of fruits. The lighting of fires on this occasion has now largely died out, the only survival being the candle placed in a scooped out pumpkin or turnip, or in the imitation in paper, largely sold in fancy stores. Reverting to the question of Supernatural Appearances,

This is a night set apart for the supposed general walking abroad of disembodied spirits. It was a Druidical belief that on this festival, Samain, lord of death, called together all the wicked spirits who during the past year had been condemned to inhabit the bodies of animals.

Lighting Fires.

There are many superstitions in connection with this eve. Until recent years the lighting of fires prevailed in Scotland and Wales. It was usual to place in the dying embers as many pebbles as there were persons sitting around the fire. Next day an examination of the ashes would be made, and if any of the stones were displaced, it was an omen that the depositor of that particular pebble would die within the ensuing twelve months.

English Customs.

In England many ancient customs are even now observed on this night. Prominent among them is the cracking or burning of nuts. If the nuts lie still and burn together, a hopeful love and a happy marriage is prognosticated. On the contrary, should they bounce or fly asunder the omen is unpropitious.

In Scotland

Heath, broom and flax are tied up on a pole. This faggot is then kindled. Some one takes it upon his shoulders and runs with it round his neighbourhood. While the first faggot is burning a second one is prepared, and so on, in the same manner. Numbers of these blazing faggots are often carried about together, and if the night should happen to be dark, they form a fine illumination.

Another Scotch Ceremony

Was that of the three basins. One was filled with clean water, a second with dirty water, while the third was empty. They were arranged on the hearth. Those engaged in the mysteries were blindfolded and one by one advanced and dipped their hands into one of the bowls. If into clean water, a man is to marry a maiden, if into dirty water, then a widow, if into the empty basin, then he is to be a bachelor for the rest of his life, and for the girls it is the other way about.

Irish Customs.

Brand in his Popular Antiquities mentions: "It is a custom in Ireland, when the young women would know if their lovers are faithful, to put three nuts on the bars of the grate, naming the nuts after their lover. If a nut cracks or jumps the lover will prove unfaithful, if it begins to burn or blaze, he has a regard for the person making the trial. If the nuts named after the girl and her lover burn together, they will be married.

Welsh Ceremonial

Nut Wales is not without its customs as to All Saints Eve. A young lad called the Cool Cloth is made in the most conspicuous place near the house, and when the fire is at its height extinguished, every one throws a white stone into the ashes, having first marked it, then having said their prayers, turning round the fire thrice to find. In the morning, as soon as they are up, they go to search out the stones, and if any one stone should be missing, it is supposed that the person depositing that particular pebble will die ere it sees another All Saints' eve.

Apple Ducking.

The sport known as apple ducking—an attempt to seize with the teeth an apple floating in a tub of water—was once a great occupation of the young folk on this night. Great fun may be had in watching the attempt to catch the swimming fruit, which appears to wriggle from side to side of the tub, evading all attempts to secure it, and disappointed aspirants have to give up the chase in favour of some other whose turn has arrived.

Uncanny Notions.

One of the superstitious rites is to wet the sleeve of a shirt, hang it up to the fire to dry and watch it until midnight. At this mystic hour the ghost of the individual's future life partner will come in and turn the sleeve.

Another is to cut an apple before a looking glass while the future husband or wife as the case may be will be seen peeping over the shoulder of the eater.

Mysterious Faculties.

Popular belief has ascribed to the person of certain illegitimate children born on this day. They are supposed to possess the power of seeing and being able to converse with supernatural beings.

This Year Hallowe'en falls on Sunday, and the previous evening being a busy Saturday night it is possible that some of the revels usually indulged in may be more numerous by its absence.

Local Branch of the Red Cross Is Hard at Work

$25 a Month to Provide Food For Peterboro' Prisoners of War Will Be Sent

The executive of the local branch Canadian Red Cross Society met in the headquarters at the Public Library yesterday afternoon.

The treasurer reported several new members and a balance of $50.13 with outstanding accounts of some $100 to be met.

The supervisor of supplies reported that the cost of maintaining the work room is approximately $100 per week, this covering hospital supplies (such as dressings), only, and not including wool which is a very large item. More good knitters are needed for socks.

A resolution to send at least $.50 a month to be used for the sending of food to Peterborough prisoners of war, was adopted.

The Advisory Board met the executive. Mr. Travers was elected chairman, and the Board will meet at an early date to discuss the financing of the Society.

Miss Morrow, 484 Weller street, was appointed treasurer of the local branch.

Move to Prevent Garbage Cans Being Placed on the Sidewalk

Property Committee Proposes Amendments to Garbage By-law—Presented to Council on Monday Night Next - Changes Aim at Efficiency and Cleanliness.

INSPECTOR'S SUGGESTIONS

That garbage receptacles shall not be of more than 2 cubic feet capacity.

That householders shall strain and wrap in paper all table and kitchen waste before putting it in the garbage receptacles

That garbage receptacles put out for the collectors shall be placed at one side of the house and three feet back from the front of the house.

That garbage and refuse set out for collection shall not be interfered with, nor removed except by the collector

The Property Committee decided last night to recommend to the Council the above amendments to the Garbage By-law. Alderman McIntyre was in the chair with the following members present: Mayor Buller, Aldermen Green, Saunders, Edgar and McIntyre. Sanitary Inspector Spence presented a list of suggested changes to the by-law which were dealt with seriatim.

The first change not only decides the capacity of the receptacles, but also provides that when the cans or boxes are set out for the collectors they shall not weigh more than 75 pounds.

The clause requiring the straining of kitchen waste is directed particularly to the inclusion in the garbage cans during winter of liquids which freeze, thereby creating extra difficulty for the collector. In all seasons it will also be instrumental in keeping the receptacles fairly clean. Mr. Spence stated that not long ago he confiscated seventeen receptacles on one route because of their filthy condition. On another route he had to order eleven destroyed. This clause, he said, should save the cans by the fact that the collectors would not be obliged to dislodge the contents by strenuous methods.

Improves Appearance.

The design of the next clause is to prevent the receptacles being placed on the sidewalk or street line, thereby lessening the unsightliness of the streets on collection days.

It first provides for locations with lane facilities that the cans must be placed immediately adjoining the lanes and gates, or entrances to a premises must not be locked on collection days.

The members of the committee had to extend their mental operations to grasp the pith of the remainder of the clause which provided that no receptacle shall be placed nearer the street line than three feet from the front of the house, or three feet behind the house line if the receptacle is placed at one side. The aldermen preferred the idea of placing the cans at one side of the house, instead of in front, and changed the clause to that extent. The amendment therefore, reads that receptacles shall not be placed on the sidewalk nor at the front of the house, but at one side, and at least three feet back from the front line of the house. In the case of terraces the Sanitary Inspector shall decide where the receptacles are to be placed

Alderman Green observed that if the cans are upset by a dog or by any other means the householder would me more likely to clean up the refuse since it would be on his own property

Mr. Spence said that in London, Ontario, the collectors have to go to the back doors. In Toronto the receptacles have been placed on the sidewalk, but they are now making a change similar to that which the committee proposes for Peterborough, and which the aldermen felt was a step guaranteed to make the city tidier and neater than ever.

Stops the Picking Practice.

The last clause noted above should prevent any person except a collector interfering with or removing any part of the garbage set out for collection. It provides that the material must be taken to the incinerator and must not be picked over while on the street.

Alderman Edgar suggested that occasion was opportune for striking at the practice of picking over the refuse even at the incinerator. Mayor Buller supported him and wanted the clause broadened to the extent that all the material taken to the incinerator should be burned, except iron or anything that would injure the furnace

Alderman Green said that a man had offered $500.00 for the refuse, and possibly, by sterilizing the stuff, this offer could be accepted.

Mr. Spence stated that the extra furnace would sterilize the rags, etc., without burning them.

Mayor Buller pointed out that the work of sorting the material would require an extra man whose wages would neutralize the $500.00.

Finally, the committee decided that since they were dealing principally with the question of collection, they had reached a decision on that point, and the matter of the disposal of the refuse that might be salable could be decided later. On this understanding the above slate was concluded for the Council's consideration on Monday night.

93rd BAND DELIGHTED PEOPLE OF LAKEFIELD

Most Enjoyable Concert in Town Hall Last Night at Which the Khaki Clad Musicians Scored a Big Hit—Playing Made a Most Favourable Impression—Proceeds in Aid of Band Fund.

By permission of Lt.-Col. Johnson, the band of the 93rd Battalion, under the direction of Bandmaster Walter Hughes, and assisted by Pte. Harold Hatcher and Percy Luther, the little recruiting sergeant, gave a most enjoyable concert in the Town Hall, Lakefield, last night. The event was most successful in every way, the attendance being large, while the programme was varied and altogether delightful. The overseas musicians made a most favourable impression upon the people of Lakefield, who were loud in their praises of the finished playing of the band. Many citizens remained after the concert to warmly congratulate Bandmaster Hughes and his men.

Rev. Mr. Ketterson, of Lakefield, made a most pleasing chairman. During the evening he took advantage of the opportunity to lay before the young men in the audience the Empire's call for men. Lakefield had responded nobly, but he still noticed a number of young men in the neighbourhood whose place, he said, was in the trenches. To those who could not go to the front there was also an opportunity given of serving, and in this connection he urged the audience to subscribe to the 93rd Band Fund. Lakefield people felt that they had a part in the band, for in its ranks he was pleased to say there were several Lakefield boys. Rev. Mr. Ketterson paid a glowing tribute to the band, whose playing was, he said, indeed splendid, and when the fact was considered that it had been organized but a short time, he felt that the performance reflected the greatest credit upon Bandmaster Hughes.

The band opened the programme with the dashing march, "Dragoon Guards," which was played in sparkling style. The overture, "Lutspeil," the band's next number, was presented with a full appreciation of its possibilities, and was thoroughly enjoyed. "The American Patrol," with its effect of a band gradually drawing nearer, passing close at hand, and then disappearing in the distance, was one of the programme's features. "Bonnie Scotland," a collection of well known Scotch airs, arranged for the 93rd Band by Mr. J. H. Renwick, was another gem, and a selection from "Pinafore," including "Little Buttercup," "He Remained an Englishman," and the other brilliant numbers of Gilbert and Sullivan's masterpiece, was admirably played. The 93rd's marching song, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," with a vocal chorus by the band, and a "rag" number, "Trombonium," in which the trombones had a lot of effective work, rounded out a fine performance by the band.

The little recruiting sergeant, Master Percy Luther, making his farewell appearance with the band, delighted the audience with his recitations. "Fill up the Gaps" was his first number, and he had to respond to an enthusiastic encore. On his next appearance he recited with fine effect his favourite, "Come on Lads, and do your bit," and in response to the applause contributed another effective recruiting appeal, "What Will You Do?"

The chairman, in referring to Master Luther, remarked that if every man in the British Empire showed the same patriotic spirit as the little fellow did that the Kaiser would soon be thoroughly beaten.

Pte. Harold Hatcher was heard to great advantage in the solo, "Boys of the King of England," which he sang in most pleasing style. Later on in the programme he scored again in a most effective rendition of "The Man in Khaki." Both numbers were enthusiastically applauded.

Bandsman W. Loader, who is a magician when it comes to manipulating a concertina, contributed a most enjoyable solo on that difficult instrument. The audience demanded an encore, and his recall number, an imitation of church chimes and organ, was even more effective than his first offering.

Corp. W. Loader presided at the piano for the vocal numbers.

The complete programme was as follows:

March—"Dragoon Guards," 93rd Band

SPECIAL MEETINGS IN ASSEMBLY HALL

The special meeting will continue in the Assembly Hall over the Grand Trunk Ticket Office on George street. The interest is manifestly increasing by the number of strangers attending. Some aspects of the Christian life mentioned in the Gospel of John were taken up on Thursday evening. Beginning with the new birth in chapter 3, verse 3, and being manifested in chapter 4, verse 13, as a well springing up to God, and flowing out as a river to fellowmen in chapter 7, verse 37. The object of Christ's advent into the world being to give life is given in chapter 10, verse 10, while the object of the writing of the gospel that men might believe is found in chapter 20, verse 31. The coming of the Son of God into the world is not sufficient in itself to save the soul. There must be the personal appropriation of His finished work.

Mr. McCrory will preach the gospel to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock. All are invited. Hymn books provided. The meetings go on next week each night except Saturday at 8 o'clock.—Com.

GRADUATING EXERCISES AT ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Four Nurses Receive Diplomas and Medals Amidst Interesting Surroundings

On Thursday, a most enjoyable evening was spent on the occasion of the graduating exercises, two Sisters of the community and two young ladies Miss Margaret McCardill and Miss Dot Kelly.

The tastefully decorated rooms were filled with friends of the institution and nurses, including many members of the clergy and medical profession.

Dr. G. S. Cameron made a very efficient chairman and in his neat address manifested the interest he takes in the profession.

The diplomas and medals were presented by Rev. Dean McColl, who warmly congratulated the nurses on their choice of a vocation.

Other speeches followed in which the nurses were congratulated and also admonished to live up to the high ideals taught them among their training.

Dr. J. V. Gallivan dwelt at some length on the improvements made, the efficiency of the work done, and the steady advancement made by the nursing staff during the past year.

The rare musical treat rendered by the Misses Lonergan and O'Gorman, Rev. J. J. McCauley and E. Hanrahan, aided immeasurably to make the evening a most pleasurable one.

At the close of the programme dainty refreshments were served in the parlours.

The many gifts and flowers presented to the graduates testified the high esteem and appreciation in which these young ladies are held, and graduation evening closed with the well wishes of all for their future success.

ALD. DOBBIN LECTURED AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Ald. Dobbin gave a lecture in St. James' church last night on "The Early History of Peterborough." His researches in local lore have been most extensive and provided him with ample material which he discussed in a very interesting and entertaining manner. Rev. Mr. Greatrix was chairman. Several piano duets were played by Miss H. Gillespie and Miss Viola Palmer, also by Miss Alberta Rebull and Miss Ruby Carr. Mr. Weller was heard in a vocal solo. After the lecture the ladies provided refreshments, mostly pie, which received every attention.

How the C.P.R. Plays Its Part In World War between 3000 and 4000 Officers and Employees Are Wearing the Khaki

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—Few people realize how large a part the Canadian Pacific Railway is playing in the greatest war the world has ever known. Hundreds, nay thousands, of employees enlisted for overseas service not only from the Canadian offices and workshops, but from all over the world wherever the Company was established, until to-day there are between three and four thousand officers and employees doing military duty to the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority are now in Europe. But of this vast number of C.P.R. volunteers the roll of honour issued from time to time by the Company shows that the total casualty list is but 29. When the war first broke out the fever was first felt in the London Office and a hundred and twenty employees took the King's shilling. Canada was soon called upon to help and no sooner was the call made than the hundred who answered quickly swelled into thousands, and the tide is still running. The Company has temporarily lost the services of many very efficient officers, and men amongst whom may be mentioned Lieut.-Col. Fred A. Gascoigne, Lieut.-Col. George Stephens Cantle, Lieut.-Col. G. W. P. Ramsay, and Capt. G. Ernest Hall. More recently Brig.-General Meighen, who is a new Director of the Canadian Pacific, and is commanding the new regiment of Grenadier Guards in Montreal, has taken more C.P.R. men and created the popular Mr. Kirkpatrick Assistant Freight Traffic Manager Captain Adjutant of the whole Battalion. The western lines of the Company have also provided their share. This is indicative that the employees of the Canadian Pacific are still doing their little bit to help the Mother Country in her great trouble, and to uphold the Union Jack

You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs.

Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the concentrated, blood-making oil-food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat.

Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion after sickness. Nurses everywhere advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without injurious drugs.

A MEDICATED BATH.

A medicated bath is also sometimes of enormous benefit in cases of sleeplessness. A great French doctor advises this one for the pallid, nervous, under nurtured women who find the wooing of sleep and all peace a difficult matter:

Sulphate of potassium, 50 grammes; sub-carbonate of soda, 100 grammes; gelatin, 40 grammes.

Dissolve the gelatin in a quart of hot water, and add this and the salts to the hot bath. But as this bath is very invigorating to the nerves, it is best to take it in the morning.

FAVOURABLE SHOWING OF LOCAL GARBAGE COLLECTION COMPARED WITH FOUR CITIES OF PROVINCE

To the Property Committee last night Sanitary Inspector Spence presented a detailed report of his recent visit, with Ald. McIntyre, to Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford and London, where they investigated the various sanitary methods employed. Mr. Spence stated that the trip was of invaluable service to him, and he had learned a great deal from the sanitary departments in the four cities visited. At the same time, he believed that Peterborough to be ahead of them in not a few respects, and especially from the standpoint of economy. A short review of some of the facts he presented are as follows:

Hamilton, population 100,000—no garbage collection tax; cost of collection of garbage met by an appropriation of $30,000; whole city is collected once a week; no collection from churches, factories, public buildings, etc.; ashes and garbage kept together, taken to dumping grounds and covered with earth; no incinerator; ten team waggons and nine single waggons employed; teamsters and men receive $12 a week and are allowed to pick out anything of value; 25,000 loads a year are handled at a cost of about $1.20 a load; work is under the Board of Works department.

London — population, 55,000; garbage collection met by special tax rate of 1 1-4 mills; cost of handling, about $1.84 a ton; ashes and garbage allowed together from May to November, as the quantity of ashes is light during those months. Total cost of collection, $36,095.

Brantford—population, 25,000; collection from whole city under contract; one collection weekly; no collection from public buildings; refuse deposited on low land and covered; collection from yards; nothing is picked over; about 7,500 loads a year at a cost of $1.50 a load.

Peterborough — population 21,000; two thirds of the city collected; two collections weekly; 4,000 loads collected a year at a cost of $1.40 a load; the waggons used here are at least 1 3-4 greater than those in the various cities visited; on their basis local loads cost less than one dollar.

Disposal of Garbage.

Toronto disposes of 160 loads, or 136 tons of garbage a day. Two superintendents and sixteen men are employed in day and night shifts; only garbage is consumed; ashes from the incinerator have to be carted away; no fuel used; cost of disposal, 29c. a ton.

London.—Daily average 55 loads or 47 tons; 3 engineers and ten men employed; estimated cost, 99 cents a ton; tins not burned; in July 116 loads of tin cans were carted away.

Peterborough.—Daily average eight loads or 12 tons; note, we have less loads and more tons; staff, 1 man; estimated cost of disposal, 26 cents a ton. During October actual cost was 17 cents a ton; all tins burned, except stove pipes, sauce pans, etc. Ashes from incinerator sold at 50 cents a load; from October 1 to 29, there were 16 loads sold for $8.

Brantford and Hamilton have not incinerators.

Mr. Spence remarked that he felt proud of Peterborough's garbage disposal system in spite of its faults.

Ald. McIntyre stated that Belleville pays $3,800 for its garbage collection; city supplies carts and horses; refuse dumped and covered with soil.

The committee was pleased with the report presented by Ald. McIntyre and Mr. Spence, and it was felt that local methods should be developed and made more efficient, as far as possible. Mr. Spence has numerous suggestions, but last night's slate kept the committee busy until after 10 o'clock.

SOLOISTS ANNOUNCED FOR PRESENTATION OF "THE MESSIAH" DEC. 14th

The rendering of Handel's great masterpiece, "The Messiah," will take place in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on the 14th of December, and everything possible is being done to make the performance a noteworthy one in every respect.

It is especially appropriate that its rendition should take place during the Christmas season, as is the custom in the Old Country, and also in Toronto and other large cities of this continent, where the annual performance of this work which foretells the birth and coming of the Messiah is eagerly looked for each Christmastide.

In these days it is especially needful for us to remember and to sing "Hallelujah! for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth, King of Kings and Lord of Lords," so it will be the endeavour of the Peterborough Choral Society to make this Choral Festival of real excellence musically, and also devout and reverent in character. The following artists have been engaged for the performance:

Miss Dorothy Allan of Peterborough, will be the soprano. The musical critic of the "Toronto Courier," in writing of Miss Allan, after hearing her sing at the Toronto Arts and Letters Club, said: "Miss Allan's voice is of luscious quality in the mezzo range, golden and lovely in the soprano, clear and white as the notes of a thrush. There is an edge to Miss Allan's voice which is almost pure contralto, and it is this surprising range and variety of tone colour that makes her voice so very effective, her repertoire so extensive, and her style so popular."

The contralto will be Miss Pearl Steinhoff of Toronto, who possesses a voice of beautiful quality, full, round and warm, and who excells in Aratoria. Additional interest will attack to her appearance in Peterborough as she is a sister of Miss Steinhoff, who before her marriage was the Domestic Science teacher in this city. Miss Steinhoff is contralto-soloist in Parkdale Church, Toronto, and is on the staff of the Toronto Conservatory.

Mr. George Chandler, the tenor needs no introduction to a Peterborough audience, his capable and efficient work as choirmaster of All Saints' church testifies to his ability, and like all old country men, he has been "brought up" on Oratorio, and can be depended on to fulfil his task as tenor solist successfully and with pleasure to his audience.

Mr. Ruthven Macdonald, the well known and popular Toronto singer will sing the bass solos. Mr. Macdonald's voice, big and satisfying, rings out splendidly in those grand Arias, "The People That Walked in the Darkness" and "Why Do the Nations Rage So Furiously Together," always gaining enthusiastic applause.

The organist engaged is Mr. T. L. Palmer, A.R.C.D., organist of the Metropolitan Methodist church, Toronto. Mr. Palmer stands in the forefront of Canadian organists, his playing always helpful and brilliant in effect.

A pipe organ is essential to a traditional rendering of the "Messiah," and that the accompaniments by Mr. Palmer will be one of the best features of the evening. Miss Flowers, organist of All Saints' church, the regular accompanist of the Society, will preside at the piano, while the whole rendering of the Oratorio will be under the conductorship of Mr. John Allan, the organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's church.

The citizens are asked to reserve Tuesday, 14th December, and come and hear the performance of this great sacred masterpiece.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Bon-Opto tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind or nearly so, or who wear glasses, might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late. Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches, and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

Mavericks Went On a Rampage In East City

Cows Destroy the Garden of J. Marshall 425 Rogers Street —Owners Were Fined

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT

B. J. Brady was fined five dollars and costs in this morning's Police Court for permitting his cows to run at large. The bovines entered the garden of J. Marshall, 425 Rogers Street, and consumed a quantity of vegetables valued at four dollars and a half. J. B. Brown was fined two dollars and costs on a similar charge. The latter only had one cow, while B. J. Brady was credited with a number. Defendants in each case put up the plea that they were not responsible for the depredations of the mavericks, who were pastured on the property of Mr. Cox. Defendants paid for the pasture, and were inclined to believe that Mr. Cox should be held responsible for the damage.

The costs in each case amounted to two dollars and fifty cents. Mr. Marshall submitted a list of the approximate quantity of vegetables alleged to have been consumed by the midnight marauders. "There is nothing more annoying than to spend a whole season's work on a garden and then have it destroyed by cows," remarked Magistrate Dumble.

"CASCARETS" BEST IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS, SICK, CONSTIPATED

Best for Liver and Bowels, Bad Breath, Bad Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

PRESENTED WITH AN UMBRELLA

Happy Occasion at The Home of Rev. F. A. Connors, Bolivar St., Last Evening

Rev. F. A. Conners, 504 Bolivar Street, of the City Mission, was pleasantly surprised last evening at his home, the occasion being his birthday. About forty of his people were present and a very happy time was spent. A programme of vocal and instrumental music and readings was given, those contributing being Mr. Clark, banjo selections, Mr. Pemberton, and Miss Saunders, vocal solos; Miss Clara Ross, piano solo, and Mrs. Conners and Miss Lyla Campbell, readings.

During the evening, the assembly took occasion to remember Mr. Conners in a tangible manner by presenting him with a gold-headed umbrella, accompanied by an address. The presentation was made by Mr. Thos. Aitkins, while Mrs. Herb. Campbell read the following address:

Dear Pastor.—We, the members of your congregation are gathered here this evening to help you celebrate your birthday. We feel as if we can not let this occasion go by without showing in some way the high esteem and love in which we hold you, and we ask you to accept this small gift as a token which we hope will ever remind you of the pleasant times we have had together.

We also wish to extend our hearty appreciation for the excellent work you have accomplished in the past, and hope the Lord will spare you for many years to use this umbrella.

Wishing you many happy returns of the day.

Signed on behalf the members of the City Mission.

After an appreciative and grateful reply by the recipient, light refreshments were served, the gathering dispersing with the singing of the National Anthem.

TENTATIVE PLAN TO COLLECT GARBAGE FROM WHOLE CITY

In calling for tenders for the collection of garbage next year, the Property Committee suggests to the Council three areas upon which to ask contractors to estimate, as follows: First, the present area, second, the whole city, and third, the present area plus the district included within Park Street, south from Townsend to Albert, along Albert to Alfred, to Chamberlen, to the Boundary Road, Romaine street, to Crescent to Lock, to George to Sherbrooke across the river to Maria street, up Rogers to Douro, crossing the river to Murray Street.

The motion to this effect was moved by Mayor Buller, seconded by Ald. Green. In the by-law to be presented to the Council tenders will be called for up to Nov. 15.

The collectors are now making about 3,000 calls, and there are about 1,650 residences in the rest of the city. The proposed new area will add over 1,000 new collections. The present contract price is $5,925, and the garbage tax brings in $6,300 which also covers certain expenditure at the incinerator.

Ald. Saunders and Ald. Weir did not think the extension of the collection area was necessary.

"If the collection is good for the street I live on, it is also good for the street Ald. Saunders lives on," remarked Ald. Edgar.

Mayor Buller said that if the Council continues to delay what should be done for the whole city legislation would be enacted which would compel the removal from the entire community. Mayor Buller advocated collection from the whole city. He mentioned an epidemic which he said had visited the South End not long ago, apparently having in mind the outbreak which necessitated the closing of the Sacred Heart school for several days.

Ald. Saunders took exception with him, stating that there was no epidemic in the South End; it had been in the school and was the fault of the school.

His Worship replied that the Board of Health records showed that the outbreak had been in the South End and had come in from a near-by township. The discussion blew up a considerable breeze and spent itself in the Mayor and Ald. Saunders retaining their several opinions as to where the epidemic originated.

Finally the Committee straightened their faces and returned to the subject of garbage collection, several motions simmering down to that outlined above.

ENEMY WIL FIND A WALL OF STEEL

negotiations in the Balkans has produced in some rabid papers of the Daily Mail type, a tremendous outcry against Sir Edward Grey. It is one of the strangest mutations of political fortunes that his man who for many years has enjoyed the confidence of the Unionist Party even more completely than that of the Liberal—many of whom distrusted his policy as leading to war—is now the target of the very men who have been his most fervent eulogists.

DIFFICULTIES INHERENT.

The truth is that the difficulties are inhergnt in the situation. From the start of this war, Germany had an enormpus advantage over the Allies in the fact that she had only to consult herself. Austria, of course, was completely in her hands; and she could change commands even in the Austrian army, and even dictate her policy without troubling to consult Austria too seriously, especially as she had in Count Tisza, the Hungarian Prime Minister, a man who was more Germans than the Germans themselves in his whole outlook on the issues of the war.

But the Allies have been in a different position. Their countries are divided from each other by vast spaces not easily traversed in times of war; and though the Allies have stuck together with splendid loyalty, their outlooks were essentially different. And even at the most critical hours of the war, the diplomatic outlook, I have been told by a Cabinet Minister, was even more critical.

A HUNDRED COUNTY TYRONES

The main source of the difficulties was, of course, the Balkans, and here there was a problem which reminds me a little of our problem of Ulster in the last days of the Home Rule struggle. There is the difference that in the Balkans there was not one but a hundred County Tyrones to be dealt with. And the Balkan States gave very little assistance. It seemed a very easy problem to those who did not belong to the Balkans; for each Balkan State could have got plenty of territory—there was enough to go round. Serbia might well have had Bosnia and Herzegovina, which would have given her complete command of the Serbians in Austria and given her the opportunity of preparing for the inevitable, though perhaps distant, hour when all the Serbs, Croats as well as Slovenes, might be gathered together in one great nation. Roumania could look to the annexation of Transylvania with the four millions of Roumanians who are there waiting for emancipation. Bulgaria could have got back a good part of the Macedonia she lost by her folly in attacking Serbia and Greece. Greece could have got the big population of Greeks in Asia Minor.

SEVERAL OBSTACLES.

But there were several obstacles to all these things having their proper effect. First, of course, there was the difficulty of that constant communication between the Foreign Ministers of the different Powers, to which I have alluded; Russia at one time, I am told, gave some trouble. She was unwilling to make some concessions which would have got us Roumania; of course, she ought to have done so, but at the time when these negotiations opened, Russia was carrying all before her in Galicia, and she was not in the mood to be reasonable. Then came a further complication in the long attempts to get the assistance of Italy. Italy insisted on driving a very hard bargain about the Dalmatian coast, with the result that the Slavs of Austria got alarmed; then disgusted; and then rebellious. As I have written already, the Serb regiments of Austria, which had surrendered wholesale when fighting their brother Serbs of Serbia, begged to be released from their prisons in Serbia that they might go to fight the Italians and rescue their Slav country from the alien hand. Finally, Serbia was very obstinate in the concessions she was willing to give to Bulgaria; and the Greeks did not help, for they hate the Bulgarians and distrust them even more than they hate them.

GERMAN BLOOD.

Then there were in all the Balkan States, except Serbia, monarchs who were more or less German in blood and in sympathy. Of these kings I need not say much of the King of Roumania; he is not a striking figure. People say that he is greatly under the influence of his very pretty and attractive wife; and she is half Russian, half British. Her father was the Duke of Edinburgh, who became Duke of Saxe-Coburg, and her mother was a Russian grand duchess.

The King of the Greeks is more interesting. He is a soldier in everything. It is difficult to understand how a son could differ so much from a father as the present King of the Greeks differs from his predecessor. I knew the late King very well; he was an astute, gentle, simple man, fond of gaiety; every year a regular visitor at Aix-les-Bains; ready to stand in the crowd around the baccarat table, and to give twenty francs to the pretty lady who was proud to have a king for a backer. And he managed to keep on good terms with all the other countries of Europe, and to keep on good terms with his own democratic subjects by being as democratic as any of them. He one day shocked all Athens by riding in a street car.

IN A STERNER MOULD.

But the son, though simple and democratic, is in a sterner mould. He hasn't the father's intelligence; he is narrow, obstinate, candid to a fault; and above all things, he looks at everything from the soldier's point of view. And he was educated in Berlin, from which also he took his wife. The members of his staff are his chief advisers, and they also were educated at Berlin, and like most of the soldiers of Europe, outside the Allies, they believe in the ultimate victory of the Germans. Characteristically enough, for soldiers are, as a rule, incapable of looking at things except from the purely military point of view. They forget what Bismark used to call the imponderable things—that is to say, the moral forces, without the backing of which the mightiest armies are incapable of final victory.

The interesting an the most powerful figure, however, in the Balkans is Ferdinand of Bulgaria. I have never seen him, though he was often at Carlsbad where so many Londoners used to find their way. But I have read and heard so much about him that I almost feel as if I had known him personally. He is a curious mixture of dandy and diplomat; he is perfumed—always rather a sign of effeminacy; and he has the nerves of a neurotic woman. Sometimes he has said things which brought back to my mind some of the startling self-revelations which Zola used to give about himself. In the midst of a joyous scene, Ferdinand, like Zola, seemed to be suddenly haunted by one of those obsessions of coming and inevitable disaster. Two scenes in the life of each of the men seem to me to be strangely alike. Zola leaving the little suburban station near his summer home, was given a good-bye and good wishes by the stationmaster; and Zola's reply was that nobody ever knew what was going to happen: misfortune overtook men at apparently their most auspicious moment. And within a few days he had died of gas poisoning in his flat in Paris. Similarly, one beautiful evening as he was about to depart for his palace in the country, Ferdinand standing under the trees in one of the most beautiful spots in Sofia, said to his companion that perchance behind those trees there might be skulking the assassin that was going to murder him, and that probably he would never reach his home. Perhaps it is the sense that he has lived amid the haunting forms of assassins—for assassination is still one of the political methods of Bulgaria—that broke down his nerve. His nerve certainly did break down. He could not be got out of a railway carriage during the war; he could not look upon a wounded man; he shook when the shells began to roar; and the whole staff was in despair at having a king who showed such palpable funk. Ferdinand has attempted by cunning to overcome the enemies who were all around him. If there is assassination, he said once, I will be on the side of the assassins. Thus he has lost all popularity and at the same time kept his throne. But perhaps his forebodings will one day be as harshly and tragically realised as those of the sombre man of letters, whom he so closely resembles.

THE WOMEN'S NATIONAL ANTHEM

The following letter has been received by a Canadian from a friend in the Old Country:

Dear ——, While in London recently I came in touch with a little incident which I think will interest you.

I attended, one day, at noon, a recruiting meeting in front of the Mansion House. A great crowd of men and women listened to the Recruiting Sergeants, all of whom had "done their bit" at the front.

A lady, with a magnificent voice, sang patriotic songs, which perhaps, were more effective than the speeches of the Recruiting Sergeants. At the close of the meeting, it was announced that after singing "The King," the lady would sing "The Women's National Anthem."

Then, in splendid voice, she sang:

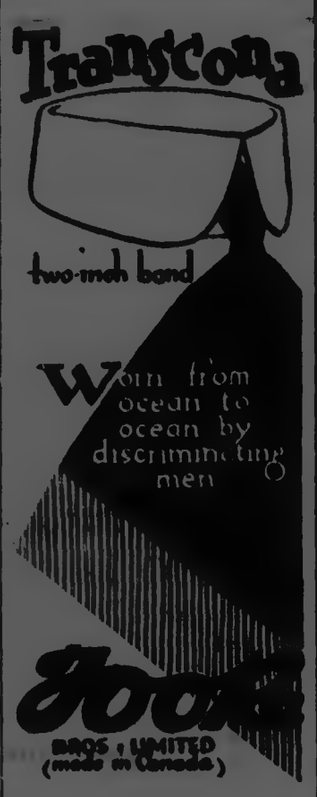
"God save our splendid men,
Send them safe home again,
God save our men,
Keep them victorious,
Patient and chivalrous,
They are so dear to us,
God save our men."

As she sang, every man stood, uncovered, and with bowed head, and there were not many dry eyes.

I think it would be a good thing if the women of Canada would learn this as "The British Women's National Anthem" for surely it is the prayer of every loyal British woman.

After the meeting I went up to the singer, handed her my card, and asked her for the words she had just sung. When she saw that I was from Montreal she said: "Oh, I sang in Montreal, and I will be glad to send the words to the women of Canada."

She wrote them on the back of the blue envelope which contained my passport.



Airmen's Big Part In Loos Victory

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, France, Oct. 13. (Correspondence)—Since the taking of Loos all the army is singing the praises of the guns and the aeroplanes. No such bombardment had ever been heard on the British front as that which preceded the attack. There seemed no intervals between the reports of the guns—not even those of the beat of a snare drum. The roar had the power and continuity of Niagara Falls. House windows in the surrounding country kept up a continuous rattle.

"It is the sweetest sound in the world," said one of the surviving veterans of the retreat from Mons. "It means you will get into the German trench and have a fair fight of it, and you won't charge into the play of the machine guns or be hung up in the barbed wire. A year ago when we held the Germans back from the Channel ports, we were doing it with flesh and blood against the outnumbering German artillery. The most comforting sight in the world is an eight-inch howitzer, and next to that is a motor truck loaded with high explosive shells.

As morning approached after the night of bombardment, officers on the British front were looking at their wrist watches. In front of Loos the figure 6 marking the half hour—6.30—was the goal of the creeping minute hand. At that moment a wave of men rose from the first-line British trenches, and the volume of shell fire was lifted from the first German line to the second line as the stream from a hose is lifted from one flower bed to another. Meanwhile every man in the charge tried to outrun every other man. The sooner they were in the German trenches the less the likelihood of the Germans coming out of their dugouts, recovering their senses after the bath of shells and firing on the advance. If only one machine gun can be manned before the charge goes home the charge may be stopped in that immediate section. It is all a matter of wrist watches, of speed, team play, and of seconds.

With the first flush of dawn the birds of war had come from their aerodromes. The shell fire and the aeroplanes were all that the onlooker might see.

"I should think that we had eight planes that day to one of the Germans," said an aviator. "We had concentrated planes as well as guns."

Only when the secret of the point of concentration is kept can such an attack succeed against a modern defensive position. The Germans had learned that the British were preparing an attack; for their soldiers called out from their trenches to the British: "When are you coming?" to which one Briton replied: "I'll let you know as soon as Sir John French tells me."

Attacks were made that morning at several places; but the Germans expected the real attack elsewhere than Loos.

"There has been a good deal of talk," said a staff officer, "to the effect that the element of surprise has disappeared from war. It is as vital as it ever was. Only concealment was never so difficult."

Troops and guns had to be moved at night so that the German aeroplanes might not note the concentration. British aeroplanes must ward off German aeroplanes by day.

Infinite labor and pains in detail are required of hundreds of thousands of men for such an attack. That of the medical corps alone is stupendous. On the morning of the attack beds were ready, and the countless ambulances and the clearing stations and all the intricate organization for caring for the wounded.

As the attack proceeded a flock of aeroplanes were cutting circles and dipping and turning over the battlefield as if in an exhibition of airmanship. They appeared to be disconnected from the battle; but no participant was more busy or intent than they. All the panorama of action was beneath them; they alone could really "see" the battle if they chose. But each aviator stole only passing glimpses of the whole; for each one was intent on his part, which was to keep watch of whether the shells of the battery to which he reported were on the target or not.

To distinguish whose shell-burst was whose in the midst of that cloud of dust and smoke over the German positions seemed as difficult as to separate the spout of steam of one pipe from another when a hundred were making a wall of vapor.

Every youth in England apparently wants to get into the aerial service. So the corps has its pick. Promotion is rapid; the romance and the excitement of the work appeal. It is easy to learn to fly in the very stable latest types of machines which, as the saying goes, are "fool-proof." It takes only two months to train a man with aptitude to do the routine work of reconnoissance, but he must be young. Men do not learn readily after they are thirty, with few exceptions, and they are very poor pupils indeed after they are thirty-five. It is not difficult to spot shells when only a few batteries are firing, but when perhaps a hundred guns are dropping shells on a half-mile front of trench a highly-trained eye is required. Occasionally a plane was observed to sweep down like a hawk which had located a fish in the water. At all hazards that intrepid aviator was going to identify the shell-bursts of the batteries which he represented. The Germans might have him in rifle range, but they were too busy trying to hold back the English infantry to fire at him.

Other aeroplanes are dropping shells on railroad trains and bridges, to hinder the Germans, once they had learned where the force of the attack was to be exerted, from rushing reinforcements to the spot. For that kind of work, as for all along reconnoissance, the aviators like low-lying clouds. They slip down out of these to have a look around and drop a bomb, and then rise to cover before the Germans can bring their anti-aircraft guns to bear.

The first thing was to hold what was taken in this advance. All the labor of turning the wrecked German trenches into British, of making new dugouts, traverses and parapets and laying out barbed wire had to be done before the Germans swept back in the counter-attack which was expected and which came. A Niagara of German gunfire added to that of the British announces another German effort. So far the British have held their new positions; and when the Germans were attacking in one part of this line the British repulsed the German attack and took 800 yards from the Germans in an adjacent part.

"Tell me noo, Jamie, what was the most wonderful thing you saw when at sea?"

"I think the strangest thing I saw was the flying fish."

"Noo, laddie, dinna mak' a fule o' yer nither. Wha ever heard o' a fish fleein'?"

"Another strange thing I saw when crossing the Red Sea. We dropped anchor, and when we raised it again there was one of the wheels of Pharaoh's chariot entangled on it."

"Aye, laddie, I'll believe that. We've Scriptures for that."

ROME, Oct. 30.—Though on a comparatively small sale numerically, some of the bloodiest fighting in Europe was reported to-day in progress along the Austro-Montenegrin frontier. The Montenegrins have embarrassed the Austrian attack on the western Serbian border by fierce flank assaults. To stop this an Austrian campaign was launched against them. Taking advantage of one of the world's most difficult mountain countries, the Montenegrins have entrenched themselves so effectively that they have held their own thus far against enormously superior forces, inflicting terrible losses.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—A new $2,000,000 steamship line, under the American flag, to carry trade in the Pacific, and to be known as the Pacific and Eastern Steamship Co., will begin operations within a few weeks, it became known in Washington to-day.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—"Deviation not one iota from the country's fixed purpose to win the war and crush German militarism," Premier Briand said to-day, "will be the new French Cabinet's policy."

"This was the old Ministry's platform," he continued, "and it will be ours."

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—General Von Linsingen's German forces have captured Komarov from the Russians, it was officially announced to-day.

Riva Practically Isolated From Source of Supplies

ROME, Oct 30—The last remaining Austrian positions south of the railway between Mori and Nago, in the Lagarina valley, have been occupied by the Italians, who are now pressing on to cut the railway, thus isolating Arco and the fortress of Riva from Rovereto and Trent, their only source of supplies. A foothold on the railway also means an important step forward in the Italian campaign against Rovereto, and eventually, against Trent.

Besides this marked gain, the Italian official statement records gains at many points of the line and a steady continuance of the recently inaugurated offensive. Further air raids by Italian aviators have been made on the railway line between Gorizia and Trieste, at Bassovica on the Carso plateau, and on the railway in the Baca valley.

FOWL IN ABUNDANCE AT TO-DAY'S MARKET

One of The Largest Markets This Fall—Prices Were Fairly High

Practically the largest market this fall was that held this morning. The influx of farmers to the city was extremely large, and certain lines of produce, particularly fowl, was correspondingly heavy. The prices were very firm and had a tendency to be high. As noted, fowl was available in abundance and seemed to find ready buyers. Geese and chickens were especially plentiful, the former selling at $1.25 to $1.50. The latter brought a dollar and a dollar and a quarter a pair. Turkeys were scarce and sold at $3.00. Ninety cents was the price asked for ducks, only a few of which were noticed.

Butter and eggs continue to sell at a good figure, butter being rapidly necked up at 32 and 33 cents. Eggs were 33 and 35c per dozen.

On the outside market apples were $1.25 to $2.50 a bag. Lamb by the quarter was 14 and 16 cents, while pork was 15 and 16 cents.

Caledonian Club Hallowe'en Social

CHILDREN'S MEETING.

Every seat was filled at the children's meeting last evening in Gospel Hall. The gospel hymns that were thrown on the canvass were exceptionally good. RELIEVING DISTRESS ON EAST COAST

Payments to Be Made Out of a Fund Provided in Canada

LONDON, Oct. 29—The House of Commons last night learned of the generous contribution by Canada toward relieving distress on the east coast of England through air and naval raids. The President of the Local Government Board, answering a question regarding the alleviation of this distress, said that payments would be made out of a fund generously provided by the Canadian Government.

"I think we all desire to express our warm thanks to the Government of this great Dominion for this additional proof of its desire to share in the common burden." (Loud cheers).

Mrs. Warnock received with her, and two Galt girls, Miss Dora Warnock and Miss Mary Strong, were with Miss Stevenson and Miss Burns in the dining-room.—Toronto Globe.

INCINERATOR HAD BIG MEAL OF CANNED GOODS

A large consignment of canned goods from one of the local wholesale houses was consumed in the incinerator on Thursday. This unusual food left no signs of indigestion in the furnaces, which devoured them completely, leaving only a thin tinny substance so brittle that it crumbled at a slight touch. The action of the heat on the cans caused minor explosions, and when the cover of the furnace was removed one bursting tin shot up into the building its contents of hot tomato. A ton of diseased potatoes went the same way. Mr Spence confiscated half a carload, but allowed the owner to pick out those which were in good condition.

MISS CAVELL WAS BORN IN NORWICH

An Examiner reader has sent in a clipping from an English paper which states that Edith Cavell was born near Norwich, and was the daughter of a clergyman. Evidently she was of no relation to Richard Cavell, of Stockport, Eng., who resided in Peterborough with Mr James Garside. The clipping is as follows:

Miss Cavell, the executed nurse, was the matron of the Ecole Belge l'Onfirmieres Diplomees, in the Rue le la Culture, Brussels, having been appointed to that position in 1907. When the school was opened. She was the eldest daughter of the Rev Frederick Cavell, for 40 years vicar of the village of Swardeston, near Norwich. She was trained as a nurse at the London Hospital, where she was known as "Nurse Mellish," and was engaged in private nursing practice in the West End before going to Brussels. In 1909 Miss Cavell, who was then described as a grey-haired woman approaching middle age, attended, as a "fraternal delegate," the International Council of Nurses in London, and in an address to the Congress described the work on which she was engaged.

A friend at the Congress described her as "a woman devoted to her duty, and very hard working. She had great force of character, and was a strong believer in discipline." Miss Cavell's mother resides in College Road, Norwich. She had not heard from her daughter in Brussels since last April.

Balkan Situation is More Favourable Than At Any Time

ALLIED FLEET BOMBARDS THE BULGAR COAST TOWNS

FOUR ENEMY ASSAULTS REPULSED WITH BIG LOSSES

But Germans Recaptured Tahure Height on the Champagne Front—Serbian Fortress of Pirot Captured by the Bulgars

LONDON, Nov. 1.—From the Allies' point of view the Balkan situation is more favourable than at any time. Berlin already has reported to be despairing over the outcome if Roumania allows half a million Russians through their country.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Allied fleet again bombarded the Bulgar coast towns of the Aegean, landing a force which is expected to disembark at any time.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The result of two days' violent fighting on the Champagne front is that the Germans recaptured Tahure Height. Four following assaults were repulsed with big losses. Northeast of Neuville in the Artois, the Germans captured twelve hundred yards of French trenches. The French counter-attack regained some ground.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—D. A. Thomas, after five months in this country, stated that about five hundred million would be expended in the Dominion on war munitions.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Serbian fortress of Pirot has been captured by the Bulgars. Austro-Germans are slowly beating admitted severe resistance given by Serbians.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—Two Canadian troop transports "Saxonia" and "Lapland" are reported arrived in England with 161 officers, four thousand six hundred men.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—An official statement last night announces violent engagements in the Artois region and further progress in Bois en Hache.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—A Salonika despatch says the French yesterday occupied Strumnitza, the battle raging from five o'clock Friday evening until nine o'clock Saturday morning.

GERMANS REPEAT POLISH TACTICS TO CRUSH SERBS

Advancing From Opposite Sides Teutonic Allies Struggle to Destroy Little Kingdom's Defenders—Battle Slowly Developing in Region of Uskub

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Repeating the tactics adopted in the Vistula campaign by the German general staff, Field Marshal von Mackensen is fighting desperately in co-operation with General Boyadjieff, commander of the Bulgar army, to cut off and destroy the Serbs before they can reach the shelter of their central mountains. Just as the Von Hindenburg and Von Mackensen armies were thrown against the Narew and Lublin-Cholm lines in Poland to envelop the Russians in the Warsaw angle, so the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians are pounding from the north and northwest and the east and southeast to catch the Serbs between the jaws of the Teutonic pincers.

With the fall of the fortress of Pirot the Bulgarians have removed a difficult barrier that blocked their way to Nish and their advance on a wide front from Pirot to Zajecar caried them on an average of five miles down the valley of the Nisav aand the Dimok and up the valley of the Timok. The Austro-German progress in the north continued slow, but west of the Morava the headwaters of the Jasenca were passed, while the Austrians from Bosnia seem to have developed their offensive out of Visegrad, which is directed against both the Serbs and the Montenegrins.

A battle in force apparently is imminent in the south, where the French, with a small British contingent, are moving up toward Istib. The Bulgarians are holding Uskub and a line reaching to the mountains on the west, while their left atretches along the Nish railway and on from Kumanovo to the frontier. It is against this line the Allies are marching and from Friday night's reports serious contact probably will be felt within twenty-four hours.

According to a message from the Times correspondent in Athens the Bulgarians have recaptured Veles, which is twenty-three miles southetst of Uskub, on the road to Salonika and about eighteen miles west of Istib. They occupied the town a week ago, and the Serbs were reported, unofficially, to have recaptured it on Tuesday.

In what new way Serbia is to be assisted has not yet been disclosed. Some British troops are co-operating with the French in the south and others are on the way, but where they will be used remains a secret. Russia's arrangements have not been disclosed, although from German sources it is reported that Roumania is about to throw in her lot with the Entente Allies and will allow the passage of a half million Russian troops through her territory to attack Bulgaria from the north.

Greece has assured the Entente Powers that her neutrality remains friendly to them, and declares she already has given assistance to them by permitting the landing of their troops at Salonica.

The Greek Legation in London, in a statement issued yesterday, disposes of reports from various sources recently spread broadcast regarding the position of Greece.

"Lately," says the statement, "there have appeared in the press items of news derived from German, Austrian and Bulgarian journals anw news agencies, and bearing upon the attitude and intentions of Greece, such as a mythical mission of Mr. Sophouis (formerly Governor of Macedonia) to King Ferdinand, a refusal of King Constantine to receive Ministers of the Entente Powers, an intention by Greece to menace the security of the allied troops at Salonica, etc.

"The Greek Minister has received telegraphic instructions from Premier Zaimis to contradict in the most categorical manner these rumours, which in spite of repeated denials were propagated even in Athens, and the male violent object of which is only too evident in the endeavour to prejudice public opinion and sow suspicion and hostility between the Entente Powers and Greece."

An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Athens says in reference to the work of the French right wing:

"It is learned from a good source that the French, after a three days' fight, have occupied Strumnitza and advanced thirty-two kilometres (about twenty miles) into Bulgarian territory. The Bulgarians lost heavily."

GREECE NOT LIKELY TO ENTER WAR

Special Cable:

ATHENS, Nov. 1.—Chances that Greece will enter the war are of the remotest at present. Greek public opinion concerning her participation in the struggle is exactly what public opinion is in the United States. Everybody wants to keep out of it.

If the Bulgarians in their fight with Serbia, should spill over the Greek frontier a small Greeco-Bulgarian conflict would be possible. Germany promises, however, that the Bulgarians will not do this.

HEARS ROUMANIA WILL JOIN ALLIES

ATHENS, via London, Nov. 1.—The Hestia says it has learned from a diplomatic source that there are indications Roumania will accept the proposals of the Entente Allies for joining with them. It is highly probable, the newspaper says, that Russian forces concentrated on the Roumanian frontier will pass through Roumania to go to the assistance of Serbia.

The Entente Powers, it is said, intend to satisfy Roumania's ambitions, including her desire for territory in Russian Bessarabia.

THREW DOWN THEIR RIFLES AND CRIED "MERCY, MERCY!"

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Two hours later they set off, and marched for three consecutive nights, arriving at a base town on Friday midnight. On the following morning, before proceeding to their positions, the colonel gave them a short but pointed address:

He said: "Men of the ——, my words will be few. It is sufficient to remind you that you are British, and hold the honour of one of the finest regiments in your hands. Remember, whatever comes, you are men of the ——."

"On the main road," the writer adds, "we see many—to us so shortly arrived in France—things to wonder and marvel at. Motor transports in thousands. Red Cross motors in like numbers; and a continual stream of walking, hobbling, carried, sitting, lying, but, nevertheless, cheerful, broken, and bleeding men. As we pass them in fours they greet us with the one cry, 'They are running, boys, running like h——. We have shifted the —— this time, all right.'

"Through like scenes we march along until after about ten kilometers we come to our artillery's position, where they have been shelling the Germans for twenty-six hours. Here we halt until about six o'clock, and become acquainted for the first time with an artillery duel—although a rather one-sided one. Then we are moved off again, presently reaching a village taken only that morning. Passing through here are two stretcher-bearers, carrying a Scottish officer, white as death. Were it not for that inevitable 'flag,' he might have been dead, in his right eye was monocle. I thought that 'some' cool

The "Fun" Commences.

"In due course we reached the first line of trenches. Passing them we found the barbed wire between this and the second line. We go through this in single file, over the second line, and then we had to spread, as their rifle fire was just finding us. Here our first casualty occurred, one of the subalterns being shot."

The writer goes on to explain that the sergeant-major, who was lying by his side, told him, that the ammunition mules were back behind the first trench, and would not cross it. They must have the boxes, and as he could not leave the captain he asked the writer to go. The latter at once started back. He says:

"Then it was that I experienced the only real fear, which I remember having the whole time, when I found myself alone, with death flying round me, over, and past me, and lying in unmistakable forms all about me. Shrapnel bursting, 'Jacks' blowing everything within yards of them to nothingness, aerial torpedoes, a real assortment of every infernal contrivance this war has brought to the fore. My egotism led to my thinking that they were all for my personal benefit (what an opinion of our own importance we have at times!). I broke all existing records for the 200 yards then, and fourgt our mules."

CURRANTS ARE VERY SCARCE

The Greek Troubles May Mean a Dearth for the Holidays.

Unless the Greek Government releases without delay vessels held at home ports containing cargoes of 1915 crop Greek Vostiza currants, there will be a serious shortage in this country to supply the approaching holiday demand. While handlers here of currants and other Greek products said the situation prevailing in Greece at the present time is not as clear to them as they would like to have it, the supposition was that the Greek Government is holding merchant vessels engaged in the transatlantic trade with the United States for possible use as transports.

Frank Jackson, 87 Nassau street, an importer of Vostiza currants, said yesterday that the American market at the present time was practically bare of stocks in this line, owing to the inadequate steamship service between Greece and this country.

"I had a cable on Sunday," said Mr. Jackson, "stating a steamer was about to leave a Greek port with a cargo of currants, and hope by now it is on its way. There is a good deal of trouble in getting cables through to Greece just now as well as replies to messages. Only one steamer has arrived from Greek ports with currants in a month. The steamer River Orontes is believed to be on her way here from Patras, the chief currant shipping point, but as this vessel is a slow boat she is not expected to arrive at New York before the middle of next month. In fact, unless good wealth is encountered the vessel may reach here too late to land supplies for the Thank-giving trade. All importers are short in stocks, while prices are rapidly rising."

Importers were in receipt of cable yesterday to the effect that another vessel, the Erixos, was to sail from Patras yesterday with consignments of currants. Just what quantity is aboard was not known here, but several of the leading factors in the trade said they hoped to be able to claim small consignments at least. The Erixos had already sailed for the port before the Greek mobilization took place. Although the vessel was thought here to have been almost out of the Mediterranean at the time, it was recalled by the Government by wireless. Whether the same order is still abound now the steamer is again under way is unknown here. The fact that the government decided to release this ship encourages importers to hope that other later vessels now detained in Greek ports may shortly be released and placed in the regular merchant service.

GRASSHOPPERS MADE CHICKEN FARM PAY

Kansas Woman Devised the Scheme When Confronted With Failure.

BAXTER, Kan., Nov. 1. — Three years ago Mrs. Ruth E. Brown, owner of a farm six miles from Baxter, had a fine bunch of chickens, mostly White Orpingtons, but for some reason they did not lay enough eggs to pay for their feed. The grasshoppers had eaten nearly all the grain she had raised that year, and the outlook was gloomy.

Then she resolved to make the insects pay the bill. She bought thirty feet of three-foot wide wire screen and bent it over circular wooden forms. Round doors, working on one hinge at the top, were placed at each end. Back of this contrivance she erected a wooden frame six feet high and thirty feet long, and set it so as to overhang her trap. On the under side of this frame she fastened white oilcloth. Underneath the wire "pipe" she placed sulphur candles. The whole was set up in a stubble field.

With the help of neighbours she then began a grasshopper drive. It was surprising the way the "hoppers" went for that white wall and slid down into the trap. A canvas cloth was pulled over the pipe to keep in the fumes and the candles were lighted. In a few minutes all the insects were dead.

She got nearly five bushels the first drive. In less than a week she had 100 bushels of fine, grain-fed grasshoppers put away in the barn loft to dry.

During the winter months she fed equal parts of mixed grain and grasshoppers. The result was astonishing. The hens continued to lay all winter. That year she made a clear profit of $900 on her chickens. A month ago she sold the chickens, land and all for $6,000. She figures that she made a clear profit of $3,000 inside of three years, and she says her success was due solely to grasshoppers. She intends to buy a larger tract of land and go into the business on a large scale.

DRUG PRICES STILL GOING UP

Weekly Drug Markets say that during the week further sharp rises in prices have been announced on menthol, morphine, refined glycerine, cod liver, and small flake manna, while quotations on numerous other drugs scored fair gains. Prices on opium were again raised, while values of quinine scored a moderate gain of ten cents an ounce, manufacturers asking 50 cents an ounce for 100-ounce cans. Opium is quoted at $10 a pound for the gum. Parcels of quinine are being held by second hands up to $2.20, but sales at $2.10 an ounce have been made. Owing to the disturbed conditions governing the market for quinine alkaloid and minor salts prices have been advanced by manufacturers, who are not entering contracts or orders for forward deliveries.—New York Times.

GERMAN GENERALS ARE NEARLY ALL OVER 60 YEARS OLD

Too old at forty, or at fifty either, has as a rule, no meaning in connection with the higher commands in the German army. Haesler and von der Goltz are seventy-nine and seventy-two respectively; von Hindenburg and von Mackensen are sixty-eight and sixty-six; von Kluck is sixty-nine, and of the same age are Prince Leopold of Bavaria, and the Generals von Bulow and von Hausen. Von Bissing and von Falkenhausen are each seventy-one. Woyrsch, Eichhorn, Emmich, and Moltke are sixty-seven, and the following have the number of years stated after them: Linsingen, sixty-five; Heeringen, sixty-five; Scholtz, sixty-four; Gallwitz Sixty-three, Below, sixty-two; Einm, sixty-two; Falkenhayn, chief of general staff, fifty-four. The Crown Prince of Wurtemburg, Bavaria, and Prussia, commanding armies, are respectively fifty, forty-six, and thirty-three years of age. The latter would seem to be quite an exception.

Anxiety for the future is the greatest source of worry, and naturally so. Few men are able to save much, and they are not aware of any way of investing small amounts to advantage. To meet this very difficulty the Canada Life Monthly Pension Policy was devised, and it serves its purpose perfectly.

For a moderate annual payment the annuitant secures a guaranteed income commencing at age 65 and continuing monthly throughout his life, and for not less than 10 years in any event. Should he die before reaching 65 his estate will at once commence to receive the payments, which are guaranteed for 120 months.

Arrangement can be made, too, to continue the monthly payments to his wife or child for life, should either survive him. A still further advantage is that the contract shares in the substantial profits of the

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

ON THE WAY TO THE BLOCK.

[Original.]

One day some two and a half centuries ago the Lady Arabella Boyle, borne in her "chair" by a couple of menials on the Strand in London, was stopped at Temple Bar, the way being narrow, by a small party on foot. The lady put her head out of the chair window to learn the cause of the delay. She saw a prisoner in charge of guards.

A sudden thought struck the Lady Arabella.

"Whither are you going?" she asked of the officer of the guard.

"To Tyburn, may it please your ladyship."

"What to do?"

"To cut off this man's head."

"And supposing it pleases me to marry him?"

"You'll have a husband without a head."

"That's just the kind of husband I want, and none other."

She bade her lackeys set down the chair and sent one of them to fetch a clergyman. In a few minutes he returned with one, and, the prisoner consenting, the knot was tied. Then the procession moved on to Tyburn, and the Lady Arabella proceeded on her way much pleased with the adventure. Though but twenty-two years old, she was heels over head in debt, and at that time there was a law in England that when a woman married she was absolved from all she owed. In the course of half an hour she would be a widow, having got rid of both husband and debt.

But fate decreed that the delay of the marriage should save the prisoner's life. When he was kneeling before the block at Tyburn and the executioner was about to raise his ax a horseman was seen coming like the wind holding aloft a paper. The ax was stayed till the messenger arrived, and the paper proved to be an order to suspend the execution and commit the prisoner to the Tower.

A week later London was in ecstasy over the return of King Charles II., and all persons imprisoned on account of loyalty to him were released. Alexander Yeoman, the son of a country squire, walked out of the Tower with no yoke upon his shoulders except the yoke of matrimony, which he had no desire to throw off. The vision of beauty that had come down from heaven, it seemed, while he was on the way to Tyburn was not forgotten by him. For political reasons his reprieve was not published. His wife immediately after her wedding and supposed widowhood sought solace in Paris, where she proceeded to plunge again into debt in the gayeties of the French capital. She returned some time after the accession of the new king and entirely ignorant of the fact that she was a married woman.

One evening at a ball at the palace the king sought her and said: "I desire to present to you one of my gentlemen in waiting. He is more to you than any other man, for he has given you absolution, though you have given him life. Can you guess who he is?"

"Absolution comes only from heaven, your majesty, and if I have given him life I must be his mother."

The king laughed and directed Alexander Yeoman to be brought to him. When he arrived he stood before the beautiful Arabella a young man scarcely older than herself.

"If this is my son," she said to the king, "I must have borne him in my babyhood."

"You have met before," said the king. "Do you not remember his face?"

The lady looked at Yeoman curiously. "No," she said at last. "I do not remember ever to have seen him before."

"That may be because when we met I had suffered from a long distemper," said Yeoman, "and was sore distressed."

"And what distressed you?"

"Faith," said the king, "he was nearing corruption."

"Your majesty is speaking in riddles," said Arabella.

"Rather put it," said Yeoman, "that I was granted a glimpse of heaven before I was to become food for worms."

"A truce to this talk," said the lady, "and tell me where we have met."

"Never mind that," said the king, "at least for the present. The gentleman, having been a stanch supporter of his rightful king, deserves his reward. Alexander Yeoman, kneel! Now arise, Sir Alexander Yeoman," and the king, drawing his sword, rested it on the young man's shoulder. "I have an estate for you in Surrey," he continued, "taken from a notorious Roundhead, an estate valued at £200,000. I would provide you with a wife, but the Lady Arabella has forestalled me in that. Lady Arabella Yeoman, this is your husband, whom you married on his way to Tyburn, condemned to be executed for fidelity to his king. He was reprieved and at our restoration to the throne set free."

Lady Arabella was not long in recovering from her astonishment. "Was ever such luck!" she exclaimed. "I meet a man about to lose his head who lifts me out of debt. I meet now nobly with that head on his shoulders, and he brings me a fortune."

The marriage turned out to be a very happy one. The wife became a domestic woman, though she and her husband were high in favor at court. So long as King Charles lived he never tired of rewarding Sir Alexander Yeoman for so nearly giving his life to his sovereign, while the husband never forgot that his marriage on the way to the block saved his life.

Lubiniecki, Dauphin, Man., writes: "It is my pleasure to write you in regard to Doan's Kidney Pills which I have been using for some time for kidney trouble, which used to affect my back so that at times I could not bend down nor could I walk straight. I learned about your pills from your almanac, and I bless the happy hour I thought of buying this medicine. One time a druggist persuaded me to buy ——'s Kidney Pills, saying they were just as good, in fact he guaranteed they were. I yielded to his advice, and what was the result? I had bearing down pains in my back for two days, so I took the balance of the pills unused to the druggist and told him to give me Doan's Kidney Pills as they would stop the pain in twelve hours at the outside. He told me he was sorry I did not use more of the pills, and lengthen the time to await results. I told him there was no need of waiting with Doan's Pills; they go right to the spot. No substitute for me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is printed on both the lable and wrapper.

"Doan's" are manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Strange Potato Industries.

Towns in the Netherlands have several ways of dealing with the surplus production of potatoes. According to a recent consular report, there are now factories for drying potatoes, with an annual output of many thousand bushels. Of these plants 350 are for the production of potato flakes, while in 86 the potatoes are dried by the hot-air process. Potato flakes can be used for feeding stock, for distilling alcohol, for making starch, and for the other purposes for which natural potatoes are used; or they can be ground and bolted to make potato flour. This flour is a yellowish-white product, rich in carbo-hydrates, and is used principally by bakers for adding to rye and wheat flour in making bread. It is claimed that the addition of potato flour gives the bread a good flavor, makes it more digestible, and keeps it fresh for a comparatively long time. It is also used to some extent in thickening soups and sauces.

Combined Knife and Fork.

A handy tool for soldiers, campers, and picnickers, as well as for one-armed persons, is a combination knife and fork recently patented and now being placed on the market. It consists simply of a curved blade with the end formed into a four-pronged fork. It is designed to be stowed away in a case that can easily be carried in the coat pocket.

Carrying Them Out.

Youth—I sent you some suggestion telling how to make your paper more interesting. Have you carried out any of my ideas?

Editor—Did you meet the office boy with the waste-paper basket as you came upstairs?

Youth—Yes, yes, I did.

Editor—Well, he was carrying out your ideas.

Not Sure Yet.

The centenarian was being eagerly interviewed by reporters, and was asked among other things to what he attributed his long life and good health.

"Well," the old man replied, slowly, "I'm not in a position to say right now. You see, I've been bargaining with two or three of them patent-medicine concerns for a couple of weeks, but I ain't quite decided yet."

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

COMPLIMENTS GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Mr. Arthur J. Selfridge, Attorney at Law, of Boston, writes to the Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Dining and Sleeping Car Service as follows:

"I desire to compliment you upon the excellence of your dining car service. Both the service and the meals were better than that of any dining cars on which I travelled from Boston to Boston, although I used the best known limited trains in America on my outward trip to the Pacific Coast. While I was on the dining car from Prince Rupert to Jasper I felt I never before had so much attention and excellent service. When I got on the dining car at Edmonton I found that, if possible, the steward in charge was even more attentive and careful."

SEES CAPTURED GUNS.

Twenty-One German Field Pieces and Three Mortars in London.

LONDON, Oct. 29. — "With their silent nozzles pointing toward St. James' Park," says the Daily News, "the first trophies of the great offensive in France were ranged on the Horse Guards' Parade yesterday. Twenty-one German field guns and three trench mortars formed a war exhibit of the highest interest to Londoners.

Not since the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny have guns captured from an enemy crunched the gravel of the Horse Guards' Parade and been publicly ranged as labeled exhibits. With the exception of three pieces captured at Le Cateau on Aug. 26, 1914, all the guns took part in the Battle of Loos on Sept. 25, last.

"The mud and stain of the battlefield are upon them. In some cases it appears that the Germans had time to remove the breech-blocks. Otherwise the guns are in good condition and suggest that they were hastily abandoned before they could be severely battered by our men.

"The trophies were hauled into position by gunners of the Royal Horse Artillery, and beneath the nozzle of each gun was driven a little notice board informing the public of the name of the regiment or division which captured it and where it was captured. Four armed sentries guarded the trophies, and a sentry box was placed at each of the four corners of the wired inclosure.

"The presence of these captured guns from Loos made an appeal to the imagination of the thousands of people who swarmed round the inclosure."

FORM ZEPP. WATCHES.

London Citizens Volunteer to Warn Householders of Raids.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Watching for Zeppelins is a new form of volunteer duty not yet recognized by the Government. It is undertaken by men who have nervous women to look after, and it consists in scanning the sky from 9 p.m. until about 2 a.m., on the theory that this is the period of the night the "Zepps" are likely to operate.

In the districts which have been raided heretofore the feeling of uneasiness is strong, especially in families with children, as time is needed to carry them to the basement or lower floor. Here the watchers organize themselves and divide up the watches. While they are not officially recognized, they are known and unofficially recognized by the police.

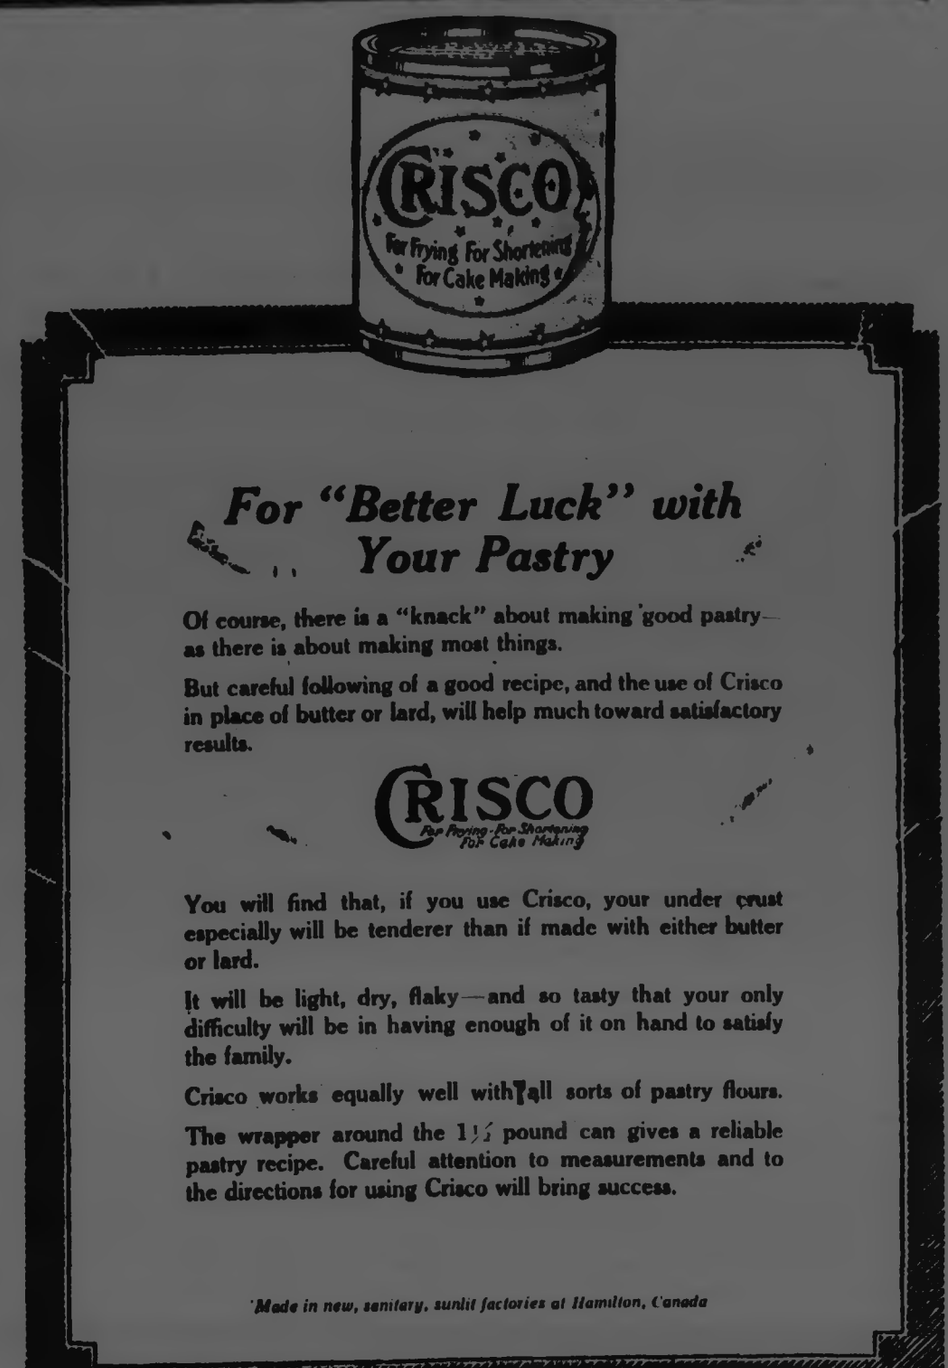
These orgnizations practice surprise drills, and have arranged telephone connections with the small shopkeepers who have friends in the suburbs.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.



For "Better Luck" with Your Pastry

Of course, there is a "knack" about making good pastry—as there is about making most things.

But careful following of a good recipe, and the use of Crisco in place of butter or lard, will help much toward satisfactory results.

CRISCO
For Frying - For Shortening
For Cake Making

You will find that, if you use Crisco, your under crust especially will be tenderer than if made with either butter or lard.

It will be light, dry, flaky—and so tasty that your only difficulty will be in having enough of it on hand to satisfy the family.

Crisco works equally well with all sorts of pastry flours.

The wrapper around the 1½ pound can gives a reliable pastry recipe. Careful attention to measurements and to the directions for using Crisco will bring success.

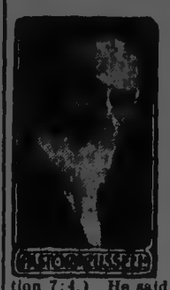
THE TWELVE TRIBES OF SPIRITUAL ISRAEL

As the Elect of God Will Constitute the Christ Body.

Our Lord's Two Changes of Nature—His Present Supreme Exaltation—God Foreknew the Christ Company, Head and Body—God's Elect Church Gathered From Israel and From the Gentiles—The Great Company Who Lose the Crown—Neglect of Their Vow of Faithfulness — The Present Great War and Its Outcome—God's Faithful Point to Christ's Coming Kingdom.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publiction.]



St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31.—Pastor Russell gave a discourse here to-day of intense interest. His text was: "I heard the number of them that were sealed; and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand, of all the tribes of the children of Israel." (Revelation 7:4.) He said in part:

Our Lord Jesus, before He came into the world, was the Son of God on the Heavenly plane, the Only Begotten of the Father—Jehovah's only direct creation. (Colossians 1:15; Revelation 3:14.) When in the flesh, He was still God's well-beloved Son. This is the One who when on earth as a man gave Himself in consecration to do the Father's will even at the cost of His own life, that He might purchase back from death the fallen human race. For this, the Father highly rewarded Him, by raising Him from the dead a Divine Being. Our Lord has had three natures, being now a partaker of the nature of Jehovah—the Divine. "Him hath God supremely exalted, and given Him a name above every name."—Philippians 2:9-11.

This perfect obedience on the part of our Lord Jesus was the basis, then, on which Jehovah God raised Him to His present high position. God might have let Him take at once His power as King of kings and Lord of lords, and begin His great work of blessing mankind. But God's Plan was different. In His Purpose the Father not only foreknew the Lord Jesus for this work, but foreknew also that certain ones chosen from the human family would gladly become fellow-sufferers with Jesus that they might be fellow-sharers in His glory to follow. How could God arrange this? The answer is that they may have a part in this arrangement by marriage, by becoming united to Christ Jesus as His Bride, His Body, which is to be composed of 144,000 members.

How These Are of the Tribes of Israel.

St. John the Revelator tells about this 144,000—12,000 from each tribe of Israel. How does the Church, the Body of Christ, come to be of the twelve tribes of Israel? In this way: God laid out the entire program of the Gospel Age on the Jewish basis. Provision was made for choosing the total number of the Bride class out of Natural Israel—12,000 out of each of the twelve tribes. God foreknew, however, that fleshly Israel as a nation would not receive Jesus as Messiah, and that those who would receive Him would be only a small remnant from all the tribes. But the elect Church was to number 144,000—12,000 from each tribe.

Of those of Fleshly Israel who came into the Gospel Church we do not know the proportion from each of the tribes. All twelve tribes were represented in Palestine when our Lord Jesus came, though chiefly Judah and Benjamin. During the Jewish Harvest there were approximately 25,000 gatherers to the Lord from Palestine and adjacent countries—an average of a little over 2,000 from each tribe. So there was not nearly the required number. Therefore, after the close of the 70 symbolic weeks of favor (Daniel 9:24) promised to the Jews, God turned to the Gentiles, to all up the number lacking from the various tribes. (Acts 13:46.) When we were received into Christ, the question was, Where would we be put? We do not know, however, where the Lord has put us; some will be in one tribe, and some in another, as God wills. But His decision will satisfy us.

Another Company—"A Great Multitude."

After we are told about these 144,000 from the twelve tribes who are to be of the Very Elect, who are to stand with Christ on Mount Zion (Revelation 7:1-8; 14:1-5), and who only will be able to sing the song of Moses and the Lamb, mention is made of a much larger company. This Great Company say that they will never deny God's name or His cause. But they have not been living in harmony with their vows. Therefore they will not receive the reward coming to those who are ready to meet their Lord at any moment, those whose lamps are trimmed and burning.

This unfaithful class are the ones mentioned by the Revelator as having soiled their garments—those who have failed to keep "unspotted from the world." He says: "I looked, and behold, a great multitude, whose number no man knows, of all nations and kindreds and people and tongues; and they stood before the Throne and before the Lamb." (Revelation 7:9-14.) These are the Spiritual Israelites who are not of the priestly family. As in Natural Israel the Levites were far more numerous than the priests, so in Spiritual Israel.

The angel said to St. John, "Who are these, and whence came they?" He replied, "Sir, thou knowest." So the angel said, "These are they who have come up out of the great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Nothing but the blood of Jesus will ever take away these sins. They must all be cleansed in "a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation." This class will have their portion with the hypocrites, because they have failed to live up to their covenant with God. They hesitate to step forward boldly and say, "I am striving to be a footstep follower of the Lord Jesus Christ."

But here is our opportunity to take a stand before the world and to lift up the banner of the Lord. Let the people know where you stand! If you say, "Of course I am religious, but I do not wish to be extreme." Then your worldly acquaintances will say: "That is right. Don't be extreme; come in and have a game of cards!" Such Christians get themselves into trouble at once.

Some of this class become so besmirched that they plunge into wilful, deliberate sin. This course would merit the Second Death, so far as we understand the Word of God. But others say, "I will never go deliberately into sin. I am no saint, I know; but I will never deny the Lord; I will never deny the principles of righteousness." There is considerable good character manifested here, even though that person is not living up to the covenant made with God. Such are still loyal at heart. Some of them have been weak through fear of loss of worldly favor, or have been hindered by the cares of this life. This is the class that will be in the second company, the Great Company.

How They Lost Their Crowns.

You ask, "How do they get into such a condition?" We answer, There are various ways. The following illustrates one of these: Suppose you as a child of God should get angry, should speak a bitter word. Afterwards you felt that this was something against you. You hastened to the Throne of Grace and said, "O Lord, forgive! Cleanse me from my iniquity, and I will never do this again!" Perhaps a day or two afterward you made the same mistake; and you felt, oh, so abashed! It was more difficult to go to the Mercy-Seat the second time; but you went and said, "Lord, I am so ashamed, so sorry! I will try not to do this again!" But perhaps in a week, or perhaps in an hour or two, you had repeated the transgression. You were almost discouraged. You feared to go to the Lord. When you were preparing to retire at night, and the time had come for reviewing the events of the day, you said to yourself, "I cannot go to the Lord to-night, and own that I have failed again!"

You succeed in putting the matter off, but you are anxious. You try to get it out of your mind. The next morning you go about your duties, but you have not made the matter right with God. During the day something happens that causes you again to transgress. In distress you say, "I will not think about it. Everybody commits sins. There may be some who can overcome, but I cannot. There is no use to try. And so it goes on, the trespasses accumulating. From time to time you offer prayer; but it is largely a formality. If this condition of things is not rectified by the proper steps, you will certainly lose your Crown and go into great tribulation.

All down the Gospel Age there have been some of this class; but the Revelator pictures those now living. "Judgment must begin at the House of God" (1 Peter 4:17); and these slothful ones must answer for their unfaithfulness. But after their severe chastisement in the coming great trouble, they will realise that it has worked good to them, and will say, "Let us be glad and rejoice. Let us glorify God that we were finally delivered. We have not been faithful; we have allowed things to hold us back. But now the Marriage of the Lamb has taken place. Our robes have been cleansed; and we are invited to the Marriage Supper, even though we have missed being of the Bride class. What a pity that we did not yield ourselves up wholly to the Lord!" See Revelation 19:6-9.

Not Many Wealthy, Great, or Wise Called.

God's faithful ones love to meet together and encourage one another in the good way. The association of the Lord's true people is like a bed of coals. One coal will not keep warm alone; but when many coals are brought together, each warms the others. Therefore the Apostle exhorts, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together. . . and so much the more as ye see the Day approaching."—Hebrews 10:25.

It is not money that draws us together. There is not a millionaire amongst the saints, so far as we know. Whoever wishes to get into a club of millionaires will not find it in the Church of Christ. The true Church are not as a rule wealthy, nor are they as a class the most learned, the most talented, the most refined, to be found. If these things are what you are seeking in the Church of Christ, then you are looking in the wrong place. On the other hand, whoever is ashamed of the brethren of Christ is accounted as ashamed of Him.

We are not to be ashamed of the brethren of Christ or of His Truth. Our Lord says, "Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me and of My Word, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed when He shall come in His own glory and His Father's." (Luke 9:26.) In other words, I will not have him in the Bride class. That Great Company is represented as eventually getting the palms of victory and as serving God in His Temple. But so far as you and I are concerned, I trust that we are looking for something better—the Crown of Glory—immortality. The class that will receive this great exaltation with Christ is the class that "follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth."

"He Cometh Now to Reign."

In Psalm 45: 3, 4, the Psalmist tells us of the majesty of our Lord Jesus when He comes to reign on earth. "Gird Thy Sword upon Thy thigh, O most Mighty." Our Lord here girds on His Sword, that with it He should smite the nations. During all these eighteen hundred years He has not until now girded on this Sword. But now the time has arrived. The present great war is the beginning of the work of disintegration. In this war we see a general spirit of partisanship, even amongst professed Christian people. We who are members of the Bride of Christ are to forget that we are British or German or French, etc. We are to be rid of all bias and false expectations, and thus be better able to see God's view of the whole matter.

The Lord wishes to have a judicial class. We are preparing to be the judges of the world. "Know ye not that the saints are to judge the world?" (1 Corinthians 6:2.) But we are not to attempt to be judges now. We must not make that mistake. We see enough of this war to know that, like all other wars, it is not of God, but of the Devil. We see that selfishness is at the bottom.

This war has been brewing for the past forty years. Each nation has determined to have, if possible, what each considers its rights upon the sea. Each nation has determined that rival nations shall not have the supremacy. Jealousy and selfishness were rampant. When the expense of naval and military armament became too great to be longer borne, and there was imminent danger that the people would revolt, the rulers said, "There must be war"—not expecting so much of it.

God is permitting the nations to take charge of the situation, but He is over-ruling all to the accomplishment of His own glorious purposes. In this war He will permit the world to try their power and to come to the full end of their resources. God is saying in substance, "I have everything ready. By the time that these nations have used each other up, My Kingdom, that I have so long promised, will take control. These nations can never bless the world. I will let all the peoples of earth see how foolish their plans have been. Hitherto I have held back the winds of strife; but now I am letting them loose; for I am ready to bring in the blessings of My Kingdom."—Daniel 2:44.

Citizens of the Heavenly Kingdom.

It would be very improper for us as Christians to have any prejudice one way or the other. We are to love all mankind. God's true people are waiting to bless all the world. We do not wish to see any one injured; we are sorry that they do not know better than to injure and destroy one another as they are doing. This spirit of selfishness which has prompted the war is spreading all over the world—this antagonism, this striving for me and mine. What has the Spirit of the Lord to do with such selfishness? We are to remember that we belong to the Lord and to His Kingdom. If the whole world could get the spirit of our Master, what a changed world it would be! If all the churches in Europe had been teaching the principles of the Word of God, there would be no war. If all were Christians, there would be no soldiers and nobody killed.

Over there in Europe the people claim to be practically all Christians. The Germans claim to be ninety-five per cent. Christians; the British make the same claim. Italy is in the lead. It counts in all its people as Christians. These Christian Italians have been studying the matter of going into this war, have been estimating how many would be killed and how much material advantage could be obtained by entering the war or by remaining out. For months they balanced it up and down. There they were, willing to barter the lives of millions of their own people and of others in order to get a little larger strip of territory under their king. How pitiable are such conditions!

"What manner of persons ought we [true Christians] to be!" We should be the peacemakers of the world. Humanity are all deluded by their wrong doctrines. If they could see things properly, they would speedily bring this war to a conclusion. The Lutheran Church has been teaching the Germans and the Swedes and the Church of England has been teaching the British, each in its place, that their kingdom is the Kingdom of God. Now they are in God's holy war. (?) We are sorry. This is all that we can say. The war is a shameful spectacle. We whose eyes of understanding are opened know that all these earthly governments will meet with disaster, with ruin.

Let us, then, as true disciples of Christ, help each other. Let us all be peacemakers and point others to the Kingdom of God's dear Son, which is soon to be inaugurated upon the ruins of the present evil order, and which will prove to be "the desire of all nations." Then wars and all other calamities will be made to cease forever; for nothing will be permitted to hurt or destroy in all God's holy Kingdom.—Isaiah 11:9.

KIDNEY DISEASE CURED SWORN STATEMENT

Of Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Who Gratefully Gives All Credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

It is one thing to make big claims for a medicine and quite another thing to produce irrefutable evidence that it actually cures in serious cases.

We prefer to let the cured ones speak for themselves, and that is why you find in almost every newspaper the report of someone who has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's medicines. To-day we present the sworn statement of Mr. Wesley Maxwell. When a man goes to this trouble in expressing his gratitude there can be no question of the benefit he has received. Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must tell you that before I started using them I could only make water with the greatest difficulty, and had many severe pains in the back. I am completely cured now by the use of these pills. Before that I used a lot of doctors' medicine without any benefit that I could see. I am thankful for being cured, and can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills very highly."

SWORN STATEMENT.

"This is to certify that I, Wesley Maxwell, of the Township of Caledon, was cured of kidney trouble by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

"Wesley Maxwell."

(Sworn before me as correct this 6th day of January, 1915. — Wm. Hawkins, Sen. Justice of the Peace).

This statement is also endorsed by the Rev. Geo. W. Robinson, who is Mr. Maxwell's pastor.

This cure will interest a great many people who are suffering as Mr. Maxwell was with kidney and urinary troubles. HOW THESE SOLDIERS ESCAPED FROM THE HUNLAND

LONDON, Oct. 30—Sergt. Birley, who, with Pte. Haworth, has just escaped from Germany where he was a prisoner of war, has related to a press correspondent in London, his adventures.

Soon after landing in England Birley and Haworth were commended to appear before the King at Buckingham Palace. His Majesty appeared to be much interested in their story. "Every now and then, said Sergt. Birley, "the King slipped in a quiet question, or broke out with a jolly laugh at some of the funny things. He really seemed to appreciate the sport of the thing. Mostly he asked us about the general treatment of prisoners of war, and I was very careful to tell him only those things that had come under my personal notice.

"It took us just four days and five nights to get free of German soil after we had once broken out of our prison in Westphalia, the sergeant went on. "I went to the front with my regiment, the 1st Gloucesters, as soon as war broke out, and was captured on October 20, 1914, near Ypres. On the way to the prison camp in Westphalia we were pretty roughly treated. One night fifty-three of us were locked in a church, and had nothing to eat for over twenty-four hours. At least they emptied a basket of mouldy bread on to the floor, and left us a bucket of water. During the train journey fifty-three of us were crammed into a closed railway van for fifty-six hours. Only once were we allowed to get out, and that for a few moments. For food we had some scraps of bread.

Illuminated Barbed Wire.

"At the camp I made several plans for escaping, but never got a favorable opportunity. I managed to get myself transferred to another camp, and there began to make my plans which have succeeded so well.

"It was not an easy matter. The camp was, of course, surrounded by high barbed wire fencing. On each of its four fronts a sentry was posted, and at night four powerful acetylene lamps lighted up the whole of the camp.

"The great night came. We waited till one of the sentries had his back turned, and then wriggled on our stomachs to the fencing. I then managed to sever one strand of the fence, and, to my mind, the "tang" of it made the greatest noise I've ever heard! But the sentry walked on. With beating heart I snapped the second strand. That made an awful noise. Still the sentry walked on. Then we crawled out, free men. I am glad we outwitted that sentry, as he had caused us a lot of trouble.

"We had to crawl for 100 yards before we could get any sort of shelter, and then we moved away as quickly as we could in the circumstances. During the night a compas which I had was a real friend.

"The only food we had was a few biscuits and a little chocolate. Whenever we came near a farm the watch-dog barked.

"I suppose I must not say too much, but—well, here I am!"

"BILLY" DUNCAN GETS COMMISSION.

Orillia Packet: Mr. Fred Grant, of Midland, youngest son of the late Rev. R. N. Grant, D.D., has been granted a divisional commission as lieutenant in the Simcoe Foresters, and goes to Toronto on November 10 to go into training at Stanley Barracks. Mr. W. H. Duncan, of Midland, secretary and manager of the hockey club, also has been given a commission.

Had No Ambition To Do Her Housework.

System Was All Run Down.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, Beaver Brook, N.B., writes: "I have used some of your Burdock Blood Bitters, and found it to be a great medicine. My system was in a run down condition for over a year. I suffered with bad headache, and did not seem to have any ambition to do my housework. In the morning I could not half eat, and what I did eat did not apparently seem to do me any good. After using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was an entirely different woman. I cannot recommend B.B.B. too highly to people suffering the same as I was."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment, and remove effete matter and waste products, clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be. To this fact is due the wonderful efficacy of Burdock Blood Bitters in removing every form of disease. It at once strikes to the root of the trouble, and quickly restores the depleted system to a condition of vigorous health.

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A THREE MINUTES ARE LIVES IN THE U. S.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Society illustrates the frightful toll of consumption by extinguishing a light every three minutes, and shows that it is the man or woman, girl or boy, who neglects colds, whose blood is impure, who feels weak and languid, who is the very one to contract tuberculosis—and none are immune.

During changing seasons, or after sickness, blood-quality is most important; and if you and your family will take Scott's Emulsion after meals it will charge your blood with health-sustaining richness, quicken circulation, and strengthen both lungs and throat.

Scott's is free from drugs—easy to take—it cannot harm. Get a bottle to-day.

New Zealand Rushing More Men To Gallipoli

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 30.—The Dominion Government is setting about hastening reinforcements for the New Zealand forces now in the field. This "speeding up" process follows closely very pronounced expressions of opinion that the Government has been dilatory, but it seems not to have been due to this criticism, but to a request by the Imperial Government.

Recently the Government was asked by the Army Council if it would be possible to send reinforcements earlier than they would go in the ordinary course of events. The Minister of Defence, J. Allen, now explains that by having the transports return rather more rapidly than heretofore he will be able to expedite the departure of the eighth and ninth reinforcements, and that they will be despatched about six weeks sooner than was intended.

His statement means that the eighth reinforcements, who went into camp in August, will receive only twelve or thirteen weeks' training instead of the usual eighteen weeks, and that they will leave New Zealand about Nov. 1, and that the ninth reinforcements will sail about the middle of January. The acceleration of these forces is by the express wish of the War Office. Probably it is thought that for the present trench warfare upon the Gallipoli Peninsula it is not necessary for the men to be brought to such a high standard of company training as has been the case in New Zealand.

A great deal of censure has been directed against Mr. Allen and his associates in the Defence Department, but it now is apparent that they are fully living up to their declared policy of "not placing a maximum force in the field for a few weeks, but maintaining the greatest possible force in the field for the estimated duration of the war."

After the seventh reinforcements leave New Zealand—which will be in the near future—there will be no fewer than 11,000 men in training in the Dominion.

DOCTOR PRESCRIBED VINOL

To Restore Strength To This Weak, Nervous, Woman.

Many fair-minded doctors prescribe Vinol because they know of what it is made, viz—the medicinal extractives of fresh cod livers, peptonate of iron and beef peptone, without oil or grease, in a mild tonic wine. They know these are the oldest and most famous tonics. Read the result in Mrs. Mason's case.

"I keep house for my little family of two, and got into a weak, nervous, run-down condition. I was tired and weak and did not know what ailed me. My doctor prescribed Vinol. I noticed an improvement before I had finished the first bottle, and I am now feeling fine and doing all my housework." Mrs. M. S. Mason, 203 Passaic St., Trenton, N. J.

Every weak, nervous, run-down person, feeble old people and delicate child in Peterborough should try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it fails to benefit.

MANY ATTEST REALITY OF "ANGELS OF MONS"

Nurses Report Minute Statements of Elated Patrols—St. George or Joan of Arc

Ralph Shirley, the editor of The Occult Review, in a little pamphlet called "The Angel Warriors at Mons," tells of certain strange happenings testified to by English and French soldiers serving in France and Flanders. Mr. Shirley hints that the sudden change over the whole outlook when the German army seemed to be carrying everything before it in its victorious advance toward Paris, may have been due to supernatural intervention. The failure of the Germans to capture Paris has been attributed to various causes, but never properly explained. A number of English and French soldiers explain it in an astounding way.

Miss C. M. Wilson an English nurse, says this story was told to her by a lance-corporal in regard to the events on or about Aug. 28, 1914: "The weather was at the time very hot and clear, and between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening we were standing with a party of nine other men on duty. Immediately behind us h lf of our battalion was on the edge of a wood resting, when an officer suddenly came up in a state of great anxiety and asked if we had seen anything startling." The impression was at the moment that a German surprise attack was threatened, but immediately afterward the lance-corporal's attention was drawn to a strange appearance in the sky.

Saw Golden Robed . . .

"I could see quite plainly in mid-air," he said, "a strange light which seemed to be quite distinctly outlined and was not a reflection of the moon, nor were there any clouds in the neighborhood. The light became brighter and I could see quite distinctly three shapes, one in the centre having what looked like outspread wings; the other two were not so large, but were quite plainly distinct from the centre one. They appeared to have long, loose-hanging garments of a golden tint, and they were above the German line facing us.

"We stood watching them for about three-quarters of an hour. All the men with me saw them, and other men came up from other groups who also told us that they had seen the same thing. I am not a believer in such things, but I have not the slightest doubt that we really did see what I now tell you."

But the most extraordinary stories are in relation to the apparition of a single angel, whom the British took to be St. George and the French St. Michael. Miss Phyllis Campbell has for months been a nurse at a hospital near the front in France. On one occasion, she says, while she was bandaging a shattered arm, the President of the post, Mme. de A—, came and took her place, asking her to attend to an Englishman who was begging for a "holy picture." The idea of an English soldier making such a request at such a time seemed curious, but she hurried off to attend to his needs. He proved to be a Lancashire Fusilier. This is what happened, in Miss Campbell's words.

"He was propped in a corner, his left arm tied up in a peasant woman's headkerchief, and his head newly bandaged. He should have been in a state of collapse from loss of blood, for his tattered uniform was soaked and caked in blood and his face paper-white under the dirt of conflict. He looked at me with bright, courageous eyes.

A Wesleyan Minister!

"I asked if he was a Catholic. No, he was a Wesleyan minister, and he wanted a picture or a medal of St. George because he had seen him on a white horse leading the British at Vitry le Francois when the allies turned. There was a Royal Field Artillery man, wounded in the leg, sitting beside him on the floor. He saw my look of amazement and hastened in. 'It's true, Sister,' he said, 'we all saw it.'

"'First, there was a sort of yellow mist, sort of rais'n' before the Germans as they came on to the top of the hill, come on like a solid wall, they did—springing out of the earth just solid—no end to 'em. The next minute comes this funny cloud of light, and when it clears off there's a tall man with yellow hair in golden armor, on a white horse, holding his sword up, and his mouth open. Then, before you could say "knife" the Germans had turned, and we were after them, fighting like ninety. We had a few scores to settle, Sister, and we

GERMANS ON GUARD ALONG ROUMANIAN FRONT

LONDON, Oct. 29. The Germans are said to have sent a part of Gen von Linsingen's army from Russia to the Roumanian frontier to guard against an expected attack from that direction. It is reported from German sources that Roumania is about to throw in her lot with the Entente powers, and will allow the passage of half a million Russian troops through her territory to attack Bulgaria from the north. Should Roumania also decide to take the field herself an immediate attack on von Mackensen's forces in Serbia may be looked for.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Athens says:

"It is learned from a good source that the French, after a three days' fight, have occupied Strumitsa and advanced 32 kilometres (about 20 miles) into Bulgarian territory. The Bulgarians lost heavily."

Bulgars Retake Veles.

"There is no change in the southern area of Serbia, so far as is known. The report that Uskub has been recaptured is not confirmed, and is probably incorrect, as the Bulgarians have recaptured Veles (Koprulu), Serbia, according to the Athens correspondent of the Times. Veles is 25 miles south-east of Uskub, and is on the railroad line between Uskub and Salonika.

Sweeping Upon Nish.

Nish, the capital of Serbia since the evacuation of Belgrade, is the centre of a huge envelopment movement, carried out jointly by the Teutonic and Bulgarian armies. The most important headway made in this movement was made to-day by the Bulgarian centre, which, according to Berlin, "victoriously entered the Serbian fortress of Pirot."

The capture of Pirot places the Bulgarians 35 miles south-east of Nish. Further north, west of Knazevac, the Bulgars are less than 20 miles east of Nish.

The Austro-German central army, moving south along both sides of the Morava, also made considerable progress. East of the Morava the Teutons reached the Sgarko-Vica-Rudnik-Cumic-Batonica line. Batonica, on the Oriental Railway, is only thirteen miles due north of Kragujevac, the only great arsenal at the Serbians' disposal. West of the river, the Germans have crossed the Resava, which places them 55 miles due north of Nish. Here, the forces of Field Marshal von Mackensen are a little more than 30 miles north-west of Zaitchar, taken by the Bulgarians yesterday.

Thus, a second Bulgar-Teuton junction may be looked for, this time of the two central invading armies.

From the north, north-west and south-west the invaders are sweeping upon Nish. With Pirot in Bulgarian hands, only Nish remains to be taken to clear the way to Constantinople. The Bulgarian Timok Valley and Pirot armies are nearest to the threatened city, the forces proceeding from Knazevac, having the least difficult ground before them. On the other hand the Tetuons have the Belgrade-Nish Railroad to facilitate their southward advance.

A despatch from Rome says the Italian Foreign Office has been informed by wireless from a place in Montenegro that the Serbian Government abandoned Nish yesterday as a precautionary measure. The same despatch adds that the Serbians, despite the increase of the invaders 'pressure are successfully opposing the Austro-Germans" invasion.

Montenegrins Fight Well.

To forestall the eventual retirement of the main Serbian army to the mountains along the Montenegrin frontier and in that country, the Austrians also are attacking in Montenegro, but have made little progress, as the Montenegrins under their veteran fighting King have had a long time to prepare for just such an event and thus far have beat off all attempts to throw them back. In fact, the Montenegrins hold some strong positions in Austrian territory out of which they will have to be driven before their own country is invaded.

Did the Buccaneers Ever Visit Bradford?

"Yo ho! Yo ho! Yo ho! Here's to ol' Jerry Bones."

As the gruff chorus died away on the cool night air, one swarthy pirate stooped to draw another cup of bumper from the musty keg at his side. A dozen others of the brigand crew sprawled or squatted around the smouldering embers of a dying campfire. They had gathered to swap tales of adventure at the old forest lurking place.

They were a weather-beaten band. Some lay in a drunken stupor, a few crouched and spat at the fire, muttering curses as they recounted bloody deeds of plunder. Now and then a knife gleamed in the dull glow. The drunken revelry had already lasted well into the night and a hundred weir tales of adventure had passed around the fire. One of the company had seen the "good old days" on the "Spanish Main," one was an old tar from the Madagascar pirate haunts. A noisy fellow, with black whiskers, swore he was a cousin of Captain Kidd, and one had looted privateers in the Barbadoes.

Such a scene as this it would be considerably more fun to imagine than to come upon actually. Planted comfortably in the soft cushions of an automobile, it is real sport for one to imagine the dark deeds of former days, and that is just what motorists at Bradford, Ont., do when they visit a certain spot near that town, which is shrouded in mystery.

A huge ship's anchor of enormous weight rests on an open piece of ground with nothing to explain its presence. It is called the "Mysterious Anchor," and the mystery surrounding it is how it came to be located near a town that is so far inland.

Even the "oldest inhabitants" confess they are baffled in this matter, which only adds to the mystery, and they claim that it has been in the same position now for over a hundred years.

The "Mysterious Anchor" is the rendezvous for automobile parties, who take great pleasure in driving to this point and making all sorts of guesses as to where the anchor came from. Needless to say many wild tales of pirate sloops, brigands, and other happenings of earlier days have been imagined in connection, and it makes a most interesting point to visit in one's car and to point out to one's friends and guests.

ANIMAL CHARCOAL ABSORBS BACTERIA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Behind the curtain of war, German science has made discoveries in medicine in the benefits of which the civilized world will share. The new line of work has been done by German chemists in the use of animal charcoal for medical purposes. It has been learned by practical experiments that this substance, which has been used to remove coloring matter from chemical solutions, will absorb and remove not only poisons from the intestinal canal, but the bacteria of typhus fever and cholera. The poisons can be neutralized within a very short time, and all poisonous substances in the alimentary canal can be removed by absorption. The action of the animal charcoal extends to the bacteria themselves, which it mechanically absorbs and destroys.

Consul Talbot J. Albert at Brunswick, in a report of the Department of Commerce, mentions as deserving credit for the discovery the chemists Freundlich, Lichwitz, Glassner, and Suida. He says they have proved that the absorbing quality of animal charcoal is promoted by the presence of the phosphates, sulphates, and nitrates of calcium, sodium, and potassium. The rapidity of the absorption increases with the temperature, so that the heat of the animal body aids the therapeutic effect of the animal charcoal.

The application of animal charcoal extends chiefly to cases where the poison is conveyed to the organism from the outside, and where it arises from bacteria in the intestinal canal in the natural course of living. Cholera was the first disease to be considered; then, came typhus and dysentery, when it was possible, to exclude the injurious microbes from the system. As the charcoal becomes infected with the bacteria, or with the poisons which it absorbs, such aperients as Glauber salts, Karlsbad salts, etc., are used.

It also appears that animal charcoal is applicable in surgery, as it will stop suppuration, which destroys the tissues.

Electric traction has made possible the conquest of the Pyrenees by transportation men, no steam railroad having been able to conquer their grades.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7277

The fashion of making simple clothing for little girls is now so firmly established in this country that all mothers, rich and poor, are on the lookout for pretty models which are quickly made and easily laundered, to say nothing of requiring almost no material.

Such a design as the one herewith illustrated certainly fills the bill as far as every item is concerned. It has a plain little blouse, which closes in the centre of the front, leaving the neck a trifle open, with a square collar as a finish. This tapers in points to the closing in front and may be a permanent part of the frock, or entirely detachable. The sleeves are plain at the shoulder, but are roomy below the elbow. If made long they have a band finish, but if shortened they have a turnback cuff, which is provided in the pattern.

A three gore skirt is plain, where it is attached to the blouse and widens at the lower edge in graceful ripples. This also closes in front. The belt is wide and flat and has little pocket tabs at each side of the front.

Gingham is by far the most popular material for these dresses when intended for constant use. No matter what the check, plaid or stripe selected it is possible to match the principal color in plain material, and this may be used for collar and cuffs and pocket tabs. White is also pretty for a trimming, and when the dress itself is white it can be trimmed with either plain or figured goods.

The dress pattern, No. 7277, is cut in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Medium size requires 2 yards of 36-inch material and ½ yard of 36 inch contrasting fabric.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Airmen's Night Guides

Perhaps the greatest difficulty which an aviator has to face is landing safely by night. The difficulty has been overcome by what are known as the Honig circles, after the name of the inventor. These are two huge upright circles, lighted by electric lamps, of different sizes, one behind the other, the bigger being almost thirty feet in height. When the aviator is flying high he sees the circles as ovals.

As he begins to descend the rings appear to cut one another unless he is coming down in the proper direction, when the rings will appear inside one another. If the circles appear not to have the same centre, it tells the aviator that he is descending too much to the right and must steer to the left if he wants to land on smooth ground. When he lands properly, the circles appear to him to have the same centre.

MUCH HAVOC ON BULGAR PORTS BY ALLIES' GUNS

SOFIA, Oct. 30. — Although the bombardment of Varna by the Russian fleet lasted only ten minutes, the bodies of 27 civilians already have been found, while over a hundred persons were injured, many of them severely, according to reports received here.

The Russian fleet was sighted at eight o'clock in the morning rapidly approaching the city, and opened fire while still at a great distance. It approached to within a little over three miles, but withdrew before the Bulgarian batteries could make them fire effective.

According to officials here, the Russians have scorched out the Bulgarian batteries, but merely shelled the city, especially the harbour sections, where Greeks form the majority of the population. The people are greatly excited over the bombardments of Bulgarian cities on the Aegean and Black Seas.

The damage done by the bombardment of Aegean Sea towns and villages by the allied fleet recently was greater than at first reported. One-fourth of the entire city of Dedeag-hatch was razed by the shells of the warships.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

New York Evening Post: All told, the political excitements in Britain are shuffleful—not to say a trifle artificial. They do not go to the heart of the British attitude or the British purpose. The members of the Government know that the reproaches now heaped upon them are only of the sort that were showered upon the Aberdeen Ministry in the '50's, upon Gladstone at the time of the Soudan campaign, and upon Salisbury and Chamberlain in the first months of the Boer War. These things will pass, and so long as the strength and will of the British people continue bent to the great tasks laid upon them by the war can be confident of the final result.

GREAT BATTLE BEING FOUGHT WITH BULGARS

RUMANIA'S STAFF FAVOUR INTERVENTION

Allies Engaged in Great Battle With The Bulgarians

Fierce Fighting Reported in the Strumnitza Region—Serbian Situation is Growing Worse According to To-day's Reports and Serbs Are in a Bad Plight—Rumania However is Expected to Join the Allies.

ATHENS, Nov. 1.—The Allied troops and Bulgarians are engaged to-day in a great battle in the Strumnitza and Krivolak regions.

The Allies' artillery is superior to the Bulgarians, but the former are outnumbered, and reinforcements are slow in coming, despite the stories that they are on the way.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Serbia's plight is growing rapidly worse to-day.

The Germans are fifty miles south of the Danube in places. The Austrians, driving eastward from the direction of Vice Grad, are making some progress, though hampered by the Montenegrins, who hung on their right flank. The Bulgarians are already in force along and east and west line from their frontier to the Nish-Salonika railway, in the Veles and Uskub region. In small numbers, this line is extended to the westward of the railway with scouts, according to some accounts, on the Albanian frontier. This front, the Bulgars are trying to strengthen, so as effectually to cut the Serbian army in two.

From the north-west the Germans are directing a fierce drive against Kragujevac, the site of Serbia's big arsenal, sixty miles a little to the east of the south of Belgrade.

Gen. Von Gallwitz has crushed the Serbian resistance in the Razana region, sixty miles south-west of Belgrade, and forty miles south of the Save River.

The Serbian resistance was amittedly degenerating more and more into guerilla fighting, which annoys but does not check the Teutonic invaders.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—(French Official Communique).—"Fighting continues without change in our positions in the vicinity of Tahure," the War Office announced to-day, reporting operations on the Western front.

Violent artillery encounters and infantry skirmishing between the French and Bulgarians in Serbia also reported.

"In the vicinity of Istip, the Bulgarians, reconnoitering, withdrew," it was announced, "without fighting."

"In the Rabovo region an artillery duel and infantry skirmishes occurred, without definite result.

"From Krivolak to Veles there has been violent cannonading."

The Serbian towns referred to, with the exception of Veles, which is on the railway, are east of the Nish-Salonika line, in Southern Serbia.

MILAN, Nov. 1.—At a meeting of Roumania headquarters staff, held to discuss the military policy of that country, two-thirds of the generals declared in favour of entering the war on the side of the Quadruple Entente.

LAY LIKE CORPSE THREE DAYS AND NIGHTS CLOSE TO GERMAN TRENCHES

Private Arthur Phipps, of Peterborough's First Contingent Was in Thickest of Fight at Langemarck—German Party Turned Him Over and Believed Him Dead

A HARROWING EXPERIENCE

Like the last chapter of an historical romance which draws to a close with the pleasant prospect of entering a peaceful harbour along life's even shore after braving the tumult and tempest is the homecoming of Private Arthur Phipps.

Wounded by a shrapnel shell at St. Julien, exposed for three days and three nights in the death swept plain that stretches between the opposing battle lines, known in the language of the trenches as "no man's land," removed under the protection of night by stretcher bearers, and carried to the base with eight wounds demanding attention, nursed back to convalescence, married to his sweetheart of boyhood days, and presented on his return with a completely furnished home, the gift of his adoring mother! Fiction is flat and stagey in the light of this youth's experiences of the past year and a half, who is now entering the first part of the last chapter possibly appalled for the extreme chance of intimating that "they" lived happy ever after.

His Mother's Greeting.

Private Phipps' return emphasizes one happy feature of the soldier's homecoming and family reunion, inspiring as it does the mutual love that burns a brighter flame from the dangers that have been encountered. Yesterday, his mother received a telegram from her son that he was leaving Montreal, and at the same time the Khaki Club of Montreal notified Mayor Buller that he had left for Peterborough. Mr. A. W. Cressman very kindly placed his car at the disposal of the Speakers' Patriotic League, and it was arranged for the young soldier's mather or wife to go to Port Hope to meet the International Limited. Mrs. Phipps, junior, insisted on the mother going, with the result that her wish since her son was wounded at Langemarck was fulfilled. For she had desired to meet her boy apart from a crowd where she could have him all to herself. He had arrived at Port Hope where some gentleman noticed him as he alighted from the train. Enquiring whether he was returning from the front, the stranger forthwith took Private Phipps in charge to the Queen's registered him, and requested the privilege of paying his expenses. It was in the hotel that mother and son met, and afterwards motored to Peterborough last night.

In the Thickest of the Fight.

Arthur Phipps is only 21 years of age. His 22nd birthday is in February next. He joined the first Peterborough Contingent, and as he modestly says, he was spared to live through the now memorable engagement at Langemark, which began at daybreak on Thursday, April 22nd. Private Phipps recalls the charge in which the Canadians immortalized themselves, and the details of which are generally known. He was in the midst of the Peterborough Company. Following the usual tactics the men rushed forward, their bodies close to the ground, upon which they threw themselves at short intervals to avoid as much of the storm as possible. Men were dropping here and there, but at length numbers of them covered the intervening distance and came to arms length with the enemy. Private Phipps said he was mad with the anger of battle whose turmoil raged around hime like an inferno which he did not attempt to describe. He particularly recalls dragging his bayonet from one Prussian's breast, and witnessing the narrow escape of Tom Jolly from meeting a similar fate at the hands of the enemy. Private Phipps purposely avoided details and preferred to skip over his share in the execution. He says that there was line after line of the enemy, and he remembers his wondering where they all were coming from. The dead piled up in heaps.

Done For By Shrapnel Shell.

Finally, in the hottest part of the fray, a shrapnel shell burst right over the line wounding Phipps particularly on the right leg, the most serious injury extending from the knee to the hip. The leg was also badly lacerated. Covered with blood he lay within four yards of the Germans, where they began to dig themselves in. Private Phipps' opinion is that when the charge was begun it was merely a question of whom would deliver the charge first. When they reached the Germans they were not entrenched, at least not in formidable trenches. In front of the Peterborough Company they appeared to be on the surface as were the Canadians, and the men who reached the enemy [illegible] some bat.

Played Dead.

And this, to the civilian, is the strangest part of this awful picture. Private Phipps said he fell and lay about four yards away from the Germans where they were digging themselves in. He simulated death to the best of his ability, holding his breath and wondering what would happen. The enemy examined many of the bodies that lay before them turning them over to make sure there was no spark of life left in them. Private Phipps was subjected to this examination, and must have loked a real corpse. And of their use of the bayonet——. For three days and three nights Private Phipps lay in that position. Three bullets from the enemy's trench were shot into him. One of them which might have been fatal struck a brass button—it is one of the few souvenirs he brough back—clipping a circular nick in it, and passd on to a packet of zig-zag cigarette papers in the pocket of his tunic.

Dead and Wounded Near Him.

Tom Jolly, who had been shot in the shoulder lay almost beside him, and at night whispered for assistance, but Private Phipps was unable to move to help him. They were separated by only a short distance. Fred Mockett, also wounded, lay nearby. There were also Phipps' pal, young J. Aspey, Harry Saunders, and a chap named Wood, all of "A" Company, the Peterborough crowd. And the dead in that place included Minorgan, Gibson, Boswell, Taylor and others. Private Phipps saw Sergt. Major Howarth cut up by machine gun fire. Stan Garrett, who was also wounded, was the last man Private Phipps shook hands with just before the order to charge was given.

T. H. Griffiths' Death.

Private Tom Griffiths, Jr., a stretcher bearer, deserved a decoration in the opinion of Private Phipps. It is true that he is dead, but his deed should be recognized. On the second night after the engagement Griffiths crawled up under cover of darkness to the little group of wounded almost at the edge of the enemy's trench. Phipps asked to be taken back and was being picked up by Griffiths when he received a bullet in the shoulder. He carried back ten men after that injury, and had brought back the eleventh, and had just lifted him into their own trench when a shell broke quite close to him. Although Griffiths was lost, Private Phipps regards his bravery as worthy of official recognition.

On the following night Private Phipps was brought back by stretcher bearers, and rushed to Boulogne, and afterwards was removed to Broadstairs, Eng., and on August 25th to Shorncliffe. He was married on September 26, and with his wife sailed for Canada on the Corsican on October 15th.

Presented With Home.

His mother told The Examiner that she is leaving shortly to join her husband who is employed in a carpet works in the United States. She has only one other boy who will accompany her, but to her elder son she is leaving her home on Fradette avenue, near the Street Railway Wharf, and will take nothing but personal apparel This is Private Phipps' wedding present from his parents. It is understood that employees of the Brinton Carpet Works, where he was formerly engaged, have certain felicitations to extend to him.

Whereabouts of Wounded.

Private George Brunton, who had been quartermaster of a battalion, Cpl. Boyce is with the reserve battalion, Lance Corporal Harry Yates is at Epsom, Tom Levoir is with the reserve battalion, Stan Garrett is at Monks Horton. Private Phipps said he had read that Private Briscoe was a prisoner. Frank Dudley is running a typewriter in an orderly room at Shorncliffe. These are some of the Peterborough boys wounded and recovered.

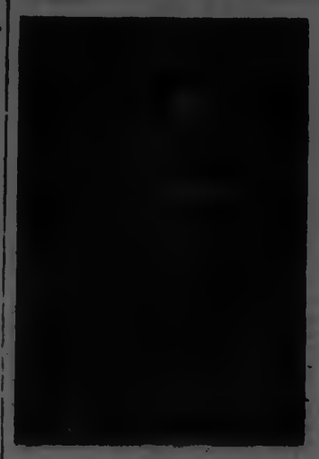
Lame for Life.

Private Phipps will apparently be lame for the rest of his days. His right leg from the knee to the hip still requires a pad. In his interview with The Examiner he did not offer to tell all he knew, but spoke quite freely of some of the major details as he recollected them. At that, his memory, as well as his whole nervous system, has not completely recovered from his experiences, and his eight wounds. Besides, the din and anger of battle probably shut out many things. However, Private Phipps refers to his part in the action with becoming modesty, and one would almost feel that he had regarded it as a matter of fact, sort of a day's work that had to be done once it was begun.

The officers, he said, went down early, and after Capt. Watson of the tenth was knocked out, the command of the company was taken by Sergt.-Major Howarth.

One fact is obvious in Private Phipps' narrative, namely that his more intimate details are based on the fact that he was one of those of Peterborough's company who reached the Prussian soldiers. Like the other returned men, he wonders at his escape, especially after being led into one of the hottest corners.

The soldier employee of the Brinton Carpet Co. may not be able to resume work. Certainly not for the present.



PRIVATE ARTHUR PHIPPS, wounded at Langemarck. He returned to his home, Fradette avenue, and receives it as a wedding present from his mother.

PRIVATE T. H. GRIFFITHS, Jr., killed at Langemarck, according to Private Phipps, and, in his opinion, deserving of official recognition for bravery in bringing wounded.

CROWN MAY ASK FOR ADJOURNMENT

Lindsay's Will Open Before County Police Magistrate Langley on Thursday

Sandford Lindsay, and his wife, Mrs. Phoebe Lindsay, who are awaiting trial on a charge of murdering their fourteen-year old daughter, will appear before County Police Magistrate Langley on Thursday morning next. It is altogether likely that Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton will ask for a further adjournment in order to complete the preparation of the case. The district in which the Lindsays lived is very sparsely settled and some difficulty has been experienced in getting the witnesses together. The case has aroused widespread interest and has given wings to a number of ugly stories concerning the manner in which the alleged crime was committed.

Judge—"You are charged with assault and battery. What have you to say?" Prisoner—"Not a word yer honner. It was sayin' too much got me into this scrape."

A RECEPTION TO PTE. PHIPPS AT ARMOURIES TO-NIGHT

Returned Hero Will Be Escorted by the 93rd Battalion and Addresses of Welcome Will Be Given—Company of 93rd Battalion Started To-day.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

A reception will be tendered Pte. A. W. Phipps, invalided home from the 2nd Battalion, by the civic and military authorities to-night. At 7 o'clock Pte. Phipps, who arrived yesterday, will be escorted to the armouries by the band and men of the 93rd Battalion. On the arrival of the procession there will be short addresses of welcome to the returned hero. It is hoped that the citizens will turn out in numbers and show their appreciation of the manner in which Pte. Phipps has done his bit for the Empire.

The Normal School soccer team got revenge for their beating at the hands of the 93rd team in the first game by taking the soldiers into camp 3 goals to 2 in the return game at Nicholls Oval Saturday afternoon. It was a fast and exciting exhibition with the result in doubt until the last minute. The students won the toss and elected to kick with the wind and from the kick off they [illegible] got the first goal. Scott duing the trick after a shot by T. Hardman. The students equalised just before half-time.

In the first minute of the second half Kitchen scored a beautiful goal for the 93rd, and for the next few minutes the men in khaki had much the better of the playing, nearly scoring twice on nicely-placed corners by Sergt. Hartshorn. With the wind in their favour and a one-goal lead the soldiers looked like winners all over, but midway through the second half the students took a brace, and from then on to the final whistle had the better of the argument. The students' forwards played fine football at this stage and two clever passing attacks resulted in pretty goals for the Normal men. The 93rd tried hard to even up but could not accomplish the trick.

A third game will be played to decide the series.

The 93rd team lined up as follows: Goal—Sergt Calladine.
Backs—Pte. Norman, Lance-Corp. Coleman.
Half-backs — Pte. Taylor, Sergt. Kinz, Pte. A. Hardman.
Forwards—Sergt. Hartshorn, Pte. Scott, Pte. Edwards, Pte. T Hardman, Pte. Kitchen.

Pte. Frank Seaton of the 93rd had his shoulder dislocated while roller skating at Brock Street Rink on Saturday night. Majors Eastwood and Cameron were summoned and the injured soldier removed to the hospital in a motor car.

Twenty members of the 93rd Battalion were on special police duty on Saturday night as a precautionary measure in the event of the combination of pay-day and Hallowe'en causing trouble. No disturbance of any kind was reported, however, and the conduct of the soldiers was as exemplary Saturday night as it has been throughout their stay here

Sergt Harold Knapman of the 33rd Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F., is home from Barrenfield Camp, on leave

The 93rd Band is taking the football proposition seriously. The musicians spent the Saturday afternoon half holiday practicing on the parade ground for their games this week with the teams representing the different platoons.

A glance over a militia list of several years ago reveals the fact that out of the officers of the Collegiate Institute cadet corps at that time seven are on active service and another has volunteered and is awaiting an appointment. R. F. Hill, who was the cadet battalion commander, is now Lieut. H F Hill of the 36th Battalion, C.E.F., Bermuda. The cadet adjutant, J. Reg. Stratton, is now Lieut. J. R. Stratton of the Royal Engineers, now in England. E. D. Huycke, the company leader of A Company, is now Lieut. Huycke of the 33rd Battery, Barrenfield. A. Horsfield, half company leader in B Company, is now with the 93rd Battalion. G. M. Huycke, company leader of C Company, is now Lieut.

800 MEN SHOULD BE PETERBORO'S SHARE IN NEW ARMY

If the City's Splendid Enlistment Record is to be Maintained There Will Have to be 160 Recruits Per Month Until April 1st

OVER 1300 ALREADY IN

If Peterborough is to supply her share of the new army of 100,000 men which General Hughes expects to have mobilized by spring, this city must keep up the pace that it has set since August 1st. It is estimated, basing the figures on the percentage of recruits that have enlisted here since the war began, that Peterborough's contribution to the new army should be 800 men by the 1st of April or an average of 160 men per month. Of the 1300 have enlisted in Peterborough [illegible] not including the many Peterborough men who have enlisted elsewhere—which means that out of every 137 men who joined the colours in Canada, one joined in Peterborough. Since August 1st recruits have been enlisted in Peterborough at rate of 170 a month, 510 having joined in August, September and October. This average must practically be maintained until spring if Peterborough is to have the same proportion of the additional troops as she has had of those already enlisted. There is a big task before the military authorities and the Speakers' Patriotic League in the coming months to maintain a weekly addition to the forces of between 35 and 40 men, but every effort must be made to maintain the average set since August 1st.

War Pictures At The Royal

Five Reel Production Depicting the Activities of the Allied Armies

The management of the Royal Theatre has secured at considerable expense, one of the best war films seen in this country for some time. The picture, which is a five reel production, depicts the activities of the Russian, British and other troops of the allies armies now operating in the field.

The picture will be shown to-night and to-morrow night at the usual prices. In addition to this, two side splitting comedy pictures will be shown.

Do They Suit You Now?

Your glasses may have suited you some time ago, when you purchased them. Do they suit you now? The necessity for a change may not be apparent to you. Would it not be advisable to make sure, by having an eye specialist examine them; his skill charge for examination. Your eyes need examining every year. TO-NIGHT AT THE EMPIRE

"The Rug Maker's Daughter" presents the world-famous dancer, Maud Allan, for the first time as a film star. She presents three of her most beautiful dances. TWO IDEALS.

There is a light-and-darkness difference between German ideals and the ideals that inspire the conduct of the Allies; that form the basis of our hostility and of our determination to prevent German "kultur" becoming a dominant force in the world, to the bedevilling of all that Christian civilization stands for. Six German officers, stained their honour and broke their word in breaking their parole. They were officers on the German cruiser, the Kronprinz Wilhelm, interned in an United States harbour. That they were captured on the high seas in their stolen yacht, does not lessen their disregard of truth and honour, which is of a piece with the scrap of paper evidence of German honour, and of the universal programme of crookedness, lying, spying, deceit and disregard of the rules of war that characterize German methods. In striking contrast is the French idea of honour and good faith. A French aviator was interned in Switzerland, a neutral country like the United States. He refused to give his parole, and after allowing time for his refusal to reach the proper authorities, made his escape and returned to France. The Swiss Government entered a protest saying that the aviator's refusal to give his parole had not been received, though the failure, as investigation showed, was the fault of the Swiss postal service. In spite of this the French authorities, animated by an honourable spirit, and to avoid the very appearance of bad faith, ordered the aviator to return to Switzerland and surrender himself. This he did. What a contrast. We are proud of such an ally, an ally of a country that went to war, not for conquest, but to keep her plighted word to protect the neutrality of Belgium, spending billions to keep the national honour clean.

A QUARTER OF A MILLION.

A Peterborough man, "H. B.", writes to the intelligence department of the Toronto Star, asking if Canada is a nation. Certainly she is. Canada governs herself in all respects. She, perhaps, does not make war, but she would make war without asking anybody's leave if our soil were invaded. Canada, however, does make war: Without being asked — of her own free will, Canada has sent armies to the battlefield in France and Flanders. She has 173,000 soldiers under arms, and now the report comes from Ottawa that we are to add enough to this number to make our total military forces under arms 250,000. This will call for the enlistment of nearly 80,000 additional soldiers.

The despatch states that "steps will be taken in the immediate future" to enlist the additional number of men required to bring the total of Canadian forces up to the quarter of a million mark. The real, the actual, "steps to be taken" will have to be taken by the young men of Canada by stepping into the ranks; and these steps must be encouraged by the Government. The only steps the Government can take is to practically encourage recruiting by guaranteeing that the recruited soldier will be provided with everything necessary to contribute to his efficiency. A prompt provision of uniforms and equipment is a prime necessity, as both are actual and moral encouragement. There must also be a guarantee that when our soldiers get to the fighting line they wil be equipped with arms sufficient to put them on even terms with the enemy. There needs to be a great increase of machine guns in order to put Canadian soldiers upon a level with Germans in this regard. If the Government want to "take steps," among the first steps should be the disentanglement of the machine gun muddle. If soldiers are assured that they will be equipped with uniforms, guns, and machine guns, equal at least to the equipment of the enemy they have to combat, the encouragement to enlistment will be sensibly increased. If we recruit the required hundred thousand new troops, the Government must in all ways do its share, and there need be little concern about our young manhood doing theirs.

BE GOOD TO THE FIGHTERS.

At the meeting of the local Women's Christian Temperance Union, a report was made of what the W.C.T.U. of Ontario had done for the soldiers at the front. It had sent three field ambulances at a cost of $1,500 each, and also had sent $300 to a hospital ship. This is splendid work and worthy of all commendation. A lady also made a report of the Ottawa convention which stated that a Mr. Smith, a young man who had been at the front "spoke on the evils of drink and cigarettes. He had been waist deep in mud and water and never touched either." Mr. Smith may, but probably does not, speak the sentiments of the Smith family; and he doesn't speak the sentiments of the vast majority of soldiers in the trenches, who demand "smokes" first, last and always, and even demand the deadly cigarette. We have every evidence of the demand of the soldiers for cigarettes, and tobacco as a source of infinite comfort to them in their strenuous life. We have evidence that they improve the morale of the soldiers, by giving him an indefinable, but very real comfort; then, if he wants "smokes," even in the form of the cigarette, let him have them. Cigarette smoking is only injurious when excessively practiced; and there is no danger that the soldiers in the trenches will get enough to indulge in their intemperate use. Since they comfort the soldiers in conditions where comforts are scarce, let them have the cigarettes. They won't do them any harm. None of the military authorities, who have the responsibility of keeping our soldiers fit, have put the ban on tobacco; in fact they have approved of it. Dr. Ryerson, head of the Canadian Red Cross, who has been in the war zone and has a superlative interest in the welfare of the soldiers, and knows what he is talking about, recommends providing the soldiers with cigarettes. It is a reasonable thing and a good thing to encourage our soldiers, and it seems sentimental heartlessness to deny them the comfort and uplift of a smoke. The W.C.T.U. is doing a noble work in combatting the vice of strong drink, and it does not seem consistent to waste so much energy on minor, and under the circumstances, problematical evils. Nothing is too good for our soldiers, and if they get comfort from a stray cigarette or two, let us help give it them.

BEAUTIFUL THREE-FIFTHS.

Funny thing that three-fifths handicap which the Ontario Government has imposed on municipalities which desire to exercise local option for the suppression of the liquor traffic! When the question was submitted to the electors of Brantford in January, 1910, they gave a majority in its favour of 311. This was not sufficient to overcome the handicap, and hence the by-law was defeated. Had it received 55 votes more it would have carried, and there would to-day be no intoxicants sold in Brantford. What a farcical value to give to 55 votes after a majority of 300 had been secured.—Brantford Expositor.

LONG BOOTS FOR CANADIAN SOLDIERS.

The Government has at last given an order for 50,000 pairs of shoepacks, with soles, for the use of Canada's soldiers during the coming winter. The Government are to be congratulated on the move. As long ago as the beginning of August Senator J. P. B. Casgrain, in an interview published in The Herald, advocated this form of footwear, and went exhaustively into the reasons. It is a pity that, owing to red tape, the Council has delayed so long in putting this recommendations into effect. However, better late than never. There can be no doubt that when they get their shoe packs the Canadians will be the best-shod troops in the field for winter work. Indeed, the increased general efficiency is estimated by Senator Casgrain to be equal to the raising of an additional regiment.— Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

THE SLOGAN OF SERVICE.

"As an optimistic sign of the times, the motto of the Liberal Club Federation of Ontario, "Service," is significant. It marks a real development in political ideals and in a definite, vivid way summarizes graphically what may be called the "renaissance of idealism" in politics. . . . .

"The Liberal Club Federation of Ontario, from its inception two and a half years ago, has been a promising and often an inspiring organization. Its adoption of "Service" as a motto is consistent not only with its prospects, but with its history. The Federation has a splendid record of actual enlistments for the front from its officers and members. Those who for various reasons cannot serve with the colours at present are evidently determined that through their organization they will do their share in various kinds of patriotic endeavours and activities."—Toronto Star.

An Eye-Witness Writes of Turkish Atrocities Upon Christian Armenians

The following article is from the pen of Prof. J. P. Zenos, of the American College in Marsovan, Asia Minor, Turkey. He left Marsovan on the third day of August, this year, and finally arrived at Constantinople. From that city he travelled through Bulgaria and Greece, and finally, in the early days of this month, he reached Boston, where he is now staying.

Prof. Zenos says:

Up to early April the entire Christian population of the Ottoman Empire had felt itself walking into the jaws of a great monster. Everywhere there was a feeling of suspense. We all knew that this terrible suspense would soon be succeeded by horrible acts against the lives of the Christians.

Finally, the month of April, this year, brought with it new and strange terrors. Instead of barricading our homes against the attacks of wild and fanatical Moslem mobs, instead of hearing those familiar weird and terror spreading "Holy War" paeans of the wild Moslem plunderers, instead of being struck as of old by the sights of insane Moslem mobs bearing oil cans and torches and torches and seeking Christian habitations, we saw uniformed soldiers led by well-dressed young officers making systematic visitations.

Marsovan, a city of a Christian population numbering about 15,000, can to-day boast of being a Turkish city without an Armenian.

Yet no one was shot dead on the street corners. No Christian house was set on fire. We did not hear as of old heart breaking lamentations issuing from every direction. We did not see small streams of blood flowing through the gutters.

No, this was a different kind of extermination; different and more efficient methods were employed.

On the 28th day of April twenty-five leading Armenians of the city were arrested at midnight, and the very next day they were sent to Sevas. But alas! Sevas was not their destination. We heard they were all killed. After four hours journey they were taken near a pool, shot, and cast into its black waters.

The following week at midnight, again led by well-dressed military officers, Turkish soldiers in uniform visited other Christian homes, and took fifty more leading Armenians out of their beds. The next day, early in the morning, this hopeless group of young and middle-aged men were despatched, again ostensibly to Sevas to the capital of the province.

Promised No Harm.

But Sevas was too distant for the arabs drivers to return so soon. The drivers were back that night.

The official public "crier" heralded from the public squares that if the Christian population of Marsovan surrendered their arms and weapons into the hands of the military officers the government would see to it that no harm would come to them.

Our Christians were once more fooled. They formed a committee of their own composed of twelve men, who went from house to house and gathered all arms and weapons; they even collected the kitchen knives. Cartloads of these weapons of all sizes and calibres were surrendered, and the Christians entrusted themselves to the tender mercy of the cunning Turkish officers.

Then early in June the wholesale rounding up of the Armenians, Roman Catholic and Protestant, was in full force. They first gathered up all the young and middle-aged male Christians.

Day after day we hopelessly watched the poor victims march between platoons of soldiers. Tied to one another, these ill-fated men marched like herds of sheep, their heads drooped; a few seemed resigned and walked with some bravado, but the majority of the victims walked as though they were walking in their sleep.

After the military had finished with the men they started with the woman and children. Then the real tragedy, the undescribable tragedy, began!

Terrible Treatment of Women.

Arabas filled with human freight lined the highways as far as one could see. They were all bound east, far east, to far off Musul, in Mesopotamia, 2,000 miles away. A whole race suddenly being transported to a distant clima.

Millions of husbandless and fatherless women, forced to march in care of brutal, beastly Moslem guards to a locality infested with hereditary Moslem robber bands.

So, fearing that after the declaration of war by Bulgaria, the extermination process would reach us Greeks, I obtained my travelling papers and with my wife and four children left the city of Marsovan. There were very few Armenians left in our city, not more than 300 all told.

Together with two Greek students from Constantinople an Armenian professor, his young bride and a little child, an Armenian woman, formerly of Manchester, England, and her four daughters varying in age from 6 to 14, we started on our dangerous journey.

We hired nine horse driven carts. The few Armenians who were so far spared came to see us. One and all they bade us bon voyage.

Some days later during our journey over the highways of Asia Minor I learned from several Turkish officials that even these few Christians of Marsovan were rounded up and sent away to an unknown destination.

VICTORY A MATTER OF ENDURANCE

The ultra confident editorials of the New York Tribune declaring that there was no possible way in which Germany could win in the war providing the allies did not make the mistake of consenting to a premature peace is not only logical but is in accord with the assertion made upon the outbreak of hostilities by such men as Kitchener and Lloyd George. Both these men declared repeatedly that it was to be a war of endurance and of resources, and it is upon the superior endurance and resources of the allies that the Tribune bases its assertions.

Kitchener and Lloyd George knew what they were talking about. They didn't expect to defeat Germany in a year or a year and a half. Kitchener spoke of three years as the time required to exhaust Germany. They were well aware that the enemy had all the advantages in the matter of the readiness of resources at the outbreak of hostilities. Everyone else knew this, in fact. It was a matter of physical impossibility to have prevented Germany from getting the better of the campaign in its early stages. Her resources were all in readiness, while those of the allies were not. But the allies' resources were eventually and surely to be called into use, and in the matter of quantity they were far in excess of those of Germany.

And even before the allies had begun to draw upon their latent strength, to convert their industrial strength into war machinery, Germany had brought up and exhausted huge quantities of her resources in men and material. From the time she was checked at the Marne, this expenditure of her strength has gained for her practically nothing, her subsequent gains in the east having little more than a political value. But ever since the turning at the Marne she has been continuing to bleed herself. She has even now started upon a new campaign that is drawing, not only upon her last reserves, but upon the strength she needs to retain her gains in France, Belgium and Russia.

When the war started it was conceded that the decision must go to the side that could stay in the field the longest, that victory was for those who could produce the last man, the last gun and the last dollar. Germany is fast exterminating her men, her guns and her dollars, while the allies have still a vast unenumerated strength.

It is against all laws of reason that Germany should win if the allies do not give up the fight. Even mistakes such as those that are being charged against the British and French governments cannot avail to prevent defeat for Germany. — Ottawa Free Press.

SMALL SHOPS TO GET ORDERS

Reorganized Shell Committee Will Give Work to Every Factory Wanting It.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—D. A. Thomas, representative of Lloyd George, imperial minister of munitions, concluded his work in Canada to-day, and will leave for England via New York.

The Canadian Shell Committee will now come directly under the control of Lloyd-George and orders and contracts for munitions will pass directly from the imperial department of munitions through the shell committee here to the factories.

While he is in New York, Mr. Thomas will undergo an operation for an ailment which has been giving him some trouble for years.

Sir Frederick Donaldson, the British expert from Woolwich arsenal; Lionel Hitchins of the Cammell Laird Company; General Mahon, who has been acting as technical advisor to Mr. Thomas, and General Bertram of the old shell committee, had a conference with Mr. Thomas this morning and conclude the details of the work which the reorganized committee will do.

The British representatives have been in constant communication with Sir Robert Borden throughout the negotiations which have been going on. Their work is really not now connected with the militia department.

The personnel of the new shell committee has not been divulged, but the prime minister has intimated that he will give the information in a few days. However, Sir Frederick Donaldson, Mr. Hitchens and Gen. Bertram will be three of the members.

Immense orders for shells are now being placed in Canada and it is understood that the prices paid are much lower than has been the case hitherto. The policy of the committee will be to utilize every available factory in Canada, large and small. Up to now many of the small factories have not secured orders. They will now get them. Orders to the extent of about eighty million dollars are being distributed at present and these will be added to from time to time.

THE WEATHER

The rainfall during October was in great contrast with the two preceding months, and only totalled a trifle over an inch and a half for the entire month, or 1.60. The lowest temperature was 25 degrees, and the highest 71 degrees. The month was an average October in practically all respects.

DEPARTING CITIZEN WAS BANQUETED

LINDSAY, Nov. 1.—This town loses a popular citizen in the departure of Mr. Coleman Blewett of the R. Neill staff, who has been transferred to the Peterborough branch and who leaves for that city on Tuesday. Friday evening about twenty-five of his friends, principally members of the Lindsay Lodge, I.O.O.F., of which Mr. Blewett was a Past Grand, and who was also one of its most indefatigable members, tendered him a banquet at the Royal Hotel and the function was a fitting tribute to his worth and popularity. Mr. Herb. Middleton occupied the chair in inimitable style, and his witty repartee and originality did much to add to the evening's pleasure and ease the pangs of regret over Mr. Blewett's departure. A feature of the banquet was the presentation to Mr. Blewett of a handsome Oddfellows and Masonic locket. The presentation was made by Mr. Neil McFayden, Past Dis. Deputy G. M., in a neat speech, to which Mr. Blewett feelingly replied.

"The German People."

St. Louis Republic:—"The execution of this frank and noble Englishwoman, whose whole life had been given to the service of the sick, did not result from anything in the feelings of the German people; it resulted from something in the theories of the German government."

Satisfied.

There is supreme satisfaction in knowing just what you want, and getting it. There is very great lack of satisfaction in not knowing exactly what you want and getting something you are not quite sure of. If you will read the advertising columns, you will probably find just what you want, and where to get it. The makers and sellers of things, good to eat or to wear, do not make any mystery of their business. They tell you, as plainly as print can, what they have, and how good it is, and most of them give an unqualified guarantee of satisfaction. Read the advertisements, know what you want, and insist upon getting it.

Marches of the 33rd Battery draft at Rose Barracks, Shornecliffe, Eng. C. V. Fessenden, one of the half company leaders in D Company, is now Lieut. Fessenden, of the 48th Highlanders, 1st contingent, a prisoner in Germany, and H. M. Wallis, another half-company leader, is a lieutenant at the front with the first contingent.

Pte. Fred Sawyer of No. 1 Platoon, A Company, 33rd, is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from an attack of appendicitis. He was taken suddenly ill on Saturday morning.

Lieut Stewart of A Company, 33rd Battalion, was in Lindsay Saturday, with Capt. Layfield, quartermaster of the 39th Battalion. The latter transferred some uniforms belonging to the Lindsay Company of the 33rd. Lindsay has forty recruits for the new battalion, who will form part of the Company which is to do its training at Lindsay.

The receipt of a subscription of $1 from Mr. Blewett of Lakefield for the 33rd Band Fund, is acknowledged. It helped to pay the expenses of the concert at Lakefield on Friday night.

The final game of football between the Normal School and the 33rd Battalion will be played on Saturday at Riverside park. Each has won a game and the final should be a hard battle. It is likely that there will be a Rugby game on the programme as well, a match between the Collegiate and Old Boys. It is expected that the 33rd band will be on hand to add to the hilarity and the proceeds of the afternoon's sport will be devoted to the band fund.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—Discussing the call for 100,000 more troops, General Hughes this morning stated that he had sent out orders to have every qualified officer in the militia fit for overseas duty to report to their district officers commanding in order to have them allotted to regiments.

Qualified officers who are unable to go to the front for various reasons will also report for instruction purposes and their services will be utilized as instructors.

General Hughes is very optimistic as to his recent plan of local recruiting. He has offers this morning of one or two regiments from each of the counties of Bruce, Wellington, Huron, Perth and Waterloo.

With reference to the clothing and equipment for the new troops the minister of militia points out that the British regiments have been in training for six months before being armed and there is no reason why Canadian troops should not go ahead and train before receiving military clothing.

General Hughes added that while in France he saw thousands of French troops in the trenches without the regular army uniforms. They wore a butternut brown and were unable to get the regulation colour.

Master Percy Luther, "the little recruiting sergeant," who has been the pet of the Peterborough soldiers since the present recruiting campaign began, and whose recitations at meetings here and in the surrounding country have been a most effective recruiting medium, left Peterborough last night. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Luther, who for some years have resided on Lansdowne Street, are returning to Montreal, which is Master Percy's birth-place. The little fellow attended church parade with the battalion yesterday morning, and on their return to the Armouries took farewell of the men. In a little speech he expressed the hope that he would be able to come to Peterborough at Christmas and see them all again. The youngster then proceeded to shake hands with every member of the four platoons and of the band. A number of the 93rd were at the C. P. R. Station last night to say goodbye to the little recruiting sergeant.

Promotions Made.

The organization of B Company of the 66rd Battalion was commenced this morning, when No. 5 platoon of the Battalion was launched with Sergt. W. Jones as Platoon Sergeant. There are some forty men already available for the first platoon of the new company. The organization of the platoon has necessitated a number of promotions and also a reorganization to some extent in A Company. The following promotions appeared in orders to-day:

No. 5 Platoon—
To be Platoon Sergeant—Sergt. W. Jones.
To be Sergeant—Corp. Jay.
To be Lance Sergeant—Corp. W. Theobald.
To be Corporal—Lance Corp. Coleman.
To be Corporal—Pte. R. Willshow.
To be Lance-Corp. Pte. Frank Traynor.
To be Lance-Corp—Pte. O'Heron.
No. 4 Platoon—
To be Sergeant—Lance-Sergt. Freeman.
No. 3 Platoon—
To be Corporal—Pte. Millership.
No. 1 Platoon—
To be Lance Corporal—Pte. Brown.
To be Lance Corporal—Pte. Stanley.

Major R. T. Hounsell is supervising the recruiting work in Peterborough, and has been in charge of the recruiting headquarters on Simcoe Street. Quite a number of new recruits were examined to-day and six were taken on the strength of the 93rd this morning. Among them are the two Rowe to the 39 mark, which will be easily iverside Park. Each has won a game. terborough Battalion. The strength of the local detachment is now close to the 300 mark, which will be easily left behind before the end of the week. Most of the recruits to-day were from the surrounding district, and a large number from the rural localities is expected from now on as the farm work is pretty well over now and farmers' sons and employees are now free to join the colours.

Lt. Col. Johnston received instructions from Col Hemming, district officer commanding to-day to proceed at once with the organization of the 93rd Battalion, Peterborough is to be the headquarters of the battalion, which means, of course, that the Battalion's affairs will be administered from here and all returns from the other two companies will be made here. The battalion organization is already well under way. A Company, the first one recruited here, is complete in all respects, and B Company, the second Peterborough Company is now being organized. The organization of the Cobourg and Lindsay companies will be proceeded with at once, and it is likely that some of the non-coms. here will be sent to Cobourg and Lindsay to assist in this work. The staff of officers of the 93rd are to be announced from headquarters to-morrow, it is expected. Lt.-Col. Walker of the 57th egiment has been notified of the 57th Regiment has been notified have been recommended, but their names cannot be published until the appointments have been confirmed.

Pte. Phipps and his wife and mother will be guests of honour and occupy a box at the Grand Opera House to-night for the presentation of "Three Twins."

Y. W. C. A. ACTIVITIES FOR PRESENT WEEK

One Hundred and Seventy-Five Attended the Hallowe'en Social

That the Young Women's Christian Association is making itself felt in the city is evident by the members attending classes and socials. One hundred and seventy five were at the Hallowe'en Masquerade Social on Friday night. The costumes were wonderful creations, showing inventive minds and skilful fingers. The gymnasium was gaily decorated for the occasion. Everyone seemed glad they came and no one seemed in a hurry to leave. The gymnasium members put on several pretty folk dances and with music and games a very pleasant evening was brought to a close.

The following is a schedule of the week's activities:

Monday afternoon — Senior School Girls' Gymnasium.

Evening—Business Girls' Gymnasium.

Tuesday morning—Ladies Gymnasium classes; evening, Business Girls' Gymnasium. Browning Class 8 p.m.

Navigation Season Nearing a Close

Navigation from Rice Lake is likely to be closed within a few weeks, although there has been considerable activity of late. The Geneva carried 65 passengers on Saturday, and the Rainbow 35. The Rainbow has also been freighting grain. The near approach of the final trips is a strong reminder that colder weather is not far distant. However, during the past two years there have been boat trips into December.

Japanese Quick to Use Tsing-Tao

Model City That the Germans Built With So Much Skill is a Real War Prize

RUSH FROM JAPAN OVERDONE.

Many of the New Shops Said to Close—Future of the City and Concession in Doubt.

TSING-TAO, Oct. 30.—Few traces remain of the long siege which robbed the Germans of this model city and turned it into Japanese hands. By means of aeroplane scouts, the Japanese were able to direct the fire of their big guns against the forts of the heights surrounding Tsing-tao so accurately that little damage was done to anything but the military strongholds. A few stray shells landed in the city: Pieces of shell did slight damage to the American Consulate. The Brazilian Consulate was wrecked. A corner was knocked off the Prinz Heinrich Hotel, a pretentious building on the water front. But all damaged walls have been repaired and the beautiful city which the Germans carved out of the granite hills facing Kiao-Chau Bay is moving along peacefully, little changed except that Japanese have replaced Germans.

Instead of 4,000 Europeans who lived in Tsing-tao previous to the siege, 10,000 Japanese have settled here. Many of these have opened up shops and taken over business which the Germans conducted. The Japanese Government discouraged this rush to Tsing-tao, which was overdone to the extent that many of the new shops have had to close.

"Military necessity" has enabled Japanese officials to take over many private institutions as well as the public buildings. Lieut.-Col. Yoshimura, the Military Governor, occupies the handsome stone structure formerly used by Colonel Waldeck, the German Governor of the concession, who is now a prisoner in Japan. This imposing building surmounts a high knoll in the heart of the European section of the city, and the great white flag with the red moon on it which floats from the lofty tower is the first thing which meets the eye of a visitor entering Tsing-tao on the railway manned by Japanese.

Japanese Garrison and Police.

A Japanese garrison of one battalion occupies the barracks on the heights overlooking the city. Japanese soldiers police the city, and two regiments of Japanese are scattered along the 246 miles of railway built by the Germans to connect their seaport with the railway system which touches Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai, and connects those centres with the Yang-tse-Kiang and other great rivers penetrating the interior of China.

General Ohtani commands the Japanese forces in Tsing-tao and along the Shantung Railway. Baron Funakoshi, who was attached to the Japanese Embassy at Berlin before the war, but left that city previous to Japan's declaration of hostilities, is in charge of what the Japanese call a "diplomatic bureau," an organization designed to look after claims and international questions growing out of the war conditions. The American Consul, M. R. Peck, returned to Tsing-tao immediately after the siege and is looking after the interests of Americans and belligerents in a semi-official. He has no official standing and is in much the same position as American Consuls in Belgium. To apply for official recognition from the Japanese would imply admission by the United States of Japan's sovereignty in Tsing-tao and the entire Kiao-Chau concession held by Germany. This comprises an area of many square miles along Kiao-Chau Bay in addition to the city of Tsing-tao proper, but does not include the town of Kiao-Chau, which is frequently confused with the concession bearing the same name.

Rumors are in circulation in Tsing-tao that the Japanese will soon establish a civil government in the concession, but no official announcement has been made. Japan has turned the customs over to China, under Japanese supervision, retaining 20 per cent. of the receipts for operating purposes. Broadly speaking, Japan now stands just where Germany did before the war in relation to the concession. Japan has substituted its name for Germany throughout the treaty agreement between China and Germany, which granted to the Germans the ninety-nine-year lease on the seaport territory and the right to build railways in Shantung Province.

In preparation for the attack of Tsing-tao the Japanese effected a landing in Lao-Shan-Wan Bay, forty-five miles north-west of Tsing-tao, and constructed a temporary railway upon which they moved their 28-centimeter guns and supplies to sites behind the hills surrounding the city. Germans and Chinese believed the Japanese would hold this right of way and build a permanent line, but the Japanese have already taken up the rails and abandoned the route.

German Signs Remain.

Little change has been made in the general appearance of the city by the Japanese. "Rollschuhbahn" is the sign which still stands high above the roller skating rink. The name "Schantung Eisenbahn Gesellschraft" has not been painted out on the rolling stock of the railway, and German signs are still in place above all the stations. "Kaiser Wilhelm Ufer" flouts itself proudly on the street signs along the beautiful marine drive. In all directions the typically German names of firms stand forth on the quaint gables and towers of business houses which suggest Heidelberg or Vienna.

Japanese soldiers ride on all the trains between Tsing-tao and Tsi-nan. It requires twelve hours to make the trip of 246 miles on the single passenger train running each way daily, and the service is very poor. "War times, you know," a Japanese officer remarked when the fact was mentioned that the Germans made the run in nine hours or less. The tracks were damaged somewhat by the high water this spring. Only necessary repairs are being made by the Japanese, who say they did not want to spend any money until the ownership of the line is determined. Under German management the line made from 6 to 8 per cent. annual profit. It has two short spurs into rich coal fields, and had a heavy coal haul. The Japanese say the line is not profitable. It is now carrying many cattle and large quantities of hides and lard, which are sent to Vladivostok for the Russian Army.

The concurrence of the Japanese in England's refusal to carry enemy freight has greatly curtailed both railway and steamer freight at Tsing-tao. Many Germans from Tsing-tao went to Tsi-nan and other Chinese towns to continue their business. Until the Japanese shipping lines put up the bars, the Germans were able to get considerable shipping space through co-operation with neutrals. Germans operated a great brewery in Tsing-tao, which is now run as a British corporation by English stockholders.

The German Monolith.

The most conspicuous monument in Tsing-tao is a great granite monolith which the Germans erected on the waterfront at the point where Germans first landed in 1898 to take over the concession granted to them by China. On each of the four sides of the monument there was formerly a great bronze tablet commemorating the acquisition of this commercial gateway to China. Three of these tablets have been pried off. Only one, bearing the bust of Captain Jaeschke, the first Governor General of the colony, remains. Japanese officers say Chinese coolies stole the tablets for the metal. But the marvellous modern city, which the Germans created in sixteen years, stands as an enduring monument to their constructive genius. Bare granite hills were levelled, graded, and planted with such skill that pines now cover the once barren peaks, and beautiful acacias and maples thrive everywhere in parks and along avenues lined with dignified modern buildings of granite and brick. A magnificent marine drive was created, which winds all about the concession and stands out in startling contrast to the Chinese roads, which have existed for thousands of years, but are scarcely passable for a loaded donkey.

The Germans hoped to make Tsing-tao a German Hongkong. It was to be a naval base commanding the entrance to Central and Northern China's trade, just as Hongkong is the stronghold controlling the commerce of South China. But Germany lacked the navy to defend her remote outpost in the Far East, and Japan's overwhelming military strength was too much for the garrison of 2,500 regulars and 5,000 reservists which stood out against a force of 18,000 Japanese.

Although the Tsing-tao Railway was not opened until 1910, in ten years the German port grew to 40,000 inhabitants, outstripped Che-Foo to the south of it, and was threatening the supremacy of Tien-tsin to the north. It served a province with 40,000,000 inhabitants and promised to become supreme in North China. But the war checked its progress. Its ownership and future developments are now shrouded in uncertainty. Europeans in China never expect to see Germany regain the concession. Although Japan has promised to restore Tsing-tao and the entire concession to China, neither the Chinese nor Europeans resident in China ever expect to see Japan surrender the prize absolutely.

NINETY-THIRD BATTALION AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

War Must Be Prosecuted Until a Satisfactory and Lasting Peace is Obtained, Declares Rev. Robt. Pogue--List of Names of Those Connected With St. Paul's Church Who Have Enlisted For Overseas Service.

Members of the 93rd Battalion paraded to St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday morning where they were privileged to hear an appropriate and inspiring sermon by the pastor, Rev. Robert Pogue. The Battalion was headed by the 93rd Band, which together with the men and civilian section of the congregation combined to tax the seating capacity of the church. A section of the main body of the edifice was reserved for the soldiers. The latter were cordially welcomed by the pastor, who among other things, exhorted them to manifest moral courage. Speaking from Corinthians, 16-13. "Quit you like men be strong"; Rev. Mr. Pogue said that

The expression "Quit you like men," is a metaphor borrowed from the battle fields of long ago. When Paul uses it he not only puts into it the ennobling and stimulating meanings which poets and orators had given it, but he gave it the New Testament signification, and he seemed to say, "Quit you like men made in the image of God and endowed with capacities and faculties which are divine, like men redeemed by the Son of God and who are indwelt by His life, like men guided and controlled by the spirit of God, rather than like creatures guided by mere instinct and impulse." The words suggest the kind of manliness and the type of national life through which alone a victory can come to us that is really worth while, a victory that as a Christian nation we would be justied in speaking of as a victory at all. Our soldiers at the front have certainly played the man, and upheld the noblest traditions of the British Empire and British army. These young men who gave their lives freely and gladly for the cause of the Empire, and who went joyfully to their death, and who died without flinching in a cause which they believed to be right, will serve as examples of heroism to Canadians, and to the British Empire as long as the British Empire shall last.

Ample Justification.

Continuing, he said, "Why has Britain drawn the sword in this struggle? Men never fight so well as when they know they are fighting in a just cause. What are the principles for which we are fighting? Britain drew the sword in this war because no other course was possible to her. And why was no other course possible? The most obvious answer to that question can be given in one word, the word, Belgium. But with the passing of the months we have all come to see what our statesmen and what every intelligent student of German life has seen all along—that the ideals of life as they exist in Germany, had to be fought in the interests of the world at large and of a true Christian civilization. It is because we believe that the triumph of those deals would have a disastrous effect upon the world that Britain not only drew the sword but has determined not to sheath it until the power of German militarism is completely broken. That such a task as this may be accomplished every soldier and every subject of the British Empire needs the exortation "Quit you like men, be strong." Britain's victory must be a moral, as well as a military, one. It is possible for a nation to triumph and yet gain nothing from its triumph. When a nation enters a conflict without the purest motives, when its cause is not just, when the methods of its warfare violates every principle of international ethics and of the religion of Christ, its victory is bound to re-act in the most awful way upon the moral nature of the country. This war has already begun to react in a way that is brutalising and demoralizing the whole spirit of the German Empire. Britain's victory, therefore, must be a spiritual as well as a material one. It would be a disastrous thing if we should succeed in destroying German militarism and then should absorb the very thing that we drew the sword to destroy. That we may not succumb to a fate so awful, then as soldiers and as citizens we must manifest that spirit of Chrstian manliness suggested in the text "Quit you like men."

Three Things Implied.

"There are three things implied here," said the speaker. First, a spirit of magnanimity towards our enemies. Christ told us to love our enemies, to do good to them that despitefully use us, and pray for them that persecute us. Surely it is possible for a Christian nation to resist the aggression of German militarism without malice and yet with the firm strength of heroes who will not give up until the task is accomplished. The text secondly implies a spirit of chivalry towards our enemies. We must be chivalrous not only with a wounded and fallen foe, but with its women and with its children, its aged and its non-combatants. It may be given to you men yet to invade the enemy's territory and to march into Berlin. Do not allow the lust of battle and the glamour of victory to permit you to forget that chivalry for which Britain has ever stood and that has given her one of the stateliest types of manhood the world has ever seen. Then, thirdly, the text implies the possession of the quality of courage. If we are to achieve a victory that is worth while, then not only must our soldiers, but all our people, show that spirit of moral courage that will always lead them to do right. If you men lose your moral heroism by the way and come back to us worse men in your moral lives than when you left us, then your victory on the field of battle will have been dearly bought. Indeed your victory will only have been a defeat for you and the cause that you represent. Put your trust in Christ. You will only stand fast in the evil day as you stand fast in the Lord.

NEW SHELLS CAUSE TEARS AND SNEEZES

Lachrymatory shells, used once or twice lately by the foe, are shells containing a chemical preparation, the detonation of which brings water to the eyes, preventing the men for some time from using the rifle. Ammonia and mustard oils are the best known chemicals with this peculiar quality, though almost all asphyxiating gases employed by the Germans, including chlorine and bromine, have it in considerable degree.

As lachrymatory shells affect the eyes so also they attack the nostrils and throat and cause violent fits of sneezing, during which the soldier is helpless.

Browning Class On Tuesday

The following questions are suggested for the study of the poem, "The Boy and the Angel," to be discussed at the Browning class on Tuesday evening:

1. What difficulty is anticipated by the poet in the cuplet, with God a day endures alway, etc.?
2. What bearing has the boy's illness on the plot of the poem?
3. What miracle does Gabriel perform on (a) the boy, (b) the Pope, and why is the thought in "Resume the craftiness and the boy" so expressed?

TO ABOLISH ANCIENT FAIR.

Brentford Also Regards 800-Year-Old Market as a Nuisance.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—One by one England is losing many of its old institutions. The market and fair at Brentford have been famous for centuries. Indeed, the charter for both was given by Edward I., who died in 1307.

The Brentford District Council is now seeking powers to abolish them. The charter is held by the Middlesex County Council, and the reason for the proposed abolition is that the market and fair have fallen into desuetude and have become a nuisance.

The fair was, in past years, one of the most famous in the west of London, rivaling that at Barnet, and Butler, in "Hudibras," records many incidents connected with it. It was held in the ancient market place of the town.

THE VOYAGE OF THE 8th MOUNTED RIFLES ON THE S. S. MISSANABIE

Trooper Billy Field of Peterboro' in a Letter to the Examiner, Describes the Experiences of the Mounted Men in Their Journey to the Old Country—An Interesting Letter.

ARE NOW AT LIPHOOK

The Examiner has received the following interesting letter from Trooper Billy Field of Peterborough, who is now in England with the 8th C.M.R.:

Plymouth, England,
Oct. 18th, 1915.

The Editor,
Examiner Office,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Just a line to let the citizens of Peterborough know that we arrived safe and had a most pleasant journey. We boarded the S. S. "Missanabie" on Oct. 8th and arrived in Plymouth at two o'clock p.m. Oct. 18th. Altogether there were about 1,700 soldiers on board, including 600 19th C. M. R. of Calgary; 250, 79th Highlanders of Winnipeg; 250, 40th Battalion Infantry from Nova Scotia, and about 600 of us. Since we left Canada a most pleasant time was spent, different kinds of sport, such as boxing, wrestling, jumping, etc., being the past time. A farewell party was held on the evening of Oct. 16th while on board, this being the best event of the voyage.

I will follow with a list of our happenings from Oct. 8th till Oct. 18th:

Friday, Oct. 8th.—Left Barriefield at 7.30 a.m. and started for Ottawa, where we arrived at 1.40 p.m. During the afternoon we were reviewed by His Honour the Duke of Connaught, Minister of Militia Sir Sam Hughes, Premier Sir Robert Borden, and several other high officers. This took place in front of the Parliament Buildings. Left Ottawa at 5.15 p.m. and arrived in Montreal at 9.37 p.m., then embarked on the S. S. "Missanabie" and turned into bed for our first night's sleep on board.

Saturday, Oct. 9th.—Boat left Montreal at 6 a.m. Fine weather and a nice bright day. Arrived in Quebec at 5 p.m., where the 250 of the 40th Batt. boarded the boat. We sailed again at 6 p.m., then settled down for the night.

Sunday, Oct. 10th.— A rough day, with a cold north-east wind blowing. In the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Church parade at 9 a.m. Grew warmer towards evening.

Monday, Oct. 11th (Thanksgiving Day).—Out of sight of land. Still in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Church parade at 9.15 p.m. Put most of the time in reading and smoking.

Tuesday, Oct. 12th. — Passed by Cape Race, the last piece of Canadian soil to be seen. Bright day, but a strong west wind blowing. Appearance of a storm, but cleared up. Nothing much to do at night, so turned into bed early.

Wednesday, Oct. 13th.—Looked like a nice day, but around noon time a few showers fell. Sea a little rough and a cool south-west wind blowing. Most of the fellows sea-sick. Enjoyed the evening with a sing-song.

Thursday, Oct. 14th.—Weather continues the same, with slight showers falling every few minutes. The boys seem to be all sick and beginning to feel the effects of the trip. A sing-song was carried on during the evening.

TROOPER W. B. FIELD, 8th C.M.R.

Friday, Oct. 15th.—During the morning we had some physical exercise, which we were badly in need of. It revived us and took away the lazy feelings. As we are now in the danger zone we had life belt drill during the afternoon. The weather is again bright.

Saturday, Oct. 16th.—At noon to-day about 500 miles from our journey's end. Some nice weather continues. At 7.30 p.m. a farewell party was given. A good time was given the men. At 10.20 p.m. the party broke up.

Sunday, Oct. 17th.— The last and best day of the voyage. Sea very calm and the weather first class. Church at 10.30 a.m. At 11.40 a.m. two torpedo boat destroyers were sighted on the horizon ahead. At 12 a.m. they were with us, one on each side as an escort through the worst part of the danger zone. They were a little distance ahead, but could always be plainly seen. A heavy fog came on during the night and we made very little headway.

Monday, Oct. 18th.—Up at 4.30 a.m. and breakfast at 5 a.m. We expected to disembark at 10.30 a.m., but on account of the fog we had to wait for safety. We were still all the night of the 17th and all this morning till 12.30 a.m. Starting again we pulled into Devenport at 1.50 p.m. Our orders were to stay on board all night, so after a sing-song, prepared for our last sleep on the boat.

Tuesday, Oct. 19th.—Up at 5.15 a.m. and breakfast 5.45 Disembarked at 8.25 a.m. The train was alongside the boat on the docks. Train left Devenport at 8.45 a.m. It was a very pleasant trip to Liphook. The scenery was the best to be seen. We arrived in a city called Exeter at 12 a.m., where a feed was given by the Mayoress. After filling our water bottles with hot tea we started again and arrived at Liphook at 5.30 p.m. Then we started for the camp, a distance of 2 1-2 miles, with full kit. Shortly we arrived in camp, where a good meal was served. Then we were shown our quarters and prepared for the night. We are quartered in huts, lots of room and well ventilated. Altogether we were surprised with our new camp. All the Peterborough boys are well and seem to like this life. Mart Kennedy is also here, having come from Niagara. The 128th C.M.R. came with us.

Well, I will draw to a close. All our Peterborough boys wish to be remembered to the citizens, sending their best respects and hoping to see Peterborough once again.

Yours truly,
Trooper Billy Field.

MEMORIAL TO MISS CAVELL

Will be Held at St. George's Church, on Thursday Evening Next

A memorial service to the late Miss Cavell, the English nurse who was executed in Belgium, will be held in St. George's Church, South Peterborough, on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Almost every city in the Empire has held a fitting memorial to the late Miss Cavell, and on Thursday evening Peterborough will do so. The Mayor and members of the City Council will attend officially. His Honour Judge Huycke and the officers of the 93rd Overseas Battalion will also attend. It has not been definitely decided but possibly the band of the 93rd will be present. There will be no sermon, but two short addresses will be given by His Honour Judge Huycke and His Worship Mayor Buller. The full order of service will be published to-morrow. As has been the custom throughout the Empire the offertory at this service will be devoted to the Red Cross.

Chief Thompson of the Police Department, and Chief Howard of the Fire Department, will also attend officially.

TEUTONS SUFFER A SETBACK IN THE FIGHT FOR RIGA

LONDON, November 1.—Field Marshall von Mindenburg's army in the Riga region has suffered a serious setback, according to the admission of the Berlin war office which states that the forces which several weeks ago had crossed the Missa River, have been thrown back upon the southern bank. Russian troops which pursued the Germans across the stream are declared Germans across the stream are declared by the Germans to have been forced to retire again to the northern side.

There has been a lull in the fighting in the Dvinsk region, though it is believed here that the Germans are preparing for another drive for that city. It must be made soon as snow is falling and the movement of heavy artillery is becoming more difficult.

On the front side of the Pripet marshes, where little of importance has been reported for some time past, it is reported to-night in a despatch from Petrograd that the Germans are evacuating the town of Kovel, where they had accumulated considerable stores of ammunition and supplies.

Along the Styr the Germans are engaged in a counter-offensive and have recovered some territory which General Ivanoff took from them. Further south, in Galicia, the Russians have returned to the offensive, and according to Vienna, have made unsuccessful attempts to cross the Stripa.

The Martyrdom of Miss Cavell

Special Reference to Execution of Nurse in City Churches Yesterday

In many of the city churches fitting reference was made to the martyrdom of the late Miss Edith Cavell, the English nurse who was executed by the Germans in Belgium. At the George street church, Charlotte street church and the Murray street Baptist church the cruel death of this woman, and her heroism in facing it were made the subject of special sermons. The reverend speakers spoke in the highest terms of the bravery of Miss Cavell, setting forth the splendid example of self sacrifice and true patriotism, this noble woman has left to the world.

FOOD EXPERT FROM STATES TO LECTURE HERE

Mrs. Brown-Lewers is Conducting Better Foods, Better Homes School in Kingston This Week

SINCE the beginning of September, Mrs. Mary Brown-Lewers, popular Homes lecturer, and Better Foods, Better cookery expert, has been lecturing in Canadian points to thousands of housewives and has accomplished a great deal of good. The Examiner is pleased to report that she has been secured for a series of lectures and cookery lessons in this city, to which the housewives are cordially invited. Her Better Foods Better Homes school in Peterborough, will be conducted in the Conservatory of Music, Hunter and Rubidge Streets.

There will be six free lectures and cookery lessons, one each afternoon of the week November 8th to November 13th inclusive, at 2.30 o'clock, and one evening lecture on Wednesday at 8 o'clock.

As Peterborough is one of the most progressive towns in this part of the Dominion, and the women of this city are unusually good housekeepers and cooks, it is predicted that the school here will be one of the best Mrs. Brown-Lewers has held in Canada. In Winnipeg her class numbered some afternoons as high as thirteen hundred, and in other cities in western Canada her work was equally well received.

One of Mrs. Brown-Lewers' special hobbies is the conserving of childlife, and developing the coming citizen, so that in the future he shall be of the greatest possible values to the nation. Believing that at the basis of all development lies the fundamental question of nutrition, and that the greatest of all problems throughout all childhood is that of proper feeding Mrs. Brown-Lewers has given very serious thought and deep study to this matter, and mothers are always grateful for the assistance given in her talk along this line.

T. A. S. NOTES

The regular meeting of St. Peter's branch of the T.A.S. was held yesterday afternoon in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. Several new members were installed, after which Father Phelan addressed the members at length and incidentally sprung a pleasant surprise, when he introduced Pte. Stenson, a member of St. Peter's Branch, who recently returned after doing his bit at the front. Pte. Stenson ascended the platform and for some time held the meeting spellbound by his graphic description of the different engagements he took part in. His description of the charge in which Major Bennett met his death was particularly impressive. Pte. Stenson is a most entertaining speaker, and coupled with his great modesty, made the address one to be remembered by all who were privileged to hear him. Short speeches were made by Messrs. D. O'Connell, L. V. McElderry, Mr. Haslam, Dougherty and others, who all congratulated Pte. Stenson on his safe arrival back, and hoped in the near future to see him enjoying his usual good health. He is at present suffering from the effects of gas fumes.

The ladies of St. Peter's Parish are holding a social in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Wednesday evening next, to procure Christmas cheer and comforts for the boys at the front, which will be forwarded in time for Christmas. A pleasant evening is assured all who attend, and as the cause is a worthy one there should be a large crowd present.

COAL OPERATORS ARE ANTICIPATING HIGH PRICES

Cost of Anthracite Will Go Up a Few Cents—Dealers Look For a Big Jump a Year From Now, But This Winter Price Will Be Fairly Reasonable

Have you laid in a supply of coal for the coming winter? You haven't, eh? Well, then, you are one of the thousands who has contributed something toward starting a fuel famine this winter, and you may be the first to complain of the situation you have helped to create.

To buy coal in the summer, even at the usual substantial discount seems far fetched to many persons. When your thoughts are centering about ice, how can you think of buying coal? The average family head has not enough imagination during the August dog days to appreciate the full rigors of January. As he mops his brow and tries to straighten his wilted collar, he is likely to think of zero weather as something decidedly pleasant.

Here in a nutshell is the anthracite situation for the coming winter, according to the coal men:

The price may rise a few cents above that of last year, and surely will not decline.

There is a shortage of men and cars which may result in a famine toward the latter part of the winter. The failure of householders to lay in an early supply, as already outlined, and the decreased production due to last year's mild winter, will be factors making for a famine.

The coal business, in the opinion of all the big producers, will be good this winter.

If there is any exorbitant increase in coal prices, the retail dealer will be responsible, and not the mine owners or the railroads. The great anthracite fields are controlled by five or six men who think it good business policy to keep the prices at a certain figure at all times. They are satisfied to make a profit of five per cent. on their investments.

The railroad rates in the States are fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, so that only the Canadian roads can be a factor in the raising of transportation rates; and from the frontier to Peterborough is but a short haul.

Says There Is Little Profit to Producers.

"Most persons think that the mine owners, shippers and dealers are members of a conspiracy to defraud the helpless consumer," said a prominent coal authority, who himself is neither operator, shipper nor dealer. "They imagine that the retail price includes a tribute to all three conspirators. First the mine owner sticks an extra price on his product, then the railroad magnate slaps an extra charge on the transportation, and finally the retail dealer adds his share to the selling price. So the legend runs."

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "there is less profit for the producers in the coal trade than in almost any other great industry."

The five or six men in control of the American anthracite fields have kept up the price when the demand was low and the supply large. But it is also true that they have kept the price at a reasonable figure when the situation was reversed and they might have claimed all sorts of fancy prices. This action has not been due to any virtue or lofty morality on their part; it has been dictated by sound business considerations only. The men who control the hard coal deposits know that as soon as they impose prohibitive prices that bituminous coal will displace their product. Anthracite is, after all, only a luxury. The world can very well do without it, and will have to do without it by 1960 or thereabouts when the supply runs out.

Will Never Be Cheaper.

Anthracite can never become cheaper. As is well known, no new fields have been discovered since ten years or more ago, and there is no hope of further discoveries. Floyd W. Parsons, editor of the Coal Age, and a mining engineer of wide experience, says that the best seams have already been exploited, and that the present supply comes mostly from thin seams that are difficult to work.

"The demand increases from year to year," he said, "while the supply decreases slowly but surely. At the same time it is becoming more expensive to mine anthracite. I estimated ten years ago that the world's stock of anthracite would run out in approximately seventy-five years, and nothing has happened in the meantime to cause me to change my mind. There is no geological foundation for the belief that more anthracite will ever be discovered."

"How about soft coal?"

"Oh there the situation is different—very different. The bituminous deposits will last another 500 years at least, and there are more mines to be discovered."

Both Mr. Parsons and F. E. Saward, editor and owner of the Coal Trade Journal, were of the opinion that business depression during the 1915 summer months would help bring about a coal scarcity this winter. They believed that the straightened financial condition of the average householder in Canada and the United States, added to his natural disinclination to buy coal in the summertime and helped to keep production at its lowest. E. W. Parker of the Anthracite Bureau, recently expressed the same view. The arrival of the first cold wave will give no rise to a frantic demand for coal on the part of a consumer whose cellars are empty. The mines and dealers will do their best to supply the demand, but they will be handicapped both by labour and car shortage.

May Be Strike Next Spring.

The prospect of a general strike of the anthracite coal miners, beginning on April 1, will contribute toward the general uncertainty of the situation in the last winter months and the first month of spring. The four-year agreement between mine-owners and their employees expires on April 4, 1916. After that date, the United Mine Workers of America expect to get an eight instead of a nine-hour day; they will ask for a 20 per cent. increase in wages; and they will demand recognition of their union. It is probable that the workers will secure the last demand mentioned; they may even get an eight-hour day; but it is not likely that in addition thereto they will be granted the increase in wages they ask.

The 175,000 men who constitute the United Mine Workers of America organization are asking this time for a two-year, instead of a four-year agreement, such as runs out on April 1. It is doubtful whether the magnates will care to make an agreement for so short a time. They want quiet and stability in the labour field for at least four years to come, and do not relish the idea of another pow-pow beginning in April, 1916.

A really serious coal famine is hardly expected this winter. The real pinch, if it comes, will be due to arrive next winter. The labour shortage will probably be more serious than ever by that time, for the departure of miner-reservists continues apace, and a possible strike in the spring must have an added effect. Everyone in the coal mining business is counting on a war to last at least until 1917, and most people are counting on a war that will spread beyond its present limits— hence the expectation that the departure of foreign miners to European battlefields has only begun. The Coal Age recently sent out blanks to 1000 anthracite and bituminous mine owners and operators asking for a report on the condition of their mines. Hundreds of replies were received, of which a large percentage said something of a labour shortage had already set in. Others reported, "Men will be scarce in 60 days," or "Looks like labour shortage here." All the firms reported good business, and most spoke of working to their fullest capacity. Several of the replies stated that business was better than any time since 1912, and that prospects were the brightest in years.

W. C. T. U. HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

The W. C. T. U. held their regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, in the Y.W.C.A., with the President, Mrs. Whalley, in the chair. The attendance was good. One new member was received. The Union have felt for some time that they should get the young people interested in temperance work and organize a Loyal Templars Legion. Mrs. Carruthers, 542 Aylmer street, kindly offered her home on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9th, for a parlour meeting and it was decided to invite the young couple and have this work discussed. Mrs. Smith of Hamilton, spoke a few encouraging words to the members. She said the "W.C.T.U. should appeal to every Christian woman, and every member should always wear the white ribbon bow, for it speaks for us when we don't."

Mrs. Whalley gave a very interesting report of the Ottawa convention. She said that Mr. Irwin, the chaplain that had been sent with the first contingent, had fallen at the front, but Mr. Whitman had taken his place. Mr. Archibald, son of Toronto's chief of police, would be the next representative. Three ambulances and one field kitchen, at a cost of $1,550 each, also $300 to a hospital ship, had been forwarded by the W.C.T.U. of Ontario. Mr. Smith, one of the young men who had been at the front, spoke at the convention of the evils of drink and cigarettes. Tons of cigarettes had gone over to the soldiers. He said he had been waist deep in mud and water and if it was ever necessary to use them, it was then, but he had never touched either. Instead of cigarettes, he said, send chocolate - gum and Washington coffee, which helps to destroy the taste for liquor; this the W.C.T.U. decided to do.

Mrs. Whalley was given a hearty vote of thanks for her helpful address, after which the meeting adjourned.

SET FIRE TO THE CURTAINS

Small Blaze In the Home of Mr. John Carroll Bolivar Street

A youngster playing with matches set fire to the window curtains and bed in a room in the house of Mr. John Carroll, 697 Bolivar street, this morning. The fire brigade was called, but Mr. Carroll had extinguished the blaze with a couple of pails of water before the department reached the scene. The damage will amount to $15 or $20.

The department had two calls yesterday, one for a chimney fire at 83 London street, where no damage was done, and the other to the matt ess factory on Hunter street east, where a fire had broken out in the ruins. A line of hose was laid and the incipient blaze quickly extinguished.

INCREASE IN THE CUSTOMS

The customs returns for Peterborough for the month of October, 1915, show an healthy increase over the corresponding month last year. For the month just closed the total was $97,488.89, and for October, 1914, $44,541.91, an increase this year of $52,946.98.

THE PRESENT MONTH—NOVEMBER

Some of Its Characteristics and Its History—Usually a Gloomy Month

Written for the Examiner by Frank Russell

Descriptive.

November, the eleventh month of the year, upon which we enter to-day, is decidedly one of the winter months. It is generally regarded as one of the gloomiest—if not the most gloomy—of the year. Leaden skies and torrents of sleet or rain, in combination with gusty wind, bring down the last few remaining leaves. As the clouds break up, they have a ragged look, there is no golden hue in the far west, and they appear as though trying to find the blue sky which has been lost. It is a month which somehow or other every one appears glad to see the end of.

Characteristics.

The country roads are soft—if not covered with snow—and one sticks in the mire at every step, if one traverses them, although but a few weeks ago, there was a delight in walking along them. In this month our gardens begin to look desolate. If a living flower still stands among its companions, it seems to be calling to its mother—earth—to be let in. Yet there are to be found many berries which the early frosts have ripened to perfection.

Many little animals are busy during this month laying up their stores for the winter.

Autumn Passing Away.

Autumn, with her noticeable change of temperature, from the mild and—and at times—warm days of summer, to perceptibly colder air, stirred now and then by a raw and searching wind, is rapidly passing away, to be replaced by a season of sterner measures. The harvest of the field and of the fruits of the orchard are no longer in evidence. Already the increasing volume of smoke arising from the chimneys, and the warm overcoats worn by folk out-of-doors, prove that summer is now, nothing but a memory and that winter will, all too soon, be gripping us with his icy hand.

Historical.

This, although the eleventh month of our calendar, was the ninth (novem) month of the old Roman year, which commenced on March the first. The eleventh day of the month was reckoned to mark the first day of winter. Tiberius Caesar was asked to rename the month, in his own honour, as his birthday occurred therein; but he declined on the ground that there might arise a difference if there were thirteen Caesars.

The ancient Saxons styled this month the Wint-monat or wind-month owing to the gales of wind which are so prevalent during this epoch.

The Sun's Movements.

On the 22nd day of this month the sun enters the sign of the Zodiac, known as Sagittarius or The Archer, which emblem is said to indicate the growing predominance of cold which now shoots into the very earth, suspending the growing power of Nature.

Church Festivals.

All Saints, a feast of the highest rank, is celebrated on the first of November. This has a vigil (commonly called Hallowe'en) and gives place to no other feast. It was instituted to do honour to all the saints, known and unknown, and to supply any deficiency in the faithfuls' observation of saints' feasts during the year. The vigil appears to have been held as early as the feast itself.

All Souls' Day, which occurs on November the second, is one of Half a Million Russian Troops Waiting For Rumania's Permission to March Through

LONDON, November 1 From the allies' point of view the Balkan situation looks more favorable than at any time since the invasion of Serbia began, or as one military observer here said frankly last night.

"It looks for the first time favorable." The cause of this is a sudden marked change in Roumania's attitude, in favor of the allies, a change which has occasioned Berlin practically to despair of the hope that this Balkan state would maintain its neutrality.

Bucharest despatches make no secret of the fact that Roumania is lending a willing ear to the Entente offer to grant all her claims, including Bessarabia. The definite acceptance of this offer is looked for before another day begins—for as things stand now every hour counts.

A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Bucharest says that last Wednesday at an audience granted Minister of the Interior Jonescu and M Filipesco, leader of the Conservative party, King Ferdinand said that he was not opposed to the aspirations of the Roumania people, and that in this matter he placed himself in the hands of Parliament and the Government.

A half million well equipped Russian soldiers are reported to be in readiness, waiting for Roumania to say the word, then to march through that country to relieve the Serbians. Roumania herself by accepting the allies offer, is expected, by the terms of this pact, to send her own army over the frontier, falling in the rear of the Teuton and Bulgarian forces advancing towards the heart of Serbia from the bend of the Danube.

Already the German general staff is said to be figuring with this danger. The news is confirmed that part of the army of General von Linsingen, fighting in south-western Russia, has been set to the Roumania border line.

GERMANY ALARMED.

Despatches from Berlin, quoting German newspapers show clearly all is not well in the Balkans, as far as Germany's case is concerned. The Berliner Tageblatt, which has special correspondents at every important place in the Near East, learns from Bucharest that large contingents of Russian troops have set sail from the Black Sea ports of Odessa and Sebastopol for the Bulgarian coast. The transports are convoyed by strong squadrons, the despatch says.

This if true bears out the theory that the recent Russian bombardment of Varna, Euxenograd and Burgas were preparatory to the landing of Russian troops on the Bulgarian Black Sea Coast.

From Athens comes the news that the change in the Roumania attitude is "engaging the close attention of the Greek government and the Greek general staff."

A Berne despatch to the Morning Post says that Germany in an effort to counterbalance the allies' offer to Roumania is also making a bid for that country as an ally by offering her a loan on condition that her army march against Bessarabia, promising that she may keep the province if she conquers it.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—It is understood that Premier Jean Goremykin, of Russia, is shortly to be appointed Chancellor of the Empire with supreme control of foreign affairs.

His appointment would make him a twelfth Russian to hold such a position, the first being Chancellor Gotovin, appointed by Peter the Great in 1709, and the last, Prince Gortchakoff, who died in 1883.

"EVER-LOCT"

NATURAL VISION

The New EVER-LOCT eye-glass mount allows the eye a clear sweep of unobstructed vision.

With any obstruction in the way of the eye there is an unconscious strain to see past it.

The new EVER-LOCT has such a slight edge grip on the glass, that there is nothing to cause the eye any strain in attempting to see past an unnecessary projection.

Interested callers welcomed. Demonstrations gladly given.

Was Convicted on a Charge of Vagrancy—To-day Police Court

Ben Hobson's address for the next six months will be the Guelph Prison Farm. He appeared this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble in answer to a charge of vagrancy. Ben's face is about as familiar to the police court officials as some of the railbirds who dissipate their time behind the rail that separates the court proper from the great unwashed.

Enemy Badly Beaten By Italian Forces

Austrians Simulate Surrender and Pay Dearly for Their Subterfuge

ROME, Nov. 1.—The following official statement was issued yesterday:

"In the Adisco Valley on the morning of 29th Austrian columns simulating surrender attempted to approach our positions on the Torle torrent. We discovered the subterfuge, and terrific engagement ensued. The Austrians left 200 dead on the field, and we took 40 prisoners, 100 rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

"At the head of the Rienz Valley the Austrians attacked on the night of the 30th with important forces our Sextenseen advanced positions. Our troops were forced to retreat. The following morning, reinforced, we counter-attacked vigorously and reoccupied the lost ground.

"Saturday along the Isonzo front there were artillery duels and small infantry attacks on both sides. Our troops took a trench at Santa Maria Hill, imprisoning 15 Austrians. On Podgora height the Austrians attacked twice, endeavouring to check our progress towards the summit. They were repulsed, leaving the ground covered with dead.

"On the 29th Italian aeroplanes made bold incursions on the Vaintsizza district in the Carco. Santa Lucia, Tolmino and San Pietro stations were effectively bombarded. Our aeroplanes returned safely despite the adverse atmospheric conditions."
